The libraries provide public access to a wide range of material, including online exhibits, digitized collections, archival finding aids, our catalog, online articles, and a growing range of materials in many media.

When possible, we provide rights information in catalog records, finding aids, and other metadata that accompanies collections or items. However, it is always the user's obligation to evaluate copyright and rights issues in light of their own use.

A Crow and His Cheese

One time this crow was looking for something to eat. He found some cheese and flew up on the branch of a tree. A fox was travelling along and he said [to himself], “What should I do to get the cheese that’s in his mouth?”

So the fox said, “You are indeed handsome and there must be a beautiful song when you sing. Would you sing for me?”

So he began to sing and forgot about the cheese in his mouth. When he dropped the cheese, [the fox] picked it up and ran off. And the crow could only look at the direction he ran off.
