Field House Starts Huge Athletic Plant; New Units Planned

20 Tier Stadium Addition, Terra Cotta Wall Are Aims of Little

By NATHAN MAYER

Wisconsin's new field house, now rapidly nearing completion, has incorporated into it many innovations as the result of experimentation on a model structure. Before actual work was started on the new home of Badger athletics, engineers worked out their problems on the tiny structure.

After a careful survey made of other field houses, with copious notes and memoranda prepared on their qualities and defects, the construction engineers have introduced the new features into the present construction.

Solve Roof Problem

The roof, always a source of worry, according to George Little, director of athletics, has been amply worked out to prevent seepage through it and dripping on the basketball floor below, which trouble has been experienced by Michigan.

A four ply roof, started with a wooden base and covered by tile, will cover the structure. Between the layers mentioned will be one of felt, and one of a like material steeped in pitch.

Beauty Is Aim

The new field house and the present stadium will be combined to produce one of the most beautiful athletic structures in the United States, Little averred. The two structures will be joined, and surrounded by the same terra cotta exterior. Twenty tiers will be added to the present stadium, making Camp Randall one of the largest stadia in the country.

While the various nuts, bolts, and beams are being correctly arranged, George Little is mentally planning the inside. He will arrange the distribution of space, leaving the actual construction in the hands of the state architect, Arthur Peabody, who also designed the Memorial Union building.

Ventilation, Heating Difficult

The most difficult problem presented to the engineers was that of ventilation and heating. Once more the

14 Men and One Woman Take Parts in 'Outside Looking In'

Fourteen men and one woman will enact the parts in the Experimental College Players' production of "Outside Looking In," to be given tonight at 8 o'clock in the stock pavilion. The play will be under the direction of Alfred Saxe '33.

Louise Stone, who plays the part of Edna in the play, is the first non-Experimental college student to take part in a players' production. Miss Stone, who was a member of the cast at the Garrick theater earlier in the year, played roles in "Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath" and "Little Accident." She has also taken part in New York professional productions.

The play, which is an adaptation from Jim Tully's novel, "Beggars of Life," is written by Maxwell Anderson. It was made into a moving picture some time ago with Richard Arlen in the lead. It tells the story of a girl who is fleeing from the police because she is wanted for murder, and of how she is alternately protected and threatened by members of a gang of hobos.

Saxe, who is directing the play, also plays the part of Skelly. Other members of the cast include John Roethe '32, Oklahoma; William Larkin '32, Baldy; Arnold Reisky '32, Snake; Louis Vicker '33, Bill; Karl Wason '33, Rubin; George Meisler '33, Red; Robert Goodell '33, Ukke; Bernard Walsh '33, Sims; Aaron Brenner '33, Mose; Frank Fernback '32, a dick; and Louise Stone, Edna.

Showers, Thunderstorms Predicted by Weatherman

Showers and thunderstorms with fresh to strong southwest winds is the weather prediction for today, according to a United States weather bureau report.

Woman Tells Of Life Work As Engineer

"I have never yet found the job that was monotonous to everyone," said Mrs. Lillian Moller Gilbreth, noted efficiency engineer, in a talk given in 165 Bascom hall Wednesday afternoon.

A tall, slim business woman, Mrs. Gilbreth has been the mother of 12 children, who range from eight to 24 years in age. She is a home maker, an efficiency engineer, and a charming personality combined.

Treats Home As Job

Speaking of skill, and the satisfactions attained from skilled work, Mrs. Gilbreth treated the home as a definite job.

"Because a person is skilled in one performance does not necessarily mean that he is able to carry on greater work. That is the main trouble with business promotions," Mrs. Gilbreth pointed out.

Mass Output Stressed

"I find that the greatest difficulty in incompetency in work is due to the fact that the job is not set to order for the person. The person who works in fits and starts should have a different rate of speed and a different environment than the man who likes to work steadily," she pointed out.

That the business and machine world of today permits little quantity satisfaction on the part of the individual worker, Mrs. Gilbreth emphasized. As soon as one article is finished it is sent out or on to another department.

Worker Loves Machine

"It is a lamentable fact that Japan is becoming Americanized in her industry, because of the decrease of quality efficiency," Mrs. Gilbreth believes. In her last trip to Japan, she found that large scale production had greatly cut down on fine quality work. The person who pities the man at the machine wastes his pity, Mrs. Gilbreth has discovered. To her, the machine is an "extension of the personality," and the man at the machine is not a slave, but more a lover.

Mrs. Gilbreth is the wife of the late Frank B. Gilbreth, a nationally known consulting engineer. Since his death she has been carrying on his work.

'Cap' Isabel Saves Six Scared People In Sailboat Accident

Scared and bedraggled, six university students were saved from the middle of Lake Mendota by "Cap" Isabel after their sail boat capsized Wednesday afternoon.

Betty Blackwell '31, Jodeen Lord '32, Bertram D. Kribben '32, Gerell C. Lagerloff '33, Frederic W. Neuenfeldt '32, and Paul Gentry were taken to the Delta Upsilon house after the accident.

The sail boat, which had been rented from the university boat house, was being sailed by Bertram Kribben. When he tried to turn the craft, the wind caught the sail and tipped the boat over. The students were able to hang onto the ship until the launch arrived, although a number of canoes and small boats were approaching, attracted by the accident.

"Wet and pretty scared," was the way one of the boys at the D. U. house described the sailors when a Cardinal reporter telephoned.

R. O. Nafziger Named to Fill Journalism Post

Editor of Press Bureau Will Succeed Prof. K. E. Olson

Ralph O. Nafziger '20, editor of the university press bulletin and assistant in journalism for the last two and a half years, has been appointed assistant professor of journalism in the school of journalism, beginning July 1. He replaces Prof. Kenneth E. Olson, who goes to the University of Minnesota as professor of journalism.

Mr. Nafziger received the degree of bachelor of science from the university in 1920 and the degree of bachelor of arts in journalism in 1921. From 1921 to 1923 he was editor of the press bureau at North Dakota State college, where he organized the first courses in journalism offered in that institution.

He withdrew from teaching to join the staff of the Fargo, N. D., Forum, and then became an editorial writer on the Fargo Tribune. Later he was in the service of the United Press and for three years with the Omaha World-Herald. He returned to Madison in February, 1928, to become editor of the press bulletin and an assistant in the school of journalism.

During the World war Mr. Nafziger was with the A. E. F. in Russia, and he is now a reserve officer. He is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, and of Delta Sigma Phi.

Daily Cardinal Holds Esteem Of Postal Clerk

The Daily Cardinal is the "leading daily newspaper" of Madison, Wis., in the eyes of at least one local post-office clerk.

A letter mailed in the town of State College, Pa., bearing the following designation: "To the Leading Daily Newspaper, MADISON, WISCONSIN," was delivered at the Memorial Union office of the Deet Wednesday afternoon.

The letter requested a quotation of advertising rates for a new project.

Dance Drama, Hillel Play Make Successful Debuts

Fine Acting by Martha Cohen Characterizes Hillel Production

The rational philosophy of a fatherly physician and the voice of a child over the telephone bring harmony into a broken home on the stage of the Hillel foundation where "As a Man Thinks" was produced Wednesday night.

A brisk performance with acting of all sorts, bringing to light the talent of two extraordinarily fine players, was given under happy conditions in staging and direction.

Prof. J. H. Kolb Heads Section In Rural Work

Prof. J. H. Kolb, chairman of the department of rural sociology, has been selected as one of the departmental heads of a national commission, which has been created by Pres. Herbert Hoover, to study the rural social trends in the United States during the next two years.

The commission will investigate what is happening in the country as compared to what has gone before. The campaign is to be financed entirely by private funds.

Begin Work Soon

Dr. Edmund de S. Brunner of the Institute of Social and Religious Research, New York City, will work with Prof. Kolb.

The work of the commission will begin early this summer and will be completed before August 1, 1932. The 1930 census figures will be available for the survey and the results of previous work will also be used.

Study 140 Towns

The study will deal primarily with a number of divisions which sociologists believe to be the solution of some problems today. Consideration will be given to changes and movements in population, natural resources, inventions, production and consumption, foreign policy, legislation, health, and medicine, family relationships, crime, group and community organizations, religion, and race problems.

The division under the direction of Kolb and Brunner, known as rural social trends, will make a restudy of over 140 small towns from all over the country. These towns were surveyed five years ago in much the same manner as will be done this year.

W.S.G.A. Board Allows Women Key Privileges

88 Credits and 'Off Probation' Are Requisites for Addition

Senior women having 88 credits and not on probation will be granted key privileges for an additional 12:30 a. m. night a week beginning September, 1930, following the unanimous decision of the W. S. G. A. board at a meeting Wednesday night in the Memorial Union.

All revisions to the present rules were passed by the board with the exception of the rule on late permission for extra-curricular activities and social privileges which was referred back to the various houses on account of a misunderstanding of the present rule. The result of the vote must be returned to the W. S. G. A. office by Tuesday noon.

Suggest "No Bath" Rule

Practically all of the rules were passed as prepared by the committee on revision. The guest rule, however, was changed granting the guests 12:30 permission instead of key privilege because the key was considered inadvisable for guests not known by the majority of those in the house.

It was also decided to make the no bath rule after 11 p. m. a suggestion rather than a rule, and the senior key privilege was granted to those with 88 credits rather than 90 credits.

Expresses Thanks

Yvonne Carns '31, chairman of the rules and revisions committee who took charge of the board discussion of the new rules said, "The committee is more than pleased that the rules were passed unanimously and wishes to express its appreciation for the co-operation of all the houses."

Routine matters of the W. S. G. A. board were taken up prior to the passage of the new rules, by Margaret Modie '31, president of W. S. G. A., and were largely concerned with Mothers' week-end plans.

Miss Modie also explained the extensive program for next year planned by the Women's Affairs committee for Memorial Union activities which includes a large program of formal luncheons and teas during orientation.

Lawyers Hold Fete Tonight

Page, Justice Fairchild Will Speak; Purnell to Add Spice

Prof. W. H. Page of the Law school faculty, Paul Hemmy, L2, president-elect of the Law school association, and William Purnell, director of the Haresfoot club, will appear on the program of the annual Law school banquet tonight at 6:30 p. m. in the Memorial Union.

Justice Edward T. Fairchild, recently appointed to the State Supreme court by Gov. Walter J. Kohler, will conclude the speeches with the main address of the evening, as previously announced. He will discuss "Practice in Trial Courts."

Prof. Ray Brown of the Law school, president of Coif, honorary legal fraternity, will announce this year's elections. Prof. Oliver S. Rundell, acting dean, will preside as toastmaster.

Purnell will discuss the important question of politics. Every angle will be aired, but the legal standpoint will be barred completely. The exposition (not entirely in a grammatical sense) will follow special music.

Prof. Page refuses to reveal his subject, but invited the questioner to "come and hear for yourself." He will speak as a representative of the faculty. Hemmy will address the group on behalf of the student body.

Prof. Howard L. Smith, professor emeritus, will be present as a guest of honor. While the banquet is sponsored by the Law school association, it is open to the whole school.

Faculty Offers Youth and Age

Youngest and Oldest Teachers Differ by 50 Years

The oldest and the youngest members of the faculty of the university are just 50 years apart in age.

The most youthful members of the university teaching staff are two men and one woman instructor, each 22 years old, according to compilations made by the university statistician. At the other end of the age scale are a feminine associate professor and a masculine professor, each aged 72. If faculty members who are no longer active are considered, one professor emeritus extends the range in ages to 85 years. He is 87 years old.

Taking the staff members according to their rank, assistant professors show the widest range in years of happiness on earth. The youngest assistant professor is a woman of 23 and the eldest is a man of 78. His nearest competitor is 69 years old. Fourteen are more than 55, but 176 assistant professors cannot claim the dignity of 55 years.

Full-fledged professors range from 31 years to 72 years of age. The most usual age is 52, claimed by 11 staff members. Three women have attained the rank of professor. One hundred professors are 50 or less years of age and 110 are more than that age.

Instructors form the largest group on the teaching staff. They number 374. There are also 210 professors, 103 associate professors, 190 assistant professors, 41 lecturers, 17 professors emeritus, and eight associates. With 91 women instructors, this group also has the largest proportion of women teachers.

The oldest instructor is 64 years. Only 50 of the 374 instructors are above 40 years of age. Exactly 142 are less than 30 years of age.

The entire teaching staff includes 926 persons, 150 women and 776 men. The largest number of women of any one age is 10, and these are 34 years old. Thirty-four men are 32 years old and a like number are 34 years old. Two women are 72 years, one of whom is a professor emeritus.

Athletic Board Postpones Election of New Officers

Athletic board postponed the election of officers until next week, Homer Davidson '31, board member, said Wednesday night. A representative for the crew and the cross-country team and a cheerleader to succeed John Dixon '30 will also be chosen at the same time. A new position on the board representing athletic managers has been discussed by the athletic council but no definite plans have been made.

model came to the rescue, and Wisconsin will see a new process of regenerated air installed as a result of this research. Huge ducts to convey the fresh air are being installed now.

At the rear of the new structure, added tiers to the stadium have been erected, sloping down from the field house roof. With the additions, extra space under the bleachers will be available for handball courts, Little hopes.

Little's Anger Aroused

The roof of the new field house has been the center of considerable fire, because of its non-fireproof construction. The barrage reached its climax, according to Little, when the board of regents accepted the present combination in preference to a cheaper type.

However, the criticisms reached Little's ears and aroused his temper. "If those people who are inclined to 'knock' the contractors would personally investigate before commenting, their opinions would be entirely different."

He expressed his appreciation to The Daily Cardinal for investigating the existent conditions before committing itself.

Iowa Professor Explains

Hydraulic Dam Structures

Hydraulic structures in the upper Mississippi river, the straightening of the channel, preventing erosion at dams, and checking the flow around bridge piers and through pile trestles were explained by Prof. Floyd A. The head of the world's largest hydraulics laboratory at the University of Iowa, Prof. Nagler offered slides and motion pictures to illustrate his talk.

Dance Dramatists Give Fine Debut

the wistful reverie and gay release of a parlor maid, and a clever rendition through dance of A. A. Milne's "The King's Breakfast" were highly entertaining in a group of comedy skits. Dancers in "The Wedding Day at Trolldhaugen" quickly spread their merry and frivolous manner to one another.

A symbolic dance, Allegro Barbaro, and a problem in poly-rhythmic dancing, worked out with different rhythmic patterns governed by the beat of a tom-tom, were very pleasingly offered.

Spirituals Show Beauty

The light action of "Running Round," "Lyric," "I Love Life," and "Entrance of the Little Fauns," was delightfully graceful. Beautiful coordination was achieved in a dual presentation, "A Study."

Negro spirituals exhorting the diety to take way the darkness were vividly characterized in a group dance. The pensive tone of the "Cradle Song" was effectively shown, and beauty of color glorified the beauty of action in "Elements in Tumult."

The tone of the program was set by its two opening numbers, "Orchestral," and "Troika."

Perlman, Komaiko Star

University Keeps Oil Land Bequest; Rejects Sale Offer

The university has definitely been established in the oil business with refusal of the $20,000 offer for an oil lease interest in an Oklahoma oil field which has been bequeathed to Wisconsin.

William H. Kipp, former resident of Reedsburg, who died six months ago, left the lease to the university, which assures the university one-third of the output of three wells located on a 40 acre tract in Grade county, Okla.

If operated until exhausted, Prof. W. H. Twenhofel of the geology department, estimated that the wells would yield about $15,000, but deep drilling may produce more and better oil.

The estate is to be kept intact until the income reaches $2,000, after which the first scholarship may be issued, which will be for $1,000 each. When the income reaches $4,000 another scholarship will be added. These scholarships are to be awarded to the most brilliant pupil in each county, in alphabetical order.

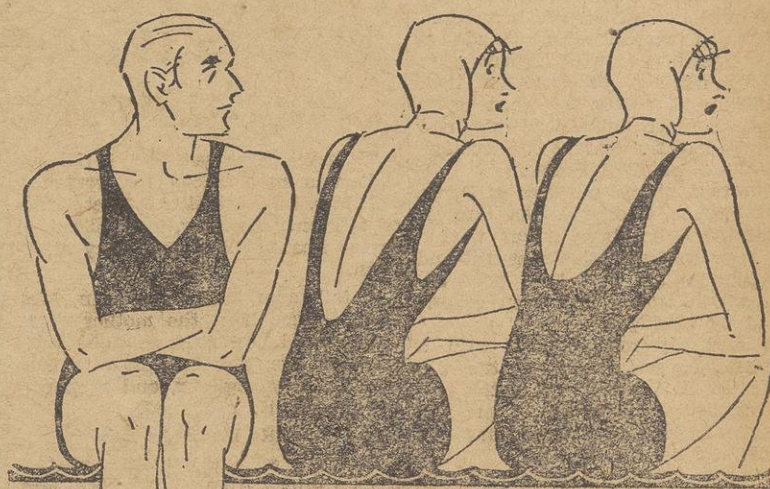

Forest Products Lab Bill Awaits House Approval

The house of representatives and the senate have approved the conferees' report on the department of agriculture appropriation bill which reduced the immediate appropriation for the new Forest Products laboratory here to $100,000 and authorized the secretary of agriculture to enter into contracts for the remaining $800,000.

The appropriation bill will now go to President Hoover, either for his signature or veto.

The department of agriculture has been authorized to go forward with the $900,000 forest products laboratory station after July 1, even though only $100,000 has been apportioned so far. Sen. McNary, chairman of the conference committee pointed out that the house conferees did not agree on appropriating the full amount at this time in the interest of keeping the bill's total outlay at a minimum.

According to Sen. Brookhart, he looks upon the United States as one big farm as far as congress is concerned.

Special yarns and knitting processes give Spalding suits four inches extra stretch and lasting liveliness that prevent binding, wrinkling and gaping. Sport Scribes Rate Cards to Place Third in Conference Meet

By GEORGE KRONCKE

With the comforting thought that every one of the 23 men who made the trip to Columbus placed in the quadrangular meet last week, Coach Tom Jones has decided to augment this squad for the conference meet Saturday by adding three or four members to the same group which performed the previous Saturday.

Lee, who fell on the last hurdle while leading the pack in the Minnesota meet, is certain to make the trip. The other men who have been tentatively selected include Folsom in the two mile, Thatcher in the mile, and Brandt in the hurdles.

Five Wisconsin quarter milers will make the trip: Henke, Exum, Gafke, Davidson, and Levy. Each will be entered in the 440-yard dash, and four of them will make up the mile relay team. The Badgers will also have a number of two-milers entered with Follows, Bertrand, Wohlgemuth, Steenis, and possibly Folsom.

Champions in Sprints

The 100- and 200-yard dashes bring together two of the fastest sprinters in the world in George Simpson of Ohio, and Eddie Tolan of Michigan, with Simpson a slight favorite in both events. Root and East of Chicago, Campbell of Michigan, Uleman and Cave of Illinois, Hass of Minnesota, and Gordon of Indiana round out the rest of the field. Benson and Diehl will run for the Badgers.

The quarter-mile finds Rut Walter of Northwestern above the rest of the competitors, with Henke of Wisconsin another favorite because of his indoor title. Michigan has the Seymour twins and Russell, with a few points almost certain. Hampden of Illinois, McAuliffe of Northwestern, Pierre of Indiana, and Strother of Ohio are all capable of fast time.

Three Stars in Quarter

The presence of three star quarter milers makes the Wolverine team a favorite in the mile relay. Illinois, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Iowa are also represented by fast quartets.

In the half mile Dale Letts of Chicago and Vernon Goldsworthy are favored although both are handicapped by leg injuries. However should Martin of Purdue elect to run the event, his victory would be practically assured. Hayes and Heinz of Ohio, Moulton of Iowa, and Weisiger of Minnesota are also included in the pre-race selections.

Martin Favored in Mile

The mile run should go to Martin with Makeever of Illinois rated second with 4:23.5 to his credit. Hanover of Ohio is less than two seconds behind.

8 Men Advance To Second Round In Barnyard Golf

By THE HIRED HAND

Due to the new ruling those Silver Shoes tournament entries who failed to report the results of their matches will be given several days' grace. The reports of both the first and second round matches must be handed in to the Cardinal no later than May 24, at 6 p. m.

In Wednesday's contests eight men advanced to the second round. Harold Popp defeated Edward Brown, 21-17, 8-21, 21-18. Theodore Stephenson beat Elwyn Darbo, 21-10, 21-10. C. K. Bruni was victorious over Zenno Gerdner, 21-7, 21-1. Sidney Goldberg lost to Charles Wason, 21-3, 18-21, 21-8.

L. Dingee was defeated by Robert Lamphere, 21-2, 21-6. R. Dassow won the final match of the day from Sid Rice, 21-9, 21-5. Harry Bishop won by forfeit from Petrie as did Glenn Egger from James Castle. If the outstanding first round scores are not turned in, Egger and Castle will be carried through to the third bracket.

Second round matches follow:

Theodore Stephenson versus Harold Morissey.
Harold Popp versus C. K. Bruni.
Bob Born versus Charles Wason.
Robert Lamphere versus R. Dassow.

D. Hackner versus Richard Krieg.
The above men should get in touch with each other immediately, and play their matches as soon as possible.

21 Frosh Sign For Golf Meet; More Expected

Twenty-one frosh golfers, including a galaxy of former prep school tee acers have signified their intentions of playing in the second annual freshman golf tournament, and at least that many additional entries are expected before the deadline this afternoon at 5 p. m.

The tourney will consist of 36 holes of medal play and the low three will receive numerals. If the low scores turned in by the yearlings in intramural competition is any criterion it will take a total of 160 or better to crash into the select group at the end of the 36th hole at Monona Saturday.

There is a possibility that Golf Coach Levis, who is conducting the tourney, will decide to permit the six leading scorers to represent the university in competition with the leading high schools of the state.

Freshman Tennis Tourney Finals Completed Today

The finals in the frosh tennis tournament will be played today on the intramural courts at 5:30 p. m. bringing to a close a series of matches that lasted two weeks.

The finalists are Cohen and Weed, both of whom displayed excellent form in winning their semi-final contests. The former beat Garman, 7-5, 8-6, while the latter downed Uffell, 6-1, 8-6. Cohen was a favorite from the very beginning of the tournament while Weed is one of the surprises who came through in fine style.

GAMES FRIDAY

Michigan at Wisconsin.

Illinois at Ohio State.

By JOHN E. HOFFMAN JR.

Following their return from Minneapolis where they defeated the Gophers 13-9 in an old fashioned slugfest the pennant-bound Badger nine were driven through a hard workout by Coach Lowman in preparation for the forthcoming series with Michigan.

Although the Wolverines have exhibited precious little in the way of baseball ability this season, the Wisconsin squad is fully cognizant that the boys from the Wolverine state, always a tough proposition for Wisconsin, will be doubly tough during these final two games series, since a pair of Michigan victories would go a long way toward redeeming the Wolverines in the eyes of their supporters.

Lowman's charges are not particularly opposed to the Wolves redeeming themselves except that a pair of defeats would jeopardize Wisconsin's claim to the title and that would be very disconcerting to both coach and players.

Therefore at a special meeting Wednesday the Cards voted unanimously to win Saturday's tilt, thus clinching the title, and then, in view of the expense that an Ann Arbor (Continued on Page 7)

Selmar Swenson Elected Captain Of Card Matmen

Selmar Swenson was elected captain of the varsity wrestling team at the annual banquet held Wednesday night at Pleasant point. Swenson will return next year to head a nucleus of three letter men. The other two lettermen are Hammer and Hales.

The banquet was held at the lake cottage of H. R. Briggs, who was a wrestler at Wisconsin way back when, and who has for the past several years provided the scene for the annual event.

Joe Steinauer was speaker of the evening.

Murphy Discusses Navy Crew's 'Keepsie Chances

This is the sixth of a series of articles being written exclusively for The Daily Cardinal by Crew Coach Mike Murphy on Poughkeepsie possibilities. Today he discusses the Navy crew.

By MIKE MURPHY
Wisconsin Crew Coach
NAVY

"Old Dick" Glendon, the Navy crew mentor, is perhaps the best known as well as best versed rowing coach in the country, and to him has come the annual task of rounding eight men into shape to represent the United States Naval academy in the Poughkeepsie rowing classic.

For 25 years Glendon has set himself the task of turning out crews and this year he has an eight that should prove strong competition in the eastern regatta.

Sixtieth Anniversary

This year the Annapolis crew is out to celebrate its 60th anniversary of rowing. To do this they have been aided by their own athletic department in the form of a new $250,000 boathouse, in which a live water pool for winter machine work is included.

In races this year, the Midshipmen have both suffered and triumphed.

8 Women's Track Teams Compete For Title Honors

Tri Delta, Delta Zeta, Phi Mu, Pi Beta Phi, the All-Americans, Alpha Epsilon Phi, Beta Phi Alpha, and Chadbourne are the eight women's track teams that will compete for honors in the final intramural track meet on Field day, Saturday, May 24.

They will assemble at the Memorial arch at 2 p. m. It is requested that all the women wear the regulation blue gym suits.

Last year, Tri Delta placed first in the finals with Phi Mu second, and Chadbourne third. All these squads have shown strength in the preliminaries this season and the race on Field day will probably be close.

Coach Sundt Manages State High School Meet Here Saturday

Several records will be at stake when 107 Wisconsin High schools gather at Randall stadium Saturday, May 24, to compete in the 36th annual state high school track meet. Coach Guy Sundt will manage the meet.

Notwithstanding the fact that competitors are required to attain certain standards of performance before being eligible to enter the meet, this year's Wisconsin interscholastic meet has more high schools entered than ever before.

The high schools will be divided into three sections according to attendance at the school. Twenty-one schools in class A will send 230 athletes, 50 class B schools will send 260 track men, and 36 class C schools have entered 176 athletes making a total of 107 schools to be represented by 639 tracksters.

The preliminary track events will be held Saturday morning, and the semi-final and finals are to be run off in the afternoon. According to reports from Sundt, a new system of scoring will be introduced whereby points are to be awarded to each section of certain track events with large entries instead of compiling the winners according to time, as has been done in the past.

The Milwaukee high schools have two men, Kincaide in the shot put and Priegel in the 120-yard high hurdles, who have broken state records in the past and who have a very good chance to repeat their performances in the meet here Saturday.

The 100 yard dash record appears to be safe at 10 seconds flat this year since no man has been clocked at better time, and only one man, Garber a class C track man has equalled it. There is a chance that Pacetti, of Kenosha may establish a new discus record if he is pressed to any extent.

The state records follow:
100-yard dash—10 seconds, Roddick, Racine, 1913.

Eastern Eight Drills Today On Mendota

Penn Oarsmen Have Advantage in Age, Weight, Height

Coach "Rusty" Callow's strong Penn crew will set foot in Madison this afternoon and will immediately proceed to take a heavy workout on Lake Mendota in preparation for their race with Coach Mike Murphy's varsity eight Saturday.

Although the eastern eight have been badly beaten in most of their races this season, they have been improving at a fast rate and under the able tutelage of Coach Callow, the shell that lines up at the starting posts Saturday should present the Badgers with one of the stiffest fights of their career.

Build New Bleachers

Already temporary bleachers to seat 1,000 watchers have been installed at the finish mark.

Down in the Cardinal crew headquarters, Coach Mike Murphy has been spending considerable time with his main varsity eight in polishing what remaining roughness that remains in the work of his first boat.

Drill Wednesday

Wednesday night, although handicapped by rough Mendota waters, the jayvee and varsity shells took to the waters for a stiff time trial. The rough waters hindered the Badger time but the main shell as a whole showed smoothness and power.

Coach Frank Orth's freshmen also went through a heavy drill in their preparation for the meet Saturday with Culver. Reports from the cadet school promise the yearlings a stiff competitor and should provide the expected large crowd of Mothers' day fans with a thrilling bit of racing as a preliminary to the Penn-Wisconsin scramble.

The eastern crew will have a considerable weight and height advantage over the Badgers as they average 176½ pounds and stretch up to a 6 foot 1½ average. All are seniors except the bow and number 2 men.

Card Archers Conquer Iowa

Defeat Hawkeyes, 1199-882, in Telegraphic Contest

Wisconsin's varsity archers triumphed over Iowa in their second telegraphic meet of the season, shooting a 1199 total to their opponents' 882, according to Elsa Schneider '31, student manager.

Edith Barton '30 was the highest individual scorer, 71 hits in the Columbia round bringing her a total of 431. The other Wisconsin shooters and their scores were Janet Bond '32, 59 hits and 291 points; Helen Schneider '31, 56 hits and 248 points; Elsa Schneider '31, 53 hits and 229 points. The annual inter-class archery contest will be held on Field day, Saturday, May 24, at 2:30 p. m.

Besides the class competition, in which the Juniors are slight favorites, several novelty events have been arranged for Field day.

The members of the class teams who will perform Saturday are: Class of '30: E. Barton, G. Drasin, H. McLellan, M. I. Isabelle Caldwell. Class of '31: H. Schneider, D. Lambeck, A. Powers, E. Schneider. Class of '32: J. Bond, M. Backus, D. Gelbach, Eleanor Lutz, Joyce King. Class of '33: K. Pevear, S. Hoopes, A. Greenberg, W. Slusser, E. Weiler.

Engineering Reform Into Nothingness

WITH A ONE-TRACK group of seniors dominating the meeting of the senior class Tuesday, there was no alternative but to expect the report of the alumni investigating committee to be railroaded. Whether the report was worth considering or not (although it was) is beside the point: the fact remains that a majority of the students came to the meeting determined to vote for joining the alumni association regardless of the committee's report.

Two self-professed employees of the alumni office, a senior who has been listed as an LS 4 in the student directory for three consecutive years, and a large group of engineers, significant in view of the charges against Prof. L. F. Van Hagan, director of the alumni association, had things pretty much their own way at the meeting. Their sentiment was obvious. When Harry Thoma, speaking for the alumni, upbraided the policies of The Daily Cardinal, they applauded vociferously.

The report asked that the committee, which had spent two months of effort to prepare it, be given an opportunity to lay it before the alumni board of directors with a view toward discussing a more visionary program. It called for the injection of that same idealism which Loyal F. Durand '91, vice-president of the alumni association, has found so lacking in the university.

Prof. Van Hagan as a member of the alumni board refuses to make a statement on his action in advising his seniors that they should vote to join the alumni association. Another member of the board finds a lack of idealism. The May issue of the Alumni magazine carries an editorial from which the following is quoted:

"At its June meeting the Board of Directors will begin consideration of the Association's program for next year. In formulating this program, the Board asks the cooperation of the entire membership. Suggestions and criticisms are invited. If you have in mind some project which you believe the Association should undertake, some service which you think the Association should render, some criticisms of the present policy or of the Magazine, give the Board the benefit of these suggestions and criticisms. They are earnestly desired. An active interest in the policies of your Association is as important as financial support. Take the time to send in your suggestions."

Perhaps the discrepancies between Prof. Van Hagan's methods, Mr. Durand's views, and the magazine's editorial do not hold as much water as they would seem to when set side by side in print. Nevertheless, there is something wrong. The editorial—written by Herman Egstad, general secretary—asks for the very criticism which the investigating committee was desirous of offering. Yet there was definite care taken that the report be presented to the board of directors for consideration only after the class had joined the association.

Even if the committee is permitted to appear before the board of directors with its report, it will appear shorn of all power. As a senior suggested at the meeting, "money talks." And without the power of holding back the class membership dues, the investigators would be utterly unable to make any definite reform demands at a meeting with the board. Steamroller methods have snuffed the life of a reform move; it may well be taken up by the class of 1931.

Advertising Ad Obnoxious

AS IF THE customary distractions of sun-lit May days were not enough to interfere with the poor student's belated attempts to get caught up on term papers, some diabolic advertising racketeers have introduced a new menace to campus study in the form of a fiendish loud speaker mounted on a truck. Flying about the streets adjacent to the lower campus, and bombarding the library from three sides, this violator of the public peace spent most of Wednesday squawking about movies, rent-a-car agencies, and other important State street institutions of culture.

On the authority of some of the economic experts in these regions, advertising is first of all supposed to build good-will, a receptive attitude, and an urge to reach for the check-book. From what we have heard and overheard in regard to this modern version of the sandwich man, the rasping voice of the loud speaker does none of these things. Our own stand is that we will never attend the movie which was advertised in this way, not even on a free ticket.

There seems to be a school of advertising thought that insists upon attention of the public, no matter how obnoxious the means of attaining it. The loud-speaker racketeers seem to be the local representatives of this idea.

Readers' Say-So

Mores and the Movies

"Scenes of passion shall not be shown.  The sanctity of marriage and the home shall be upheld.  Obscenity in word, gesture, reference, song, joke, or by suggestion, is forbidden. Indecent and undue exposure of the body is banned.  No film or episode may ridicule any religious faith, and ministers of religion shall not be used as comic characters or as villains.  Telegrams of endorsement received from Pres. Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin and Gov. Dan Moody of Texas—"

SHADES OF MAIN STREET, Babbit and the Rotary Club! I rub my eyes and read again! The above excerpts are taken from an announcement made public by Will H. Hays, formerly of the "Harding gang" cabinet, previously a flower in the political hot-beds of Indiana, the best manured in the middle west, and now czar of the movies. They concern a new movie censorship, or "moral code" as the doughty Will chooses to call it.

Why should the minister, in particular, not be ridiculed on the silver sheet? Why not proscribe ridicule of college professors, deputy-sheriffs, ex-presidents, or whatnot? (In my humble opinion, any of these are of more social worth than the parsons!) No matter how clownish, idiotic, emotionally intoxicated, selfish, reactionary, bigoted, or murderously inclined a minister may be, the screen is not to exhibit his prototype as an object lesson.

The thousand and one Elmer Ganttrys who conduct clandestine love affairs with young women of their choir while they vociferously uphold the traditional puritanic sex code—the fundamentalist buffoon who rails at evolution, birth control, and heliocentricism, etc., etc., are none to be used as photoplay material!

No! Nor as the creeds they represent! No matter how silly or archaic they may be, they are sacred stuff! Why not protect astrology, phrenology, palmistry, voodooism, witchcraft, and other "hexologies"? They need it in about the same measure as the superstitious, or non-humanistic and irrational, religions do. Truth, of course, requires no propaganda to bolster its existence. Even though men may neglect it for ages, it is quite able to stand alone.

And this business of indecent exposure! The human body is filthy and unspeakably defiling! The flesh must be mortified, punished, and hidden, says the Christian ascetic, for it is wicked, wanton, and lewd; and besides, suffering, self-denial-for-its-own-sake, and repression are good for us!

And we must preserve the sanctity of marriage and the home! Yes! Oh! Yes! Even though the home, or the matrimonial bond, is a veritable "hell on earth," it is "sanctified"; it must be treasured and guarded because it is traditional, and because the church and the old guard say it is good! We must not dare to think otherwise! Me must not imagine that these institutions could be improved, or better ones substituted for them! The only justifiable relationship of the sexes is monogamy! The only atmosphere in which children may be reared properly is the monogamous home! No larger, better, and more social institutions could possibly replace the home and family, in spite of the drawbacks and limitations of the latter, and the persistent warnings of the sociologists of the remarkable and inevitable weakening of family life in many ways and for many reasons!

And this whole business of sex is, of course, unspeakably dirty! Its only purpose is reproduction, and it is a rather poor scheme for this purpose if we are to believe the priests and puritans. Too bad their hypothetical Creator designed such a defiling mess! Sex has, of course, no secondary social values making for human culture and happiness, as have the fighting and hunting instincts, which are the bases of all sports and games!

Then, too, apparently sanctified though marriage may be, it is not fit material for the screen, for "scenes of passion are barred"—or are we to assume that there should be no passion in matrimony? Probably the latter, after a few years of continual, enforced, monotonous, and closely intimate association with one and only one personality! If the "holy state" is so sanctified, why do we not see more of it in photoplays? Why is the play always concerned only with the courtship, or prologue, to marriage, stopping as the couple march to the altar with the unjustifiable hint that they "live happily ever after"? Why? Because there is no "story value" in marriage. With the pronouncing of the conforming and binding vows, liberty, romance, passion, and adventure fade into drab reality, if the conventions are actually obeyed. The few photoplays centering about post-marriage characters in a serious vehicle, deal with "triangle" situations. Presumably these, too, are now to be barred. Page Anthony Comstock!

The only sensible criterion for the continued existence of any human institution which society has the power to change, is whether or not it offers the best available scheme for the happiness and continued welfare of all concerned, including future generations, as nearly as can be predicted in the light of contemporary knowledge. Therefore social codes, or mores, cannot be set up dogmatically as absolutes and be made to endure indefinitely. They are, and will continue to be, quite relative, varying from time to time, place to place, and individual to individual. The briefest scrutiny of the world's social history will indicate this fact.

The politicians dwell at great length upon the principle of democracy, the right of all people to help make the laws by which they are governed. If this is a great principle, why not apply it to the on-coming generation? Why not permit them a little social democracy—let them devise their own moral codes—instead of resisting to the last ditch the slightest change in the traditional conventions, in the name of church, time-hallowed sanctity, experience of the ages, or whatnot? They will make mistakes, of course; they do anyhow! Also they should heed and profit by past experiences of humanity, but conditions change with time; new discoveries are made, and unless we experiment a little we shall be unable to adapt ourselves to them—we shall have no social progress, something we need above all else. Our material sciences have raced far ahead of the social sciences, and, unless the latter catch up soon, civilization may decline sharply, or destroy itself. We must have an intelligent, rational, adaptable morality, not blindly obeyed, autocratically dictated codes born of theology, superstition or sheer ignorance.

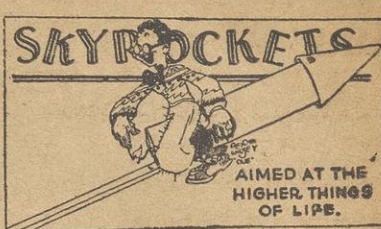

The movies are admittedly a poor art with their "happy endings," hackneyed plots, upholding of traditional taboos, etc., but if this new code goes into effect, what an emasculated, puritanic, propaganda-filled dose of Pollyanna pap they will be, let our prexy, glad-hand Glenn, endorse them though he may.—TANTALUS.

Oafs to Throw the Brick

THE FIVE STUDENTS at the University of Wisconsin who took the law into their own hands and led a charge of 50 classmates on a demonstration of the unemployed in Madison have performed a real service. But not in the direction they intended. "Smashing the red hand of Russia" and "protecting the name of the university" were the aims they put forward in their own defense. What they actually succeeded in doing was to reveal their own narrow, ignorant prejudice, and the common sense and good humor of the university as a whole. It is a poor day for the methods of the Ku Klux Klan and the anti-Jewish riots of Vienna. The sooner that could be demonstrated the better, and the "doughty five" have done it.

The way in which The Daily Cardinal dealt with the episode was most commendable. From it not a few college dailies may learn a lesson in constructive journalism. How easy it might have been for a carefully phrased editorial to have said, "It, of course, is contrary to the policy of this paper to express partisan sentiments on such points of issue." But what the Cardinal did say (in part) was, "Stupidity is always ridiculous. Displayed by mature college students it is even more so. We hereby bestow upon E. P. Millard '32, Robert Sykes '30, E. J. Mittermeyer, Med 2, Charles W. Adamson '32, and John McCarter '30, the self-sought and self-won honor of being outstanding dunces. They are our best clowns of the year. Unsolicited but not unsung they have taken upon themselves the glorious task of making the university safe for patriotism."

"In mauling the little unemployed parade of Thursday they have made their irrevocable mark on Wisconsin's scroll. The actions of these men and their subsequent statements to the press have had that one prime essential of all comedy, sad mockery of intellect. Brute force has always been the final weapon of ignorance against the right of minority groups. Whenever and wherever men have dared give utterance to unpopular beliefs always there have been oafs to throw the brick or use the strong arm."—THE INTERCOLLEGEAN.

Statistics Nullify Roedder Charges On Test School

Aiming to disprove charges by Prof. E. C. Roedder, of C. C. N. Y. and formerly of the German department here, that the students in the Experimental college were deducting time from the regular work to carry hill courses, John L. Bergstresser '25 of the bureau of guidance and records, released figures Wednesday that tend to prove the students carried an average of 2.25 credit hours on the hill each semester of the scholastic year 1928-29 and only 1.4 credits last semester.

The total number of credit hours carried on the hill by 193 experimental college students was 874, last year, giving an average of 4.5 for the year.

Exactly 155 students took 215 hours of work on the hill the first semester of the present year with an average of 1.4 credit hours.

Senior women listed from A to O will gather at North hall; those from P to Z will meet at South hall. Junior women dressed in white are requested to meet in the central corridor of Bascom hall, sophomore women at South hall and freshman women at North hall.

The ushers for the Swingout headed by Josephine Clark '31 are: Antoinette Henlein '32, Ellen Dassow '32, Eleanor Ahrens '32, Winifred Barsness '32, Winifred Rollin '33, Jean C. In case of rain, the swingout will be held in the stock pavilion at the same hour. A signal of three long blasts from the heating plant whistle at 5 p. m. on Friday will be given if the ceremonies are to take place at the pavilion.

Pond Expedition Boon to Science, Asserts Leader

Beloit, Wis.—The most thorough and scientific study of early sites of man that has ever been conducted in North America is being carried on by the Logan-African expedition, according to Alonzo W. Pond, leader. The information which the trenches yield is certain to add much to science.

Before the hot season approaches special efforts are being made to work new sites. Another camp of three tents has been established on the shores of a salt lake 25 miles from camp Logan. The base. Six students are working there on interesting shell heaps.

Life in camps is interesting and intensive. Mr. Pond writes, "We must jump from a dramatic labor dispute to an analysis of flint implements and from a lecture on the technique of excavating to the price of cabbages in tomorrow's market or the price of an air-mail letter to New York. Between 5:15 a. m. and 9 p. m. there is room for many such jumps, and if I lack for variety there is always the weather which hops gaily from 34 degrees F. in the morning to 119 degrees F. at noon, and then plunges crazily to an icy breeze at 1 p. m. No, life is not monotonous."

Union Open House to Greet Mothers During Week-end

Mothers' week-end visitors will be welcomed by an open house at the Memorial Union, Freeman Butts '31, new chairman of the house committee, announced after his committee's meeting Wednesday afternoon. From 6 p. m. Friday until 10 p. m. Sunday all rooms in the building will be open for inspection; and particular efforts will be made to assist the visiting mothers in seeing everything.

The committee decided to enforce continuous quiet hours, during the examination period, in Tripp commons, the Library, and the Great hall.

The house committee which will work under Butts next year consists of Lyman Moore '31, Lorrie Douglas '31, Louise Ashworth '31, Eleanor Stearns '31, Walker Johnson '32, Walker Hill '33; and the faculty members, John Bergstresser '25, and Prof. Friedrich Bruns.

Home Economics Exhibition Planned By Students June 1

Home economics students will demonstrate their work in the course in relation arts in the Writing room of the Memorial Union from June 1 to 15, in the first of a series of exhibits which will show the work of student organizations and university departments, Robert Kommers '32, chairman of the exposition committee, announced after its meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The presentation of the series of exhibits, each one of which will be two or three weeks long, will be execution of an idea that used to be incorporated in quadrennial all-university exhibits shown in the gymnasium under the direction of the Union board. The new plan will spread the complete exposition over a long period of time and take up each phase more completely. Zella Mae Spencer '32 is in charge of the first exhibition.

Vilas Essay Contest Winner Will Be Selected Friday

The Vilas Essay winner will be selected Friday at a meeting held for that purpose, according to Prof. F. W. Roe of the English department, who is chairman of the committee in charge.

Makeever, with Mac Thompson of Wisconsin right on his heels. Clapham of Indiana is almost certain to place while Wolf of Northwestern and Strain of Minnesota must also be listed.

The two mile must be divided between Indiana and Wisconsin. Follows holds the best time (next to Martin) at 9:35.3 while Leas of Indiana has done 9:35.4. Wohlgemuth, Bertrand, and Steenis, and Cortwright of the Badgers will have their chief opposition in Kemp, Brocksmith, and Banks of Indiana.

Sentman Favored
Sentman, Sucker hurdler, is favored in both hurdles races, but will have Rockaway of Ohio, who holds the unofficial world's record in the low hurdles, Rodgers of Illinois, Saling of Iowa, Hatfield of Indiana, and Ziese of Wisconsin, to oppose him. Ted Shaw of Wisconsin is favorite in the high jump with his leap of 6 feet 6 3-16 inches.

Purple Vaulters Good
Warne of Northwestern is rated a favorite in the pole vault. McDermont of Illinois and Canby of Iowa are others who have bettered 13 feet 6 inches. With the eliminations in this event starting at the 12-foot mark, the Badger vaulters have little chance of placing.

Sam Behr of Wisconsin, holder of the conference record, is the favorite in the shot put. Four other tossers have beaten 45 feet; Munn, of Minnesota, Poorman and Brooks of Michigan, and Roberts of Iowa.

Gordon Jumps 24 Feet
Gordon of Iowa is listed at the head of the broad jumpers, with 24 feet to his credit. His nearest competitor is Chapman of Michigan who has done 23 feet 9 inches. Wanger of Illinois, Gohl of Purdue, Tierney of Minnesota, and Diehl of Wisconsin are other good jumpers.

Campbell of Michigan has already bettered 164 feet in the hammer which mark places him as the best in his event. Art Frisch of Wisconsin, with 147 feet and Boesel of Chicago with 146 less.

rate far below Campbell. Yunevitch of Purdue, Todd of Indiana, and Youngerman of Iowa complete a mediocre list of throwers.

Brooks Rates in Discus

Brooks of the Wolverines rates best of the discus tossers with a mark of 149 feet, his teammate, Sanderson, being right on his heels. Behr and Simmons of Wisconsin stand excellent chances of placing in this event.

The javelin throw should go to Weldon of Iowa who has bettered 202 feet. Chambers of Illinois appears to rate second, although he is over 20 feet behind Weldon. Brubaker and Dougall of Michigan, Felbinger of Ohio, and Curry of Indiana complete the list. Mayer and Lemm of the Badger outfit will be entered but do not appear to have the necessary distance to place.

Badgers May Place Third

Coach Jones rates his indoor champions as fourth or better, with most of the sports writers doping them at least third. Michigan and Illinois are the most serious contenders for the title while Ohio State and Indiana should be right behind the Badgers. With Shaw and Behr the only men favored for firsts, Wisconsin points are expected to come chiefly from the minor positions, with the most points figure in the two mile, hammer, discus, and middle distances. Dead Man's Body Found by Student Near Springfield

The victim of a hit and run driver, Ferdinand Genoschewsky, 80, was found dead on route 12, near Springfield Corners.

The accident occurred Tuesday night. The deceased left his farm at approximately 8:30 p. m. At 9 p. m. John Dorsch '31 discovered the body while passing in his car. Thinking that the man might be intoxicated, he entered Springfield Corners, and told several of the bystanders of it. An immediate search was promulgated. Sheriff Harold Smedal, accompanied by his deputies, investigated Wednesday.

chief weaknesses are in the pole vault dashes, javelin, and low hurdles.

The team will leave for Evanston Friday at 8 a. m., returning Saturday night. Two milers, who do not have a qualification trial, will not leave Madison until Saturday.

MORE RUMAHS: The Stupendous Pictures Unincorporated will buy the Majestic and Orton theaters . . . there now . . . that's news! The amount of money involved will probably run into a certain number of . . . (if they aren't careful).

Seriously speaking . . . Madison will still get the best pictures despite all these rumors of mergers . . . so don't go into a burn-up. Consolidation has been going on at a rapid pace all over the country in the cinema bizz . . . and is just beginning to really hit Madison.

place

Palace theater in the windy city . . . will also present talkies next season . . . in conjunction with a shorter vaud presentation.

Reasons . . . they haven't been making enough mazzmah, and too much compitish from the talkies.

This leaves the Palace and Riverside in N'Yawk as the only 2-a-day vaud houses in these United States.

strand

The Strand will not book Paramount pictures . . . as rumored.

If the Strand got Paramount pictures . . . they would have a practical monopoly on the good pictures . . . they already have Fox, MGM, and Universal.

Radio, Tiffany, Pathe, Sono-Art, Columbia . . . and the rest do not make enough pictures to keep both the Orph and the Capitol supplied . . . and further, the quality of their output is inferior.

Farm Students Inspect Dairies

18 Members of Husbandry Course Visit Eastern Wisconsin Farms

On Tuesday 18 agricultural students, enrolled in the course in dairy cattle production and special problems in animal husbandry under the direction of Prof. L. A. Henke, made an inspection tour of several of the nationally known dairy farms in eastern Wisconsin.

Among the places visited was the Hoard's Dairyman office at Fort Atkinson where the Dairy Journal is published. Following this the students adjourned to the farm where they inspected the herd and also the Hohenheim pasture experiment conducted there by the university.

At Brookhill farm, Genesee, the men visited the herd of 350 dairy cows, also visiting the research laboratory where acidophilus milk is prepared.

In the afternoon the Wern certified farm was inspected. Following this the students had the opportunity of visiting the farm of Adam Sietz and Sons, the owners of the world famous Ayrshires. At Oconomowoc the farm of Fred Pabst, and Carnation stock farm and canning factory were examined.

Glee Club Elects '30-'31 Officers at Annual Banquet

Einar R. Daniels '31 was elected president of the Men's Glee club at their annual banquet Tuesday night. Bertel Leonardson '31, was made vice-president; Fenton Muehl '31, treasurer; Theodore Paulin '31, secretary; and Louis Berg '32, librarian.

Fifteen men were initiated into the corporation, the governing body of the club: Leonard Nelson '31, Leonard Einstein '31, Clark Radebaugh '33, Leslie Young '31, Gordon Chapman '31, A. Norman O'Neill '30, Harry G. Luer '32, Frederick von Schlichten '31, William Young '32, Louis Berg '30, Alfred Mortimer '30, Roy Tulane '30, Donald Fernholz, grad, Robert Wright '32, and Louis Friedland '30.

"Complete

Coverage"

Duncan Jennings '33 has the best outfit yet for study purposes. The other day his room was cold, so in order to avoid a trip to the infirmary for treatment for pneumonia, he donned a pair of long red flannels, a black and white sweater, a shirt, a gray sweater, a U. W. track team sweat shirt, a blue and green lumberjack, a pair of size 12 yellow shoes, and that's all.

Maj. E. W. Morphy, director of the U. W. Concert orchestra and band spilled his iced tea just as he was sitting down to lunch—and it was wiped up with the combined assistance of the waiter, the girls at the two adjacent tables, and Major Morphy.

J. Riley Staats and Warren Strain, both of the grad school, hold the championship for horse shoe pitching on the establishment back of Science hall. A match is being engineered between them and the champions of the one behind the Union, when the championship is finally settled.

Sunday afternoon at the University Hunt club horse show Jean Jardine '31 so far forgot herself as to hold the bridle of a snorting charger while said charger's owner went off in search of something or other. The horse showed some impatience, probably at the idea of being held by a girl not clad in riding clothes, but Jean stood her ground, and won the battle.

The biggest problem facing Paul Corp '33, 6 foot 5 adjunct to the freshman class, is whether to wear white kid gloves to an approaching wedding, and just how funny he will look in them.

Remember the boy who was kicked out of school, and through some mistake his dismissal was not reported to his parents? He came into his rooming house the other night, singing "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" at 3 a. m., and when the landlady banged on the ceiling with a broom handle to register her objections he took off his shoes, put them on his hands, and walked around the floor on all fours—(of course you don't make any more noise that way, but did HE know that?)

Larry Heidt, fellow, and D. W. Mac-Corquodale, the chemistry instructor with the unspellable name, are doing their best to organize a baseball team in the chemistry department. They use the front yard of the building as their diamond.

Scoop

Bob Calkins '31 and Coach "Mike" Murphy were sitting on the dock at the boathouse watching the girls' class in canoeing doing their exercises off the pier. They were discussing the chances of a women's crew that would be a crew and not a publicity stunt next year.

Josh Warner '30, the gambler from Chattanooga, has sworn off betting on the Kentucky Derby.
