PROFESSOR ELY'S TRIAL.

HIS TEACHINGS INVESTIGATED
BY THE REGENTS.

CHARGES MADE AGAINST ELY
BY MR. WELLS.

Committee to Report at the Next Meeting of the Board.

At the August meeting of the board of regents, President Bartlett stated to the board that inasmuch as certain charges had been made by a member of the board against one of the professors of the university, those charges should be investigated. He appointed as an investigating committee H. W. Chynoweth, John Johnston and H. B. Dale. The charges referred to were made by State Superintendent O. E. Wells in a letter published in the New York Evening Post of July and were directed against Prof. Ely, stating that his teachings were anarchistic and dangerous, that he was an advocate of strikes and that he had helped start the printers' strike at Madison, entertaining and advising the walking delegate of the printers' union.

The first meeting of the committee was held in the senior lecture room of the Law building at the university, Aug. 20th. At this meeting Prof. Ely was present with his attorney, B. W. Jones. Mr. Wells, however, declined to appear but sent a communication to the committee objecting to the course of procedure of the committee, as they had announced that they would consider Prof. Ely's actual teachings and lectures, rather than from his books. Mr. Wells also quoted from some of Prof. Ely's writings in support of the charge that his teachings were dangerous to a peaceful condition of society. The committee adjourned after sending a request to Mr. Wells to be present at the next meeting.

The next meeting was held in the same place Aug. 21. Mr. Wells was present with his attorney, G. W. Bird. But little was accomplished at this meeting. The committee however listened to the testimony of W. A. Tracy, of Tracy, Gibbs & Co., in regard to a conversation which he had with Prof. Ely at the time of the printers' strike. Mr. Tracy testified that Prof. Ely advised him to make his office a union office for if he did not he might lose the printing of the Christian Social union, of which Prof. Ely was secretary. Thomas Reynolds, one of the printers, testified that he did not know of Dr. Ely having anything to do with the strike or that he had advised the strikers in any manner.

At the third meeting of the committee Mr. Wells again declined to appear but sent another communication which was largely devoted to a review of Prof. Ely's latest book "Socialism and Social Reform." He also stated that he was unable to prove the charge that Prof. Ely had entertained the walking delegate.

Regent Stevens then presented to the committee letters from prominent scholars giving their opinion of Prof. Ely's teachings and writings. These letters were from president Adams; Persident Andrews, of Brown, Prof. Small of Chicago, Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, and F. W. Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews. They all supported Prof. Ely and claimed that his teachings were for good rather than evil. Prof. Ely then testified in regard to his attitude toward strikes and in regard to his conversation with Mr. Tracy. Prof. Kinley, of the university of Illinois, and Prof. Turner testified in regard to Prof. Ely's method of conducting classes and as to the effect of his teachings.

The committee met on Friday, Sept. 7, to consider its report but it has as yet not made that report public. It will probably be presented to the board of regents at their next meeting.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT.

A LARGE AUDIENCE AT LIBRARY HALL.

GOOD ADVICE GIVEN TO STUDENTS.

How to Make the Best Use of One's Time.

A large audience, containing a large proportion of new students, met at Library Hall this noon to listen to the first address of the president for the college year. When the president appeared on the platform he was greeted by the good old U-Rah-Rah, Wisconsin, and the way that it was given showed that the freshmen were becoming proficient in this lesson of college life.

In opening his address the president expressed his regret that he could not come in immediate contact with the students on account of the size of the university. A real teacher should desire to come into close relations with the students. The end of universities is to make students. However, at the beginning of the year he could address the students directly. He said that he wished to speak to the students and would take for his subject, "University Ideals."

He said that at first he wished to speak a word of congratulation as the entering classes are larger this year than ever before. Many of the departments have been almost reorganized. A new professor and associate dean has been secured in the law school. The school of pharmacy has been very much strengthened. The departments of electrical engineering and Greek have been thoroughly reorganized. The college of agriculture has also been improved. He spoke especially of physical culture. Hereafter the body as well as the mind will be trained and educated. However, everything that has been planned has not yet been accomplished. On account of the strikes this summer the work on the boiler house and the machine shops has been very much delayed.

He then went on to speak of the work in the university. There is a sort of provincial way here of speaking of the university as a "school." The university is not a school although it may be considered as a group of schools. Do not refer to the university as a "school." The university differs from a school in that there is much more liberty allowed. But in connection with the increased liberty of the university comes an increased responsibility. The regulations of the university should be obeyed. There should be no disorder between the classes. But there is no cause for anxiety here in regard to friction between the lower classes. All of the students can be relied upon to sustain the good name of the university.

It is of the utmost importance that every student should be determined to get the mastery of himself or herself. A student should go ahead in the course in which they started. Every one should be able to turn aside from any temptations which will distract one from the real university work.

He divided the students into two classes; the professional and the non-professional. To the professional students he wished to say that their time would be taken up by purely technical work but they would all have some time over and above that which is required to do their work. It was of this particular time that he wished to speak. Accompanying the work of each profession is a large border land which can profitably be explored by the student in that particular branch. Everyone should acquire a fondness for this sort of work as it will be of great benefit to him. The professional students who have been through the university ought to feel that they are in a higher grade from those who have not had those advantages. The true province of a law school ought to be to teach the broader ideas of law rather than the technicalities.

But the majority of the students belong to the non-professional class. The non-professional student has greater temptations to indolence but greater opportunities for improvement. The leisure time is the time of which he wished to speak. Goethe says that a man is as many times a man as the languages he knows. This is perhaps an exaggeration but it would be a good idea for each student to obtain a good reading knowledge of at least four languages besides his own. These languages would probably be Greek, Latin, German and French. The classical course probably offers the best possible education that can be obtained. The knowledge of Greek and Latin opens up two of the greatest civilizations of the world. The best of literature should be obtained. There seems to be lately a lessening of respect and fondness for the great models of literature. The habit of reading the best books should be found in the university. It is the companionship of the greatest minds of the world can be obtained through literature. The desirability of the formation of a library was urged. Even the poorest of the students can save enough to obtain books that they can always cherish.

He then spoke of the department of physical culture. Everyone should take as much exercise as they thought was best for them. But no one should have the idea that the gymnasium was the chief end of the university. Only enough exercise should be taken to enable one to do their university work to the best of their ability. Success in after life depends largely on the impulses received at the university.

The students all went away well pleased with the address and felt that they could profit by the lessons they had learned there.

—Robert E. Rienow, '94, is principle of the Fox Lake high school.

—H. F. Lueders, '87, has accepted a place in the Sauk City high school.

—Miss Grace Lee, '92, is teaching in the Madison high school this year.

—Miss Regina Bold, '94, succeeds J. F. Doherty in the Madison high school.

—Miss Gertrude Light, '94, has entered the medical department of Johns Hopkins university.

—Frank E. Doty, '88, has resigned his position at Los Vegas, N. M., to accept the principalship of the Waupaca high school.

No better medium can be obtained for soliciting the advertising patronage among university students than the Daily Cardinal. A very large proportion of the students take the paper and as they are naturally interested in its prosperity, it is only reasonable that they should be inclined to trade with business men who contribute toward its support.

The Glee club is one of the institutions of the university of which the institution should be proud, and should receive the hearty support of all the students. There are now some vacancies in the club, and it is hoped that they will be filled by the very best men there are. Students should not be backward about making application for membership in the club. They should not judge of their voices themselves, as those who consider themselves unfit for a place may have just the voice that is wanted. Application should be made at once to Prof.
Parker, Mr. Sired or Mr. Greenbank.

CAP AND GOWN AT NORTHWEST- ERN.

All students of Northwestern University hereafter are to wear the cap and gown. This regalia has not been adopted by the students themselves, but the fashion has been decreed for them by the university authorities.
The cap is the Oxford cap, sometimes known as the mortar-board. It will be the same for all departments except the color of the tassels, each department having its own distinguishing hue. President Rogers said in regard to the change:

"The wearing of the cap and gown by faculty and students is in accord with academic traditions. It is also thought to be a saving in expense to needy students, as the cap and gown by them can be obtained for a small outlay. The extravagance in dress sometimes resorted to by students on commencement and other university occasions often compels a like expenditure on the part of others who cannot afford it but who think that they must make as creditable an appearance as their associates or be made to feel uncomfortable and perhaps humiliated. On ceremonial occasions the dignity of the occasion is promoted by this use of a ceremonial dress. A better appearance is presented by a class on the commencement platform when arrayed in caps and gown than when each individual is clad in a manner peculiar to himself—one in a dress coat and another in a sack, one in a light suit and another in a dark one. It has been the practice in Northwestern for the president to wear the cap and gown, and it has been thought if this is an appropriate dress for the president it should be equally so for the members of the faculty and the student body."

FOOTBALL AT ILLINOIS.

Yesterday's Chicago dailies contained articles on the gloomy prospects of the U. of I. football team. Today they are reversed. Sixty candidates are in training, ten old 'varsity men are in college, two more coming and Vail of Pennsylvania, Heffelfinger and Cochran of Yale, and Huff, Dartmouth (ex-U. of I.) are to coach. Games are arranged as follows:

Wabash at Crawfordsville, Oct. 6.
I. F. U. at Champaign, Oct. 20.
U. of Mich. at Champaign, Oct. 27.
N. W. U. at Champaign, Nov. 3.
N. W. U. at Evanston, Nov. 17.
Games are also to be played with Purdue, Depauw, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Chicago Athletics.

NEW YORK ALUMNI ASSOCIA- TION.

The alumni of the University of Wisconsin, who reside in New York city, formed an alumni association last spring. They held a banquet on June 19th, at which many of the old Wisconsin men were present. After the banquet they organized and elected the following officers: President, E. F.
Dwight, '87; vice president, J. W.
Blakley, '86; secretary, Herbert Rogers, '82; treasurer, C. M. Wales, '85. The rooms of the association will be at 30 Broad street, New York city.

INTERNATIONAL ATHLETICS.

"By changing the conditions so that the match would be Oxford and Cambridge against Yale and Harvard, it could be properly held every year, in which some college, other than Yale or Harvard, did not win the intercollegiate championship, but there would also be new difficulties. In all matters athletic or aquatic Yale and Harvard agree almost as well as do fire and water. It is extremely doubtful whether students of the two universities could be induced to frame and adopt any practicable plan for the selection and management of a Yale-Harvard team; and if such a scheme could be accepted, it is hardly possible that the students of Yale and Harvard would support it with that whole-souled loyalty necessary for success.
If such a team should be organized and sent to London, or should compete here, the athletes of Yale and Harvard would instinctively struggle harder to beat each other than to conquer the Englishmen, and little good could be expected from a party so curiously constituted. Only those who have been brought into intimate relations with American intercollegiate sport can appreciate the intense rivalry between the students of the leading universities, and the great difficulty of getting them to act in concert, even in matters evidently for the good of all.
The same feeling, though in far less degree, exists in England, and it will always be a matter of difficulty to select from the two English or the two American universities a team of athletes who would work together with that singleness of purpose essential to victory."—Outing for September.

ADDITIONS TO THE FACULTY.

In our issue of yesterday evening we gave a partial list of the new members of the faculty. Below is published a complete list of the new professors with their titles:

J. E. Elson—Professor of Physical Culture and Director of the Gymnasium.

E. H. Farrington—Associate Professor of Dairy Husbandry.

S. B. Fortenbraugh—Assistant Professor of Electrical Engineering.

C. N. Gregory—Associate Dean of the College of Law.

A. G. Laird—Assistant Professor of Greek.

G. W. McKerrow—Superintendent Farmers' Institutes.

G. F. Smith—Professor of Greek and Classical Literature.

H. H. Everett—Instructor in Physical Culture.

A. P. Saunders—Instructor in Chemistry.

C. B. Thwing—Instructor in Physics.

Alfred Vivian—Instructor in Pharmacognostical Chemistry.

The following are the lives of those professors which were not given in last evening's Cardinal:

C. F. SMITH.

Charles Foster Smith, in charge of the department of Greek, was born in Abbeville county, South Carolina. He received his education at Wofford college, graduating in 1872 with the degree of A. B. He then took post graduate work at Harvard and returning to Wofford college he became professor of Greek at his Alma Mater. He remained here until 1879 when he went abroad. He studied at Leipzig for three years and then took the degree of Ph. D. The subject of the dissertation for this degree was "Plutarch's Life of Artaxerxes." During the next year he was assistant professor of Greek at Williams. From there he went to Vanderbilt to take charge of the Greek department, and remained there until he was elected to his present position at Wisconsin. Prof. Smith has edited Books 3 and 7 of Thucydides. He has contributed a number of articles on classical subjects to the different magazines. He has written considerable for the Journal of Philology and the Classical Review. The last paper that he presented before the Philological association was on "Some Poetic Constructions in Thucydides," and will be printed in the publications of the association. The calling of Professor Smith to the university thus placing three professors in the department, indicates a desire on the part of the regents to build up the classical department. Prof. Smith is a member of the Chi Psi fraternity.

C. B. THWING.

The growth of the department of physics has necessitated the calling of a new instructor in that department. Charles Benton Thwing, who will fill that place, was born March 9, 1860, at Theresa, N. Y. He received his preparatory education at Northwestern and then entered the university, graduating in 1888. After his graduation he was instructor in physics at Northwestern. In 1893 he went to Germany and matriculated at the University of Bonn. After studying six months at the university he received the degree of Ph. D. The subject of his doctor's dissertation was "Bestimmung der Dielectricitaten constante mittels der Resonanz." The work on this subject was largely done with Hertz, the late eminent electrician. Mr. Thwing organized the summer school at the Northwestern University and was connected with it while instructor there. He was also quite prominent in university extension work in Chicago. Mr. Thwing has presented several papers before the American Association for the Advancement of Science, one of which, "The Capacity and Construction of Dielectrics," has been published and has attracted considerable notice. While Mr. Thwing is instructor in general physics, he intends making a specialty of chemical electricity. He is a member of Phi Kappa Psi and Phi Beta Kappa.

A. G. LAIRD.

A. G. Laird, assistant professor of Greek, was born at Charlottetown, Prince Edward's Island. He graduated from Dalhousie College with the degree of A. B. in 1889. During the next two years he took graduate work at Cornell and took his degree of Ph. D. in 1891. He gave as his doctor's dissertation "The Contraction of Vowels in Greek Dialects." He taught for one year at Leland Stanford and then returned to Cornell as instructor in Greek, which position he retained until he was called to Wisconsin.

LIBRARY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN.

Extracts from Library Rules.

I. The university library is open daily during term-time from 8:45 a. m. to 6 p. m. and from 6:45 to 9:30 p. m., except on Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays. On Saturdays the library is open from 8:45 a. m. to 5 p. m.

II. Students are allowed to draw books from the library on the presentation of a library deposit card, which can be obtained by the payment of $2.00 to the secretary of the board of regents. This deposit, less charges for damages and fines, will be refunded upon the return of the card, endorsed by the librarian.

III. The holder of a card is entitled to draw two books at a time. No two students will be allowed the use of the same card. Books may be retained two weeks, and may be once renewed for one week. A fine of two cents a day will be charged for each volume which is not returned according to the provisions above stated. In order to insure credit for books returned, they must in all cases be delivered to the person at the loan desk.

IV. Encyclopaedias, dictionaries and other reference works are not to be taken from the library. All other works are subject to reservation as reference books; when so reserved, they may not be drawn from the library except at the close of library hours on Saturdays and must be returned by 9:15 a. m. on the following Monday. A failure to return such books at the proper time will subject the person to a fine at double rates and to a forfeiture for one month, of the privilege of drawing reserve books.

V. Bound periodicals may be drawn as other books. Unbound periodicals may not be taken from the library by students. When taken from the periodical case for use in the reading room, they are to be returned to their proper place in the case.

VI. Free access to the alcoves on the main floor is allowed. Students are not allowed in the galleries without permission. All books taken from alcoves must be returned to the loan desk, and not to the shelves. This rule does not apply to books on the tables, shelves and revolving case in the reading room, or to bound periodicals in alcoves L and M which are preferably to be returned to their proper places after use.

VII. Students are not allowed to sit in the alcoves.

VIII. Courtesy to readers demands that the utmost possible quiet be maintained. Hence all unnecessary conversation is prohibited.

This week the library closes at 6 p. m. Commencing Monday, Sept. 17, library will be open evenings as last year.
