WHAT DO YOU THINK?

By L. F. VAN HAGAN, '04

"MY WORD, Vangy! The old Hausmann brewery that stood on State Street, just outside of the half-mile limit, has been torn down, and a new gasoline filling station is being erected on the site. What do you know about that? Once a filling station, always a filling station."

G. Sanford Robinson, Wisconsin man, class of umpty-or, looked up from his individual copy of the ALUMNI MAGAZINE and shook his head solemnly at his wife, the beautiful Evangeline Kincardine Robinson, also Wisconsin, class of umpty-ive, who sat on the davenport in their luxurious living room with her feet curled up comfortably and reading her individual copy of the ALUMNI MAGAZINE, in the soft glow of the lamp-light.

"Oh, catsup, Sanford! What do I care about your old low-life hangouts. I think those places were terrible, and I don't see why the MAGAZINE mentions them at all. But say, listen to this: That little Louise McBryan, who married Charlie Gonkle of the Epsom Zaltas, has new twin boys; and her first isn't a year old yet. My goodness!" The importance of the news was reflected in the eager gleam in her eyes as she scanned the month's quota of personal gossip.

If G. Sanford heard his wife's remarks he gave no indication of it. He was already well through the story of current athletic events, and, subconsciously, he was explaining to himself how important it was that he should look after his business interests in Madison about the time of the big game of the season. His conscience, having lived with G. Sanford a long time, was a docile one whenever it came into conflict with sports.

G. Sanford and his wife agreed upon only one thing about the ALUMNI MAGAZINE, namely, that it wasn't just what it should be. Curiously enough, they did not agree upon what it should be. Vangy thought that in addition to the personal items, there might be a little choice fiction. Also, there should be more space given to the department of cosmetics in which she majored. G. Sanford's opinion was that the MAGAZINE would be improved with a dash of political and social discussion. A good, hot article by Prof. Boss, taking the hide off of the incoming legislature, would, he felt sure, make a much snappier sheet of it. If it were followed by a series of articles denouncing radicalism, boot-legging, and the K. K. K., his happiness would be complete.

"But, Sanford," Vangy had once expostulated, "people don't want to read about those things; and, besides, some of our alumni might be offended by those articles you want and it would create hard feelings in the Association."

"Serve 'em right if they're offended," replied her husband, in a tone that indicated doubt about his bright ideas but an unwillingness to admit it.

"Just the same," persisted the lady, "you told me that when the directors of your company meet you don't let matters come up that will cause offense. You said that you never discuss religions because Mr. Ford is a Jew, Mr. Bjones is an atheist, Mr. Murphy is a Presbyterian, and Mr. Larson is a Catholic, and you didn't want to set them quarreling. You said you all got along better if you confined discussion to matters in which your interests were identical."

"The Alumni Association of Wisconsin is made up of people of an infinite variety of ideas about religion, politics, and sociology. The common ground upon which they all stand is the University and its well being."

And now, having lured you this far, from all other human society, dear reader, and having you in this lonely spot where only you and I will know what is going to happen to you, I throw off my disguise, poke my trusty gat in your mid-riff, and hiss, "Fork over them ideas." If at any time you have said, "The ALUMNI MAGAZINE isn't what it should be," then your duty shines before you bright and clear: You must sit down and write to the secretary what is on your heart and mind in this matter.

George Haight, our new alumni president, says it is a punk magazine. George glared around on the Alumni Board, in that commanding way of his, and said, "It's a punk magazine! I don't like the cover; I don't like the illustrations; and I don't care a whoop for what's inside. (Glare) We are going to change that. (Another glare) We are going to make it a magazine that will be the envy and despair of every other alumni association—that will make the faculty forsake the Literary Digest, the student forsake the S. E. P., and the man on the street forsake the sporting extra. Why, I want to see this magazine so attractive that traveling men will demand it of the news butcher instead of Jim Jam Jems."

We all listened enraptured; he makes such noble gestures. Then I had a bright idea. I don't know how I happened to think of it; it just came to me. I said, "Let's have a committee."

I hadn't more than said it when George turned to me and said (with another glare), "You're the committee!"

So that's that. And this little story is the first step toward overhauling the MAGAZINE. You are hereby invited to speak your piece. If you have any ideas, now is the time to make them effective. The MAGAZINE must measure up to the Association, and the Association is on its way to become a big, powerful influence in University affairs. If the MAGAZINE isn't what the alumni want, let's find out what they want.

Of course, if you like the MAGAZINE and have no changes to suggest, don't write at all. That is the accepted convention under such circumstances. This committee will assume that all who do not contribute ideas are satisfied with the MAGAZINE as it now stands.

THE EDUCATION OF GIFTED CHILDREN

By DR. V. A. C. HENMON

THE TIME is not very remote when the only children whose education continued beyond a mere minimum were those of superior intellectual qualities. The increased sense of social responsibility for the education of all children according to their needs and abilities, the extension of compulsory school age to fourteen and now to eighteen years, have, of necessity, forced upon us the special classes for the mentally deficient. Practical need and sympathy for the afflicted have, therefore, focussed attention upon the backward and feeble-minded with the result that the superior children are overlooked and neglected. For every 1,000 backward or deficient children there are not a hundred of superior abilities receiving the special training they need.

The neglect, however, is partly a matter of our educational philosophy. Belief in the potency of education, on the one hand, and in what Vernon Kellogg calls "that curiously persistent fiction, the equality of man" in intellectual gifts, on the other hand, have for generations dominated educational theory. If the American people as a whole have any particular thing in common it is a belief in the omnipotence of education. If the amount of education prescribed is not effective in realizing the ends we demand to be attained then the thing to do is to add more education. American education, especially, has been influenced by this educational doctrine, the sources of which are not difficult to trace. Hobbes in the Leviathan well states the theory: "Nature hath made men so equal, in faculties of body and mind; as that though there been found one man sometimes manifestly stronger in body, or of quicker mind than another; yet when all is reckoned together the difference between man, and man is, not so considerable, as that one man can thereupon claim himself any benefit, to which another may not pretend, as well as he.—And as to the faculties of the mind—I find yet a greater equality amongst men than that of strength. For Prudence is but Experience; which equal time, equally bestows on all men, in those things they equally apply themselves unto. That which may perhaps make such equality incredible, is but a vain concept of one's own wisdom, which almost all men think they have in a greater degree, than the Vulgar; that is than all men but themselves, and a few others, whom by Fame, or for concurring with themselves, they approve. For such is the nature of men, that howsoever they may acknowledge others to be more witty, or more eloquent, or more learned; yet they will hardly believe there be many so wise as themselves; For they see their own wit at hand, and other men's at a distance. But this proveth rather that men are in that point equal, than unequal. For there is not ordinarily a greater sign of the equal distribution of any thing, than that every man is contented with his share.

"From this equality of ability, ariseth equality of hope in the attaining of our ends."

John Locke conceived of mind as a blank tablet on which experience writes. He says, "Of all the men we meet with, nine parts of ten are what they are, good or evil, useful or not, by their education. It is that which makes the great difference in mankind." Leibniz about the same time taught that "Die Erziehung iberwindet alles" and contended that Europe could be transformed in a generation by education. Helvetius, Jacotot, and the French Encyclopedists as practical educators maintained the Leibnizian creed "L'education peut tout," that all intelligences are equal and differences between them are due entirely to training. This notion so dominant in the French Revolution fitted so well the political ideals of the New American Republic that it is not to be wondered at that it became the foundation of American educational theory.

Two sets of facts—the data on mental heredity and the distribution and constancy of intelligence quotients—are forcing a revision of our theories of education and reviving the ancient doctrine of selection. Aristotle as the foundation of his Politics found men to differ by nature, some being born to command, others to serve. In the Republic Plato urges again and again the importance of determining natural gifts and assigning individuals to the work for which they are best fitted. Plato retells an old Phoenician myth in these words:

"No doubt all of you who dwell in the state are brothers, we shall say to them, keeping up the fiction; but the god, when he was forming you, mingled gold in the composition of those among you who had the power to govern others, and therefore they have the greatest honor; and silver in the composition of those who are fit to be auxiliaries; and iron and brass in the composition of husbandmen and other workmen. As you are all originally of the same family, you will generally have children who will be like yourselves, but sometimes in the successive generations gold will change to silver and silver to gold, and there will be similar transformation in the case of other metals. Hence the god first and chiefly charged the rulers that they be of nothing such excellent guardians and take such earnest heed of nothing, as of the children that are born, to see what proportions of these metals is blended in their souls; and if a child of their own class has in his nature an alloy of brass or iron, they shall not unduly pity him, but, assigning him to the occupation which is adapted to his powers, they shall require him to take his place among the craftsmen or among the husbandmen; and again if among the latter class any shall be born with an admixture of gold or silver, having estimated their worth, they shall advance some of them to the rank of guardians, and others to the position of auxiliaries; since there is an oracle that the state shall be destroyed when its guardians are iron and brass. Do you know any means by which the people may be made to believe in this fiction?"

"I see no possibility," the (Glaucou) replied, "of convincing the present generation; nevertheless their children, their children's children, and all later generations might be led to believe it."

It has taken longer than Glaucou foresaw for the importance of systematic selection of individuals and of the measurement of capacities to be recognized and believed in, but in one country today we are witnessing a striking confirmation of the oracle "that the State shall be destroyed when its guardians are iron and brass." In Russia, as Kellogg has pointed out, we have a "brilliant illustration of the results of a social organization based on a nearly complete disregard of natural differences in men and minds." In other European countries since 1918, notably in France and Germany, educational rehabilitation has taken the form of reorganizing elementary schools with definite plans to select and educate children with superior intellectual endowments. Many cities are following the lead of Hamburg in establishing special schools for gifted children. (To be continued.)

OTHER UNIVERSITIES

In discussing before the student body the urgent need of new buildings at the (Chicago) University, President Burton made special mention of new residence halls for students: "We need new buildings for the residence of students. Far too many of you live in lodgings round about the University where you inevitably miss many of the real benefits of university life. We hope before long to begin to meet this real need by buildings across the Midway. I hope we shall not call them dormitories because we want them to be more than places to sleep. We hope they will be so built and organized and conducted as to be powerful factors in the process of education. Perhaps we shall incorporate into them some of the best features of the colleges of Oxford and Cambridge. We may even call them colleges, for it is our ambition to develop at the University of Chicago a better type of undergraduate life and education than is now provided here or anywhere in America."—The University of Chicago Magazine, December, 1924.

After having visited and inspected practically every university union and club in the country, Ellis W. Barker, executive chairman of the University of Utah Alumni Association and manager of the Utah Union building drive, when he was here recently, declared that the Michigan Union was unquestionably the best in the country. "The Michigan Union," he declared, "is without doubt the largest, the most beautiful, and the best equipped building of its kind in the country. None of the other unions can ever be compared with it. It is in a class of its own."—The Michigan Alumnus, 12-18-24.

With increased appropriations for the purchase of new books, the Library on the campus is now fifth among the Big Ten universities, with Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota in the lead. During the next 10 years, Ohio must spend a total of $65,400 to maintain her standing with the Big Five of the Middle West.—The Ohio State University Monthly, October, 1924.

NEWS AND COMMENT

THE contributions of the College of Engineering of this University to industry have been of great benefit to the people of the state and of much practical value to many engaged in manufacturing. A few instances of this work that have been compiled by Dean F. E. Turneure give an idea of the sort and variety of problems the Engineering School is best able to study.

University Relations with Industry

the University of Illinois, made up a large part of the information upon which the correct design of this form of construction came to be understood. Its representative was a

DEAN F. E. TURNEAURE

“In the field of interest especially to the civil engineer, it was an early pioneer in the study of principles relating to the design and strength of reinforced concrete, and its work, with that of the University of Illinois, made up a large part of the information upon which the correct design of this form of construction came to be understood. Its representative was a member of the first Joint Committee to formulate rules and specifications. Many of the engineers and contractors in Milwaukee learned the fundamentals of the subject in these laboratories. Its several investigations on the principles and efficiency of the air lift pump have been the most important of their kind. It has cooperated with the Wisconsin Highway Commission in an economic study of local sands and gravel deposits of the state for their use in road construction leading to the development of many local deposits with considerable gain in economy, and the same laboratory has cooperated with national engineering societies in such questions as the best proportions for concrete, effect of freezing on concrete and on clay tile. It has conducted a great many experiments on bridges under moving trains, and the results of this study have formed the basis of the rules of practice of many railroads.

“In the Mechanical Engineering laboratory, its investigations on the insulating properties of commercial pipe coverings have been the most thorough and up to date, and the results are used in the various handbooks covering the subject. In the Electrical Engineering laboratories, much work is being done through its Standards Laboratory, maintained in cooperation with the State Railroad Commission, for the promotion of better service by the electrical utilities of the state. This has included such studies as high tension insulators, transformers for the lighting systems of Milwaukee, high voltage circuit breakers and fuses, and a great amount of work in the testing and improvement of standards used by the utilities. In this department, also, a very considerable amount of hard study has been given to problems of radio communication, some of which are highly mathematical in their nature and published results hardly readable by the ordinary engineer, but none the less of practical value. An interesting example of the importance of scientific studies not at first appreciated came to our attention recently. One of our graduate students of about fifteen years ago was aided for two years or more by University funds in his studies of the properties of CO₂ at very low temperatures. It was a difficult subject and satisfactory results were not then obtained. This particular person was very persistent in his ideas, and came back two years ago to complete his work. He is now in the employ of the Bureau of Mines, which needed just such a man in the work they are now doing in the recovery of helium from natural gas for use by the United States Government.

"In Chemical Engineering a lot of work has been done in the properties of alloys and we all know how important this field of work is in modern manufacture. This department, in cooperation with the Wisconsin Gas Association, has reported on various process improvements, notably on the mixing of gas and air for high temperature furnaces, liquid purification methods for sulphur compounds, methods of removal of naphthalene, and the relation of heating value to gas consumption in household appliances. Cooperative work with particular industrial concerns includes work on gas calorimeters, corrosion tests and lead plating processes. The metallurgical laboratory is now engaged in a scientific study of blast furnace slags, on which an expert metallurgist is employed. This is a very complex problem, and while the general behavior of slags is well known, a thorough analysis has never been made, and the possibilities of improvement in the treatment of high sulphur ores make this study of much practical importance. The electrolytic treatment of zinc ores is another promising field of study.

"A great many more examples could be given, but this enumeration is sufficient to show the general scope and nature of the problems which are being studied in the engineering laboratories. They are not merely interesting studies by college professors, but real practical investigations conducted by persons in close touch with the active world of engineering and manufacture."

What definition of "education" is better than Milton's—fitting the individual to perform skillfully, justly, and magnanimously all the arts of peace and war. This means more than educating for efficiency. It means more than training the hand, the ear, the eye, and the brain. It means much more than a matter of intellect. It means a development of the emotions.

A Successful Life It means an understanding of music, art, poetry, literature, and of other fields, which are not mere excrescences of training but are realities in a useful life. How much of human conduct is under purely intellectual direction? How much of it is under emotional control? Think of this, both intellectually and emotionally how we are stimulated by others. From whom do we get higher inspiration than from the men and women of faculty and student body with whom we associate during our university years?

The Memorial Union Building means much, very much, as a memorial. It means much in the practical contributions that it will make to student life. It means much to the development of spirit among the alumni. It means these and many other things. But do not overlook what it means to all of us in those things sometimes not classed as practical—those things emotional, which, after all, are truly the most practical and form both the warp and the woof of that fabric that we denominate a "successful life."

EXTRA

Dr. ROSCOE POUND, dean of Harvard Law School, was offered the presidency of our University by unanimous action of the board of Regents on January 21.

By GEORGE HAIGHT, '99

THE experience of our Alumni Association and of the alumni organizations of other state universities shows clearly that the most effective work can be done by a strong central unit cooperating closely with efficient local clubs. By work, we mean those endeavors designed to aid the University in its many-phased educational efforts and in other associated endeavors. We ask the graduates and ex-students in every community where there is now no local U. W. club, to immediately organize one. Do this everywhere that so small a number as even two, or three, can be gathered together. The living graduates of our University number about eighteen thousand. Above this, the ex-students number about twenty-five thousand. Of this total—roughly, forty-three thousand—substantially one-half live in the State of Wisconsin. The rest are scattered throughout the world, but principally in the United States. There are now one hundred organized local U. W. clubs. Many of these are very strong. Please make your local clubs stronger, if possible. To aid in forming new clubs, and in strengthening the existent ones, a corps of about fifty alumni organizers is being formed, and a traveling field man will be constantly on the road preparing for the coming of one or more of these organizers. To aid them, and aid you, a handbook is being speedily and efficiently prepared. It will disclose specifically the University's needs, its accomplishments, and plans for aiding it in the future. We are sure that these designs to make our graduates and ex-students more compact, more unified, and more efficient in accurate and speedy expression, will meet with general approval. We ask and expect your hearty and loyal cooperation. Our initial effort will be made in the State of Wisconsin. It means much to our regents, and to our University. It means much to us and to those who shall come after us.

Before our next message is due, the foregoing plan will be in operation. Your officers and Board are in deadly earnest. We anticipate your complete accord. Come—when we extend a helping hand, let it be virile and one through which our common feeling is coursing. When we speak, let it be with a voice that is clear and wholly vibrant.

Note: JOHN DAWSON, '24, has been engaged as state field organizer of alumni by President HAIGHT.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE CONSTITUTION

By HARRY C. MARKS, '13, Chairman

IT WAS very evident to every one present at the June meeting of the Alumni Council last year that if alumni are actually to function in promoting the welfare of the University some practical means must be devised to make action and not mere talk our goal. The Council meeting appeared useless in that it was impossible to get any concerted action, and after two and one-half hours of rambling talk next to nothing had been accomplished.

The American conception of a University is that it consists of faculty, students, and alumni, and if alumni are to be alumni in name only there is apparently no purpose in the existence of an Alumni Association other than as a medium for carrying on social intercourse. To be more specific in connection with the June meeting in question, the majority of the delegates present did not know what was going to take place, few if any had engaged in any previous discussion of matters which should be vital to alumni, many of the authorized delegates did not take the trouble to appear, although they were in Madison, and when the apparent futility of such meetings became more and more evident, as expressed upon the floor of the meeting, a committee was appointed to make a thorough study of the constitution of the General Alumni Association, and, if necessary, to revise it.

Before preparing the revised constitution now being submitted to you, the committee obtained copies of the constitutions of the alumni associations of the leading universities of the country, namely, Michigan, Harvard, Columbia, Illinois, Princeton, and others. We believe that the present draft contains the most workable features of these constitutions. Two fundamental ideas have been uppermost in our minds: First, adequate representation by organized clubs who through their interest in the University meet and discuss questions concerning its welfare; and second, administration by a body sufficiently interested and qualified to give thought and time to University and alumni matters.

In dividing the country into ten districts we are giving alumni everywhere an opportunity for a voice in the proceedings of the General Association, and at the same time, in order that clubs may not control the Association, an equal number of directors, to be known as a Board of Directors, are to be elected by members of the General Association at specified meetings. It will be noted that officers of the Association are to be elected by the Board of Directors, and although at first glance it may seem that the latter constitutes a large body, consisting of twenty-four members, four as officers and twenty other members, and realizing that it will be difficult to secure a full representation of officers and Board at one meeting, a quorum to do business is placed at a reasonable number.

In the new constitution the committee provides machinery for putting into effect the best and most representative opinion of the great body of alumni. No group of alumni have a more genuine loyalty to their Alma Mater than have the sons and daughters of Wisconsin. Our General Alumni Association in point of numbers is among the largest in the United States; let's take advantage of the force of those numbers to make our organization the most useful and most effective in the country.

By the Committee:

H. C. MARKS, '13, Chairman, LOUIS HORNER, '17, S. S. HICKOX, '14.

ARTICLE I

Section 1. The name of this Association shall be THE GENERAL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION of the University of Wisconsin.

Section 2. The object of the Association shall be to promote the welfare of the University, and to encourage the interest of the alumni in the University and in each other.

ARTICLE II

Section 1. Any graduate or former student of the University, or any person who has been or is affiliated with the University, may become a regular member on payment of the regular dues, which are hereby fixed at three dollars per year, payable in advance.

Section 2. Any graduate or former student may become a life member on payment of fifty dollars for that purpose; and shall be exempt from payment of annual dues. Money received from life memberships shall go into the Permanent Endowment Fund.

Section 3. All paid members shall be entitled to receive the official publication of the Association. All graduates shall be considered members until they refuse to pay their annual dues.

ARTICLE III

Section 1. The officers of the Association shall be a President, Vice President, Recording Secretary, Treasurer, and members of the Board of Directors.

Section 2. The President, Vice President, Recording Secretary, and Treasurer shall be elected annually by the Board of Directors from among the members of the General Alumni Association. All such officers shall be eligible for re-election, but shall not immediately succeed themselves in office more than once.

ARTICLE IV

Section 1. The Board of Directors shall consist of twenty members to be elected for the term of two years. Ten of the Board of Directors shall be members at large elected by the General Alumni Association as hereinafter provided. The remaining ten Directors shall represent geographical districts and shall be elected therefrom or otherwise as provided in Article 4, Section 4.

The first Board of Directors elected under this constitution shall all be elected as are members at large and as provided in Article 4, Section 5, and shall hold office for the term as follows: five shall hold office for six months; five shall hold office for twelve months; five shall hold office for eighteen months; and five shall hold office for twenty-four months or until their successors have been qualified, the term of office of each to be designated at the time of election.

Section 2. The Board of Directors shall create ten geographical districts, endeavoring thereby to include in each geographical district approximately one-tenth of the members of the General Alumni Association, which said districts shall be re-apportioned every ten years.

Section 3. Each of said geographical districts, as above provided, shall be entitled to elect one member of the Board of Directors, provided that said member is elected by Alumni and Alumnae Clubs within said districts. If no member is elected by the said district, then the vacancy on the Board of Directors caused thereby shall be filled by electing a member as provided in the election of members at large, and such vacancy shall be filled from time to time so long as said district does not elect a member as herein provided.

Section 4. Election for members of the Board of Directors from each of said districts shall be by organized clubs and shall be held as directed by the Board of Directors through the General Secretary except that all votes of said clubs shall be cast by the club secretaries, each club being entitled to one vote for every unit of twenty-five club members and fractional part thereof of members of the General Alumni Association—any club of less than twenty-five members being entitled to one vote. Memberships shall be determined for such voting as of January first and June first of each year next preceding the said election. The Board of Directors through the General Secretary shall notify each Club secretary in any one district wherein there is a vacancy or is to be a vacancy on the Board of Directors at least 120 days prior to the general election of members of the Board of Directors by the General Alumni Association, and each district wherein a director is to be elected must hold its election and notify the Board of Directors sixty days prior to the said general election by the General Alumni Association, and in the event that said notice is not received by the Board of Directors through the General Secretary within the said sixty days as hereinabove provided, the member provided for the said district shall be elected as is provided for and as a member at large.

Section 5. The election of members at large for the Board of Directors shall be held at the semi-annual meetings of the General Alumni Association, and each member of the General Alumni Association present shall have one vote and those members receiving the largest number of votes cast shall be elected. No member can be elected to the Board of Directors at this meeting unless he is present in person. Any member of the General Alumni Association living outside the territorial limits of the city in which the election is held may vote at this meeting by proxy, provided that the said proxy is in writing and specifically names the member or members for whom the vote is to be cast and the member authorized to cast said vote by proxy.

Section 6. Any member of the Board of Directors who fails to attend at least one meeting of the Board in the period of September to June in each year shall automatically cease to be a member of such Board, and if such member is a member at large, his vacancy shall be filled at the next general election, or if a district member then said district shall be notified of said vacancy and such vacancy filled as provided for herein for election of members from said districts.

Section 7. The Board of Directors shall manage and direct the affairs of the Association. The President, Vice President, Recording Secretary, and Treasurer shall be full voting members of the Board of Directors and the President shall act as executive head. The Board shall meet on the call of the President at least once in every three months from September to June and a quorum shall consist of seven members, a majority of whom shall be authorized to act. Among the specific duties of the Board the following shall be included: election of Alumni Representatives to Board of Visitors of the University; election in each even numbered year of Alumni Representative or representatives to the Athletic Council of the University; fostering, promoting and execution of Alumni Endowment Funds.

ARTICLE V

A General Secretary shall be employed by the Alumni Board. He shall not be a University employee or regent. He shall have charge of the ALUMNI MAGAZINE; promote active class organizations; initiate and form local clubs; secure a membership list of all clubs annually; aid in Founders' Day and other Banquets; collect the Alumni dues; have general supervision of the administrative work of the local office; and perform such other duties as the Board of Directors shall prescribe. He shall receive such salary and expenses as the Board of Directors shall designate.

ARTICLE VI

The General Alumni Association shall meet semi-annually, meetings to be held at Homecoming and Alumni Day. In addition to the election of members at large of the Board of Directors, any member of the General Alumni Association may submit matters for the consideration of the Board of Directors. The President, Recording Secretary, and Treasurer of the Association shall report at both meetings. Any official action by the Board of Directors during the intervals between the aforesaid meetings shall be reported by the Recording Secretary.

ARTICLE VII

This constitution may be amended by a referendum vote, by mail, of the members of the Association; a majority of the votes received must be for the amendment.

Amendments may be proposed at any meeting of the Association, or by petition

Note: Members are asked to read with care this proposed new constitution. Comments, suggestions, and criticisms should be mailed to John S. Lord, chairman of the special conference committee. Mr. Lord's address is 59 S. Washington St., Hinsdale, Ill.

Other members of the committee are: A. J. Myrland, Madison, and R. N. McMynn, Milwaukee.

of thirty members of the Association. They must be filed with the General Secretary at least thirty days before the vote is taken, and shall be published in one issue of the ALUMNI MAGAZINE before being acted upon.

ARTICLE VIII

The WISCONSIN ALUMNI MAGAZINE shall be the official organ of the Association.

ARTICLE IX

The present constitution of the Alumni Association of the University of Wisconsin was adopted June 20, 1916. All acts amendatory and all by-laws accompanying same are hereby repealed. This constitution shall take effect upon adoption. The present officers shall hold over until their successors are elected and qualified.

U. W. CLUBS

"Sit together, listen together, sing together, eat together, and you'll work together."

LOCAL U. W. CLUBS

The organized alumni body of our University is rapidly growing in numbers and effectiveness. The Alumni Council, to which the various alumni clubs send representatives, and which is the central directing organization, is ambitious to bring about a closer fellowship among the alumni, former students, and friends of the University. It believes that one of the most effective means to this end is the formation throughout the country of University of Wisconsin clubs. There are numerous communities in which the number of available members is such as to make the formation of these clubs entirely feasible and desirable. Clubs have already been established in a number of cities, in several counties, and in a few states.

The reports from local clubs are always important. We ask each club secretary to see to it that all members of the local club are members of the General Alumni Association.

AKRON

RAYMOND W. ALBRIGHT, '17

WILL a plan similar to that pursued last year be followed in regard to Founders' Day? I am anxious to get some plan under way soon for either a luncheon or dinner to celebrate this event. The University Club did not get returns of any Wisconsin games this fall. Another fall and we should be able to get several big games over the radio and in this way make a very good occasion and setting for a meeting.—1-3-25.

CHICAGO ALUMNAE

MARIE BODDEN, '21

News of Homecoming week-end in Madison, brought by those who had been fortunate to go back, shared with the program treat of having Miss Trilling, '17, tell us about women's athletics at Wisconsin at the November meeting of the club, which close to sixty members attended. Basketball programs for the coming season, University broadcasting program announcements, and news of the proposed directory of Chicago alumni were made by the president, Bertha Weeks. The president also made a report of the action taken at the Alumni Council meeting of November 15 and the latest developments regarding the University building program.

Simply and clearly telling the story of an under-equipped university, doubled in attendance every eleven years and cramped by lack of appropriations for new buildings, Prof. Max Mason outlined for the Wisconsin Alumnae Club of Chicago on January 9, a few of the administrative problems of the University since the war.

"How best to keep intellectual attainment foremost during the student's four years at college is a difficult question and becomes increasingly so as enrollment increases and factory-like methods have to be resorted to," said Professor Mason. "With more students, an impersonal relation often develops in the class room which destroys one of the greatest opportunities for fundamental educational inspiration of both teacher and student.

"Cognizance of this possibility is a great step toward checking it, but the situation is best appreciated by the instructor who keeps the student's view-point and makes opportunities to 'run the race with him.'"

Research Professor Mason described as the battle front of human knowledge, and a normal research program as the line marking the separation of human knowledge from ignorance.

Tribute to President Birge and his services to the University during the last fifty years was paid by Professor Mason, who cited him as one of the ten clearest thinkers of the country, an asset often realized by those closest to University affairs.

The Founders' Day meeting of February 7 will be the regular February meeting of the club.—1-10-25.

CHICAGO

A. W. TORBET, '12

The holiday season did not materially affect the activities of our organization in Chicago, nor did the keen disappointment of the football season. Believing that there are no quitters at Wisconsin our weekly luncheons are well attended. Drop in on us any Friday noon at Mandell's and listen to our discussions of University affairs and welfare.

Professor Max Mason, '98, met with us on January 9. We need and appreciate visits from and talks by such men as Professor Mason when we get together weekly to devote a brief period to consider our obligations to the University. His visit was especially appreciated by some of us who are sometimes discouraged by newspaper publicity regarding some unfortunate incident such as has been broadcast by the headlines during the past four days.

Our new officers took office January first and the new committee appointments were announced at the luncheon meeting January second. The new officers are pledged to the policy of giving all assistance possible to the officers and faculty of the University, and to devote their efforts toward helping the progress of the University's development for greater service.

The committee on the constitution has been spending much time and effort in their work. You will find interesting reading in other pages of this issue regarding this work. Have you read it?

The first event of the present year in addition to the weekly meetings which is receiving the attention of our officers and committees is Founders' Day, February 7, at the Congress Hotel, Chicago. We wish to meet all alumni, alumnae, and former students residing in, near, or within traveling distance of Chicago at our Founders' Day celebration. Remember the time and the place and COME. President Birge will be our guest of honor and only speaker.

Professor A. B. Hall will meet with Indianapolis alumni, February 2.

As the University activities are not confined to the development of the intellect, but are planned for the complete development of the younger generation, our officers have deemed it fitting to celebrate Founders' Day with some seriousness and some merriment. Will you come and join with us in our tribute to our Alma Mater and its President, who has exerted all his efforts for a life-time in the development of the University and in the training of thousands of us who are under obligations to the University for the training given us.

Remember, February 7.

Not all seriousness, not all merriment.—1-9-25.

COLORADO

CLIFFORD J. BETTS, '03

The Colorado alumni are looking for an excuse to get together about Founders' Day time, and would greatly appreciate your cooperation in letting us know whether any one from the University is coming this way, or what, if any, message the Madison folk want to put across.

The grads who have been meeting for luncheon on Saturday noons at the Kenmark Hotel have moved across the street to the Home Dairy since remodeling started at the Kenmark.

The broadcasting programs from Madison are a fine innovation, worthy of becoming a custom. Our radio always did record the breaking up of the ice on Mendota and the splashing of the waves, but not until recently were we able to "get Madison" as we would like to.—1-2-25.

INDIANAPOLIS

Twenty alumni of Wisconsin met at the Spink Arms Hotel Thursday evening, January 8, for the first meeting of the current year. These officers were chosen: William Florea, '21, president; Martha Wertz Scheuring, vice-president; Florence Seder, '19, secretary; Edwin Camp, '17, treasurer.

Every Wednesday at 12:15 Wisconsin men and women will meet for luncheon at Ayres' tea room, it was decided. These luncheons will be informal and programless, but will give a better opportunity for alumni to keep in touch with each other and with the University than we have had in the past. Any visiting alumnus of faculty member who finds himself in the shadow of the monument on the Circle on Wednesday noon is cordially invited to come to Ayres' and join us at the Wisconsin table.

Founders' Day will be celebrated with a dinner at which we hope to have a faculty speaker from Madison as guest and more than one hundred resident alumni, with their wives and husbands, as hosts and hostesses. Farther in the distance, but already beginning to occupy an important place in our plans, is the coming of Haresfoot to Indianapolis on April 9. Announcement of this date and of the nature of this year's production was made by Reginald Garstang, '22, retiring president of Indianapolis alumni.—1-9-25.

MINNEAPOLIS ALUMNAE

IRMA ALEXANDER BULLIS, '15

A delightful luncheon and bridge party was held at the Hotel Leamington, January 10. There was a very large attendance among whom we were pleased to note some of our Hudson, Wisconsin, fellow alumnae. Dr. Anna von Helmholtz Phelan, B. A., '05, Ph. D. '08, gave a most interesting talk on Czecho-Slovakia and Prague, its capital, where Dr. Phelan recently visited.

The committees are at work preparing for the Founders' Day party. The joint party given on December 12 at which we had the great pleasure of hearing Prof. Mason, '98, was such an enjoyable affair that both the alumni and alumnae of this locality are looking forward to a joint Founders' Day meeting. Cards will be mailed as soon as the plans are perfected.—1-10-25.

MINNEAPOLIS ALUMNI

H. O. FROHBACH, '21

Increased attendance at the noon luncheons on the second Friday of each month at the Minneapolis Athletic Club is becoming the rule as the year progresses. At the January luncheon, the alumni learned what a director of athletics thinks about from Professor F. W. Luehring, Director of Athletics at the University of Minnesota. Professor Luehring discussed a few of the many problems in conference athletics and explained how conference football schedules are arranged.

The alumni received with enthusiasm the announcement that Haresfoot will be in Minneapolis in April. All are anxious to show the club that the alumni of Minneapolis will help them in every way possible to make their first visit to the Twin Cities an outstanding success.

A special section for the Wisconsin alumni of Minneapolis was reserved at the Wisconsin-Minnesota basketball game on Saturday, January 10. The alumni turned out in force and cheered the team on in a hotly contested game, the result of which was in doubt until the final whistle blew.

Plans are being made for another joint meeting with the Minneapolis alumnae early in February. The December dinner-dance was a distinct success, and demands for another such party are many. Alumni in the north-west should watch the daily papers in the Twin Cities for further details.—1-15-25.

R. W. Purchas, president of the club, writes:

"Permit me to say for the Wisconsin Alumni Association of Minneapolis that its members are unanimously for the selection of Walter E. Meanwell as director of athletics for the University of Wisconsin, for which position, I understand, a selection is soon to be made."—1-12-25.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

ETHEL ROSE TAYLOR, '10

The Northern California U. W. Club had a Christmas party at the Women's Faculty Club, Berkeley, on December 27. D. L. Hennessey, '03, was in charge of the merriment of the evening. He was splendid. John Farley, '17, our vice president (U. W. engineer), was in charge of the grab bag. There were jolly little presents for all of the thirty guests. The orchestra played for dancing, the club served refreshments, and as we sat at last by the firelight and the light from Christmas candles, no one seemed to want to go home. Everything was delightful, even to our dancing to "On Wisconsin," played by an accommodating California orchestra.—12-28-24.

PUGET SOUND

HAROLD HUSTON, '16

We had a dinner about a month ago, just before College Night at the University of Washington. About forty Wisconsin people were there—all men. Howard Adams, '15, was elected president, and in view of the fact that our esteemed friend and erstwhile secretary of the U. W. Club of Puget Sound, W. E. Schneider, has departed from this neck of the woods for eastern parts, I am the new secretary.

The Wisconsin spark burns rather dimly out here. Perhaps we can fan it into a flame this year.—1-7-25.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

MABEL BRADLEY BREWER, '04

The U. W. Alumnae Club of Southern California met on Saturday afternoon, December 13, at the home of Elinor Merrill Byrne, in Pasadena. Each member was requested to bring a gift for a "grab bag," which furnished a great deal of amusement during the afternoon. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Genevieve Church Smith. Each one present then told in a few words the line of work she was pursuing and the year she graduated from dear old U. of W. Plans were discussed for a joint banquet with the U. W. Alumni Club with Dr. Richard T. Ely, who is now in Los Angeles, as honor guest, if possible. After refreshments were served the meeting adjourned. The next meeting will be held at the home of Clara Maud Berryman on February 14.

Those present were: Helen Steensland Nielsen, Ida Ellsworth Sunderlin, Blanche Ranum Nelson, Faye Rogers Carey, Elizabeth Smith Champ, Elinor Merrill Byrne, Clara Dietrich Bradley, Susan Litch Dow, Bernice Dow Brush, Mabel Bradley

Brewer, Mrs. G. A. Matthews, Mrs. Ruediger, Mrs. J. J. Fisher, Mrs. Kurtz, Illa Dow, Agnes Wilson, Mary Hewson, Mirah Congdon, Ida Isabel Jones, Caroline Burgess, Genevieve Church Smith, Mildred Forsythe, and Clara Maud Berryman.—12-18-24.

GLEE CLUB

J. B. MASON, '26

With 38 men singing in the Concert club, eight of whom were members last year and the others having received training in the second club of last year, the Men's Glee club is in shape to put on the biggest program in its history. Prof. E. E. Swinney has been putting the men through almost daily practices since the holidays to have them in good form for the first tour of the club to Milwaukee, Sheboygan, and Manitowoc on February 13. The club will take part in the inter-collegiate glee club contest at Chicago on February 13, with good prospects of taking the first place prize as it did in 1923.

The spring-tour, which will start April 7, is the longest ever undertaken by the club. It will cover four states and will include appearances in thirteen cities and towns. J. F. Murphy, who is club manager, has been keeping in touch with alumni in towns where the club could give concerts, and has gotten considerable help from the alumni clubs in some of them in arranging the concert. The tentative itinerary for February is as follows:

February 13, Milwaukee
February 14, Sheboygan
February 15, Manitowoc
February 16, South Milwaukee
February 21, Rockford, Ill.
February 22, Aurora, Ill., or Elgin, Ill.
February 23, Chicago, Ill.

Watch for the itinerary of the club for March and April in the March issue of the MAGAZINE.

ATHLETICS

KENNETH BUTLER, '25

COACH W. E. Meanwell's basketball team lost the first two Big Ten games of the season after a fairly successful preliminary season. Victories were registered over Wabash, De Pauw, and Grinnell. The team lost to Butler, then lost to Minnesota at Minneapolis and to Ohio at Madison.

The hardest blow to the team was the ineligibility of Dwight Spooner, a regular on last year's squad and a man counted on for a big part in the scoring of this year's team. Spooner was declared ineligible during the Christmas recess, after it was discovered he had participated in intercollegiate athletics at Coe College, Iowa, before he came to Wisconsin.

To get his team rearranged after Spooner's loss, Meanwell had to move Varney and Wackman to forward, and put in Henry Brooks at center. Brooks is a tall lad from Kentucky, who plays remarkably well for a sophomore, but who is not as yet well seasoned. He has shown up better in every game, however, and is a consistent point-getter. Barwig and Captain Diebold are in the guard positions.

As substitutes, Meanwell has Bain, Merkel, Martell, and Harget. These boys are the most likely of the Sophomores and they have been used for a short time in several games. Martell has shown up the best of these. Another likely player is Barnum, of the football squad, who substitutes at guard.

The first game of the year was with Wabash at Madison on December 12. Wabash led with a slight margin until Coach Meanwell sent in Martell, who turned the tide and popped in several baskets. The final score was 21-20.

The next foe that traveled to Madison to meet the Badgers was the fast Butler College five of Indianapolis. Meanwell's quintet fell by a 22-16 score. The first half of the contest found the Badger team in real form and the first period ended with the Butler men on the small end of a 10-5 score. Diebold was taken out on personals and the defense of the team was weakened. Butler forged ahead in the last half.

The play was better in the Grinnell game played December 22, and Wisconsin won by a 29-15 score. The end of the first half found the two teams on even ground, with the score 8-8.

De Pauw was the next team to fall. In the game played the opening day of school, January 6, Wisconsin won, 27-22. The half ended with Wisconsin on the upper but fragile end of a 15-12 score. Play was much faster in the second half and Meanwell's men ran the score up easily.

EXTRA: George Little has been selected athletic director.

Winter Sports

Wisconsin lost its opening game of the 1925 conference season at Minneapolis by the close score of 16 to 14. The game was one of the most hotly-contested affairs played on the armory floor in a number of years, both teams playing almost faultless ball on the offense.

The Badgers went down to the second Big Ten defeat January 13 to the speedy and veteran Ohio quintet, 27-20. The Buckeyes forged ahead in the first half and overcame a small lead which the Badgers had piled up. A mighty burst of speed towards the close of the game brought the Badgers within one point of Captain Cameron and his men, but Cunningham slipped in a couple of baskets and a free throw and the game was hopelessly lost.

The next game is scheduled for Monday, January 19, with Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Winter sports are supreme at Madison during the present season. The lower campus has been flooded and the north half is being used by students as a skating rink. The regulation hockey court has been laid off at the other end and is being used by the hockey squad.

Coach Kay Iverson, formerly of the Illinois Athletic club, has been engaged as hockey coach and interest in this sport is running high. A large number of men have turned out for the squad and nightly practices are being held. Iverson has scheduled games with Janesville, St. Thomas, Carleton, Minnesota, Michigan, and several other Big Ten schools.

Prospects are exceedingly bright in track for the indoor season. Distance runs should be well taken care of by members of the championship cross country team. Wisconsin has one of the best milers on the conference in Clayton Cassidy. Herbert Schwarze and Leo Harmon, two huskies from the football squad, should handle the weight events easily. The pole vault and the hurdles will be the weak spots. Captain Valley, Bert Hilberts, Carter, and Schilke will make a quartet of half-milers that will stack up with the best in the conference. Sprints will be well taken care of by McGiveran and McAndrews, two of Ryan's fleet grid backs.

The track team faces a stiff schedule this year, including the following meets:

- February 14—Quadrangular meet at Northwestern
- February 21—at Iowa
- February 28—Illinois relays
- March 13 and 14—Conference meet at Northwestern
- March 27—Notre Dame at Madison
- April 18—Kansas relays
- April 25—Drake relays
- May 9—at Michigan
- May 16—Quadrangle at Chicago
- May 23—Minnesota at Madison

Captain Valley of the track squad was back in his old form January 14, as he led the half-milers to the tape in the tryouts for the two-mile relay team that will defend the prestige of Wisconsin against the two-mile quartets from other universities. These tryouts were held to choose the fourth man of the team, as the first three places are sewed up by the winners in the trial held last week. The team that will run for the Badgers is composed of Captain Valley, Bergstresser, Schilke, and Hilberts. Coach Jones may make a last-minute change, however, and insert Petaja into the race instead of Hilberts.

By taking three matches by decisions and one by a fall gained by Walter Muegge, heavyweight wrestler, the Badger matmen won over the Maroons January 10 at Chicago by the close margin of two points, the final count being 11-9. It was Wisconsin's first match of the season. Capt. Lyle Zodtner, William Splees, and Harvey Chada wrestled their way to referee's decision.

Workouts are being held daily for the pitchers and catchers of Coach Lowman's baseball squad. Eligibility is the main interest at present, however. Fifteen battery men have reported. They are: Larson, Bergholz, Schrenk, Lustig, Edwards, Lamboey, Goodlad, Jehle, Baechler, Galle, Baer, Reynolds, Schmitt and Freck. The squad will take the usual spring trip in April, it has been decided.

From December "W" Bulletin

The first annual meeting of the University of Wisconsin "W" Men's Association was held at the Loraine Hotel, November 14, the night before the Iowa game. Eighty three "W" men were present. A. L. Buser presided. This meeting was the first time that the "W" men had a specific place where they could gather for the purpose of renewing old acquaintances and making such suggestions and criticisms on the work of the Association as they desired. Many of the members had come for the purpose of expressing their opinions regarding the Athletic Department and the success of the football season, but on the suggestion of older members of the Association, nothing was said or done bearing upon the athletic situation at that time.

The nominating committee composed of Lawrence Hall, James Dean, O. C. Fox, Louis Sumner and William Holstein presented a list of eleven names for directors for the ensuing year and six additional names were added by nominations from the floor. The tellers, of which Carl Dietze was chairman, reported that the following eleven men had received the highest number of votes cast and the president, therefore, announced their election as directors for the ensuing year. The directors are: Slam Anderson, A. L. Buser, William B. Goldie, C. S. Harper, E. J. Samp, A. L. Tormey, Robert Wahl, Paul Meyers, J. R. Riordan, Howard Buck and Edwin Austin.

EXPERIMENT ASSOCIATION

By DEAN H. L. RUSSELL, '88

IN ORDER to disseminate the results of experimental endeavor in the most rapid and efficient manner, the Wisconsin Experiment Association was organized in 1901. Graduates of the Short Course and those who attended the Farmers' Courses were given the opportunity to secure small quantities of the pedigreed grains that had been developed at the Experiment Station, in order to try them under their local conditions. This widespread dissemination, made possible through their thousands of young farmers, has resulted in completely transforming the character and quality of the seed grains grown in the state. From being a grower of scrub and mixed varieties of grains, grasses, and forage crops, Wisconsin had rapidly passed to the position of being the leading producer in the Union of pedigreed varieties of grain. Not only has this resulted in the displacement of the mongrel and mixed stock formerly grown, but the production of surplus quantities of pedigreed varieties has led to a rapid development of an export business, which now runs into several millions of dollars annually. Thus it was possible for the results of scientific endeavor to be quickly disseminated among the farmers of the state, and such a movement has given an impetus to the benefits of agricultural education which would have otherwise been much slower in development.

FACULTY NEWS

Lora PALMER, instructor in the Romance Language Department, who was wounded on January 7 at the French House by shots from a gun in the hand of F. X. Bernard, Hibbing, Minn., is continuing to improve at the Madison General Hospital. Miss Palmer is loved and respected by her friends and associates on the campus, who hope for her a speedy recovery.

Prof. F. W. ROE, junior dean of the College of Letters and Science, will make an extended trip through Europe, visiting France, Italy, Sicily, and England. Professor and Mrs. Roe will leave the second semester this year and will return next fall, according to present plans.

The Class Secretary would like to hear from all the members of the class of '80 regarding their ability and desire to attend the 45th reunion of the class next June.

John Dodson writes: "I most heartily vote for the 45th annual reunion of the class of '80 next June. Our ranks are thinning rather rapidly these years, and one feels that he would like to look into the faces and hear the voices of those of us who are 'still here' as often as possible."

Humphrey Desmond says: "I should be glad to cooperate in any way that I can in helping to get a reunion of the class of '80 next June, and think it quite desirable to again make the attempt to get as many of the old classmates together as possible."

What say the others?

Fellow-Classmates: A Happy New Year to you all! I did hope for a card of greeting from each of you. My hopes were realized, in part. Howard Smith, Ed Brady, and Dan McArthur were the gracious friends who remembered me. Yes, another one of our cronies, the tall, handsome, and successful Ed McGilton also gave me a hearty send-off. Such encouraging letters as Ed and Howard sent are very gratifying. I would like to reproduce both of them, but they are too full of personalities, and Howard expressly cautioned against publication of his.

One thing you will be delighted to hear is that Howard is actually getting corpulent, which bespeaks better health. He thinks you will all laugh at the idea of his weighing nearly two hundred. He is well enough to give full time to his work, which is a great satisfaction to himself and of great profit to the law school.

Another member of our illustrious class who has attained commendable eminence also greeted me, but he came in person—and was thrice welcome. Frank Porter, now and for many years past dean of the law school of the University of Southern California at Los Angeles, attended a national convention of deans of law schools held at the LaSalle Hotel December 28 to 31. One would never suspect the boyish-looking Frank of having been out of college nearly forty-five years. Your secretary tendered him a luncheon at the University Club, and all the guests we could summon who were in our sphere were F. M. Porter, Kemper Knapp, Joseph Hallam, and myself—all juveniles in looks and spirit, and brimful of reminiscence.

Our next flash will be from Florida. (As I wrote it that word looks like "flask." I presume it would have been historically correct at that, as Florida is the oasis of America, overflowing with genuine stuff easily obtained from the Island of Bimini forty miles off the coast of Miami.) It is my intention to call on our old friend Mark Waldo at Bartow. He is so urgent to have me visit him that he writes me they have both a new railroad and a new state highway to his city from Palm Beach, thus giving me no excuse for not coming.

Come on fellows, lend a hand. Give me some information about yourselves. Everything is interesting. I listen in on the radio every night hoping to hear Moroney's voice when I get my Dallas music, but in vain. Just imagine the static splutter if Moroney ever did let loose on that stenorian voice of his!

Au revoir.—F. S. White.

Asa BRIGGS was elected president of the St. Paul Association on December 8. The St. Paul Daily News of December 9 carried the following editorial:

"The St. Paul Association has honored one of St. Paul's ablest and most constructive citizens in electing Asa G. Briggs as its president for the coming year.

"Mr. Briggs long has been a successful professional man in St. Paul, and as such he has gained the respect and admiration of his associates.

"In addition to his professional duties, he has been in the forefront of every movement for the betterment and improvement of the city.

"No better choice could have been made."

On January 5, for the first time in history, a woman had part in the inauguration of Wisconsin state officers. Elizabeth WATERS of Fond du Lac, enjoyed the distinction of escorting Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman into the presence of Chief Justice A. J. Vinje, by whom was administered the constitutional oath to "execute his trust lawfully and to the best of his ability."

The episode occurred at noon in the assembly chamber of the capitol, filled to overflowing. By thus selecting Miss Waters, the secretary of state accorded delicate recognition not only to Wisconsin womanhood, but to the great teaching sisterhood of the commonwealth, of which Miss Waters has been a distinguished member for forty years, and to the University, of which she is a regent.

My Dear Classmates: I hear you calling and am therefore sending you this personal message. What method would be better than to use these pages of our Alumni Magazine?

To all of you who have never been back to good Old Wisconsin,

To you who have never had the thrill that comes with the handclasp of your old pals,

To the Alumna or Alumnus who just for once would again like to see he or she that you didn't dare slap on the back when you were in school,

To those who have some old reminiscence to talk over with May or John,

And to all those dear classmates who know what good times we had at the other reunions of the "Mighty 1905" who have heard our yell—

Wa-Hoo, Wa-Hoo
Wa-Hoo-Wive
U-Wis-Con-Sin
NINETEEN FIVE"

re-echo over the campus at midnight, over the lake at our picnic, and rising above all the other classes at the banquet,

COME, old timers, and help all your classmates make 1925 the banner reunion. We'll be dead a long time. Twenty years of hard work certainly has earned us a week off at our Alma Mater. B.ing the kiddies, your wives, and your sweethearts; we'll all be one big family.

One other little favor: It was decided to get up a class history of the doings of our class members since leaving the "U". Jot it all down and send it to me, 373 Broadway, Room 215, Milwaukee. If there is any class member you would like to see, send her or his address to me and I will see that she or he gets a special invitation.

From now until June we are off to make our 1925 reunion, with your hearty cooperation, the BIGGEST EVER."

Your President,
Wm. F. TUBESING

Jesse BIGBEE has resumed the practice of law with his father, Judge E. C. Higbee, who has been serving as circuit judge of the sixth judicial district since 1909, and whose term expired on January 4. Pursuant to the resolution adopted at the last reunion of the class, the secretary has turned over to the Memorial Union Building Fund the balances from previous reunions. The secretary of the Memorial Union Building Committee has sent the following letter to Alumni Headquarters:

"We have received a check of $192.60 from the class of 1909. This donation to the Memorial Union was forwarded to us by the class secretary, Mr. E. E. WITTE, of Madison.

"We are glad to express our appreciation through the columns of the ALUMNI MAGAZINE to the members of the class who made this donation."—JOHN DOLLARD, '22, Secretary, Memorial Union Building Committee.

K. L. HATCH, assistant director of Agricultural Extension at the University, spoke before the annual convention of the Indiana Dairy Manufacturers Association in Indianapolis on December 5. The annual value of the nation's dairy industry, according to Mr. Hatch, exceeds $4,000,000,000. If this industry should collapse the country would suffer "nothing less than a great national calamity and a revolution in our social order." Mr. Hatch declared that fears for the future of the dairy industry in the United States are groundless.—H. L. GARNER is secretary of the Madison Kiwanis Club.—Clarence JOHNSON is district engineer with the Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., residence 144 Edgemont Ave., Ardmore, Pa.

Reune June 19–22!

Only five more months until the big reunion!

Well, Irving HEWITT has come through with a letter with some Nynenteen dope. Gee, some more of you guys and guyesses should open up with your correspondence. Tain't no fun to just wait for stuff to come in and then everything else happens but.

It took a 1908er, Geo. B. Hill, to let us in on the fact that W. G. CALDWELL is practicing his civil engineering profession at Waukesha. Thanks, George. Alexander LEGRANDE, who hangs his hat at 3936 Vliet St., is paymaster of the First Wisconsin National Bank at Milwaukee. Oh, boy, won't we have the dough to spend at this here shindig the class is going to pull next June. Benj. SPRINGER who lives in that same town is secretary of the John Schroeder Lumber Co. Guess he sort of owns most of that Co. by now.

They tell us that the J. Allen SIMPSONS of Racine, who by the way live at a sort of palatial country home on highway 15, have made room for a new baby boy. This is rather belated news, but it just filtered through. Oh, and Mary McKEE, our staunch friend of college days (and yet) has changed her address slightly to 19 Kuhlman St. This is at Columbia, Mo.

Walter SCHULTE, the old sleuth, has just ferretted out a deep laid scheme in this here radio business. The U. W. sending station call number, as you know, is WHA. It seems that in looking around for a designation the powers that be at once hit on the idea of doing honor to the University's greatest class by adopting the letters WHAM after our own Whamskizzle. It was, however, discovered that Rochester, N. Y., had beaten our Alma Mater to it, so the next best thing had to be done and WHA was adopted. Thank you, Wisconsin, for your good intentions. We deserve the honor.

Just as we promised in the last issue, here is some decidedly palatable stuff from Detroit by A. P. HAAKE. And next time it's going to come from Chicago by Sam Hickox, and then we may jump to the Pacific Coast or New York, or it may be your turn. We do not hesitate to call upon you and we are sure of a most hearty response.—RUSSELL CARPENTER.

We looked around for Nineteen-fourteeners in Detroit, Michigan, and found three. There may be more, but with true 1914 modesty they are hard to find. Take that as you will!

Won't tell you that what they lack in quantity they make up in quality. You know that! But here they are.

Kathleen CALKINS, of the wonderful dark hair and graceful being, that inimitable charm! Kathleen spent several years with the Armstrong Cork Company, in charge of color pages in the advertising department. Her artistic sense and fine taste qualified her for a splendid position with the great Hudson store, the Marshall Field and Company of Detroit. She is in the interior decorating department and advises perplexed women on just how to furnish their homes. Two monuments to her skill are the Nurses Home of the Harper Hospital and the Nurses Home of the Children's Hospital, both of which were presented by Senator Couzens, and whose furnishing was superintended entirely by Miss Calkins. She is very active in the alumnae association and as loyal to Wisconsin as ever.

"Wally" ERDMAN is the same genial, lovable fellow that he always was, only more so. He is a little heavier than he was ten years ago, looks even more prosperous, and is still unmarried. "Wally" does not say so in so many words, but it is our opinion that the "lists are open." It seems a shame for Wally to be piling up the lucre when some girl might lie awake nights figuring out ways of spending it. Wally is now one of the partners in the Gratiot Tire Auto Supply Company with several stores in Detroit. He is in personal charge of the place at Grand River and Elizabeth Streets, where the company (Wally did not tell this) last year did something over a million dollar of business. Some day he will grow tired of the aroma of rubber and settle down to be a dignified plutocrat.

"Al" HAAKE is still supporting "causes." From Wisconsin, where he taught for eight years, he went to Rutgers University, in New Jersey, to take charge of the economics department. While there he had a well-filled feed bag held in front of him by Mac-

Manus Incorporated, with a "mission" to boot. Well, you know Al; he just had to take it. And now he is one of the principals in an advertising company, buying shoes, hats, etcetera, for three cherubs, a girl of five, boy of four, and a future half-back for Wisconsin, aged two at the present writing. Helen Rice, '18, married him a few years ago and grows prettier every day. When you consider that "Al" is still making speeches, you cannot be censured for wondering how she does it.

Let's hear from some of the rest of you folks.

Miller MUNSON, Chicago, writes: "It occurs to me that if Wisconsin men would express themselves in regard to the apparently deplorable condition of Wisconsin athletics that it might have a salutary effect."

Change of address: R. S. DEWEY, 2236 High St., Denver, Colo.; Julius SEGALL, 602 Great Republic Life Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.; Monica PORTER Lepine, 255 Pasadena Ave., Highland Park, Mich.

Reune June 19-22!

Our first reunion will be held this coming June, only six months away. Let's all join now in planning to be in Madison for that week-end.

Plans are already being laid for our reunion, the details of which will soon be sent to each member of the class. Incidentally, let's add as many fellow classmates as possible to the list of those now members of the General Alumni Association. This magazine, mailed to each member, is a regular, authentic means of keeping in touch with our friends and news of our reunion.

BOOK NOTES

Gypsy Fires in America (Harper and Bros., New York, $3.00), IRVING BROWN, '11.

If a group of gypsies had not been deported from England in Colonial days, lovers of the long road, of field and of forest might not now be revelling in Irving Brown's Gypsy Fires in America, fires that burn with more warmth and brightness than ever burned the gypsy fires of George Borrow or Charles G. Leland, who wrote the Nomads into English letters.

George Borrow was horrified because his gypsies were "almost entirely ignorant of the grand points of morality," and he was always separated by a large bar of soap from the persons of whom he was writing. Not so this new American writer. He is no more bothered about the "grand points" than the gypsies themselves, and he is not interested in selling them Sapolio or Ivory or even the Gold Dust Twins. Their naturalness, casualness, and fire, their revels, feasts, and songs, and dances—dances to the most maddening of music—their thieving and their tricks, their love and enjoyment of life, these are what fascinate Mr. Brown, and he has succeeded in producing a book which will fascinate most readers.

After giving his theories on the origins of the nomad race, Mr. Brown goes into a description of the "shyest, most nomadic and colorful of any body of gypsies in the world." They live almost exclusively by the fortune-telling of the women, and the wives are eager to support their men, undisguisedly enjoying male mastery. Mr. Brown discusses gypsy music, and, of course, gypsy fiddlers, and also what they can do with copper and iron. In his descriptions of the little cafés in New York, in Chicago, and in most large cities where the gypsies spend their evenings, he has discovered a side of American life almost unknown.

The anecdotes he tells are many and entertaining. There is for example the story of Gabor who established the precedent of having a bathtub. "As it was a great curiosity, the entire family and an occasional neighbor or two would gather around the tub to see him use it; and being a modest man, whenever he bathed he kept his underwear on."—Paris Times, 12-13-24.

CAMPUS NOTES

Industrial concerns of Wisconsin, numbering about 800, were invited to send representatives to the first Wisconsin conference on employment management and industrial relations held in Madison on January 12. The conference was sponsored by the Milwaukee Employment Managers' Association, the Economics Department, and the University of Wisconsin Extension Division. Prof. D. D. Lescohier, Economics Department, and Lawrence Parish, Milwaukee, were in charge of arrangements. The purpose of the conference was to promote the adoption of standard principles in labor management in Wisconsin by bringing together the employment managers, members of the industrial commission, and University experts in the theories of labor management.

Almost half the income of the University, although appropriated by the legislature, comes from student fees, federal appropriations, income from dormitories, cafeterias, farm products—even football games.

Afternoon classes will be scheduled for the first time at the 1925 summer session, according to Director Goodnight. The congestion resulting from increased enrollment and the increased use of the library necessitated the change. "The afternoon classes were bound to come sooner or later, as the summer session is steadily growing," said Dean Goodnight.

The Wisconsin International Stock Show, an annual event, will be held on Saturday, February 21.

Calls for teachers, numbering over 600, for positions in high schools, vocational schools, junior high schools, elementary schools, normal schools, and colleges in the state have been handled so far during this academic year by the committee on high school relations, according to data compiled by Prof. T. Lloyd Jones, chairman of the committee. This figure does not include a large number of calls received from outside the state.

Plants and herbs of about 175 different varieties are now rooted in the ten acres devoted to drug culture in the experimental drug garden of the department of pharmacy of the University, according to Prof. W. O. Richtmann, pharmacognosist. The garden lies just west of the agricultural buildings and is used to raise roots and herbs for medicinal purposes and also to experiment with the production of new or foreign plants. Such investigations have been carried on in the University drug gardens for ten years.

Music Hall is being remodeled to hold the new four-manual pipe organ which is to be installed this spring. The organ, designed by Dr. C. H. Mills, director of the Music School, and dean of the American Guild of Organists, will be the only four-manual organ in Madison. Appropriations for the organ were made some time ago.

Dr. Mills expects the organ to be installed and ready for recitals and organ lessons at the opening of the academic year next fall.

The University Exposition, to be held in the gymnasium on April 16, 17, and 18, will show a cross-section of the day's work in the sixty-seven departments of the University. There will be 15 special displays of Wisconsin life, 67 departmental exhibits, and 800 students will work on the committees to prepare and manage the exposition. Through it the citizens of the state will be given a chance to see what the University does each day. Special machines and laboratory equipment valued at half a million dollars will be on exhibition. The exhibits will range in character from the circulation of blood in a frog's foot, revealed by a powerful microscope, to an electric furnace, which, operating under 40 kilowatts of power and at a temperature of over 70 degrees Fahrenheit, will cast melted steel into molds.

Less than 40 per cent of our undergraduates are members of fraternities or sororities.

The Arden Club is the name of the organization of students interested in literature recently formed at the University. The club will occupy the former home of Prof. Karl Young, recent head of the English Department, at 433 North Lake St., beginning with the second semester. About sixty persons have already become members. All members are to have full use of the house, and tea will be served to members each afternoon. The club plans to have fireside talks each Sunday evening with a professor in charge, and it is expected that prominent men of letters will be brought here from time to time. The name Arden, which will be remembered as the name of the forest in "As You Like It," was suggested by Dean F. W. Roe, of the English faculty.

The Italy-American Society fellowship for the year of 1924 will be called "The Eleanora Duse Fellowship." It has been instituted to further intellectual relations between Italy and the United States.

Applications must be made by candidates holding A.B., B.S., or the equivalent with one or more years of graduate work. Candidates will be judged on their ability to read one or more foreign languages and training in physical sciences, economic theory, economic history, accounting, and statistics.

A directory of home-study courses for teachers, the first of its kind ever prepared, has just been issued by the University of Wisconsin Extension Division, for the benefit of teachers in Wisconsin schools who are interested in taking such courses.

Some thirty trust funds, totalling $225,000 have been given to the University by private citizens for scholarships, loan funds, etc.

WHAT ARE WE DOING ABOUT PEACE?

By FRITZ KUNZ, '12

My occupation as a lecturer and organizer for the Theosophical Society takes me periodically to different parts of the world, and because of the fact that that Society has as its sole doctrine the simple faith in universal Brotherhood without distinction of race, creed, sex, caste, or color, it follows that one obtains through its organization an instant and profoundly sympathetic response in friendship and confidence from many nationalities. Religions and creeds, like color, would prevent the average American from being at home with a Hindu or a Buddhist, though he might get over the barrier of language and custom that would separate him from a Frenchman or even a German. Those of us that have no such limitations of any description (or at any rate only traces remaining, which we are fighting hard to obliterate) have a message to deliver about peace which is quite different in its quality from that which is derived from the orthodoxy of the stereotyped pacifist.

The outstanding feature of our point of view is that we see clearly what very few white people see, namely, that beyond the sullen clouds that hang over Europe there is a far greater danger now threatening the world than ever was the European War. I refer to the bitter feelings of Orientals and dark people against the white races. Japan and China are examples of this. The former resents keenly the stamp of inequality which has been put upon her, and great, old, China is even more bitter because of the merciless exploitation of white races. Every cultured man knows that the Philippinos have just grievances, and that American imperialism is no different in its essence from that of Britain or France. Persia, Afghanistan, and innumerable other lands are charged with injured feelings, and there is a menacing drawing together, on a basis of fear and hate, of dark races everywhere.

The blame for this lies upon white shoulders and nowhere else. We have trampled upon the feelings of colored people everywhere. We look upon people who are not white as amusing species of black beetle; we have preached contempt for some of the noblest religions in the world, forgetting that modern Christianity is no better than modern Hinduism or modern Buddhism; we have exploited dark races everywhere callously; with our ideas of false modesty we have enforced unhygienic clothing upon primitive peoples who are blasted by this and other Western monstrosities like liquor and venereal diseases; we demand privileges everywhere which we refuse to dark foreigners in our own countries; we think that the world is made for us.

I often wonder why our intelligent university alumni in America do not do more to get at the real cause of war and build a true peace. They are perfectly aware that there is something more than a dangerous capitalistic system and a fraudulent jingoism which drives the world to war. These things are bad enough, but they will pass away soon as regards the white nations, but there will still remain the arrogance and insolence of the white man, his feeling of contemptuous superiority and his sectarian bigotry toward dark races. Cannot the American college man and woman do far more than he or she does at present to bring about a real feeling of brotherhood through international clubs and other organizations? Something is already done, but not nearly enough. It is not sufficient patronizingly and condescendingly to permit Orientals to show us their customs. Why should we not, when we move in to their countries, accept many of theirs?

I would make a special plea also for an understanding of India and her problems. It is not for nothing that Providence has driven into Asia the great wedge of largely Aryan people that populate India. Still more might India be likened to a heart, in many senses the life-giver of the Eastern world. If India receives sympathy and understanding and justice, it means a peaceful Asia; if she is rebuffed, white people may well fear the Orient.

These are world problems, and I wish that much more could be done to stir the thinking American collegiate classes to practical action along these particular lines.

Recent Graduates

This is for the attention of the graduate in engineering, commerce, or chemistry who has been out of college a year or two and who desires a permanent connection with an aggressive, growing organization. We can employ several men of more than average ability and ambition in our various plants where they will be given every opportunity to learn the business. Advancement will be slow, but there is a splendid future ahead for the right man. We are only interested in the man who has confidence in his ability and who considers opportunity ahead of initial salary.
