Control Board, Insurgents Reach Compromise

DEAN GOODNIGHT
FAVORS WORK OF
STUDENT SENATETug of War Between the Classes to Replace
Bag-rush

Commending the Student Senate for its recent action in revising the freshman-sophomore bag rush, Dean Scott H. Goodnight declared at the meeting of the body yesterday noon that the new system, involving a tug of war between the classes, would do away with numerous bad features connected with the rush in its present form.

Dean Goodnight praised this as the first constructive action which the senate has taken in the past four years to remedy evils in various campus activities. He further suggested that other changes might be made by the senate in reorganizing "Cap Night," the Forensic board, and the Student Senate constitution.

Election Success

Charles Tayse, '28, chairman of the elections staff, reported that the recent spring election sponsored by the Student Senate, was a financial success. The receipts of the election amounted to a profit of $30.

A motion, upon which definite action will be taken by the senate at its next meeting May 17, was made to change the evening of Cap Night from Varsity night in the spring to the eve of the homecoming football game in the fall. This will do away with all wearing of green caps by freshmen in the spring, but will not change the plans now under way for this year's cap night. The proposed plan will not become effective until next fall.

Peterson Heads Committee

Committees of the organization elected for the coming year include Wesley Peterson '28, chairman of the joint government committee, Warren Price, '29, and Mortimer Huber '28.

The executive committee, composed of Paul Grieser '28, chairman, Frederick Koehler '29, and Walter Brummond '29, will work together with the senate judiciary committee consisting of Mortimer Huber, chairman; Richard Clement '28, and Warren Price.

They are searching the wide, wide Atlantic now for the intrepid French aviators, Nungesser and Celi, who have been lost at sea during their 3,000 mile flight from Paris to New York. Up to last night no trace of the men had been found.

More Tornadoes

Once more the state of Arkansas and Missouri surveys the ruins of a disaster. Following close upon earlier tornadoes and the Mississippi flood, tornadoes struck the states Monday and yesterday killing nearly a hundred persons, leveling the business section of Poplar Bluffs, Missouri and damaging scores of other cities.

Bumper wheat crops for Kansas and Oklahoma had been predicted but the recent over-abundance of wind and rain has raised havoc with the grain.

The Wisconsin State assembly yesterday adopted a bill by unanimous vote providing for the raising of the speed limit on state highway from 30 to 40 miles an hour.

Handicaps to Smith's Chances

Mark Sullivan, author of "Our Times" and famous newspaper correspondent, last week discussed Gov. Alfred Smith's chances for the presidency at some length. Mr. Sullivan lists the handicaps to Smith's chances for the Democratic nomination in this summer omitting religion from consideration:

1. His wetness. "More than two-thirds of the people of the United States and fully nine-tenths of its territory are dry," concludes Sullivan.

2. His associates with Tammany. For over a century the word Tammany has grown into disrepute. Somehow the people have learned to know Tammany as a symbol for gaining elections at any cost. It is characterized by these lines from the song "ammany":

"Big Chief sits in his tepee,
Cheering Braves to victory;
Tammanee-ee, Tammanee-ee!
Swamp 'em! Swamp 'em!
Get the Wampum!"

Looking Ahead
To a Tercentary

The state of Massachusetts now proposes to celebrate the landing of the Pilgrim fathers with a tercentary in 1930.

With the mistakes of the sequi-centennial of Philadelphia to profit by, the celebration should be a success. For one thing, headline writers and many other mortals will rejoice that tercentary is a shorter and more pronounceable word than sequi-centennial.

A Frenchman
Looks at America

At periodic intervals a foreigner comes to this country gazes over an expanse of billboards and smokestacks, delves into the intricacies of modern politics and society, and emerges out of all the confusion with a brand-new book in which he sets forth his views of the American people.

Bryce did the same thing and wrote a searching analysis of what constitutes a true American.

Now, a Frenchman, Arde Siegfried, has returned from an inspection of America to his easy chair and has produced a book, "America Comes of Age: A French Analysis." The book is highly praised by H. L. Mencken in the current issue of Nation which should make it rate high in the minds of American Mercury fans. We intend to read the book as soon as our thesis is written.

GRADUATES' OCTOPUS SETS HIGH STANDARD OF HUMOR AND ART

BY E. M. H.

The year's funniest Octopus! Well does the graduate issue deserve that title. Perhaps it is because the new names and the new humor is a relief from the usual style of the Octopus. The real merit, I believe, lies in the genuine humor and the skillful art work of the magazine.

The grad number opens with Hub Townsend's cover in the color combination which he made famous while in school. It reminds us of the first Octys we ever saw—which dates us rather conclusively but which is nevertheless a pleasant reminiscence.

The first joke, published on page 2 is a good pun—saint's preserve us, and the humor continues at a high level throughout the remainder of the book. Van Dorn's limerick, and all the rest, uphold the standard set by the editors.

John Alcott's welcome to the grade is good—the illustration is especially so. Whether or not it is typical is another matter.

New Staff Appointments

Cardinal Executive EditorStaff Named as Announced After
Special Session

The Daily Cardinal appointments for 1927-28, as reached by compromise last night, are as follows:

Executive Editor—Marvin A. Lehmkuhl.
Editor-in-Chief—Wesley F. Peterson.
Managing Editor—Alexander Gottlieb.
Senior Editors—Hamilton Beatty, Joseph F. Hobbins.
Night Manager—Richard F. Clement.

BY JAMES M. NELSON

The Daily Cardinal strike, which was threatened for midnight last night if a satisfactory agreement was not reached between the insurgent juniors and the Board of Control, was called off late last night following a lengthy meeting of the two groups. New appointments, which replace the list announced last Sunday are as follows:

Marvin A. Lehmkuhl '27, who was announced as managing editor of the paper will continue as head of the staff under the title of executive editor. He will supervise and direct the entire editorial staff.

Other Appointments Made

Under the executive editor, and answerable to him, there will be two offices which recognize a division of labor and give greater control to these officers which have hitherto been of less importance to the direction of the staff. These newly created positions are the managing editor, to be filled by Alexander Gottlieb '28, and the editor-in-chief, Wesley F. Peterson '28.

Other changes in the major positions announced by the board last night were Richard F. Clement '28, night manager; Hamilton Beatty '28 and Joseph Hobbins '28, senior editors.

All other appointments announced Sunday remain as originally elected by the Cardinal board.

The two groups were called together last night after a conference in the afternoon between representatives of the warring factions under the guidance of Dean Scott H. Goodnight, Lehmkuhl and Beatty, for the insurgents, and Elmer Freytag and Luther Brooks, for the board of control, discussed the points at issue and reached conclusions which formed the basis of the evening's conference.

The meeting in the evening was held under the chairmanship of James M. Nelson '27, who acted as partial arbitrator. Some disagreement about the points of compromise ended continual argument until 10 o'clock when the new system with entirely new titles brought the agreement which resulted in the appointments.

PHI BETA KAPPA
INITIATES FIFTYCeremony at Lathrop, Banquet
at University Club Inducts
New Men

The annual initiation ceremony and banquet of the Wisconsin chapter of Phi Beta Kappa was held last night with the formal initiation at Lathrop and the banquet at the University Club.

Forty seniors and ten juniors went through the ceremony of honorary scholastic fraternity, their election based on excellence in scholarship, activities and character.

Prof. Mendenhall of the physics department and president of the Wisconsin chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, presided at the meeting which was attended by nearly two hundred and fifty members. Clyde Kluckhohn '28, delivered the response for the newly elected juniors, and senior response being given by Lowell Frauschi '27.

The principal address of the evening was given by Prof. K. A. of the psychology department on the subject, "Mind, Matter, and Life." E. A. Birge, president emeritus, who is a life senator in the national organization of Phi Beta Kappa, also gave a brief address.

In the art line, one of the most expressive pictures in the entire issue is that of Stew Palmer ex-'28; his study of a doctor, on page 13.

The copy equals the art work. When such men as Horatio Winslow, a former editor; Bob Osborne, the most quoted and reprinted college humor artist in the country, Port Butts, and Dick Bellack, a former editor, contribute, nothing else can be expected.

Port has a clever playlet anent the Memorial Union. Van Horn has several humorous bits of verse; Pat Dennis and Pete Platten have come through with some original sketches.

Of course, the present members of the staff have done their little bits as well. John Ash, Winslow Reid, Marge Peterson, Clark Spragur are represented. And the best wits of the month are announced and published. The results speak well for the issue. More of them are most Wisconsin's baseball team, having been rained out of no less than two of its last three ball games, is prepared for anything except a defeat when it opposes the Madison Blues on their home yard at Breese Stevens field this afternoon.

The revamped Badger lineup worked rather famously to defeat Chicago last Saturday, and fans expect them to give the semi-pro team another great tussle today. Last week, Wisconsin defeated the Blues, 4-3, but that was when "Rube" Schauer, ace of the Blues' mound staff was out of the game.

Donagan at Third

With Schauer again ready to work and the Blues thoroughly on their toes, the game today should be nip and tuck from the first inning to the last.

Eddie Donagan will probably start at third base again today, Earl Burbridge, who was erroneously reported to be ill last week, will be in his favorite location north of second base.

Thelander May Pitch

It is a good guess that "Ted" Thelander will get a chance to show his collection of curves to the Blues for Coach Guy Lowman will probably save George Stoll and Stanley Clausen for the Northwestern game here Saturday. Jacobson and Ellerman may also see action today.

Cardinal Crew Nears Top Form

Early Start Gives Oarsmen Greater Chance

While other Wisconsin athletic teams plunge into the full flow of intercollegiate competition, members of the eight-oared crew pull steadily along, their every thought fixed upon the great day still more than a month away, when they will race down the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie abreast of the greatest rowing crews in the country.

Because of the early breaking of the ice actual rowing practice started several weeks sooner this addition, the wet weather which has predominated during the past several weeks has kept Lake Mendota consistently smooth, permitting the crew to work with little interference from waves and rough water.

As a result of all this weather-bent philanthropy, the Badger oarsmen have come into shape rapidly, and to the experienced observer, they appear at least two weeks ahead of the condition shown by the crew at this time last year.

Although graduation and ineligibility relieved the Cardinal shell of three men and a coxswain, excellent substitutes have been found for all positions, and save for a slight weakness at stroke, the crew is thought to be more powerful than that of 1926.

As the eight has been working this week, Jefferson Burrus, who rowed No. 6 in the 1925 and 1926 shells, is at stroke, handling the important post which Osier Teckemeyer left vacant. Although Burrus is comparatively new to the stroke, he has shown ability and will probably develop into a good, if not an excellent leader.

Other veterans rowing in the shell are Lawrence Kingsbury, No. 7, Homer Kiewege No. 2, Robert Zentner bow, and Allen Bibby No. 4. New men holding down positions are Henry Hagemeister No. 5, Dietrich Lunde No. 3, and Edward Kesting No. 6. John Cullinane, coxswain of the frosh crew last year, has shifted into a similar job in the varsity boat and seems to be doing pretty well with it.

TRAINING TABLE TIPS

FRIENDS

AH, HAH! BASEBALL
FAST COMPANY

As you may discover by close examination of the column to the left, there is another baseball game due to be played today. And don't you forget it, Mr. Rain-maker.

It will be quite according to the divine theory of justice for the Madison Blues sneak home with the sack in this afternoon's battle. Then we suppose, to make a real city series out of it, they'll have to play another game. But why not win two straight.

"Rube" Schauer, who turns out a puzzling brand of inshoots every so often, has been selected as the logical man to put the Badgers in their place today. The question is, where is their place.

Members of the Army and Navy sections of the spring football squad have already stopped speaking to each other in anything but highly colored adjectives, in order to work up atmosphere for the forthcoming squad championship game. Rear Admiral "Toad" Crofoot promises that the Navy guns will make the Army look like a gunny sack after the bag rush, but the Army strategists are sitting tight on the theory that words have won few gridiron games.

The Wisconsin track men are stepping out with quite a bunch of high flyers at the Northwestern quadrangular meet this Saturday. Church McGinnis, especially, will be glad to meet his old friends, Droegemueller, Northwestern vaulter, and Burg, Chicago high jumper. Kriss, the Ohio State sprinter who breaks every rule of form ever invented and still gets there ahead of time, will be another interesting entry.

"I'll get to the bottom of this," said the man as he fell in the well. Laugh that one off, it may be the last good joke you'll hear for some time.

"SOUND MIND IN SOUND BODY" MOTTO OF PHY ED DEPARTMENT

By A. G.

"Mens Sana In Corpore Sano." For the benefit of our readers who cannot understand Latin, the above motto means "A sound mind in a sound body," and is, in short the opal toward which the general gym classes under the instruction of Coaches A. L. Masley, R. Nohr Jr., and F. B. Leitz have been striving in their second semester work.

To carry out this aim, the various gym classes were divided in February into four teams in each class. These teams were given some new physical sport to do each week and were graded both individually and as a team. To the two teams scoring the highest in each class, a "W" was marked up on a chart. At the end of the semester, the team having the greatest number of "W's" will be declared the winner of the inter-class contest.

Individual Grades
Individually each man was graded on his work in each test. These tests consisted of ten events; the fence vault, rope climb, forward dive and roll, running high jump, Chinning the bar, 11 3-5 seconds dash, dip and push up, running broad jump, one mile run, and sit-up. A certain standard was set for each test, and the requirements were divided into Ex, Good, Fair, Poor, and Failure work.

All men who average 93 or better in these tests will be given a bronze button. All members who

Capt. Pepper, Indiana

When the hosts of Big Ten track performers gather here for the Western conference track meet, May 27 and 28, Capt. "Bob" Pepper will be in the front rank of the sprinters. With Hester, Michigan, and Kriss, Ohio State, he is considered one of the fastest boys in the conference and the man that beats him will have to be going along.

EXPECT 10,000 AT BIG TEN CLASSIC

Alumni, Students, Public to See Conference Stars Perform

Alumni, students and the interested public will join with the University of Wisconsin athletic officials as hosts to the members of the Western Intercollegiate Conference at their annual outdoor track meet here May 27, and 28. All are indicating their enthusiasm for the Big Ten classic by their early reservation of seats for the finals on Saturday afternoon. Officials expect an attendance of 10,000.

Not only will this meet be the first of its kind held in Madison in thirteen years, but it will be the greatest athletic classic ever staged here in history. Every coach of consequence in the west will be present, either to attend their annual spring meetings or to serve as a meet official.

All seats for the final events are reserved at $2.00 and should be ordered at once to assure the best location near the finish line of all races. The general admission for the preliminaries Friday is $1.00, payable at the gate.

Several important postponed games in the inter-fraternity baseball tournament today.

Phi Delta Phi, champions of the league for the past two years, will play Delta Sigma Tau to break the three cornered tie now existing in division one. The winner of this contest will then have to play Theta Chi in order to decide the winner of the right to represent the division in the championship flight.

Phi Kappa Tau's strong nine will meet a comparatively weak but still kicking Alpha Gamma Rho team in another important game on frosh field No. 2.

Gymnasts Taper Off Work; Bright Outlook for 1928

After finishing a successful season of conference competition, the Badger gymnastic team has just ended its final week of spring practice and tapering down to normal condition. The fencing team also ended its year's work at the same time.

Prospects for another good year in gymnastic work are of the highest kind, since only two men will be lost to the squad in September. These are Snively, Indian club artist, and Schwoerke, who performed during the past season on the horse.

Seek Frosh Stars

To bolster up the places left by these men, Coach A. L. Masley now has a squad of a dozen frosh working out under him, who will be aspirants for the team next year.

The fencing team is not however, quite as fortunate as the gymnasts. Every man on this year's team will graduate this spring and an entirely new squad will have to be built up. Of the squad carried through the season, Kashen and Robey remain, but neither of these men have had any conference competition.

KRATZ WILL CAPTAIN NEXT YEAR'S SWIMMERS

At a banquet of the swimming team held at the Park hotel last night, Winston Kratz was elected captain of the team of 27-28. Ramsey Stewart was chosen captain of the water polo team. An inlaid stop watch was presented Joe Steinauer by the members of the team. Speeches were made by the men.

WISCONSIN TRACK MEN GET SET FOR QUAD TRACK MEET

Badgers to Compete Against Northwestern, Ohio State, and Chicago Saturday

Although Wisconsin's track team was able to win its first outdoor conference meet of the season Saturday from Minnesota by the scant margin of 10 points, the Badgers are not by any means over-confident and are now strenuously preparing for the quadrangular meet at Northwestern Saturday.

At this meet, teams from Chicago, Ohio State, Northwestern, and Wisconsin will compete. Northwestern will dedicate her new track and of course will make an effort to win in the hope that such a victory will be a good omen for later meets.

Badgers Favored

Wisconsin is generally regarded as the favorite in this meet. Chicago, and Northwestern however, have both won their initial meets last week. The former team beat Purdue by a score of 83 1-3 to 62 1-2. Northwestern gave Indiana its first defeat on the track in two years, 71-64.

The showing of Ray Erickson in the half mile last week particularly brilliant. He won this race in 1:59.2 by stepping out on the last lap.

Dougan's victory in the quarter mile was accomplished only with great effort on the part of the Badger runner. Stowe was just kept out of third place in this race by a scant half foot.

Petaja Good Miler

John Petaja made a splendid showing against Wexman, Minnesota, in the mile run, but lost first place by a scant margin. Wexman ran past Petaja in the last ten feet of the race and defeated him in the time of 4 minutes and 28.1 seconds. This was one of Petaja's best races, and was probably the best time that he has made this year.

Although Wisconsin scored all three places in the 220 yard low hurdles, the time was not exceptionally remarkable. Stehr took a quick lead and won the race, closely followed by Eisele and Murphy, in the time of 25.9 seconds.

Sherman is Find

John Zola, one of the cleverest distance runners on the Badger squad, started in the rear of the two mile race and gradually worked himself to the front, winning the run with comparative ease in 9 minutes 45.5 seconds.

The surprise of the day was Sherman's victory in the javelin at a distance of 177 feet. Mayer, who supposedly ranked next to Kreuz in the order of ability at the javelin throw, was left behind by Sherman. Sherman has never competed before on the Badger squad and was practically unknown. This is evidence of the capable work of Coach Tom Lieb in the field events.

Haresfoot Elections

Yesterday morning the Haresfoot club announced its elections for this year. Many familiar names appeared and many other names, linked closely with this year's production, were conspicuous by their absence. It is generally understood that the short list of names was due primarily to the fact that the club has decided to retain the plan adopted two years ago whereby all but special workers would have to make the trip two years before they could be elected to club membership.

We have a few things to say about this rule which was adopted at a time when certain members of the club were questioning the advisability of taking in members in wholesale lots, and the desire to give men an incentive to come out for Haresfoot a second year.

In the first place we do not feel that the club is in any sense being fair to the men in the chorus, let us say, who work harder, as has often been said, than George Little's football candidates. The story was told this year of several football men who tried out for the chorus and then decided the work was too hard for them. At least it can truthfully be said that Haresfoot work, and we remember a remark passed by Dean Goodnight, is as hard if not harder than any other undergraduate activity.

These men come out early in the fall to attend afternoon dancing classes, grind away at routine steps and hope and pray that they will be selected as a member of the chorus. When a group has been chosen the real work begins. Every afternoon for weeks before the show opens the men spend hours under the tutelage of a coach who is as hard on the men as Knute Rockne ever could be. They become weary of body and mind and strive mightily to help make the particular show "the best in Haresfoot history." They are urged on, prayed to, bawled out, and praised, all for the good of Haresfoot. They spend afternoons and evenings during that final week, and all night rehearsals send them to their beds weary of heart and soul.

Then comes the trip. They present 26 performances throughout the Middle West; they carry the name of the university to cities which think, as a result, only the best things of Wisconsin. They visit Kiwanis clubs, Rotary clubs, and Lions clubs giving entertainment to the end that these people will be appreciative of the good points of Wisconsin's university. The very appearance of these men belies the foul stories which find their way onto the front pages of metropolitan dailies.

Then they return to Madison, after giving up their spring vacation, to give up two complete week ends. This year in particular they worked exceedingly hard in Madison as well as on the trip. They stuck and fought to the last.

Then came the elections, and four out of the 15 chorus men who are not members of the club were elected to membership. It such a condition were to happen on the football squad the whole university would rise up in protest against the unfairness of the deal. Stag at Chicago became exceedingly unpopular last fall when he even suggested such a thing. But because it is Haresfoot nothing is said.

We do not feel that anything can be accomplished this year after the step taken this week end by the club, but the Daily Cardinal does not feel that Haresfoot can in any way justify its action. In the future it is to be hoped that the club will depart from this petty attitude and really give honor where honor is due.

What Other Say

CROOKED RUSHING GETS A JOLT.

The Interfraternity council at Ohio State has displayed a bit of backbone, conviction, guts, or whatever you choose to call it, by fining a fraternity $25 for irregularities in its pledging of one man, and the man involved has been declared ineligible to pledge another fraternity for the remainder of the school year.

The Illini wonders how many fines the local Interfraternity council would assess if it should suddenly and unexpectedly take similar action on similar cases. Just off-hand we would say that the council would be ipso facto bankrupt before it started. Such an assertion we admit is not in the least favorable in its reflection on existing rushing practices, particularly in the fall when the height of the turmoil and distortion occurs, but we can faintly proclaim differently, if the truth be considered.

Next year's administrators of the Interfraternity council will face the old perennial problem. If freshmen of the class of '31 are given a respectable chance to make any sort of selection as to their places of residence, whether they will live with the boys at Rho Deuteron Upsilon or Chi Zeta Sigma, it will be the most surprising thing that the campus has seen since the roller-skate derby.

Experts at Geneva

Geneva is again the scene of flying words, as the International Economic conference assembles in Information hall, with its representatives numbering 180 delegates from 42 countries including the United States. Last week there adjourned indefinitely from the same place, an august body which had been laboring under the title of the preparatory commission for the disarmament conference. No success marked the efforts of the preparatory commission, as it was found that nations large and small were not ready to lay down armament agreements with no more guarantee than perfect faith in each other.

It would seem that the economic conference, by establishing a more practicable end, stands in the way of gaining more practicable results. The removal of the divergencies of economic interest which are echoed in the jealous wrangling over land and sea armaments, will pave the way to a further and more gratifying session of the preparatory commission by assisting in supplying those same smaller details which stood in the path of progress last week.

There is considerable hope to be gleaned from a glance at the personnel of the economic conference, for outside of the official delegates appointed by the nations themselves, there are 11 members sent by such organizations as world chambers of commerce which are experts in agriculture, finance, and industry. Every detail of the inner workings of the assembly has been evolved in the most business-like fashion, and the whole seems to be pervaded with an air of capability.

Primary problems which are to be taken up include studies in the present disequilibrium of the world, studies which will have special reference to maintaining the future international peace through economic agencies. After a momentous season of parleys which attempted the impossible task of working from the top down, it is refreshing and gratifying to see expert workmen attempt the job in a more tractable manner.

flict between the contractor and the union.

In condemning or appraising an institution we should do more than merely glance at its framework, if we are interested in forming a fair judgment. We are not in a position to pass a just verdict unless we examine the springs, see its relation to society, and estimate its function and usefulness.

Trade unions, like the growth of artificial illumination, have an important function and arose as a solution to meet existing conditions.

Every society has its institutions which fade out when that particular system of production and distribution changes. Under the handicraft system we find various types of

One of the young ladies who rode at the horse show caught cold because she was on a draft horse.

but Eve's is still known as Chadbourne.

SCIENCE ART SECTION

Besides the honorary freshman scholastic fraternity, we would suggest an honorary society for saxophonists. The university could give these men a key. Most of them need it badly.

The French play last week was not as largely attended as it might have been because there was a Chemistry exam at the same time. Not even the French can buck the elements.

"I don't think it's quite fair to the men with activities to pick the Phi Betas on grades alone," a friend said the other night. We have written Mr. Coolidge suggesting that he would make an excellent Secretary of State.

The idea seems to be popular that the bulky university catalogue be done away with, and that inspirational write-ups of such courses as inspire, be substituted. For instance:

COURSE IN BLACKSMITHING
Young man, inasmuch as you have spurned the I. C. S. coupon and come to the University of Wisconsin, it behooves you to do your utmost to forge ahead in the world. Therefore, we suggest blacksmithing. At least, as the poet Longfellow so nobly put it, there is much about blacksmithing where you must use your chestnut.

There is much in blacksmithing that will inspire you to red hot action, and add to the glow of your life. If you take this course, you will be immediately commissioned as a R. O. T. C. captain as you will have learned to follow. "When I took blacksmithing," writes J. E. B., '08, "I took a course which exemplifies the fearless winnowing and sifting (of ashes) which this university stands for. In short, I would advise every young man to take this course. It seems to hit the nail on the head."

Hear about the gent who painted whiskers on his Ford to make it a Lincoln?

Adams hall has been recognized, gilds serving, among other things as regulating devices. A worker's bargaining instrument was not then necessary as every artisan was the owner, the producer, and the seller of his product. In our industrial system, bargaining powers are indispensable, for there is a bitter struggle between the class which possesses the means of production and the class which holds the producing power.

In his eagerness to make huge profits, the employer utilizes every possible means of reducing the cost of production; the chief device, consists in the use of associations to keep wages low. The worker as a seller of his labor power has to see to it that he obtains conditions—wages, hours of labor, etc., necessary to keep him in existence, and fit to perform his work. How is he to secure these conditions? By his individual bargaining?

This would be possible only if labor were scarce, but as we know, labor is not scarce; machinery is constantly replacing human power, and there is no corresponding reduction of the working day. Thus, every job finds several applicants, each eager to win it, and since the employer will hire the lowest bidder only, the worker rather than die of starvation will offer his labor at the lowest possible wage. Hence working conditions before the appearance of trade unions were on the border line of mere subsistence. But human beings cannot long endure under such conditions, and trade unionism was the natural outcome of their struggle.

Trade unions could not be effective unless they are well-organized. What is the "open shop" if not an attempt to break the unions? It is a well known fact that there are no open shops. No employer will hire union men unless he is driven to it. Should the union workers, after years of struggle in building up an organization which is so vital to their existence, allow it to be destroyed?

The working class constitutes the bulk of our population and the manner in which the wage-earner lives is reflected on society as a whole. Shorter hours of work enables him to gain an education and be a more intelligent citizen, which is so necessary to a democratic society. Higher wages means greater purchasing power, which in turn stimulates business. If the employers were not so short-sighted they would realize that business prosperity is due largely to high wages and that in the long run the increase in trade more than compensates the increase in wages.

Mr. Lolber, in Friday's Cardinal, deplors the fact carpenters get twelve dollars a day. He should remember from his study of economics that income is measured in terms of "real" and not daily wages. If Mr. Lolber would take the trouble to find out how many days in the years the carpenters do work, he could discover, as I did, that their "real wages" amount to no more than six or seven dollars a day. I heartily agree with him that the professional workers are underpaid, and I think that they too should form unions and demand "justice."

More than 3,000 pairs of roller skates have been sold to students at the University of Michigan. President Clarence Cook Little comments favorably on the fact asserting that roller skating instills better spirit in the university, and there has been considerable more life on the campus than formerly.

Strand Film Deals With Life in Training Camps

When the motion picture industry strikes a theme that is popular, it works that theme to death. Beginning with "Behind the Front" and "The Big Parade," the movies have been swamped with army and navy pictures, evidently with the sole purpose of disclosing the ludicrous side of a life of service to one's country.

All of which may or may not be a pertinent introduction to "Rookies" now playing at the Strand. But this picture has the added fault of being pure propaganda for the Citizen's Military Training Camps.

USHERS

Men who wish to usher for the Big Ten track and field meet are asked to apply at the university ticket office immediately. One hundred men are needed.

"It's great to be in the army," says George K. Arthur, representing the hundreds of young men who flock to the army camps in the summer. But not many of those young men, it is certain, fall into the adventures, good and bad that seemed to be his lot when he chose thirty days in camp in preference to the same amount of time in jail.

Karl Dane, as the hard-boiled sergeant, (there must always be one in an army picture) furnished a good deal of amusement by looking hard-boiled and treating the rookies none too gently. But most of the humor was coarse and much too obvious.

The producers of the film even procured a fairly good imitation of General Pershing, to lend authenticity to a picture already propagandized beyond the function of the film industry. The framework built up around the story of camp life was clever enough, but does not disguise the picture for what it really is.

Comedy-pairs is another favorite idea of the film producers at the present time. Karl Dane and George K. Arthur work well together in this picture, one acting as foil for the other's humor. And of course the rookie comes out best in the end, regardless of army discipline and other restrictions.

So much for the picture, Mr. Klingman, at the mighty Wurlitzer, continues to produce all manner of sounds from the organ, and seems to revel in the screen stories, which he plays over and over again in an effort to interest the audience in a new so-called popular song.

Jack is taking me to his fraternity dance tonight. I am so glad I bought a new formal gown at Simpson's because I want to look my best. It is a peach colored georgette with a filmy circular skirt and has inserts of embroidered lace. A large flower is placed at one hip. Its cost was only

For an evening wrap I bought a Spanish shawl—a gorgeous peach affair with embroidered flowers in soft blue, green, and rose and a heavy 16 inch fringe. Imagine finding such a beauty for

$17.50

Score—7 to 1
and 1 Wins

We won the baseball game today—7 to 1—but Ted said I was a winner because there was only one coat like mine to seven of every other style. It is a stunning white serge, tailored like a boy's, and bound with white silk braid. A white gardenia on one lapel makes it all the more effective. $29.50 is a reasonable price for a coat like this. I wore a close-fitting white Knox hat with it. Knox hats are so ultra-smart and Simpson's is the only store that carries them.

Tea for Two—and Twenty

I want to make a good impression at Tink's tea today so I am going to wear my new shell pink georgette with its matching georgette coat. The dress is sleeveless and has a slightly raised waistline. The coat is just the same length as the dress. A huge flower on the shoulder makes it look very summery. I bought it at Simpson's yesterday morning for $29.50.

I love teas because one can wear a really dressy hat. The pale pink Mathilde model I have is made of French handkerchief silk and fits the contours of the head exactly. It is soft and crushable. I think it looks very smart for a $12.50 hat.

Monday—

Early to Rise

I didn't waken until twenty minutes to nine this morning and I made my nine o'clock! How true it is that the accessories made the woman! With my beige kid gloves with their turned down embroidered cuffs, my crocheted visca hat, and a green silk figured scarf to harmonize, I felt very chic. It costs so little to look well these days. The hat was only $7.50, gloves $2.95, and scarf $2.75.

I had a terrible fright the other day when I discovered my only pair of McCallum stockings was torn. Mary told me they had the same brand at Simpson's for $1.95, so I ran down before the store closed and bought a box of three for $5.50.

"Rain" is Well Presented by Al Jackson's Players

BY H. K.

Getting under way slowly, with a little difficulty in finding themselves in their parts, the All Jackson Players opened up a week's run of "Rain" at the Garrick theater Sunday. Once the cast found themselves and swung into the spirit of the play, the action moved swiftly and intensely through decidedly gripping scenes.

To Agatha Karlen, the brazen but plaintive "Sadie Thompson," and Jack Paige, the bigoted and narrow "Reverend Davidson," belongs the credit for carrying extremely well the burden of the strenuously emotional situations.

The work of Harry Marlin as "Joe Horne," the dissolute trader of Pago Pago, was equally as good as his part of the doctor in "White Cargo," and deserves commendation. He has an air of simplicity and reality that some of the members of the company would do well to emulate. Paul Norris is more convincing than usual in his role of a young doctor who has philosophies inconsistent with the bigotry of the Reverend.

The last act was undoubtedly the best at the Sunday matinee. Miss Karlen does some of her best work as the penitent Sadie who has "got" religion and doesn't know quite what to do with it. The unreasoning pace of the reforming Christian minister, with his stock phrases of cant, takes the fire from little wicked Sadie and leaves her a lifeless woman ready to go back to the penitentiary to atone for her life of sin.

And if one can speak of last acts having a final "punch," this show has it. Penitent Sadie, ready for atonement, having given up the man she loves for the "terrible God" of the preacher, is again transformed into the brazen, wistful Sadie with the "take it from me" air, by the very reform spirit which had changed her before. Too much denial finally breaks the preacher's will, and through the wreck of his life, Sadie again gets a chance to breathe her own true self and to find the man who really loves her.

It's a great act, that last one, and with a few more performances, the whole show should be well worth seeing. The play is stirring enough to carry one on over minor shortcomings of the cast, and make one feel with Sadie that "Life's a queer game of cards."

Donn Byrne—Brother Saul

From Jerusalem to Rome, from the synagogue to the gladiatorial pit, through one of the most tremendous epochs in human history, the story of Saul of Tarsus moves with color, dramatic incident, humor, and passion.

Michael Arlen—Young Men in Love

The brilliant author of "The Green Hat," "Piracy," and "Mayfair," has exceeded himself in this new novel. It is far and away his most ambitious and cleverest book.

James W. Bellah—These Frantic Years

A powerful story of love and adventure, and at the same time a clever and penetrating study of modern and social life in New York and Europe.

Knut Hamsun—Mysteries

The underlying thought of "Mysteries" is the utter and incurable solitariness of the human creature, and hence the futility of words, gestures, and all our baffled and groping attempts to explain.

Prof. S. G. A. Rogers—The Sombre Flame

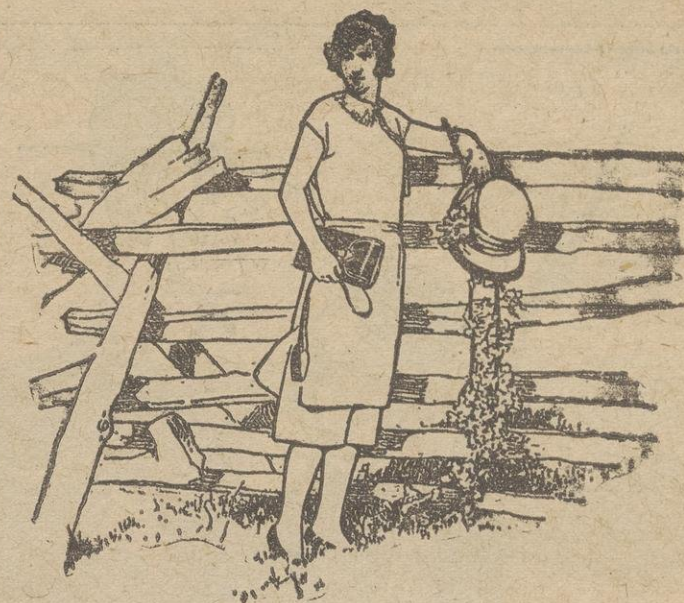

Prof. Rogers' first novel which describes with mordant candour the emotional reactions to each other of two Americans of ill-assorted types, devastatingly involved in an impossible marriage.

Head Green Button Banquet

Marie G. Heuer

Jean M. Strachan

The annual Green Button banquet will be held at the Crystal ballroom of the Hotel Loraine Thursday night, May 19.

Speakers at the affair will include Prof. E. B. Gordon of the music department and Dean S. B. Davis. Other program features include a skit by the Wisconsin players.

In discussing the purpose of the Green button, Marie G. Heuer president of the organization declared, "As strangers they come—freshman women—with no link to bind them together. A class must have unity; without it there is no cooperation. The freshman women's organization, Green Button, serves to hold those newcomers together and to show them the spirit of Wisconsin—service. To give each freshman woman the sense of this is the purpose of the Green Button, and to make each girl feel the thrill of being an integral part of the class."

Nominations for the presidency of the Red Gauntlet will follow the program. A representative committee of freshman women will submit one nomination and others can be received from the floor. Final elections will be held in conjunction with Yellow Tassel and Blue Dragon on May 24.

At the banquet following the initiation ceremonies, Thomas Arkie Clark, Dean of Men at Illinois, will be the principal speaker.

Eligible freshmen were pledged yesterday at Dean Goodnight's office. Pledges of Phi Eta Sigma wear a black and gold pledge ribbon.

Of the 60 freshmen who are eligible for initiation in the new fraternity, 49 are residents of Wisconsin and 21 are living at the men's dormitories. Freshmen whose averages for last semester were slightly below the required 2.5 grade points may be initiated next fall if enough grade points are secured to bring their yearly average up to the

89 Journalists in University Serve Wisconsin Papers

Each of the 89 students in the course in newspaper reporting of the Course in Journalism at the University of Wisconsin is acting as university correspondent for a Wisconsin daily or weekly newspaper this spring. The student's assignment is to supply the newspapers with items about students from their communities who participate in campus events.

Each student sends a fortnightly news letter to the paper for which he is correspondent. Because most of the newspapers served are in county seats, the "local ends," include all students from the county.

The students in reporting also are required to do one assignment each week for a Madison newspaper.

UNITARIAN LAYMEN'S BODY MEETS FRIDAY

JACOBSON'S ART ON EXHIBITION

Madison Art Association Displays Collection of Paintings This Week

This week's art exhibit of the Madison Art association is an extensive collection of the works of Prof. Jacobson, director in the University of Oklahoma school of art, which is being exhibited on the fourth floor of the University library.

Prof. Jacobson is a native of Sweden, having come from that country in his early youth to America. His career has been a restless one, a characteristic which has been very evident in practically all of his works in art.

These paintings were done by Prof. Jacobson while in Africa and they further portray the modernistic trend of his art. They are most original and have a distinct primitiveness, which though not carried to the extreme, have a universal appeal to nearly all classes of people even though they may have no developed appreciation of the arts. Although the subject matter treated by Prof. Jacobson is sometimes rather monotonous, his style is never known to have that defect.

SENIORS PLACE ORDERS FOR THEIR INVITATIONS

Yesterday was the deadline for all 40 cent announcement invitations with the result that 1,810 seniors ordered theirs. The number ordered did not equal that of the day before when 2,157 were ordered, however.

From now on the price of the invitations will be 45 cents instead of 40, and they ask at the Co-op that all seniors who have not ordered theirs do so at once.

All caps and gowns for the Senior Swing-out must be ordered by Friday night at the latest. No time limit has yet been set for ordering the regular commencement caps and gowns.
