Regulations Announced

Professor Julius C. Olsen, chairman of the committee on public functions, announces the following regulations:

All candidates for degrees are expected to appear in proper academic costume; bachelor's candidates wear gowns at Baccalaureate and Class Day exercises as well as at Commencement; master's or second degree wear hood in procession Commencement morning; candidates for doctor's degree must leave their orders for hoods at the University Co-op. They will receive them on the Commencement stage when the degree is conferred. It is necessary to place orders earlier than usual this year, because dealers decline to furnish more than are ordered.

Students graduating at the end of the summer session are not considered members of the graduating class and cannot take part or sit with the class on Commencement or Baccalaureate Sunday. They will be allowed to take part in all other exercises.

STREET CARNIVAL IE PLANNED AS BENEFIT

Booths and Dancing Space
Placed at Foot of Park
Street

The Street Carnival to be held on Venetian night, Saturday, May 28, beginning at 8 o'clock, will be held on Park street instead of on Lake street as was announced.

Pres. E. A. Birge's back lawn will be the site of booths, where balloons, flowers, lemonade, ice cream, and candy will be sold, as well as fortune telling booths and side shows.

Part of the street will be roped off for dancing for which 5-cent tickets will be sold both before hand, and at the dance. Thompson's eight-piece orchestra will play for the dancing from 9 to 12. The pavement will also be used as a dance floor.

For Venetian Night to Go
Up in 200 Pounds of Powder

S-s-s-s-s-s-s BOOM! a-a-ahh. Familiar,—yes. But for the first time in two years it will sound out a la fire, sparks, smoke, and colored lights,—real skyrockets.

Strictly Venice-like or not, these little prognosticators of the verbal skyrocket are indispensable to Wisconsin's Venetian night. And Venetian night is Saturday.

Two hundred pounds of powder in six pound skyrockets and aerial bombs will be hurled into the air to s-s-s, boom, and draw prolonged a-a-ahh's from Wisconsin visitors at the Interscholastic track meet and all others who may be fortunate enough to be on the lake shore at 9:15 after the Venetian parade.

Joe Steinhauer and Arthur Kinan '22, chairman of the whole event, will be the sole persons on the barge which will float near the foot of Lake street to hurl the bombs, fire the rockets, and set off surface displays.

Steinhauer says there's to be no unwanted explosions this year. In Venetian nights past it has always been more or less a feature of the evening to have a spark wander into a canoe-load of rockets or a pile of bombs and end the celebration in one minute instead of thirty. A platform covered with wet sand and a tarpaulin-covered fireworks box will be provided to deal with any stray sparks.

Persons in boats who would avoid inconvenient sparks and falling sticks should make it a point to watch the display from a distance.

VARSITY CREW SET FOR RACE

Meet Lincoln Park Crew
Saturday Morning—Badger Captain Injured

Weakened by the loss of Capt. A. Samp '22, the Wisconsin senior varsity crew will meet the Lincoln Park Boat club, Chicago, at 10:30 on Saturday morning, in the first varsity race since 1914.

Samp was injured while leaving the varsity shell after the workout last Friday. The injury has proved serious enough to confine the Badger to the infirmary and will prevent his working out with the crew before the Saturday meet. G. C. Turner '23 will row in position three in place of Samp.

The remainder of the varsity eight is in good condition, and Coach Harry E. Vail has practically decided on the combination which will meet the Chicago club. The varsity eight which took the water in the practice last night follows:

1, G. O. Toepfer '21; 2, C. B. Puestow '23; 3, G. C. Turner '23; 4, P. J. Okerstrom '23; 5, A. J. Platten '23; 6, A. J. Klussendorf '23; 7, K. H. Fauerbach '23; stroke, F. C. Prehn '23; coxswain, E. V. Hanley '22.

Longer Course Rowed

Recent workouts have consisted in long sprints over the water instead of the short sprints, and the men have gradually worked into

Wisconsin Industrial Commissioner Discusses Human Relations—Officers Elected

"The key to success in life is in doing a little more and a little better than is expected of us," said Mr. George P. Hambrecht, chairman of the Wisconsin Industrial commission, in a talk on "Human Relations" before the members of Artus, national honorary economics fraternity, in 304 Physics-Economics building at 7:30 last night. The commissioner was introduced by C. D. Assovsky, president of the local chapter.

Mr. Hambrecht emphasized the point that it is necessary to devote a life to service in order to succeed. It is much more effective to reach people by suggestions through their own point of view than by argument. He compared the argumentative policy of Horace Greeley with the tolerant attitude of Abraham Lincoln and showed how the

OPEN BADGER SALE WILL START TODAY

Open sale of the remaining 1922 Badgers will start today at Music hall after 4 o'clock. Up until that time the books will be reserved for those holding reservation stubs, as, by the terms of the Badger sales, stub books are held for subscribers for only ten days after date of publication. This period of reservation holds up until 4 o'clock today.

The books will be on open sale every day after Wednesday until the entire issue is sold. "Only a very few Badgers remain to be sold," said "Cap" Rasmussen '22 business manager, yesterday. "Those who hold stubs and intend to get their books should obtain them tomorrow, as the Badger staff is responsible for delivery after to day."

ARMY OFFICER WILL INSPECT CORPS FRIDAY

Colonel Chitty, Fort Sheridan, to Witness Annual Review of Cadets

The annual United States army inspection of the University of Wisconsin cadet corps, which has a personnel of 1,200 men and was ranked one of the 15 "distinguished" schools in the country last year, will be held on the lower campus Friday afternoon. Col W. D. Chitty, Fort Sheridan, sixth corps area headquarters, will conduct the inspection.

Guard mount will be conducted at 8 p. m. by the President's Guard, composed of the picked men of the entire corps. The personnel of the guard has 80 members including non-commissioned officers. Selection of this body was made on the basis of interest in work, excellence in military training, and final elimination tests.

To Review Corps

Following the guard mount, at which time the University Regimental band will play, a parade and review will be held. The entire cadet corps will participate in this military ceremony, and pass in review before Colonel Chitty at the reviewing stand.

Company competition drills for the infantry units and the signal corps will also be held in the afternoon. All companies in the corps will participate, and judging of the comparative excellence of each will be made. Several reviews have been held lately, and the army officers attached by the War department to the Wisconsin student units are confident that the corps will receive a high rating again.

Cadets Honored Last Year

Special honor was paid to the university military unit last year by the War department following the annual inspection in May. In an official bulletin the University of Wisconsin was mentioned as one of

"COAL KING" SPEAKS TO COMMERCE MEN

Frank S. Peabody to Tell Students What the Business Man Wants

Frank S. Peabody, president of the Peabody Coal company of Chicago, will be the speaker at the vocational conference held under the auspices of the Commerce school Thursday afternoon at 4:30 in the auditorium of the Physics-Economics building. He will give a practical talk on the attitude of Chicago business men towards the college student, telling just what is expected of them, and the qualities that will lead towards their success.

"Frank Peabody is the king of the bituminous coal business in this country," said Prof. Stephen S. Gilman. "I have known him since the early '80's when he was just starting in the coal business. I consider him a genius at building up a business organization and at picking the right men for responsible positions."

During the war Mr. Peabody was the chief advisor to President Wilson in handling the problems of the Fuel administration. The success of this commission was largely due to his efforts.

THERE'S only one thing we are certain of as we sit down to write this. That is that it is too hot to be lengthy. * * *

AND darn near too hot to be funny. * * *

ISN'T that just like human nature? First we are sore because Spring is taking so long to arrive, and then when it gets here, all we do is kick about the heat. * * *

YOU see, the heat is having its effects on us. It is causing us to wax intellectual instead of...well...simple, you might say. * * *

IN other words, you can never tell where the heat will strike. * * *

THE NOSEY NEWSIE

Question pour aujourd'hui: "Just what do you think of bobbed hair?"

Frances Dummer: "Why, I think that it is alright for anyone who wants to cut it off because of its stringiness."

Dale Merrick: "I don't like it and I never take a girl out who has bobbed hair, unless...."

Willett Kempton: "All I've got to say is that it reminds me of a chorus."

Lucy Jamieson: "It's all right if you don't cut it off so short that you have to wash your neck."

John Price: "I really can't say, but I'm going to try it some time in order to find out just what it is like."

HAVE wasted no less than ten hours perusing the Badger, and this is the conclusion we have reached. It seems too bad that they did not give more space to Sterling Tracy, Frank Weston, et cetera, and so we are taking pity on them and putting their names in here. * * *

NO DEPRESSION AT PRESS CLUB PICNIC

Irrepressible Scribes Pressed for Time and Money at Monona Park

Scribes, eds, copy-carriers, and cub reporters and other members of the Press club, at the annual spring picnic of the club, held last evening at Monona park, convinced themselves that the slogan of the club meant more to them than they thought.

"Pressed for time," one of the catchy lines, came in for a lusty cheer when a crowd of the club members, after waiting for nearly an hour to get a certain Madison street car finally decided to walk out.

Although the delayed picnickers later discovered an errant car rumbling along in the desired direction, they arrived late enough to ruin a planned ball game between the co-eds and the men.

"Pressed for money," another line in the slogan, was realistically pressed upon the memory of those who participated in the exciting candy box raffle conducted by Charles P. MacInnis '22, Charles Demarest '23, August Fehrenbach '22, and many co-eds and co-workers. The fund will be used to make up a deficit from the recent journalistic conference. Twelve boxes of chocolates were donated by Keeley's.

"Irrepressible, but depressed never!" The sizzling of pop bottles, spraying carbonated water like geysers in full action; the cooking of wienies over the smoldering coals of a campfire; the conglomeration of customary eating viands, from pickles, potato chips, "hot dogs," ice cream to the pop itself; the dancing at the pavilion later in the evening, and last the marshmallow fight staged on the "Home James" street car; they all well demonstrate what the slogan means.

NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC PLEASES IN ADMIRABLE ORCHESTRA CONCERT

By A. J. FEHRENBACH

The concert given by the New York Philharmonic orchestra under the auspices of the Madison Orchestral association at the university gymnasium Monday evening was well attended. The fact that there were a number of vacant seats in the auditorium may be attributed to the heavy rain storm which prevailed for an hour before the concert started.

The program was a well-balanced one, opening with the Prelude to the "Meistersinger," by Richard Wagner, which, judging from the enthusiasm manifested by the audience, proved to be the favorite number on the program. Josef Stransky, conductor, won the whole-hearted approval of the house by his masterly art in direction and especially in his skillful interpretation of Wagner's Prelude.

Admirers of Wagner count the score of the prelude rendered as the most perfect, the most finished work that Wagner has done. The multiplicity of variation, and the complex orchestration of the piece was brought out with finished technique by the orchestra.

"Culprit Fay," a rhapsody, composed by Henry Hadley, associate conductor of the orchestra, was given with the composer conducting. His interpretation of the creation of his own genius should lead one to assume that the rendition would be perfection itself. Admitting that Mr. Hadley is a very capable conductor, for his own benefit he should not be placed upon the program with one of Mr. Stransky's calibre, for in such an arrangement the latter looms up in such bold relief that Mr. Hadley must needs suffer in comparison. If, however, "the play's the thing" — or, in this instance, the composition's the thing — that is feeble in comparison with the other numbers on the program, then Mr. Hadley should be commended for his great skill as a conductor. If, on the other hand, the composition is to be considered as being in the category with the work of Wagner, Strauss or Tschaikovsky, then the associate conductor of the Philharmonic merits the baton unqualifiedly, and should be permitted to wield it independently.

The tone poem, "Death and Transfiguration," by Richard Strauss, is a lengthy, and at times, a monotonous number. The piece represents the death scene of a man, the terrific struggle for life. The composition shows Strauss in his musical prime, and is considered as one of his greatest works. The splendid technique and the delicate finish of the orchestra, as well as its might and force, was at its height in the rendition of the "Transfiguration."

Symphony No. 4, in F minor, Op. 36, by Tschaikovsky was the concluding number of the series. The principle theme of the piece is distinctly Russian with its characteristic tinge of sadness and of oriental influence.

The third movement of this symphony proved to be a revelation of sheer, unsurpassed delight. Tschaikovsky's own reaction upon this movement is expressed in a letter he wrote to a friend: "No definite feelings come to expression in the third movement. These are capricious abracadabras, intangible figures which flit through the fancy. The mood is neither merry nor sad. We think of nothing, but give free rein to the fancy. Military music passes by in the distance. Such are the disconnected images which flit through the brain as one sinks into slumber. They have nothing to do with reality; they are incomprehensible, bizarre, fragmentary."

INVESTIGATION IN M'GILVARY CASE STARTED

Hearing at Boston—Prof
McGilvary Took Stand
Yesterday

BOSTON — District Attorney J. C. Pelletier today began an investigation into the death of Paton C. McGilvary former over-seas flier.

Police officials reiterated that they had found nothing to indicate that he was murdered, but relatives and friends have insisted that McGilvary had no reason to kill himself.

From Madison, Wis. word came that Dr. C. H. Bunting, pathologist of the University of Wisconsin and Dr. W. F. Lorenz, after examination of the body had expressed the opinion that he was murdered. Medical Examiner Timothy Leary, who conducted an inquiry into McGilvary's death has announced no formal finding as yet, but has expressed the opinion that it was a case of suicide. He said he considered the murder conclusion reported from Wisconsin "an extremely unreasonable one to draw."

Witnesses summoned by the district attorney, included Mrs. Evelyn Clifford, a friend of Mc Gilvary. In her mail box on May 10, the day he was killed, was found a note which the police have regarded as a farewell message. Dr. Leary and several police officers also were heard, together with most of the witnesses previously interrogated by them.

Prof. E. B. McGilvary, of the University of Wisconsin, father of the former aviator who has maintained that his son had no reason to take his life, was among those questioned this afternoon. Three women who had not been brought into the case, before, also were interrogated.

shape which will enable them to row over the mile and one-quarter course against the Lincoln Park aggregation. The race will start a quarter-mile east of the Lincoln high school and will end at the Park street pier.

Captain Hayes of the Lincoln Park Boat club has selected the following members of the club to row against Wisconsin: 1, Louis Scherer; 2, M. Klinger; 3, N. C. Olsen; 4, Judd Calver; 5, C. Averbach; 6, A. Rehberger; 7, Larry Lineau; stroke, E. T. Crozier; coxswain, George Koehler.

The Chicagoans will arrive in Madison on Friday and will take a trial spin over the course in the afternoon. The lineup of the club eight is practically the same as that of the crew which won the western championship last year at the central states regatta.

Badger Crew Heavy

While the Badger crew averages but 166 2-5 pounds to the man, it has negotiated the mile distance in fast time. In the only recent time trial taken by Coach Vail, the eight was clocked in the fast time of 4 minutes 40 seconds. This mark compares well with records hung up by former Wisconsin crews over the same course on Lake Mendota.

Because ineligibilities have riddled the junior varsity eight, only a tentative crew was selected. The combination which will go against St. John's Military academy in the second race on Saturday morning has not yet been chosen.

Class crews and college eights have been practicing regularly for the inter-class and inter-college races which will follow the varsity rowing meets.

Lincolnian method arouses loyal sentiment.

"To get more of the comforts of life means that everybody must do the best they can to increase production," he said. "When heart, mind, and hand combine, production will be doubled."

Man is naturally a producing animal and works because he likes to produce, continued the speaker. If people realize that their is something about every job that is a help in production they will take a greater interest in their work.

In concluding his talk Mr. Hambrecht urged self-analysis as one of the best things in the world for those having responsible positions.

The election of officers for the coming year and a short business meeting were held immediately after Mr. Hambrecht's talk. Robert B. Stewart was elected president, Melbourne Bergerman, treasurer, and Dean P. Kimball, secretary for next year. Prof. J. Gordon McKay, who was instrumental in founding the organization in 1912, was elected to honorary membership.

U. of M. Students Open Battle For Academic Freedom

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Formation of an organization to be known as the "Cyrano Group" at the University of Minnesota, by the authors of letters signed "Cyrano," a series of criticisms of the faculty which have been appearing in the Minnesota Daily, student publication, was announced Tuesday.

The purpose will be to maintain constant criticism of the faculty and administration of the University.

Formation of the Cyrano group followed dismissal from class of a student who criticised a professor in a "Cyrano" letter. The announcement appearing on the campus declared the group would seek to " vindicate the principle of academic freedom for students."

"We promise absolute secrecy," the announcement said. "We realize that discovery of our identity by the faculty would be followed by persecution and perhaps dismissal from the university. We, however, have a principle for the preservation of which we are willing to assume that risk."

INTERSCHOLASTIC DAY

SOMETHING like 40 high schools from all parts of the state will be represented here next Saturday when the annual interscholastic day events will be held.

This is a splendid opportunity to impress the men coming down with the things Wisconsin has to offer. Every year this university loses men to other schools who ought to come here. Several organizations are now at work trying to work out plans to attract the best men in the state to this university. The university needs them and they need the university.

The Venetian Night celebration will help. Other means ought to be adopted to carry out the new idea.

While we are increasing in quantity we must not neglect the important factor of quality.

A VOICE FROM THE EAST

THE University of Pennsylvania men are "viewing with alarm" the increase of women on the campus. One of the male students who is statistically inclined has figured it out that 12,000 co-eds will grace the university halls in four years if the present rate of increase continues.

This attitude is not uncommon in the East, where co-education has failed to gain the favor which it enjoys in the West. Cornell men also have set themselves against the feminine encroachment on their prerogatives. There is something of this spirit also at Michigan.

The reaction of The New York Times to this question follows:

"These young men are themselves, in fact, a subject of scientific consideration. Their abhorrence of the presence of the feminine is, anthropologists maintain, aboriginal, if not savage. Into the men's club or lodge of primitive tribes no woman is permitted to enter. If by any malign accident one does enter, there is straightway a tribal scandal. The lodge is voided; tom-toms are beaten about it. No man dares to enter until it has been purified and, as it were, re-sanctified by the biggest medicine of the medicine man. The elder anthropologists have seen in all this an ancestral warrant for the exclusiveness still practiced by men's clubs and some universities. They point out that even women's clubs admit men to only a few rooms and have a separate entrance door for them. A certain aloofness between men and women, they say, is as natural as the even more certain attraction."

"The young men of the University of Pennsylvania, and of other universities that have shown a similarly lamentable spirit, may be temporarily excused as victims of an old-age unreason of an atavistic impulse. But they are presumably not beyond the help of advanced anthropology. Before they graduate, certainly, they should be made to realize that the time is coming, and is even now at hand, when always and everywhere there will be women around."

Communication

A BALLOT FOR BRYAN
Editor Daily Cardinal:

If the Madison correspondent of the Milwaukee Sentinel who reported the replies of President Birge, Prof. E. A. Ross, and other of the university faculty to Mr. Bryan on evolution is a reliable reporter, I must express my surprise at the nature of those replies. During four years of endeavor in Hesperia 'Lit' I was taught early and again that ridicule is not argument. Has that principle of logic since been repudiated?

What is this that President Birge says: "When one attempts to induce young people to unite their religious faiths to discredited scientific doctrines he commits a grievous error and endangers the religious life or those he is trying to help"?

Is not the Christian faith founded upon the Bible, or rather upon a crucified, risen and living Christ to which it bears witness? And is not Mr. Bryan seeking to strengthen our faith in that Word, the written and the living? And does not the acceptance of the doctrine of evolution destroy faith in both, among thinking people? Does President Birge mean that the Bible and its Christ are "discredited scientific doctrines"? (Let us pass over the obvious contradiction between "discredited" and "scientific.")

Of Professor Ross I would ask, What have the sixteenth century opinions about the solar system got to do with the present issue? We have pretty satisfactory evidence upon which to rest our belief that our earth revolves about the sun. Can Professor Ross or anyone else produce, has Darwin or anyone else produced, facts as convincing that evolution is true? Besides, the theory of evolution flatly and absolutely contradicts the word of God. Do you find anything in the Bible that denies the facts of our solar system? How do you read the Book of Job, if you read the Bible at all?

As for the Philosophy department, we have but to remind them that not many years ago philosophy embraced all natural phenomena; but as facts came to light that gave birth to the exact sciences of physics, chemistry, bacteriology, etc. Philosophy kept retreating to the realm of the uncontrollable. And the only reason why such a department now exists at all is that man cannot control God and demonstrate Him, which explains atheists, and affirms God.

Of course, the zoology department knows all about life! And in the face of the experience of seeing a man of Mr. Bryan's caliber speak against evolution in a way that leaves his critics no argument but ridicule, Professor Guyer calls it a dead issue! Somehow, sir, one instinctively takes another look at your name.

Anyway, if Mr. Bryan is a back number I am well confirmed in my own mind that his number is not 666.

JAMES H. WEIR, Alumnus.

Cross of Christ Most Powerful Magnet Known

Speaking on the subject of "The World's Greatest Magnet", Sunday morning, Rev. James I Seder, pastor of Emmanuel Evangelical church said in part:

"In a great manufacturing establishment of this state a large, powerful magnet is used to carry heavy steel rails and place them where they are to be cut up and made over into other useful implements. As much as 5,000 pounds can be lifted at one time. The rails themselves become magnetized and permeated with the same unseen, wonderful power sent down from above.

"The world has known moral and religious teachers who have drawn people after them. And we may grant that Buddha and others had some unusual light given them and that they had a message for their age. But theirs was but the light of a candle, whereas the teachings, miracles, life and work of Jesus Christ are the light of the noon day sun. The most powerful magnet of the world is the cross of Christ.

God Reaches Mass
Through Individual

"God reaches the mass through man," said Rev. Henry G. Goodsell at the First Methodist church Sunday morning. This is the day of the group and of the crowd in social, religious, and industrial life, but the trouble with us is that we are wallowing in a welter of words which we either do not understand, or understand only partially.

"Some religious leaders say that the way to seek people nowadays is in the mass. Christ dealt with individuals, and through individuals reached the multitude. The influence of the individual in religion has not lessened, and God holds men responsible for their thoughts and for their conduct."

is not a beauty spot. It was chosen because of its proximity to electric and steam railroad lines.

ROERICH'S PICTURES IN ART MUSEUM MIRROR THE RUSSIAN TEMPERAMENT

By PENNELL CROSBY

The most notable, and certainly the largest, collection of paintings that have come to the art museum in the Historical library this year is the present exhibit of Russian paintings by Nicolas Roerich. The artist himself will lecture on his paintings in the museum, at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

There is a certain weirdness about these compositions, which makes them seem at first unnatural and not entirely pleasant. Roerich is not an impressionist, nor a futurist, although his work approaches the latter school, but rather an emotionalist. Always he strives to create a mood, and few of his moods are joyous. Melancholy, sombre, or fierce with the spirit of war, they mirror the Russian temperament. Whether one likes these paintings or not, one must recognize that they are the characteristics of Russia. Even the obvious crudeness of some seems to be done for this effect.

There is little attempt at realism. It is sacrificed for the mood of the study. Each picture expresses a definite idea, even the most vague of the landscapes.

Some of the coloring is felt to be crude, with the gaudy brightness that a savage or a child might use. It is hard to understand the reason for these raw colors, when one sees the coolness and repression in other paintings of the collection.

Roerich has been much interested in the theater, as shown by the vivid pictorialism of contemporary opera, drama, and ballet, and part of this collection is made up of tempera studies for the most gorgeous costumes with a vigor of coloring reminiscent of Bakst.

The strange, unusual quality of these paintings is partly explained by the life of the artist. Born at Petrograd, 1874, his childhood was spent on an immense 10,000 acre estate, with trails of primeval forests and shining lakes. Passionately devoted to outdoor life, he gloried in the solitude of nature, with his dogs and a body servant as his only companions.

After a preliminary training at May Gymnasium, he entered the university to prepare himself for law, in deference to a paternal wish, but also studied art at the Imperial academy. After this he traveled and studied extensively, at home and abroad.

Typically Russian in spirit, his artistic sympathies turned to the East as well as to the West. His art is a combination of Oriental masters and Gothic mysticism. He is always something of a mystic and a visionary. Legendar themes, subduced ecstasy of religious composition, are treated with a vivid, decorative pictorialism.

FORD FIRE

Madison's Best Called to Extinguish Blaze Near Grady's

As usual the thrilling whistle of the fire department siren brought the restless students eager for excitement out into the street. Crowding out of houses they followed the wild clarions' call, the mob growing ever larger until it and the four large trucks, including the biggest and best of Madison's fire department, slowed up in front of Grady's boarding house on Langdon street.

A little tin Ford was in a blaze of glory, flames shooting up from the deepest recesses of its innermost workings. Who called the fire department? Who always does in a case like that? Small boys they say. At least these boys have been discussing the question of the hero's identity all day in stealth groups.

The Ford? Oh, the four trucks went home and with a pail of water the little tin Ford's blaze of glory was extinguished. Dejected, forgotten it stands by the road side.

WASHINGTON — Approximately 4,300,000 workers are idle in Europe exclusive of Russia and the Balkan states, Secy. Hoover said Monday, on the basis of estimates from agents abroad. This represents an increase in unemployment of about one-third as compared with six months ago, but compares with an unemployment of from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 just after the armistice was signed.

WELLS-FARGO STAGE COACH DAYS ARE BROUGHT BACK BY ARMED POSTAL GUARDS

Armed guard watching loading of mail car at Boston.

Postoffice employes in most of the larger cities of the country have been supplied with shotguns and small arms by the department to protect the mail from bandits. The presence of these men with shotguns where mail is loaded into trucks, wagons and trains recalls the "old days" when guarding of the Wells-Fargo chests on the mail coaches furnished thrilling chapters in the country's history.

At The Theaters

AT THE GRAND

"Not Guilty," a dramatic story with a generous supply of thrills and romance, will be the feature of offering at the Grand starting today. The photoplay is a film adaptation of Harold MacGrath's popular novel "Parrot & Co."

The plot concerns the adventures of twin brothers, and the sacrifice of one to shield the other. One of the brother commits murder, and his twin accepts the blame for the deed by changing places with the guilty one. To make things more interesting, both the men are in love with the same girl. The story takes many absorbing twists before the big climax in which everything is straightened out satisfactorily.

Richard Dix plays the dual role of the twins. Sylvia Bremer and Molly Malone, who are forging to the front as film heroines, are seen in the leading feminine roles of the picture. A well-balanced cast forms the supporting company.

Many of the scenes for "Not Guilty" have their locale in India along the shores of the Ganges. Thousands of native Hindu women will be seen bathing in the Sacred river. The world famed temples of that country will add great beauty to the production, especially the scenes showing the Taj Mahal, the pure white marble mausoleum built at Agra, India, by the Magul Emperor Shah Jehan, in memory of his favorite wife. The colorful tea houses built over the picturesque harbor at Rangoon are another feature of the production, as are the curious pearl boats.

AT THE STRAND

The reasons for Robert W. Chambers' popularity as a writer of brilliant society stories are demonstrated anew in the picture version of "The Restless Sex," which will be shown at the Strand theater for four days starting today. Pretty Marion Davies is the star. The lively romance and elaborately artistic backgrounds make the production unusually pleasing.

"The Restless Sex" is of course, the feminine, and the story centers around Stephanie Cleland, a society girl with an inborn craving for excitement and ambition to experience life to the full. She is the adopted daughter of John Cleland, a millionaire, and it comes as a shock to her at the latter's death to learn that his son, Jim, her lifelong companion is not her real brother. Following a midnight adventure at a roadhouse, Stephanie is led into an unfortunate marriage and subsequent unhappiness, from which her love for Jim finally extricates her.

The added attractions are a comedy cartoon, a Paramount magazine and a Prizma colored picture.

AT THE ORPHEUM

Miss Lillian Walker, "dimples and smiles" of the movies, with her pleasing personality and winning way is drawing the crowds to the Orpheum the first half of this week, where she is headlining an unusually good vaudeville bill, with her monologue on the "ifs," "ands," and "whys" of the movie stars. This is the first opportunity theater-goers have had of seeing this little lady in person and all are delighted with her. Bert Baker and company in the laughing skit "Pervications," offers one of the best playlets seen here in a long time, while Green and Dean, offering nifty songs, Ziska the Magician, the three Blighty girls in bits of Scotch vaudeville, Herbert's dogs and Pathé News and Topics of the Day pictures complete the bill. There will be a popular priced matinee today and the two regular evening performances.

"Cap" Isabel still has some decorative fixtures and boats suitable for floats which can be secured by arrangement with "Cap" and Gus Tuckerman '23, B. 199.

A rowboat motor race and a 200 yard novelty race in which the contestants paddle for 100 yards, swim and push their canoes for 50 yards, and then paddle the remaining 50 yards have been added to the list of events for the canoe tournament to be held Saturday morning. Entries should be made with Gordon Wanzer '24, B. 191. It has been announced that there is to be no girl's singles race in the tourney.

Fair Lillian To Fly From Madison
To Rockford, Ill.

Miss Lillian Walker, movie actress, appearing at the Orpheum theater, will fly to Rockford, Ill., from Madison Thursday morning in an airplane piloted by Bert Hassell of Camp Grant. The plane will hop off at 9 a. m. and will fly over the city for a few minutes to give Miss Walker a better opportunity to see the city, which she says is "simply wonderful."

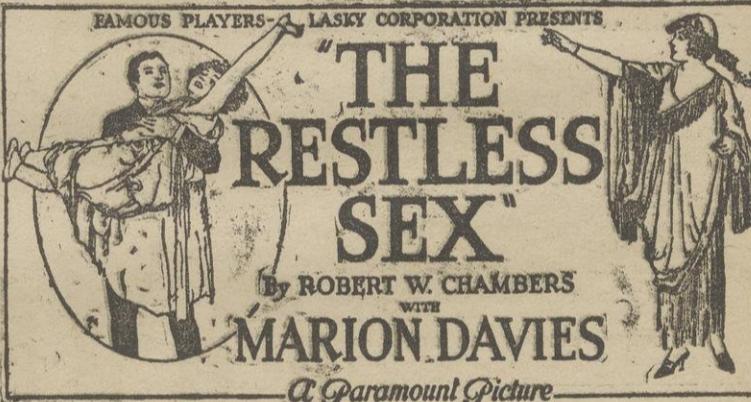

The flight will be nothing new to Miss Walker, as she has been in the air often during her motion picture work. She will be met at Rockford by leading citizens who will parade through the city in her honor. She is to appear at the Palace theater there during the last half of this week.

LAST OCTOPUS IS "BEST YET"

Senior Number is on Campus Tomorrow—Cover Design Good

"The best yet" is a rather trite thing to say about the Octopus, but it is true of the Senior number which comes out today, if it never was true before. Unusually prolific artists with unusually distinctive styles make this number an excellent collection of college art that is far above the normal.

The Octopus has succeeded in gathering together a group of artists who are developing along widely different lines, each attaining distinction in his own way.

Cover Well-Done

The impressionistic coolness and chic that is the cover, the imaginative and well-executed frontispiece, "Supply and Demand," the spaciousness of the sailboat scene, the idealistic view of a senior, "Stepping Into It," and the sadly realistic picture of a deserted recluse at his books—all are characterized by the collegiate touch, and are distinctly representative of Wisconsin in the best sense.

The jokes, poems, little essays, pithy sayings, and stories which fill the pages of the Octopus in unwonted profusion, are also unusually representative of Wisconsin, in that all but four small jokes originated within the walls of the university.

Variety of Humor

The Octopus has a continually increasing variety and originality in its makeup which bids fair to put it far ahead of other college publications of the same type, if it does not already excel in that line.

One of the cleverest parts of the Octopus, as usual, is found to be the editorial page, which discusses with sympathy, with good humor, or with withering sarcasm, the different problems of campus life and manners.

WORK AT COMMONS MAY BE SECURED

Students who are desirous of earning part of their expenses while attending the university will have the opportunity to qualify for positions at the University Commons by taking an examination June 4. Information and application may be had from the Civil Service Commission, Capitol, and those interested are urged to file their applications as the examination is to be conducted in order to supply a list of eligibles for certification at the beginning of the fall term.

The OTHER SIDE of EVOLUTION

By Alexander Patterson

Here is raised a standard against the Theory of Evolution, the stronghold of infidelity and the disbelief of the age.

The literature of our day is largely based upon it. Our school system is dominated by it. Christendom is being rocked by this "wind of doctrine."

It produced the World War. It promises to produce the anti-christ.

Let this book inform, warn, and prepare you against this wicked theory—man's mightiest argument against God's Word.

Also, if requested, we will send free "Can a Man be Scientific and Believe the Bible," a Personal Testimony by Dr. Howard A. Kelly, of John Hopkins (see Who's Who).

Jantzen
Swimming Suits

How the modern girl does enjoy swimming! No loose skirts or blouses to hamper her as she dives—in her Jantzen—and takes all the fancy strokes she likes. Miss 1921 would enjoy her daily swim in an old fashioned bathing suit about as much as she would her mourning canter riding side saddle.

The modern swimming suit is the Jantzen. It has done much to add to the joy of water sports and change the mode in bathing apparel. It has been accepted for the past five years as the leading swimming suit of the Pacific Coast. This season Jantzen will be worn at every important beach in the country.

It's the Jantzen stitch that makes this suit different. And patented features in tailoring make it fit comfortably and naturally—it never binds—never sags. A Jantzen holds its shape after years of service.

As our stock of these famous bathing suits is limited, we would advise you to buy early.
