Founders' Day Issue

They Look into the Future

The Wisconsin ALUMNUS

Up and Down the Hill

Waiting lists are being compiled in six courses in which enrollment has been closed due to lack of space, lack of instructors, or both, according to Dean Mark H. Ingraham, of the College of Letters and Science. He sees the situation getting tougher in the near future.

"The next two years should be interesting," he smiles. The Memorial Union is serving 2000 more people a day now than it did three months ago. The cafeteria line usually starts in the Rathskeller; the Tripp Commons line sometimes stretches out to the lobby. A notice on Union bulletin boards warns against "line-jumping." Apparently nobody has informed the Union that the correct, i.e., G. I., term is "line bucking."

Most dramatic evidence of the campus space shortage came last month when University hospital doctors had to give coeds their physical exams in Great Hall of the Memorial Union rather than in the over-run Infirmary.

The telescope, not radar, is still the best way to map the moon's surface, in the opinion of the University of Wisconsin's Joel Stebbins, director of Washburn Observatory. As far as the moon is concerned, he says, radar is not a significant astronomical instrument.

When Miles McMillen, '41, new associate editor of the Capital Times, wrote a series of stories on the anti-trust charges against the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, he was careful to emphasize that the WARF is not one and the same with either the University, the Alumni Association, or the new Wisconsin Foundation. Miles will be remembered as president of the Young Progressives on the campus. He gave up his law practice last summer to join the editorial page staff of the Times.

The student part-time job situation on the University campus has now gone completely into reverse as compared with wartime days. The demand for cash jobs now far exceeds the supply. During the war many openings went begging.

The prefabricated home of the future will be a compact, portable unit built to last only 25 years, designed to be traded in every five years on a new model, and costing only $2000 to $3000.

That is the prediction of Svend Riemer, a native of Sweden now lecturing in sociology at Wisconsin.

A new application of "the Wisconsin idea" came this month when two graduate students from India doing research at the University presented lectures illustrated by films at a rural school near Madison to introduce a "United Nations Guest Instructors" plan. The new plan aims at sending foreign students all over the state on good-will lecture tours. It is being developed by John E. Merkel, '33.

Bob Lewis' return to the campus last month was the occasion for an impromptu alumni rally when he spoke before the Young Democrats Club in the Union. Bob, who was editor of the Daily Cardinal in 1941-42, won the Croix de Guerre, the Distinguished Service Cross, and the Purple Heart as a platoon leader in France. He is now a field organizer for the Wisconsin Farmers' Union. His wife is the former Martha Wells, '42.

Wisconsin is bursting at the seams. What with an all-time high enrollment, classroom space on the Hill is at a premium these days. Lecture halls are overflowing, a traffic jam fills Lincoln Terrace between classes, long lines form at restaurants and cafeterias every noon.

The first day of the second semester, Jan. 23, 878 students tried to crowd into Room 165 in Bascom Hall for Bob Reynolds' "Survey of European History." The room holds only 328. Professor Reynolds now gives his lectures to two different sections.

Science classes are the hardest hit because equipment is still hard to get and laboratories have a definite load limit. Some night classes are now being conducted.

One Wisconsin tradition went by the boards because of the record registration. Prof. William H. "Wild Bill" Kiekhofer's Econ 1 course, long associated with Music Hall, had to be transferred to Agriculture Hall.

HUNDREDS OF RETURNING VETERANS JOSTLED INTO BASCOM HALL ON JANUARY 18 TO REGISTER FOR THE SECOND SEMESTER AT THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

RECORD enrollment, emergency housing, building appropriations, educational adjustments—these were the big stories at the University this month as Wisconsin reconverted from wartime retrenchment to peacetime expansion:

1. $9,192,250 has been appropriated by the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents for a 14-building project that will change the face of the campus as soon as labor and materials are available. Story on page 5.

2. Registration at Wisconsin reached an all-time high this semester of 11,643 students, including 4,200 veterans.

3. The critical housing shortage in Madison has forced the University to close its doors to all new out-of-state students. Story on page 4.

4. Refresher courses in law and medicine, a special advanced ROTC course, and a 15-credit bonus towards graduation are among the features of the educational program which the University has adopted for returning veterans. Story on page 4.

5. Classroom space on the Hill is at a premium these days. Lincoln Terrace is jammed, long lines form at campus cafeterias. See story on page 2.

6. The University has taken over 41 barracks at Truax Field to provide emergency housing for student veterans. One-hundred more trailers are now set up at Camp Randall. See stories on page 5.

7. An off-campus school will be set up at the Badger Ordnance Works village near Prairie du Sac where freshman courses will be offered to more than 1400 ex-service students. See story on page 5.

8. Madison people responded heartily to a University appeal for more student rooms. Even the presidential mansion has become a temporary apartment building. See story, picture on page 5.

9. The area for the Wisconsin General Hospital's new east wing was staked out this month. See story on page 4.

University Enrollment Hits New High

MORE students are now enrolled than ever before in the near-100-year history of the school.

Registration at Wisconsin has reached a new record high of 11,643 students, according to J. Kenneth Little, registrar. The previous top semester enrollment was 11,416 in the fall of 1938. Wisconsin's enrollment is expected to go over the 12,000 mark when the College of Engineering starts its new semester in March.

More than 4,200 students are veterans, continuing their education under the provisions of the G. I. Bill of Rights.

Between the first and second semesters of this year, registration jumped to the new record from 9,500. The normal pre-war second semester gain was 600. Freshly-discharged veterans made up most of the 1946 influx.

Of the 11,643 students at Madison, 2,200 are brand new and 1,150 are re-entered. Men once again out-number co-eds, approximately 6,650 to 5,000, but the percentage of women is still disproportionately large.

Students are registered in the following courses: 10,376 general, 1,136 engineering, and 133 Navy.

All Big Ten schools are jammed, Registrar Little points out. Minnesota was expecting 6000 student veterans, and Illinois and Ohio State were forced to close their doors to new students.

Out-of-State Students Barred from University

Madison's critical housing shortage has forced the University of Wisconsin to shut its doors to all new students, veterans as well as non-veterans, who are not residents of Wisconsin.

"How long we must continue to exclude all out-of-state students depends upon how soon we are able to provide housing for the hundreds of Wisconsin students who are knocking at the University's door for admission every day," said Pres. E. B. Fred in announcing the drastic policy.

The announcement came while a record second-semester registration was sending University enrollment to an all-time high of 11,643, including 4,200 veterans.

Veteran Can Delay Union Membership for a Year

Like all University of Wisconsin institutions, the Memorial Union is extending concessions to returned veterans.

Where a student has gone into service after leaving the University, the $50 student life-membership rate has been extended until one year after his discharge. When the student veteran comes back from the war he is exactly where he was when he went into service, and loses none of his privileges.

"Wisconsin Valiants"

FRITZ KREISLER, eminent violinist, has composed a new song for the University, "Valiants of Wisconsin." It was premiered over the state-wide Founders' Day broadcast from the University campus. Words are by Maxon F. Judell, '17, Hollywood. See story on page 15.

Area Staked Out For New Wing at State Hospital

First step in the University of Wisconsin medical school's post-war expansion was made this month with the staking out of areas for new wings and buildings on the west campus.

The grounds in front of Wisconsin General Hospital were measured off for the erection of two new wings which will make the state hospital a 1000-bed plant.

An appropriation of $460,000 was made by the state legislature through the U. W. Board of Regents, for the hospital's new six-story east wing, first of the building projects to get under way. This wing will extend from the main building east toward University Avenue and then toward Charter Street, forming an "L"-shaped addition.

Dr. Harold M. Coon, superintendent of the hospital, said that contracts had not been let. Date of construction is still indefinite. The new east wing will provide for enlargement of the hospital's out-patient department.

Rules are Relaxed for Ex-G. I.s

Student Veterans Get the Breaks When They Come to Wisconsin

The University of Wisconsin has inaugurated a many-sided program to assist veterans in their pursuit of education at Madison.

Wisconsin has:

1. Appointed some 50 faculty advisors, thoroughly informed on veterans' agencies and the federal and state legislation affecting the veteran, as counselors.
2. Given the veteran permission to take a light schedule until such time as he feels capable of taking a full educational load.
3. Waived the required grade-point average of 1.3 usually required of students entering the law school without a BA degree.
4. Established an eight-week term to run concurrently with the last half of the semester, to enable veterans returning to the campus too late to enroll in the regular classes to get started on their courses.
5. Waived the customary fines for late registration in the case of veterans who are prevented from enrolling on regular registration dates by reason of late discharge.
6. Voted a credit bonus, towards credits required for graduation, of 15 elective credits for both enlisted men and officers.

Law, Medical Schools Give Refresher Courses

Refresher courses in law, intended for men who have received degrees but feel the need for review before entering actual practice after their return from service, are now being held at the University of Wisconsin's law school.

For physicians and medical school graduates who have been out of touch with recent developments in the field of medicine because of military service, the medical school of the University of Wisconsin is now offering refresher courses and post-graduate training.

Advanced ROTC Class Designed for Veterans

Designed primarily for veterans with one year or more of military or naval service, an advanced ROTC course which leads to a reserve officer's commission in the infantry has been set up by the Reserve Officer's Training Corps at the University of Wisconsin this semester.

Veterans are not required to take the two-year basic course.

They Live in President's House

MADISON'S ILL HOUSING wind blew the couple above right into an unusual apartment. They are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harnack, University of Wisconsin students living in one of the four two-room apartments arranged in the presidential mansion at 130 North Prospect Ave. President and Mrs. Fred are continuing to live in the residence of the dean of the College of Agriculture at 10 Babcock Drive. Over 300 other Madison people have taken student veterans into their homes in an effort to ease the housing shortage. The civic response to newspaper appeals for emergency rooms was so effective that all of the University's record 11,643 students are now satisfactorily "under cover," according to Otto Mueller, head of the University Housing Bureau.

Off-Campus School Will Be Set Up at Badger Village 34 Miles from Madison

An emergency off-campus school where freshman-year studies will be offered to more than 1400 veterans is the University of Wisconsin's latest means of licking the housing shortage.

The federal government has approved transfer of housing at the Badger Ordnance Works village near Prairie du Sac to the University. With $65,000 appropriated by the State Emergency Board, the University is readying at least part of the village for use by the opening of the engineering semester in March.

Badger Village can accommodate 955 single veterans and 463 married couples, says A. W. Peterson, director of business and finance at the University.

A few veterans are now living at Badger Village and commuting the 34 miles to the campus. But University authorities feel it will be more feasible to carry the campus to the village. It is anticipated that only freshman year studies will be offered, thus eliminating the cost of erecting laboratories for more advanced students. Dean Mark Ingraham of the College of Letters and Science has been drawing up the curriculum.

It will take some time to reactivate the village, Mr. Peterson points out. All of the heating and plumbing must be connected and put back into working order.

Student Veterans Now Are Housed in Air Field Barracks

What a month ago was an Army Air Forces station hospital is now the home of 550 ex-service students and 80 G. I. couples.

The University of Wisconsin has taken over the 41 barracks of the hospital installation at Truax Field on Madison's east side to provide emergency housing for student veterans back at school under the G. I. Bill.

Unmarried veterans have been assigned to double-deck bunks in combined dormitory-study halls. The rate is $13 a month. Married couples pay $30 a month for two-room suites with connecting bath. No children are allowed at Truax.

A cafeteria-style mess hall, seating 240, is in operation at the field. Recreation rooms are open, filled with furniture and equipment turned over to the University by the Red Cross.

In charge of the Truax project are S. Lee Burns, Wayne Krebs, Newell Smith, and Robert P. Lee. Students ride to the campus on commercial buses operating at 10-minute intervals.

For New Buildings

REGENTS ALLOCATE $9,192,250

THE University of Wisconsin Board of Regents at their January meeting allocated $5,470,000 to new construction, raising the amount earmarked for the institution's postwar building program to $9,192,250.

The Regents approved these additions to the University's Madison campus:

New Engineering Building, the site for which has not yet been designated, $2,000,000.

Additions to the Chemistry Building, $930,000.

New Bacteriology Building, $400,000.

Wing to the Biology Building, $440,000.

Apartments for married student veterans near Forest Products Laboratory, $300,000 (balance of $500,000 to be borrowed from State Annuity and pension board.)

New short-course dormitory, $150,000 (to be added to previous legislative appropriation of $200,000).

New dormitories for 400 men and 400 women students near Lake Mendota (unestimated sum to be borrowed from state pension board).

Cost of new utilities, $750,000.

In addition, the Regents appropriated $400,000 for new units at the Milwaukee Extension Center, and $100,000 for construction at branch agricultural stations throughout the state.

Regent appropriation now exceeds by $500,000 the amount allocated by the 1943 and 1945 legislatures for campus construction. Regent John Jones, Racine, chairman of the Regents' construction and development committee, said the difference can be made up through grants or gifts.

Allotments previously made by the Board of Regents include:

Fireproofing of Bascom Hall, $200,000; the first wing of a new Memorial Library, $1,950,000; new Dairy Building, $600,000; Home Economics Building wing, $280,000; Radio Station WHA, $32,250; Wisconsin General Hospital, $460,000; and the previous short course dorm appropriation.

When construction on the 14 campus projects can get under way will depend upon the availability of labor and material, University authorities say.

More Trailers at Randall

One-hundred more trailers have been added to the University of Wisconsin's trailer park at Camp Randall, bringing the capacity of the emergency village to 191 student veterans and their families.

President E. B. Fred:

He Investigates Biological Warfare

UNIVERSITY of Wisconsin scientists—including Wisconsin's president, Edwin B. Fred—did important work in the nation's research into biological warfare during World War II, it became known this month. Details of the developments still remain a secret.

President Fred and Ira L. Baldwin, dean of the College of Agriculture, held key positions in the project. The University's contributions go back to 1941, when Dr. Fred was picked by the National Academy of Sciences as chairman of a committee which surveyed possibilities of germ warfare for the War Department. Fred then was dean of the Wisconsin graduate school.

His committee reported early in 1942 that steps should be taken immediately to develop defenses against biological warfare. Fred became director of research and development for the War Research Service, a civilian agency established in 1942 to organize research into use of disease-producing agents as weapons of war and methods of protection against them. Fred was consultant to the Secretary of War after the research service was taken over by the army's chemical warfare service.

In late 1942 Baldwin, then head of the University's agricultural bacteriology department, was named technical director of the special projects division of the chemical warfare service. He directed development of specially designed laboratories and pilot plants built for the research project. After returning to the University in December, 1944, he was consultant to the chief of the chemical warfare service.

Wisconsin handled two research projects assigned to various universities by the War Research Service. They were directed by Profs. Elizabeth McCoy and W. P. Wilson, who were assisted by Prof. W. B. Sarles, Dr. W. W. Umbreit, now on the Cornell university staff, and Dr. R. H. Harris.

Sarles also worked with British scientists in their biological warfare investigations and was special consultant to the Secretary of War. Sarles now is Fred's assistant and is a professor of agricultural bacteriology.

DR. EDWIN BROUN FRED, internationally recognized scholar, scientist, and educator, has served Wisconsin and its University for 33 years as teacher and administrator. On February 15 he marks his first anniversary as Wisconsin's 12th president. Soft-spoken, hard-working, President Fred was raised on a Virginia farm, schooled at VPI. He came to Madison in 1913 to join the department of agricultural bacteriology, and served successively as a professor in that department, dean of the graduate school, and dean of the College of Agriculture.

Scientist-Educator

He Outlines Campus Building Program

By PRESIDENT FRED

THE University of Wisconsin has always held an enviable position among institutions of higher learning. Its greatness has resulted from the pride which the people of the state have taken in its accomplishments; from the liberality of many legislatures which have been ambitious to support a university of high merit; because of alumni of unusual loyalty; because so many of its finest citizens have eagerly given of their time and effort to serve on its Board of Regents; and because of the fortunate circumstances that have brought to its service devoted and capable teachers and scholars.

The motto of Wisconsin is "Forward." There has never been an assumption by any group that the University had arrived—that it could now stand still. And the Centennial of the University immediately ahead (1948-49) has given impetus to a movement so to plan that the University may move on to even greater heights of achievement and service.

Students, faculty, alumni, Regents and other friends of the University are united in singleness of purpose—not only to maintain the greatness of the University but to improve and add to the circumstances which will accelerate the pace toward greater effectiveness as an educational institution.

Among those who give ardent support to the progress of the University of Wisconsin there undoubtedly will be differences of judgment, and this will be healthy. But there is no question that such differences will be dissipated and that all will unite on the major objective.

The last session of the State Legislature, in recognition of the University's needs, appropriated $8,000,000 as a postwar building fund. The appropriation was made upon recommendation and with the support of the faculty, university administration, the Board of Regents, the Board of Visitors, the University Alumni Association, many friends of the University, both branches of the Legislature, and Governor Goodland.

Three Major Projects

The campus building program requires much planning and involves the cooperative thinking of numerous groups. Three major projects have been launched:

1. Housing for students. The housing situation is most serious and will be difficult to alleviate. The Regents have approved construction of one dormitory group to house 400 women and of another to house 650 men. A group of apartments is planned for married students, with priority given to veterans. This dormitory construction will be practically entirely self-financing as the cost will be amortized over a period of years through rentals charged.

2. Buildings devoted to teaching, research, and public service. The state appropriation of 8,000,000 has been allocated almost entirely to buildings which will house classrooms and laboratories, and to the erection of a Memorial Library. While such construction cannot possibly be adequate to satisfy all the needs of the University, it will markedly assist in meeting the problem of unprecedented enrollments in the years immediately ahead.

3. The University of Wisconsin Foundation. Prominent alumni, and equally loyal citizens who did not attend the University, have organized a Foundation to raise funds which will make possible buildings and facilities which probably cannot be provided in any way but by gifts and bequests.

It is not the Foundation's plan to raise funds for purposes which the state, through the Legislature, would normally provide. Its program is, however, designed to supplement legislative appropriations with the purpose of enriching the cultural and spiritual life and work of the entire university community, and to assist the University to increase the scope of its services to all of the people of the state.

Campus Planning Commission

Early in 1945, when it appeared that the Legislature would provide a considerable sum of money for construction at the University, a Campus Planning Commission was organized to consider all matters connected with the location of new buildings and to make recommendations to the Regents. The Planning Commission is composed of the President of the University and 30 members, including deans, University officers, state officers, representatives of faculty and alumni, and members of the constructional development committee of the Board of Regents.

This early part of 1946 finds studies by the Campus Planning Commission practically complete in regard to the location of all buildings for which money was provided by the last Legislature. Recommendations have been made to the Regents in regard both to location of buildings and allocation of funds for specific projects.

Regent Action

Under the three-point program outlined above, the Board of Regents has given its approval to the following projects:

1. Two new groups of student dormitory buildings costing $2,080,000. The women's dormitories will be located east of Elizabeth Waters Hall on the hillside along the lake north of the Carillon Tower. The men's group will be located near the present men's dormitories west of Van Hise Hall and south of Adams and Kronshage Halls. These dormitories will be built by the Wisconsin University Building Corporation, a private, non-profit corporation of State and University officials created some years ago to construct University buildings, such as the Fieldhouse and Stadium, which, as suggested, can be amortized over a period of years from their own earnings. The funds needed for the building of these dormitories will be borrowed from the State Annuity and Investment Board on a 30 to 50 year amortization agreement at 3 per cent interest.

A dormitory for Agricultural Short Course students, and the apartments for married students, have also been approved. While at first veterans will be given priority in obtaining apartments, later, after the veterans have completed their studies, these apartments may be occupied by graduate students or by members of the instructional staff.

2. The Regents have approved allocation of funds from the $8,000,000 legislative appropriation for the following building projects for teaching, research, and public service:

Bascom Hall, fireproofing of corridors and stairways—$	200,000
Memorial Library, first unit	1,950,000
Dairy Building	600,000
Engineering Building	2,000,000
Home Economics wing	280,000
Chemistry additions	930,000
Biology wing	440,000
Bacteriology Building	400,000
Milwaukee Extension addition	400,000
Agricultural Branch Station improvements	100,000

Steps are being taken toward the preparation of plans and specifications for these projects, so that construction may be started at the earliest possible date.

Because of the increased cost of construction and the difficulty of securing an approximate estimate of the total sum required for utilities, it may not be possible to carry out the building program as described above. From past experience it is probable that it will be necessary to make changes as we proceed with the program. The problem has been given careful study and the listing above is the best estimate that can be made at this time.

An appropriation from a previous legislature will finance construction in addition to that listed above. This includes a $460,000 new east wing for the Wisconsin General Hospital, and improvements at radio station WHA.

It should be realized too, that in addition to the buildings which have been planned, the University also has great need for classrooms and laboratories in a number of the departments in the various Colleges. These needs are urgent and in the very near future it is hoped that provision can be made for construction to meet the most urgent needs.

Foundation Plans

3. The recently organized University of Wisconsin Foundation has already launched its campaign to raise funds for a long range plan of improvement and enlargement of the University's Lower Campus. This is only the beginning of the Foundation's plans. Eventually it expects to aid in raising funds for University work in many fields.

The Foundation has launched its fund-raising campaign and results are promising. Gifts and bequests made to the Foundation will eventually be transferred to the Regents of the University.

The existence of the Foundation does not preclude the possibility of making contributions direct to the Regents.

Major construction projects presently outlined in the Foundation's long-range campus improvement plan include (1) a building to be known as a Center for Continuation Study; (2) an Art Institute and Museum; (3) an Auditorium; and (4) a suitable War Memorial.

The Center for Continuation Study is to be a building, located on the shore of Lake Mendota near the present Memorial Union, in which the University may provide programs for various groups of citizens—representing such diverse fields as letters and science, engineering, education, law, medicine, agriculture, commerce, and labor.

The building is to contain dormitory and dining facilities. An all-year program of conferences and short courses will thus be made possible with the aid and participation of the faculty. Many of the members of the Foundation have never attended the University and they are particularly enthusiastic about a program which will result in expanded opportunities for increased numbers of citizens of the state to live on the campus and be the beneficiaries of university services.

The Art Institute and Museum will make possible a proper display of paintings and works of art already in possession of the University but now stored in inaccessible places. It will give impetus, too, to the collection, development, and expansion of artistic interpretations of significant Wisconsin historical scenes and incidents.

The Auditorium, as at present contemplated, is planned to seat from 4,500 to 5,000 and to have a stage suitable for musical events, larger than the capacity of the Union Theater. The auditorium will be available for University or city sponsored events, such as assemblies, convocations, and musical productions for which there is now no adequate space, other than Stock Pavilion, or Field House, which are very unsatisfactory. It is planned that the auditorium should also contain a large pipe organ. The hope of the University and Foundation is that the auditorium may be ready for use by the Centennial year 1948-49, to provide adequate place for the many events planned by the Centennial committee.

There is agreement on the need for an appropriate War Memorial. What the Memorial should be and where it is to be located are not decided. Many constructive suggestions have been made; all are being considered; and a final decision will undoubtedly be made which will meet with general approval. The Foundation will undertake to raise funds for such a Memorial.

The Foundation, through its directors, is promoting a splendidly conceived plan, suggested by Mr. W. J. Hagenah, for the beautification and development of the lower campus. (It is discussed on pages 10 to 14 in this issue of The Wisconsin Alumnus.) The plan has been approved in principle by the Campus Planning Commission and the Board of Regents. Mr. Hagenah has

Magician Produces Home

Whoever said "you have to be a magician to get a place to live in Madison these days" knew what he was talking about.

Arthur Brush, a former professional magician in New York, arrived in Madison Sunday, Jan. 20, with his wife and almost immediately rented a six-room house on Euclid Avenue. This at a time when scores of couples were apartment-hunting.

Brush came to Madison to enter the University of Wisconsin. His wife is the former Grace Peterson, '44.

sought and received constructive suggestions and he desires to adjust his plan to meet the best interests of the entire University community.

Personnel

The officers of the University of Wisconsin Foundation are: George I. Haight, chairman of the board; Howard I. Potter, president; William J. Hagenah, executive director; William S. Kies, vice-president; Harry A. Bullis, vice-president; George B. Luhman, vice-president and treasurer; Ray M. Stroud, secretary; and Basil I. Peterson, administrative secretary.

The directors include: John Berge, Madison; Harry A. Bullis, Minneapolis, Minn.; M. J. Cleary, Milwaukee; Herman L. Ekern, Madison; Howard T. Greene, Geneseo Depot; William J. Hagenah, Glencoe, Ill.; George I. Haight, Chicago, Ill.; William D. Hoard, Jr., Fort Atkinson; Walter J. Hodgkins, Ashland; A. J. Horlick, Racine; William S. Kies, New York, N. Y.; George B. Luhman, Milwaukee; Howard I. Potter, Chicago, Ill.; Oscar Rennebohm, Madison; Glen V. Rork, Eau Claire; F. J. Sensenbrenner, Neenah; Ray M. Stroud, Madison; Reuben N. Trane, La Crosse; Robert A. Uihlein, Milwaukee; and Clayton F. Van Pelt, Fond du Lac.

The Campus Planning Commission, created by the Board of Regents, has a responsibility which requires broad vision and long range conceptions of the University's future.

The varied membership of the Campus Planning Commission reveals the wide spirit of cooperation which has permeated the State University's present campus improvement-enlargement program. Edwin B. Fred is chairman of the Commission, and serving with him as officers are Ira L. Baldwin, dean of the College of Agriculture, as vice-chairman; M. E. McCaffrey, secretary of the Board of Regents, as recording secretary; and James G. Woodburn, professor of hydraulic engineering, as executive secretary.

Other members of the Commission are Regents John D. Jones, Jr., W. J. Campbell, and Walter J. Hodgkins; Deans C. J. Anderson, F. Ellis Johnson, F. H. Elwell, M. H. Ingraham, W. S. Middleton, O. S. Rundell, and J. H. Herriett; L. H. Adolphson, director of the Extension Division; C. A. Halbert, state engineer; Roger C. Kirchhoff, state architect; M. W. Torkelsson, State Planning Board; A. F. Gallistel, superintendent of buildings and grounds; A. W. Peterson, director of business and finance; Don Halverson, associate director of business and finance; S. Lee Burns, director of residence halls; Frank O. Holt, director of public service; alumni George I. Haight, Chicago, and Leon Smith, Madison; and Professors L. F. Graber, of the department of agronomy, A. L. Masley, of the department of physical education, Ricardo Quintana, of the department of English, L. F. Rader, of the department of civil engineering, M. O. Withey, of the department of mechanics, and Miss Frances Zuill, director of home economics.

Bietila Wins Ski Meet Snow, Cold Bless Winter Carnival

Walter Bietila, '39, former U. W. baseball and ski star, came back to the campus last month to win the Class A title in the annual ski meet held Sunday, Jan. 27, at Muir Knoll slide. The meet was sponsored by the Wisconsin Hoofers as the feature event of the 1946 Winter Carnival.

Plaid shirts and ski sweaters were legion on the Hill during Carnival week, which this year was blessed with snow and cold weather. Paul Bunyan sculpturing dotted Langdon Street lawns. The ice cabaret was revived on the lower campus rink for the first time since pre-war days, and the regular Snow Ball attracted crowds to Great Hall on Saturday night, Jan. 26.

Wisconsin Men Head All Four Federal Panels

WITH THE APPOINTMENT of Prof. Edwin E. Witte (above) as chairman of the meat fact-finding panel, all four of the federal fact-finding boards are now headed by Wisconsin men. Prof. Witte is on leave from the University of Wisconsin economics department. Chairman of the farm equipment industry panel is Philip Marshall '42, Milwaukee attorney, who has attended the University periodically since 1927. The fact-finding board seeking to settle the General Motors strike is headed by Lloyd Garrison, one-time dean of the University of Wisconsin law school. Nathan Feinsinger, who chairmans the panel seeking to settle the dispute in steel, is a law professor at Wisconsin.

U. W. Scientist Named One of 10 Outstanding Young Men in U. S.

DR. VAN R. POTTER, whose work in the biochemistry of cancer at the University of Wisconsin is widely known, has been selected as one of the 10 outstanding young men in America by the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce. The 10 young men were selected for unusual accomplishment in their fields and their contribution to the national welfare.

An associate professor of cancer research at the University of Wisconsin medical school, 34-year-old Dr. Potter received his master of science degree at Wisconsin in 1936, and his doctorate in biochemistry and medical physiology in 1938. During the following year he was elected to a fellowship in the National Research Council and studied at the University of Stockholm, and in 1939-40 was a Rockefeller Traveling Fellow at the University of Sheffield and the University of Chicago.

Dr. Potter's interest in the study of medicine is the outgrowth of work done while attending high school at Pierpont, South Dakota, and in the opinion of Dr. Walter J. Meek, assistant dean of the Medical School, he is "one of the outstanding men who have received their education at the University of Wisconsin. His chief contribution is the application of his knowledge of enzymatic processes to the practical problems of human disease.

"He has incurred a great deal of interest through his work—the majority of people, of course want to study disease and find how to treat it successfully, but the numbers who want to understand, and are capable of working out the fundamental mechanisms of disease, are relatively few.

"In the opinion of his colleagues," Meek continued, "Potter does, without question, belong to the ranks of these men."

Sophomore Coed Is Queen Little International Set for February 23

In a close election which was not decided until the last 10 ballots were in, Joyce Tenpas, sophomore from Vesper, has been elected queen of the Little International Livestock Show to be held in the Stock Pavilion on February 23.

The first sophomore queen in history, Miss Tenpas will be crowned at the annual show, which will include the regular competitive showing of farm livestock at halter, a horsemanship riding contest for children under 12, and an all-University equitation.

Chairman of the 1946 Little International, the 27th to be held on the Wisconsin campus, is Bradford Scott, Grant County senior in the College of Agriculture.

Concerts, Plays Fill Union Theater Bill

The Wisconsin Union theater continues next month with its record-making 1946 year which began with a full week's presentation of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "O, Mistress Mine", two concerts by Paul Robeson and the Trapp Family Singers, and a recital by Paul Draper and Larry Adler.

For March the following concert, stage, and dance events will be held in the theater:

March 2—Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Dimitri Mitropoulos, conductor; sponsored by the Union concert committee.

March 6, 7, 8, 9—Wisconsin Players production of two plays by G. B. Shaw: "Androcles and the Lion" and "Man of Destiny".

March 12, 13—Martha Graham and Dance Company; sponsored by Union theater committee.

March 15, 16—Rudolf Serkin, pianist; closing concert of Union's 26th annual concert series.

March 20, 21, 22, 23—Wisconsin Players production of Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer".

Prof. Weaver Honored

Prof. Andrew T. Weaver, head of the University of Wisconsin speech department, was awarded the doctor of laws degree by Carroll College, Waukesha, Wis., at the college's centennial last month. Dr. Weaver is a Carroll alumnus.

IN THE HAGENAH lower campus plan, State Street will end at Lake Street. The present Historical Library (6) and Memorial Union (7) are retained. A long sweep of mall will extend south from Lake Mendota to a 5000-seat Auditorium (4). To the east will be the University Library (2) for which funds have already been appropriated, and a proposed Center for Continuation Study (1). Near University Avenue are the sites of projected special-purpose buildings (3) and (5).

By WILLIAM J. HAGENAH

 University of Wisconsin Foundation

NATURE has made the University of Wisconsin campus the most beautiful in all America. Lakes, hills, valleys, and immense trees have made it so. In this midst the founding fathers began a magnificent pattern of buildings and grounds. An eminent historian, Charles Francis Adams, on his first visit to this institution many years ago said, "In truth, God made Madison the fairest site I have ever seen for the capital of a great state and its University."

However, this inspired start made nearly a century ago and proudly maintained for many years shows signs of interrupted growth. It is well known that the University, because of its limited finances, has for a long time been subjected to a severe struggle in keeping pace with the advancing standards of higher education and at the same time caring for the structural and other tangible needs of an ever-increasing student body. No important academic buildings have been erected on the cam- pus for twenty years. Many existing buildings are antiquated and greatly in need of repair. Much equipment is inadequate for present needs and some is obsolete.

Meanwhile, the city area immediately adjoining the campus has also undergone unfavorable changes. Madison is growing rapidly and its population already exceeds 75,000. Many beautiful residences and some splendid business structures have been erected, but these have been away from the University. As business has encroached from the east, the residential district in the campus area has lost its attractiveness. A marginal zone has developed near the campus wherein large new buildings are not yet justified while every effort has been made to realize the last measure of income from the old existing stores and rooming houses. Under such conditions neighborhood retrogression is inevitable and this has sadly detracted from the orderliness and charm that many years ago obtained. All this has provided an unpleasant setting for a University that has prided itself on the beauty of its location and development.

Because of the above conditions, the overall position of the University has become increasingly trying. An extensive campus enlargement and new building program is imperatively needed. There is likewise an urgent demand for much new equipment. These are all intended to serve strictly academic purposes. There are also needs for non-academic structures which are important in attaining the highest cultural standards, or necessary to broaden the capacity of the University to be of service to an ever-increasing number of interests and persons in the state. But the deficiencies accumulated over a period of twenty years cannot all be corrected in a short time. It may be assumed that the legislature will provide for those needs of the University that are of an academic nature or operational in character but it will not at this time make appropriations for special-purpose buildings or for undertakings which go beyond the usual academic needs and in support of the broader cultural aims of modern education. For the financing of the latter desirable objectives the University must look elsewhere.

The Foundation

To assist the University in this situation the University of Wisconsin Foundation was formed. It is the result of the combined efforts of certain of the regents, members of the faculty, and many alumni and friends of the institution. Its purpose is to solicit and receive gifts and bequests for the benefit of the University. The funds so raised will be applied in the non-academic and non-operational fields wherever most needed. There will be no taking over of any part of the taxpayer's duty and no overlapping of the work of the legislature. The Foundation will work in close cooperation with the University authorities.

Every donor, whether his gift be large or small, may direct the specific purpose for which his contribution is to be used, or the allocation of funds may be left to the judgment of the Foundation. This organization has no fixed program to the exclusion of everything else. It welcomes suggestions from every party and all such will be carefully considered and passed on by its officers and directors. It will, however, endeavor, and especially so at this time, to bring about first things first. It is to be a permanently functioning body and its officers hope to be of service to the University for a long period of time.

The most pressing problem before the University at this time is the enlargement of the campus to make room for a number of major buildings. This is a big problem and it calls for bigness in planning and boldness in execution. It has long been felt that the University must definitely expand east of Park Street and south of University Avenue. It is, however, of the greatest importance that it proceed according to carefully prepared plans which look far into the future wherein the buildings for each of the expanding colleges are kept in properly arranged groups and all placed wherever possible in an artistic arrangement. The spaciousness of the campus must be preserved and its natural beauty enhanced with symmetry and the dignity and beauty of rich architectural design.

The New Lower Campus

With these facts in mind the Foundation has urged the University to acquire, as an immediate expansion of the lower campus, the entire area bounded by Park Street, Lake Mendota, Lake Street and West Johnson Street. It should secure the vacation of all streets within this area (except University Avenue, which is a through street) and constitute them University drives where not used for building sites or embodied in park areas. A strip should be taken from the acquired land and added to the west side of Lake Street to give it the same width, so far as it borders University land, as the present width of University Avenue. Down the middle of the above defined area, and constituting the dominant landscaping, should be a wide expanse of lawn, or mall, comparable to the upper campus that stretches eastward from Bascom Hall. This new mall would extend down the axis of the present Murray Street, from an impressive new building facing University Avenue on the south to Lake Mendota, where the Y. M. C. A. building now stands. University buildings of a size and architectural standard suitable for this new campus should face the mall, both on the east between the greatly widened Lake Street and the mall and on the west between Park Street and the mall.

The east-west axis of this development should be the vacated State Street, between Park Street and Lake Street, pointing down State Street to the Capitol at the opposite end. It may be assumed that State Street, throughout its length, will ultimately be as greatly improved as its prominence in the future of Madison so clearly demands. State Street would then terminate at Lake Street, which point would mark the "front door", or gateway, to the University campus. Thus the new development would present at the University two magnificent malls, each flanked by stately buildings, the one extending from the entrance gate on Lake Street to Park Street and there merging into the upper campus that terminates at Bascom Hall, and the other intersecting it from north to south, along the line of Murray Street. The opportunities here afforded for architectural beauty and landscaping are extraordinary.

THE LOWER CAMPUS now contains many old and outmoded structures. The Armory (8) is picturesque but outdated. Areas (9), (10), and (11) are full of frame rooming houses and small stores. Under the new lower campus plan being sponsored by the University of Wisconsin Foundation, these eyesores will be replaced by a mall flanked by special-purpose buildings. The Memorial Union (7) and the Historical Library (6) fit into the pattern of the new proposal.

Through the cooperation of the state engineer and architect a block model has been prepared of the above area as it will be when reconstructed, showing the location of the University buildings already built in this area, the new buildings contemplated for this area, and some indication of the landscaping of the mall (see photograph on page 10). This plan has had the benefit of many helpful suggestions from members of the faculty and the operating staff, and has received the approval, in principle, of the University Campus Planning Commission. The Board of Regents has also approved it in principle. The plan therefore represents in its present form the combined efforts of a great many who have the best interests of the University at heart.

Union, Historical Library

Many alumni will observe that the pattern for this development was largely determined by the University buildings already in the area. The Memorial Union of Italian Renaissance architecture and the ionic-columned Historical Library seemed destined to mark the beginning of this plan. The new University Library, for the first unit of which the last legislature appropriated nearly $2,000,000, is to be erected just across the mall from the Historical Library in the area bounded by Langdon, Lake and State Streets. The University already owns much of the block bounded by Murray, State and Park Streets and University Avenue, in which are located the small Administration Building, the Library School, and the School of Music Annex. These latter buildings are old former residences and fraternity houses and are greatly overcrowded. The old red brick Gymnasium on Langdon Street is reaching the end of its usefulness. The same is true of the Y. M. C. A. Building, for the relocation of which provision is now being made.

The University has no holdings in the area south of University Avenue nor in the block bounded by University or the University d the Lower Campus Plan

Avenue and Lake, State, and Murray Streets. In the latter block are three church properties, several stores and a number of residences not in very good condition. The churches are attractive structures and exercise a most important influence on student life. While all these properties should be acquired as soon as practicable, the churches need not be disturbed for at least five years and perhaps much longer, for it is reasonable to expect that this entire program cannot be carried out in less than eight or 10 years. Many new buildings can be erected in this area before the land occupied by these edifices is required. These churches represent important holdings and their values must be recognized. Their congregations should be assisted in securing new locations, perhaps on Lake Street or farther west, where their influence on University life will not be diminished.

Many beautiful buildings will in time be erected in this extended campus area. A number of these will no doubt be of the College of Letters and Science. Perhaps a new Law Building will be erected there. Mention has also been made of a fine Administration Building. With the design of any such buildings and the related space allotments, the Foundation will have no part because these are strictly academic matters. It will however, as its first objective, concern itself in seeking to obtain for the University several special-purpose buildings which are greatly needed and for which, it is believed, legislative funds will not be available for a long time. The Foundation has many other objectives, covering a wide range of needs. These will all be stressed in due time to be of the most help to the University. But the immediate aim of the Foundation will be the acquisition through gifts and bequests, and the location in the new Campus area, of three special-purpose buildings. These are, a Center for Continuation Study, an Auditorium, and an Art Building with Museum of History and Science.

Memorial Building

At some future date the Foundation will also assist in securing for the University a Memorial Building to give appropriate recognition to Wisconsin men and women and faculty members who have served their country faithfully, fought bravely, and died gloriously. This Memorial need not be reserved only for those who made the supreme sacrifice in war, but may also give recognition to those who gained distinction in public and private life, and to members of the faculty who have particularly endeared themselves to the student body, so that the services of all of these may be recorded for the information and inspiration of future generations.

The Foundation also believes that there should be on the campus a non-sectarian chapel of modest size, perhaps in connection with the Memorial Building, where class and other memorial services may be held, and to provide a proper place for mental rest and meditation by students.

That a truly great university requires some memorial and also a chapel is almost universally accepted. But what form the Wisconsin Memorial should take, and when it should be provided, have not as yet been determined, and indeed will not be determined by the Foundation or by any other interest or group alone. The voices of the returning servicemen will be eloquent on this subject; also those of the student body, alumni, faculty, and Regents.

This subject deserves and will receive much study before final action is taken. Therefore for the present, the Foundation will concentrate its efforts on the three special-purpose buildings above referred to and briefly described below.

Center for Continuation Study

The University of Wisconsin has for approximately fifty years maintained a series of "short courses" for farmers and dairymen. The broad public benefits reaped therefrom are a matter of

THE MEMORIAL UNION becomes an integral part of the new lower campus plan. Center of community life at the University, the Union is now serving more people than ever before in its history.

WILLIAM J. HAGENAH, '03, executive director of the University of Wisconsin Foundation and author of the accompanying article, has virtually retired as one of the country's great public utility experts to devote his full time to the Foundation. He refuses to accept a salary. Mr. Hagenah got his start in the days of Robert M. LaFollette, Sr., on the Wisconsin Railroad Commission. He went on to become a consultant all over the world on utility questions. Here he describes his plan for a "front door" for the University.

common knowledge. The same assistance and spirit of cooperation should be extended through a Center for Continuation Study, open for instruction in labor, industry, business, and the many fields of specialized employment. Here the University could invite all branches of labor, industry, and business and also many professions to submit problems for technical, scientific, and commercial study and instruction. It could also, from time to time, announce courses on its own initiative. In this manner the University could be most helpful in solving perplexing and costly problems which constantly arise in the many complicated processes of production, personnel problems, labor relations, factory sanitation and hygiene, local government, banking, business administration, juvenile delinquency, etc.

Through a series of assembly rooms and lecture halls equipped with the necessary laboratory facilities for demonstration purposes, lantern slides, etc., and seminar space, there would be presented for study to groups from each class of labor or business those problems on which instruction is desired. Direct assistance could be given them by lectures and demonstrations from faculty specialists in mechanical, civil, electrical, and sanitary engineering, chemistry, biology, medicine, pharmacy, business administration, labor relations, and law. Such lecture courses, with carefully arranged programs to meet problems of specific industries and professions and extending over one or several weeks for each group, would provide an educational clinic where the faculty members from the various colleges and schools of the University could meet with the executives, professional men, foremen, or groups of employees selected for special training from the industries of the state. From such periodical access to the University's facilities and contacts with the faculty, business men and employes would be kept informed of everchanging business conditions and of new scientific and technical developments.

To be most helpful to those in attendance, the building designed for such center should contain ample dormitories and also dining room facilities. The Regents have indicated a willingness to make available for such building a site at the corner of Lake and Langdon Streets which is close to the University's libraries and permits of the use of certain joint facilities with the Memorial Union. In architectural design and materials of construction it will be a fitting companion building of the Union, from which it will be located directly across the mall.

Auditorium

The University celebrates its centennial in 1948-49. Committees began two years ago to draft a program for the suitable observance of this event. It may be presumed that these exercises will bring to Madison many men of great literary and scientific attainment from other universities, as well as men prominent in public life. Where will such dignitaries be received? Where will such exercises be held? The University at present has no hall in which appropriate centennial exercises may be held. The old gymnasium floor is much too small. The Stock Pavilion definitely lacks the atmosphere for the honoring of so important an event in Wisconsin history.

Now is the time to plan for the financing of an auditorium that will seat 5,000 people and of appropriate architectural design. With a magnificent pediment and row of columns facing north over the length of the new mall to Lake Mendota this building should become the key structure in the most beautiful vista on the campus. This building is urgently needed for student convocations and other large assemblies. It should be equipped with a stage large enough to accommodate great musical productions. It should have a beautiful pipe organ. Music is a powerful force in education and character building. Wisconsin does not afford its students the joy of listening to great symphonic concerts and operatic productions. The magnificent orchestras of America and this country's leading opera companies visit many university cities when touring the United States, but Wisconsin is passed by simply because there is no place in which such concerts and performances can be given.

Commencement exercises at Wisconsin should be enriched and maintained on a level consistent with the high educational honors then being conferred. An organ concert in the great hall with a master at the keys would be an outstanding event for graduates, parents, and guests at Commencement week. Or, with the building available, there might be a series of symphonic concerts under the direction of a nationally known guest conductor. Music is the highest of the fine arts; it is the universal language; it ministers to human welfare. There is great need for it at this University. The Foundation can render no greater service to the University than in seeking to bring such an Auditorium to the campus.

Art Building and Museum

The University is greatly in need of an Art Building and Museum of History and Science. At the present time the Historical Library is very crowded, housing one of the most valuable collections of historical source material in the United States and displaying only a part of the art treasures and historical objects it possesses. The University owns a valuable collection of Russian paintings, the gift of a distinguished alumnus, but has no facilities for its display. Much additional in the form of paintings, tapestries, bronzes, and glass work could be obtained if the space for exhibition were available. Also, there is a valuable collection of Indian treasures and of articles of wearing apparel, weapons, furniture, and implements of the pioneers, etc., which supplement the historical records.

HOME OF THE State Historical Society and the present University Library, the Historical Library Building will continue to stand on the west flank of the new lower campus. University library facilities will be moved, however, to a new Memorial Library about to be built directly opposite.

Referring to this great storehouse of historical records and objects, one of America's leading historians stated as follows: "One phase of American history, and that perhaps the most important, the expansion of the American people, the extension of American civilization from the Atlantic seaboard across the Mississippi Valley and on toward the farthest west, the building up of this great republic, can be thoroughly and satisfactorily pursued only in Madison."

At this time, when the University's basic needs are so pressing, it is too much to expect the legislature to provide it with an art gallery and museum of history and science that will supplement the magnificent Historical Library. Perhaps the Foundation may some day succeed in interesting some man or family group in making a gift to the University of this much needed Art Building and Museum, thereby winning the gratitude of untold generations of students and placing his name in honored memory.

These three special-purpose buildings will increase the capacity of the University to be of service to the people of Wisconsin and will add breadth to the education it holds out to its students. The Center for Continuation Study will be the means by which the University can as generously help business, the professions, and employes as it has for so many years aided agriculture. It will serve to bring the University and all interests of the state into closer cooperation and understanding. The Auditorium will provide the University with a suitable place where student convocations can be held, addresses by distinguished visitors heard, great public exercises conducted, and music and dramatic art presented in the highest form for education and entertainment. The Art Building and Museum will give a broader expression to the University and even to the entire country of the wealth of historical source

9¢ to $40,000

HOW THE TREASURER of the Jefferson County (Wis.) Humane Society jumped the society's assets from 9 cents to almost $40,000 in 10 years made headlines in the state press last month.

The treasurer is Charles B. Rogers, '93, president of the Wisconsin Alumni Association from 1915 to 1917 and present president of the Half-Century Club. Mr. Rogers started with the 9 cents in 1935. Recently he heard from a lawyer with a client who wanted to leave a small legacy to the society. The lawyer asked for details.

"I wrote a somewhat enthusiastic letter," Mr. Rogers says.

The answer came in the form of a number of shares of stock, valued now at almost $40,000.

Minneapolis Alumnae Club Seeks Many New Members

A drive for new members is now being staged by the Wisconsin Alumnae Club of Minneapolis.

"We are getting ready to back the building program of the University," says Mrs. Ralph M. Bohn, '16, secretary.

Wisconsin alumnae in Minneapolis who are not affiliated with the club are asked to contact Mrs. Bohn at 5157 Queen Avenue South.

Other officers of the Minneapolis group now include Alice Oiseth, '29, president; Mrs. Charles Templeton, '99, vice president; Edith Perren, ex '42, treasurer; and Mrs. H. H. Ratcliff, '24, Mrs. R. W. Bentzen, '23, Mrs. Leland Forman, '17, Mrs. C. T. Murphy, '07, and Mrs. F. E. Jacobs, '19, board of directors.

material it controls and the University's and the State's contributions to social, economic, and scientific advancement.

The possession of these buildings and the benefits they will bring will place the University of Wisconsin in the forefront of the world's best equipped institutions of learning and public service. Grouped in artistic arrangement along with other buildings about the new mall that will sweep from the classic-columned front of the Auditorium on University Avenue to Lake Mendota, and landscaped with trees and flowers, this campus may well become nationally known for its natural and architectural beauty and high educational and cultural standards. Such a campus plan, carried out by the cooperation of all interests, would mark an auspicious beginning of the second century of the University's history.

2416 Names Listed In New Alumni Directory Of Journalism School

Some 2,416 names are listed in the fourth edition of the Alumni Directory of the school of journalism of the University of Wisconsin, which has recently been distributed. This edition, succeeding the 1942 edition, carries through the class of 1945.

Among the names included in the Directory are: 1,584 graduates who received the B. A. in journalism; 112 recipients of the M. A. in journalism; 10 who have a Ph. D. with double minor in journalism; 152 agricultural journalism graduates; 51 who earned the M. S. in agricultural journalism; 27 former and present journalism department faculty members; 32 former graduate assistants in the department; and 446 "others in journalism classes" who did not complete the degree but have made their mark in the profession.

The book notes that the year 1945-46 is the forty-first of journalism at the University of Wisconsin and gives a brief history from the establishment of the first courses in 1905. It also separately designates all members of "the pioneer classes of journalism" in 1905-06—listed then as English 19.

A complete list of the 25 books on journalism published by members of the Wisconsin journalism staff, with dates, is included in this issue of the directory.

Chicago Alumni Play Hosts to Grid Team

Members of the 1945 Wisconsin football team from the Chicago area and Coach Harry Stuhldreher and his staff were the guests of the University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago at a stag dinner in the Sherman Hotel on January 26. The dinner preceded the Wisconsin-Northwestern basketball game.

Arthur J. O'Hara, '24, president of the club, presided. Arrangements were in charge of Chris C. Zillman, Jr., '29.

James A. Riley Heads Eau Claire Alumni Club

New officers elected at a meeting of the directors of the University of Wisconsin Alumni Club of Eau Claire last month are:

James A. Riley, '41, president; Paul H. Jensen, '38, vice-president; and Eloise Arnold, '29, secretary-treasurer. The retiring officers include Dr. H. M. Stang, '16, president; S. G. Davey, '20, vice president; and Harlan Niebuhr, '31, secretary-treasurer.

An ambitious membership campaign is being undertaken by the new slate of Eau Claire officers, with new members being sought in the neighboring cities of Chippewa Falls, Menomonie, Durand, Augusta, and Rice Lake.

Kreisler Presents New Loyalty Song to Wisconsin

THE 97th birthday of the University of Wisconsin was commemorated February 5 at a Founders' Day banquet and broadcast in the Memorial Union.

AS A FEATURE of the Founders' Day radio broadcast, "Valiants of Wisconsin," a loyalty song written by Fritz Kreisler, famed violinist and composer, especially for the University, was premiered over a state-wide network. Maxon F. Judell, Hollywood film executive and a 1917 graduate of the University, wrote the words for the song and the band arrangement was completed by Paul Marquardt, Hollywood arranger. The new piece was presented by the University Concert Band, directed by Prof. Ray Dvorak.

PRES. E. B. FRED was the main speaker on the broadcast, telling how Wisconsin has revamped its physical plant and its courses to accommodate the more than 4000 student veterans. He was preceded by Guy Sundt, '22, assistant football coach and vice president of the Wisconsin Alumni Association; and James Melli, '46, president of the senior class and president of the University Veterans of World War II.

IN A DIRECT pickup from Randall Park, Clifford Hicks, mayor of the University's trailer colony for married veterans, described life in the emergency housing project to the state-wide audience. Hicks, a junior from Milwaukee, fought in Italy and France as a lieutenant in the combat engineers, was captured by the Germans and liberated by the Russians.

He introduced Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Warzeka and their 18-month-old son, Randy, trailer camp residents who were pictured in a recent issue of Life Magazine.

"We like it here," the Warzekas said. "We wouldn't move even if we could find an apartment."

PLANS FOR THE University of Wisconsin's Centennial in 1948-49 were outlined by Prof. William H. Kiekhofer of the University economics department at the annual Founders' Day dinner which preceded the radio program. Prof. Kiekhofer is chairman of the University Centennial Committee.

Vernon Carstensen, research associate in history, followed Prof. Kiekhofer with a description of the highlights of the U. W. history being compiled by Prof. Merle Curti of the history department.

C. V. HIBBARD, '00, president of the Madison Alumni Club, was in charge of the dinner. John Berge, '22, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Alumni Association, handled the radio program, assisted by William Harley, '35, and Gerry Bartel, '37, of station WHA.

A FOUNDERS' DAY MESSAGE

THREE dates in the history of the University of Wisconsin are particularly significant: 1849, 1949, and 1946.

On February 5, 1849, a teacher by the now-celebrated name of John W. Sterling called to order a class of 20 students in a little rented brick building in Madison. That was the beginning of Wisconsin's State University. "Great oaks from little acorns grow," and our University is now an envied leader in world-wide educational circles.

One hundred years later, in 1949, the University will celebrate its Centennial. Thousands of students will go to classes in an educational plant made up of 10 colleges and schools, housed in more than 100 buildings, under the supervision of a world-famous faculty and with our great president, E. B. Fred, at the helm.

Today, Founders' Day, 1946, affords an opportunity for every Wisconsin alumnus to analyze and appraise the great progress of past years and the unlimited development of broader horizons in the future.

last shot was fired, the great men of our Alma Mater turned quickly to their peace-time pursuits and experiments which had not been neglected, and both you and I are going to be mighty proud as this work is released to the public for its intended purposes.

The campus is rapidly assuming the character that is such a strong memory in all of our minds. The sacred traditions are again becoming a part of University life. President Fred, an acknowledged leader in research, is carefully selecting new men for many strategic departments. Our depleted faculty performed heroic tasks during the war. Now with new blood, great progress in research and curricula is a definite planned step. The state of Wisconsin is doing its part by providing more money for new buildings and University needs than has ever been appropriated in the history of the state. It is a new day at Wisconsin, yet the future will carry with it the traditions and integrity we all hold so highly.

During the next few years, Wisconsin is going to shape great events for its own future and the future of America. Your Wisconsin Alumni Association is both happy and honored in having the confidence of University executives so that we can do our part in developing the path of the future. A strong alumni body is a great asset and your Association plans to shoulder every task that will be of benefit. Your support as an individual is essential because the influence of a widely-spread, variously-occupied alumni body is fundamental.

Let us resolve on this, the 97th anniversary of our Alma Mater, that the Wisconsin of the future will carry along in its development ideals that are well founded, constructive, and in keeping with a great educational institution. The task is mammoth, yet the accomplishments of the past furnish a responsibility for the future that we cannot ignore.

Foundation Will Build New Lab

Famous Steenbock Vitamin D Patent Dedicated to Public

By the University News Bureau

DEDICATION to the public of the widely known Steenbock patents relating to the production of Vitamin D by irradiation with ultra-violet light was announced last month by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation at the University of Wisconsin.

George I. Haight, Chicago, prominent Wisconsin alumnus and president of the Foundation, revealed that all litigation on the Steenbock patents, including suits in California and Illinois, has been terminated.

At the same time, Dr. Edwin B. Fred, president of the State University, reviewed the 20-year record of the Foundation in serving the University by supplying substantial funds for scientific research. He asserted that the state University "is thankful for the good work of the Foundation in many fields."

Long Litigation

In dedicating the Steenbock patents to the public, the Foundation was motivated by several considerations, Mr. Haight explained. Litigation on the Steenbock patents has been long continued and expensive. After a decision upholding the patents in California District Court, on appeal this decision was reversed by the United States Court of

Distinguished Negro Philosopher Teaches Here This Semester

DR. ALAIN L. LOCKE, distinguished American philosopher and Negro educator, is serving as visiting professor of philosophy at the University of Wisconsin during the second semester.

Prof. Locke teaches a course on "The Philosophy of the Arts" and a seminar on "Value," as well as conducts one of the regular philosophy department logic courses. He is the first Negro to serve as a full professor on the Wisconsin faculty. His courses have attracted unusually large enrollments.

PROMINENT PATENT attorney in Chicago, George I. Haight, '99, is president of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, which has just obtained a consent decree in its federal vitamin D case.

Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. That court first wrote an opinion adverse to the patents. It later withdrew that opinion and then wrote a new opinion, also adverse to the patents although on quite different grounds. The Supreme Court of the United States in October, 1945, finally refused to review this ruling.

In litigation in Chicago, the government, in 1944, sought to intervene as a party in order to present charges of anti-trust law violation, he continued. The Foundation welcomed the opportunity to have these charges thoroughly investigated and was quite prepared to meet any legal criticisms leveled against it in the handling of the Steenbock patents. The Foundation not only did not oppose government intervention in the suit but aided it in becoming a party. The main Steenbock patent expired on August 13, 1945. Certain foreign patents had previously expired. There remained living only some quite specific patents in this country and the Canadian patents.

No Effect on Price

"Dedication of the patents and termination of the litigation does not carry with it any admission of any wrong doing by the Foundation or its licensees," Mr. Haight declared. "These issues have not been adjudicated by the court. The litigation, with the government a party, would have been protracted and costly.

"The Foundation's Trustees, whose aim is to aid the University of Wisconsin in its research program in the field of the natural sciences, concluded that the tens of thousands of dollars in expense that the litigation would involve would be better employed if given to the University for scientific research," Mr. Haight asserted.

Foundation Continues

"Dedication of the Steenbock patents does not mean discontinuance of the Foundation's operations," Mr. Haight said. "It is handling, and will continue to handle as heretofore, several other inventions which are producing substantial income for the University of Wisconsin. It is anticipated that in the future other important inventions will be assigned to and developed by it."

In pursuit of its undertakings the Foundation has acquired a site in Madison upon which it is planning to erect at least two buildings, one a modern and well equipped laboratory for continuance of the Foundation's control work in the testing of vitamin D and other products and for research in new fields. It is expected that it will continue to serve the University for many years to come, Mr. Haight declared.

BADGER FIVE SINKS INTO LOOP CELLAR

As of February 1, Wisconsin's basketball team had set a new record, but not the kind Wisconsin cagers are used to making. When the Badgers dropped a 59-46 decision to Purdue on January 28, it was their 10th straight defeat and the sixth in league competition.

This from a university which in 40 years of Big Ten play has won 12 championships, more than any other conference school except Purdue.

It was during the 1932-33 season under Dr. Walter E. Meanwell that Wisconsin went into a mid-season slump and lost eight straight games. Now an unlucky 13 years later, sad history is repeating itself. However, if Wisconsin fans want solace, they may well recall what happened after the disastrous 1933 season. The 1934 Badgers took second place in the Big Ten, and the 1935 team became Coach Harold E. "Bud" Foster's first championship club.

Wisconsin now shares the Western Conference cellar with Chicago, Iowa, defending champion, is on top by a narrow margin over dark-horse Minnesota.

ALTHOUGH HIS TEAM has failed to win a game in the Big Ten, Bob Cook of the University of Wisconsin is one of the top scorers in the loop. At the between-semester lull, Cook ranked third in the individual scoring race. He had averaged 14.8 points a league game, close on the heels of Minnesota's Jim McIntyre, who led with an average of 15, and Illinois' Bob Doster, second with 14.9. In his 11 first-semester games Cook tallied 169 points.

New Research Now Possible

Native Fish Collection Returns to University

The Wagner collection of Wisconsin fishes, comprising bottled specimens of 153 native species housed for many years at the University of Michigan, has been returned to the University of Wisconsin.

The collection was made between 1905 and 1908 by George Wagner, emeritus professor of zoology, in cooperation with the Wisconsin Geological and Natural History Survey. Because of insufficient personnel to care for the collection here, it was sent to Michigan where Prof. C. Willard Greene published for the Wisconsin Conservation Department a book showing distribution of Wisconsin fishes.

The University of Wisconsin and the Conservation Department cooperated last year in the move to return the collection as a basis for new studies on the biology of Wisconsin lakes. The Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation is sponsoring its maintenance for the first year.

Additions to the collection are being made under the direction of Prof. Arthur Hasler in connection with studies of Mississippi river fishes now being made for the first time.

Because of improved roads, it is now possible to reach rivers and streams which were inaccessible when the Wagner collection was made, Hasler reports.

A large volume on Wisconsin fishes, based on the Wagner collection, will be published within a few years, the University has announced.

Seven collegiate matches make up the University of Wisconsin's 1946 boxing schedule as announced last month by Harry Stuhldreher, athletic director.

They are:

Saturday, Feb. 9—Virginia at Charlottesville.

Saturday, Feb. 16—Penn State at State College.

Friday, Feb. 22—Michigan State at Madison.

Saturday, March 2—Penn State at Madison.

Friday, March 8—Miami at Madison.

Monday, March 18—Ottumwa Naval Station at Madison.

Friday, March 22—Louisiana State at Madison.

TWO OF AMERICA'S foremost collegiate boxing coaches, John Walsh and DeWitt Portal, are working together to develop Wisconsin's boxing team.

Walsh, recently returned from armed services foreign duty as a lieutenant in the Marines, will operate as an advisory coach with Portal during the 1946 ring season. Walsh led the Badgers to national collegiate ring supremacy prior to the war. He has now returned to his Madison law office.

Portal took over as Wisconsin boxing coach last fall upon his discharge from the Navy. He was boxing coach at San Jose State College, California, before the war.

ONLY FOUR lettermen are on hand for the 1946 boxing season, but a fine-looking group of newcomers has been working out for several months, over half of them veterans.

Akio Konoshima, Holland, Mich., 127-pounder, Len Robock, Berlin, 135-pounder, and heavyweights Stan Kozuszek, Pestigo, and Carl Kulawinski, Merrill, are the familiar names on the Wisconsin card. Warren Jollymore, 1942 N. C. A. A. titleholder in the 145-pound class, will not box this year, even though he is back on the campus.

BACK ON THE CAMPUS again is Warren Jollymore, shown above with the N. C. A. A. trophy he won in 1942 as Wisconsin's 145-pound boxer. Warren, who has three credits to pick up on his BA degree in journalism, is clerking at the Memorial Union desk. He won't compete again.

Dr. H. C. Bradley Is Made an Honorary Life Member of the Wisconsin Union

DR. H. C. BRADLEY, professor of physiological chemistry and long-time supporter of the Wisconsin Memorial Union, has been made an honorary life member of the Wisconsin Union and honorary member of the governing board.

The resolution passed by the Union Council lauds Dr. Bradley's 20 years of campus service:

"Dr. H. C. Bradley was chairman of the faculty committee which, after a comprehensive study of the social needs of the Wisconsin campus, in 1925 recommended the building of the men's dormitories and effectively advanced the completion of the Union.

He was chairman of the Union Planning Committee which equipped the Union building, developed the scheme of Union government and administration, and set the initial goals and the tone of Union operation.

"He was the first faculty representative on the general Union governing board, the Council, and served continuously for 17 years, helping immeasurably to advance student welfare and giving to countless Union workers an inspiring example of generous community service.

"He was the moving spirit in the founding of the Wisconsin Hoofers, the Union outing organization, in 1931 and is still serving as faculty adviser.

"He was chairman of the Union Planning Committee which brought the theater wing of the Union into being.

"Since 1926 he has been a member of the alumni-faculty Memorial Union Building Committee which raised the funds to build the Union, and is now vice-chairman of that committee."

A New Editor for The ALUMNUS

FELLOW Badgers, meet your new editor—Clarence “Clay” Schoenfeld, '41, from Lake Mills, Wis. Clay was graduated with honors and received the Sigma Delta Chi award as the “Outstanding Wisconsin Journalism Graduate” in 1941.

During his junior year he received the Wisconsin Alumni Association Award given annually to the outstanding junior man on the campus. Clay was executive editor of the Daily Cardinal in 1940–41. Under his editorship the Cardinal earned “Pacemaker” honors as one of the six best college dailies in the country. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Eta Sigma, Sigma Delta Chi, Sigma Nu, and Iron Cross.

SCHOENFELD

Clay entered the armed forces as a private three days after his graduation and was discharged as a captain last December. He served overseas from October, 1941, to July, 1942. At the time of his discharge he was on the staff of the Military Intelligence Training Center, Camp Ritchie, Md., as publications director of the German Military Document Section, Military Intelligence Division.

OUR new editor takes over his new job with a well-established interest in Association activities. In the June, 1941, issue of the Badger Quarterly, Howard T. Greene, then president of the Wisconsin Alumni Association, wrote as follows:

“Mr. Schoenfeld, executive editor of the Daily Cardinal, and his staff have cooperated wholeheartedly with our Association. The front page of the Cardinal has always been available for Association news. The Cardinal staff also deserves credit for the fine way it has handled University news. In the many years that I have read the Cardinal, I don't recall any staff that covered University activities more effectively.”

Similar coverage of University news will continue to be a major objective as Clay takes over the editorship of the Wisconsin Alumnus. For the time being such news coverage, of course, is limited by restricted paper supplies. As these restrictions disappear, magazine improvements will be inaugurated as rapidly as possible: more pages per issue, more illustrations, new “magazine dress,” wider coverage of alumni club activities.

THE Alumnus has always been a leader among alumni publications. I'm sure Clay will make it a still better publication—a magazine that you will enjoy reading and that will be a credit to the University of Wisconsin and the Wisconsin Alumni Association. I'm sure, too, that he is just the man we have been seeking for this job. So here is your new editor, Clay Schoenfeld. I'm turning the rest of this page over to him so that he can say a few words to you about his plans. All right, Clay, take over.—JOHN BERGE.

I ACCEPT with pleasure this month the editorship of the Wisconsin Alumnus. It's good to be back. Back in mufti, back at a typewriter, back at Wisconsin.

Wisconsin is a powerful magnet. From all over the world the University is attracting an unprecedented number of students, faculty, and friends back into its field. This peculiar Wisconsin pulling power is easy to analyze. It does not lie in the physical plant; other colleges are more modern and more beautiful. It is not generated by any mumbo-jumbo publicity; other football teams are bigger and better. The Wisconsin appeal is simply the Wisconsin idea: a campus where a whole state goes to school, and where academic freedom is a daily experience.

By its very nature this Wisconsin idea is not something static. Like a magnet it must constantly be revitalized. Right now there is need for a new determination on the campus to make its boundaries those of the state and its inquiring air as exhilarating as ever.

In the task of implementing the Wisconsin idea is a role for every alumnus. Thinking Wisconsin alumni are not content merely to keep alive the “rah-rah” spirit of their college days. They are pledged to the traditional aim of the Wisconsin Alumni Association, “to promote by organized effort the best interests of the University of Wisconsin.”

The Wisconsin Alumnus is in an enviable position as the one tangible link between the University campus and alumni all over the country. As its new editor, I intend to make the magazine a lively yet stimulating monthly picture of Wisconsin, reporting its adventures, interpreting its problems, sounding its aspirations.—THE EDITOR.

Get Set for

Your University's Centennial

“THREE dates in the history of the University of Wisconsin are significant,” says Wisconsin Alumni Association President William D. Hoard, Jr., in his Founders’ Day Message: “1849, 1949, and 1946.”

1849 marked the founding of the State University.

1949 will see a red-letter Centennial celebration on the campus.

1946 is the time for building on the traditions of the past an even greater Wisconsin of the future. Your University needs the strong right arm of organized alumni support. This support is best effected through membership in the Wisconsin Alumni Association. Your influence is then combined with that of thousands of full-time Badgers working together to promote the best interests of the University of Wisconsin.

Membership also brings you these publications and services:

THE WISCONSIN ALUMNUS—a monthly magazine full of news about your University and alumni you know.

STUHLREHER’S FOOTBALL LETTERS—written personally by the Coach after each game.

THE BADGER QUARTERLY—an eight-page newspaper report of University progress.

A DIRECTORY of Association members published periodically.

TICKET preference for all home games.

PARTICIPATION in alumni activities helpful to you and your University.

THE SATISFACTION that comes from doing things for Wisconsin.

Faculty OKs New Degrees

A new study curriculum, designed to lead its students to a general bachelor of arts or a general bachelor of science degree in the College of Letters and Science at the University of Wisconsin, has been approved by the faculty and awaits Regent action.

Most important changes under the new plan are the scaling down of existing foreign language requirements and the discontinuance of the bachelor of philosophy degree.

In announcing the course changes, the faculty declared that "the supreme object of liberal education is to promote the student's understanding of himself, of the world in which he lives, and of his relations with that world."

Less Language

Under the new curriculum, for the general BA degree students can absorb the foreign language requirements by attainment exam, or by a combination of credits and exam, with the credit requirement set at 24 in one language, 28 in two, or 30 credits in three.

For the general BS degree, students will need no foreign language studies. The PhB degree will no longer be granted after students now pursuing such a course are graduated.

Wisconsin Professor Was Key Figure In Production of Synthetic Rubber

PROF. KENNETH M. WATSON, filling a Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation professorship in chemical engineering at the University of Wisconsin, was one of the key men behind America's emergency production of synthetic rubber, it has recently been revealed. Prof. Watson headed the Gulf Oil Corporation's committee which in 1941 planned and built the pioneer plant for the production of butadiene, from which synthetic rubber is made. He is shown above in his campus laboratory with a pilot plant which was used in developing improved techniques for the 100,000-ton-a-year plant in Texas.

462 Gold Stars

There are 462 gold stars on the University of Wisconsin's service flag.

To the closest relative of each student who has been killed in World War II the University is sending a memorial certificate with a personal message from Pres. Edwin B. Fred.

"Although we realize that there is nothing the University can do to comfort the families of its war dead, nevertheless we are making an attempt to let these people know how much and how deeply their loss touches us," says Pres. Fred.

Special Ag Courses

In keeping with its slogan that "the boundaries of the campus are the boundaries of the state," the Wisconsin College of Agriculture has a full schedule of special short courses during February and March.

They are:

Dairy program, for fieldmen, Feb. 22 and 23.

Pest control, Feb. 23.

Tractor maintenance, for 4H Club leaders, March 12 to 15 and March 19 to 22.

Rural electrification, March 26 to 28.

Chats With Truman

THE UNIVERSITY of Wisconsin political scientist, Prof. J. T. Salter, is still on leave of absence from the campus as historian for the Army Air Forces in Washington. D. C. Prof. Salter, who is compiling a sequel to his "Pattern of Politics," recently chatted with President Truman.

Industrial Institutes Now Being Conducted On University Campus

To enable members of supervisory and management staffs in Wisconsin industries to get specialized training, a series of short Special Industrial Institutes are now being held on the University of Wisconsin campus.

The institutes are sponsored by the school of commerce and the University Extension Division in cooperation with the Wisconsin Manufacturers' Association. Institute leaders include outstanding state and national business and industrial leaders as well as members of the University faculty.

Schedules and topics are:

January 7-11, industrial personnel testing institute; February 4-8, industrial training institute; March 4-8, institute on industrial service; April 1-5, institute on contract negotiations (tentative); April 29-May 3, cost and budgeting institute; May 27-29, institute for directors of personnel and industrial relations; June 24-26, industrial top management institute for presidents and vice-presidents of businesses.

Dr. Alexander Resigns; History Course Dropped

Dr. Edward P. Alexander has resigned as director of the State Historical Society to become director of the colonial restoration project at Williamsburg, Va.

No plans have been made to continue the course in Wisconsin history which Dr. Alexander introduced on the Hill last semester. Thirty-five students were enrolled in the course, the first ever given at the University dealing with Badger state background and personalities.

ARREST, SEARCH AND SEIZURE.
By Brooke Tibbs, '27, and Hubert E. Dax. Hammersmith-Kortmeyer Co., Milwaukee.

Law enforcement officers in Wisconsin now have an important book to guide them in making arrests, searches, and seizures that will stand up in the courts. Mr. Dax is in charge of the Milwaukee police training school; Mr. Tibbs is a Milwaukee attorney. They collaborated for many months on this volume which Milwaukee Chief of Police John Polcyn describes as "one of the most valuable books ever published in the interest of the individual law enforcement officer."

THE CANVASBACK ON A PRAIRIE MARSH. By Hans Albert Hochbaum, MA '41. American Wildlife Institute, Washington.

This work has won for its author not only the Literary Award from the American Wildlife Society for the best publication on game management in 1944 but also the Brewster Medal of the American Ornithologists' Union, considered the highest honor in ornithological circles.

Mr. Hochbaum studied under Dr. Aldo Leopold, head of the wildlife management department at the University. The book is an expansion of his master's thesis. Illustrated by the author, it deals with the nesting habits of ducks at the Delta Duck Station, Delta, Manitoba, where Mr. Hochbaum is working. Special emphasis in the book is paid to behavior patterns as they relate to management and conservation.

THE UNSUSPECTED. By Charlotte Armstrong, x'26. Coward-McCann, New York.

The nearest that Miss Armstrong ever came to stumbling over a corpse, she says, was when Broadway critics knifed her two plays in 1939 and 1941. Then with blood in her eye, she sat down and wrote four murder mysteries: "Lay On, MacDuff", "The Case of the Weird Sisters", "The Innocent Flower", and "The Unsuspected." The latter appeared as a serial in the Saturday Evening Post before being published in book form.

THE FELLOW with the wolfish gleam in his eye in the picture above is James R. Moore, Watertown, who ruled as king of the University of Wisconsin's first post-war Junior Prom in the Memorial Union February 15. Jim, who has also just been elected president of the Wisconsin Union, is looking over his queen and her court of honor. She's Paula Raulin, at the bottom of the stairs, a brown-haired, green-eyed Alpha Xi Delta from Muskegon Heights, Mich. Usually there are six coeds in the Prom court of honor, but since Miss Raulin also was chosen by Earl Carroll, Hollywood beauty expert, as one of the 1946 Badger Beauties, her court numbered only five this year. They are, from left to right, Kathleen Markward, Madison; Amanda Perry, Miami Beach, Fla.; Mary Monser, Wenona, Ill.; Barbara Weiner, Geneva, Ill.; and Mary Lou Peyla, Joliet, Ill., last year's queen. Vaughn Monroe and his orchestra, "the most talked of band in America," played in Great Hall for a capacity Prom crowd.

CHARLOTTE ARMSTRONG, x'26, whose "The Unsuspected" has just been published.

Saturday Evening Post Lands U.W.

The educational-research-public service capacities of the University of Wisconsin mark it as one of the nation's leaders, according to George Sessions Perry, noted young novelist and writer, whose article on the State University and the city of Madison appeared in the Jan. 5 issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

The function of Wisconsin's University "is not only to disseminate knowledge but through research to acquire new knowledge and to see that it finds a place in the lives of the people," Perry wrote.

"On a straight basis of scholarship," Perry said, "the University of Wisconsin can look any other institution in the eye."

Because of its "exhilarating air of academic freedom," Wisconsin has been able to achieve in economic, social, and political thought some of the most profound and far-reaching of ideas, he stated.

'Uncle Ray' Edits New Magazine For Young Folks

A brand new magazine for children is appearing this month under the editorship of Ramon Coffman, '26, Madison. Styled Uncle Ray's Magazine, it gives young readers a wealth of material in the fields of science, history, nature, travel, and adventure.

Associated with Mr. Coffman on the magazine are two other Wisconsin graduates, Mark Goldberg, '22, accountant, and Glenn Roberts, '21, attorney, both of Madison.

Mr. Coffman, better known to more than 5,000,000 newspaper readers as "Uncle Ray," is the writer of the most widely circulated children's column in the world, "Uncle Ray's Corner." In national surveys it has been judged the most valuable of all newspaper features.

Community Committees Will Serve in Awarding Rennebohm Scholarships

Details of a new plan for distributing Oscar Rennebohm University Scholarships, provided by the income from a $50,000 trust fund established in 1943 by Oscar Rennebohm, '11, lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, have been revealed in a printed brochure recently sent to the 465 high schools in the state.

The Rennebohm fund provides five $300 scholarships each year at the University of Wisconsin for "certain worthy students," the brochure explains. Five trustees will select the scholarship winners from high school graduates recommended by local committees in each community of the state.

Any senior graduate from an accredited Wisconsin high school, whose parents are residents of the state, is eligible for one of the Rennebohm scholarships. The student will be judged as to his financial need, scholarship standing, personality, and character.

High school superintendents will appoint the local committees. Their recommendations will be considered by the Rennebohm fund trustees: John Guy Fowlkes, dean of the Summer Session; Frank O. Holt, director of public service; C. J. Anderson, dean of the school of education; Arthur H. Uhl, director of the pharmacy school; and Franklin Van Sant, '22, Madison insurance man.

Lorean M. Wiltrout Memorial Fund

A MEMORIAL FUND to encourage the growth of student cooperatives at the University of Wisconsin is being set up by Lorean M. Wiltrout's friends and classmates, Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, '40, has announced.

Miss Wiltrout, a 1938 graduate of the University, died Oct. 19, 1945, at her home in Chippewa Falls, Wis., after being hospitalized for nearly two years with the rare and incurable Hodgkin's Disease. She had been working for the U. S. Public Health Service in Washington, D. C.

The Wiltrout Fund is being raised "as a memorial which would somehow embody the essence of what made Lorean's presence such a source of pleasure to all of us," Dr. Gottlieb says. Contributions will finance short-term loans to student coops. Checks are to be made payable to the Lorean M. Wiltrout Memorial Fund and addressed to Dr. Gottlieb at 8516 Greenwood Avenue, Takoma Park 12, Md.

"Join the Army and See the World"

SOME SORT OF mileage record for an infantryman was chalked up during the war by Francis M. Eulberg, ex '32, Portage, Wis., who served as a WOJG in both theaters. Eulberg shipped out in 1942 to Australia, moved up to New Guinea, back to Australia, up to New Guinea again, and then was rotated to the States. Here he caught the 386th infantry regiment on its way to Europe, fought in France, Belgium, Holland, and Germany, wound up in Czechoslovakia on VE day.

But that wasn't all for Mr. Eulberg. He was redeployed through North Carolina and Seattle to the Pacific again. The end of the war found him north of Tokyo.

"In between these journeys," Eulberg writes, "were many, many miles by jeep, truck, train, plane, and ship too numerous to mention!"

U. W. Finds Cure For Mystery Sheep Ailment

A mysterious disease of sheep, which has raised havoc with hundreds of flocks in the northern two-thirds of Wisconsin, apparently can be cured by feeding a small amount of a mineral named cobalt, research workers at the University of Wisconsin have found.

Sheep afflicted with the disease lose their appetites, become thin and anemic, and often die, University officials said. Lamb losses have run as high as 20 to 50 per cent or more, and some farmers have had their flocks decimated by the loss of ewes.

Last spring the university set up a research project to study the matter, with A. L. Pope, Paul Phillips, Gus Bohstedt, C. A. Herrick, James Lacey, and Burl Winchester on the committee. A controlled feeding experiment here with sheep and feed brought down from Shawano county indicated cobalt alone can cure the disease.

Atom Engineer Cited

COL. FRANKLIN T. MATTHIAS, '31, one of the key officers in the army's "Manhattan Engineer District" atomic bomb project, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his "superior organizing ability, mature judgment, initiative, and untiring effort." Col. Matthias, winner of the Kenneth Sterling Day Award while on the Wisconsin campus, selected the site for the Hanford, Wash., Engineer Works, supervised the construction of the 382 million dollar plant, and controlled a nearby workers' village.

Greets Prep Stars

WHEN THE 33 members of the All-State High School Football Squad were entertained at a luncheon in Madison last month, John Guy Fowlkes (above), professor of education and dean of the Summer Session, represented the University. Also on the program as speakers were Lt. Gov. Oscar Rennebohm, '11, and Don Anderson, '25, publisher of the Wisconsin State Journal.
