ADMINISTRATION

STATE OF WISCONSIN EXECUTIVE OFFICE MADISON

PHILIP F. LA FOLLETTE

Perhaps the outstanding characteristic of Wisconsin as a state is the forward-looking and community minded attitude of its citizens. Concrete evidence of that attitude is the fact that the citizens of Wisconsin have always insisted that there be provided in our state broad and adequate educational opportunities for all.

The University of Wisconsin, in its position of leadership among educational institutions of the nation, is a fitting monument to the spirit of Wisconsin citizens. The maintenance of the University as an institution through which youth may, under wise and competent leadership, acquire knowledge of and benefit from that which already has been done, and thus become better fitted to meet the exacting demands of a social order constantly increasing in complexity, is a task to which Wisconsin citizens are devoted and one which they will never neglect.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

This issue of the Badger differs distinctively from other issues which have been brought to focus on University problems and trends. It seeks to reflect the beauty of the environment in which Wisconsin students are privileged to pursue the enterprise of learning. In doing this, however, the Badger is reflecting the spirit of the institution and exemplifying the Wisconsin tradition quite as much as if it dealt soberly and at length with University problems and trends. For beauty means poise and freshness and vitality and proportion and a right relating of otherwise diverse elements. And this, I think, is a rather decent definition of the Wisconsin spirit as well.

SCOTT HOLLAND GOODNIGHT

Dean of Men Dean of the Summer Session

Dear Class of '36:

You are, doubtless, not a perfect '36, but it may be successfully contended, I believe, that you are one of the best qualified classes that has graduated from the University in several decades. The reasons lie more, perhaps, in your environment and in the effect upon you of general social and economic conditions than in yourselves. Recent classes, notwithstanding their earnestness, have been graduating into the futility and stagnation of unemployment. Classes prior to 1930 had had a too joyous and carefree outlook on life and had not found it necessary to take college work too seriously.

In contrast to the first group, you are graduating at a time when the outlook is brightening and when you can go forth with some expectation of realizing the purposes of your training. In contrast to the earlier groups, your student days fell in a depression period which has brought about a more serious interest in study, in selfculture and in the problems of public life than any student generation has had for decades.

The difficulties are not all gone, even yet. Some of you may fail to find employment or you may meet with frustration and disappointment, but, as a class, you go forth probably better equipped and with better prospects than your predecessors for many years. Wisconsin is proud of you and wishes you well.

Cordially yours,

At Sun might

LOUISE TROXELL GREELEY

Dean of Women

"What are young people like nowadays?" "Are they more serious than formerly?" "How have they reacted to hard times?" These and others like them are the questions we are most often asked in our office. Possibly because we act as a general clearing house for the interests of the women students, we are expected to know the answers. It is a curious thing, this unflagging interest on the part of the public in the emotions and reactions of the young.

Each year certain disturbing things happen among students and we wish there were fewer for whom the difficulties of life seem too great. But for every one of these there are hundreds who meet what life brings with a courage and resourcefulness that is an example to their elders.

The first realization of the depression brought a kind of stoicism to many, quite foreign to their natural temperaments. Time has softened this. Courage remains but I am happy to see that the old gaiety, so inalienable a right of youth, is coming back again to our students.

"What are they like?" They are courageous, they are purposeful, and they are an inspiration to all whose privilege it is to work with them.

Student Financial Adviser

Handling an annual volume of business of almost $300,000 and acting as guardian angel for the finances of almost 60 student organizations, Ray Hilsenhoff, student financial adviser, has made his new office felt as an important factor in campus affairs this year.

Mr. Hilsenhoff, who for several years held this position outside of the regular office hours of his position in the university business office, was the logical choice when the office was put on a full-time basis and made an official part of the university administration. Formerly paid by the organizations he worked with and acting as an optional convenience the organizations could use if they wished, Mr. Hilsenhoff is now paid by the university from funds supplied by the student groups; all student groups handling money except fraternities and sororities come under his jurisdiction.

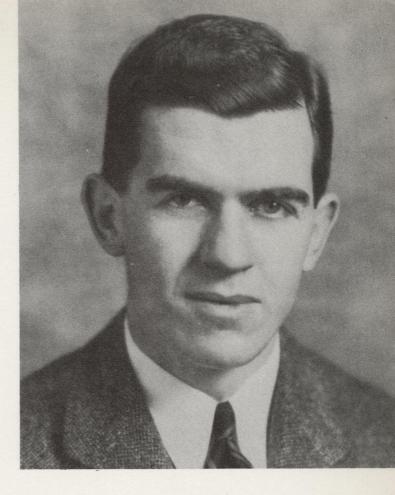

Although the new system has been in effect less than a semester, it has proved its value. An outstanding example is the Class of 1937 Junior Prom, which showed a profit of $1200. A large part of the improvement in dance management was due to the pressure from Mr. Hilsenhoff and Scott H. Goodnight, dean of men, for a reduction in the number of complimentary tickets and a more careful estimation of expenditures.

The success of the system is shown by the fact that the university booking service for orchestras has been brought under it and that several fraternities and sororities have sought admission.

Discounting the stories of graft in publications and other activities, Mr. Hilsenhoff says that he sees the chief value of his office in providing some sort of administration which lasts from one year to the next; similarly, the information gathered by all organizations may be pooled to help in the formation of financial policy.

CHARLES DOLLARD

Assistant Dean of Men

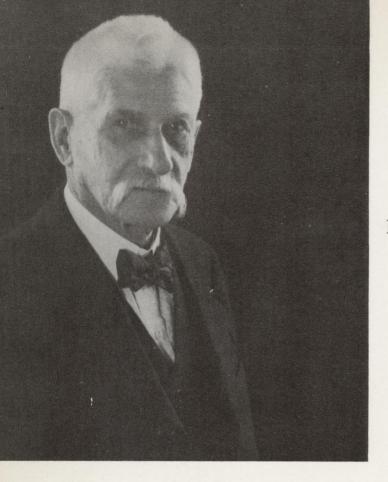

When Charles Dollard became assistant Dean of Men at the beginning of the second semester of this year, he stepped out of one busy office into another. After over five years as assistant house director of the Memorial Union, he took a new position created this year by the Board of Regents.

Dean Dollard—"Chuck" to hundreds of students—had been employed under Porter Butts in the Memorial Union since its opening in the fall of 1928. Dean Scott H. Goodnight, his immediate superior in the new office, has been campaigning for the creation of the new job for several years, and Dean Dollard fitted into it as naturally as he had into the Union.

Working with fraternities occupies much of Mr. Dollard's time, lightening Dean Goodnight's load a great deal. Since he has the viewpoint of a man older than the members of the fraternities but young enough to appreciate their problems, he is having definite success in working for the benefit of the organized men. Administrative work covering the whole fraternity field demands a faculty officer with deep interest in the men, and in Mr. Dollard it seems to have found the man.

Since the University Summer School, one of the largest in the Middle West, is managed by Dean Goodnight, Mr. Dollard is also Assistant Dean of the Summer Session. In this field, his part has been handling correspondence in connection with the school.

Mr. Dollard's work will be expanded in the next few years as it becomes more evident where his help will be needed and what he can do best, according to plans of the university. With the large jurisdiction of the office, which handles elections, publications, fraternities, and many other student activities, there is considerable room for a young man who wants to keep busy.

EDWARD ASAHEL BIRGE

President Emeritus

A WORD FROM THE PAST

"Sixty years since"—for I met my first zoology class here on Wednesday, January 5, 1876. My appointment dates from the preceding commencement, but the University saved a little much needed money by starting my teaching with the second term.

The University? Well, there was a faculty of 20, half professors, half instructors; 276 "students in college studies"; 32 seniors; a Law School "down town" and meeting the "Hill College" only at commencement; a good-sized bunch of "Preps". For buildings—all classes in the small center of Bascom; North and South Halls, outwardly as now, but then men's dormitories; a small part of Chadbourne; a wooden shed of a Gym, near the present Bell Tower.

You of today may well walk over the Campus, count the gifts that years have brought to you and ask of the altered temper of the State which has so changed the Campus. For sixty years ago it was still an open question whether the duty of the State extended to a University, though the authorization of Science Hall in 1875 foreshadowed the decision.

The University of today is the visible reply of the State to the wider question. Doubt changed to assurance; assurance brought action; action yielded results which gave greater confidence and determination. Faith in education as the path of progress for citizen and State; determination that this path should be an open way in Wisconsin, and a way open to ever greater heights—these were the forces which, all over the State, became incarnate in countless men and women for whose own youth no such open way was present. Their spirit kindled in Governors and Legislators the courage and the faith to build and maintain an open way for you.

JULIA M. WILKINSON

Executive Secretary to the President

The President has his aide-de-camp, in the able person of Julia M. Wilkinson, executive secretary. Miss Wilkinson assumed her secretarial duties several years ago and has occupied the same office with the past three Presidents of the University. A twinkling eye and a grand sense of humor combine to make her affable and always willing to help students (or, in her own words) "the kids." This secretary opens on an average of seventy-five letters daily and answers many which never reach the desk of President Frank. Among the letters are inquiries concerning the care of sick birds, arranging an infant's diet and how to fix a furnace. Miss Wilkinson explains that President Frank writes his own speeches and is an excellent typist. Upon retirement she hopes to author a book on the trials and tribulations of a President's secretary, and then she adds "I'll leave town just as soon as it's printed."

MARGARET ANN ELLINGSON Assistant to Dean Goodnight

Margaret Ann Ellingson, assistant to Dean Scott H. Goodnight, holds the lock and key to summer school, pledge lists, fraternity initiations and pledge grades. She both analyzes and explains the intricacies of the fraternity world. After three years of censoring the Octopus, alone an arduous task, the more important duties of summer school have become another responsibility for her. Some eighteen thousand pieces of literature are mailed from this office and much of the prominence enjoyed by the summer session is due to Miss Ellingson's efforts. Always smiling, congenial and courteous, she welcomes visitors of all classes and all interests. Of course all billiard matches with Dean Goodnight are filed at her desk—the scores tactfully omitted.

NORA BISHOP

Secretary to Dean Middleton of the Medical School

In the business office on North Charter street, the routine of the Medical School is competently handled by Dean William Middleton's secretary, Mrs. Nora Bishop. Letters arrive daily, containing varied inquiries; among which are questions on the contents of patent medicines and the propriety of their use: Blanks and forms for medical licenses and recommendations for fellowships all flow from this desk. To her office are brought many student problems, and under Mrs. Bishop's guidance come brighter plans for the future. Sincerity and cordiality make her the ideal confidante for both medics and pre-medics.

JOSEPHINE V. MAHER

Secretary to Dr. Meek of the Medical School

Down the corridor of the Memorial Institute building, a turn to the right and you are in the office of Dr. Meek with Josephine V. Maher at her desk. Here gather the aspiring physicians of tomorrow to arrange their programs under her observing care. One of the most amusing letters ever received at this office is the note written by a farm hand, who, having cured a calf of some affliction, made known his intention to enter the Medical School and politely asked if he might become a doctor in several months because harvest time was soon coming. Although Miss Maher once aspired to become a physical education instructor, her present wish is for travel, Hawaii preferred. Pre-meds, dropping in for a chat, find a sympathetic listener.

INA MAYNARD

Assistant to Dean Sellery of the College of Letters and Science

Ina Maynard, recently appointed assistant to Dean G. C. Sellery, assumed her duties with such ease and sheer capability that her presence has become invaluable. Brisk and efficient, Miss Maynard dispenses the business of the College of Letters and Science with a precision that makes her office most attractive and cheerful. At the beginning and end of each semester, her desk is piled high with Executive Committee actions, in themselves depressing, but not enough to erase her eagerness to counsel. Faculty appointments are scrutinized and approved at this desk and students seeking reduced programs are patiently heard. Here the upperclassmen find understanding and considered guidance.

MARY R. O'KEEFE

Secretary to Dean Millar of the College of Engineering

Mary R. O'Keefe is one of the main cogs in the machinery of the Engineering School. Appointed faculty stenographer in 1918, Miss O'Keefe is a valuable assitant to Dean Millar and is deeply interested in the problems of the student. She has been instrumental in finding jobs for needy students to help them finish school. Many who come into the office for her criticisms of their drawings are assured of their merits, whether the technical artistry is good or bad. In her years with the College of Engineering, Miss O'Keefe has learned many of the practical aspects of the profession, and while it may be truthfully said that she is a human engineer, her knowledge of the field of engineering is by no means slight. Here is a secretary who measures friendship, sincerity and efficiency, not with the slide rule, but with years of understanding and faithful service.

Combining their work as members of the University faculty with the no less arducus labors of authorship, eight teachers have published books within a period of a little more than a year. Their value cannot, of course, be ascertained in so short a period after they first issued from the publishing houses. Some have come into the world relatively unnoticed; others have, like Professor Walter A. Agard's, been the centers of violent controversy. But in the fact of their authorship by Wisconsin men and women lies their interest to a university public.

Miss Helen White's third book "Not Built With Hands" (Macmillan) appeared early in 1935. Miss White, a professor of English, has written two previous novels in her general field of mystical literature, and her novel, "A Watch in the Night," won wide acclaim in 1934. "Not Built With Hands" is a historical romance of the eleventh century in which the author makes for modern readers real and vital the events of an earlier day. It tells the story of Matilda, Countess of Tuscany, a beautiful and spirited girl whose early ambition was to restore in her rude realm something of the vanished splendor of ancient civilization, and who as a result of domestic affliction and political confusion developed a devotion to the public interest in a much wider sphere. The novel graphically portrays the struggle between church and state, a condition which dominated the events of the time.

Autobiography is contributed by John R. Commons' volume, "Myself" (Macmillan), a concession to the insistence of a group of the author's friends. the "Friday Niters," written after his seventieth birthday.

Mr. Commons, emeritus professor of economics, traces his life from his birth in Richmond, Indiana, in 1862 to the present day, and, although the author constantly attempts to portray his own short-comings in a reflective and mildly facetious style that is delightful to read, one has the feeling, after completing this little volume, that he has delved into the soul of a great man. The book is best described by the author himself when he says in his opening chapter, "I do not write this as a chronology. It is the genesis of my ideas." What Mr. Commons neglects to say, however, is that the ideas revealed in the book are products of an experience—a considerable experience, none of which failed to leave its impression on the development of those ideas.

> Professor William B. Hesseltine's "Ulysses S. Grant-Politician" (Dodd-Mead) is regarded by historians as the first truly complete, scholarly, and critical post-war study of Ulysses S. Grant.

> The Wisconsin history professor presents the young soldier in 1865 when he returned from Appomattox to Washington, and then, after a thorough and unflinching survey of the role played by Grant in reconstruction, including his famous quarrel with President Johnson, he describes Grant's election to the presidency. The author then proceeds to an account of the eight tempestuous and corruption-filled years which marked Grant's two terms in the White House. A large amount of previously unused manuscript material upon the president and the events of his period are used in this volume.

> With a careful regard for accuracy Professor Hesseltine handles the subject pungently and slashingly. Grant is treated unsympathetically but never unfairly. Upon this lurid period of American history, this Wisconsin historian casts a flood of new light.

When Walter R. Agard's book, "The New Architectural Sculpture" (Oxford) first appeared, the professor of Greek was both commended and attacked on his views and ideas as he set them forth. The fact that this piece of work was greeted with such a stir among art circles is perhaps an indication of its significance.

In "The New Architectural Sculpture," Mr. Agard sets forth the radical changes in architectural sculpture which have been made during the past twenty years to keep pace with our new architecture. The book shows how modern sculptors in Europe and America have co-operated with architects in the creation of public buildings, skyscrapers, homes and memorials to meet the needs and desires of our time. Professor Agard writes from a wide acquaintance with contemporary architects and sculptors and their works. An earlier book is "The Greek Tradition in Sculpture."

Mark Schorer, a fellow in English at the University, wrote his novel, "A House Too Old," (Reynal and Hitchcock) around just such a little Wisconsin town as the one in which he was born and spent the first seventeen years of his life. In its history of a Wisconsin family, this novel reflects the economic and spiritual adventure of the nation, the idealism and high hopes of its youth, the magic prosperity of its middle years, and the tragic failure and disillusionment of its present. The novel's characters and their lives are identified with the larger destinies of the great society of which they were only a small, but highly symbolic part. Mr. Schorer attended the University of Wisconsin and then took an A.M. at Harvard, after which he returned to Wisconsin as a fellow in English. He is at present devoting his time to the writing of a book on William Blake.

Professor Alexander Meiklejohn's "What Does America Mean" (Norton) is a philosophic treatment of present day America and Americans; it is constructed around the central theme of liberty as it appears in the American tradition. Dr. Meiklejohn reveals his view that Americans have lost the clear perception of the principles which are seeking expression in American institutions and American daily life. Consequently, he launches a smashing attack upon the current forms of American materialism.

This book argues for a co-operative society not in terms of economic determinism, but in terms of that love of liberty which is, in the opinion of the writer, the most fundamental motive in American life. He thus tries to define the terms in which a program for America may be stated and put into effect.

Alexander Meiklejohn is well known to all who are concerned about American education. As Dean of Brown University, President of Amherst, founder of the experimental college at the University of Wisconsin, and director of the San Francisco School of Social Studies, he occupies a striking position in American intellectual life.

Professor J. T. Salter's "Boss Rule" was enthusiastically anticipated by politicians and educators some time before it appeared, especially since its author is a nationally-known authority on city politics.

Professor Salter, associate professor of political science on the Wisconsin campus, has been described by critics as having the "simplicity of genius." His "Boss Rule" (McGraw-Hill) is made up of a number of portraits of city politics with which he forms a series of political studies so significant that the volume has already been accepted as text material by educational institutions throughout the country.

The author revealingly discusses the back-slapping, job-getting, bribe-taking process which goes to make up politics in American cities. With it he represents a hopeful new tendency toward realism in this field.

The most recent Wisconsin book to appear is Philo M Buck's "The World's Greatest Age" (Macmillan), an eagerly anticipated philosophic treatise on the literature of the nineteenth century. Described as the "story of a century's search for a philosophy of life," this book discusses Rosseau, Chateaubriand, Shelley, Mansoni, Whitman, Hebble, Tolstoi, Dostoevsky, Nietzsche, Ibsen, Zola, Arnold, and Hardy.

The whole of this study is unified by one idea—the search of these great men to discover man's place in a swiftly changing world.

Mr. Buck, professor of comparative literature, discusses the authors with clarity and force and an exceptional insight into the significance of the men and their works in relation to their age.

Mrs. Emma Graetz, "Ma" to all the top floor boys in Science hall, has been running the elevator in that building since 1925. She doesn't mind being called "Ma," for she's really a grandmother and sometimes gives a small grandchild a thrill in the form of an elevator ride all Saturday morning. The Medical students are her favorites, and they, in turn, never forget her birthday. "Ma" has an aversion to smells, which isn't helped by the geology and medical laboratories; and a passion for cleanliness, which she often exercises by a "housecleaning" attack on her elevator.

Bob Willett, at Science hall, has a job most persons wouldn't envy. He inherited it from his father, who did the same sort of thing until 1922, when Bob took over. Part of his work is to embalm all the bodies which are to be used in the Medical school laboratories. Then he sees to it that the cadavers are distributed to the anatomy students as needed. If one pair of students doesn't do their work right, they get a less prized specimen next time. Bob has a fondness for Wild West stories. And he likes to go hunting with the anetomy professors, but he always has to come back soon, to see if any more bodies have come in.

Sergeant F. W. Post, retired First Sergeant of the United States army, first joined the army as an Indian fighter sometime around 1870. Staving his full period of service, 30 years. he was then retired—but he wouldn't quit! But this year the Department of Military Science announced that he was through, which apparently will hold good this time, even if it never has before.

Joe Steinauer, swimming coach extraordinaire—which means that in his 25 years at Wisconsin he has also coached golf, tennis, and water polo, and been a trainer for several other sports. Joe is a former circus man, and was the first man ever to do a high dive into a pool covered with burning oil. He still has his asbestos swimming suit to prove it. He also used to announce the basketball games, the only trouble being that in moments of excitement his language became too strong to float over the air waves.

Martin Cook, head janitor of the Memorial Union, is well known around the building, but few people suspect that his special interest is in flowers. He spends most of his time in summer in his big flower garden on West Main street, and continually keeps the offices and rooms in the Union supplied with glowing bouquets throughout the season. He has been here since the building opened, eight years ago. Prof. W. A. Sumner, A. F. Gallistel, and

Prof. W. A. Sumner, A. F. Gallistel, and Prof. Ray S. Owen efficiently handle all the in-a-hurry, weak and ailing, or just plain forgetful students who only get half way across the hill in their automobiles. The other half of the way they have a ticket for company, which eventually leads them into the judicial presence of the three members of the university Traffic court. Informality is the keynote of their court sessions but the wheels of justice turn pretty evenly just the same, with $1, $2, and $3 fines winning the majority of the decisions.

Mr. Fred W. Miller has been chief custodian of the lost and found department, and of the checkrooms at the Union, since the building was first opened in the fall of 1928. Music is one of his hobbies—he used to play the violin, himself; while his other big interest, which he plans out most of the long months during the year, is vacations. He spends much of his time in the Union, always making the rounds to see that everything is picked up, not lost.

Mrs. Bella Saue has been in charge of the women's lounges and the third floor offices of the Union for five years or more. She is so well known to all the third floor inhabitants, particularly those whose work takes them up there in the evening, that the entire Cardinal staff went together one year, and bought her a Christmas present. One of her greatest troubles is in clearing Great Hall and the lounges of non-student women before the dateless and matinee dances.

Born a slave, of slave parents, Wesley A. Harris, Law school janitor for 23 years, is today addressed as the "dean" by students, deans, and even President Frank himself. Born on Feb. 8, 1864, the Emancipation Proclamation of 1863 did not immediately affect him, because he was born in the "border section" of Montgomery county, Missouri, a little on the wrong side of the Mason-Dixon line. When a young man he walked 400 miles to get to Wisconsin, arriving with 11 cents—which, he says, free of all claims, debts, and encumbrances, is probably more than he has had at any time since.

Acting as warden to the prison city which nestles under the brow of Observatory hill, John Hammerli is the unofficial ruler of Tripp and Adams halls. Chief among his duties are the manipulation of the heating system and the equally difficult manipulation of an occasional inmate who finds the stairs to his room just too hard to make. He annually has a favorite house and one that is violently disliked; if the members of a group fail to listen to his tales, woe unto them! Among his past jobs are those of saloon keeper and cheese maker, but he has been at the dormitories since before they were opened.

William E. Roddan, campus policeman and watchman, has been "traffic cop" for about eight years, and worked on the grounds of the university for about seven years before that. He's Scotch through and through; in fact, he originally came from bonnie Scotland, as you might guess from his accent, his short pipe, and his plaid scarf which he wears at all times. Although he likes the students, he has his troubles with them. It particularly bothers him when they say they're parking on the hill to "stay just a few minutes".

Chuck or Red Owens is senior clerk of the Union, but that doesn't tell all. He has supervision of the main desk, and supervision and direction of the hotel unit, besides the hundreds of other small things that come up—such as pacifying disgruntled customers or temperamental celebrities. Golf and bowling are his hobbies. "Chuck's" biggest interest is in hotel and club management, and he plans to have a hotel himself, some day.

fifty-eight per cent

The measure of a person's desire for a university education is probably best shown by the difficulties which he finds himself able to overcome in working for his college training. If this is so, a majority of university students must be credited with a sincere, wholehearted desire for knowledge.

Five thousand, two hundred and eighty-three, or 58 per cent, of the students are partially or wholly selfsupporting. 2,098, or 25 per cent, earn less than half of their living expenses, and 1,714, or 20 per cent, earn more than half. 1,471, or 17 per cent, are entirely self-supporting.

Ed Jankowski, varsity backfield man, holds down the job of cashier in a Madison restaurant with the same ease and physique which made him a threat at the fullback position.

Competitors in two of the most novel jobs on campus, Leonard Lovshin and August Steinbrecher manage to hand out a prodigious number of gum samples in the course of a year. Besides their efforts in behalf of leading chewing gum companies, both take part in campus activities.

William Beers combines his work in the University dairy with the instruction of short course students who are also interested in Wisconsin's chief industry.

By day a student in the Medical school, by night a patrolman on the Madison police force, Phil Oakey has a job which is unusual but hardly to be envied.

John Wagner and Eugene Dille keep watchful eyes on all who swim in the men's pool, and as lifeguards at the armory tank, they make it practically impossible to drown there.

Life outside of classes is one close shave after another for Gordon Culver, journalism student, who is also a regular licensed barber in the Memorial Union shop.

Two students, William Exum and Jacy Stiles, hold forth in the armory, rubbing out muscle kinks and helping the men in varsity competition stay in condition. Both are athletes themselves, Exum in football and track and Stiles in track.

The university stock pavilion and the adjacent barns house all have a great deal of farm livestock, which is cared for by student help. Willard T. Reese, Ward Fisher, and Ronald Nelson care for part of the dairy herd.

With his duties as varsity swimming captain, Carl (Ike) Simonsen has combined work in the poultry department, weighing and recording the output of the 10,000-egg incubators.

Animal husbandry courses and the actual work of maintaining the experimental farms require horses, which in turn require care. Alvin F. Vogel and Elmer Dushek are shown.

Aiding Wisconsin's Research Program

The spirit of research—the urge to explore, to discover, to push back the horizons of the unknown—is a guide-post to progress, civilization and better living.

The Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation is devoted to fostering this spirit. It extends financial assistance to Wisconsin's research program by granting all net avails to the University.

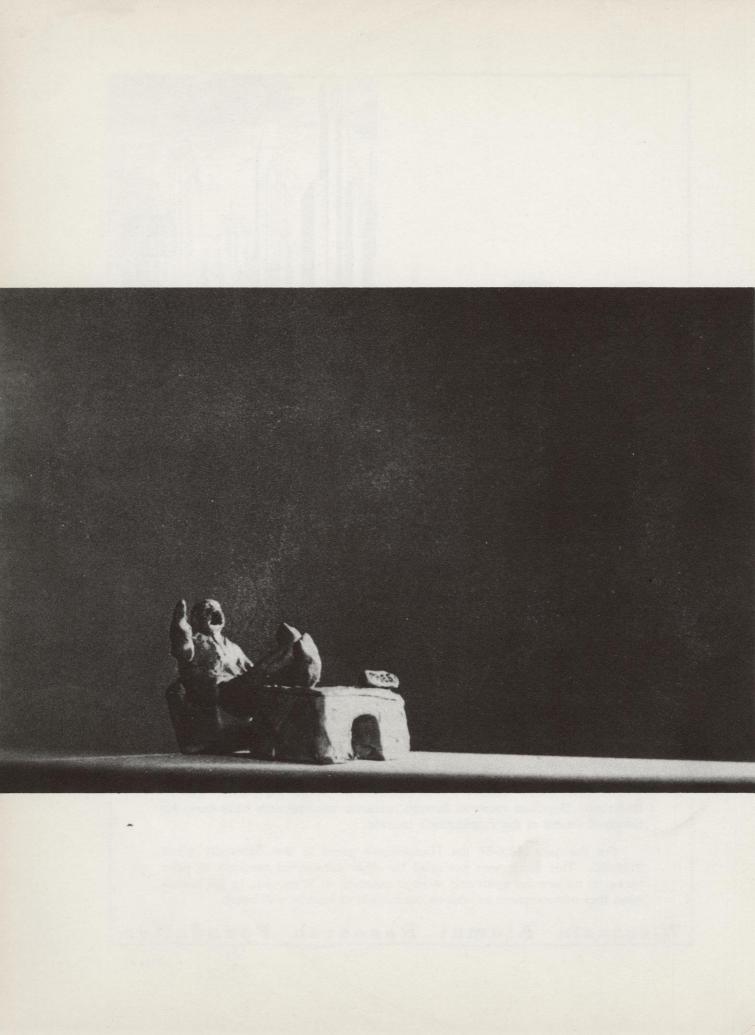

The Foundation was organized in 1925. It had no assets except one patent and the modest initial funds of a few interested alumni.

It was formed after Dr. Harry Steenbock discovered the Irradiation process for enriching certain foods and medicinals with Vitamin D. This vitamin is an essential bone and tooth-building nutrient. It is needed particularly by infants and growing children living in urban centers where the natural Vitamin D benefits of pure sunlight are obstructed by the almost constant pall of smoke and other atmospheric impurities. Moreover, Vitamin D is not adequately supplied by menus except when Vitamin-D-enriched foods are included.

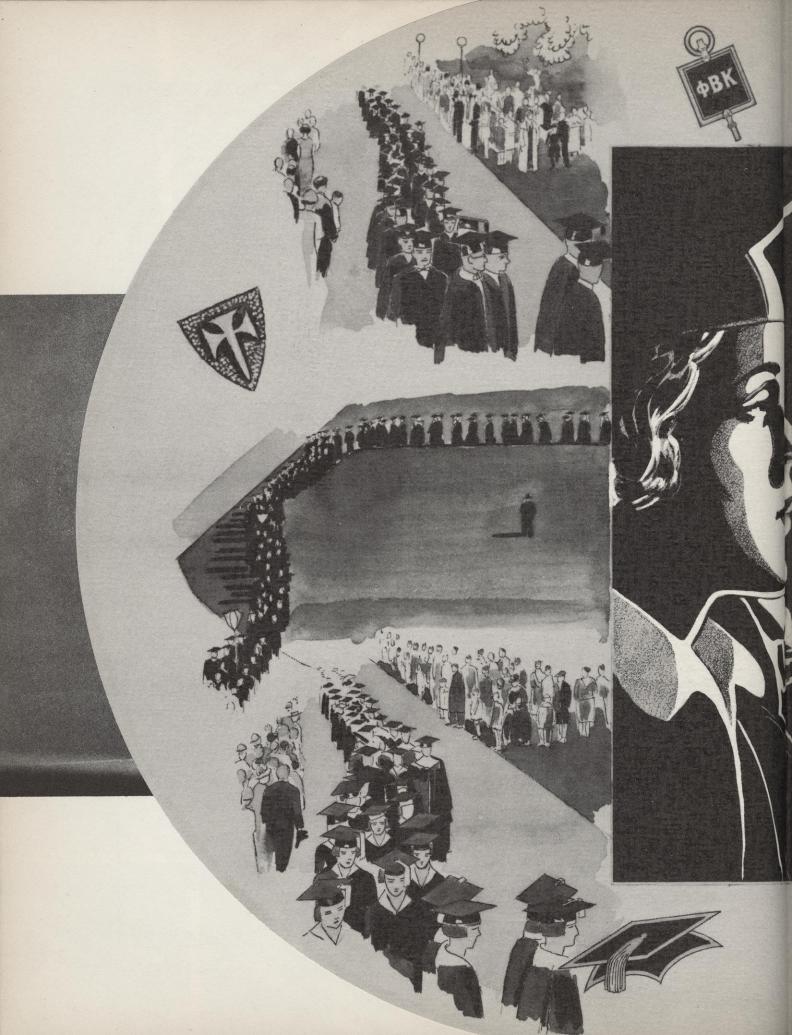

Dr. Steenbock's discovery was patented to protect the public from exploitation. Royalties received through licensing arrangements have been the principal source of the Foundation's income.

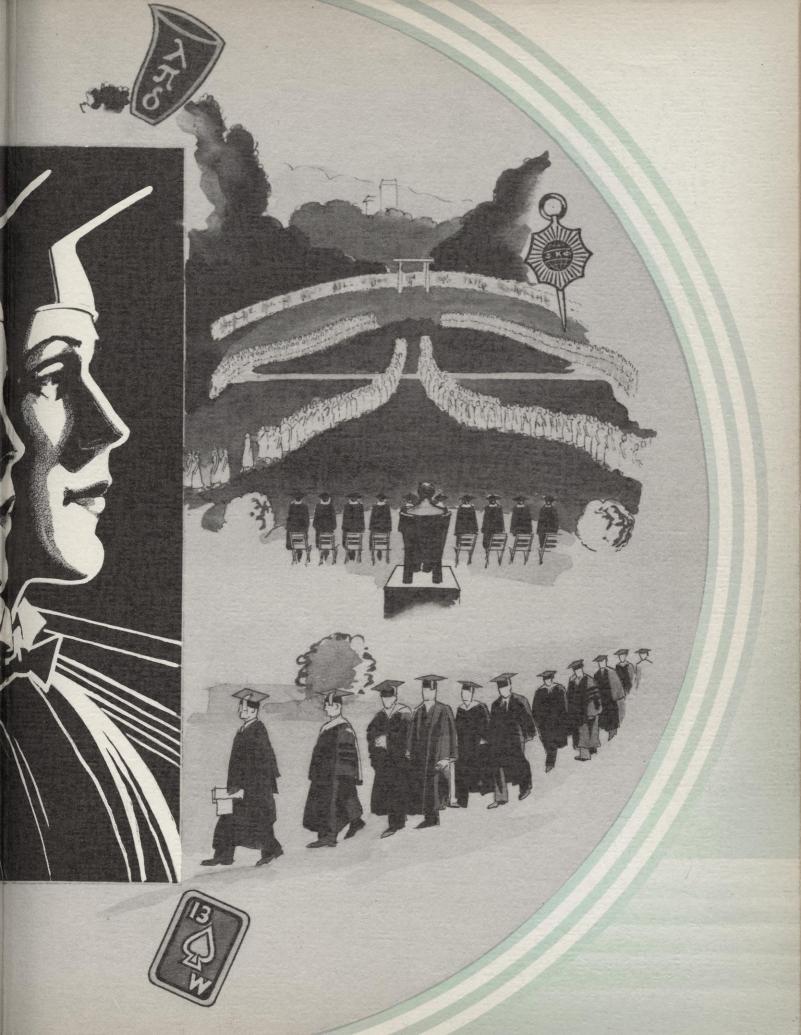

For the year 1936-37 the Foundation's grant to the University totals $138,000. This grant was preceded by other substantial amounts in prior years, to nurture the spirit and work of research at Wisconsin, in the knowledge that advancement in science contributes to human well-being.

women's commerce club

In the spring of 1917, with a comparatively small membership, Women's Commerce Club was formed. Increased interest on the part of women in the commercial positions has brought about sizable growth in the strength of the club until its membership this year is approximately thirty members.

The club has two meetings a month—one social and one business meeting. At the business meeting people prominent in commercial fields appear on the program.

Two main functions have been sponsored by the club in the past year. The Commerce Club-Faculty banquet held last October was the first of these events. On this occasion Mary Ellen Kuehne won the scholarship cup for being the outstanding pre-commerce freshman and Ruth Warnke was awarded the Phi Chi Theta scholarship key presented to the senior who during her first three years in the Commerce school has distinguished herself scholastically and in other fields of activity. The second function was the alumnae party of Commerce Club members.

y. w. c. a.

Offering every girl on the campus an opportunity for self-expression and development of leadership ability through committee work and interest groups, the Y. W. C. A. occupies a valuable position among University's organizations.

Projects involving girls of all social and religious interests are handled annually by "Y-Dub"; it has in this way established itself as standing for Christian interpretation and action on campus problems and campus life.

Informal dinners and discussions, leading to increased student-faculty contact and friendships, have been stressed by the group this year. Of obvious value to both types of participants, they are considered an important part of the Y. W. C. A. program.

Freshmen women and their problems are considered by the Association throughout the year, as well as during orientation week.

Forums and lecture series which are of wide interest and help to students bring competent opinion on all questions vital to students who wish to take a well-adjusted part in the world. The Sex and Marriage series, started this spring, is an example of the work undertaken.

Y. W. C. A. is, with Y. M. C. A., joint sponsor of two events the Significant Living lecture series, bringing nationally-known speakers to the campus, helping to create and awareness of economic, social, political, and religious problems; and the Christmas festival.

Leading the organization throughout the year have been the Cabinet members. Their positions indicate the scope of Y. W. C. A. activities: Jane Bond, president; Fay Hickey, vice-president; Significant Living chairman; Harriet Oldenburg, secretary; Betty Ransom, treasurer; Louise Haack, international relations; Ruth Iler, social service; Margaret Toepel, social; Lucile Ransom, student-faculty relations; Lorraine Hubbard, "X" committee; Elaine Miner, publicity; Barbara Taylor, membership; Mary Ellen L'Hommedieu, finance; Severa Krug, conference; Ruth Buss, monthly meetings; Elaine Tottingham, member-at-large; Louise Emery, freshman advisory council.

Members of the Freshman Advisory council are: Louise Emery, chairman; Ruth Bachhuber, Hallie Lou Whitefield, Louise Emery, Ruth Niles, Mildred Marshall, Eleanor Amundson. Miss Hazel Manning is chairman of the Advisory board.

WAA board proudly turns a page and wills its duties to the new board after ending a very successful year. Composed of the presidents of the various WAA clubs and its four officers, the board feels that foremost among its achievements for the year 1935-36 was the innovation of "Wis-skits," the new extra-curricular activity for university women. "Wisskits" was accorded far more support and a far more enthusiastic reception than its originators had dared hope. Believing that there is a place on the campus for such an activity, the WAA board, with the advice of Miss Margaret Meyer and Miss Helen Driver, undertook to inaugurate on the campus an amateur hour program for the women.

Miss Blanche Trilling, Director of Women's Physical Education.

The initial performance of "Wis-skits" was a tremendous success. The judges, judging on the basis of originality, humor, and talent, awarded > the prizes to the three groups they believed most deserving. The prizes were silver sandwich trays with "Wis-skits, 1936" engraved on them. The prize for originality was given to Gamma Phi Beta for its take-off on Major Bowes' amateur hour: Pi Beta Phi won its trav for its humorous presentation of "mellerdramer" in the far North; and Betty Powell, Alpha Xi Delta, won the talent award with her skillful and applauseprovoking rendition of Gershwin's arrangement of "Rhapsody in Blue."

Basketball club invited several schools to Wisconsin for a basketball play day. The affair came off very well, with La Crosse college, Rockford College, Milwaukee Downer, Milwaukee State Teacher's college, and Carroll college participating. With three teams from the university also playing, juniors, seniors, and freshman-sophomore squads, the day was divided up into eight games. La Crosse, Downer, and the Wisconsin Freshman-Sophomore teams won both of their games. Luncheon was served, and a song contest held. President Barbara Nicoll was well-satisfied with the outcome of the 1936 project of Basketball club.

Bowling club came into its own during the 1936 season with Millicent Pacey as its head. Aside from the regular intramural competitive bowling, the club arranged three telegraphic matches with distant schools. Wisconsin keglers came out first in all three of these matches. After defeating Vassar college, the Badger women downed Ohio Wesleyan and Milwaukee Downer college.

> Jean Gaskeen as president of Outing club urged that organization to paint and clean the WAA cottage, which is for the use of all university women. Breakfasts and supper parties at the cottage defrayed the cost of rehabilitation.

> Hockey club and President Margaret Elliott were unable to have the usual hockey play day, due to bad weather conditions and the interference of the The Mid-West tournament. other clubs which comprise WAA are Tennis club, Lucille Ransom; Archery club, Winifred Longfield; and Bit and Spur, the women's riding club. The annual Randall Field Festival, a WAA field day, was more than successful with its exhibitions of tumbling, folk dancing, riding, archery, and finals in the baseball tournament.

reserve officers'

When in 1862 the heels of University of Wisconsin men first clicked together in the position of soldier-at-attention, compulsory enrollment in an officers' training corps was Congress' demand of men students in land grant colleges all over the United States. 1920 saw the Wisconsin Department of Military Science and Tactics divide its large infantry unit into infantry, field artillery, ordnance, and signal corps. The discontinuation of compulsory corps membership in 1925 was responsible for a reduction of units over a period of several years, thus leaving the signal corps and infantry of which the present department consists. However, recent years have witnessed an increasing popularity of military training; and the total 1936 enrollment was 800, a number almost double that of the 1932 membership.

Under the able leadership of Major Remington Orsinger, appointed Professor of Military Science and Tactics in 1934 after having been at Wisconsin for three years, and who earned a B.S. degree at Minnesota in 1915, served in the World War, graduated from the U. S. Signal School of Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, and from the infantry school at Fort Benning, Georgia, the corps has retained its rating as a crack unit in the country and will be expanded in 1936-1937, as authorized by a recent order of the War Department, to include an engineering unit. P. Trower, who is to be assisted by Lieutenant Robert H. Naylor, will be added to our already able instructional staff to organize and train the engineers.

Assisting Commandant Major Remington Orsinger, Major William F. Dalton, adjutant and freshmen instructor, served his last year at Wisconsin in 1935-1936; Major Norman Nelsen instructed the seniors and coached the drill team; Captain Harry L. Rogers, Jr., also completing his final year here, taught the sophomores and led the rifle team through a successful season; Lieutenant Fred W. Kunesh was responsible for the work of the signal corps and pistol team. Sgt. H. J. Mc-Grath of the infantry and Sgt. W. Eslinger of the signal corps assisted the above staff.

Because of the exceptionally large enrollment this year, four battalions of three companies each paraded on Military Day and before Government inspecting officers as the Wisconsin regiment passed in formal review on May 15 and 22. advanced corps officers receive appointment to that body on the basis of their military excellence and leadership abilities. Military Day, given over to inter-company, squad, and individual competitions; exhibitions par excellence by the basic drill team and by the yellow-gloved precision-masters of the advanced drill team; and climaxed by presentation of awards and the final parade, is mainly under the control of the cadet commissioned officers chosen by the instructional staff from the senior men and headed by a colonel, a lieutenant-colonel, and five majors.

RIFLE TEAM

The staccato crack of the Springfield .22 calibre gun is familiar music to the ears of members of our highly-rated University of Wisconsin R. O. T. C. rifle team. Trained from their freshman year, these picked expert shots of the sophomore and advanced corps follow rigidly the cardinal rules of army marksmanship throughout their extensive practice periods during the school year.

The careful coaching of their instructional officer, Captain Harry L. Rogers, Jr., himself an excellent shot, led the team through a moderately successful season of victories and losses during which Wisconsin defeated about half of the strongest rifle teams in the United States. Many of these meets were telegraphic meets.

Defeat in a home shoulder-to-shoulder match at the hands of the University of Minnesota team, which is ranked as the strongest in the country, resulted only after a hard fought battle in which a margin of but fourteen points decided the winner. The resulting score was a 1342 to Minnesota's 1356.

Participating in the Sixth Corps Area sectional meet held yearly to determine the championship of rifle teams from the states of Wisconsin, Michigan, and Illinois, the Wisconsin varsity shot against seven senior rifle teams, among which were included such outstanding favorites as Michigan and Michigan State. Again the Badger dead-eyes put up the stiffest of competition and lost by only eight points to Illinois with a final score of 3588 to 3596. As a result of their excellent showing in this preliminary meet, Wisconsin along with Illinois was chosen as a representative of the Sixth Corps Area to shoot in the annual National Intercollegiate Rifle Match, and retained its status as a team of crack sharpshooters through its fine showing there.

During the season of competition last year, the Wisconsin team earned a second place with the combined score of an even 900 in the annual Hearst Trophy rifle competition. This year again saw Wisconsin a favorite at the time the Badger went to press to win either a first or second place in this meet in its corps area.

DRILL TEAM

Organized for and interested in the further training of prospective reserve officers in high leadership qualities, the advanced corps drill team, active throughout the school year, maintained its position in 1936 as the top-ranking drill team in the state. Composed of over 36 men and reduced to two squads of eight men each for the purposes of competition, this organization of precision-trained cadets, neatly uniformed in kakhi, Sam Brown belts, and yellow gloves, captained by Cadet-Colonel Preston W. Simms, and trained by Major Norman Nelsen of the instructional staff competed against crack teams of the corps area and also in the reserve convention of the State of Wisconsin held in spring under the auspices of the Wisconsin Reserve Officers' Association.

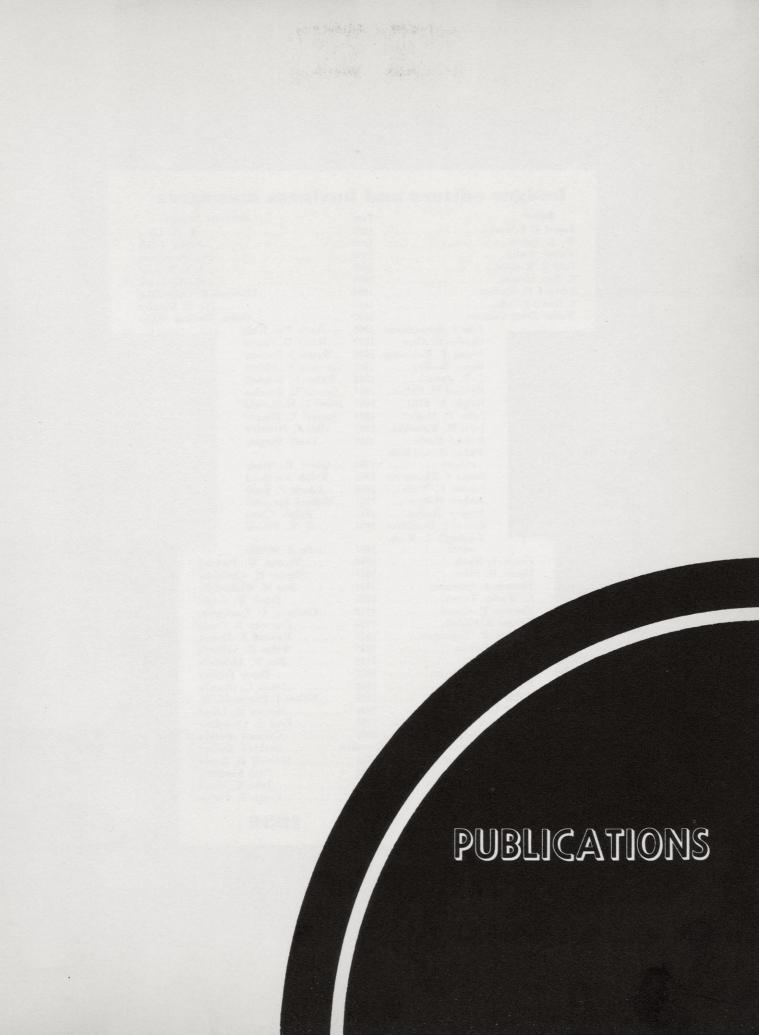

PISTOL TEAM

Chosen in the main from the ranks of the signal corps with pistol experts of the infantry unit contributing their best abilities, members of this year's pistol team at Wisconsin completed a successful season under the guidance of Lieutenant Fred W. Kunesh and Sergeant W. Eslinger and won six out of eight scheduled postal matches. Additional activity of the team included trips to Janesville, Wisconsin, and Ames, Iowa, as well as meets with such leading R. O. T. C. contenders as Harvard, Princeton, Ohio State, Iowa State, Colorado, and Cornell. A match scheduled when the varsity team was being organized was won by the Alumni, 1301 to 1274. Scores of some of the matches were as follows:

Wisconsin-1215; Harvard-1312	Wisconsin-1316; Ohio State-1176
Wisconsin—1312; Virginia Military	Wisconsin-1315; Iowa-1319

12 New Students Will Learn Fundamentals Next Fall

An opportunity to learn the fundamental: of radio broadcasting will be given to 10 qualified freshman boys entering the university next fall by WHA. state-owned radio station located on the campus.

Training will be carried on in the WHA studios in Radio hall under the supervision of H. B. McCarty, station program director. The b;ys are to be organized into a club, the Radio Training club. This work is all extracurricular with no formal credit being given. There is no tuition of any kind required.

New Idea

"The plan is new, something that has never been done before anywhere in the country," said Harold A. En-gels, assistant program director of WHA. "An opportunity such as this is seldom available in this day when radio stations are all too busy to be bothered by beginners."

The students will meet once a week toke of Nebraska and get a well-rounded understanding of the background of radio, as well as a knowledge of the technique of broadn Pr ds / INe Crew

For many years the University of Wisconsin has been noted for the freedom of thought and speech which has characterized its administration. That freedom has been used wisely-for its misuse would result in a throttling of that breath of life which keeps the institution alive and glowing.

The Daily Cardinal is dependent upon that freedom of expression for its existence, for upon that base it has built a tradition of independence and concreteness that is in keeping with the great educational center of which it is a part. As the official paper for 10,000 students, The Daily Cardinal has since its founding been representative of the thoughts, ideals, and actions of the young men and women who come from all parts of the world to drink at Wisconsin's educational fountain.

The present editors, profoundly impressed with the opportunity and responsibility which is theirs, have tried sincerely to carry on that honored tradition. We have attempted to reflect accurately and without bias a student body that has shown itself to be capable of great flux. We have not only reflected its actions and thoughts, but have tried to mold and temper its opinions to a form most susceptible to rational and intelligent conclusions, for only by clear thinking and considered actions can any group make its manifestations seen, heard, and respected in a public mind too prone to ridicule and scoff at what it believes to be the "juvenile" mind.

When reactionary forces have become especially potent and bitter-tongued, we have tried to combat the backwardness and closed-mindedness which walks hand-inhand with the reactionary. When liberalism has turned to radicalism of a type almost as repugnant to American principles as hide-bound conservatism, we have sought to bring the question under consideration to a focal point so that intelligent thought processes could reduce the mass of facts to a plane where emotionalism is outlawed.

Many have agreed with the principles and thoughts that we have set forth; many have disagreed. The important thing is the fact that we have induced both sides to THINK. If that is ALL we have been able to do-with that must we be content, but to be able to incite intelligent thought is an opportunity of which we have been proud.

FRANKENBURGER PRIZE

A rivalry which began during their freshman year was renewed again when James E. Doyle and Frederick U. Reel met as finalists in the Frankenburger oratorical contest. As on previous occasions, Doyle emerged with a slight margin over his opponent, the final totals of the judges' points standing at 578 to 573 in his favor.

As a reward for his victory, Doyle received a prize of one hundred dollars, donated by the Wisconsin Alumni Association.

The winning speech, required to be original, was entitled "The Price of Liberty", while Reel spoke on "Our Federal Union".

STATE PEACE PRIZE

Speaking on "The Road to Peace," Frederick Reel won the State Peace Oratorical Contest, and with it the accompanying prize of fifty dollars. The oration was the same which two weeks before had brought him first place in the university trials.

Always a popular subject for debate, this year's Peace Oratorical Contest drew representatives from six colleges and universities throughout the state, and it was from this field that Reel was selected. The contest was held in connection with the fifth annual Delta Sigma Rho tournament.

BACHHUBER GUNDERSON

CHAIMSON LARSON

COLLINS MORSE

Forensics at Wisconsin has been steadily forging ahead year by year to the prominent position which it deserves in University affairs. Under the guidance of the Forensic Board a definite program has been set up, around which all activities of the field center.

Principle events of this program include the annual Delta Sigma Rho Tournament, the Western Conference debates for both men and women, intercollegiate debating, and various exhibition debates held before social and business clubs throughout the state.

Varsity debaters in the Western Conference tournament, held this year at Chicago on April 3 and 4, turned in a record of five victories and five losses, the women leading with two decisions, while the men's team won three and lost five. For the men, Fred Reel and William Bowman, taking the affirmative side, triumphed over Indiana and lost close contests to Chicago and Minnesota. Taking the negative, John Weaver and Arthur Smith, representing Wisconsin, won from Purdue, but were defeated by the University of Illinois and Ohio State.

It must be admitted that the women, who went through their season undefeated, turned in the best record of this year's Wisconsin group. During the first semester they defeated the University of Iowa and the University of Minnesota, and later won from the same teams at the Western Conference debates. In the second semester, two non-decision debates were held with Lawrence College and one with Marquette. Members of the women's team were Helen Scott, Margaret Madden, Caryl Morse, Marie Muth, Mildred Templin, Marion Bachhuber, Ruth Chaimson and Gladys Page.

Twenty colleges from nine different states were represented at the fifth annual Delta Sigma Rho Tournament held here March 27 and 28. Although the first round of debates went to little Albion College, Wisconsin was victorious in three of its five matches, and later came through to establish the best record of the tournament, winning eleven matches and losing but four. Wisconsin's rating was the result of seven victories among the affirmative teams and four from the negative ranks. Mainly responsible for these triumphs was the team of Fred Reel and William Bowman, which won two affirmative debates, and then turning to the opposite side, adopted radical negative standpoints to take two more decisions. John Weaver and Arthur Smith registered three affirmative victories. Other Wisconsin debaters were Paul Collins, Robert Gunderson, Carl Thompson, George Duggar, Joseph Fishelson, Morton Newman, Walter Schubering and James Larson. All discussions were on the subject "Old Age Pensions". As an aftermath to the actual debating, a banquet was held in Tripp Commons at which 140 debaters were in attendance.

Other events held as a part of the forensic season were the Freshman Declamatory Contest, held November 25 and won by Gordon Dupee who spoke on "De Valera's Ireland"; the Freshman Extemporaneous Speaking Contest; the Intramural Public Discussion Contest; the High School State Debate Tournament, won by Eau Claire; and the Freshman Oratorical Contest.

The Hesperian Literary Society was organized in 1854 and chartered by an act of the state legislature. It was organized to encourage achievement and afford opportunity for practice in forensics and literature. It immediately became and has since remained a campus center for the discussion of living issues.

Hesperia has always been the most active of the campus literary societies and has more alumni than any other similar organization on any campus in the country; it numbers many prominent members of the bench and bar of Wisconsin among these. Not a few others of its alumni have become teachers and professors of speech in various parts of the state and country, founding new Hesperias on the campi to which they have gone.

The present day Hesperia has between 40 and 50 active members who gather in the Union each Thursday evening for the weekly debates and discussions. The programs are varied, including readings, extemporaneous speaking, senate sessions, plays and mock trials. Although the purpose of the organization is primarily serious, its programs are interspersed with levity and merriment and the speeches of its members often sparkle with wit and satire.

The even increase in strength of Hesperia since the decade of the twenties is heralded by observers as the dawn of a new day for forensics.

HISTORY

The organization and development of Wisconsin bands over the past fifty years, to a point where they now number two-hundred and two-thousand in alumni strength, hasn't been an overnight trend. Rather, it has been an evolutionary development from that autumn day in 1885 when the University Press carried an official authorization for the organization of the first Wisconsin Regimental Band. It is peculiar to glance through those time-scarred University publications at the Library and note a somewhat insignificant item which indicates the first breath of life of an organization which now breathes of success achieved by its fiftieth anniversary.

The need for a band at the University of Wisconsin dates back further than 1885. The University Military Battalion, prior to that date, marched solely to the beat of a drum. It was in 1883, according to the University Press of October sixth of that year that Major Chase, then Commandant, stressed the need for a fife and drum corps to play for the battalion's drill.

However, it wasn't until October 30, 1885, when the Press carried the following minor item: "The following appointments have been made in the new military band, with F. O. May as leader . . . "

The first band consisted of eleven members. The next year the number was increased to sixteen and in February of 1886 the band made its first non-military appearance at the Tenth Joint Debate of the University.

By 1894 the movement for a more general type of band had gained headway and culminated in the formation of a University Band of twenty-six men which played for football games. It was at the band reunion held at Homecoming, November 9, 1935 that a former member of the band related an unusual experience; "After parading around the Capital square playing on my 'dish pan' (snare drum)," related Judge Karel, "we returned to the lower campus where I removed my band uniform which I had over my football suit and played in a game of football."

By 1915 the band had approximately sixty members and it was in the summer of that year that the organization under the direction of Charles A. Mann '09, made a trip to the Panama National Exposition at San Francisco. Over half of the membership of this famous group returned to Madison last June for the twenty-fifth anniversary of the trip and took up instruments again to play under "Charlie's" baton.

On November 20, 1920 there was organized The University of Wisconsin Band Association by the alumni members of the band. This association grew out of the fraternal spirit which existed among the bandmen and still is very much in evidence.

Fifteen men have guided the destinies of the band over the years and of this group the late E. W. Morphy lead the band for fourteen years. It was during this time that the Concert Band grew in excellence of concert performance.

Today the band is made up of three groups: The Concert Band, The First Regimental Band and The Second Regimental Band. Besides these three organizations the band boasts of a healthy waiting list.

On November 9, 1935, Homecoming was dedicated to the band in recognition of its half century of undaunted allegiance to the spirit fine music, and to its loyal record of service to the University and State.

The University Bands are divided into three groups: The Concert Band, The First Regimental Band and The Second Regimental Band. The Concert Band is devoted chiefly to the study of the higher forms of music while the Regimental Bands are a training school for the Concert Band.

Last year more than one hundred-fifty concert selections were studied by the Concert Band. The Regimental Bands provide music for Military functions. All three groups serve the athletic department with music and pageantry at athletic contests.

Members of the Concert Band who have given faithful and continuous service for three years are entitled to wear the Varsity Band Key. The Concert Band and selected members of the Regimental Bands who remain for commencement are compensated for their services.

GOVERNMENT

Wisconsin has never been without its political imbroglio, and this year was no exception . . . bribery charges, trials, inelligibilities, and politcal defaults floated up and down Langdon and into Independent circles, while the Daily Cardinal ran editorials asking for "the alleviation and abolition of rotten tactics in student politics."

Even the faculty was drawn into the phenageling, double dealing, vote swapping maelstrom when the sub-committee on student politics held that seniors could vote for two candidates for the presidency of their class. This decision drew no end of criticism from the Greek letter machine backing John Wright, Alpha Delt and political lord of his class. The Greeks contended that the decision had come as a result of string-pulling by some of the younger faculty members, acting in the capacity of campaign manager for Caryl Morse, Chi Omega. The committee upheld its views on the grounds that if only one candidate is elected half of the class is deprived of its franchise.

Miss Morse, although a sorority girl, was backed by a strong independent machine and the pairing off of two independent votes against one Greek vote found her riding into office carrying with her Carl Thompson, the other independent. Though the result was generally considered an upset and was blamed onto the ruling of the committee, the underlying cause can be traced to the general apathy of fraternities and sororities and the unwillingness to get out and vote.

The infernal machine of politics turned out its real spectacle in the Prom King fiasco. Starting with six candidates, Dick Johnson, Kappa Sig, Howard Teichman, Zeta Beta Tau, Lyman Houfek and Bob Greenhalgh, Independents, Hugh Lucas, Alpha Chi Rho, and Emmett Mortell, DU football player and politician, the race took on the aspects of a real election. First came the notice from the Dean's office disqualifying Lucas on scholastic deficiencies, next Teichmann wearied of politics and withdrew. Then the investigation... sensational charges of bribery and other malpractices assumed a major position in the battle on October 21, when Houfek filed a complaint charging August Steinbrecher, campaign manager for Greenhalgh with offering him $30 and other considerations if he would withdraw from the race in favor of Mortell.

After a several day session the Elections Referees backed by the Daily Cardinal took a definite slap at questionable tactics in student elections and recommended that Steinbrecker be placed on disciplinary probation and be barred from all campus activities. Mortell and Greenhalgh took a verbal spanking and lost their student voting privileges for the year. It all ended in the old battle . . . the intrenched fraternity machine backing Johnson versus an unknown amount of independent support behind Houfek.

In the younger university classes there were less of the stench-evoking political antics. Robert Fish, Deke, and Mark Soden, Sig Ep, had little difficulty in winning the sophomore directorships, but because of scholastic troubles conceded the chairmanship of the Soph Shuffle to Robert McCloskey, last year's freshman president.

Even less interest was evidenced in the election for the freshman positions in the spring with Stuart Herst, Pi Lamb, Elizabeth Arnold, Tri Delt, and Morris Shovers winning the three posts.

wisconsin union

To make the University a friendly home in which students can gain the full value of human relationships and informal education through play was the air of President Van Hise when, in his inaugural address of 1904, he urged the University to establish a Union. The first step taken toward the fulfillment of his ideal was the organization of the student body into a Union in 1907. The campaign to raise funds for a building to shelter and expand the functions of that Student Union was started in 1919. In 1928 the completed building was "dedicated to the memory of the men and women of the University who served in our country's wars." Today the Union renders whatever service it can to complement the educational program of the University, and to promote the social and cultural life of the University Community.

In their administration of the Union Building, Donald K. Halverson, Director of the Department of Dormitories and Commons and Steward of the Union, and Porter Butte, House Director, have transformed the ideals underlying the Union into practical daily benefits to the entire student body. Under the leadership of President Herbert Terwilliger in 1935-6, Union Council, governing the building, and Union Board, serving the men students (aided by their committees and W. S. G. A.) have carried on an extensive program fulfilling the objectives of the Union.

The Council Room furnished not only lounging facilities, but also radio programs, newspapers, and magazines. Innumerable services were provided by the Main Desk and the Cloak Room. One phase of the Union's program to promote the cultural life of students through recreation is shown by the Library ". . . for non-study purposes only . . .". Popular, too, were the Music Room and the Record Library. The Intercollegiate Billiard Tournament illustrates only one part of the Union's equipment and many games. Foremost among the new decorative additions to the Union were the murals Jim Watrous painted to enhance the lumberjack spirit in Paul Bunyan's Cookshack.

Union Council and its committees for another year successfully managed the many pleasant facilities provided by the Union to meet the needs for dining and lounging, and to foster cordial and intimate student contacts. The men's Rathskeller, with its beer and German spirit of Gemutlichkeit, the informal cafeteria, the refined atmosphere of the Georgian Grill, the intimate Sunday night candle-light suppers and musicales in Tripp Commons, and dinner meetings in Beefeaters Room amply fulfill Harvard President Conant's comment, "More souls are saved around the dinner table than through courses."

The Forum Committee's series of Faculty-Student discussions on "The Current American Scene" was an outstanding new expansion of the Union's program for informal education. Upton Sinclair (introduced by Professor Alexander Meikeljohn), was among the speakers brought to the campus by Ed Frazer and the Forum Committee. The success of the Sunday Concerts under Fred Roemer and the Concert Series administered by Franz Bidinger is indicated by the crowd which heard Nelson Eddy. Bowden Davis' House Committee was in charge of the free Saturday Matinee Dances in Great Hall. A floor show was one of the features of the popular 770 Club run by Ralph Durrant and his Dance Committee. The highlight of the first Winter Sports Carnival sponsored by the Union's Hoofer's Club to popularize winter sports at Wisconsin was the Ski Meet. The Union also provided opportunities for students to develop their art talents and interests in the Union Workshop, and to meet fellow students with common interests in groups such as the Stamp Club and Camera Club. Thus, in all these and many other activities student representatives have through their efforts done much to enable the entire student body to live a more abundant and happier life.

Contrary to masculine concept, the Women's Self Government Association has directed its efforts along other channels than the mere enforcement of 12:30 nights during the 1935-36 academic year. Starting with Orientation Week in the Fall, the members of the executive council have kept themselves busy supervising arrangements for the annual freshman scholarship banquet, a series of dancing lessons, bridge tournament and extensive vocational guidance program.

In addition to these specific activities members of the council are active in planning Parents Weekend as well as practically all activities involving the interests of the women students at large, aside from those of a political nature.

From the day when a prospective freshman decides to enter the University of Wisconsin the University Young Men's Christian Association is ready to help him work out plans for his campus career. Wherever possible a secretary or one of the members will call on him in his home. Wisconsin Men, a student publication dealing with campus activities, will be sent to him in August. The Freshman Camp on Boulder Lake the last week in August offers a fine outing and an opportunity to meet faculty and upperclass students who are present because of their special ability to discuss with freshman both curricular and extra-curricular activities. Association Hall, the University Y. M. C. A. Dormitory, offers an agreeable place to live at moderate cost.

Freshmen are invited to become members of the Association whether they live in Association Hall or live elsewhere. Discussion groups held throughout the year give both freshmen and upperclassmen an opportunity to meet in easy informality members of the faculty and discuss with them matters of common interest. Many alumni say these discussions were the pepsin that relieved them of educational indigestion.

To make new friends of varied background and experience is an important part of undergraduate experience. These friends make you re-examine your traditional views. You perform a like service for them. The students from abroad are particularly stimulating. The Association has always sought to promote the interchange of ideas and knowledge between American students and students from other lands. The Student Young Men's Christian Association is a part of the World Student Christian Federation, a world-wide international student league.

MORSE

THOMPSON

In the checkered history of the Class of 1936, there have, ever since its freshman year, been two outstanding characteristics. They are the ever-diminishing repute of the Steven plan and the everincreasing class debt.

From the first, '36 was a guinea-pig class in the field of student government, for it was the only class to operate four full years under the Steven plan. Although the scheme later proved to be unworkable, at first the class and its benign advisers who put in the plan thought that '36 had been granted a priceless opportunity. The Steven plan was hailed at the start as a panacea for all political ills.

Rather more complicated than the old system—which is now also the new one—the Board plan, as University officials preferred to call it, attempted to give unified government over the four-year stretch. This was to be done by a three-member board, two members of which were elected each year, with the board president—the one getting most votes—of the preceding year carrying over to complete the group. Promoted at first by Cardinal Editor Bill Steven '30 and pushed along by Cardinal Editor Sam Steinman '31 (who later said that the plan was essentially his own but that the Steven name had been tacked on to give the added prestige of a man who had gone out into the wide, wide world) the cure-all was justified to the not-easily-aroused electorate by promising a means of making the class "a real and recognizable unit in the University."

With marvelous equanimity the sponsors of the plan claimed that "the petty graft which has always crept into the old system" would be eliminated. "The directors will find themselves working for a living corporation," the argument ran, "and their attitude will therefore be quite different." These confident young men and women, by the way, were graduated before they found out just how wrong they were.

The members of the one-month old Class of 1936, undoubtedly aided by kindly assistance from older fraternity brothers, elected George Kogel to head its class directorate, which also included Bob Ewing and Herb Lossen. None of these men, incidentally, will be graduated with the class. The Frosh Frolic celebrated the most successful fiscal year the class ever had, losing less than a dollar.

Aided by memories of a brother, Ted Wadsworth, Union board president, Chi Psi John Wadsworth, who was "Scotch" to his henchmen, took the leadership of the sophomore class. Dick Muther, Beta, ran second, and Kogel was the "hang-over member." The Soph Shuffle was characterized by the usual payment of political debts and closed its books with an additional loss of $15.69.

Early in the spring of 1934, Dick Brazeau, Psi Upsilon, was indicating to all who cared to notice that he was the logical choice for the class' Prom King. After an intensive campaign and six weeks of summer school, Brazeau entered the lists in the fall with Emmet Tabat his only opponent. Hurried political maneuverings resulted in a conceded election. Tabat took second place on the directorate by unanimous consent; Wadsworth came into the board by virtue of his sophomore office.

In the Brazeau "election" and the similar settlement of the sophomore race the doom of the Steven plan was sealed. If there are enough offices to go around, there will be no election. "Two offices plus two candidates equals a compromise" is the simplest of mathematical formulae. But the price of coalition is comps—comps to your own machine and to your opponent's.

Pre-Prom, under the management of Harvey Leiser, Alpha Chi Rho who got the usual campaign manager's reward, made money. It was the only dance the class ever held that did, and the Brazeau kidnapping and a last-minute change in Prom bands put Prom into the red far enough to give a net loss for the two affairs of $162.64.

Thus, with little more than its debts and the Steven plan, did the Class of '36 enter upon the senior year. Three other classes were following it, each with its own board and each with its own debt.

Running on programs of "defend the University," Larry Hancock, independent, and Caryl Morse, Chi Omega, urged their classmates to strike back at the politicians' attacks. John Wright, Alpha Delta Phi, came in as the old machine's candidate. Meanwhile, independent tycoons, fearing that Hancock was losing ground, held an independent primary and replaced Hancock with Carl Thompson. The undeniable fact that Miss Morse and Thompson appealed to the same sector of student opinion, impelled the history and political science instructors who formed the Morse brain trust to engineer a last-minute change in the rules. Under the amendment, voters were allowed to vote for two candidates if they pleased. ("Two offices, two votes," they explained glibly.) The defeat of Wright was seen as the direct result, with all Morse and Thompson backers voting for both and with some Wright supporters voting for Miss Morse on the strength of her Chi Omega affiliation. The senior directorate thus included Miss Morse as president, plus Thompson and Brazeau.

A referendum at that election threw out the Steven plan, but the three class presidents put their heads together and agreed to avoid arguments by allowing it to control them posthumously. All three—Caryl Morse, Dick Johnson, and Bob Fish—had clear majorities in their directorates and were willing to let things go at that.

The senior committee on defense of the University published a booklet showing the University's activities and roll calls of the state senate, pointing out senators' records of opposition to the school. Realizing that the work after graduation would be one of the most important parts of its defense activities, the class engaged in the annual skirmish with the Alumni association, trying to wangle a guarantee of two members on the board of directors in exchange for joining as a group. If '36 does join, it will be the first class in four years to do so.

Student loans, food, and housing were studied by the student welfare committee, which the students hope will be continued for several years. Studying "the actual needs of student government," the committee is planning toward "a simple, workable plan that will be accepted by the campus." Outsiders unkindly remarked that this is just what the Steven plan putter-inners thought they had.

Class finances, in a hopeless muddle up until the second semester of the senior year, were augmented by the usual senior dues and are counted on to provide the cash for debt payment and the purchase of a class gift.

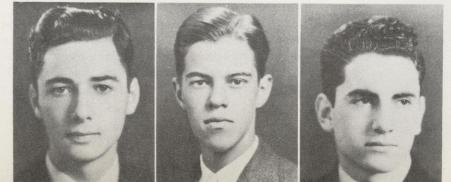

So, with Commencement, will end the story of The Class that Had the Steven Plan.

WISCONSIN TRADITIONS

"Tradition is merely personalized and symbolic history."

This definition, written just a year ago by the editor of the 1935 Badger, is probably truer in the case of Wisconsin and its traditions than in most cases. Although institutions and events carry over from year to year, it has in many cases been either the persons concerned or the symbolism that they carry which have made them have meaning.

Even the traditions of Wisconsin which have died—the bag rush, Union Vodvil, Venetian Night, and the others—still have a wealth of meaning to thousands of alumni. With this thought in mind, the 1936 Badger presents pictures and stories of traditions of today and yesterday.

When the freshman of the early 1920's came to Madison, no elaborate Orientation week was planned out to help him in becoming accustomed to the ways in which the university does things. Instead, he joined thousands of other freshmen and upperclassmen in the Varsity Welcome on the upper campus. A colorful parade up the hill served to introduce him to some of the men who took important places in his life.

Carl Russell Fish, an eminent historian who was known from coast to coast, appeared in his famous red vest. The vest, of a flaming crimson, appeared at Welcomes and pre-game bonfires. In connection with Fish, the frosh often heard the story of his first year here, when he was mistaken for a freshman himself and given an involuntary swim in Lake Mendota. "Carl Russell's" popularity dated from that event, for as the sophomores who had ducked him stood aghast at their own crime, he reappeared, shook the water out of his eyes, and remarked, "Well, my name is Fish, so I'm right at home."

On the same platform they first saw Julius Olson, of the Norse department. "It never rains on Julius," the slogan ran, and for years no rain fell on events which Olson planned. Perhaps this is why he was always entrusted with the Varsity Welcome.

The students of other years stood in line for registration, too, even as those of these later days. But in those times, they went to the library instead of Lathrop hall and the little red gym.

After a couple of weeks at school, freshman men, at least, found that the whole university was not interested in making things pleasant for them. They discovered that freshmen wore freshman caps, rolled their pants legs to their knees, and touched the little button on top their red and green bonnets at the approach of a sophomore.

Thetas Also Battle . . . Gory Details . . .

The bag rush, which was held on the lower campus, provided a chance for a battle royal, with the sophomores usually winning by virtue of superior strategy. Ten big canvas sacks, five feet high and stuffed with straw, were set up in a line, and while the moppets from the Madison public schools cheered and sorority girls screamed, the boys went to work to tear each others' clothes off. The whole thing usually ended in a ducking for most of the frosh, although often the boys would get together for that purpose alone and stage a like rush, too.

Whenever a group of Wisconsin students of the pre-war era get together, there are a number of names which are almost certain to come up.

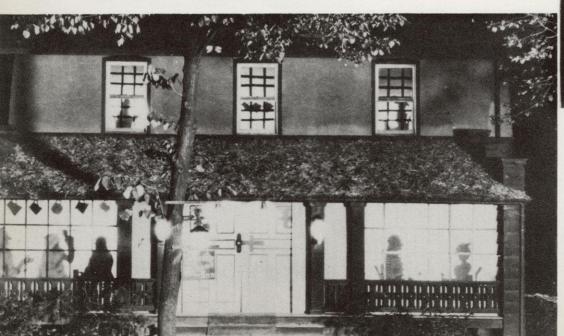

Charles Richard Van Hise, President of the University from 1903 to 1918, is often spoken of as "the man who changed Wisconsin from a college to a university." Under his direction the University embarked upon a program of building, enlarging both the physical plant and the faculty. He also built up an enviable reputation for himself. One of the incidents which built up his popularity occurred when the police force arrested about fifty students for rioting—that was all the jail would hold—and the rest of the student body gathered across the street and threw beer-bottles at the door. Van Hise rode up to the jail and offered his personal check for bail. When he was refused, he rode his horse down State street to the establishment of Dad Morgan, tavern-keeper and owner of a pool hall. Together Morgan and Van Hise raised $1,000 in cash and bailed the captives out.

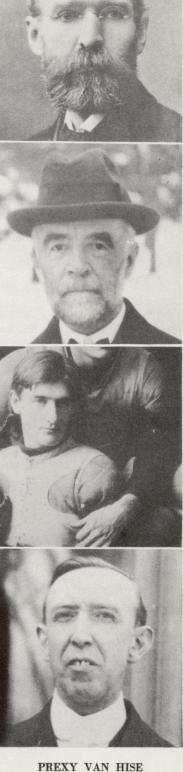

Dr. Stephen Moulton Babcock was the inventor of the milk tester; the story goes that when he finally worked out the principle of the great invention, he ran to the house of the president of the University, got him out of bed, and made him run back to the laboratory in South Hall to see how successful the tester was.

Professor Benjamin Snow—"Benny Snow"—was noted for his lectures on snow-flake patterns. The physics instructor had the largest collection of pictures of snowflakes in existence, and his prepared lectures were very well known.

Dr. Willard G. Bleyer, founder and director of the School of Journalism (which is the first in the country), was known as "Daddy" to many graduates of his school. Among the best stories concerning him is the one about his initiation into Theta Sigma Phi, professional journalism sorority, in order that he might install the Wisconsin chapter. He is also the only man who ever attended a Matrix dinner at the University, for as a member of the sorority, he was an honored guest every year.

Pat and Andy O'Dea, two brothers from Australia, occupy a unique place in University annals. Pat was the famous dropkicker and punter; he drop-kicked a field goal of 65 yards against Minnesota in 1899, and the same year he punted 100 yards against Harvard. Andy was crew coach, and was known to take a fouroared shell out alone for a little row, with a boy with him to handle the tiller-ropes.

PREXY VAN HISE BENNY SNOW PAT O'DEA MAJOR MORPHY

An early Homecoming at the old Gamma Phi house.

DR. BABCOCK DADDY BLEYER ANDY O'DEA DAD VAIL

Boxes, barrels, and old fences make up Homecoming bonfires. "Major" E. W. Morphy—for the title was bestowed upon him by the University for reasons of prestige and aliteration—was director of the University band, which he made as well known for its concert playing as for its marching.

Homecoming activities, including fraternity and sorority decorations, are almost as old as football. With the huge bonfires and mass meetings still included among the traditions the University celebrates, it seems strange that some of the others should have died out along the way. Even now, crowds of 6,000 for the Friday night rally are not unknown, and the inexplicable winning tradition that goes with Homecoming is remembered only too well by some of the teams which have opposed Wisconsin teams on that day.

Union Vodvil, sponsored by the Men's Union, was a highlight in the year mainly because of the students taking part in it. It annually attracted the best talent from all of the dramatic clubs, and such stars as Chubby Goodlad and "Port" Butts, as well as Heinz Rubel and Chic Sale, starred in skits or individual acts. Almost annually a sorority chorus, such as the AOPi team pictured here, would place well up in the rankings.

The Vodvil skits were usually quite short and rather simple, with Topsy-and-Eva acts rather typical of the general level of entertainment, but often cowboy bands or tabloid minstrel shows would be entered. Haresfoot only recovered from its dignity as "The Wisconsin Haresfoot Dramatic Club" after the war, when it forsook the drama for the rowdy revues of the happy twenties. Fred Bickel (later Frederic March) stayed aloof, however, with the intellectual Edwin Booth club.

Prom was, as far back as the first decade of the century, the biggest social event of the year. But, although the chairman of the dance was recognized as a social leader, the "Queen" angle came much later, when publicity-wise students decided to make use of the magic of royalty. At first the Prom was held in the armory, and townspeople paid their fifty cents a head to sit in the balcony at one end and watch the merry throng. Later the capitol was taken over by the Prom committees, with the orchestra installed on a platform high in the dome. But that was after the famous house-party Proms, when the men moved out of their fraternities and the girls moved in, and before the days of the Memorial Union.

Even in the last century, though, the boys managed to take time off to have their pictures taken. The Chi Psis, for instance, got all the top hats they could find and lined up in their living-room to give the photographer his chance. That, by the way, was when the Chi Psis were the only fraternity to have a house and before they had a "lodge." They had the house which is on the corner of Francis and Langdon, directly across Francis from the present Gamma Phi Beta house.

Union V odvil brought out the best in campus talent, but this AOPi team seems to have revealed something unusual in the way of sorority members.

Spring at the University has always brought out parades of all sorts. Tumas initiation, with the derby hats, tail-coats, and baby carriages, made the rounds of the sororities, mainly for the purpose of trying to find someone to take riding. Later, the wheelbarrows replaced the baby carriages, but now even that seems to have been dropped.

The engineers, celebrating the undoubted fact that "St. Patrick was an engineer," annually hold their St. Pat's day parade, which is staged almost any day but St. Patrick's. Almost as traditional is the barrage of eggs which they face, supposedly from lawyers, but more frequently from the host of freshmen which any prospect of a fight brings forth. The Little Red Wagon, composed of an antediluvian Ford chassis and a wooden framework, formed the center of many processions. For years, almost every Wisconsin football team or crew got its sendoffs, including a ride to the station with hundreds of students pulling at the ropes attached to the wagon. Recently the wagon was lost for almost ten years, but it turned up for the 1934 football season and will probably be used intermittently for years to come.

Few seasons have had more actual tradition connected with them than spring.

Venetian night, for a long time a large part of Mother's day, had its parade of lighted floats, the illuminated piers, and the fireworks. With Venetian night came the water carnival, in which fraternity and sorority teams competed in swimming, diving, and canoe tilting contests.

The crew usually started work early in the fall, and by the time it got the shells into the water in the spring, it was sure of trips to Poughkeepsie for freshmen, junior varsity, and varsity boats. With the departure for the Hudson came the ceremony known as "Burning the Boat," in which an obsolete shell was sacrificed to bring luck to the new one going east.

This is the way the Class of 1909 did it.

Tall silk hats of this type and Van Dyke beards are a distinct rarity among the present crop of Chi Psi's, but the lads of 1885 not only had 'em, but had their pictures taken.

The story of the famous Berry-Crate crew of 1900 constitutes an athletic saga which, for crew, is the equivalent of the many Pat O'Dea stories.

The crew that year, under the tutelage of a young fellow named Vail, came out of the West with a gleaming new shell and a stroke that caused experts to laugh in derision and then to check their watches after timing the big eight over the four mile distance. On the day of the race, the "awkward Westerners," still considered out of the race, got off to a good start and stepped into the lead, a position they held by several lengths down until the last mile of the race.

As they entered the third mile, ahead by two lengths, the Badger coxswain sighted a crate floating down the river toward the boat. To avoid being struck and either thrown off the stroke or sunk, he swung the shell as sharply as he could, causing the crew to lose the stroke and the shell to swing in among the yachts which were clustered far closer than ordinary practice permitted. Before the crew could get back on the course, the secondplace crew swept past to win the race. The Daily Cardinal chronicler, by the way, reveals that the winners and the unfortunate Badgers broke training with a memorable party.

Freddie Bickel sits on the porch of the Alpha Delt house, probably not even thinking about Fredric March . . . Tumas boys trundle their buggies to the Alpha Phi house on Irving place . . . Engineers' parades change little, even in fifteen years . . . The Little Red Wagon sends another crew to Poughkeepsie.

With graduation came a series of events which have faded almost completely out of the University's picture.

The ivy which climbs North Hall, the first of the University buildings, was annually added to by a selected orator of the senior class, who presented the Ivy oration in behalf of his classmates. This was usually followed by the Tombstone ceremony, in which the class dedicated its contribution to the stone monuments along Muir Knoll. Both of these customs have passed in a day of scientific landscaping and senior gifts to student loan funds.

Senior Swing-Out, in which senior women bid the University good-bye and in which women's honoraries are announced, has been held here for years past, and at present is the last of the big upper campus pageants which remains.

In Commencement week, and theoretically on the night before graduation, senior men have what is the equivalent of Swing-Out. The Pipe of Peace ceremony, which once included eight or ten of the outstanding men of the class and a representative of the junior class, has become what is practically a burlesque on all other senior ceremonials, but the chief purpose of the event—that of getting another silk ribbon sewed onto the stem of the old calumet—is still achieved.

Commencement itself has been held in so many places and under such varying conditions that to many older alumni and townspeople it still seems strange that it should always be in the field-house. Many years ago they were held in Music Hall, and since then they have been moved to the stock pavilion, the stadium, and the fieldhouse.

In the death of many of its more ridiculous traditions and in the substitution of new simplicity for the old ceremony and roughness, the University may have lost some of its individuality, but it has also achieved a fuller degree of maturity.

IT HAPPENED THIS YEAR...

When school opened in the fall, the whole University community was looking forward to nine months which would pull it up from the slump it seemed to have been experiencing for the past few years.

In sports, the field which had shown a depression all its own in every sport but basketball and boxing, coaches were almost optimistic. Doc Spears said that his football team would be "better than in 1933 or 1934." Ralph Hunn told the school that "I expect a much better crew." Bobby Poser claimed "a good defense, hitting, and uncertain pitching." Tom Jones, imperturable as usual, claimed a powerful, well-balanced squad. And so it was down the list. Wisconsin was due for a boom—a satisfying year after the black years.

Perhaps part of the confidence was due to the fact that the enrollment was on the rise. Registrar and deans counted up their totals and hazarded a guess—"9,800 to 10,000." That was fine, but the other side of the picture was shown when the University employment office refused applications for the 966 National Youth administration jobs after over 2,700 had applied. By the second week of classes, the faculty admitted to over 9,000 students, but indicated that the acute job shortage would send many would-be students home.

Kappa sisters provide a welcome . . . and a show.

Orientation week, with advisers and advisees both thinking what a big world this is... Record-breaking sales of coupon books, for Wisconsin's football team is the dark horse in the Big Ten this year.

That the enrollment, if it lasted, would be a boon to some of the less fortunate activities was shown when Cardinal and Octopus circulations (usually good indicators) swelled and the athletic department ran through its 5,600 coupon books and at last announced a total sale of 7,852.

Formal rushing by fraternities and sororities ended with results which were disappointing to the men's houses, at least. But although only 170 men accepted buttons during the week of regulated rushing, every house on the campus showed better results than in several years when the final check-up was made at the end of the semester. A postscript to the season was written when punishment for rules violation was meted out to two houses—a $20 fine to Phi Sigma Delta and an official frown to Phi Delta Theta.

The University settled into its usual routine easily, with the Union functions and the political rings going into operation almost before textbooks were bought. Immediately it became evident that the Steven plan of class government was doomed, and that the three-director form was to be legislated out of existence. Rex Karney, Cardinal editor, led the attack on the Steven plan, which was formulated by Bill Steven, a deet editor. Steven was a Sigma Phi Epsilon, as is Karney. And to complete the story, the two men are cousins.

Politicoes hit their stride early and continued in good form up until the fall election. The two old-line candidates, who had been building toward this election since their freshman years, were Richard Johnson, Kappa Sigma, and John Wright, Alpha Delta Phi. Johnson was recognized as the leading Prom King candidate while all Langdon street conceded the senior class presidency to Wright. Johnson won, but only after a stormy battle and a bribery trial of an opponent; a first-rate upset gave Caryl Morse and Carl Thompson offices over Wright.

As always, the question of "liberalism" turned up in several ways. Student pickets carried placards through the rain to urge the public to stay away from "Red Salute," showing at the Parkway. Raiders of "the football gang of the W club" created momentary excitement, but the general student body neither saw the picture nor felt that the anti-pickets were expressing any opinion but their own. A less savory example of the activities of the picketing sector of the student body came to light when Hans Luther, ambassador from Germany, visited the home of Professor A. R. Hohlfeld. Pickets against the "Nazi" aroused the anger of many students who saw in the campaign nothing but unjustifiable impoliteness.

But politics and progaganda are only side issues to ninety per cent of the students. The real story of the fall was told in weekly headlines.

This was the outcome of "the strongest line in the conference" which was to make Wisconsin, the dark horse, a major threat to any team in the Big Ten. Gate receipts, of course, fell off; the athletic department faced an unhealthy budgetary condition; and Wisconsin students and alumni-actual and synthetic-fell into a state of distinct unhappiness.

A disagreement which did not impinge directly upon the student sphere, but which raised considerable opinion on the campus began when Professor F. H. Elwell, of the Commerce school, and the Rev. Alfred W. Swan, pastor of the First Congregational church, disagreed on the function of a minister. Elwell, suggesting that Swan was too liberal for his church, discovered that he had touched upon a subject upon which most of his fellow-church members had strong opinions. The fact that opinion was divided almost equally for and against Swan brought matters to a standstill, and peace returned after a few days of wide curiosity on the state of the Congregational family disturbance.

The editor of the Daily Cardinal must, in the course of the year sentence which he serves in the little office on the Union third floor, face many problems. Not the least vexing of these is that of the gossip column-Rambler, Rounder, Trouble-Shooter, Animal Kingdom, or whatever the current name may be. Rex Karney started the year with Howard M. Teichmann, who gloried in the name of Tyke and never realized that he was called "Scoop" only in sarcasm. Teichmann was an earnest young man who gave 'em what they wanted until circumstances-in the shape of the Cardinal Board and a faculty committee-intervened. In his farewell column, Teichmann hinted that he was the victim of political foul play (he was considered to have played false to the Johnson-for-Prom King group) and suggested that there would come a day.

After Teichmann's demise, Ralph Frank, Alpha Chi Rho; Elaine Ohman, Chi Omega; and Don Gosin Psi Upsilon, were called in. They lasted—after a fashion—for several months. Then John A. Garber was called to move his column from the editorial page out into the fastnesses of the paper at large, and he dedicated it to those who would read in spite of the fact that "we don't like you and we don't like anything about you. . . You have become so perverted and vilified by the ecstasies of muckophobia that you can't recognize the gutter when you sit in it." Garber lasted seven days.

A succession of writers finally led to Lew Mentlik, who held down the position with the aid of all Union gossips. The net result is a column which is still read, but which brings remeniscent sighs from the students who remember "the good old days of the Rambler."

An aftermath of the Prom election came when Hugh Lucas, who dropped out of the race because he was legally still a sophomore, was removed from the position of co-chairman of Pre-Prom. The action was taken when it was revealed that his withdrawal had been helped on by means of a written promise of his position from Johnson. Teichmann appeared some place in the mess, apparently in revenge for some unknown wrong.

The carillon, given to the University by ten graduating classes, was at last completed and the bells hung. The general tone of scoffing, adopted by the whole school when the project was first broached, was continued, especially when it became apparent that the bells could be heard only about as far as Park street. The death of a standard campus joke brought the realization to student wits that they might as well retire if the other classic met the same end and the Pi Phi's erected their new house.

The situation within the athletic department had been simmering ever since 1932, when Dr. Clarence Wiley Spears came to Wisconsin from Oregon, apparently with a promise of the athletic directorship under his belt. This year the pot finally boiled over, carrying Spears, Director Walter E. Meanwell, and Trainer Bill Fallon into the fire; the splashings from the kettle affected several other figures in the immediate vicinity and resulted in a threatened expulsion of the University from the Big Ten.

The whole story, from the day it become known that John Golemgeske, (football captain-elect) had circulated a petition asking Spears' removal, divided students, faculty, alumni, and the general public into two camps. The only group which showed any solidarity was the sports writers' tribe, which lined up behind Spears for reasons varying from genuine opinions to petty likes or dislikes.

The athletic board, to which the control of intercollegiate athletics has been given by the University, considered the matter in full, returning the recommendation that Meanwell be retained and that Spears be removed. When the Board of Regents met to consider the recommendation, it opened the whole case and finally fired Spears, Meanwell, and Fallon. Fallon, it appeared, had given the team blackberry brandy between halves at football games; for the Purdue game (the only 1935 victory) the team had had nothing but orange juice.

The attitude of the Daily Cardinal was in direct opposition to all other papers. Showing a distinct pro-Meanwell attitude, it demanded the removal of Spears; after the final step had been taken by the athletic hoard, it continued its stand by complaining about the absence of faculty control.

As soon as the action of the regents became known, the full athletic board resigned, with Howard Heun and Professors A. T. Weaver, Robert R. Aurner, Asher Hobson, and Gustave Bohstedt all pointing out that faculty control was a thing of the past. In the face of disciplinary action by the Western Conference, the largest faculty meeting in years reversed this stand and brought the university safely—if perhaps shamefacedly—back into the group of the select. The new athletic director and football coach was not named until late in the second semester.

The ever-present comedy relief for the year was presented by a number of students. There was Gordon Corey, saying, "There's something about the Union board." There was Bowden Davis' remark about the discontinuation of Union matinee dances because men insisted on wearing sweaters. There was Hugh Lucas, pointing out that girls came to the university "to get their men." And there was Bob Gunderson, running for Union board and being elected—on the platform of "nickle hamburgers in the Union."

Spring elections, in which members of most student boards are chosen, have long provided the opportunity for independents to slip into office by means of discreet alliances with fraternity men. This year, the independents swept every office in which they had candidates, with six non-fraternity men being elected and one independent woman taking office by default.

Although the independents professed a platform of "Break the machine," they displayed more cohesiveness and better concerted action than any Greek coalition of recent years. This and their success brought to the fore the question, "What is a machine?" The minority really concerned with the outcome professed to see varying implications for the fall elections, especially with the reputed collapse of several of the old class machines. But two of the most significant aspects were the ceding by default of four positions (with one left entirely uncontested) and the defeat of the referendum abolishing freshman offices. Apparently candidates for this position were unable to comprehend the fact that the innovation would not affect them, for they all urged its defeat, making good the University political adage that "it takes two elections to pass a referendum."

Claimed to be the result of pressure by the Progressive party of the state, the prediction that "President Frank will resign by June 1 or be removed by the regents" brought another storm to the campus. Five new regents, appointed by Governor Philip F. LaFollette, plus several other Progressive members, were said to be the nucleus of a movement to eliminate the man who has headed the University for ten years.

Taking the affair almost as a matter of course, the school and the state indulged in speculations as to the new president. Governor LaFollette was claimed to be casting sheep's-eyes at the position, the highest-paid in the state service. Lloyd Garrison, dean of the Law School, was mentioned as a possibility. Edwin B. Fred, dean of the Graduate school, was put forth as a candidate. But all of these men denied any ambitions for the job; in statements which seemed almost according to formula, each pointed out an overwhelming interest in government, in law, or in bacteriology. The whole question gradually faded out of the public mind, with general belief that the solution would come in the form of a surprise resignation by President Frank in a regents' meeting some time after June 1. How long after is an open question, but the rallying of the faculty to Frank's support for the first time in years indicated that it might be a matter of years.

With the annual spring urge to the student mentality to get out and orate for some worthy cause came the organization on the Wisconsin campus of the Veterans of Future Wars. Springing from a little group at Princeton, the VOFW staged its demands for $1,000 bonus—payable in advance. Under Commander Julian Fromer and a complete staff organization, the Veterans managed to evoke threads of chastisement from some of the more legitimate veterans' organizations and probably did more for the cause of peace than many of the more serious groups.

When Dick Johnson and Ray Hilsenhoff totaled up the fat little profit of $1,366.66 from Prom and Pre-Prom, the first thing they did was check off $308.92, the debt left as a legacy from Don Heun and Joe Brooks, who had led the freshman and sophomore class dances. The next step was figuring out how to spend it. But in this they were to have the assistance of the whole class and a large number of outsiders.

From the first it was apparent that the choice was to be between two class gifts—a contribution to the student loan fund or a new shell for the crew. The battle waxed long and furiously, with Johnson attempting to be judicious without letting anyone take control out of his hands. At length, after a series of petitions and demands from both sides, he appointed a committee to advise him on how the money was to be spent. It was apparent that Johnson himself would make the final decision, for Brooks and Houfek, his two fellowdirectors, were committed on opposite sides of the question. The committee of seven members met, deliberated, and returned a 4-3 decision in favor of the crew. Johnson thought the matter over, and decided that the new boat would be bought by the junior class.

Jerry Risser wins Pre-Prom's floor show contest . . . Nelson Eddy sways feminine hearts in a Union concert . . . Captain-elect John Golemgeske and Doc Spears exchange grins, not suspecting the coming "Wisconsin situation."

Just before the decision was announced, Bob Blum, whose Union board connections ("There's something about the Union board!") prevented his part from becoming known, discovered that the money was not Johnson's to spend. Under an obscure clause of the now-dving Steven plan, the money was to be left until the senior year before it could be spent, and the whole battle had been in vain. The leaders of both sides turned toward less controversial matters, trying to figure out just who had been shown up as the fools of the situation.

As the spring wore on, some of the routine events of the year returned. The annual French play was produced for the entertainment and bewilderment of freshmen and sophomores who had to go to keep up their French grades. The senior class tangled with the alumni association, but seemed more inclined to come to an agreement than any class in the last four years. Another annual event took place when Kappa Sigma put up its pier, saw it blown down, put it up again.

Haresfoot, which for years vaunted its masculinity in the slogan "All our girls are men, but every one's a lady," completed the trend started last year when it stopped impersonating women. Real girls, in rubber bathing suits and skin-tight formals, were offered in "Of Thee I Sing," the first show written off the campus since the war. The musical comedy was generally considered a success, although some survivors of the egg-throwing, heckling first nights of other years mourned the days of Bill Purnell, Porter Butts, and Heinie Rubel.

Although Frederic March—Freddie Bickel to the Wisconsin of 1920—overshadowed the 75 years the Alumni association was commemorating at its Wisconsin day this spring, the event was celebrated nationally with the assistance of the National Broadcasting company. March, speaking from Hollywood, recalled for the benefit of his listeners some of the scenes he hadn't seen for 16 years—"a hill, a lake, Picnic Point, and Lovers' Lane." Glenn Frank, also speaking, was cut off in the middle of his speech.

John B. Chapple, Ashland editor who based two campaigns for the United States Senator upon attacks upon the University, appeared on the political scene again this spring. This time he loosed his bloodhounds upon the University in the form of a book designed to prove that "The LaFollette Road to Communism" had been surveyed by Glenn Frank, Selig Perlman, E. A. Ross, and a number of other faculty members, The Frank-LaFollette split came at just the wrong time for the Ashland crusader (who had been an ardent Communist in 1928), and last-minute revisions in the book were all too obvious in their attempts to reach LaFollette by means of the University.

The Peace Action Assembly, composed of representatives of many campus groups, got under way early in the spring and held its "strike" on April 15, with about 600 students joining. The catholicity of the organizations joining in the assembly is shown in the fact that William Haight, ardent anti-antiwarrior, was able to write to the Daily Cardinal that "I find myself a member of four of the organizations allegedly sponsoring the April 15 'peace' demonstration." The whole situation, Haight indicated, made him profoundly unhappy.

A concentrated "clean-up campaign" by university authorities was launched about a month before spring vacation. Known to be exercised over the liquor situation among students, the officials in charge of such affairs made drastic attempts to blot up the rivers of beer and torrents of ale which they believed were flowing up and down Langdon street and the adjacent courts. Two or three fraternities faced investigation with possible social probation, and attempts were made to close one student tavern which was suspected of injecting ether, alcohol, and all manner of other foreign matter into its brew. Campus seers gazed into their foamy mugs and prophesied a continued attempt by deans and officials to combat the Demon Rum.

Somewhat related in tone was the rocky attitude taken by disciplinary bodies in dealing with other questions of a somewhat related nature. The outstanding example was the drastic punishment of Delta Kappa Epsilon for illegal Hell week activities. The means of initiation used were condemned as unjustifiably stupid, but the placing of the fraternity on social probation for a year and a half and the forbidding of initiations for a year constituted a grave warning to other houses. Jack Kenaston, Deke president of the Interfraternity board which made the Hell week rules, expressed a unique view of the proceedings when he said, "I hope that this will serve as an example to Greek letter societies to keep their initiation ceremonies down to the 24-hour period and within the house."

Rounding off the school year on a note which indicated a possible revival in athletic circles at least, the Board of Regents announced during spring recess that Harry Stuhldreher, former all-American quarterback from Notre Dame, would be athletic director and football coach for the coming year. Guy Sundt, for ten years a member of the department, had been the outstanding local candidate; he was made assistant director.

In naming Stuhldreher, whose teams at Villanova, Philadelphia, won 65 games, lost 25, and tied 9 in 11 years, the board made known its desire for a nationally-known football team—and relief from an

The Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, which swept the gridirons of the nation in 1924, were led by Stuhldreher, whom Knute Rockne, coach of the team, once called the best quarterback he had ever seen in action. The Wisconsin team and followers all hoped that some of this success could be carried over to the Badger elevens, which was prepared to adopt the Notre Dame system, possibly under an entirely new staff of assistant coaches who would all be Rockne-coached. A note of interest lay in the fact that Stuhldreher would send his squad against two other Notre Dame-coached teams, Noble Kizer's Purdue squad and Mike Lavden's Ramblers at South Bend.

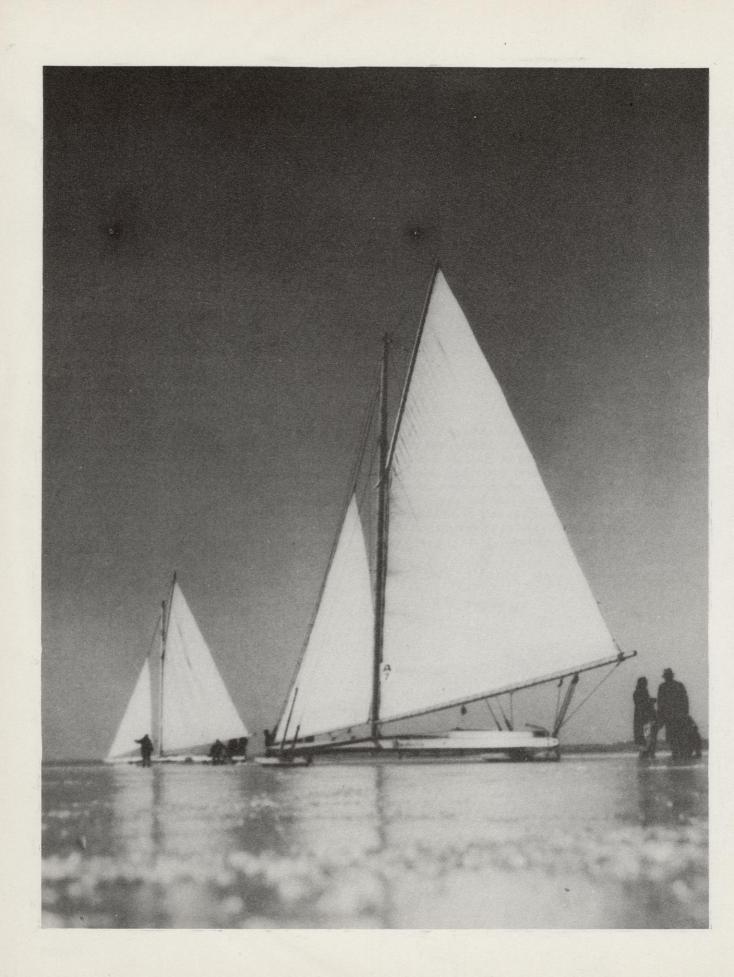

The appointment of Former Registrar Frank O. Holt as dean of the Extension Division gave him a double load of work this year, but at its March meeting the Board of Regents decided upon a successor. Curtis R. Merriman, professor of education, received the appointment. Professor Merriman, through whose classes every Wisconsin-trained school teacher for several years past has gone, will handle the diverse tasks of registration, orientation, and record-keeping. The only disadvantage, colleagues in the school of education pointed out, was that he would no longer teach classes.

AKE RELAY MEET

TOM E. JONES

DRAKE RELAY MEE

For a quarter of a century as head track coach at Wisconsin, Tom Jones, not only has turned out championship combinations, but has molded his athletes into men.

Jones and track are synonomous when mentioned on the Badger campus, or among followers of the sport. A man in love with his work, with the Wisconsin spirit so instilled in him that it is apparent in all he does, and with a remarkable knowledge of the sport he coaches this is Tom Jones.

His record as head track and cross-country coach place Jones among the topnotchers of his profession. Coming to Wisconsin for the 1912-13 season, his Badger track teams have won the Western Conference title three times, in 1915, 1916, and 1917; the Cardinal indoor squads have captured the championship twice, in 1927 and 1930. Jones-coached cross-country teams have been even more successful, winning the conference championship ten times and scoring four second places. The great success Wisconsin has had in garnering dual meet victories shows the result of good coaching and training.

The bare recital of the Badger's cross-country record tells its story of sports supremacy better than any number of superlatives which might be strung together. No other Big Ten school can match or approach it.

To achieve a record like this, a university must have something more than material. It must have something more than technique. Such consistency in victory can come only with the growth of a winning tradition and the development of exceptional team morale. They have been due, more than anything else, to the tireless efforts and inspirational leadership of Coach Jones. There is little glamour to cross-country running. No huge crowds cheer the runners on. The practices are in the fall when the weather is often cold, raw, and discouraging to such severe outdoor training. Yet Tom Jones has built up the spirit at Wisconsin until it is doubtful if the men in any other major sport get more real satisfaction out of their work than do "Tom's" cross-country men.

Personal contact with his athletes seem to be Jones' secret. Each man, individually, gets the benefit of "Tom's" coaching. He doesn't believe in wholesale coaching, but rather in the personal treatment of his men, or "boys" as he'd rather call them. Results prove that he has the right idea.

John Follows, a Wisconsin track star, began to feel the results of Jones' coaching after he had been out of college. Always a threat during his senior year, Johnny really found himself after he had completed his studies at Oxford University in England. He was the track sensation of the 1934-35 season.

Jones' men not only go out on the cinder path with a knowledge of what they are supposed to do, but they go out with the Wisconsin spirit instilled in them and with a love and respect for their coach which seems to push them on to record-breaking endeavors.

Fighting talks before meets is not Tom Jones' psychology. He'll chat with each man just before his event is run off; tell him who his chief opponent is; reminds him of the things he has learned; pats him on the back and tells him to do the best he can. "The best he can" is what Jones wants from his runners and field men. If the athlete is a bit temperamental or eccentric, Jones has a special psychology lesson to practice, and he's usually successful.

On the bulletin board in the cross-country and track room is a mimeographed booklet for the use of the athletes and trainers. The book, compiled by Jones, lists the various injuries which may befall a track man. Under each injury he lists the causes and treatment. It is placed in a conspicuous position because he wants his men to remain in condition, and in case of accidents of any sort to have the correct treatment administered immediately.

Perhaps one of the greatest middle distance and distance men to gain a place in track annals is Johnny Zola who rose to stardom under the tutelage of Tom Jones. Zola, besides being the 1927 Big Ten champion for the two-mile run, was undefeated in his three years of varsity cross-country competition as well as being the joint-holder of the five-mile record of 25:17.

A tall, husky lad, weighing well over 200 pounds, reported to Coach Jones and asked to be one of the weight men. Inside of a few years, the coach had developed Arlie Mucks into one of the outstanding weight men in the history of track.

Another husky, Art Frisch, had never touched a hammer until he was a sophomore, but was throwing it close to 150 feet before he was graduated.

Carmen Smith, another Jones protege, in the short space of three years, jumped from a greenhorn dash man to Olympic fame.

Then there was Ted Shaw who did over 6'6" in the high jump on several occasions; Bill Henke, conference indoor quarter-mile titleholder; Kleinschmidt, Harvey, and Vallely in the half-mile; Kirk in the mile; Knollen, McGinnis, and Clark in the hurdles; as well as a host of other stars . . . all products of a master moulder of track stars and men.

To this maker of men and athletes . . . Coach Tom E. Jones, we dedicate this sports section.

fall . . .

The cool fall winds brought the customary banners, fur coats and blankets to Camp Randall, along with several strong football teams.

The light Jackrabbit squad of South Dakota State came to Madison to open the season for the Badgers. Presumably a warm-up game for the favored Wisconsin team, the lighter team from Dakota turned the tables on the pre-game prognosticators by scoring a 13-6 victory.

Wisconsin outgained, outpassed, and in all was the superior foe in all departments of the game except scoring and fighting.

As in 1934, the visitors opened the scoring by a determined march down the field. A pass from Jordan to Benz tied the score up in the second period, but Miller, the fleetfooted Jackrabbit halfback, ran wild for a second score in the final quarter.

Marquette University, after waiting about a decade to defeat a Badger football team, finally saw its dream come true in 1935 to the tune of 33-0.

Despite its defeat at the hands of South Dakota State the previous week, the Badgers entered the fray a distinct favorite. Even the 13-0 lead at half time didn't seem serious enough to affect Wisconsin's chances of keeping intact its undefeated record against the Milwaukee elevens.

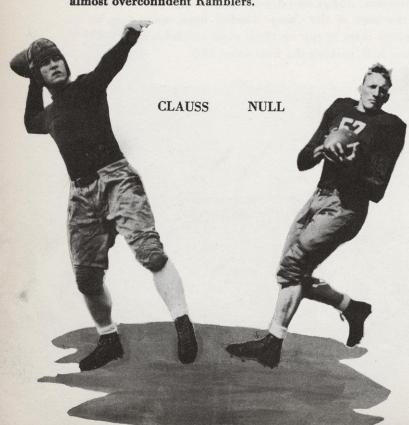

However, sloppy ball handling, running, and tackling on the part of the Camp Randall boys, aided Coach Murray's team to run up three more touchdowns in the second half, making the final score 33-0.

Notre Dame's first and second strings rambled through and over the Wisconsin team to the tune of 27-0 on October 13. Although the score was not unexpected it came as sort of a letdown after the business-like manner in which the Badgers started marching toward the Irish goal in the early minutes of the game.

Jankowski opened the Cardinal march when he broke loose on an eighteen-yard run . . . three plays later he slipped away from Notre Dame tacklers for seven more . . . next he caught a pass from Tommerson and then lateralled to Golemgeske who plunged to the five-yard stripe before he was brought down. However the officials held that the pass was a forward and not a lateral and called back the play.

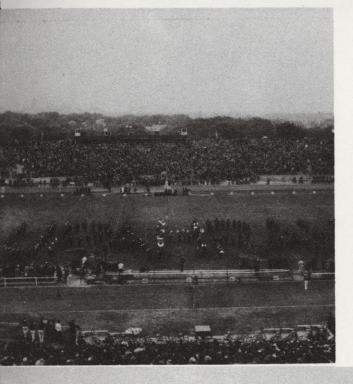

Outside of this brief spurt the Badgers were never a serious threat, although they did show new life and a greatly improved spirit and threw a real scare into the almost overconfident Ramblers.

POPP

Hopelessly outclassed in the first half, Wisconsin seemed doomed to suffer a rout at the hands of a fast Michigan eleven. A gloomy Badger outfit took its half time rest in the Camp Randall locker room trailing the Wolverines by a 20-0 score.

The passing of Bill Renner, Michigan halfback, baffled "Doc" Spears' boys to the tune of three touchdowns. However, the second half saw the Michigan air attack bottled up and the Wisconsin air attack come into prominence. "Weenie" Wilson ran almost three-quarters the length of the field, after catching a toss from Jordan, to score. He went over again after the battering Jankowski brought thé ball into position. The late drive was spectacular, but Michigan clung tenaciously to its one touchdown advantage and emerged on the heavy end of the 20-12 score.

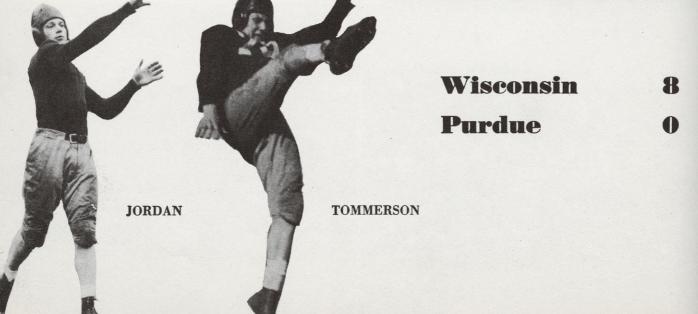

With a slim Homecoming crowd of 17,000 people roaring their approval the lowly and down-trodden Badgers, roused to superior heights by the spirit of Homecoming, played cool, savage football to turn back a highly rated Purdue team 8-0 on November 9.

Mortell's kicking and Jankowski's slashing, charging defensive play featured the contest. However, the Wisconsin line charged hard and fast, alertly followed every break, tackled with viciousness and played a brand of football which warmed the hearts of the few spectators who braved the rain and cold to watch the Cardinals turn in the unexpected victory.

Mortell's towering, quick kicks set the Boilermakers back on their own goal line on several occasions and throughout the first half Purdue was fighting in the shadow of its goal, frantically trying to stave off a Badger score. But as Wright dropped behind his goal to punt the entire Wisconsin forward wall surged through and blocked his kick for a safety.

The final Cardinal score came on a pass . . . Mortell to Lovshin, after a fumbled punt had placed the ball on the Purdue five-yard stripe.

Jay Berwanger, Chicago's all-American halfback practically defeated the Badgers single-handed 13-7 at Stagg field in Chicago.

Berwanger sent the Maroons into an early lead in the second quarter by bringing the ball up to the Wisconsin goal by means of sensational runs. Failure to convert for the extra point gave the Chicago outfit a six-point advantage which was quickly nullified in the third period when Ed Jankowski battered his way into scoring territory and "Weenie" Wilson pushed the ball across. Null converted and Wisconsin went into a one-point lead.

Chicago's Berwanger again ran wild through a tired Badger line and leg weary backfield to score and place the home team ahead, 13-7. Wisconsin never threatened again and the game ended with that count.

Northwestern 32

Wisconsin

In a game that was a great deal closer and harder fought than the 32-13 score would seem to indicate, the Northwestern Wildcats subdued the Wisconsin Badgers at Dyche Field on November 17.

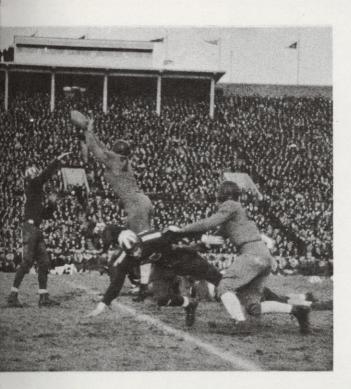

Rolling up two successive first downs immediately after the kick-off, it seemed as if the Wisconsin eleven was going to furnish the Wildcats with an interesting afternoon.

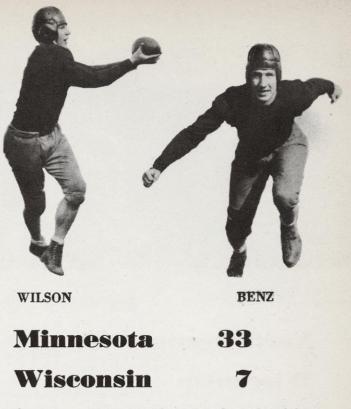

However, the Badgers running attack soon bogged down against the powerful Purple line and the vicious tackling seen in the Purdue game was conspicuous by its absence.

Whatever breaks there were in the game seemed to go against Wisconsin . . . Tommerson's "almost touchdown" and Jankowski's 70-yard touchdown sprint which was called back to the eight-yard line were the two hardest to take for the downtrodden Badgers.

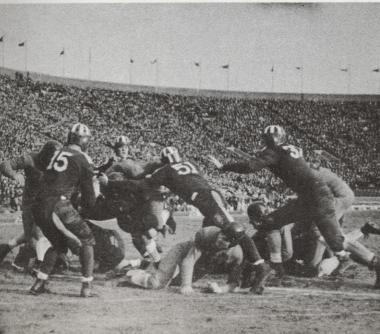

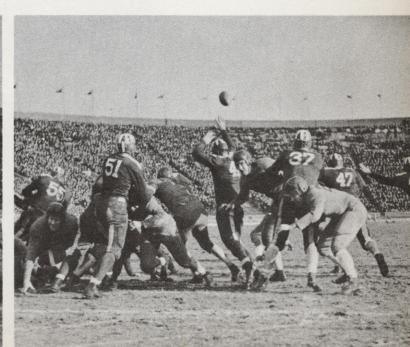

Smashing and battering their way through a fighting, but hopelessly outclassed Badger eleven Minnesota's Thundering Herd pounded out a 33-7 victory and their second consecutive Big Ten Championship.

Throughout the first quarter Wisconsin's defensive game held the Minnesota Jugernaut well in check, but soon the superior power of the Gopher eleven began to show. The Badger line which held like a stonewall in the first quarter began to falter under the onslaught of the hard driving Gopher backs in the second period, and the first of the five Minnesota markers was pounded across.

Except for the rally towards the close when Peak stumbled into the end zone after catching a pass from Jordan, Coach Bierman's squad had things its own way.

cross country

Producing a team, which lost only one conference meet, out of a squad consisting of twoletter men and a group of untried sophomores was the accomplishment of Coach Tom E. Jones during the 1935 cross country season.

In their first meet against the Milwaukee Y. M. C. A. the Badgers gave warning of their potential powers when Captain Kleinschmidt, Fenske, Ruenzel, Pratt, Bachuber, and Cooke crossed the finish line arm in arm to turn back the Y. M. C. A. harriers 15-57.

Two weeks later the Badgers suffered their second defeat in six years of cross-country competition when the strong Illinois team, led by the Rideout twins turned in a 40-18 win. 'Chuck" Fenske, sensational sophomore, was the first Wisconsin man to finish and was lead to he tape by Blaine and Wayne Rideout.

The Badgers traveled to Chicago a week later, and with Fenske finishing first in the excepionally fast time of 9:46.1, won the meet 19-43.

At Iowa City, Wisconsin won 25-31. Again it was Fenske who finished first . . . Cooke, Bachuber, and Ruenzel also placed . . . giving the Badgers the edge. In the Purdue meet Fenske stamped himself as the outstanding sophomore runner of the year when he again led the field to the tape, and Wisconsin to a 24-37 victory.

Although Fenske again won, the powerful, well-balanced Notre Dame squad proved too much for the Badgers in the last meet of the year at South Bend and they came out on the long end of a 26-30 score.

In the season's opener, Coach Harold "Bud" Foster's second Badger quintet started off slowly and trailed a scrappy De Pauw five 12-9 at half time. But led by Gordon Fuller's six points, the Badgers crept ahead and emerged on the long end of an 18-16 count.

MICHIGAN STATE.....21

As in the De Pauw game, the Badger basketeers let the opponent grab the lead at the start of the game. After being behind 15-13 at the half, the Foster-coached boys, paced by Fuller and DeMark with 10 points each, closed the gap and won out in the last few minutes, 26-21.

A highly touted Hamline University basketball team with a remarkable record in the Minnesota conference came to Madison with lots of hope, but left Madison with a 29-20 loss checked up against it. Hod Powell, inserted into the game late in the first half, stole the show with 13 points.

Paced by Ed Stege, towering center, the Badgers upset all pre-game predictions, by making a runaway affair of the return game with Marquette in the Milwaukee auditorium. Stege chalked up 15 points in the 46-21 victory. Over 5,000 Milwaukee enthusiasts marvelled at the perfect functioning of the Wisconsin basketball machine.

With a record of five wins and no losses, the Badgers met a tartar in the De Paul "giant killers" and dropped a close 27-22 decision in the Chicago stadium before a disappointingly small crowd. De Paul led throughout the game, but two minutes before the final gun, Wisconsin crept up to within one point of tying the count. Wegner led the scoring with eight pointers.

WEGNER

Getting back into winning ways, the Badgers trounced the Washburn team, using reserves throughout the greater part of the game. Jones, alternate center, went on a rampage and paced the Badgers, scoring 18 of the 36 points. Although there was little difference in the score at half-time, the Cardinal clad boys quickly pulled away from their opponents.

Traveling to Columbus for the first conference game, the Badgers met with a surprise from a scrappy Ohio State outfit. The Staters sent in a barrage of baskets before the Badgers could get started and let 30-9 at the intermission. After that the Wisconsin boys found themselves, and the game ended 23-44.

In a thrilling overtime game in which the Badgers had mediocre success in stopping the Maroons' Bill Haarlow who scored 18 points, Foster's team came out on top, 38-36. Wisconsin jumped into a big lead at the start of the game, but Haarlow put the Maroons back in the game and kept them there. Wegner and Mitchel scored eight points each for the cardinals.

Over 8,800 persons packed the field house to witness Wisconsin's defeat at the hands of the Suckers in the wildest see-saw game ever to be witnessed here. With the score 13-13 at the half, the Illini crept into the lead and emerged with a two-point margin of victory. Wegner and DeMark scored eight points apiece for the Badger five.

In a slow game featured by ragged shooting on both sides, the Badger quintet defeated the Hawkeyes, completely dominating throughout the fray. Wegner led the Badger scoring with nine points in the victory which placed Wisconsin in the first division with a .500 average. The Fostermen led 12-10 at the half.

After trailing the Hoosiers 15-9 at half time, the Badgers put on a spirited rally to take the lead for a short while in the second half. Powell was the Wisconsin spark plug, but his seven points was not enough to prevent an Indiana victory of 26-24.

AN RIZIN

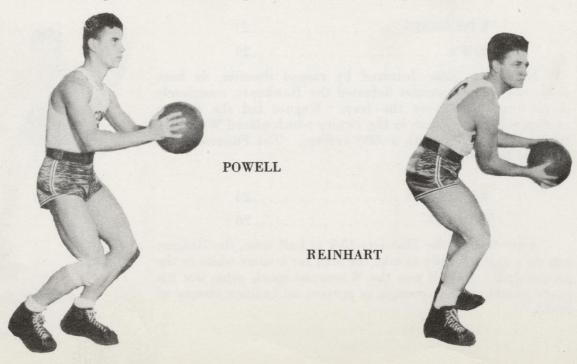

Appearing completely outclassed in the first half, at the end of which they were trailing the Badgers, led by Nick DeMark, who entered the game in the last seven minutes during which time he rang up seven points, emerged the winner in a listless game.

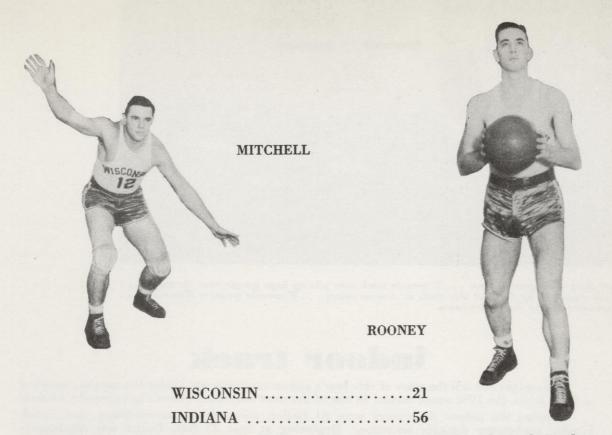

Led by Mitchell and Fuller who scored 11 and nine points respectively, the Badgers avenged a previous defeat by setting back the Staters 34-25. The game was won in the second half when the Cardinals overcame an 18-13 lead held by the Buckeyes. It brought the Badgers back to a .500 standing in the conference.

In a sloppy game, the Suckers of Illinois swamped the visiting Badgers whose defeat killed any chance of Wisconsin's retaining the conference title won in 1934-35. DeMark scored seven points to take high scoring honors for the Fostermen. This setback enabled the Illini to sweep the season's series.

With diminutive Sid Rosenthal of the Iowans going wild and running up 21 points for himself, the Hawkeyes evened the season's series with the Badgers 32-25. The score was close all the way and it wasn't until the closing minutes of the game that Rosenthal put the fracas in the bag for Iowa.

Taking one of the biggest drubbings in the history of Badger basketball, the Wisconsin quintet was completely humbled by a fast and accurate shooting Indiana five at Bloomington in the second meeting between the two teams. The Badgers, tired from a playing trip, couldn't match the speed showed by the opposition.

Trailing 16 to 1 after the first 15 minutes of play, Bud Foster's men climbed up steadily and almost grabbed the lead, but McMichaels, of the visitors, kept his team ahead with his 19 points. Stege and Wegner rang up eight markers each for the Cardinals.

A fighting Badger five, appearing in its final home game of the year, set back a Chicago outfit which always threatened, with Bill Haarlow scoring 19 points. Hod Powell scored 15 and Mitchell chalked up eight points to keep the Badgers ahead throughout the game.

Traveling to Evanston for the final game of the season, the Wisconsin basketball team ran into a scoring flurry on the part of the Wildcats, who held on to a big lead at the half and warded off any Badger threats. Powell scored seven markers. It was the eighth defeat in 12 Big Ten starts for the Badgers.

Badgers upset dope in conference meet ... Wisconsin track stars pile up huge margin over Marquette ... Unexpected victories turned in by Cardinal thin clads at Armour relays ... Wisconsin trounces Minnesota ... Purdue and Northwestern bow to Badger trackmen.

indoor track

Thus might one tell the story of this year's indoor track season. Under the capable coaching of Tom Jones, the 1936 squad turned in one of the most successful records in university history.

Topping the indoor performers were Al Haller, pole vaulter extraordinary, and Chuck Fenske, sophomore distance sensation. Beginning at over 13 feet, Haller was consistently leaping 13 feet 6 inches by the close of the season. Fenske, who starred on the cross country team, was a dependable first place winner in both the one and two-mile events.

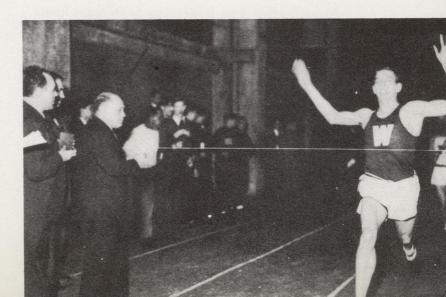

Launching their season on February 15, the cindermen traveled to Evanston where they engaged Purdue and Northwestern in a triangular meet. The Badgers copped four firsts and enough seconds and thirds to win by a comfortable margin.

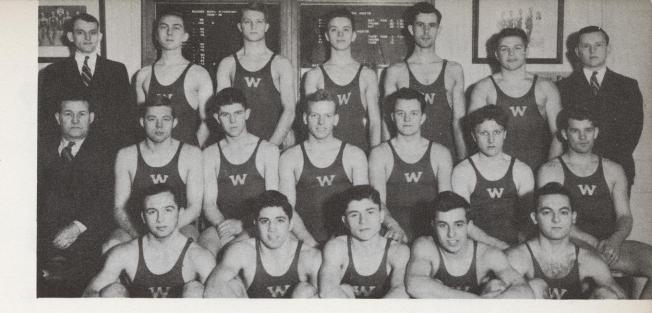

On February 29 the Badgers journeyed to Minnesota where they defeated the Gophers 49-36. The next week a highly touted Marquette team made its appearance in Madison only to have Coach Jones' boys turn them back by a 49 to 36 count. Six records fell in this meet with Wisconsin men setting four of them.

The crowning achievement of the season occurred on March 14 when Wisconsin pushed the Michigan cindermen to the limit before surrendering the conference track championship by the scant margin of one and three-quarter points.

March 20 saw the Badgers repeat their 1935 victory and retain the Central A. A. U. title claims, scoring $36\frac{1}{4}$ points to register an easy win. Fenske's record-breaking 3,000 meter run featured the meet.

The following Saturday found Wisconsin defeating Northwestern and Iowa by a wide margin. Again it was Fenske and Haller as the stars of the meet. Closing the season, Wisconsin trackmen bowed out in befitting style when they emerged victorious in the first state A. A. U. meet on April 3.

swimming

With four men declared ineligible for the second semester, Coach Joe Steinauer again faced a disappointing season with his swimming team. Capt. Ike Simonsen in the dives and Vince Grudzina in the backstroke were the shining lights in an otherwise dark season.

The Badger's first two meets with Indiana and Purdue resulted in two losses for the Wisconsin mermen.

In the next meet with Carleton, Wisconsin was again defeated 41-35. Minnesota defeated the Badgers the next night 52-21. Capt. Simonsen, Grudzina, Wortely, Liebner and Dille were the Wisconsin point men.

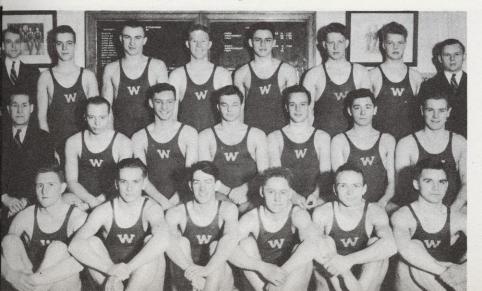

The first home meet also resulted in defeat . . . Michigan State 63, Wisconsin 31. Capt. Simonsen and Grudzina were the only Badgers to win first places.

The strong Iowa team was the next Badger opponent. Iowa won the meet 57-27. Capt. Simonsen took the only first place for the Badgers, winning the diving event. Grudzina met his first defeat of the season in the 150-yard backstroke. Previous to this meet he was unbeaten ... except for a tie in the Indiana meet.

A return engagement with Indiana, the last Big Ten meet of the season resulted in another loss for Wisconsin . . . 47-20. Capt. Simonsen starred for the Badgers . . . winning the dives as usual and garnering an extra first in the 60-yard free style.

Several elements combined to make the 1936 season another lean year . . . injuries, ineligibility, lack of facilities and financial backing all played their part. However, interest in the sport was not lacking . . . and for next year there are several freshman stars who should play an important part in bringing the Badgers swimming team out of the doldrums into which they have fallen in the past few years.

There is also some possibility of several well known prep swimmers enrolling at Wisconsin . . . all of which should prove a definite boost to a colorful and interesting sport.

boxing 1936

Winning five out of six meets the flashy Wisconsin squad completed its fourth successful season, losing but one meet in the four years of intercollegiate competition. The obvious consistency of the Badger fighters in 1936, again places them on the top rung of intercollegiate fistiana.

An over-whelming defeat of 7-1 handed to the Pittsburgh mittslingers on February 21st started off the season. The Panthers scored their only victory of the evening off of "Wild Bill" Marquardt. The flashy Walsh twins made an impressive debut by winning a pair of clean-cut victories, with Jim winning from Capt. Al Paslowski who was undoubtedly the most polished member of the Smoky City squad. Woodward and Harman scored KO's in the first round of each of their bouts, with Gordy showing the same invincible form that has made him the idol of the fans in the past.

A week later the Badgers chalked up another 7-1 victory, with North Dakota as the victim. 9,000 fans saw a card of the most scientific bouts in the history of Wisconsin ringdom. With the exception of a typical Zynda knockout over Johnson, Nodak lightheavy, the bouts were close with Art Walsh, Fadner, Stupar, Harman, and Shiro winning decisions and Woodward losing the nod to Blanchette. The outstanding bouts of the evening were Charley Zynda's win against a sixteen-pound handicap and the left jab duel staged by the Badger favorite Harman and Miltenberger, the Nodaks 155-pounder.

The Cardinal mittmen met their first defeat in three years at the hands of the Syracuse squad who fought with a revengeful determination because of the whipping Coach Walsh's boys served them last year. The bouts were all close and the Badgers were severely handicapped by the Eastern officiating that emphasizes long range boxing rather than the savage infighting so characteristic of the home squad. Stupar repeated his victory over Bardache, Art Walsh won his third bout of the season via the technical knockout route and brother Jim Walsh was held to a draw by Soloman the Orange bantam. The remaining Badgers lost decisions making the score $5\frac{1}{2}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$.

Penn States Eastern Intercollegiate championship team met with a $5\frac{1}{2}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ trimming before the largest and wildest crowd ever to watch an intercollegiate boxing match. The crowd whipped up to a frenzy by a $2\frac{1}{2}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ tie was calmed by sensational knockouts scored by Zynda and Deanovich which cinched the match for Wisconsin. Art Walsh fighting true to form defeated the Penn captain, a three-time Intercollegiate champion.

The Badgers dropped the final curtain with a 7 to 1 victory over Michigan State's fighters, while the B team scored a surprising victory when they upset the St. Norberts mittmen in the preliminaries.

wrestling

Scoring more victories than had been won in the past six years, Wisconsin wrestling was successfully revived in 1935-36 under the direction of Coach George Martin. Martin, a former national collegiate and national A. A. U. titleholder, had only one major letter winner, Capt. Randy Haase, 118-pound grappler, plus a few experienced men to build upon.

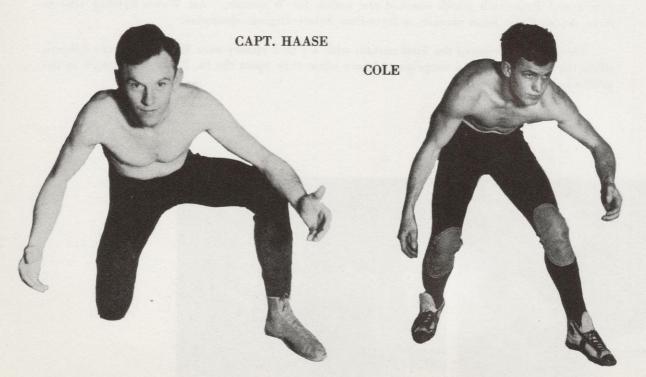

Using sophomores in half of the weights, Wisconsin won four and lost four meets. The Badgers opened at home by whipping Northwestern $22\frac{1}{2}$ to $11\frac{1}{2}$. Iowa was too powerful and trounced the Wisconsin grapplers 24 to 8. After battling snow drifts all the way to Chicago, Wisconsin lost to the Maroons, $24\frac{1}{2}$ to $7\frac{1}{2}$, and then were snowbound at Crystal Lake, Illinois on their return home.

Dipping into Little Nineteen conference competition, Wisconsin trounced De Kalb 31 to 5 and beat Wheaton, Little Nineteen conference champions, 17 to 15. The final Wisconsin victory came over Carelton $15\frac{1}{2}$ to $12\frac{1}{2}$. Minnesota reasserted its supremacy over Wisconsin matmen to the tune of 25 to 3. A much improved Wheaton team defeated Wisconsin in the season's finale, $20\frac{1}{2}$ to $9\frac{1}{2}$.

For the second successive year Capt. Randy Haase led the team with six victories against two defeats by decisions. Topping his record were two wins from Currens, Central A. A. U. champion. Starting in mid-season, Stan Austin won five successive bouts for second honors. At Minnesota Austin saved the Badgers from a shutout by his victory in the 135-pound division.

Richard Beecher, sophomore, and Allan Cole, second senior on the team, each gained four victories and a draw. Minor letter winners were Edward Hauser, George Feinberg, Lawrence Lederman, and Orville Wyss.

Others on the squad who contributed to the Wisconsin scoring were Ray Egger and Robert Grinde, heavy weight. Awards were made to two seniors, two juniors and four sophomores, leaving Coach Martin with an experienced squad for next season, bolstered by a host of freshmen matmen.

spring . . .

The crack of the starter's gun, the thud of spiked shoes on cinders, and the bark of the coxswain ushered in spring.

Combining a world record breaking shuttle hurdle relay team and the fastest mile relay quartet ever turned out at Wisconsin with a group of brilliant individual stars, Coach Tom Jones, veteran track mentor, turned out the most powerful track squad since the days of "Red" Wright and the Big Ten championship team of 1931.

All of the power which carried the Badgers through their successful indoor season, which reached its climax at the Central A. A. U. when the Cardinals swept aside all opposition, was again evident in the first days of spring practice.

Led by Capt. Bob Clark, such performers as Carleton Crowell, Karl Kleinschmidt, Jerry Mohrhusen, and Jack Kellner turned to the outdoor season with the determination to repeat their indoor victories; and on April 20 the Redmen engaged Marquette, minus the services of Ralph Metcalfe, and readily trounced them to the tune of 76 1/6 to 54 5/6.

Irv Rubow, veteran Wisconsin weight man, paced the Badgers with two firsts, one in the shot put and another in the discus. Jerry Morhusen and Jack Kellner also added considerable to the Cardinal score winning seven and eight points respectively, while Crowell, Christianson, Haller, Sharff, Parker, Stiles, and Stuewe all did their part in piling up the final count.

Seven days later the pick of the squad traveled to Iowa to participate in the annual Drake Relay Carnival. Although defeated, Wisconsin's team made a creditable showing with both the shuttle hurdle and the half mile relay teams placing as did Christianson, Haller and Scharff in their individual events.

Chicago came to Camp Randall on May 11 to take on Coach Jones' proteges, but hastily returned after watching Wisconsin sweep over them in most of the events, rolling up an aggregate total of 103 to 22 for Chicago, the most one-sided score of the season.

Most of the attention at this meet centered around the special 480-yard shuttle hurdle relay race run by Capt. Clark, Stuewe, Kellner and Leiske in new world record time of :60.4 seconds breaking the existing record of :61.6 seconds. Diminutive Karl Kleinschmidt breasted the tape in both the half and one mile runs to turn in the best performance of the afternoon. However, every letterman on the squad CROWELL succeeded in breaking into the scoring column so it would be hard to pick individual stars of the meet.

On May 18 Wisconsin ran into the shades of Ralph Metcalfe when they engaged Ohio State, Northwestern, and Chicago in a quadrangular meet at Evanston.

The black streak of lightning in the form of Jesse Owens of Ohio State, was sufficient to turn back the Badgers with his almost super-human performance in winning four first places in one afternoon. However Coach Jones' men scored a clean sweep in the 120-yard high hurdles and in addition added firsts in the quarter mile and shot put. With the other points garnered by the Cardinals they were able to collect $54\frac{3}{4}$, fifteen points behind Ohio State and twenty-three ahead of Northwestern, with Chicago placing last.

Traveling to Ann Arbor, Michigan the following week the Badgers again watched the same Jesse Owens sweep four events . . . breaking world records in three and tieing the other one.

Carleton Crowell, Wisconsin's quarter-mile ace, turned in one of the most spectacular finishes of the afternoon when he defeated "Sunny" Heg of Northwestern, breaking the tape about six inches ahead of the Evanston flash, after a gruelling run in 48.5 seconds.

CAPT. KLEINSCHMIDT

Jack Kellner garnered the other first in the 120-yard high hurdles and qualified himself for the IC4-A meet in Los Angeles. Other Redmen to add points to help the team score a third place were Capt. Clark, Christianson, Haller, Scharff, Stiles and Stuewe.

As a conclusion to a successful season the Badgers romped over Minnesota's trackmen 89 to 37. Out of the fourteen events the Gophers were able to win four . . . Wayne Slocum, Minnesota distance star turned in a surprise when he defeated two Wisconsin stars, Karl Kleinschmidt and Jerry Mohrhusen in the mile and two-mile runs, respectively. The other two events the Badgers lost were the discus and the broad jump.

Capt. Clark, Jack Kellner, and Carleton Crowell entrained for California to participate in the IC4-A meet in the early weeks of June. But neither of them succeeded in placing in the finals . . . Crowell qualified for the finals where he was defeated by the same "Sunny" Heg of Northwestern, whom he had defeated twice earlier in the year.

Fresh from their victories on the indoor track, Coach Jones' proteges opened their 1936 season with an 85-41 victory over Marquette on April 18. Although running under adverse weather conditions the Badgers turned in good performances and served warning that they are to be considered seriously for Big Ten honors later this spring.

Chuck Fenske, brilliant sophomore runner, repeated his indoor victories with a first in the mile and breasting the tape with his running mate, Cooke, in the two-mile grind. Haller easily won the pole vault with a leap of thirteen feet.

Crowell and Kellner also showed a marked improvement in form and won the 440 and high hurdles respectively. Clem Janicki, Rubow, Schmidt, and Wichman were other Badgers to score firsts while Capt. Klienschmidt, Bunt, Scharff, Rich, Bastian, Christianson, and Schlanger were others to break into the scoring column.

golf

Wisconsin lost its first meet of the season, a non-conference engagement with Notre Dame, $10\frac{1}{2}$ - $7\frac{1}{2}$. With the score tied at $7\frac{1}{2}$, Cole of Notre Dame won the match by sinking an explosion shot.

In their first Big Ten match, the Badgers defeated Iowa $10\frac{1}{2}\cdot7\frac{1}{2}$. After losing the doubles matches 4-2, Wisconsin came back to score $8\frac{1}{2}$ points in the singles. Captain Reierson, Connors, and Holt were the winners.

The Badgers were overwhelmingly defeated by Minnesota, $19\frac{1}{2}$ to $7\frac{1}{2}$. Connors and Holt won their doubles matches while Connors was the only Wisconsin man to win his singles match.

Chicago was defeated 14-4. Wisconsin won both doubles matches and Holt, Connors, and Captain Reierson won their singles.

Wisconsin placed fourth in the Big Ten meet with Bowden Davis as high man for the Badgers with a score of 310. This was the first time in the history of Big Ten golf that there was a full representation from every school in the conference.

tennis

The Badger tennis team started a dismal season in which they did not win a match, by losing to Iowa.

On an intended trip to Purdue the Badger team ran into a snow storm which left them stranded in Chicago. With no one to play Coach Masely succeeded in getting a match with Northwestern. Wisconsin was defeated 6-0. The next day Chicago turned back the Badgers 4-2.

The match with Minnesota saw the Badgers again defeated; Captain Black, although losing, 3-6, 6-3, 9-7, extended Billy Schommer, Gopher ace and former Wisconsin champion, to the utmost in a hard fought match. In a return engagement Minnesota again defeated Wisconsin 4-2. Wisconsin won their first doubles match of the season when Richardson and Burgess defeated Shapiro and Huber of Minnesota. Wisconsin wound up the season by again losing to Chicago 5-1. Stafford was the only Wisconsin man to win his match.

Reviving long lost interest in a sport that had been relegated to minor ranks was the task facing Coach Ralph Hunn, new Badger Crew Coach and former Wisconsin coxswain, when he took over the coaching duties last year after the departure of George "Mike" Murphy.

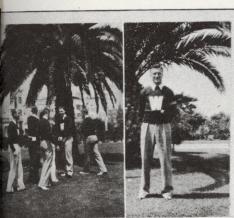

Through the help of Director of Athletics Walter E. Meanwell, the crew budget was greatly increased, allowing the 1935 crew to participate in races from the Pacific seaboard to the waters of the Ohio River at Marietta.

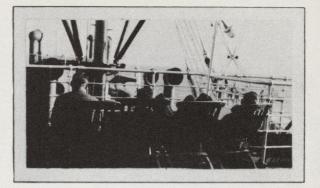

Although the crew's trip to the west coast was marred by their defeat at the hands of the best crews in the United States the three-week trip did much toward building up Wisconsin athletics ... which was one of the main purposes of the trip. W. K. Murphy, a Wisconsin alumnus, now living in Los Angeles, turned out to be a very hospitable host for the crewmen and it will be a long time before he and the regatta are forgotten by the boys making the trip.

On May 18, the 1935 crew season was officially put under way when the Wisconsin shell swept over the finish line four lengths ahead of the Marietta boat in the Badger's first major race since 1931.

Next came the Marietta regatta on the Ohio River. On the way to the regatta the Wisconsin shell "Dad Vail" was sideswiped by a truck and was ruined, thus smashing Wisconsin's hopes for victory.

Manning a Pennsylvania shell, the Wisconsin crew was at a disadvantage from the start. At the start, the red and whitetipped Wisconsin oars ran into the Rutgers boat clipping the blade of the number two oar, and giving the other shells a two-length lead before the borrowed and damaged shell was finally headed down the course.

By the time the boats hit the finish line the Badgers were in fourth place ... finishing behind Rutgers, Penn, and Marietta, but ahead of Manhattan and Rollins. After the easy victory over Marietta a few weeks previous it appeared that, had the Badgers been in their own shell, the result of the race would probably have been a different story.

VARSITY SQUAD

Intercollegiate baseball has fallen off to a marked degree in recent years, as far as student interest is concerned. John Falk (Bobby) Poser, Badger baseball and basketball star of just a few years past, in his first year as head baseball coach, tried to bring back that interest, but a series of injuries and ineligibilities prevented him from producing a winning team—the only factor which can bring about a revived baseball interest for Wisconsin "sophisticates."

Hampered from the very beginning of the year by lingering cold weather and snow-covered ground, Poser's men had to be content with holding their practice sessions in the armory annex and later in the field house, with only one or two outdoor workouts before the first game, and it wasn't until mid-season that the team finally showed its latent power and began to win a few ball games despite a pitching staff weakened by Chub Poser's sore arm which kept him out of the game all season and which left the burden of starting assignments on John Tomek, a diminutive righthander who won the five conference victories for Wisconsin.

With a season's record of 10 wins and 13 losses, the Posermen, however, finished in fifth place in the conference with five wins and six defeats.

COACH POSER Page 256

FROSH SQUAD

The year was climaxed with a 5-3 victory over Minnesota, after the team had shown a reversal of form, by capturing six of the last eight games.

Fielding and batting inconsistencies proved the cause of the poor record set up. There is no doubt that the team was fast. There is no doubt that the team could hit. There is no doubt that the team could field. All this was proven in the latter part of the season when practically every man on the outfit raised his batting average and fielded almost flawlessly. But the trouble at the beginning of the season was that the men couldn't field well and hit well on the same day. The pitching, which plays the greatest role in intercollegiate baseball, was notably weak, with the exception of the feats turned in by Tomek.

The outlook for this year will depend on how the pitchers come through. Tomekwill be lost through graduation. The only infield man to leave the team is Ken Nordstrom, last year's captain and a dependable cog in the infield from the shortfield. He was a valuable man at the leadoff position. A slugging outfield composed of three southpaws, Chet Carlson, Frank Brilty, and "Chud" Gerlach, will have to be replaced, since the three men have graduated.

The infield will be fast, steady, and pack plenty of batting punch. Frank Church, 1934 regular, and Fritz Wegner, 1935 starter, will battle it out for the first base assignment. Captain Chuck Heyer, a steady performer at second, seems to be assured of his post.

Continuing its aim of "athletics for all", the intramural program moved further towards its goal during the 1935-36 season, as fall and winter sports brought into participation a definite increase of men over the previous year; an increase that was especially marked in the independent ranks.

As before, keenest competition existed among the fraternities. The close of the 1934-35 season found the Badger Bowl in possession of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, who amassed 777 points to lead their nearest competitors, Sigma Chi, by over a hundred points. Always among the leaders, Tarrant house nosed out Noyes for the Dorm Supremacy by a single point, after the latter aggregation had led throughout the year. Although somewhat unavoidably loosely organized, the independents came through with many powerful teams, the most prominent of which was the Madison All-Stars under the leadership of Frank Blau. Next year it is hoped to establish permanent independent teams.

Touch football claimed all interest during the fall, with several tight races developing in each of the leagues. Although going through the season undefeated and unscored upon, the Sig Chi's were forced to the limit before downing the PiKA's 12-0 in a hard-fought fraternity final. The powerful Noyes team, for two years over lords of the dorms, suffered two suprising losses near the end of the season and barely managed to eke out a fast-stepping Fallows outfit. Blau's All-Stars, a renovation of the old Madison All-Stars, was easily the outstanding team among the independents, although a close fight developed for the runner-up position.

Volleyball, infringing on the latter part of the gridiron schedule, was won by the Phi Psi's, who defeated Sigma Chi in the final of the play-offs. Gregory was the winner from the dorms.

Phi Kappa Tau, considered a rank outsider at the beginning of the hockey season, turned in a clean slate and a victory over Delta Upsilon, last year's champ, in the finals to romp away with an unexpected championship on the ice. Echoing their victory in football, Noyes swept to a dorm hockey title.

Although leading in Badger Bowl standing at time of publication, the SAE's had won but one championship, that being basketball, a race in which they were rated heavy pre-season favorites. Following a victory in the fraternity play-offs, the victors went on to easily win the university championship from Hillel, independent champions, and conquerers of Tarrant house, winners in the dorm race.

Frankenburger came into its own at the dormitory track meet after poor starts in the previous sports, when they piled up enough points to take an easy first. Led by Jankowski, the Sigma Nu's earned the fraternity laurels, edging out the SAE's and Phi Gams, who placed second and third respectfully.

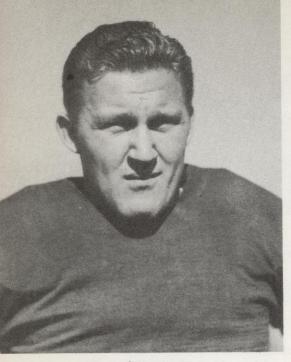

With Shapiro annexing two firsts, the AEPi's were just able to splash away from the Alpha Delts in the fraternity swim meet, the final score standing at 20-19¹/₂. Frankenburger kept up their victory march towards the dorm supremacy with a conquest in the pool.

Kappa Sig, winner last year and favorite again this year, met unexpected competition in fraternity bowling, going down to defeat before the Delta Chi bowlers in the finals.

Under the direction of Guy S. Lowman, Art Thomsen, and Les Hendrickson, intramurals are fast laying claim to their deserved interest among the student body, and bid well to continue growing in popularity. Not only are more players competing in the various sports, but large turn-outs have accompanied most of the contests.

most valuable player-

The election of Ed Jankowski as the most valuable player on the ill-fated 1935 football team met with hearty approval from all followers of the Wisconsin gridiron sport.

Every game was marked with his savage tackling and otherwise vicious defensive play . . . he was the most feared man in the conference and was the hardest to take out of a play. Many a touchdown would have been chalked up against the Badgers had it not been for the Milwaukee boy's alertness and grit. He is a rare player who combines an almost uncanny ability to diagnose plays before they are under way, with sixty minutes of as hard football as has ever been seen on the turf at Camp Randall.

Besides being the mainstay on the varsity football team he competes in intramural sports with his fraternity, Sigma Nu. He is a hard man to stop on a basketball court and is a sprinter of no mean ability. In addition he has also worked his entire way through his three years of college life as a cashier at a restaurant and working as attendant at a filling station.

western conference medal award –

Rolf "Chubby" Poser, member of the senior class of 1935 who was outstanding in athletic prowess and scholastic attainment was awarded the 1935 Western Conference Medal.

During his four years, Poser earned three letters in basketball . . . and in his junior and senior years he was picked on many All Conference teams by various sports writers. Besides captaining the 1935 basketball squad he also won a letter in baseball . . . before an injury to his arm in the 1935 season he was one of the most effective of the Badger hurlers.

Besides his interests in athletics, Poser was also an honor student. Throughout his university career he maintained well over a two point average . . . even in his first year of medical school, while he was earning all conference recognition on the basketball court in addition.

Poser also was elected to White Spades, junior men's honorary, and Iron Cross, senior honorary. He is a member of the Sigma Chi social fraternity and of Nu Sigma Nu, professional medical organization.

Polygon is a central committee governing the activities of the engineers. It is composed of ten men, a junior and a senior from each of the five branches of the Engineering College. Every year, the engineering societies elect one sophomore, who, on becoming a junior, is admitted to Polygon. Thus, each branch of engineering is perpetually represented by a junior and a senior.

The engineers are fast becoming a larger and more closely knit group. The main purpose of Polygon is to coordinate the activities of the engineers. Thus, by assessing each man a dollar every semester, Polygon gives him membership in his respective society, pays part of his dues to the national chapter, and runs two dances and two smokers during the year.

Polygon also appropriates money to partly finance the Wisconsin Engineer Magazine, a subscription to which Polygon gives each paid member. Polygon also takes charge of the St. Pat's Parade, which was highly successful this year.

The Graduate Club, in which all graduate students automatically become members upon registration, is an organization formed for the purpose of expressing the social interests of the graduate student body.

As a means of promoting social activity among its members the club sponsors a diversified program . . . bi-monthly dances, bridge parties, an occasional Sunday afternoon tea, a graduate banquet, and a picnic in the spring are all included in a years social activity. In addition the club maintains a lounge and reading room in the Union for the use of its members.

The governing body of the club is a council composed of seven officers . . . elected by ballot, three of which must be members of the preceding years council. This council directs and plans the years program and endeavors to bring about a whole-hearted participation in the activities offered.

The Agricultural Council serves to integrate the activities of the ten organizations which carry on their work on the Agricultural College campus.

The Council is a body comprised of two representatives from each of various organizations on the "Ag." campus. The groups represented are Euthenics Club, Saddle and Sirloin Club, Wis. Country Magazine, University 4H Club, Blue Shield Country Life Club, Short Course, Omicron Nu, Alpha Zeta, Phi Upsilon Omicron, Alpha Gamma Rho, and Delta Theta Sigma.

The Council's primary interest is to promote a closer relationship between the students and the faculty and to promote and stimulate all college activities which would tend to further the interest of the college. During the past year the Council has sponsored the Annual Agricultural Home Economics Walk Around, Harvest Ball, Mid-Winter Ball, and the Agricultural College Banquet.

Officers of the Council are: Leonard Josephson, President; Henry Haferbecker, Vice President; Marguerite Groh, Secretary; June Reif, Treasurer; and I. L. Baldwin, Faculty Adviser.

university 4-h club

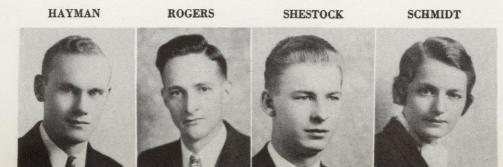

4-H Clubs in Wisconsin are a part of a National movement in which the county, state and federal governments cooperate, permitting boys and girls in rural areas between the ages of 10 and 20 to organize into clubs wherein each member carries a project in Agriculture or Home Economics. Last year in our state there were 31,192 such members in 1,793 clubs led by 3,946 local leaders.

The U. W. 4-H Club is a campus organization composed of those now attending the University who were former 4-H members. Each year that membership increases. It is chiefly made up of those in the College of Agriculture, but open to the entire University. This year the club had 356 members and held regular monthly meetings.

THE PRESBYTERIAN STUDENT CENTER

Part of our building is given over to the Chapel of University Church, the purpose of which is to provide church home for Presbyterians in the University, particularly the students. A Bible School and Seminar meets each Sunday morning followed by a Service of Worship; and in the afternoon a Vesper Hour meets.

"Pres House" is the name we give to the other aspects of our life at the Center. The Allison Club, that meets for supper and a program each Sunday evening, is very important. Pres House had distinguished itself in intra-mural athletics; having teams in every sport, being runner-up several times, and winning the All-University Championship in hockey.

A weekly paper, "Pres-Byts", is published. Dramatics are sponsored by the Dramatic Club and Tudor Players. Social Parties are held at intervals. There was also a Discussion Group Series this year.

But best of all, however, is the Christian fellowship that is built into our lives as we enjoy both the quiet and the busy moments at the Student Center.

INTER-FRATERNITY BOARD

Franz Bidinger George Duggar Donald Heun Phi Gamma Delta Delta Upsilon Phi Kappa Psi Jack Kenaston Richard Laird Harvey Leiser

Delta Kappa Epsilon Psi Upsilon Alpha Chi Rho

The Inter-Fraternity board, composed of men elected by the houses (each voting as a unit) to represent them in campus affairs, presents the spectacle unusual in campus affairs of a small, compact body legislating for a large body of men. As opposed to Panhellenic council, the parallel organization for sororities, it is composed of men representing fraternities as a whole rather than individual houses, as the Panhellenic plan stipulates.

Preferential rushing, modelled along the lines of the plan used by sororities, has been in effect at the University for two years. At the close of the formal rushing period this year, three joint meetings of rushing chairmen and board members were held to discuss probable amendments to the rules. Only a few minor changes, mainly in time requirements, were made. An increased number of pledges testified to the plan's increasing effectiveness. Two rules infractions were brought to the board's attention and handled by it.

Fraternity taxes and the question of unity among fraternities have been the main problems before the Board this year. A united front organization under Harvey Leiser, Alpha Chi Rho board member, has brought fraternities and sororities together in an attempt to obtain exemption from city taxes on the ground that fraternities are educational and no-profit-making organizations. Court action is contemplated if the necessity arises.

Reorganization of Interfraternity Ball to make it a closed dance for fraternity men only is being undertaken by board president Jack Kenaston, Delta Kappa Epsilon, as a solution of the second problem. This year's ball was informal and open to the public, but Kenaston is investigating the possibility of making the annual affair somewhat similar to the Panhellenic ball.

Serving twenty-one fraternities on the Wisconsin campus, The Fraternity Buyers Cooperative, making available to its members the advantages of the great economies of group buying, has established itself as an important factor in the better management of Greek letter organizations.

The member groups through their central office and the full time services of their purchasing agent have applied effectively the simple principle that buying in quantities reduces materially the unit cost.

Through the system of setting up trust funds and guaranteeing accounts, the Cooperative, in addition to representing to merchants and dealers the full buying power of the organized houses, also presents the added argument of certified credit in obtaining better prices and service for its members.

The Cooperative, a non-profit organization, represents a purchasing power of $100,000 annually, and has effected an average annual net saving for its members of approximately $6,000. In addition to the direct savings effected, the Cooperative aims to assist in more efficient house management by maintaining a long time point of view which offsets gaps caused within the houses by the annual change of personnel.

Policies are determined by a board of governors composed of University officers whose work in their official positions has given them experience in the problems facing the Cooperative.

IFGE PROFESSOR DIS

That Often It Isn't Their Brains, but their Pens that Run Dry -Cause Failure—in Classes and Exams

So he invented this sacless Vacumatic, and Parker engineered it to perfection — gave it 102% more Ink Capacity — made its Ink Level VISIBLE, so it suddenly can't go empty!

A lovely, utterly new Style-rings of luminous Pearl laminated with transparent "Jet" - wholly exclusive because design patented

YES, a scientist at the University of Wisconsin was amazed to find how pens that suddenly run out of ink slow down classes, demoralize thinking, and bring marks that no student wants to write home about.

This led to the birth of the revolutionary Parker Vacumatic-the miracle pen that writes 12,000 words from a single filling-shows when it's running low—tells when to refill! As in college, so in business, too—if you can't see how much ink is in your pen, how can you tell that it won't fail you just at the wrong time!

Don't expose yourself to such calamities. Go to any good store selling pens, and hold this shimmering laminated Pearl and Jet Beauty to the light—see how the "Jet" rings become transparent mysterious windows, that show the column of ink within.

Because it eliminates 14 old-time parts, including the lever filler and rubber ink sac found in sac-type pens, the Parker Vacumatic holds 102% more ink than old style, without increase in size.

But don't think that sacless pens containing squirt-gun pumps are like Parker's patented sacless Vacumatic. This new creation contains none of these. That's why it's GUARANTEED MECHANICALLY PERFECT!

Its Reversible Point-solid Gold combined with precious Platinum —is skilfully fashioned to write on both sides—slightly turned up at the tip so it cannot scratch or drag, even under pressure! Go and try it. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wisconsin.

NOTE: A remarkable Parker discovery now gives the world an ink—called Parker Quink—that cleanses a pen as it writes—a Parker Pen or any other. Ask for Quink instead of ink, and your pen will work like a charm.

"One Goal Is Reached"

To the class of '36 - congratulations!

Four years ago you set as your goal graduation from college. Today you see the fulfillment of that purpose. Yet this is only the beginning . . . there will be new and other goals to reach. For the attainment of one goal is always characterized by the setting up of another. And on this simple fact is based progress.

Eighty-nine years ago a small factory in Milwaukee placed as its goal the manufacture of better flour mill machinery. From that simple start in 1847 sprang the present Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company with a history typified by successive achievements of specific goals that have made it the largest manufacturer of diversified heavy machinery in the world.

Today, in our laboratories and in those of our associated companies in Europe, research goes on to discover new products, new processes, new additions to science. And in so doing we emulate you, for in helping progress to continue we, too, are reaching for new goals.

PAPER FOR COLLEGE ANNUALS

The selection of appropriate papers is vital to the success of school and college annual books and is frequently a perplexing problem to the editors.

The desired distinction is readily obtained and clarity and ease of printing assured by the use of Beckett Offset. Many attractive finishes are available and it is suitable for either offset or letterpress.

Variety may be given the book by the use of signatures of Buckeye Text, Beckett Text or Tweed Text as separators for the various sections. These too, are adapted to both letterpress and offset.

The "Badger" Goes PHOTO=OFFSET

Hat's off to you, '36ers! Your Annual is a smarter, more artistic book . . . as up-to-date as the new process by which it was printed, Photo-Offset. The entire Gunthorp-Warren organization is proud to have had a part in producing it. Thank you!

The Home of the "Co-op" and The C. W. Anderes Co.

The University Co-op

An institution organized in 1892 by students and faculty to be an economical source of supply to the University folk in books, school supplies and apparel. From a small beginning it has given continued and extended service, growing from the proverbial acorn to a mighty oak.

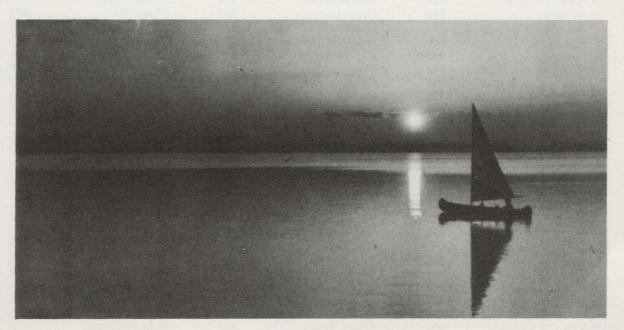

This fine store has been a mecca for style conscious young men, particularly in recent years since the men's apparel section has been operated by the C. W. Anderes Co. . . . a firm with a statewide reputation for Quality Merchandise and for its offering of tomorrow's styles today.
