Section 6: The Alumni Council shall consist of the Secretary or other duly chosen representative of each class and of each local alumni association or club, and ten members at large to be elected at the annual meeting.

Each local association and each class shall be entitled to one representative or vote for each hundred regular members of the general association, or fraction thereof. Each local association must file with the general secretary a copy of its constitution, by-laws, and annual membership list.

N. B.—The Alumni Board will meet in Room 118, Historical Library at 9:30 A. M. same date.

NEWS AND COMMENT

The Student Army Training Corps of the United States Army has been established at the University. The student's duty is now plain. He is to go

DR. C. H. VILAS

Wisconsin's most generous alumnus.
The S. A. T. C. is fortunate in having so able and experienced a gentleman President of the Board of Regents.

The S. A. T. C. to college and fit himself for active duty in the Army or in the Navy. The Government gives the physically fit student of college qualifications and of selective draft age the exceptional advantage that for months before his draft call comes he can receive military training in addition to improving and demonstrating his fitness for special service. The War Department is director of this military training and special education, while the University is but an agent providing teachers, classrooms, barracks and mess for the student soldiers.

This is no benevolent plan to give everything free at public expense to college students. It is a military measure designed to train officers material. The training is intensive in courses approved by military authorities. The immediate needs of the Army and of the Navy, not former requirements for college degrees, determine the studies required.

The University is now a military school. The successful experience of our Alma Mater as the one institution of higher learning in Wisconsin to offer courses in military instruction for many years particularly fits her to carry on the work now undertaken in compliance with the request of the Government. Having given military instruction for decades, and having already trained over one thousand members of what now becomes the vocational section of the S. A. T. C., the University finds itself able to meet this great opportunity for national public service, not with hastily improvised means, but with an organization that it has ready.

Men who have graduated from high school and who wish to enter the college section of the S. A. T. C. for training as officers and technical experts should arrange to send their high school credits and their application for a place in the S. A. T. C. to the Registrar.

Assignment to further military duty, after the period spent in the University, is to be in one of the following five ways: (a) to a central officers' training camp, (b) to a non-commissioned officers' training school, (c) to the school where now enrolled for further intensive training for a limited specified time, (d) to the vocational training section of the corps for technical training of military value, (e) to a cantonment for duty with troops as a private.

Military instruction is given by United States Army officers. Strict military discipline prevents any of the spectacular features of traditional

"rah rah" college life. From reveille at 5:45 A. M. until taps at 10:00 P. M., the student soldier is under military regulations. Members of the S. A. T. C. are marched to and from their class-rooms and study-rooms. Civilian instructors have been asked to require that members of the S. A. T. C., when

Men who have not completed a high school education and who wish to enter the vocational section of the S. A. T. C. (Artisan Training Units) should make their plans known to their local board, and should then wait until their board receives a call for volunteers for that branch of the service. The University is not permitted to receive applications direct.

reciting in the class-rooms, stand at attention and speak with clearness and decision; that enunciation be distinct and pronunciation correct. The choice of a rooming-house, the selection of a boarding house and the sizing up of a fraternity are taken care of by Uncle Sam, who has provided 45 square feet of floor space, a cot, a mattress, a pillow, two O. D. woolen blankets and a barracks bag, together with army mess at one democratic fraternity, open to all physically fit students of college qualifications and selective draft age.

With such official governmental emphasis as has recently been placed on many college studies, the diligent teacher is shown to occupy a place second to none in the winning of the war. Such a teacher, ready to work where the Government needs him most, must feel that he is doing his full share, his patriotic duty, his country's wish, by remaining in his class-room, if that is where he can serve best at this time. Without presuming to preach about this matter, we feel that the individual teacher must answer his individual questions on such a subject, and if he is serving best in his class-room, that no army officer in his new regalia has a right to feel more proud in his heart or more satisfied in his soul for duty done and service rendered.

Of course the establishment of the S. A. T. C. does not mean that the University no longer offers courses leading to degrees. It does. The co-ed is here. In quantity and quality she is a fit rival to her sisters of the past. Since the war started she has shown real ability in assuming a responsibility both for keeping the University alive along pre-war ideals and in assuming extra burdens the war has brought. She will not fail this year. Then, too, there are a number of men in highly specialized courses and other men not fortunate in possessing all the exacting qualifications to enter the S. A. T. C.

Limited service men may enter the S. A. T. C. Local draft boards can define the physical qualifications for limited service.

who are working commendably in courses that lead to degrees. The graduate school also offers a number of courses toward higher degrees. Nevertheless, temporarily the principal business of the University is military.

The military officers here range from men of long experience, men with overseas service records, to youthful second lieutenants who have qualified for commissions before time permitted the completion of their academic work. All of these officers know students, are in touch with student life, and are in sympathy with the work they have in hand.

Here's to the S. A. T. C.! It has opened to American colleges and universities greater opportunity for immediate service than were ever dreamed of. It has solved the problem of college support and college attendance during the period of the war. It has emphasized the importance of education for soldiers, sailors, and civilians. All together, Wisconsin! Let us support with all our ability, all our loyalty, all our strength, power, and enthusiasm, this great work that our democratic Government has given American institutions of higher learning the privilege to undertake. Here's to the S. A. T. C.!

DELIVERING 100 PER CENT

By G. I. HAIGHT, '99

It is a source of justifiable pride to the alumni of the University of Wisconsin to learn, as they go about these United States, that everywhere their Alma Mater has the reputation, more than any other university, of having entered vitally into the life of her State and Nation. The fundamental ideas and ideals for which she stands are expressed most tersely in the second sentence of the American Declaration of Independence. There are found some of the great principles for which the allied nations are contending in this great war.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the University, true to her teachings, has contributed so much, both in thought and strength, to the great struggle in which we are now engaged. Her president is entrusted by the Government with much highly important war work. Her alumni in great numbers are directly engaged in war undertakings. About two hundred of her faculty and over two thousand of her undergraduates are in the service, and several thousand are yet to go.

You are among those preparing to serve. Doubtless, in your anxiety to contribute your full share to the world's work of today, many wish to be immediately sent to the fighting fronts abroad. Every man of red blood wishes he might be there now. Duty, however, does not consist in rushing into the contest recklessly and without preparation. The highest duty is to be found in delivering to the country as near 100 per cent of efficiency toward winning the war as can be delivered.

For many this means not crossing the Atlantic at all; for many it does mean going there; but those who go, must go fully trained and prepared to deliver 100 per cent. The soldier who madly rushes into No Man's Land, carrying his country's emblem with him and gloriously falling under the enemy's fire, may have contributed nothing, but he who goes prepared, and who, before he keeps his rendezvous with death, makes every shot tell—who preserves himself to work destruction upon the foe to the limit of his power and ability—is making the real contribution as a fighting man and is delivering 100 per cent.

It takes education and patient training to make officers and soldiers for modern warfare. The University, with the aid of the Government, is preparing to give to you that education and training. Until you have acquired it you are unready, and an unready man in the battlefields abroad is, through being there unready, not a patriotic man for he cannot deliver 100 per cent. So whatever the temptation may be to hurry into this stupendous struggle—and those temptations are strong with all of us—the man who has the courage to do that thing which contributes most—whether it be hurling death-dealing missiles against the enemy or making the missiles for others to hurl, or providing the food and supplies for those who hurl them or make them—is the man who is delivering 100 per cent.

As you go back to the University have the patriotism and the stamina to study diligently and train thoroughly so that you may do your full duty well and not your half duty badly. Have the sense to first make yourselves efficient, both in body and mind, and keep good the reputation that University of Wisconsin men have ever tried to hold, and deliver as nearly as you can 100 per cent toward the wide realization of the ideals for which our University stands.

Your opportunity to deliver will come for this war is very far from ended. To all who qualify will be given the chance to charge from the trenches through the entanglements and the hail of lead and steel; to fight with the mad cavalry of the sky above the enemy's lines; to stand where the great cannon throw out their defiance; to do, to dare, to suffer, to toil, and to prove that you are of the stuff of which heroes are made. The question is not so much—"When will your chance come?"—for come it will—but it rather is "When it does come, will you be ready—ready to deliver 100 per cent?"

McELROY AT THE FRONT?

THE following lines from a Wisconsin man in France have come to Dean Comstock by whom they are submitted to

THE WISCONSIN ALUMNI MAGAZINE:

"I was very much interested in the enclosed account of the controversy between Mr. McElroy and the University and I must confess the more I think about the aforesaid gentleman's attitude the more indignant I become. If any one is in a position to criticize and condemn Mr. McElroy I believe that I and the many Wisconsin men who are in this division are in that position. This division has seen more activity than any other American troops in France. Right now it is holding a position in one of the most active sectors in the line. Artillery bombardment is continuous, G. I. cans and 240's are coming over by the hundreds and all the cover that the men have at the front are a few shell holes usually half full of water. I wish I could tell you how many Wisconsin men we have helping to hold this position. Their number would surprise you. They know what war is and they are every one of them grimly certain that they are doing their bit every minute of the day and they also know that if only because they are here Wisconsin is doing more than her share.

"Men like Mr. McElroy had better take warning. Men who daily have such experiences as we are going through will not sit idly by and listen to insults against the best and most beautiful state in all the world. If Mr. McElroy continues in his present course and if some day he should learn that this division is homeward bound, I would advise him to get aboard the first ship bound for France and when he arrives go up into our line into the most advanced shell hole of all and stay there. It will be much safer to shoulder with one of the boys from Wisconsin whom I have no doubt would have made more noise in the armory if they had had to suffer with his exhortations than did the boys who were actually there.

"How old is he, anyway? There are men in the front line here with white beards and white hair. We need more good men in the Q. M. corps."

VERS LIBRE*

O. Alumnus,
Or Alumna, as the case may be!
Out of the depths of our being
Has ever the thought arisen
Like a bubble, iridescent in glow,
Reflecting, refracting,
Crimson with determination,
Shot with the silver of sympathy,
"I too can assist,
Can help myself, help another!"
And then, at the moment,
Did you, not waiting for our summons,
Pay your annual dues?
Verse, O Alumnus, is free,
But magazines have to be paid for.

*Adapted from University of Chicago Magazine.

Boil it down.
Make it short and crisp and snappy—
Boil it down.
When your mind its gold has minted,
Down the page your pen has sprinted,
If you want your effort printed,

CHANGES IN THE FACULTY

The Law School

By H. S. RICHARDS

THE law school of the University, in common with the other law schools of the country, has suffered a very heavy falling off in attendance, since the United States entered the war. Assistant Professor Harold M. Wilkie resigned to enter a local law firm last June, and his place has not been filled. Professor Howard L. Smith has been granted a year's leave of absence. He is special agent of the State Department in Ecuador and Columbia, looking particularly after matters for the War Trade Board. Dean H. S. Richards has been granted a leave of absence for the first quarter, and will resume his work with the War Trade Board, with which he was connected during the summer.

The work of the Law School will be given by Professors Gilmore, Page, and Associate Professor Oliver S. Rundell. In addition to the law school work, the faculty has assumed the burden of giving instruction in military law to the S. A. T. C. All students in this corps with the exception of the engineers are required to take military law. The enrollment in this course during the first quarter is about six hundred, comprising men 20 years old and above. Undoubtedly the enrollment during the second and third quarters will be much larger as it will include 18 and 19 year old students.

TECHNICAL EXPERTS NEEDED AS WELL AS OFFICERS

By E. H. GARDNER

IN establishing the Students' Army Training Corps the War Department has had constantly in mind, and has impressed on the university authorities, the fact that there is a pressing need for technical experts as well as officers. The need is especially great for men with special training in engineering, medicine, chemistry and the work peculiar to the ordnance corps and the quartermaster's department. With this idea in mind Wisconsin has made its plans so that students who register this fall may have the full benefit of the University's facilities in these lines. Any student taking up any of this technical work will have the satisfaction of knowing that, in addition to fitting himself for a most essential branch of war work, he is laying the foundation for a peace-time profession which will be in the greatest demand after we win the war.

IN THE ENGINEERING COLLEGE

Because of the war's great drain upon the trained engineers of the country, the engineering colleges have been asked by the government to hasten the training of large numbers of young men, both for war needs, and for the days

It is good general advice to all student soldiers who have been pursuing or had planned to pursue some technical course to continue along that technical line or in preparation for it.—R. J. Rees, Col. Gen. Staff Corps, Chairman of Committee on Education and Special Training.

to follow the war. The College of Engineering, with its facilities for training engineers in all branches, has arranged its schedules so as to give every man as much as possible of his essential engineering training before he is called to service. Courses are being given in the engineering problems of aeronautics, gas engines, naval engines, and other special machines of the present war, as part of the regular engineering work.

"This is an engineers' war, and it will be won or lost owing to the efforts or shortcomings of engineers."—Hon. David Lloyd George.

MEDICAL STUDY AND WAR SERVICE

Nearly a quarter of the physicians actively engaged in private practice before we went to war are now in military service and it is probable that nearly another quarter must be furnished. It has therefore become of the utmost importance that medical education be maintained and that qualified young men be prepared for civil and military medicine. A young man devoting himself whole-heartedly to the study is performing a patriotic service.

Preparation for medicine now requires after a four year high school course two years of specialized pre-medical study, then a four year course in the medical school and finally a year of hospital study, civil or military.

Wisconsin now offers training in the two years of premedical college work and the first two years of the medical course. At the end of this period the B. S. degree is granted. During the two years of premedical college work the student enrolls in the Students' Army Training Corps. They may be called into active military service if there seems to be greater need for them in active service than in the study of medicine but the need of trained physicians is so great and will continue in the immediate future to be so great that it is believed that young men who do well in their studies will be kept at these studies until completed; that they will thus perform their greatest service to the nation.

IN THE DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY

During the past year and a half, the University's department of chemistry has done a great amount of research in war chemical problems, especially those of gas warfare, and has prepared many men for commissions in the gas service, the sanitary corps, and other army branches. This work is being continued during the present year on a larger scale and arrangements have been made with the government to give men exactly the training which the army wishes them to have for its special chemical service.

IN THE COURSE IN COMMERCE

Early in the war the government asked the University to give special courses, to train men for work in the ordnance corps and quartermaster department of the Army. Many men have already been trained and the work has been extended in scope this year. Courses to train men and women for statistical work in the Army and various governmental offices which have been carried on for some time are being continued. A special training for industrial workers and employment managers, as well as for Americanization workers, is offered for the first time this year.

IN THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

The agricultural and engineering colleges of the nation have in the past trained a large fraction of the officers that are in the present Army and the War Department is desirous that this work be continued. A revision of courses permits students to enroll in the agricultural college taking the basal studies necessary for a general technical training as well as special agricultural courses that have direct military value. Courses in gas engines, motor and tractor work, cement construction, are of fundamental importance in the army. In the artillery and cavalry branches of the service the handling of horses is still essential. While the agricultural courses do not train directly for the technical branches of the service, those preparing for the Officers' Training Corps will find the combination of fundamental and applied science of special value.

At the request of the Government the College of Agriculture has also established an intensive professional course in agriculture of eight quarters. Students in this special course are regular members of the S. A. T. C. This course is open to students of all ages. Upper classmen in the College of Agriculture may elect this course and continue their agricultural work, subject of course to certain regulations. By enrolling in this course a student still retains the privilege of entering active military service. On account of the great need of trained men for the maintenance of the national welfare, the War Department has provided this course. It is arranged so as to enable the student to secure his professional training necessary to equip him for an agricultural specialist.

BOARD OF VISITORS' REPORT

By MRS. LYNN S. PEASE, '86,
Secretary

THE first year of the war has been keenly felt by the Board of Visitors. Many of the members have been doing active war work, either serving on draft boards, drilling in the Home Guards, or delivering patriotic addresses. The attendance at the meetings has been very irregular and some have not been present at any meeting during the year. In spite of these necessary absences and visits made at irregular intervals, the work of the Board, though greatly hampered, has been carried on.

The unusual conditions arising from the participation of our government in this war was met by the Regents promptly and in a most satisfactory manner. Arrangements were made by the Commandant at Fort Sheridan for commencement exercises to be held for the University men who were in training at the R. O. T. C. Professor Goodnight, Dean of Men, delivered an address and presented the diplomas. The Board of Visitors delegated one member to attend as their representative on this unusual occasion.

The annual Joint Conference between the Board of Regents and the Board of Visitors was held the first Wednesday in March, and is considered the most satisfactory ever held, as many matters were thoroughly but informally considered.

The Board of Visitors most heartily endorsed the attitude of the faculty on all matters pertaining to loyalty to our Government. Individually and collectively the request for help from President Wilson has been met with prompt response.

The Colleges of Agriculture and Engineering by the nature of their work, have been of great assistance to our country. The extension department has answered innumerable calls and the home economics department has been a most efficient aid to Mr. Hoover. President Van Hise with many members of the faculty have given effective presentations on the many phases of the war situation.

I. We again urge the establishment of an Informal Course in Ethics.

II. A continuance in the course of "How to Study."

III. We recommend that the instructional department of German Language and Literature be reduced until, grade for grade, its entire instructional force shall not exceed that of the French Department.

IV. We urge the University to develop a course which will train workers in Americanization and while extending the work already begun by the extension department to force and increase it by practical help.

Y. M. C. A. WAR WORK

By F. E. WOLF

ALUMNI and friends of Y. M. C. A. at the University will be deeply gratified at the increased services now being rendered by the Association in its building adjacent to the Armory. The four upper floors have been leased to the University and are now the home of the headquarters company housing 330 men. The first floor or lobby has been retained as a Y. M. C. A. headquarters by the National War Work Council and the cafeteria is still in operation in the basement.

The lobby itself has been greatly altered. The large parlors facing Lake Mendota have been divided, the eastern half with a fire-place being a beautiful, homelike parlor with upholstered furniture, reading lamp, rugs, flowers, ferns and canaries.

Mrs. H. L. Potter of Madison is giving all her time with no remuneration as house mother and has charge of these improvements. The western parlor has been converted into a smoking room. The main lobby has four pool and billiard tables, library space with forty magazines and newspapers on file, and the offices of the Association are along the western portion. The information desk has been doubled in capacity and the boys here have an opportunity not only to secure writing paper, envelopes and such conveniences, but also candy and ice cream. The room which was formerly used by the Cardinal is being made over into a beautiful rest room with couches, telephone, etc. The crowds at the building are so great that it is a problem to know how to take care of the men. There seems to be no lull in the rush from six in the morning until ten at night with the exception of a few moments when the majority of the men are at mess. There is an enormous amount of seating space but many periods in the day dozens of men have to stand. It is hoped that in a short time when the vocational men or Class B is increased to 1,000 and they take up their residence at Camp Randall, a regular "Y" hut of army type will be built.

The entire work is in charge of the National War Work Council with the exception of the work for foreign students and about 500 men who have not been able to enter S. A. T. C. The general secretary and his secretary are still maintained in order to handle what is primarily local work, giving about half time. The other work is entirely carried on by the N. W. W. C. We have at the present time on the staff, G. C. Morris, who was during the summer at Columbus Barracks and before that in the seeds department of the Agricultural College; Robert Cottrell, who has been with us since July; A. Z. Mann, who has been county secretary for Dane County; Joseph Gleason who is acting as Baptist Pastor for students also. Mr. Gleason gives us three-fourths of his working time and the church pays his entire salary; Mrs. H. L. Potter as has been said gives her services entirely free. In addition J. F. Bishop has been helping us and F. S. Brandenburg makes an opportunity to give us two hours a day from his busy life at the office. Many Madison people have donated furniture. The last secretary to arrive is S. B. Erickson who has been teaching in the Dakotas. Just as soon as the medical authorities permit, we are planning to use music hall from 9 to 10 every evening just before taps for a recreation hour. The boys have study hour from 7 to 9 and the period between that and taps will be used for movies, concerts, athletic exhibitions, etc. The first large event will be a stunt night on which the 24 companies are now working. The men impress one as being of a very high calibre, many of them gifted along musical and dramatic lines.

We are asking a business or professional man from Madison to act as big brother for each company. These men will also lead in the study work Sunday morning, introducing the boys at the churches and into the homes of Madison. We are hoping to get all the boys to eat occasionally in a private home when he is off duty and we also hope to secure week-end homes where boys can be quiet, rest and read when they are away from the barracks.

Any alumni or friends of the Association who are especially interested in young men at the University are urged to send a letter of introduction to the general secretary in order that he may meet such men personally and may have all the personal wants. If the alumni of the University could return here at the present time and see the use which is being made of the property and equipment of the University of Wisconsin Y. M. C. A. for this war work, it would be the greatest satisfaction to them. Conveniences have not been the best for handling men under these circumstances. The fact that the Y. M. C. A. had this location and building at hand has proven of the greatest use not only to the boys personally which is our chief consideration but also to the University and the government in its military program. During the opening days of school we handled about 2,000 pieces of baggage free of charge for the boys hauling it from the depot checking it at the building to be claimed after details of registration were over. All of the mail has been addressed in care of the Y. M. C. A. until men were placed in barracks so that we have had to hand out over 3,000 pieces of first-class mail a day and the parcel-post packages have been coming in by the truck load. We sell about 3,000 postage stamps a day and instead of the number of letters written decreasing, it is constantly increasing so that recently we ran out of stamps several times. The great danger this year will be that our foreign students and men not in S. A. T. C. will be neglected and provision has been made as stated above.

We thank the alumni for their interest in our work and hope that we may continue to have their co-operation.

ENROLLMENT

The University has the largest enrollment of students in its history according to the final compilation of registration figures. One feature of the report shows that the S. A. T. C. quota has not been filled as 3,000 is the number the University had contracted for.

A total of 4,761 students, including 2,624 collegiate S. A. T. C. men, 406 civilian men, and 1,731 women, were enrolled during registration week, and the figures are not yet complete. With the arrival of between 800 and 1,000 men in the fourth detachment of the army vocational school the total is raised to over 5,500. This is a material increase over the record enrollment of 5,020 in 1916, and the enrollment of 4,043 last fall.

The College of Engineering has enrolled 1,100, twice as many as last year. The College of Letters and Science has enrolled 2,934, the College of Agriculture, 294, and the Home Economics course, 243.

The greatest change is in the size of various classes. The freshman class contains 2,429 students, including 1,751 S. A. T. C., 180 civilian men, and 361 women and is more than twice as large as last year's freshman class. All other classes are smaller. There are 879 sophomores, including 468 S. A. T. C., 751 juniors, including 277 S. A. T. C., 527 seniors, including 108 S. A. T. C., and 175 graduate students, including 20 S. A. T. C.

The total of 1,731 women is practically the same as the 1,745 last year and the number of women in various classes is practically the same in all cases.—Democrat, 10-17.

JAY COOKE FINANCED LIBERTY LOANS OF 1861-65

The recent campaign for the Fourth Liberty Loan renders peculiarly timely a recent report by a worker in the Wisconsin Historical Society on the remarkable work of Jay Cooke in popularizing the government loans of the Civil War.

On the day the news of the Union defeat at Bull Run reached Philadelphia, Cooke, a young banker of that city, drew up a paper offering to advance to the Secretary of the Treasury specified sums of money for sixty days at six per cent interest, returnable in specie or treasury notes. With this proposal he visited the principal banks of the city and in one day raised for immediate government needs nearly $2,000,000.

This exploit set the young banker on the highway to fame and fortune. Later, when Secretary Chase sought to sell by popular subscription a $150,000,000 bond issue, Cooke sold more than one-fourth of all the bonds allotted to agents throughout the entire country. Such qualities of sales-manship demanded recognition. Accordingly in October, 1862, Secretary Chase appointed Cooke sole agent for the sale of a $500,000,000 bond issue. Cooke's genius for advertising enabled him to perform this herculean task with apparent ease. He employed 2,500 subagents in every part of the North, and offered the bonds direct to the people in small denominations. With the vision of a statesman he made the loan a great democratic institution, giving the masses a direct financial interest in the success of the Union cause.

INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS IN THE U. OF W. S. A. T. C.

By LT. T. E. JONES

OMPETITIVE athletics are considered an essential part of army training and competition will be held in all sports this year, both intercollegiate and intramural. The men in this unit still have some of the old Wisconsin spirit and we expect a hearty support from them.

The Government has authorized intercollegiate football in S. A. T. C. units under certain conditions. Among these are: one and one-half hours each day and no more may be used for football practice, including time needed for dressing, bathing, etc.; and no game to be played in October necessitating any team's absence from the institution for a longer period than from noon to Taps Saturday.

The latter condition works a hardship on us in the matter of scheduling, necessitating the cancellation of our game with Chicago on October 26, which we had planned for our Homecoming. However, as our November schedule is to be played as arranged, we will have our Homecoming on November 9, when we will meet the University of Illinois at Camp Randall. We will also be able to play Minnesota at Minneapolis on Nov. 16 and Ohio State at Columbus on Nov. 23 under the ruling of the War Department which permits an absence during the month of November of from Retreat on Friday to Taps, Sunday. The department had planned a series of games for October with nearby schools and camps, but owing to the epidemic prevailing and the consequent order of the health department forbidding all public gatherings, it has not thus far been able to hold any contests. However, with the improved conditions it is hoped that we may yet be able to have some October events.

A severe set back was given the Badger team when the Government asked that the University release Coach J. R. Richards because of the fact that he was admirably fitted for a piece of work the Government wanted done at once. As loyal and patriotic citizens, there was nothing that we felt we could do in the matter except to grant this release and Mr. Richards left at once for Washington where he has been appointed a member of the commission which has been recently formed in Washington to control Labor Welfare Conditions throughout the country. Efforts are now being made to secure a suitable man to take his place. In the meantime the squad will be under the direction of Coach Lowman.

In looking over the football prospects for this year it is with pride, rather than dismay, that we note the fact that all of last year's team is now in the service as well as many of our freshman squad of last year. Hancock, 1917 captain, is now a commissioned officer at Camp Zachary Taylor and Carpenter, 1918 captain, is in Naval Aviation Service. Of the rest of the squad, Kelley, Jacobi, and Keyes are in Air Service; Bondi, Kralovac, Keyes, Kieckhefer and Stark are all at training camps in this country; Eber Simpson, a member of the Medical Reserve is continuing his studies at St. Louis pending his call, and Sivyer, Davey and Scott overseas, the latter severely wounded according to newspaper accounts.

The formation of the football squad this year is largely of new men and a younger type of men than varsity players of previous years. At the same time, from the large selection of S. A. T. C. men, even though this material is inexperienced, there is no reason to be despondent over what the outcome of the season may be. More than fifty men are on the football field daily but of course to this date the practice has been irregular, due to the fact that men must first fulfill their military obligations. The last week there has been more regularity and the semblance of team play is noticeable. There is a promise of fair line material and with the back field, which stands out most conspicuously, we are hopeful of the team giving a good account of itself by the time we meet Illinois in the Homecoming Game. The men are getting the Wisconsin spirit and fight and we feel assured that the team of this year will measure up well with other teams in the conference.

We are hopeful that the student body and the alumni will give their hearty support to Wisconsin's war time team and that all the old "grads" will come back to see their Alma Mater in military uniform. The athletic field at Camp Randall is in the best of condition; the new stadium with its seating capacity of over 11,000 and the old grand stand, which has been set on its foundation, painted and repaired, will furnish ample room for homecomers and students. In order that we may not get away from the spirit of the times, we need only to look over to the old field where seven new barracks give a decided military aspect.

Besides the intercollegiate activities we expect to put on a complete program of mass athletics and contests in the S. A. T. C. These games are to be recreational and are expected to bring in the element of personal contact, the idea being to develop an aggressive fighting spirit in the corps. Inter-company competition in football, basketball, cross country, volley ball, tug of war, etc. will determine post championships, and the department, in co-operation with the officers of the various companies, are sparing no effort in making these a success.

WISCONSIN ALUMNI CLUBS

"Sit together, listen together, sing together, eat together, and talk together, and you'll work together"

CHICAGO

By H. D. WILE, '12

A joint meeting of the Alumni and Alumnae Clubs was held Friday evening, Oct. 11, at the City Club, 315 Plymouth Court, at which an informal dinner was served. The dinner was planned to give Wisconsin men and women in Chicago an opportunity to talk over the war activities of the University, and to discuss their special relation to the University at this time.

President George Haight, '99, presided and called Bishop Fallows, '59, for a talk. The Bishop replied as only he can, and his patriotic remarks were cheered to the echo. Catherine Cleveland, '94, and Jessie Shepherd, '95, spoke for the alumnae. Dr. Oschner, '91, and Dr. Dodson, '80, who is a major in the Service, Charles Vroman, '68, and several others responded for the men. The principal speech of the evening, that of Dean E. A. Birge, will appear in the December issue.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the following:

President, Israel Shrimski, ex '88; vice-president, M. M. Fowler, '01; secretary-treasurer, H. D. Wile, '12; directors, C. F. Grunert, '11; Ira Reynolds, '06; and L. P. Conover, '85.

We had some very interesting letters. Those which were read are from Senator Lenroot; E. F. Rice, '08, in behalf of U. W. Club of Philadelphia; Fred Esch, '07, in behalf of U. W. Club of Washington; O. V. Thiele, '08, in behalf of U. W. Association of New York City; W. P. Powers of class of 1860, and Amy Comstock, '09.

It is with very great pleasure that I comply with your request to send a word to be read at the meeting of the University of Wisconsin alumni.

By reason of the unfortunate attitude taken by Professor McElroy of Princeton concerning his discussion at a patriotic meeting at Madison last April, I have had occasion to discuss the war activities of the University, and its patriotic efforts, in a number of speeches that I have made in the principal cities in the East. It has been most gratifying to me to find in this way that the position of the University, as one of the most loyal and patriotic institutions in the country, is well understood, and that Professor McElroy's misrepresentations have injured no one but himself.

It is no longer necessary to defend either the loyalty of the University, or the loyalty of the State of Wisconsin. It is taken for granted everywhere, and because of the splendid record that both the University and the State are making in all war activities, we stand as a challenge to other colleges and to other states to do as well.

May I add another word. During the months that the loyalty of Wisconsin was under suspicion, the alumni of the University, scattered as they are throughout the Union, rendered a great service to the State, which should never be forgotten. Wherever an alumnus of the University was found, there was found a defender of the good name and loyalty of Wisconsin, and it is a matter of great pride and satisfaction to them that subsequent events have established the patriotism and loyalty which they at all times asserted existed in Wisconsin and in its great university.—I. L. LENROOT.

I extend to you, on behalf of the University of Wisconsin Club of Philadelphia, greetings and best wishes.

We all know, in a general sort of way, about the good work which the University is doing in the present emergency, and any publicity which is derived from a meeting such as you are holding is bound to be of inestimable benefit.

I might add that we down here in Philadelphia are all doing our share in some way or other. A lot of us are in the Army or Navy, and the rest of us are all prominently identified with the Red Cross or Y. M. C. A. or Liberty Loan Committees. I am sure that Wisconsin men and women all over the country are doing the same.—E. F. RICE.

On behalf of over 400 University men and women resident in Washington, many of whom are recent arrivals engaged in war work, I send hearty greetings. Permit me also to extend our invitation to all alumni whose work may bring them to Washington even for a brief stay to attend our weekly meetings.

Our Alma Mater affords us especial inspiration at this time. The greatness of her work in times of peace, the purity and loftiness of her ideals have ever inspired us with admiration and love. Our individual debt to her for all that she has given us cannot be measured. But today more than ever before we can glory in the greatness of her accomplishment. The war has opened to her opportunities for service of which she is taking full advantage. In every respect she is living up to the great ideal of service which she has constantly held and sought to impart. She has justified in full measure our implicit trust and our greatest love.—FRED ESCH.

The U. W. Association of New York City has not yet resumed its sessions this fall; but as secretary I take it upon myself to extend greetings from the U. W. alumni, resident in and about this city, to the alumni and alumnae in joint meeting assembled on the eleventh at the City Club of Chicago.

I know that the record Dean Birge will have to detail of the activities of the University in the present war will be an inspiration to his listeners and will fill them with pride in our common Alma Mater.—O. V. THIELE.

I regret very much that absence from the city on October 11, will prevent me from meeting with the alumni and alumnae of our Alma Mater. It would certainly give me great pleasure to be present on that occasion. I am well acquainted with Bishop Fallows as he graduated only a year before I did at the University.—W. P. POWERS.

You'd hardly recognize the old place. Instead of the flutter of ribbons and rustle of silks about Chadbourne and Barnard, rows and rows of men of the recent draft age face front along the green or straddle the railings of the porches. Brother meets brother today to remark, "I'm living at Chad. this year" or sister meets sister and says, "I'm in the Chi Psi house."

The Faculty too, are going around in circles, I understand. She who formerly taught Latin is now instructing in French, Spanish and Ancient History. Or perhaps a German teacher is detailed to military science. It's the nicest little Vesuvius, and doubtless extremely healthy to many minds. It's all wonderfully exhilarating and stimulating. The women in the University are keenly alive to the myriad opportunities which are now open to them. You find them in the science laboratories more frequently; in the labor courses, and commerce. They're fitting themselves to take the places of our boys while "over there" and more able to meet them on their new plane when they return.

Wisconsin is tingling to its very finger tips with the red blood of the new America. The University of Wisconsin will never again be the place you all knew it to be, and none of us would ever want it to be. Dear old Alma Mater has caught the spirit of the new Americanism and with the old spirit it will carry the new patriotic education FORWARD.—AMY COMSTOCK, '09.

We also have a paragraph taken from one of Roosevelt's writings autographed by him especially for the meeting, of which we are sending you a copy. We presented the original to Fred Bentley, '83, father of the late Paul Bentley, who gave his all early in the struggle for the cause for freedom.

With all my heart I believe in the joy of living; but those who achieve it do not seek it as an end in itself, but as a seized and prized incident of hard work well done and of risk and danger never wantonly courted but never shirked when duty commands that they be faced. And those who have earned joy, but are rewarded only with sorrow, must learn the stern comfort dear to great souls, the comfort that springs from the knowledge taught in times of iron that the law of worthy living is not fulfilled by pleasure, but by service, and by sacrifice when only thereby can service be rendered.—THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

WASHINGTON

By FRED ESCH, '07

Washington alumni are finding much pleasure in the weekly meetings of their local organization and a large crowd turns out every week. One of the most successful gatherings was the picnic held Aug. 3, at the Joaquin Miller cabin in upper Rock Creek Park; about a hundred persons were present. Alumni who are fortunate enough to own autos were wait-at the end of the street car line, and all who could not pile into them were organized into hiking parties and escorted down the shaded, winding park road by Bernice Stewart, '16, and Flora Orr, '17. A merciless entertainment committee at once took them in hand, and Ralph Hills, formerly of the Extension Division organized a baseball game between the men and the women. Needless—and impossible—to say who won! Then followed a hilarious half hour of "last couple out" when there were almost bloody fights for the prettiest girl, and Maj. O. B. Zimmerman, '96, now of the Genl. Engr. Depot of the U. S. Army, vindicated his right to her. The enlisted men, in their ingenious tactics, demonstrated the resourcefulness and self-reliance of the American private, to the satisfaction of all present. "Drop the handkerchief" with difficulty gave way to "chow," when a plentiful picnic lunch was served at cost. After the last crumb was disposed of,—for, of course, all loyal alumni "hooverize"—H. L. Smith, under inspiration of his trusty briar, held his audience spell-bound by a series of after-dinner speeches. When he could be prevailed upon to resume his place in the circle of listeners, a khaki squad, under the leadership of Capt. L. D. Rowell, '06, marched out speaker after speaker until there were no speakers left. Among those who thus forcibly contributed to the entertainment were Dean H. S. Richards; Tax Commissioner T. E. Lyons, '85; Bernice Stewart, '16; Fred Esch, '07; Mrs. Esch (Harriette Fish, '13); J. G.

Wray, '93; Eugene Rowley, '90; W. B. Schulte, '10; and Capt. Rowell. Stanley Hornbeck, '11, of the U. S. Tariff Commission, fled ignominiously but was later captured and, in revenge, laid his audience out with a gas bomb. Confessions were the order of the day, and responsibility was finally placed for two great and glorious crimes in the annals of Wisconsin: The burning of the old Gym, and the theft of the La Follette portrait from the Hall of Fame. Colleagues of the heroic criminals swore a solemn oath to unite in their protection, for the honor of our Alma Mater.

The weekly luncheons are proving very popular, and the number present varies from 50 to 100. Although Aug. 10, was one of the hottest days of the record-heat spell for 47 years, more than a hundred alumni gathered to greet our old friend, Paul Reinsch, '92, Minister to China, and to hear of some of his experiences in the Orient. More or less chorus singing always enters into the programs of the luncheons, and on Aug. 17, it was decidedly more, for the greater part of the afternoon passed by in that fashion. Maj. F. L. Paxson, attached to the historical division of the General Staff, Dean F. E. Turneure and L. S. Smith, both of the Bureau of Industrial Housing of the Labor Dept., were the speakers of the day, and Ralph Hills sang some war-time solos after which he led the enthusiastic singing. Everyone laughed when the Dean was introduced as Dean Birge, who, by the way, is the only Wisconsin dean at present not in Washington. And for the nth time, everyone applauded Carl Russell Fish, at mention of the very practical strokes he is putting in for world democracy. Carl Russell is all right!

There are a few people in Wisconsin as in other states who cast doubts upon the patriotism of others to prove their own.

In spite of detractors Wisconsin has made for herself a meeting with promptness every demand made upon it and before it was made.

Wisconsin War Sentiment as Expressed by Governor Philipp Sentiment Before the War

Nearly a month before war was declared in 1917, a meeting of governors of the New England States was called to consider the anticipated declaration of war. The New York Herald asked Gov. Philipp to wire it the feeling in Wisconsin, and on March 15, 1917, the Governor sent the following:

"The people of Wisconsin do not want war and wish that the President avoid it, if he can do so without the sacrifice of National honor. If war must come, the President of the United States may rely upon it that the people of this state will support him and their country with a whole heart and with all the strength that they possess. The American people demand that they be protected in their rights on land and sea, and that the government enforce such protection. The government will not be prepared to enforce such protection unless it makes immediate provision for an adequate army."

Signed E. L. PHILIPP, Governor.

Governor Philipp on Peace Proposals

The New York Evening Post of Sept. 26, 1918, quotes the following utterance by Gov. Philipp which it says "is as vigorous a protest against a shameful peace as has been uttered by any American":

"There is a great deal said by some people about peace. Don't you permit yourself to be led astray by men who come to you with some form of peace that they advocate that would be an everlasting disgrace to the American people. We cannot subscribe to any peace treaty, my friends, that does not include within its provisions an absolute and complete annihilation of the military autocracy that we have said to the world we are going to destroy. We have enlisted our soldiers with that understanding. We have asked our boys to go to France to do that and if we quit short of fulfilling that contract with our own soldiers, those boys on the battlefield will have given their lives in vain."

Gen. F. C. Winkler's Endorsement

Gen. F. C. Winkler of Milwaukee, for years one of the most eminent lawyers of the state, and who, though long a Republican wheelhorse, came out strongly of President Wilson's re-election in 1916 in a letter to Gov. Philipp a few months ago said:

"I know of no state executive who during the past years has given the National Administration a more thorough and effective support than you have. I shall therefore do what little I can to promote your re-election."

FACULTY

ELIZABETH RUNNETTE died October 4, following an acute attack of appendicitis. Miss Runnette was the first woman field organizer to be appointed in the extension division. She was attached to the Milwaukee office soon after her appointment in 1917, where she worked until the time up to her death. She was graduated from Mount Holyoke College in 1912, where she was trained for the teaching of English and history. These subjects she taught at Grafton Hall and the public schools of Pittsburgh. Only a few days prior to her final illness she was offered a very important position by the Fosdick Commission.

WILLIAM J. HARVEY: AN APPRECIATION

By C. F. SMITH

William J. Harvey, son of Thomas and Jane Harvey, was born in Leeds, England, June 11, 1846, and was brought to America in 1849 by his parents, who settled in Racine. His education was limited to a brief attendance at the grammar school of Racine College and a few years in Racine public schools. But there was a tradition of culture in the family, and his father had attended the University of Paris for a short time. Hence it was not strange that all of his children were put first through the schools of Racine, then—all but the youngest daughter—at financial sacrifice through the University of Wisconsin. The children who graduated from the University are: William T., '97; Richard G., '98; Edward J., '01; Harriet A., '04; Mrs. Elizabeth Schwendener, '06 and Harold V., '09. Edward married a graduate of the University, (Julia Smith, '01), a classmate whom he met first at the tenth anniversary of the class. The youngest daughter now Mrs. Alfred du Domaine of Chicago, attended Milwaukee-Duane and Wellesley Colleges. The father's great interest in education was further shown by serving his city on the Board of Education from 1896 till his death.

Following his father as keeper of a country store, Mr. Harvey was for ten years a farmer, then moved into the city of Racine for the sake of better educational advantages for his children. Beginning with a small capital in 1890, he gradually built up a large and prosperous manufacturing business under the title of The Harvey Spring and Forging Company. In this business were associated with him for some time till just before his death, his sons William, Edward, and Harold. Recently the business has been reorganized with Edward as new head of the firm, the eldest son, William, being Food Administrator for Racine County. Richard is a member of the law firm of Thompson & Harvey, and Harriet is teacher of English and History in Racine High School.

Mr. Harvey met with an automobile accident March 19, and died March 23. His standing in Racine as a public spirited-citizen is indicated by the fact that the city hall was closed at the hour of the funeral, and the mayor and city officials attended the ceremonies. Perhaps a more striking tribute to his worth as a man was the request of the employees of his factory to be allowed to march in a body in the funeral procession. He was a life-long member of the Methodist Church.

C. N. Brown writes:

A subscriber has pointed out to me some inaccuracies in the report of the treasurer and of the alumni proceedings in reference to the treasurer's account. The report shows $1,547.03 collected for the Alumni War Chest and $500 paid to the Union. On page 261, column 2, there is a mention of $4,000 asset referred to again page 265, column 2. My correspondent points out the fact that there is nothing to explain that $1,047.03 of the $4,000 is trust fund and is in no sense an asset of the Association. He suggested that it is due the subscribers of the fund that a precise and clear statement of this matter be made in the earliest issue of the MAGAZINE so that the subscribers would understand that the balance shown on the books was collected for the Alumni War Chest is a trust fund. I pointed out to my correspondent that the annual membership fee is $500, and that we will send over the other $500 before the first year is out, and another $500 before the second year is out. I haven't a copy of the MAGAZINE before me, but if there is the slightest doubt about this balance being a trust fund, that doubt ought to be set at rest by an early explanation in the MAGAZINE.

THREE SOLDIERS

There is a soldier fighting
Wading thru wine-dark mud
Striving to stem triumphant
The surging battle-flood:
A little while is a long while
To a soldier dripping blood.

There is a thinker planning
Out of the battle blare
But the dogs of war beset him;
He sees their eyes' red glare:
A little while is a long while
To a leader tense with care.

There is a woman waiting
On a pillow her head is lain
But her son in France is fighting
And her pillow is all a-stain:
A little while is a long while
To a mother, dazed with pain.

In an early issue of THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE, it is planned to publish a directory of the class of 1908, and members of the class are urged to see that their correct addresses are on file with the General Secretary, R. S. Crawford, or with the class secretary. Many of our men and women are in various branches of Government service, and each one at home should inform the alumni office of any addresses which may be in his possession of classmates temporarily engaged in war service. Only by the full and complete cooperation of all concerned will the directory be a success.

The class historian, C. L. Byron, First Natl. Bank Bldg., Chicago, writes that the history of the class will appear later in the year. It would be a good idea if every one were to begin summarizing his wanderings since graduation, so that each member of the class may fire his history "over the top" when "Chuck" issues the call. Remember to include all important events with sufficient detail to make it really worth while, but do not make it too lengthy. For example, in Byron's history, I should expect to find: Married, to Ruby Hildebrand, '08.

LETTERS FROM THE FRONT

OUR letter of July 1, is at hand. I wish to thank you for the kind words expressed.

The trip over was filled with many interesting events which, for military precautions, it is advisable not to write about, at present. After a few days' visit in England, I spent about five days in Paris making preparations to do work in the field. I am also here as a "Y" representative but within easy reach of the Divisional Headquarters. I am here to serve the A. E. F. in all capacities, such as operating a canteen, directing entertainments, athletics, and religious interests, when the army Chaplain is busy elsewhere. I can hardly realize that my place of observation is now among the A. E. F. in France, "Over Here," instead of formerly being in U. S. A. and thinking of the A. E. F. "Over There."

I have been at the American University Union in Paris, and find there many U. of Wisconsin alumni registered. It surely is a very good cause to support. You can send my MAGAZINE to the following address.—Herbert S. Inbusch, '05, Y. M. C. A. Sec'y., A. E. F., France, A. P. O. 776.

The Wisconsin spirit seems to hold forth wherever we go both in Europe and America. At present we are stationed at M—, France. The second day after coming here, I found Shapiro, '16, working in the repair shops. Cecil Holman, '18, is also a member of our Company. We came over together, arriving in France, August 12.

I certainly will miss the ALUMNI MAGAZINE. The last copies I received were at Camp Hancock, Ga. How can we get it here?

When we get to Paris—if we do—I shall look up the Register of Wisconsin men at the Palace du Theatre Francaise (Royal Palace Hotel). "Hod" Ofstie, '15, and a bunch of other U. W. men that I know are here. It is always a brighter day when Wisconsin men meet each other, and especially in France. Remember we will do our best to make the Wisconsin spirit live in France and the world as we learned it in our athletic uniforms back at dear old Alma Mater.

Wishing all of the Wisconsin Alumni Association the best of regards.—Joseph F. Machotka, '15, 35th Provisional Ordnance Depot Co., A. E. F. via New York City.

Mother sent me the June and July issues of THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE lately. They were a joy. As Tommie says, "Gee, or strike me pink, it was like being in Blighty again." The McElroy affair was news. I would like to send McNutt a boche gas "dud."

I am with Hdq. Co. 129 Inf. A. E. F., via New York City, and in the same Division that Stanley Brink, ex '16, is. My duties are those of a battalion signalman. Am back where the heavy stuff falls, just between the big guns and the third line. Our outfit managed to get into the big push, and we are good for many more. Just a confidence on the side: one may believe in the Napoleonic philosophy that "one can do no harm to him who does not fear death," until a few big ones fall beside him. It sort of gets one by the throat; one experiences a suffocating sensation. This is known as "having the wind up." Often times Fritzzy, Jerry, Heinie, les boches (take your choice!) thinks an attack is about to be made. He immediately "lays down a barrage," and we say, "Heinie's wind is up." The following treats of the subject and was written amid the detonations of a wind up barrage.

His Wind Is Up

When Heinie gets the notion that we Yanks are coming o'er,
And feeds us iron rations in just one bloody roar,

His wind is up.

When the hickey-boos are spoofing and the Archies burst around,
And the lead from many Minnies spatters on the ground,

His wind is up.

When the nine-fives rend the heavens, and the whiz-bangs phlop galore,
And concussions loose the hinges on your blooming dug-out door—
You are under no delusion if you come to the conclusion

Heinie's wind is up.

Your letter of July 19, came today (Sept. 4), so you see our mail service is not so swift as we were used to in the States. I certainly will be glad to see the MAGAZINE when it comes. It is like getting a letter, or rather, a lot of letters from home, it has so much interesting news these days. Will you please make note of my new address. I am not in London, but mail sent to the address given below will be forwarded to me wherever I am.

I find myself again with two old Wisconsin friends with whom I served as an enlisted man last year—in fact, until April 1, this year. They are: Lt. Walter Webb, '17, Dept. Mil. Aero., and Lt. Ray Hardin, '15, Dept. Mil. Aero. Their address is the same as mine. When I was in London some time ago I was pleased to meet Lt. Gordon Reese, '17, and Lt. Robert Johnson also of '17. I also heard from Bob Johnson that Lt. Herbert Brown, '17, was in England some weeks ago.

Trusting to get the August MAGAZINE before long, I am yours truly.—Lt. Paul T. Norton, '17, Dept. Mil. Aero., American Aviation Hdqrs., A. E. F., London, England.

We never know from one minute to the next what we are to do or where we are to move. All the way through we have been following on the trail of the infantry, pulling into towns that still smell of Limburger and sauerkraut and giving the boys all the support we possibly can; and believe me, they certainly appreciate it, too. What they like is to hear a hundred or more six-inch shells whistling over their heads, of course going in the right direction.

In my last letter I told you about the work of this Battalion on the night of July 14, when the big German offensive was started and did not succeed. Well, from reports that we have received, we had a lot to do with repulsing the enemy in this sector and we have been cited in the general orders of the French unit under which we were being directed. We were what the French call "green" and, as they expressed it, did good work in surprisingly short time. We think this rather a good start and I am going to try to get a copy of the order to send to you.

At the present moment, the prelude of our daily entertainment is just beginning. It consists of an anti-aircraft offensive. The Germans persist in coming over to take photographs of our location, and we open up with two Hotchkiss guns, with which we are equipped, and such a great old time as we have, trying to bag a Boche. The other night about 9 o'clock

6 enemy planes had the nerve to attack one of our balloons, but our airmen got wind of it, and you can take my word, we certainly had some side show in which two Boche were brought down. There will be no more enthusiasm for me in duck-hunting or any other sports after having had the opportunity of seeing and taking part in such things as this.

I tell you, the Allies are moving pretty fast, and nothing could please the American bunch more, as they are always talking about and planning the next move. The bunch going out always yells to the bunch coming in: "Give 'em Hell, boys"; and the answer is invariably: "You bet."

Last night when a regiment of 75's passed our position, I recognized Jerry Roe from Wisconsin D. K. E. fraternity. Every now and then some one that we know turns up, and it certainly makes you feel good, as letters and news are pretty scarce in these parts. A mail came in last night, the first in three weeks. The system is far from perfect. I bet you are asking yourselves, how about the cooties? Well, I am either immune, or they have all been gassed in this sector. There seems to be very little complaint about any insects except the fly that gives you the sleepy feeling, and every one here has been bitten by it. When my platoon is not firing, it is my privilege to go to my cot about 200 feet from the guns and rest, but the miserable little fly will not let you, even after a platoon of guns like ours has been bombarding your ear drums all night.

Am just beginning to get used to this life, and have found out what to take with me and what to leave behind. I tell you, a pair of whip-cord trousers, hunting boots, a couple of changes of underwear, some towels and a slim appetite are about the best outfit a man can carry. Be sure to leave at home everything on the printed lists that are distributed showing what to take to France.

My hunting boots are a life-saver and I would not take a good-sized check for them, with the roads so deep in mud and everything so sloppy from the continual rains we have had. A flashlight is about the most useful article to have, and, in fact, it is absolutely necessary for night work with the battery. They are very difficult to get.

There is an awful lot of hard work with the heavy artillery, and for the last two months, there has been just one password: "Shoot." We were on the heels of Fritz all the way in his retreat, and when I come home there will be some vivid pictures to paint of the grief we have caused him. It looks as if we would be busy here until the winter snows stop the work. At present, Fritz is sending a few shells here and there, but a person gets so he doesn't bother to see where they break unless their whistle lets you know they are coming in your direction.—Lt. Joseph T. Mengel, '17, 146th F. A., Btty. D, A. E. F., France, via N. Y. July 21, August 9, 1918.

It is too bad I am not allowed to state my exact location, but I am at the Front about 2 kilometers from the Boche lines. I am writing this in the coziest dugout I have seen thus far. We were the first Americans to step on German soil and this we celebrated accordingly on the 4th of July.

The adventures and experiences "over here" are wonderful, and furthermore, the artillery game keeps your thinking system in good condition all the time. It seems as though it is going to be a busy night—about 6 batteries have commenced firing in the last 3 minutes. Hoping the enclosed (War Record) will meet your approval, most sincerely, Lt. H. Runge, '18, Somewhere on a European Front, July 16, 1918.

CAMPUS NOTES

Prof. C. K. Leith, of the Geological Dept., is serving as mineral expert for the War Industries Board, and Shipping Board, Washington, D. C.

A smoker for Wisconsin men who attended S. A. T. C. at Fort Sheridan, was given at the Army and Navy Tea Shop, Lake Forest, Ill., in August. Prof. S. W. Gilman, '99, Dean S. H. Goodnight, '98, C. D. Cool, '09, Coach Jones, and R. S. Crawford, '03, general secretary of the Alumni Association were guests. J. G. Conley, '18, had charge of the affair.

The superintendents and supervising principals of the State, on invitation of the Dept. of Education, held their annual fall conference at the High School, Madison, Oct. 4 and 5. The University secured Prof. George Strayer of Teachers' College, Columbia U., who is president of the the Nat'l. Commission on the Emergency in Education and the Reconstruction of Education after the War, as a speaker on this occasion. Professor Strayer spoke on the present situation in education and plans for the modification of education after the war, having in view especially the situation in public, elementary, and secondary education. He touched upon the general educational situation, also, and what he said was both illuminating and interesting.

"Parent-Teacher Associations," and "Industrial Education and Dependency," are the titles of recent bulletins issued by the Extension Dept.

C. D. Zdanowicz, formerly professor in the Romance Languages Dept., is enlisted in the regular service for overseas duty.

Aeroplane study, from the engineer's standpoint, is carried on in the course in aeronautics offered by the College of Engineering. Stresses in airplanes and in air screws, inherent stability, automatic stabilizers, and design of aviation engines are the subjects treated. The course is open to men.

Maj. A. R. Kerwin, West Point graduate, who was with General Pershing in the Mexican trouble, and who came to Wisconsin at the outbreak of the war to relieve Maj. C. E. Crane, was ordered to Camp Meade, Md., in the summer.

Prof. F. L. Paxson, of the History Dept., has been commissioned major on the general staff of the National Army, with headquarters in Washington. He is detailed for service in the historical branch of the Army War College.

Ruby Hawn, '19, one of the first women employed by Wisconsin as cow tester, attended the Nat'l. Dairy Show at Columbus, O., last month. Miss Hawn, who is tester for the Alma Center association, represented her 18 or 20 girl associates at the meeting. The College of Agriculture offers a special course for those who wish to take up the work, including not only actual testing but the study of dairy rations, and the care of dairy cattle.

Four-minute speakers are being trained, at the request of the War Dept., in a special course just arranged by the Dept. of Public Speaking.

Seven hundred of the 1,000 soldiers who comprise the fourth detachment of the vocational school, are quartered at the new barracks at Camp Randall.

Mrs. E. E. Hoyt, of the Extension Dept., has been appointed state chairman of the child welfare committee of the State Council of Defense, and is directing Wisconsin's part in the national campaign to save the children.

Two honorary degrees were conferred at Commencement, the recipients being Prof. David Kinley, U. of Ill., and Prof. Leander Hoskins of Leland Stanford U.

Prof. F. E. Williams, of the Geology Dept., has been commissioned captain in the National Army, and is serving in Washington in the executive division of the general staff, military intelligence branch.

Badgers registered in the American University Union in Paris up till July 26, numbered 196. Among the number are 1 major, 7 captains, 35 lieutenants, 5 sergeants, and 4 corporals.

Miss Louise Nardin, formerly professor of English at the U. of Missouri, succeeded Mrs. Lois Mathews Rosenberry as dean of women.

Russian rifles, numbering more than 2,500, are being used by the S. A. T. C. soldiers for drill. These guns, which are of no practical use for American purposes because they need Russian ammunition, serve in place of the 1,400 Krag-Jorgeson rifles formerly used by the University and which are now being used by the vocational men.

The largest enrollment of resident students on record is registered this fall.

Dean H. S. Richards, of the Law School spent the summer in Washington doing special work for the War Trade Board. H. L. Smith, and O. S. Rundell were engaged in similar work.

Prof. H. J. Thorkelson, who was granted leave of absence in the summer to serve under the War Dept. at Washington, has resumed his duties.

Four hundred fifty wireless operators are to be trained here this year. The first group, numbering 150, arrived last month.

Dean Turneure, of the Engineering College, who aided in the soldier-housing work in Washington, last summer, resumed his duties last month.

All large lecture courses and recreational gatherings of students were suspended during the period of the Spanish influenza epidemic. The action did not affect S. A. T. C. men.

M. S. Nichols, of the Chemistry Dept., has been commissioned second lieutenant in the army sanitary corps and is in training at the Rockefeller Institute, New York.

Prof. Barry Cerf is a captain in chemical warfare service overseas.

Americanization, a new department established at the University this year, is under the direction of Prof. D. D. Lescohier.

Prof. B. G. Elliot, of the Extension Dept., is on leave of absence managing vocational training work in Philadelphia, after carrying on similar work in the ship yards at Manitowoc.

The Board of Regents elected the following officers for the current year: Dr. Charles Vilas, '65, Madison, president; A. J. Horlick, Racine, vice-president; M. E. McCaffery, Madison, secretary; and H. J. Thorkelson, Madison, business manager. Mrs. Charles Carpenter (Imogene Hand, '87) was re-appointed regent member of the Board of Visitors for a term of four years.

The State Historical Society has recently received a gift of 23 military manuals from the George Banta Pub. Co., Menasha. The gift includes "Applied Minor Tactics," "Company Training," "Manual of Military Training," and others by Col. J. A. Moss. The Society values this collection as showing Wisconsin's part in the war.

Dr. J. A. E. Eyster, professor of physiology, has been commissioned major in the gas service of the army medical corps. Dr. Eyster is the ninth professor to be commissioned major.

Miss L. B. Campbell, formerly of the English Dept., is doing Y. W. C. A. work in the South.

Prof. Charles Corp, of the Engineering Dept., is a captain in the sanitary corps at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

"General Survey of Journalism," "Newspaper Reporting and Correspondence," and a number of others, are offered by the Dept. of Journalism this year.

Maj. Edwin McCaskey, formerly commandant at U. of Ill., and who had charge of the S. A. T. C. at Fort Sheridan in the summer, took charge of Wisconsin S. A. T. C. last month.

BOOK NOTES

Brief reviews of writings by Wisconsin students, alumni, and faculty.

We Live Again, by W. T. Gilman, ex '15, is the play which the publishers' announcement calls the most dramatic in the new volume of Wisconsin Plays issued by the Wisconsin Players and published by B. W. Huebsch, N. Y. Of the three other plays in the volume, two are by Howard Jones, '14, and Mrs. Laura Case Sherry, ex '94, director of the Wisconsin Players and editor of the volume.

Mr. Gilman's play is even more dramatic than literary,—in a first play a rare enough quality—and in literary value it is of high excellence as well. The scene of the play is a watch-meeting in a little Mid-Western town, and the characterization of the worshipers is done with exceeding cleverness and a sure touch. Upon this group enters a young woman, with a child in her arms, who asks for shelter, "since the saloons ain't open." The hostess of the meeting, a woman of warm human feeling contrasted with the lip-piety of the others, receives the girl warmly. Lizzie, the girl, is looking for "her man," and Mrs. Allen's heart is sore for her son, a wastrel, missing from the village.

His return during the meeting, Lizzie's recognition, his death, and the disposition of the child, against the background of the cold formalism of the men and women, give scenes of tense and strong values, and the whole is admirably conceived and skillfully worked out.

During his two years at the University, Mr. Gilman twice won one of the Vilas prizes for fiction. He is a member of Delta Tau Omega and Sigma Delta Chi, and lives at Portage. For the last two years he has been in business in Chicago.

Shadow, by Howard Jones, is a lovely bit of fantasy, worked out in half-tints and low tones, detailing how Ouiselle learns of the presence of shadow in the world and hears the silver trumpets grow faint. Helene, the woman of the world, Harlequin, and the crazy Emperor and Ouiselle's lover himself all teach her to know shadow—and Shadow himself sits and watches throughout the piece, and takes a hand no less. Mr. Jones has a distinctive and lovely quality, and his work is promising. He is the author of a volume of verse, and wrote the convocation ode at the quarter-centennial at Chicago U., where he was a post-graduate student in '15. He is now professor of English in Montana U.

On the Pier, by Laura Case Sherry, is a sad and happy bit, telling of the meeting of two young creatures on a pier of the river in New York, where they have both come to end their lives. Their talk, their memories of Wauwasee (Wisconsin), their unquenchable optimism within, all because they have youth, and their final agreement to go away together, make up the little sketch, which is very human. The Wisconsin Players have been playing plays mostly of Wisconsin authorship, in Milwaukee, Chicago and New York for seven seasons. Both Shadow and On the Pier were taken by Mrs. Sherry to New York last winter. The fourth play The Feast of the Holy Innocents, is a charming comedy by Marshal Hsley of Milwaukee.

The volume registers the progress of the Players in creating a center for the introduction of playwrights new to the work, as the Playhouse in Milwaukee is a laboratory for the practice of all the arts connected with the theater. Mrs. Sherry's experimental theater is one of the most interesting of the little theaters in the West. The work of the Players is sketched in an introduction, by Zona Gale, '95, written for the present volume.

Why Have an Exhibit? is the title of an illustrated article in The Survey for July 27, written by Mary Swain Routzahn, '02, of the Dept. of Surveys and Exhibits of the Russell Sage Foundation. The article deals with the aims, methods and values of exhibits as a means of communicating modern ideas and discoveries to the general public.

After-the-War Business Problems was the title of an address given before the Iowa Bankers' Assn. by W. S. Kies, '99, and which has later appeared in printed form. He urges preparedness for the greater problems yet to come.

Further Studies on the Deposition of Gold in Nature by Prof. Victor Lenher appears in pamphlet form as a reprint from "Economic Geology," Vol. XIII, No. 3. This technical treatise is a report of a series of experiments carried on in the laboratory to determine the means by which gold deposits were produced. It contains some historical data, together with descriptions of methods finally worked out, the apparatus used, and observations.

Adult Education and the War, by Max Loeb, '05, is a short, concise article giving statistics which prove the need of compulsory education to aid in the Americanization of foreign-born residents who do not know our language and therefore can not understand our ideas.

New Collection Methods is the title of a new book for business houses and commercial teachers just published by Prof. E. H. Gardner, of the Commerce Course, and author of Effective Business Letters. The book presents, in condensed form, a digest of the most successful collection methods of leading American business houses, giving in its 500 pages a clear discussion of the collection problems of the manufacturer, jobber, retailer, mail-order and installment houses, hundreds of successful collection letters, etc. Both of Prof. Gardner's books are published by Ronald Press Co., New York.
