Entrants Start Final Workouts For Little International Show

CLOCK OVER 40 CORRECTS BELLS IN CLASSROOMS

Wireless Reports Correct Time Hourly Through Master Clock

An old-fashioned clock, over 40 years old, and scarcely 30 inches from top to bottom, which hangs on the wall of a room in the University observatory, regulates the bells in the various class-rooms of the university buildings.

Several buildings have their own clocks to regulate the bells, but these, too, are connected with the master clock at the observatory. Two small wires at the top of the clock are all that distinguish it from the time-keepers which once hung in our grandmothers' kitchens.

Has Clever Device

The bell-clock is regulated from the standard clock which is a much more complicated affair, telling the exact hour, minutes, and seconds of the day. This standard clock is in turn kept correct by wireless reports from Washington which Prof. George C. Comstock receives three times each week. A clever little device on the pendulum, resembling a pilot wheel, is turned once, if the clock is eighteen-hundredths of a second too slow or fast. This clock is always within one second of being correct.

The tower clock at Music hall was installed 45 years ago when the hall was built. This, too, is set by the standard clock at the observatory. It is poor policy, however, for a student to set his watch by looking at the hands of the tower clock, for he is below, looking up, and the perspective is such that he cannot get the exact time. The first stroke of the bell at the beginning of the hour is always within 20 seconds of being correct, and it is by the bell that the watches should be set.

Star Clock Gains

"The most valuable and best made clock in the observatory is that which keeps star-time," said Professor Comstock in discussing the various university clocks. This is not regulated by wireless reports but by Professor Comstock's own observation of the stars. The star clock gains four minutes a day on the sun-time clocks except on March 21 of each year when star and sun-time are together.

Jamboree Tickets Go on Sale Today

Tickets for the Varsity Jamboree will be sold on the hill for two weeks, beginning today, by members of a committee working under Walter Frautschi '24, chairman of the ticket committee.

After two weeks tickets will be put on open sale, but will be sold only upon presentation of fee cards. This requirement has been made in order that the Jamboree will be a strictly university student mixer.

The price of admission will be 50 cents a person.

Gun and Blade to Hold Play Tryouts

Tryouts for the musical comedy, "The Bells of Beaujolais," to be given at the Pre-Military Ball play, will be held between 2 and 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Gun and Blade parlors, Union building. The comedy has fourteen leads, seven men, and seven women.

All those wishing to try out for the leads will be expected to be present.

Agricultural Stock Show Now Only Three Days Away

With only three days remaining before the Little International Live Stock show to be held in the university Stock pavilion, next Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock, final workouts are being held by participants in the riding events of the evening.

Great interest is manifested in the inter-sorority riding contest, in which seven sororities are entered. Participants are practicing daily for the event. A $15 silver cup will be awarded to the winner of the contest.

Hold Secret Practice

The names of the contestants are: Polly Ambrose, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Evelyn McFarland, Delta Delta Delta; Marion Lynch, Alpha Omicron Pi; Elsie Brannen, Gamma Phi Beta; Elaine Mabley, Delta Gamma; Marjorie Boesch, Kappa Alpha Theta; Margaret Knox, Alpha Xi Delta.

The names of the entrants in the dairy maid contest have not as yet been published. It is reported that secret practice is held daily at the dairy barn.

Reserved Seats on Sale

Reserved seats for people who want seats near the center of the stock pavilion may be procured by sending $1 together with a stamped self-addressed envelope to Helmer Casperson, 309 N. Mills street.

Edwin Booth Holds Play Tryouts Today

Tryouts for the Edwin Booth plays will be held from 3:30 to 5:30 today in Lathrop parlors.

The two plays to be given by Edwin Booth are: "A Night of the Trojan War," by John Drinkwater, and "The Workhouse Ward," by Lady Gregory. The plays offer a variety of parts, and university men outside the club are urged to try out, as well as all of the Edwin Booth members. Men may also try out for production work.

Those not members of Edwin Booth who make the cast will have a chance to be elected to membership in the club.

Women Transfers Form New Social Organization Here

A new organization of women transfers was formed last night when the students held a banquet at Lathrop hall, and elected the following officers: Helen M. Heck '24, president; Anita K. Haven '24, vice-president; Lillian B. Jennings '24, secretary and treasurer.

"This group of transfer students will be an informal social organization which will welcome girls from other states in the fall and throughout the year extend to them the 'glad hand,'" said Miss Mary Andersen, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., who was one of the dinner speakers.

Dean F. Louise Nardin welcomed the 110 transfer students, who represented 24 states.

The new organization will meet and dine together in Lathrop hall the first Tuesday in every month and is anxious to have all women transfers join the group.

GELTCH CONCERT PROVES TREAT TO VIOLIN LOVERS

Former Wisconsin Professor Appears in Pleasing Concert

Madison lovers of music enjoyed another treat last night when Waldo Gelch, former professor of violin at the University of Wisconsin, gave a violin recital at the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Gelch was accompanied by Lowell L. Townsend at the piano.

The program presented was as follows:

Concerto in G. Minor—Bruch.

Allegro Moderato

Adagio

Allegro Energico

Minuet—Paderewski-Krisler.

Nocturne in E flat—Chopin Saraste

La Gitana—Kreisler

Bird as Prophet—Schumann-Auer

Turkish March—Beethoven-Auer

Nobody Knows de Trouble I've Seen—White.

Waves at Play—Grasse

To a Wild Rose—MacDowell

Hartman

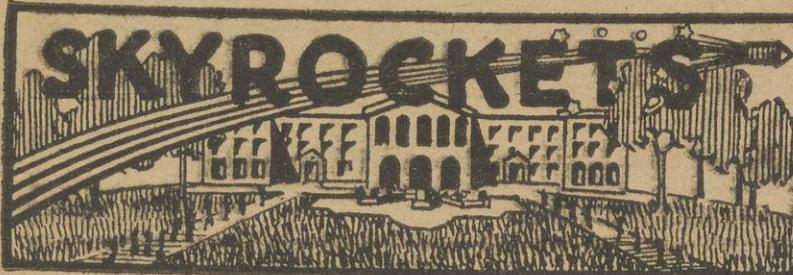

From a Wigwam—Cecil Burleigh

From the Canebrake—Samuel

Gardner

Encores given were the "Hindu Chant," "Forsaken," by Winternitz, and a "Slumber Song," and repetition of the "Bird as Prophet."

Professor Gelch held the enthusiastic attention of his audience throughout the program. His masterful technique, harmonious double tones, vibrantly clear harmonics, and the sweetness and depth of expression characterized everything which he played.

IT IS with tearful concern that we learn from the local news that there are too many outsiders at the university. Think of it! Thirty per cent of the enrollment comes from outside the state; there is at least one from every state in the union, and one or more from each of 24 countries. Imagine the advertising this place must get. Why even the King of Siam must know that we have Dad Wolf and the Y. M. C. A. And the most tangled part of Peru will shortly know why the D. G.'s close the windows and pull the shades on the first floor. But most of all, it bothers us to think that within a week or so some Guatemalan insurrecto will be chuckling over the fact that somebody always forgets to abide by the S. G. A. rules.

NOW that Richards is scouting material in the region of the Nile, it can be supposed that he is investigating the Cleopatra legend, hoping to learn the technique of her wildest ways. And then, next fall, we may expect to see a scrimmage line of ossified mummies, and four Egyptian dancers playing in the backfield. Picture Rollie Williams' slender and suggestive torso straining lithely backwards as he casts a meaning glance at the bewildered opponents, preparatory to skipping rhythmically away with the ball. This needs a cut or two to illustrate the possibilities.

REPORT $767 PROFIT FROM HOMECOMING

Returns of 1921 About Average
—Bailey Suggests Features
Between Halves Be Omitted

A net profit of $767.24 remaining after all 1921 Homecoming bills have been paid has been turned over by Donald Bailey '22, general chairman of 1921 Homecoming, to Frank Nickerson of the Athletic department.

The sum will be added to an intra-mural fund used to defray expenses of inter-college and inter-class athletics, and the trip of the freshman football team to Chicago. The profit, while somewhat less than that realized from the 1921 Homecoming, is about the average return received from past Homecomings, according to Nickerson.

Suggests Annual Carnival

In his report to Nickerson, Bailey recommends that the features between halves of the game be reduced or eliminated entirely, inasmuch as the usual stunts are not compatible with the dignity of the occasion and time does not allow for anything more elaborate. He further recommends that the Feature carnival on the night preceding the game be made a Homecoming institution.

A detailed report of the receipts and disbursements for the 1921 Homecoming follows:

THE PENETENTIAL SEASON

TODAY, Ash Wednesday, marks the beginning of the Lenten season, which for hundreds of years has been a revered tradition of Christendom. It has been set out by custom as a time for introspection, for turning the attention to the serious business of living, for the close guarding of self-indulgence.

It is a good thing that this tradition has come down the ages. True, very often it is observed only as a form and its deep meaning is lost. This is always a danger attending the institutionalizing of an idea such as the one underlying the observance of the forty days before Easter.

However, this is no reason why people cannot enter into the spirit of the season earnestly and thoughtfully. In this age of hurry and bustle, of striving after outward things, of interest in superficialities, it is well that tradition challenges men at this season to stop and search their hearts. The time demands that men turn their thoughts to principles which many of the best have acclaimed as the salvation of the world and for which thousands have laid down their lives at the stake or on the rack.

The world is a sorry mess. Might it not be well in this season to think on the things of the spirit?

THE CURSE OF THE PEN

IT is peculiar how convenience can become a block to progress. We have so many things coming right to our door that we lose the ingenuity which comes from going after them. We get rocks where we once got diamonds.

Books are now turned off the press like hot cakes. Everybody is reading, old and young, ignorant and wise, guided, misguided, and unguided. Everybody is not only reading, but everybody with the faintest literary conceit is writing and courting the patronage of the publishing business. The mania at both ends is now so severe that when an ordinary seriously bent person surveys the "recent books" on the shelves of a public library he finds upon exit that he has fingered much chaff and little wheat.

It indicates to what an extent the improvement of the printing machine and the growth of compulsory education has added to the accretions of intellectual bunkum. But it could not be helped. It is the price we are paying for democracy. And inevitably so, for every progressive institution demands its price. But with our democracy it would not at all be out of place if the would-be writers develop a certain responsibility and keep for their private sanctums what has been so much better written by their sires whom they ape.

The wealth of pure unadulterated bunkum is becoming so tremendous that the person honestly interested in books loses all confidence in them and begins to turn to himself for intellectual power albeit he may not have the necessary preparatory training. Moreover, he is often unable to differentiate between a good and a bad book, for so often bad books have loud horns blown for them by the booksellers, and often a man with a reputation in one field may write a book on an entirely different one and give weight to a book about which he speaks with little authority.

But this tendency now-a-days is not entirely a curse only in the sense that it makes people fall back on their own observation and thinking. However, it is no doubt responsible for much of the misapprehensions in regard to contemporary things.

Would that the universities take a greater hand in guiding the student in his reading of contemporary literature. How much valuable time it would save for everybody. The universities, which after all are the only responsible educational factor in a democracy, ought to be guiding the masses of the country in their reading.

The people of a democracy, which live in the confusion of indiscriminate printing press products, can never arise out of their eighth grade minds unless some institution takes vital steps to lead them. The university is the rightful institution. Some universities are perhaps doing this already, but the idea needs to be spread broadcast. For, if the college graduate finds difficulty in selecting his reading, how about the man of the street?

ECONOMY AMONG STUDENTS

All the world loves a cheerful giver. When drives come along, we reverence the magnificent person who rises to pledge extravagantly; we have a warm feeling in our hearts toward the jolly individual who sweeps all the soda checks into his hand and says, "Never mind, this is my treat." We admire good clothes, and although we speak in a friendly and democratic way to sweaters, we form our friends among fur-coats, if possible. If we attend all of the good theatrical performances, musical and student athletic events, entertain royally at dinners, and never turn away a friend who asks for a loan, we glow with conviviality and we have a large following among the student body.

The question is, is it our own money that we are so lavish with? Millionaires' sons and daughters have a right to scatter their dollars, but often an examination of facts will show that the young Croesus at school is being supported by the fruits of a boot-blacking establishment at home, whereas the plain clothes man may have a background of yachts and ancestral banquet halls. If one makes his own money, it is his to spend until he runs through it, but when Father is clerking at the bank until all hours of the night, Mother is taking in roomers, and the children are wearing their old shoes and patched rompers to "send our boy to college," the thrift under such conditions, he is a merciless student should remember that if he is a spendthrift.

Rich or poor, economy is a laudable practice under any circumstances.—Daily Illini.

Communications

CROWDED GYM CONDITIONS

Editor Daily Cardinal:

I am referring the attached letter to you, as it appeals to me as the supreme example of the attitude of a few departments in the university toward the student body. Besides being the most ludicrous letter I have ever received from one who evidently takes himself seriously, this letter is evidently a belated attempt on the part of persons sometimes accused of possessing intelligence, to cope with the situation existing in the gymnasium locker room.

Any student, who has had occasion to intrust valuables to the tender care of the authorities in charge of the locker room, is fully aware of the situation there regarding dishonesty, and were it not for the absurdly pitiful nature of the measures now apparently adopted, I am sure we should all welcome action.

I shall thank you to make Mr. Hagen's letter, with this reply, either the subject of an editorial or else publish it as a communication over my name.

Sincerely,

T. B. MAXFIELD, Jr., '22.

The letter from Mr. Hagen follows:

February 27th, 1922.

Mr. T. B. Maxfield,

Dear Sir:

I am writing you in regard to the steel locker which you had during the first semester of this year in the U. W. gymnasium.

I find that you have not renewed this locker for the second semester, and therefore was rented to another party. Today this party complained that some-one took a gym towel out of this locker, and seeing that you are the only other person who has the combination to same, it looks bad for you.

If you took this towel by mistake, please return it to the gymnasium office at once, for we will not stand for any tomfoolery.

Expecting a comeback from you, I am

Sincerely yours,

GEO. H. HAGEN,

Tracy Speaks on Campus Problems

That the open forum movement is growing in favor with students at the university, and that there is a reaction against over-organization and extra-curricula activities this year, were the opinions expressed by Sterling Tracy '22 in an address on "Campus Problems" before the St. Francis society, Sunday evening.

The lack of a large auditorium has prevented meetings of the whole student body to discuss such problems in the past, but this difficulty will be overcome by the new Memorial Union building, Tracy predicted.

A general discussion followed the address which brought forth many opinions on the honor system and similar questions of the students present.

ACCIDENT PUTS BADGER SKIER OUT OF RACE

Norberg Forced Out After Leading Field For Miles

Because of an accident sustained after he had led the field for more than half of a 20-mile course, Tom Norberg, Wisconsin skier who competed in the Canadian national championship meet, was forced to delay so long that he failed to place at Ottawa, Can., last Sunday.

Norberg started out ahead of a large field of entrants. An accident to his equipment forced him to stop after he had covered 10 miles in the van of the procession. Before repairs could be made, his opponents had passed him. The Badger made up much of the ground lost and finished the cross country race.

Omtvedt Wins

He arrived at Ottawa two hours late on Saturday and was unable to enter the ski-jumping contest which was held in the afternoon. As a result of Norberg's trip to Canada four members of the Canadian Ski club have promised to come to Madison for the interstate meet next year.

Ragnar Omtvedt of the Norge Ski club, Chicago, won the Canadian amateur championship tournament held at Ottawa under the auspices of the Canadian Ski association.

Has Four Championships

In addition to winning the title Omtvedt also placed first on the longest standing jump event with a leap of 120 feet.

University of Wisconsin outdoor enthusiasts saw the title-holder win the interstate title here last week. He now holds four championships won this season. Starting with a victory in the American amateur title in the Cary tournament in January, he won the Northwest title at Minneapolis, the interstate title at Madison, and the Canadian championship at Ottawa.

Chicago Wrestlers Tackle Badgers in Big Meet Saturday

The University of Chicago wrestling team which will meet Wisconsin here on Saturday evening held Iowa to a six-point margin of victory in its last matches.

Although the Maroons were defeated, they showed marked improvement over their form in early meets, and they are expected to give Hitchcock's men a tough battle.

Coach George Hitchcock is grooming two men for the heavyweight position, Kingston, reputed to be a comer, and Kiessling, are working out for position held by the big fellows.

Capt. "Cy" Peterman, Badger star matman, will strive to maintain his clean record made in previous matches. Peterman has yet to lose a dual match. He pinned Griffith, Northwestern, in his last time out, and handed Capt. "Cy" Stoner, Minnesota wrestler, his first licking in three years. If "Pete" can win from Keeler, Chicago, he will be practically assured of an opportunity to enter the Big Ten individual championship tournament, which will be held at Madison in March. Only undefeated men are eligible to compete.

Hotowski, 135-pounder, is the man counted on to win points for Chicago. If he can be disposed of, Wisconsin wrestlers are given more than an even chance to capture the meet.

Irish, the Badger "Fighting Harp," was formerly a star on the Lawrence college basketball team. He is a football man of considerable experience, also.

Paper, a Michigan substitute guard, got into the game against Wisconsin. He was terrible.

BIG TRACK SQUAD OF 20 MEN TO GO TO RELAY MEET

Will Enter Four Relays and Nine Special Events at Champaign

Twenty men of Coach Jones' cinder squad will represent Wisconsin in the annual Illinois relay carnival at Champaign this Saturday. The score of track stars are entered in four relays and nine special events.

The Badger team in the four mile relay will consist of milers chosen from the following members of the squad: Wall, Rossmiessel, Ramsay, Schneider, Wille, and Hohfeldt. If the men continue in their present form, a quartet picked from these should be able to hold its own against the fastest of the milers at Urbana.

Two Mile Team Weak

In the two mile relay, Wall, Ramsay, Wade, and Hohfeldt will each negotiate a half mile. Although all of the men are fair at the distance, none of them are truly stars. Wall, while probably the fastest of the four, is out of his accustomed place in the half mile, and while the team can be called a good one, against such all star aggregations as are expected from Pennsylvania and some of the western schools, too much cannot be counted on from the Badger team.

With Johnson, Spetz, Stolley, Wade, and Ellison to pick from for the one mile relay, a speedy team is assured. These men are all rated highly as quarter milers, and will put up a stiff argument in the Illinois meet. Their strongest opponent will be the Pennsylvania last year's champions, two of whom are running on this season's team.

Medley Team Entered

Wisconsin will enter a medley team consisting of Spetz, Johnson, Wade, and Wall. These men are all good at their distances and will give a good account of themselves in the Saturday race.

The Badgers' brightest hopes in the special events are based on the hurdling ability of Knollen and Stolley and the stellar vaulting of Merrick and McClure. Sundt is entered in both the broad jump and the shot put. Platten and Gibson will represent Wisconsin in the high jump, and Wall will be a strong entrant in the 1500 yard run. In the speed events, Spetz and Knollen will take care of the 75 yard dash, and Johnson and Spetz will enter the 300 yard run.

Nebraska Wrestlers Defeat Iowa Team

Wrestlers of the University of Nebraska triumphed over a team from Iowa university, 28 to 22, Saturday night. Of the seven events, Nebraska took two falls and two decisions and Iowa two falls and one decision. Interest centered chiefly in the light-heavyweight event when Troutman avenged his defeat last year at the hands of the same opponent by throwing Hunter in eight minutes with a reverse headlock.

Finkle is Promised Complete Recovery

George H. Finkle's right leg will be "almost as good as new," according to a South Bend, Ind., doctor, who is treating the injured Badger track man and who say that the leg will be able to perform its "functional duties" without any trouble.

Finkle, long distance runner, broke the limb while he was beginning the final sprint in a two-mile run against Notre Dame nine days ago. He had previously captured the mile event.

When the Wisconsin track team returns from the Illinois relays at Urbana next Saturday, members of the squad will meet Finkle and bring him to Madison with them. He will be unable to sit up.

"An X-ray picture shows a slight angulation of the break," says the doctor in a letter to Coach Thomas E. Jones, "but this cannot be seen on the leg."

Polo Will Be New Sport at Wisconsin

Artillerymen of the Wisconsin R. O. T. C. unit will assume the role of polo players this spring.

A field will be allotted to the Field Artillerymen who have grown proficient in the handling of horses and the new sport, which has been taken up extensively at eastern universities, will be developed as rapidly as possible by Lieut. E. A. Erickson of the university unit.

Twenty-five upperclassmen are enrolled in the field artillery work which includes instruction in riding and in the use of horses on tactical problems.

Lieutenant Erickson expects a favorable reply to his requisition asking headquarters for trained polo ponies.

Tank Men to Meet Minnesota Friday In Fast Contest

The Varsity swimming team will meet Minnesota here at 8 o'clock Friday night. The time of the meet was formerly set for Saturday afternoon.

The Gopher tank men won second place in the conference last season, and as they have practically the same team this year, are entertaining great hopes for the championship. Minnesota has defeated both Northwestern and Iowa by high scores. In the meet with Northwestern, last week, the Gophers broke two conference records. They lowered the relay record by two seconds, and went under the 200 yard breast stroke record by 3.35 seconds. Besides having record-breakers in the two events mentioned they have an exceptionally well balanced team throughout.

In spite of the strength of the Gophers, Coach "Joe" Steinauer feels confident that his team has good chances of winning the meet. Collins, and Koch, who are both divers, and also Bennett, have bad colds at present, but are expected to be in shape to participate on Friday night. If the Badger tank men are all able to take part in the meet, the team will have probably more than an even chance to win, considering that they will be swimming in their home tank.

In any event, no matter which team wins, the struggle is going to be close, and it is not improbable that some more records will be smashed as the Badgers broke three records in their meet with Illinois and the Gophers broke two in their Northwestern meet.

Purple Tank Men Lose Two Meets

The Northwestern university swimming team met its second defeat in the Twin Cities when it lost to the St. Paul Athletic club swimmers Saturday night, 30 to 29. Minnesota defeated the Purple team at Minneapolis Friday night.

Race by Telegraph With Hawkeye Frosh

The second of the year's novel telegraphic meets will be carried on Saturday afternoon with the yearlings of the University of Iowa via the wireless route.

In the meet with the Hawkeyes advantages will be more evenly distributed than in the earlier Illinois meet where the Sucker frosh had the advantage of a much faster track. The Badger freshmen are in fine shape for the meet, and after their good showing against Illinois, should be able to clean up on Coach Bresnahan's Iowans.

"Dad" Vail, the "Grand old man of western rowing," hopes to send a Badger crew to Poughkeepsie this year. With the Cardinal of Wisconsin again floating over the placid waters of Poughkeepsie-on-the-Hudson, the eastern regatta will look like a return to normalcy.

DEFEATS DROPS BADGERS INTO FOURTH PLACE

Team May Finish Second if Illinois Loses

BIG TEN STANDING

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Purdue	7	1	.875
Illinois	7	3	.700
Michigan	6	4	.600
Wisconsin	5	4	.556
Minnesota	5	6	.455
Iowa	4	5	.445
Chicago	4	5	.445
Ohio State	4	6	.400
Indiana	3	7	.300
Northwestern	3	7	.300

The 37 to 35 defeat handed the Badgers by Illinois on Monday night sent Wisconsin down to fourth place in the percentage column, as Michigan's additional game played gives her a higher rating.

Breaks Lose by Two Points

The battle was a hard one for the Badgers to lose, but Dame Fortune insisted on having her own way, as has been the case on several occasions this season. Three of the four games that the Badgers have dropped this year have been lost by a margin of not more than two points. In each case Meanwell's team had either equalled or exceeded their opponents in team play, but the breaks came against them, and wrecked any championship aspirations that might have existed.

While Wisconsin outplayed the Illini for the greater portion of the game, the Suckers managed to drop baskets through the hoop at opportune times, giving each team a total of 15 field goals. The fact that the Badgers committed 14 fouls as against 7 by the Illinois players gave Captain Carney ample opportunity to pick up enough points to give his team the game, notwithstanding the poor record that he made in that department of play.

Illinois May Lose

Wisconsin still has a chance for second place, providing that they win the three games remaining on the schedule, and that Illinois drops to Purdue. The latter condition seems to fall true, as the Suckers were able to win by only a single point at Urbana. The rate at which the Gopher five has been traveling of late would not indicate that they can win from the Badgers next Saturday night, but a victory over Wisconsin is secondary only to a conference championship in the minds of Minnesotans, insuring a hard battle for the Badgers.

Coach Meanwell and his team returned to town last night, and will have today and tomorrow in which to limber up before they leave for Minneapolis. The squad is in fair shape, with Tebell's injured leg slowly improving.

Michigan Improving

After a disastrous start, the Wolverines have managed to pull themselves up among the leading fives in the conference. They stand an even chance of winning their two remaining tilts, which may throw them into a tie with Wisconsin and Illinois for second place when the season is ended. Should this be the case, the same four teams that were at the top when the curtain fell on the season a year ago.

Ohio State's 20 to 18 victory over Indiana on Monday night leaves the Hoosiers scrapping with Northwestern over last place. Both Indiana and the Buckeyes have played erratic ball all season, but it was hardly to be expected that Troutman's five would overcome the Levismen on the latter's own floor.

"There's no fool like an old fool." Dan O'Leary, champion walker, is still challenging the youngsters to long-distance treks. O'Leary held the walking record when "Prexy" Birge was trying to learn the alphabet.

German Club Will Read Der Talisman

A program of unusual interest is offered by the German club at its next meeting, at 7:30 this evening, in Lathrop hall.

Fulda's play, "Der Talisman," will be read in part. The play, first published in 1895, has had a great stage success and is still popular. Its roles, particularly the comic roles which form a large part of the drama, are almost unsurpassed; and the entire play from start to finish is charming and appealing. The role of Rita, a young child of nature, is exquisitely drawn; and in another character—the king—many critics have read a satire on the ex-emperor of Germany. This play is one of several by Fulda, all of which have been signalized by their theatrical intensity and effectiveness.

Those taking part are the following: Miss Frieda Meyer; Messrs. Bruns, Roedder, Morgan, Andresohn, Kriewaldt, Guillemin, and R. Hohlfeld. The public is cordially invited.

GOPHERS TERRORIZED BY HUGE WHITE FLAG

(By W. C. Radio News Service)
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 28—The University of Minnesota campus was terrorized yesterday by the appearance on the flag pole of a white flag with a huge black maltese cross, bearing the words, "We Are Here." Handbills bearing the same inscription were found on every chair in Folwell hall.

WEATHER

The highest temperature during the past 24 hours was 19 at 7 a. m. yesterday, and 2 below at 7 a. m. this morning. The sun sets at 5:46.

The cold wave from the northwest reached the middle Mississippi valley and southern plains this morning, preceded by rain turning to snow and accompanied by zero temperature. It continues extremely cold in the northwestern state with a minimum of 32 below zero in Miles City, Mont., but the temperature is moderating in western Canada.
