CURRIE JUSTIFIES COURT ACTION IN BRACKETT CASE

Unofficial Statement, Made By Court Secretary, Replies to Charges

Answer to charges made by Max A. Brackett '25 was given in an unofficial communication to The Cardinal yesterday by George R. Currie L 2, secretary of the Student court.

Currie points out that the conditional suspension of Brackett was both legally and morally justified. The court has a copy of the subpoena bearing a certificate of service signed by Brackett, according to Currie. The summons to appear before the court were left in the hands of the house president at which Brackett is living, and was notified of the summons.

Justifies Action

The court took the only action available to retain its self respect when it suspended Brackett, Currie declared. The unofficial communication follows:

Editor, The Cardinal:

The belief that the student body is entitled and desirous to know the true state of facts in the matter of the suspension of Max A. Brackett by the Student court prompts the writing of this letter. It is the writer's belief that the conditional suspension of Brackett was both legally and morally justified, and I have the utmost confidence that the student body will concur in this belief when it has heard both sides of the episode.

Mr. Brackett was duly served with a subpoena to appear before the student court Monday evening, November 12th to give testimony in the elections frauds case now before the court. A copy of this subpoena bearing a certification of Fourteen students were formally initiated into Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalistic fraternity, at the Delta Pi Delta house Sunday afternoon.

Prof. E. M. Johnson, H. E. Birdsong, instructor in journalism; H. H. Herbert, head of the department of journalism at the University of Oklahoma; Roy French, grad, and Joseph F. Those initiated:

Seniors—Richard Bellack, Frank D. Crane, Ambrose D. Gannon, Malcolm MacDonald, Arthur Plat ten, Edwin H. Rohrbeck, and Carl B. Wright.

Juniors—Harry Barsantee, Elmer L. Boehringer, Kenneth Butler, Wes Dunlap, Fred Gustorf, John F. Weimer, and Victor Zierke.

Lawler and French are attending the national convention of the fraternity at Minneapolis this week.

NEW FOX TROT TO FEATURE FOLLIES

Special 10-Piece Orchestra to Introduce "Promises" at Frolic

"Promises," a fox trot written by three Wisconsin students, Willard Sumner '24, Cecil Brodt '23, and Henry Rubel '23, will be featured by Al Thompson's best players combined in a ten piece orchestra under the direction of Willard Sumner and Cecil Brodt at the Haresfoot Follies dance, Gordon Arey '25, chairman of the 1923 Follies, announced last night.

Willard Sumner '23, piano; Cecil Brodt '24, cornet; Frank Alford, banjo; Ned Ivey and Henry Gehrend '27, saxophones; Earl Schumacher '25, violin; Robert Luhmann, tuba; Robert Berigan, drums; Ted Stevens '24, violin; and Jack Halls '25, trombone, are the men picked by Thompson to furnish music for the promenade of the fall term.

The selection "Promises" has within the last two weeks been let to publishers and the authors plan to make the Follies dance its introduction to Madison. "No, No Nora" and "Mama Loves Papa" will also be made features of the evening with special arrangements of parts of these numbers for each player.

Haresfoot numbers from "Kikmi" last year's Haresfoot show—"Old, Old Story," "My Armenian Garden" and other favorites of past productions will also hold a prominent place in the music of the evening.

LIQUOR DISCUSSION TO BE LED BY NARDIN

Whether or not men are interested in cooperating with women to abolish liquor in the university may be judged by the fact that Dean F. Louise Nardin has been asked to speak on that question this evening at 7:15 o'clock at the University Y. M. C. A.

The meeting will be one of the regular Y. M. C. A. meetings. There will probably be discussion from the floor.

"The men asked me to speak at this meeting on the liquor question," said Dean Nardin. "We will talk it over as citizens and try to decide what we can do to make things better. It seems to me that the men want the ideas of the women and wish to cooperate with them."

FEW CHICAGO TICKETS STILL UNCALLED FOR

"Many students called for their tickets for the Chicago game yesterday," Paul Hunter, instructor in physical education said. "However, there are several who have not done so and we urge them to call for their tickets today if possible. There are no extra tickets," he added.

The last number on the program, the "Rakoczy March," was arranged for two pianos by Ernest Hutcheson especially for Mr. Maier and Mr. Pattison. This march is based in part on Liszt's Fifteenth Hungarian Rhapsody and in part on the orchestral score of Berlioz.

The unusual interest in French and Russian music which these musicians have dates from their student days in Berlin when they studied under Paul Juon, the Russian composer. His influence quickened their interest in the French and Russian schools. Tonight's program, includes selections from several French and Russian composers.

PAN-HELLENIC TAKES NO ACTION ON RUSHING

Rushing plans were submitted for discussion at the meeting of Pan-Hellenic, yesterday at 4:30 at Lathrop parlors. No definite decision was reached. There will be further action concerning rushing plans for next fall at the next regular meeting of the Pan-Hellenic.

Foreign Flashes

PARIS, Nov. 19.—A new obstacle arose after the English and French ambassador's conference had terminated a crisis regarding a proposed note to Germany when the French refused to sanction the terms of the note demanding expulsion of the crown prince.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—"Germany will not surrender the crown prince even if France takes military action," Chancellor Stresemann flatly declared in a caucus of the members of the Reichstag.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19.—The son of the evangelist, Billy Sunday, attempted to end his life by inhaling gas at the Sunday home. His name was in a list taken from a local bootlegger several days ago.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Plans for the world girdling flight in four or five of the "world cruiser" airplanes now being completed at Santa Monica are perfected. When the permission of foreign governments for flight across their territories has been obtained, the history making trip will receive official sanction.

Varsity Debaters Must Register to Enter in Tryouts

The preliminary debate tryouts for the intercollegiate debate teams will be held at 4:30 and 7:30 o'clock Thursday in room 165 Bascom hall. Relatively few men have thus far signed up. Prof. A. T. Weaver, debate coach, informs those wishing to try out that they must register at his office before the tryouts.

The question for the tryout which is also the question for the Midwest Debate league is, "Resolved, that the drainage project of the sanitary district of Chicago involving the diversion of water from Lake Michigan of such quantities as is adequate for the sanitary needs of Chicago, be permanently guaranteed."

Tryouts speeches are to be four minutes in length with no rebuttal. The men will be judged by Prof. Weaver, Prof. West, Mr. Barnes, and Mr. Morse. Some material on the question may be secured at room 206 Bascom hall.

DOUBLE STANDARD NEEDS NO CHANGE

GOODNIGHT

Says Difference So Slight That Any Action Would Be Unwarranted

"There is not enough difference caused by the existence of the so-called double standard to warrant any action being taken upon it," S. H. Goodnight, dean of men said yesterday. "The athletic rule for eligibility was set at a weighted average of 77 fifteen years ago, after the Big Ten Conference decided upon its standard. While the rule for eligibility to other activities was made by the Committee on Student Life and Interests some ten years later."

The rule for all activities except athletics requires that the student shall have grade points equal to his credits and the standard for athletic participation is a weighted average of 77 for the preceding semester.

"I do not believe that this difference is great enough to cause any real hardship to students who wish to go into journalistic, forensic, or dramatic activities," F. Louise Nardin, dean of women said. "When it is worked out, a student who has a weighted average of 77 is pretty sure of having his grade points. It would be the exceptional case, where there was any noticeable difference."

"The Committee on Student Life and Interests can take no action on this, because the Conference states that all athletic regulations shall be made in the registrar's office," Dean Goodnight said.

"But I am quite sure that nothing will be done about it, because it has been the policy of the university to keep entirely out of any regulations made by the Conference."

AG STUDENT SUCCUMBS FOLLOWING OPERATION

Richard H. Klare, '25, a student in the College of Agriculture, died at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning in St. Mary's hospital after a sudden illness.

The deceased was a son of Mrs. Emma Klare, 1951 Seminary Avenue, Chicago. He had been living with his aunt on a farm a mile out of Fox River Bow, Ill.

Klare was operated upon for an abscess of the brain last Saturday noon. He was taken ill and sent to the hospital last Wednesday night, November 14.

The entire Theta Sigma Phi fraternity, of which Klare was a member, will attend the funeral to be held at Fox River Bow, Ill.

Klare was forced to discontinue his studies during the last part of last semester because of an attack of sinus. After a thorough recovery he returned to the university in the fall.

CAST IS PICKED FOR WISCONSIN PLAYERS SHOW

Date For "Mixed Marriage" is Set For Wednesday, Dec. 5

The cast for "Mixed Marriage," fall play of the Wisconsin Players which will be produced at the Parkway theater Wednesday, December 5, was announced last night by Laurens Hastings '24, president of the organization.

The cast for the play is:

John Rainey, Victor Werner '23
Mrs. Rainey, Alethea Smith '24
Hugh Rainey,
Robert Salsbury '25
Tom Rainey, Calvin Oakford '24
Nora Murray,
Catherine Wilson '24
Michael O'Hara,

Herman Wirka '26
The play is being coached by Miss Gertrude Johnson of the department of speech. She is assisted by Roy French, instructor in journalism, who has taken part in many dramatic activities at Wisconsin.

Play Was Broadway Success
"I feel that the cast selected is a most capable one and will ably handle this famous play which should interest a great many students," Miss Johnson asserted in regard to the cast selections.

"Mixed Marriages" which had a long run on Broadway is heralded by critics as one of the best plays of a serious nature ever written on the theme of religious bigotry.

"There is nothing in the play which can offend any person regardless of denomination or creed, but there is much which every one can think about," French declared.

Show Starts Early
"Mixed Marriage" will start promptly at 8 o'clock and the overture will begin at 7:45, according to Kenneth Gardner '25, business manager of the production. The early hour was settled on in order that women could attend and still keep the 10:30 S. G. A. rule.

INCLUDE ORPHEUM ACT IN DANCE AT DRAKE

Orpheum players will entertain dancers at the Badger dance in the grill room of the Drake hotel Saturday after the Chicago game with a vaudeville act. Tuxedos and full dress suits will be out. The dance will be informal. Tickets are going fast and those who are expecting to attend are urged to get theirs at once, since the number of couples is limited to 225.

BOOZE INQUIRY NOT NEEDED, DEAN SAYS

Goodnight Says Action on Church Resolution is Up to Regents

In a statement issued last night, commenting upon the resolutions passed by the Men's Forum of the Kingsley Methodist church, Milwaukee, Dean Goodnight stated that in his opinion there would be no use in carrying on further investigations.

"I can't see where further investigation can get anywhere," Dean Goodnight said. "Any action that may be taken will depend upon what the board of regents recommends in that regard when it meets in December.

"We urged special precautions such as policing of the streets and other measures in connection with the Michigan game.

"I hope the resolutions will do considerable good," he further declared. "We are continually carrying on a program of education to make the student realize it is far worse for him to violate the laws than for other people because of the example he sets for others. We dropped a few students after homecoming and investigated the matter of drinking at the time, before these resolutions from Milwaukee were even reported."

Street Cars Help Salem, Mass., Solve Housing Problem

How would you like to live in a street car? Around Madison it seems that most of us stay away from them as much as possible, and yet word comes from Salem, Mass., that people actually take up their residence in trolley cars!

At first thought this might imply that the Salem Street railway company either runs to very remote places, or that it is setting a new record for the proverbial "slow train." However, neither conclusion is correct. The cars in question are discarded models which have been purchased by poor farmers and have been moved into the country to be used as houses and barns.

The practice does not seem to be feasible in this part of the universe for the Madison Street railway company reports that there is no market for used cars here and that all obsolete models are dismantled and their essential parts are used in repair work.

The time may come, it is thought by some authorities on the housing situation in Madison, when our vacant lots will be occupied by old trolley cars to take care of the excess population. Camouflage will then once more become an art, they say.

C. I. P. A. NEEDS LODGINGS FOR 550

Delegates Expected From as Far as Atlanta and New York City

More rooms are needed for delegates to the Central Interscholastic Press association convention which is to be held here November 30 and December 1.

"We are expecting more than 800 delegates and so far only 250 delegates have been assured lodgings," Prof. E. M. Johnson, director of the convention, said. "At least 550 more people must be housed and we are appealing to students to help us lodge them."

From east and west, from south and north, high school delegates will come for the annual convention to talk over plans and help each other to iron out difficulties and to offer suggestions for the bettering of their publications.

Atlanta, Ga., Miles City, Mont., Sands Spring, Okla., and New York City represent the four most distant points which will be represented. One delegate will represent all the high schools of New York city. About 250 delegates have already registered and many more are being entered daily.

Anyone who knows of places where free lodging may be obtained for delegates for one or two nights during the convention are asked to communicate at once with the C. I. P. A. headquarters by calling University 251-2 rings or by dropping a note to the C. I. P. A., at South hall.

Taking the kick out of a beard

AFTER shaving, does your face sting—feel raw? Don't blame it on your razor. The fault lies elsewhere.

Unless your beard is properly massaged by a supple, pliable shaving brush with just the correct degree of stiffness, the keenest razor blade grows dull and pulls.

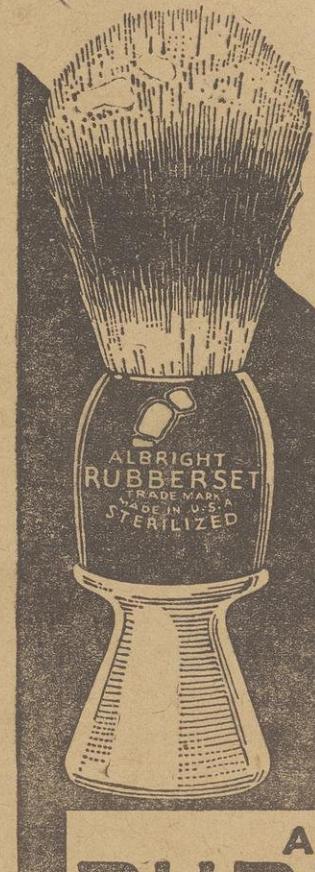

3 shaving brush comforts

You will find a Rubberset Brush has 3 important comforts.

Your beard, however tough, softens easily, as Rubberset's fine, full bristles whip up a quick, generous lather... one that goes to the roots of each hair, holds it firmly erect, easy to cut.

Rubbing in the lather with your fingers becomes unnecessary. Rubberset bristles are gripped everlastingly in hard rubber. They can't come out and mix with the lather.

Each Rubberset Brush is guaranteed—unconditionally. The bristles stay in. It makes good or wedge. Get yours today at any store on the campus. Made by Rubberset Company, Newark, N. J., U. S. A.

ROCKWELL FAIRLY DOWNED, CAPTAIN MARTY DECLARES

Officials Indecision and Failure to Call Consultation, Fatal Mistake

"Rockwell was hit, but struggled to his feet and ran diagonally across the field; as he did that I hit him, he went down and I held him, but we had been repeatedly warned by the referee against piling on a tackled man, so my team mates did not help hold him down," asserted Captain Marty Below in connection with the disaster of last Saturday.

As Rockwell was brought to earth near the side-lines, Field Judge Mumma ran out and placed his foot in line with the spot where the ball had apparently touched the ground. But the referee, who, following the play, turned and noticed that Rockwell was continuing his run down the field towards the Wisconsin goal line. Indecisively he looked at Mumma and after a hurried conference with the field judge, who appeared equally as indecisive, called the play a fair one, and the touch-down legitimate.

Tribune Defends Eckersall

At this point occurred, according to Coach Jack Ryan, a fatal error, instead of calling a conference of officials, as should have been done, in accordance with Coach Ryan's demand, he permitted the decision to rest as he had made it.

In defense of this decision an article was published in yesterday's Tribune in which the point was emphasized that the ball is down when a portion of the runner's body, except his hands or his feet touches the earth, while in the grasp of an opponent. To read this article was to infer that Rockwell was not in the grasp of any Wisconsin player at the time he was stretched upon the ground. This point is in direct opposition to the statement made by Captain Below. Further, the same rule explicitly states, that the referee SHALL blow his whistle when the ball stops its forward advance. The whistle was not blown, at least it is so alleged by the referee. Here at least is an infraction of that rule. For to the contestants, and to the 25,000 spectators, it was evident that not only was Rockwell in the grasp of Below, but that the ball had distinctly ceased moving forward.

No Redress Possible

"The rules of football are nowadays fashioned on more or less humanistic principles; to keep undue roughness out of the game, and do away with vicious tactics. Because of these rules the players did not attempt to pile on Rockwell and hold him down. But to distort these same rules built for the protection of a player into an excuse for a decision, or an excuse for indecision seems wrong." So Coach Ryan delivered his opinion. He continued, "It seems to me a matter of weakness for surely the field judge would not carefully mark the place where he evidently thought that the play ended only to change his mind after a hurried conference with a man who also showed his lack of knowledge of that play, had either of them had a clear idea of what had happened."

"Even that was excusable, for it takes more than one to referee a football game, but the great mistake came in not calling that conference of officials."

"We will have no redress on the action, but for the sake of the thousands of Badger rooters who were disappointed by the outcome of the game, I think it best that an understanding of the manner in which the rule governing the play was misused, or else the lack of exact knowledge of the way the play went, which led to the misconstruction, should be known."

Co-eds to Enroll Next Friday For Winter Sport Season

Registration for women's winter sports will be held in the second floor gymnasium of Lathrop Hall on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 10 to 12 and from 2 to 5 o'clock.

The credited sports for the winter season include swimming, bowling, dancing, basketball, riding, ice skating, skiing, and golf. Skiing and ice skating may be taken for credit or women interested in these sports may take them as extras to their regular winter sport.

All women are urged to register as early as possible so that satisfactory programs can be arranged.

Golf is offered for the second time having been introduced last year. Instruction in the sport will be offered in the basement of the Co-op.

FAST TIME SHOWN BY SWIMMING TEAM

Falk, McGeth, and Stenson Show Heels to Squad

Several fast swimmers were brought out Monday afternoon in the first of the time trials being held daily in the tank for the varsity squad. Although Coach "Joe" Steinauer kept secret time made by the men, some very fast time was made in the 40-yard sprints.

Besides Johnnie Bennett, W. Flueck seems to be one of the best in the free style. Flueck made the two lengths of the tank right around the 20-second mark. Other men who made good time in the trials, and who showed good form are S. McGeth, O. Falk and R. Stomm.

Capt. Hugo Czerwonky has several good breast stroke swimmers under his tutelage. C. F. Tony and R. Lund demonstrated that they are capable of fast time in the breast stroke. J. Bell is one of the most likely men in this event.

With his main hopes in the fancy diving built around Norman Koch and M. Simpkins, Coach Steinauer is spending a great deal of time on this branch of swimming this year. Wisconsin has always been strong in the dives and this year seems to be no exception. Norman Koch is following in the footsteps of his brother, who was a big point winner in the dives several years ago.

Last year Richards put a Wisconsin team on Stagg field that made a great showing and gridiron history. This year Ryan will do the same, but we're coming home with a win on our belts, aren't we gang?

CALIFORNIA LOOMS AS CHAMPION OF COAST

From all appearances the University of California will be again chosen to represent the West in that annual classic, the Tournament of Roses game, at which the holder of the Western championship is pitted against a picked representative of the East. Unfortunately, the Navy will be this year's representative, but although they have a good team they are not the peers of several other Eastern and mid-Western gridders.

The Bears won the logical right to be chosen as the representative when they defeated the University of Washington by a 9 to 0 score.

Throughout the last four years the East and West are tied as to honors. Four winters ago the strong Harvard eleven crushed California, but the following New Year's, California retaliated by giving Ohio a severe drubbing. It was that Ohio team that won from the Cardinals in the last minute of play.

The next winter W. and J. and California fought for four grueling quarters only to tie in the end. This past tournament witnessed not one game but two, in which the honors were easy, Southern California winning from Penn State while Gonzaga bowed to West Virginia.

It remains then for this year's game to decide the champion.

How About It?

By HARRY BARSANTEE

Wisconsin is the wild and wooly West. We are everything out here from Bolsheviks to gunmen. According to telegrams here from Ann Arbor, Michigan, one can hardly think us better than a mob ruled student body. Throughout all Michigan the idea reigns that an infuriated mob of Wisconsin students, absolutely forgetting friendly spirit which should exist between conference schools, demonstrated last Saturday that they cannot be gentlemen.

The entire blame is placed on the Wisconsin student body. If there is blame to be placed, let it fall upon those who deserve it. This from a prominent Michigan daily paper:

"Then the Director of athletics for Wisconsin started for Eckersall at the same time the mob did. He reached him before another blow could be dealt.

"Jones pulled out an automatic pistol and waved it at the crowd. The mob fell back before the sight of the weapon and by this time the Wisconsin players, who were starting to leave when the mob made its rush, reversed and smashed their way through. They joined Jones at Eckersall's side and surrounded the official. He left the field, cardinal jerseyed players to the right of him, to the left of him, before and behind him, with thousands yelling threats, jerring and booing."

The above would be laughable were it not so pitiable. All who saw the affair know how exaggerated the statements are.

All Michigan believes the Wisconsin student body is a body of numb-skulls ruled by mob spirit and out for blood. Who is to blame?

The final week's workout is on and the boys are going to work hard to win that one final game.

Reports have it that about ten thousand Badgers will witness one of the best battles that was ever pulled off on Stagg field. Many fans say that the Michigan game was the best but wait and see.

Last year Richards put a Wisconsin team on Stagg field that made a great showing and gridiron history. This year Ryan will do the same, but we're coming home with a win on our belts, aren't we gang?

The Eckersall affair has died down a little bit now, but every time his name is mentioned in classes or in the houses, a wild yell goes up for vengeance. Do we ever want Eckersall again?—NO.

That Michigan is going to have a tough job on its hands next Saturday is almost certain. With Blott, Vandervoort, Uteritz and Steele out on crutches, Yost is without the punch that has won his other games. Maybe the old Michigan luck will pull them through, who knows?

This column bets on Minnesota to win over the Wolverines next Saturday. If they win, Coach Spaulding has done something that no other conference coach has done, and that is, to go through a season without a defeat. True they were tied here, but nevertheless, they should get credit for the championship along with Illinois.

It certainly is a shame that some of the merchants along State street couldn't afford to have their windows decorated with "Beat Michigan" whitewash signs. Many of them wiped off the work some loyal students spent half the night in putting on.

Football season will soon be over. This column will not go out of existence however, and will concentrate its efforts along basketball. The column

California Sets Sophomore Guard Over Big Letter

University of California, Nov. 19—(By P. I. N. S.)—In previous years it has not been necessary to guard California's "Big C" except on the eve of the Big Game but due to invasion by rooters of other universities earlier in the season it has been found urgent to have it guarded every night previous to a game for the rest of the season. This duty falls to the sophomore class for it is the guardian of the "Big C."

California's "Big C" is a cement "C" set in the hillside above the university, and is painted a bright gold.

POTTER SAYS RUHR SEIZURE IS LEGAL

Professor Maintains That Action of France Blocks Europe's Recovery

Is France's occupation of the Ruhr illegal?

Prof. Pitman B. Potter of the department of political science says "The French occupation of the Ruhr has every aspect of legality."

When asked his opinion in regard to calling the treaty a scrap of paper, Professor Potter said, "I think it is too strong. It's highly fanciful to call a treaty with more than 400 articles in it a scrap of paper merely because of France's action. And, frankly, I cannot see where Italy violated the treaty."

Professor Potter who has made a thorough study of the Ruhr situation asserts that France has legality on her side. But he also says that France is holding back Europe from rehabilitation.

Counterfeit $10 Bills Numerous In City

A number of counterfeit $10 bills were brought into the city on Saturday, it was learned today when two Madison banks received such bills from depositors. The Bank of Wisconsin and The First National bank each received one of the bills. Police are working on the case. It is believed that the man who passed out the bills "worked" here during the game.

BADGERS FIGHT FOR HIGH PLACE AT CONFERENCE MEET

Harriers Beaten, But Train For Season's Last Meet

After having its spotless record marred by the first defeat of the year last Saturday at the hands of the Wolverine runners, the varsity cross country squad yesterday turned its attention to preparation for the conference meet which will be held at Ohio State next Saturday, November 24.

This meet will close the season for the distance runners and every man on the squad is putting in his best efforts to condition himself for what will be the stiffest race of the year.

Ohio State Strong Previous to the race with Michigan last Saturday, the Cardinal runners were ranked with the best in the conference, but the defeat naturally lowers their status considerably.

As matters now stand, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio State, and Ames loom as the strongest contenders for conference honors. Ohio State runners furnished cross country enthusiasts with a surprise a week ago last Saturday when, in a triangular meet at Ann Arbor, they nosed out the strong Michigan harriers by four points. The Maize and Blue men would undoubtedly have won the meet, however, had not Davis, their best runner, strained his ankle during the race, thus preventing him from finishing among the leaders.

Race at Buckeye Homecoming Russell Payne and Walter Wilkoff, both of Ohio State, sprung the biggest surprise by their unexpected showing in this meet, raising the hopes of the Buckeyes materially. Davis and Captain Arnold of Michigan are expected to give the Ohioan runners a hot time.

Piper, Read and Valley showed up best among the varsity harriers in the Michigan meet and if nothing unforeseen happens to hinder the form or endurance of these men, they should be in the running at Columbus.

The meet is being given in connection with the Buckeye homecoming game with Illinois. Approximately 13 schools are expected to be represented at the race.

HERE'S TO JACK

Regardless of the fact that Wisconsin lost to Michigan Saturday, and regardless of feeling as to the capabilities of the judging official, Wisconsin knows as a result of that game that it has a real team and a real coach.

Jack Ryan has proved himself. If there were any doubts heretofore as to the ability of the new mentor, these all have been dispelled following the brilliant versatility and cooperation which the team assumed on the field Saturday.

Before the Michigan game Wisconsin showed its coach and its team that it had confidence and spirit. Through massmeetings and enthusiasms of all kinds, a new vigor was demonstrated in the student body.

This vigor continues, and Jack Ryan now knows that he has the best wishes and the fullest cooperation of the entire student body. Where heretofore there was support, perhaps on a rather "watchful waiting" basis, there now is deep felt appreciation and spirit, and the hope that Jack will long be with us.

MENTAL TESTS

Tests whereby a student's innate abilities may be determined are coming to be more and more desired by institutions of higher learning and in many cases are being instituted. Several universities now have them and make the ability to pass them a part of the entrance requirements.

With the present cosmopolitan trend of education, the students of today are no longer of the select, studious type of former days, but represent every possible field of interest, inclination, and ability. While many of those who enroll in college are fitted for their work there, a great number are either unfitted or else have their actual interests and inclinations elsewhere. A somewhat accurate conception of this fact may be obtained from figures for our own university at the Administration building which show that of the vast numbers of students that enroll as freshmen here, less than half of them finish their course and take their degrees. A very few of them were incapable, while the vast majority had their interests outside of the pale of college life.

It is also a well-known fact that many thousands of students enroll yearly in college with no definite goal in view, with no other idea than that of experimenting with themselves for a year or so until they ascertain in which direction their abilities lie. Thousands of others enroll in one course or another, and after a year or so, learn that their actual interests lie in another course, and so transfer with an accompanying loss of time and credit for themselves and a loss of money for the college which hitherto had been trying to make an engineer out of a doctor. All of this amounts to nothing more or less than a waste of time and money both for the individual and the institution and hinders the actual progress of education.

Out of these conditions have arisen the demands for mental tests for students. These tests are as yet exceedingly limited in scope, but their value is unquestioned so far as they go. Every application of reveals new deficiencies and new improvements and additions. Psychologists all over the country are working on them and the spreading of their use will bring about a more rapid perfection of them. Wisconsin needs these tests as much as any other institution, and their adoption here will be of value both to Wisconsin and to the development of the tests themselves.

THEY ALSO SERVE

Last year someone had an idea and there developed from that idea the best cover for the Octopus since its founding. That cover was entitled "They also serve who only stand and wait."

No more true epigram could be quoted, and especially appropriate is it to student activities. It is well-known that the men who toil on the second and third teams or on the All-Americans for two or three years are doing for their school an unestimateable good service. Although they long for a chance and selfishly cherish any glance from the coach, they also do their work for the school and sacrifice much in time and energy.

But not only in athletics do there persons work, sometimes without reaching the top. On the staff of The Daily Cardinal the reporters, desk assistants and other workers are just as much an integral part of the smooth running of the paper as are the editor and his associates. Their earnest work is appreciated and valued.

So it is with every activity. Persons are gaining experience. They are accomplishing much. But the road to the top is hard and crowded and there usually are only a few who reach it. But these look back and know that without the cooperation of the others they are powerless.

Fervently they quote, "They also serve—"

Other Editors Say—

PETTIFOGLING PROFESSORS

Pettifoggers are a common specimen of the genus professors. Their habitat is in textbooks. The pettifogger is the teacher the details of whose course obscure the principles. So many pages assigned, so many minutes lectured away, and he has done his stint. Every senior can look back at courses which are now a blank waste save for a few trashy minutiae that have kinked in his memory. The course is three hours credit on the grade sheet, nothing more. The pettifogger taught it.

The pettifogger messes irrelevant details and outstanding principles unrecognizably together. In his classes, he chats on the archaeopteryx to the exclusion of the mesozoic period; he revels in tunicate forgetful of stomachs; he manipulates cosecants without explaining the basis for logarithms; he recites vocabularies instead of literature; he juggles the syllogism to the muddling of the laws of causation; he is deep in eschatology before he has defined religion; he expands on the election of a justice of the peace without putting forth the doctrine of judicial supremacy; he describes the Khyongthas without inferring any sociological ideas; he analyzes the price level of 1906 before he discusses prices themselves; he scrutinizes the treaty of Westphalia without referring to the map of Europe; and he dives below beauty and thought to quiz on Chaucer's word forms and Shakespeare's grammar.

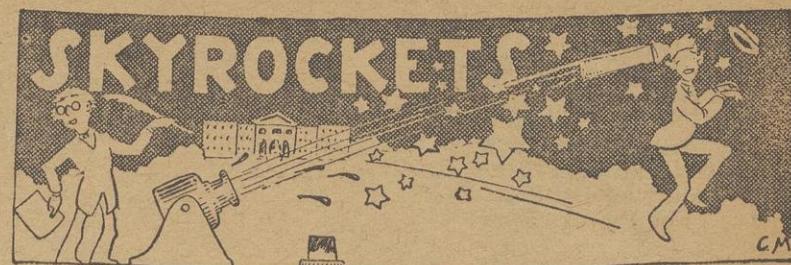

The pettifogger is quite unaware of his fault. Because he understands the atomic theory, he assumes that his class is ready to grapple with Mendeleeff's periodic law. He takes for granted that what he understands students understand likewise. Probably fifty per cent of the faculty is guilty of habitual pettifogging in varying degrees.

The student's mind is like a touchy stomach. The pettifogger crams the mind with insignificant facts. He expects a queasy stomach to nourish itself on sawdust details, too bulky to be digestible. The student needs pre-digested knowledge in which the principle and the detail, the major and the minor, have been sorted and classified according to their relative emphasis. Changing the figure, the student's book of knowledge must have marginal notes, chapter and sectional headings, large caps and italics, every typographical aid to clearness. The pettifogger proffers him a manuscript, unbound, unedited, without paragraphs, capitals or periods. The pettifogging professor has not the great gift of simplicity and proportion.

BED TIME STORY: Once upon a time there was a referee—Good night!

We didn't know John Fitzgerald was an eccentric dancer until we saw him at Frank Hoover's last Saturday night.

Speaking of dancing, the theory seems to be that we men lack lasting power. Evidently the lady in the black and gold evening dress at Hoover's Saturday night wished to experiment. She brought five with her.

And here's yet another one would speak in verse.

THE GAME

It was a great game. The finest game I have ever seen Wisconsin play. Again Wisconsin proved herself just as big in defeat as she has ever been in victory. There was no protest from Wisconsin. The school took one of the rottenest deals in the history of conference football like true sportsmen. We are proud of the team, we are proud of the man behind Wisconsin's new football policy, Tom Jones.

Coach Ryan sounded the key-note when he said, "We play Chicago next." Now is the time to begin planning for that game. The team is going to be there fighting mad. Ryan and the team know their stuff. The band will be there to show Stagg what a real band is like. But let's watch the marching a bit band. Those lines were pretty ragged Saturday. And let's not forget "Hot Time." It means more to the old boys than anything Sousa ever wrote. It's not a concert. It's a football game.

And then there is next year to look forward to, and to start planning for now. Next year should, in my mind, see solid blocks of male cheering sections. The cheering at the gym last Friday night ought to prove that beyond a doubt. A solid group of men can and will out cheer any mixed group. Get the basses together. If some men must fuss put them in a mixed section. We play Chicago next Saturday, and Michigan without Eckersall next fall.

JOHN ROBERTS '25.

IN JUSTICE TO OUR VISITORS
Editor The Cardinal:

After reading the profusely half-quoted remarks attributed to Major Murphy in the Sunday Cardinal, permit me to throw some light on the situation of last Saturday which in justice to all concerned will convey the whole truth.

Recently we invited the Michigan band to be with us for the game and suggested that possibly it could be arranged to consolidate and provide "entertainment" between halves. Saturday morning a detailed plan was worked out which was accepted by Captain Wilson, the director, and Mr. Carleton Peirce, the student manager. Dur-ious and there are so many things we want to know that we are publishing here a list of—

THINGS WE WANT TO KNOW
Why Kenneth Fearing doesn't wear hairnets?

Why the girls flock to the "Pantry"?

What all the thick red volumes, so stealthily smuggled from place to place are all about?

Why so many girls refuse to smoke but keep the offered cigarettes for their roommate?

This week end was a fertile one in that it incited two poems. Here's one that we'd like to know the details of.

TWAS ALL ON A FRIDAY NIGHT

'Round the corner on two wheels
Last Friday night.
I know now how it feels
To act a fright.
We fled the country road,
And not on low,
Until the headlight showed Escape below.
But what escape it was—
A shadowed wood—
Talk on—let gossip buzz,
As Gossip should.

HITS AND MISSES.

The Michigan director canceled the program in an attempt to please their fans and thereby we did not get the support for our program that we had hoped for. This should clarify the following misleading and incorrectly quoted sentences in Sunday's Cardinal: "The Michigan leader refused every offer," "The Michigan fans did not want anything like that," "We were unable to receive any cooperation from the Michigan leader." I was present during the entire interview with the reporter and the last statement made by our director was, "Be sure to give them the benefit of the doubt."

Under the circumstances we were obligated to our fans to likewise "roll up some thunder," but we courteously delayed starting until the visitors had their program under way and we finished by presenting their song in an attitude of seriousness and respect.

Later Major Murphy conferred with Captain Wilson and interested him in a proposed conference of Big Ten band directors. This, it is hoped, will result in ending hasty interviews during the excitement of the game and will recognize that between halves the audience enjoys entertainment indicative of good sportsmanship, all of which has been proved by the consolidated bands at Illinois two years ago, at Minnesota last year, at our own Homecoming this year and we hope also at Chicago next Saturday.

A COMPLIMENT

Editor The Cardinal:
I have read many of your recent editorials and think they are fine—the best that have appeared in The Cardinal for some time. I am very much pleased with, and heartily approve of the stand taken by The Cardinal in regard to "booze." I think the majority of the students also agree with you. Keep it up.

Physical Culture Edition Headed All School Humor Mags For Picture Space

"When students buy the Octopus they are buying more pictures than the purchasers of almost any other college magazine. Ever since the publication was begun the policy of using plenty of art has been continued, and as a consequence there are a great number of artists contributing to the magazine," Richard Bellack '24, editor of the Octopus stated last night.

In the Physical Culture Number of the Octopus, there were 527 square inches of pictures, while the Yale Record had only about half as many, the Stanford Chapparel (which is one of the best college humor publications on the western coast) less than half, and the Michigan Gargoyle had less than 150. The Harvard Lampoon, of all the magazines on which measurements were made, came closest with about two-thirds the number. mount of art will be kept up. The

"Our policy of using a large a-students like pictures, and we have large coterie of artists who are doing good work right along. With the introduction of wash and pencil drawings, the artists have greater freedom to work, and the quality of art ought to be even better for the rest of the year," Richard F. Bellack, said yesterday.

Presented at the Madison Produced by Metro.

By C. P. G.

If you are looking for something out of the ordinary don't go to the Madison the first half of this week. If you are satisfied with an ordinary theme presented in an ordinary way, go ahead. You will see a pretty little love story with a happy ending. And besides you will see a very pretty and charming girl, Estelle Taylor, register that ever peasing combination of pleasure and gratification at an evening's entertainment that so many of us have given up hope of ever evoking again.

Now don't get the idea that this is a punk show. It is not. It is rather above the average but there is no one feature that stands out above the rest.

The story is of a couple who decide at the altar that they do not love each other. Then it proceeds to their respective love stories. The girl falls in love with her father's chauffeur and marries him. Through an error she thinks he has deserted her and commits suicide. He immediately follows suit and that finishes that. The other affair ends happily.

SMITH SPEAKS ON CALCIUM CARBIDE

Gives History and Development of Acetylene and Its Uses

The history of the discovery and development of carbide and its principal uses today were related in a lecture on "Calcium Carbide and Acetylene" given by Mr. H. S. Smith, Chief Engineer of the Presto-lite Co., yesterday morning to junior and senior engineers.

"More auto trucks are using acetylene lights, today than there were passenger cars ten years ago," Mr. Smith said. Other important uses of acetylene are in miners' lamps, farm lighting units, automatic lights on buoys, and welding.

The dangers of acetylene are much exaggerated according to Mr. Smith. Acetylene containers are subjected to the most severe tests possible and must fail to explode even though filled with the dissolved gas. Most of the dangers came from the use of acetylene in homemade or poorly controlled apparatus.

BETTY WALES IS EIGHT YEARS OLD TODAY

Naturally she wants to celebrate, and she believes that the best way to celebrate is by offering something especially fine to her friends. So she has ordered the Muriel Shop, in common with Betty Wales shops all over the country, to place some of the finest of her creations on sale at an especially low price.

So we have selected a number of fine models, which regularly retail for from $55 to $70. This includes both street and dinner dresses of the best materials, and in the most advanced styles. There are crepe satins, satin cantons, novelty silks and velvet chiffons among the fabrics. These will all sell, during this week only for

"Down to the Sea in Ships"
Presented at the Parkway.

By TED

Some time ago we made the statement that there were exceedingly few movies that were worth waiting in line to see. We still maintain that is true. "Down to the Sea in Ships" however, is one of those few, and is emphatically worth waiting a long time to see. No picture is absolutely perfect, but this one comes quite close to being so; so close, in fact, that we grade it at 96 per cent.

It is closely knit, well photographed, well acted, and convincingly real. The whaling scenes are marvelous. For the most part, close ups and all, they are real, the cast and photographers having actually been sent out with whalers on a whaling vessel from New Bedford.

Raymond McKee, whom you have hitherto seen in comedies, gives an excellent performance of Allan, and is admirably supported by Marguerite Courtot as Patience Morgan. Clara Bow, as Dot Morgan, though still almost a child, is, as the women would say, "just darling." The only character that we would criticise is that of Siggs, the villain of the picture. He is a trifle too obviously smooth and a trifle overdone. (We have forgotten the name of the actor who played the part). But the rest of the picture is so good that we easily overlook him.

If we wrote all we would like to say about "Down to the Sea in Ships," it would necessitate a special edition of the Cardinal, so we will just say that we recommend it as the best thing you are apt to see this winter, and don't miss it.

As the added attraction Ernest Evans and His Girls, whom you saw there a week or so ago, have returned and put on some very acceptable dancing. We pose as a movie critic, and we really went to see only the movie, nevertheless we kept our eyes on the stage while Ernie and his girls were there.

Lloyd's "Why Worry"
Excels in Humor

WHY WORRY

Presented at the Majestic.
Featuring Harold Lloyd.

Harold Lloyd improves as he grows older. It would take a whole page to do justice to the humor in "Why Worry." This picture is the essence of farce, with no slapstick elements. Harold Lloyd and the giant Colosso are unconsciously absurd; they make no obvious attempt to be funny. If a movie farce is ever the logical development of amusing incidents worked up to a climax, in which the interest is sustained to the very end—this is it.

Into the sleepy village of Paradise—somewhere in South America—Harold Van Pelham, a pseudo-invalid, slides nonchalantly down the ship's gang-plank in a wheel-chair. Blissfully oblivious to the revolution going on around him, he accepts the villain's offer of a military escort to the hotel. Incidentally they take him to prison, and he signs a sheet labelled in Spanish: "To be shot at sunrise." Moral: Before going to South America, it might be well to learn Spanish! Harold finds himself in a cell with the burly Colosso—superbly portrayed by John Aasen, who is a regular sure 'nuff giant—and, by extracting Colosso's aching tooth, with a rope, Harold is rewarded by his dog-like servitude. Colosso makes a charming bodyguard, with a cannon on his back—he looks like a scissors grinder! When Harold commands him to search for his pretty nurse, who is disguised as a muchacho, Colosso returns with a dozen screaming señoritas climbing all over him. There is a wonderful recipe for ending revolutions—camouflage. Entrenched behind a high wall, the nurse beats a drum, Colosso blows smoke out of a cannon, and Harold throws cocoanuts at the approaching army, which instantly retreats. The last glimpse we see of Colosso is as a traffic policeman on Broadway.

Ridiculous circumstances, combined with Harold's portrayal of the supremely egotistical and absent-minded invalid, are responsible for the success of this comedy. It is quite different from his usual type, and in some respects much more effective.

Colored views of Yellowstone Park complete the bill.

REVIEWER LIKES TOM,

BETTY, HUMOR, HORSES

"Mile-a-Minute Romeo"

Featuring Tom Mix and Betty Jewel.

Produced by William Fox.

Presented at the Strand.

By SAPPY

Here we find lots of dash and some thrill and laughter, as a matter of fact quite a bit good-humored laughter, and a Wild West Picture. The story is as old as the hills, but, for a change, an old story is put across quite cleverly and nicely, mostly, because of Tom and of Betty Jewel and the rest of the cast, which is really quite good.

We enjoy Tom Mix shooting off guns. Did you ever notice that he closes his eyes every time he shoots? If you go to the Strand, be sure and notice that and then also admire the nice kid gloves Tom wears when he does rough-riding. Of course, all that has absolutely no influence upon the fact, that Tom is quite a good and realistic Western actor.

Betty Jewel is a good partner, and adapts herself to any and every role. J. Gordon Russel's mustache is very cute, but as a villain, oh, well, the show wants to do nothing but amuse, and that it does.

The remarkable thing about this picture is that there really are good horses in it and especially Tom Mix's horse is a wonder, we would give a lot to be allowed to run around on it for a little while. The other horses are good ones also, quite different from the usual kind of movie horses.

CRITIC PUTS ORPH BILL IN MEDIOCRE CLASS THIS WEEK

By One on the Aisle

Just medium we'd class the bill at the Orpheum this first half. Margaret Severn with her dances tops the bill.

Pot Pourri

Birds and then more birds. A fair opener.

Nate Leipzig

The hand is quicker than the eye. His card tricks are of the very best.

Rawls and Van Kaufman

The lines were clever, and he was good.

Margaret Severn

The maid of moods. Every one of her numbers was good. Her Benda Mask dances were knockouts. Cunningham could also play.

Tempest and Dickinson

They're called Broadway's smart couple. Evidently we don't appreciate big town stuff.

Eight Blue Demons

An excellent finisher. Their whirling stunts and pyramid building rated a better place on the bill.

service signed by Brackett reposes in the files of the court. He appeared Monday evening, November 12th, and was then and then duly notified by the court that the hearing would be continued to Thursday evening, November 15th, and that he should reappear at that time.

Warned by Court

He alone of the witnesses then in court refused to sign a certification that he had been notified to appear Thursday, but he was informed by the court that he was legally bound to appear whether he signed such certification or not, and that the service of another subpoena was not required. Thereupon Brackett threatened to do what he actually did do, and stated that he would not appear Thursday evening in language that was scarcelymistakable. The court of action on his part might rewarned him that such a course sult in serious consequences. Wednesday, November 14th, a summons to appear Thursday night was left in the custody of the president of the house at which Brackett resides, and the house president notified Brackett that he had such summons in his possession.

Such leaving of summons at Brackett's place of residence was entirely an unnecessary step on the court's part but it served to remind Brackett that the court expected his presence Thursday evening.

Fails To Appear

Brackett's own admission in Saturday morning's issue of The Cardinal leaves no doubt in anyone's mind as to whether he knew that he was expected to appear last Thursday. From a strictly legal viewpoint he has not a leg to stand on. The notice made to him in open court Monday evening is equivalent to any notice given a witness in a court of law, who has appeared in answer to summons, to return at some stated date in the future to give evidence in the same cause.

Thursday evening when Mr. Brackett failed to appear the court took the only action which was available and still retain its self respect, and as a result Brackett was suspended until such time as he appears before the court and gives evidence in the elections frauds case. The court would be completely powerless to perform its duties if it permitted its summons, or notices to reappear given in open court, to be openly defied and ignored without action being taken on its part.

The court regrets exceedingly that such action was forced upon it, but it feels that it has the support of the student body in taking this necessary step in its efforts to sift to the foundations the elections frauds case so as to forever prevent a recurrence of the scandal of November 2 which has cast a blot upon our great university.
