MRC continues Army consultation

By PATRICK MCGILLIGAN
and WALTER BOGDANICH
of the Cardinal Staff

Recent investigation has confirmed that consultation with Department of Defense personnel by University of Wisconsin Mathematics Research Center (MRC) staff members continues unchanged since the August 24, 1970 bombing of the center.

Researchers checking University travel voucher records have verified at least thirteen instances in the last two years where professors connected with the army-funded program have visited army research centers in order to advise army officials of mathematical advances.

Center spokesmen deny that specific applications to current Army problems are discussed at any of the meetings.

THE VISITS, MOST of them by the ten permanent MRC staffers, include consultations at Edgewood Arsenal, Picatinny Arsenal, Redstone Arsenal, White Sands Missile Range and the Harry Diamond Laboratories.

Edgewood Arsenal is the major army research center for nuclear warfare, chemical munitions, biological and radiological warfare, and pyrotechnics; Picatinny Arsenal is the major army research center for conventional munitions, explosives, solids and liquid propellants and nonchemical bombs; Redstone Arsenal is the major army research center for rockets, guided missiles, missile technology and ballistic missiles; and White Sands Missile Range is the major army testing ground for missile and rocket systems.

MRC Director J. Barkley Rosser visited White Sands Missile Range on November 11, 1971 to attend a meeting of the Army Mathematics Steering Committee. Although center spokesmen contend the visit was routine, Rosser is a noted rocket ballistics expert. He was cited by the Secretary of the Navy in 1960 for work on the Polaris missile, and his first scholarly publication dealt with "Mathematical Theory of Rocket Flight."

MRC Assistant Director Stephen Robinson, according to University files, presented orientation lectures on "Matrix Calculations and Applications" at the Harry Diamond Laboratories in Washington, D.C. on March 12 through March 17 this year and consulted with the Department of the Army and other agencies in Washington, D.C.

ACCORDING TO A recent issue of the Army Research and Development Magazine, the Harry Diamond Laboratories engages in "research, development and engineering on electrical fuses, ordnance electronics, ordnance specialties, and numerous critical materiel."

One of the five central laboratories in the U.S. Army Materiel Command, the Harry Diamond Laboratories has the lead laboratory responsibility in both fluidics applications and in nuclear weapons effect.

"In meeting numerous requirements related to materiel for Southeast Asia operations," the Research and Development article continues, "in advancing technology in fluidics, and in responding successfully to numerous military requirements... Harry Diamond Laboratories scientists and engineers have continuingly demonstrated that they are accepting the challenge of the future."

Robinson said his lectures were "basically (intended) to improve the

Wallace condition grave

By PHIL HASLANGER
Compiled from wire services

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace remained in serious condition last evening after being shot and seriously wounded yesterday afternoon while campaigning in Maryland for today's Presidential primary.

A 21-year old Milwaukee man, Arthur Bremer, has been charged with the shooting of Wallace, as well as for the shootings of a Secret Service agent, an Alabama state trooper and a Wallace campaign worker.

The attempted assassination took place shortly before 4 p.m. as the 52-year old Alabama Governor shook hands with supporters following a 30-minute talk to about 1,000 persons at a Laurel, Md., shopping center, some 15 miles from Washington, D.C.

WALLACE LEFT the platform where he had been protected by a bulletproof shield, removed his coat, and moved into the crowd to the left of the podium. (The security-conscious Wallace would only plunge into a crowd that had been friendly, one which held little risk.)

As he greeted supporters, one man in the crowd kept crying out, "Over here, George. Hey, George, over here."

Wallace moved toward the voice, a hand with a .38 revolver reached out between two people to the Governor's right and he fell backwards with wounds in his chest, abdomen, arm and leg.

Police immediately grabbed Bremer, who they maintained fired the shots. In their efforts to bring him down, the other three victims were wounded.

In the confusion, there was a delay in obtaining an ambulance. Wallace was temporarily placed in the back of a station wagon until an ambulance arrived to whisk him away to Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, Md.

Reports out of Holy Cross Hospital last evening expressed concern about possible spinal injuries and paralysis. While the Governor's condition remained serious, there seemed to be no immediate danger of death.

"All vital signs are strong," maintained a Wallace spokesman at the hospital.

Bremer, a quiet photography student who had attended the Milwaukee Area Technical College, was charged late Monday night with four counts of assault with intent to murder by the state of Maryland and with assault of a federal officer and violating the 1968 Civil Rights Act by assaulting a candidate for elective office by the Justice Dept.

ACQUAINTANCES described Bremer as an introverted person who apparently supported Wallace. "He must have been for George Wallace," said Stephen Wasche, who lived in the same West Side apartment house with Bremer. "He had a Wallace sticker across the door."

Bremer's parents live on Milwaukee's South Side. His father is reported to be a truck driver. A neighbor described them as "nice people."

Bremer himself attended South Division High School, where officials reported that his grades were below average—1.5 on a 4-point scale.

Police say they have no record of his having been arrested in Milwaukee.

"He was just quiet," reiterated Gary MacDonald, who attended photography classes with Bremer. "Not the kind to carry a gun."

REACTION to the shooting came quickly from many sources.

In Madison, one University student remarked, "That's terrible. I didn't like him, but I can't say I'm glad this happened."

RHSLO may settle

By ERIC PARFREY
of the Cardinal Staff

After twenty-two days out on strike members of Residence Halls Student Labor Organization (RHSLO) Friday defeated a motion to continue their strike.

At a general membership meeting, a quorum of about forty union members voted to take separate votes on whether workers would go back to their jobs, and whether a contract, however weak, should be signed. The results of that ballot will be taken by telephone and will probably be released by Wednesday night.

The meeting voted to include only "members of good standing" in the ballot, which would exclude any strikers who went back to work during the last three weeks.

THE VOTES, WHICH observers expected to pass, were seen as a move to preserve the union structure for future employees. Jay Novak, member of the RHSLO bargaining team, said, "If some sort of contract is signed, at least the basic structure of the organization will remain."

RHSLO leaders met with University officials on Thursday night, using representatives of Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) as mediators. RHSLO organizer Kathy Grover told the membership, "The University wasn't really interested in even talking. There wasn't much we could do at the session."

In a letter to the University's chief negotiator Ed Krinsky, RHSLO said they were willing to accept the University's conditions for returning workers if the students were guaranteed a job for next fall. The University was not willing to guarantee that all workers would be rehired by Residence Halls.

Two quiet marches follow Friday arrests

By DUKE WELTER
of the Cardinal Staff

Antiwar demonstrations continued over the weekend, ranging from a Friday march up State St. by about 2,000 toilet-paper-slipping students to a peaceful march to Truax Field by about 200 rain-soaked citizens Sunday afternoon.

Friday's march up State St. was marked by students chanting, "No more s**t, no more s**t!" and throwing rolls of toilet paper at police escorts saying, "These are our bombs."

Friday night, about 1,000 persons gathered at Gordon Commons in the weekend's most energetic protest. After being gassed by police, the crowd broke up into several groups and moved to the Capitol by various routes. Two firebombs were reportedly thrown at gasoline storage tanks behind Roy's Transfer and Storage Co., two blocks east of the Capitol Square, but no damage

POLICE REPORTED 12 arrests in Friday's demonstrations. They include:

Andrew Goodman, 22, disorderly conduct, $209 bail.

Peter Cull, 21, carrying a concealed weapon, $509 bail.

Lonny Richie, 24, drinking in the streets, $200 bail.

Daniel DeMark, 19, drinking in the streets, $200 bail.

Police also arrested seven juveniles for curfew violations and disorderly conduct and one 15-year-old for possession of marijuana.

About 225 protestors marched in the rain Sunday along a five-mile route to Truax Field, where they heard antiwar speakers and sang protest songs. There were no arrests in the 2 1/2-hour protest.

In other actions Sunday, about 400 persons gathered at the First Methodist Church for an interdenominational service of prayers and songs. Over 1,000

Bedford five await hearings

By DAN SCHWARTZ
of the Cardinal Staff

Two of the five defendants were out on bail Monday as the lawyers began their legal preparations for hearings scheduled later this week in the case of five anti-war protestors arrested in last Thursday night's Bedford street confrontation.

Mark Eisenberg was freed on $10,000 bail Friday and Debby Heintz on $500 in the case in which the four male defendants are accused of an alleged arson conspiracy and Oliver Steinberg, 22, accused of three counts of attempted murder. Two brothers, University students, Bruce and Jeffrey Miller are the other defendants.

All the defendants have attained legal aid and Heintz, who used a legal services lawyer at the bail hearing last Friday is expected to attain local attorney Percy Julian. The Bedford street incident, in which three undercover Madison policemen dressed in hippie garb of city-wide anti-war protest earlier in the night.

CHARGES CONTINUE TO fly in the city press over the use of undercover agents in the case and the court complaint written by Madison police officer George Croal concerning the arson charges. A Takeover broadside published this week-end noted "The increased use of undercover agents and police to act as provocateurs has certainly been a tactic that has caused the escalation we have witnessed. The police have not only harassed us and led us in ambushes but they have repeatedly beaten and brutalized us in the community."

Separate hearings are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday at the City County building for the arson case and then Steinberg's attempted murder charge. The hearings are expected to be held before Judge William Byrnes' County Court Branch Five.

Steinberg is currently being held on bail of $55,000 and while community groups have already begun to coordinate fund-raising activities, a bail reduction effort is expected on the part of his lawyer, Richard Cates.

The Miller brothers are being held on bail of $10,000 each stemming from charges that they conspired with Steinberg and Eisenberg to fire bomb the Madison National Life Insurance Co. on University Avenue. The firebombing never took place and police complaints are according to Croal's statements based on information as well as a period of Thursday night in which an undercover squad followed the group because of information revealing that "the occupants of 131 North Bedford Street had recently been involved in trashing during street demonstrations in the City of Madison."

The Miller's lawyer is expected to be Earl Munson Jr. and Eisenberg's, Kenneth Casey.

Steinberg according to visitors is "anxious to get out of jail." He is in need of bail money and can receive letters. He is not being held in solitary.

MULO tests proposals

By GOLDI KADUSHIN
of the Cardinal Staff

The Memorial Union Labor Organization (MULO) voted Sunday to submit the latest in a series of University preliminary bargaining proposals to a paper ballot vote. The results of the vote, which continues today, will be tabulated at a union membership meeting tonight.

Should the resolution receive the necessary majority approval, the union will call a two day strike moratorium during which contract negotiations will resume.

Submitted to MULO at a Friday preliminary negotiation session mediated by the WERC, the new University proposal imposes the same stringent conditions for a return to work that characterized previous offers.

LABELLED "OUR maximum compromise" by University bargainer Tom Cleary, the proposal rescinds only a University demand granting scab seniority in the assignment of work hours. Staunch disciplinary reprisals, including the firing of ten dishroom workers involved in April's wildcat dishroom strike were retained.

A demand that student supervisors be demoted to non-supervisory status remained, with the modification that loss of status be at the discretion of the employer and not entail any drop in wage. Under previous discipline conditions, loss of supervisory status was automatic and accompanied by a pay drop.

Permission to continue picketing, boycotting and leafletting activities, included in previous University offers, was denied in Friday's proposal, which stipulates that the "union must end the strike and all related activities" during the 48 hour strike moratorium period.

Conceding few MULO demands, the new University proposal essentially backs the union into a strategic corner.

Should MULO accept the proposal and reach a contract settlement with the University within the 48 hour period allotted, those disciplinary conditions outlined in the University's preliminary bargaining offer would be implemented as part of the final agreement.

The ten dishroom workers would be fired under any such agreement.

UNITED FRONT RALLY

Once again. The war goes on—even as you read this. And one week of protests is not enough. Tonight at 7 p.m. the United Front has called an anti-war rally on the library mall. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. Admission will be a noisemaker and a cardboard box. Suggested noisemakers are whistles, kazoos, beans in cans and musical instruments. From Library Mall we will trek to Gordon Commons where we will symbolically construct and destruct the Pentagon. We will then march to the City County Building to express our solidarity with the Bedford Street Five and all other political prisoners. There we will renew our demands for immediate withdrawal of all Wisconsin resources from the war to the City Council meeting. There we will once again protest the war. Join us.

Present University policy is that any returning workers must accept 2 1/2 cuts on their working records, are demoted to base pay of $1.75 an hour, and lose all accumulated seniority. A worker is usually terminated by Residence Halls if he receives three cuts, or missed meal shifts. The reprisals have already been taken against workers who returned during the strike.

"I would have been surprised if Residence Halls had given us anything," Jay Novak said. "We didn't realize that we were striking against the state, not just Residence Halls. The state took the matter out of Director Lawrence Halle's hands."

"The majority of the strikers were committed to changing the conditions under which they were controlled," RHSLO organizer Bob Litzau told the Cardinal. "We wanted to give some measure of control of Residence Halls back to the students and workers, but the University, led by Chancellor Edwin Young, was determined not to lose any power."

Litzau added, "The University was determined to break our union when they realized that we wanted to challenge their structure. I don't know what will happen next year, but as working conditions get worse people will realize that a strong union is needed."

Novak agreed that organizing will be harder in the future because many of the new workers have been hired as scabs. "I think we were too easy on scabs during the strike," he said. "Last year we tried to intimidate them, but this year we decided to reason with them. It eventually snowballed into a force that helped break our strike."

Armstrong hearing

The extradition hearing of Karleton Lewis Armstrong was postponed yesterday until next Monday morning by a Canadian judge.

Armstrong is accused of participating in the bombing of the Army Mathematics Research Center on the University of Wisconsin campus on August 24, 1970. Three other men are being sought by police in connection with the blast.

Armstrong is currently being held in a Toronto jail.

A DEFENSE motion of prohibition against the judge scheduled to hear Armstrong's plea has not yet been decided.

This week, so far, there are no riots.

And with that thought in mind, "The Mother" is once again scheduled to perform—at 8:30 p.m. this evening at Hillel, 611 Langdon, again on Thursday at Hillel, and on Friday at Wilmar Center, on the corner of Jenifer and Brearly.

Very cheap—only .50¢ at the door. Directed by Denny Stevens, San Francisco Mime Troupe, and sponsored by Quixote. Those in the know say the show will go on. "The Mother" is a play by Bertolt Brecht—and it is rendered here with tender, loving care. A nice thing to see—and reportedly very entertaining.

competence of these people in the mathematical area."

"I did not cover any specific applications that Harry Diamond may have had in mind," Robinson said.

ROBINSON SAID MRC scientists do not consult on specific questions for the army.

Records of consultative visits cannot usually be obtained from army research offices; it has, however, been demonstrated in the past on certain occasions that MRC personnel have offered opinions on specific questions to army officials. The MRC has an option, under a Board of Regents rule approved in 1956, to refuse to disclose any information considered "classified."

It has also occurred in the past that some consultative visits go unreported, either because sources other than the University pay the travel bills, or the visits are not noted in University files in the A.W. Peterson Building. There is no record, for example, of any trip by J. Barkley Rosser to the Redstone Arsenal in early summer, 1971, in the University files, but Rosser is mentioned in the Army Research and Development Magazine as attending the 17th Conference of Army Mathematicians at that time, with four or five other MRC staffers, including Stephen Robinson (who is also not listed in the voucher records).

On most occasions, MRC scientists are simply flown to advise army scientists of the most recent mathematical advances. On November 26, 1970, for example, Herman Karreman arrived in Washington, D.C. for nearly three days of meetings with officials from the Army Materiel Command.

KARREMAN CONSULTED with Col. Lothrop Mittenenthal, now stationed with the Army Research Office in Durham, North Carolina. Reached yesterday in Durham, Mittenenthal said Karreman's visit was intended only to improve systems' costs. Army Materiel Command is responsible for Department of Defense and U.S. Army supply demands. Karreman is considered an expert in systems analysis.

Like the Mittenenthal/Karreman discussion, much of the MRC assistance to the army is in the form of consultative advice, a service which is granted in return for the army's $1 million annual support.

Opinion and Comment

The War Rages Without and Within

In their glee to smash protest against the war last week, Madison police and Dane County Deputy Sheriffs effectively demonstrated to radicals, liberals and citizens alike the ease with which they can dispense with civil liberties. For those who hid in their homes or their University, oblivious to the war at home or in Indochina, this fact may soon become a reality as protest now in a temporary lull begins to rebuild again.

Last week almost every conceivable tactic known to the antiwar movement surfaced: candlelight parades, civil disobedience, trashing, marches, speeches and rallies. Tactics were aimed at building a wider support for the antiwar movement as well as to symbolically and militantly attack the hundreds of tributary institutions in town and supporting Nixon's war.

Unfortunately all too many small businesses with no connection to the war were senselessly trashed. These trashings reflected the emotional rage of reaction to the police rather than the political rage of the antiwar movement since they ultimately worked to alienate crucial support for the antiwar effort. It is not as if there aren't war supporting institutions in town who, through political education and militance, can be identified correctly as war criminals. It is towards these institutions, the banks, the IBMs, the AMRCs, we must gear ourselves if we wish to continue our efforts to end Nixon's military scheme to crush the people of Vietnam.

On today's front page we have begun a new series of investigative articles on the Army Mathematics Research Center located in the upper echelons of the WARF building near the isolated security of the campus athletic fields.

AMRC is the Catch-22 of University research, the point at which University rationalizations over complicity with the military blatantly cascade into the absurd. The center performs mathematical research of direct military application for the Army. It is a research which has enabled Nixon to employ maximum military force on the Vietnamese with minimal manpower. It is an institution totally funded by the Department of Defense. It is an institution which not only performs, but vies for contracts insidiously locking itself and the University into a financial umbilical cord with the Army.

We want AMRC exposed—its research reports published and made available to the public so they can judge the true nature of the institution. Furthermore, we would recommend that the antiwar movement on campus redirect itself back to this institution as a central manifestation of the University's role in helping to perpetuate the Vietnam war.

AMRC is one link in a massive chain of departmental and national research going on in this University and throughout the country to help build the technological warfare necessary to the US role in Indochina and throughout the world. It is a chain of research, controlled and directed by the Army and coming at the expense of the American taxpayer. The building AMRC rests in is no longer in the center of the University, but its relationship to the Army places it right at the heart of University financial priorities.

levy said, when i'm dead, you should give more attention to live poets. Morris sed, levy's death released his poems for a lot of people. . . which is more true than the part I didn't quote from Morris' sentence because not many of us knew him when he was alive, or were awake enough to know if we had the chance.

I went to high school in Cleveland and levy was a three inch news story about this crazy poet (poet) who had been busted for obscenity and what poet needed to use obscenity after all?

d.a. levy was the living/dead example of the imperatives of insight and it is frightening that he killed himself in the way it isn't when a lot of other people do—because his questions were all our questions. Sometimes you recognize them, sometimes you discover them there for the first time. You can't fail to be touched; levy was/is an accessible poet because he touched his own experience and had the ability to express it/no need to hide—which isn't true for many poets and otherwise.

RPM print shop has come out with this new book of levy's poetry and graphic work; thicker than others and unlike the long rumored definitive collections, here and now. RPM hopes to make some much needed bread off this and its 75¢ (and worth every etc.)

Roger says, say something about levy. Read this poem and buy the book. . .

"Not for Publication"

How the U.S. Plans to Stay in Viet Nam

Mr. Engelhardt, who holds a graduate degree in Far Eastern Studies from Harvard University, is co-author of To Change China, and a contributor to China and Ourselves. He is an editor of Pacific News Service.

By TOM ENGELHARDT

Despite Nixon's much-publicized troop withdrawals and his announced "generation of peace," the U.S. government is becoming deeply involved in long-range planning for a pacified, pro-American South Vietnam. These plans call for massive U.S. military and economic support a decade or more into the future.

At this moment, a group of professors at Columbia's School of International Affairs are under contract to the U.S. State Department to prepare a report detailing the feasibility of associating the UN and other international organizations with the future "economic rehabilitation of Vietnam." As the State Department's original proposal explained: "The importance of rehabilitation and development in Vietnam and US readiness to help, are taken for granted."

According to the project's director Dr. Ruth Russell, the final report will be presented to the State Department by January 1, 1972.

Little is known of Dr. Russell's work, but Pacific News Service has uncovered two other reports on Vietnam's future. Each is of a semi-official nature and both, according to Washington insiders, are receiving serious attention by the long-range planners at the State Department and in other branches of the government. In late 1970, Emile Benoit, Professor of International Business at Columbia, consultant to the State Department, the Pentagon, and various private companies, did a study for the South Vietnamese government and the Asian Development Bank. (The ADB is funded mainly by the U.S. and Japan.) The other survey was done by Arthur Smithies, former director of the US Bureau of the Budget, admitted CIA contact, Harvard Economics professor, and a member of Dr. Russell's present research team. It was sponsored by The Institute for Defense Analysis (financed by the Pentagon).

Both of these reports are based on one significant assumption: the Indochina war, they suggest, will end in such a way that South Vietnam will not only be a separate country, but will be part of the capitalist market economy. How to make it both a more profitable part of that economy and less of a drain on U.S. resources are the twin aims of the reports.

Professor Benoit, reached by Pacific News Service at this office in Uris Hall on the Columbia campus, was surprised to hear that we had obtained a part of his longer study, an appendix entitled "How Vietnam Hostilities Could End." This section, he stated, was "not for publication." However, he added, when questioned, that it provides "the basis for the rest of the report."

In it, he puts aside the possibility of an NLF and North Vietnamese victory as not being "of concern" to the Asian Development Bank. As he sums it up: "In short, we are considering here the post-hostilities adjustment problems of the Republic of Vietnam, the nation now a member of the ADB, not of a unified Vietnam that would be created as a result of a victory for Hanoi."

Instead, he lays out this scenario: "Before the end of 1973, there will be a 'type of informal North Vietnamese withdrawal, with a continued low level insurgency by the Viet Cong, providing South Vietnam with a respite of uncertain duration—that seems to be the most likely way in which hostilities will end.' In other words, the war will die a natural death.

As for the withdrawal of U.S. support from the Saigon regime, Professor Benoit gave us these startling figures. As late as 1974, he said, his "realistic" estimate was that the U.S. would still be giving $1.65 Billion in combined military and economic aid per year. Of this figure, the direct military part (the war having died away) would still be $1.2 Billion.

He told us that his report suggested a series of steps which must be taken to put the economy back on its feet: a build-up of other sources of aid such as the Asian Development Bank, the World Bank and individual countries like Japan; a rapid expansion of exports; a large increase in rubber production (which would mean the planting of endless thousands of new rubber trees to replace those burned and blasted out by the war); and a diversion of rice supplies from the "Vietcong" back into what he called "the economy of Vietnam."

When asked about the future of oil in South Vietnam, Benoit commented that he knew it "was on the horizon"; but, he said, "It's not my field and I don't know enough about it to comment on it." Professor Smithies, however, is effusive on the subject. "The outlook for the future will be transformed," he says in his survey for the Institute for Defense Analysis, "if oil is discovered." He assumes, of course, that "the production and export of oil will have to depend on foreign enterprises."

Like Benoit, he concluded that "the future of Vietnam should lie in the world economy rather than in economic parochialism" (i.e. an NLF victory). And when he surveys the Vietnamese scene, he is not despairing. Despite the many obstacles he cites such as the serious drop in exports, the doubling of imports within ten years, corruption, insufficient capital savings, he sees hope. He points to the numerous technicians trained by the

Cops interfered in peaceful assembly, lawsuit charges

By STEVE TUCKEY
of the Cardinal Staff

University law students are mounting legal action against state, county, city and University law enforcement officials in the wake of alleged police misconduct in last week's anti-war demonstrations.

Attorney James Glover filed a civil class action suit in Federal Court Friday on behalf of eight University students. The suit seeks to prohibit police from interfering with the constitutional rights of peaceful assembly.

The class action suit, which is filed on behalf of all those who have attempted to protest peacefully in the past week, seeks to restrain "unlawful and unwarranted beatings and the use of riot gas to disperse assemblies," on the part of police.

THE SUIT POINTS out that law enforcement officials "habitually referred to plaintiffs (anti-war demonstrators) with derogatory, humiliating and/or obscene epithets and refused to accord...the respect due citizens by officers of law." Also cited was the refusal of police to "display on their uniforms identifiable names or badge numbers."

The defendants named in the suit are Wilbur Emery, Madison Chief of police; Ralph Hanson, Director of University Protection and Security; Hermann Thomas, Inspector of the Madison Police Department; Vernon Leslie, Sheriff of Dane County; Russell Klitzman, Chief of Dane County Traffic Department; and Lew Vernick, Director of State Highway Patrol; and "certain officers of the above agencies whose identities are unknown to the plaintiffs."

"I didn't violate anybody's civil rights and I never have," Sheriff Leslie told the Cardinal. When asked if he thought he would be vindicated, he replied: "I know goddamn well I will."

State Patrol Director Vernick reacted with surprise at his being named in the suit. "We have always cautioned our people to keep their cool," he said.

Federal Judge James Doyle will hear arguments for the injunction at 8 a.m. Thursday.

THE SUIT, which also seeks $100,000 in damages, was accompanied by sworn affidavits from 18 persons describing specific incidents of police violating demonstrator's civil rights.

Meanwhile, in an action related specifically to last Wednesday's police-law student confrontation in front of the Federal Building, 28 law professors sent a letter to U.S.

Attorney John Olson urging him to "insure that the many charges of police assault are thoroughly investigated and, where appropriate, vigorously prosecuted."

The law professors said that "as a group we cannot express any opinion about the validity of these charges." However they referred to "a number of responsible students and faculty testifying to numerous unprovoked assaults by federal and local police officials."

They went on to state that "police misconduct is among the most serious crimes in a free and democratic society" and that "in times like these it is specifically important that law enforcement officials appear to act in a fair and even handed manner."

INVESTIGATIONS of criminal charges against police are conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), upon which action may be taken by the U.S. Attorney. Neither Olson nor the FBI would comment on the matter.

Law School Dean Spencer Kimball, a signer of the letter, told the Cardinal "while offenses against students are prosecuted, there seems to be no indication that any of the police offenses will be investigated." He said that he thought the letter would spur some such investigation.

Screen Gems

By HARRY WASSERMAN

May 16—While the City Sleeps and The Steel Helmet—The Wisconsin Film Society proudly presents another enlightening double feature exploring the dark side of human nature. Fritz Lang's While the City Sleeps (1956), about a group of reporters who, for their own ends, take advantage of a city's terror when a psychopathic sex murderer is running rampant, is thematically reminiscent of Lang's M, as the film implies, that the civic-minded hunters may be more demented than the killer they are hunting.

The excellent cast includes Dana Andrews, Thomas Mitchell, George Sanders, Ida Lupino, and Vincent Price. Samuel Fuller's The Steel Helmet (1950) deals with the Korean War, and with the insanity and inhumanity that causes such senselessly brutal conflicts. Fuller is at once vibrantly dramatic and visually subtle in the grim story of Sergeant Zack (Gene Evans) and his personal war. At 8:15 p.m. in B-10 Commerce.

By DIX BRUCE
of the Cardinal Staff

May 17—8:00 p.m. "Vibrations". Tonight flamenco, opera, and classical cello. 9 p.m. "SOUL!". Betty Shabazz, wife of the slain Malcolm X, remembers his work in this special on Malcolm X. Special musical tribute by Umoja.

May 18—7:00 p.m. "Guitar, Guitar". Classical guitar by Jose del la Torre including selections from Bach, Chilesotti, and Albeniz. 7:30 p.m. "Playhouse New York". Interviews and film clips about the forties movies with Howard Hawkes, Robert Mitchum, Ingrid Bergman, and John Houston.

May 19—7:30 p.m. "Yojimbo". Director Kurosawa and actor Toshio Mifune (both of the Seven Samurai) again join forces in tale of Japan's legendary peace makers.

May 21—4:00 p.m. "Yojimbo". See above. 9:00 p.m. "The Adirondack". Film portrait of early mountain life, from the Iroquois to Ethan Allen by film maker Ken Richter.

In the story on the Controlled Substances Act in Friday's Cardinal Nancy Foreman was quoted as saying that marijuana has a "high potential for abuse." Official state policy is that marijuana has "some" potential for abuse. Ms. Foreman says. The Cardinal regrets the error.

The Northwestern track team came to town last Saturday, but it didn't really excite anyone. Neither fans, officials, coaches, nor participants.

It was a meet dominated by lackluster performances, partially accountable by a strong wind, and an unworthy opponent. The meet was also marred by the lack of such personages as Chuck Curtis, who was held out because of a stone bruise on his heel, and Pat Matzdorf who has been stricken with a sore back.

"In some cases we just didn't run our people in their best events," said Badger Coach Bill Perrin. "We felt we didn't have to bomb away against Northwestern."

ONE OF the brighter spots for the Badgers was Jim Nickels. He'd been running poorly all spring and although his times were not spectacular, he showed a lot of determination which he has previously lacked. He came from behind twice, to finish first and second in the 440 and 220, respectively.

Skip Kent ran a strong race in the 880, coming in second to Tom Bach of Northwestern. Bach, the top miler in the Big Ten, broke the tape in 1:50.0, and Kent was clocked in 1:51.4. Perrin was hoping that Kent would qualify for the NCAA Saturday, but his time wasn't good enough even though it was his best time this year.

Several events could have just as well been categorized as intrasquad. The Badgers swept the mile, two mile, pole vault, and discus. In both the mile and two mile, Mark Larson preferred tying to winning, and in the pole vault, the Badgers set a school record with three vaulters clearing 15'.

Perrin was pleased with Chuck Baker's effort in the mile run, and hopefully he will be coming on now after a slow start this spring. Neal Gleason continued his improvement in the triple jump which puts him in good shape for the Big Ten.

Probably the most outstanding benefit from the meet was the break in the monotony of the season for some runners. By placing some competitors in different events than they usually run, it breaks the monotony and creates less pressure for them just before the Big Ten meet.

Another reason for the change in events is to avoid the problem of peaking early for the big meets. With the big meets coming up, the Badgers were wary of peaking for an inconsequential meet.

A major concern of the coaches is the rash of injuries that has suddenly struck the team. However, most of them seem to be healing well. Gary Williams, Andrew Stallworth, and James Gordon all competed although injured, but Stallworth was the only one to perform well. Whether Matzdorf and Curtis are able to compete next weekend remains to be seen. "All in all we were happy to get through that meet," Perrin remarked, "without any more injuries."

9 splits with Lewis

By BILL KURTZ

Just when the inhabitants of Guy Lowman Field's not so palatial press box were ready to write off the whole weekend, the Badger baseball team stopped Lewis College's 19 game winning streak in the second game of a Monday doubleheader, 6-5, salvaging a split.

Iowa definitively knocked Wisconsin out of the Big Ten title picture with 10-2 and 4-0 wins at Iowa City Friday. A doubleheader with Minnesota scheduled for Saturday in Minneapolis was cancelled due to wet grounds.

FRIDAY'S TWIN bill can be summed up simply—too much Iowa. The Hawkeyes, who went on to whip Northwestern twice Saturday to win the Big Ten championship, have it all—strong hitting, pitching, and fielding. "They're the best team we've seen since Arizona State," said Badger coach Tom Meyer. "They're just a better team than we are." The Hawkeyes, who have completed their regular season, enter the NCAA playoffs with an 11 game winning streak.

When it comes to winning streaks, however, Iowa must take a back seat to Lewis College. The Flyers from Lockport, Ill. came to Madison bearing a 38-8 record and 18 game winning streak. In Monday's first game, they looked as good as their record, raking four Wisconsin pitchers for 11 hits en route to an 8-2 win. Bill School raised his record to 10-3 for Lewis while the Badgers' Tom Rodel, who had to leave the game after injuring himself sliding into second base during the third inning, suffered his first loss after four straight wins.

MONDAY'S SECOND was one

The Wisconsin varsity crew fared poorly Saturday at the Eastern sprints, finishing sixth on the Lake Quinsigamond course near Worcester, Mass. The Badger freshmen and junior varsity shells, however, took third and fifth, respectively.

The varsity finished with a time of 6:28.8. Northwestern won the varsity competition in 6:11.5. Brown was second and Harvard, the number one seeded crew, was third. The Badger freshmen turned in an excellent 6:18 clocking during a morning heat.

The Badger golf team, meanwhile, finished ninth in the Purdue Invitational at Lafayette, Ind. with 813 strokes. Indiana and Ball State tied for the championship with 759 each. Dave Goetz was the Badgers' low man with 156 for 36 holes.

of the year's most exciting. Wisconsin handed Jack Schimanski of the Flyers his first loss after six wins. Greg O'Brien socked the Badgers' first home run in two weeks, but the winning runs were two cheapies off reliever Tom Shortley in the fifth inning. Wisconsin pitcher Mike Adler rolling along with a two hitter, seemed headed for an easy second victory against four wins. But a rain-soaked Lewis rally in the sixth, a walk followed by four straight hits finished Adler. After a short rain delay, Andy Otting

UW changes radio policy

University of Wisconsin Athletic Director Elroy Hirsch announced Monday that he has decided to return to the school's 1971 broadcasting policy for radio broadcasts of 1972 Badger football and 1972-73 Badger basketball home games.

The UW Board of Regents, in their most recent meeting, advised Chancellor H. Edwin Young to delay finalizing of a contract that would give exclusive rights to the Wisconsin Network of Wisconsin Rapids for broadcast of Badger football and basketball games.

"Various radio personnel said that they would be willing to pay increased rates for the rights," said Hirsch. "These rates would by no means approach the $35,000 figure offered for exclusive rights. Therefore we will have to find ways of cutting the athletic budget to offset this loss of income."

Hirsch will hold a meeting today at 2:30 in the "W" Club room at Camp Randall to further discuss the matter.

came on to save the victory, and sent Lewis on to the NAIA tournament without its streak.

Wolves cop title; Badgers take fifth

Michigan maintained its stranglehold on the Big Ten tennis championship this weekend at Nielsen Stadium, capturing its fifth consecutive conference title. The Wolverines won five of nine final matches in scoring 146 points, and easily outdistanced second-place Indiana.

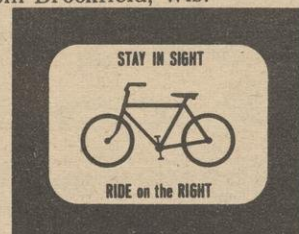

Wisconsin, qualifying two men for the finals, finished fifth with 67 points. The Badger finalists, Pat Klingelhoets and John Center, dropped their final matches at No. 3 and 4 singles, respectively.

Klingelhoets, a senior from Monona, lost to Michigan's Dick Ravreby, 7-5, 7-5, 6-2. Another Wolverine, Tim Ott, defeated Center, a junior from Madison, 6-4, 6-1.

BADGERS MIKE Wilson and Marty Goldin won playbacks (consolation) titles at No. 5 and 6 singles, respectively. Wilson, a freshman from Kaneohe, Hawaii, beat Michigan State's Al Jacoby, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 in their final match. Goldin, a Milwaukee freshman, stopped Bill Clayton of Northwestern, 6-4, 6-1.

Jim Ebbitt of Minnesota, a paragon of excellence throughout the three-day meet, took the No. 1 singles championship by downing Michigan's Joel Ross, 6-2, 6-2. Ross was the defending champion.
