Gypsy Trail

A free life and a gay life and along the trail for mine

On highway twelve, sixteen, eight or a hundred sixty-nine.

A tent so big and a blanket warm, a frying pan, a stove,

A jack, a wrench, some gas and oil and now I'm ready to rove.

It's over the hills and far away leaving my cares behind;

With a "Howdy here" and a "Hello there" and no one seems to mind.

A little brook by the side of the road, a rod and a reel of line;

A catch; a dash to the frying pan and a dish for a king is mine.

At night a camp and a fire to warm, a fellowship full and free.

When morning comes, up and away with a speed that appeals to me.

And so with my trusty, rusty car my courage will never fail.

I'll pack my bag for a long, long trip and follow the "gipsy trail."

—Mae Kent Harland.

Local Police Arrest Man Wanted in Kansas City

J. E. Fullhart of Kansas City, Mo., has been sought by the police of that city for six months. Now, through the efforts of the Appleton police department, he has been found and Chief George T. Prim is awaiting instructions from Kansas City as to what the authorities there want him to do with the man. Fullhart was taken into custody early this morning for driving a car with a last year's Missouri license. When questioned by the local officers he was unable to produce any evidence or indication of any sort that he even owned the car. A telegram was immediately dispatched to Kansas City and the reply came back that Fullhart was on the police "waiting list" down there and had been for some time.

Fair Grounds Could Serve as Public Market and Municipal Parking Ground

Improvement of the stock fair grounds on N. Walnut street so that it can be made available for a farmers' public produce market would not only mean the opening up of a large market for fresh vegetables, but it would at the same time bring about other advantages which not many of the citizens of Appleton have ever considered. Chief among these would be free parking space for several hundred cars. This plan of providing the business section with adequate parking space was suggested by Mayor John Goodland.

The problem of sufficient parking space has been a serious one in Appleton for several years. Numerous suggestions have been made for acquiring more land for municipal parking. It has been suggested that the monument in Soldiers' Square be removed to Memorial drive and that cars be allowed to park in the middle of the street in this thoroughfare. But such a plan would not accommodate more than thirty or forty cars at the most and it has later developed that the scheme is impractical because when the land that now comprises Soldiers' Square was given to the city many years ago it was given with the condition that this property be used only for a soldiers' memorial. Only a few weeks ago the city fathers investigated the possibility of buying two or three lots along S. Superior street near the old city dumping grounds, to be used for municipal parking purposes. However, the owner wanted more than $10,000 for the property, and this stopped all enthusiasm for a S. Superior street parking grounds. Not more than 25 or 30 cars could have been parked at this place, even if it had been purchased and improved at some additional expense.

The city owns a large tract of land

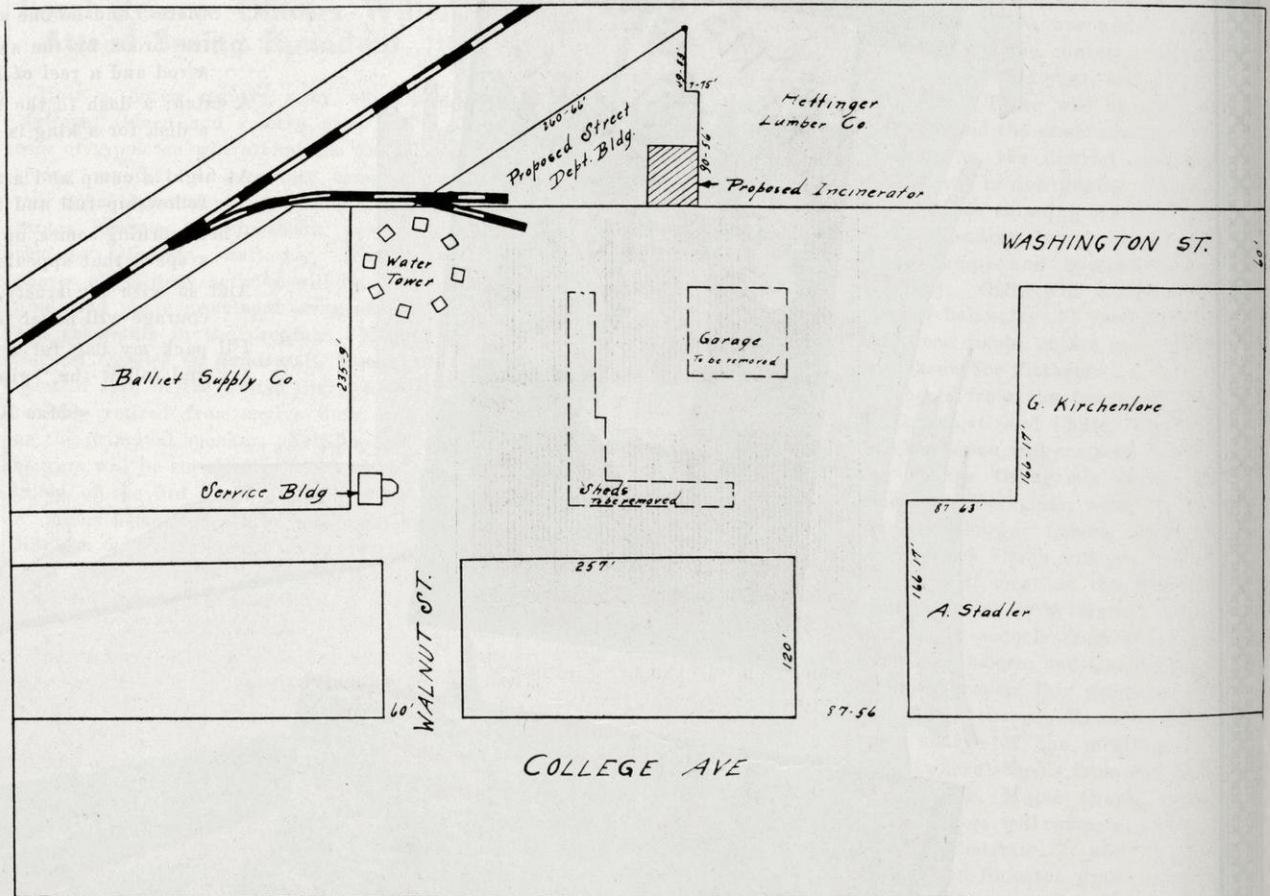

It is estimated that at least 500 cars could be parked here very conveniently.

To establish a successful city market and parking ground for cars, it would be necessary to remove the two street department buildings now on the middle of the property and to pave the entire area, Mayor Goodland pointed out. Neither task would be very expensive as the buildings can easily be torn down and a concrete pavement for this area would not cost a great amount, certainly not as much as the purchase of the S. Superior street location which would not provide accommodations for one-fourth as many cars as the fair grounds. One of the buildings which would have to be removed is a concrete block structure put up for the street department about two years ago. According to the plan shown here, drawn by the city engineer, the proposed building for the

Protest Condition of R. R. Stock Yard

Residents in the vicinity of the stock shipping yards operated by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company, between Superior and N. Division streets, have protested against the condition at the yards. The stock yards were established at the site about twenty-five or thirty years ago, and according to the city zoning ordinance, they are not properly located, but since the stock yard was established prior to the zoning ordinance, the yards could not be ordered vacated for that purpose. However, no further improvements can be permitted, which has resulted in the structure on the place deteriorating to a point where it is unsightly. The shed was struck by a freight car about a year ago, but repairs could not be made. The yard is said to be insanitary, and the cause of considerable congestion at certain times. W. E. Smith, chairman of the chamber of commerce rural relations committee, Mayor John Goodland, and Andrew R. MacDonald, chairman of the railroad commission conferred with representatives of the railroad company in regard to the situation. The site was viewed, and also another prospective site was investigated. The new site, it was said, would provide good service, was easily accessible, and would eliminate congestion. The railroad commission had no jurisdiction over the matter, Mr. MacDonald declared, but suggested that the case be laid before railroad officials.

Jacob VandenHeuvel was committed to the county jail Thursday morning by Judge Theodore Berg, when he was unable to furnish bonds in the sum of $500 for his appearance in court today on a charge of threatened assault with intent to do bodily harm, preferred by Ed. Vandenberg. The men live in Freedom. Vanden Heuvel is alleged to have grabbed a knife and threatened to kill the plaintiff.

Plan of stock fairgrounds prepared by city engineer which would provide for removal of the two street department buildings shown in center of diagram. The proposed new street department building is shown in the upper center section of the picture. The carrying out of this plan would provide a very large open space for a stock fair, public market and municipal parking grounds.

gestions have been made for acquiring more land for municipal parking. It has been suggested that the monument in Soldiers' Square be removed to Memorial drive and that cars be allowed to park in the middle of the street in this thoroughfare. But such a plan would not accommodate more than thirty or forty cars at the most and it has later developed that the scheme is impractical because when the land that now comprises Soldiers' Square was given to the city many years ago it was where the monthly stock fair or Pig day, as it is more commonly known, is held the last Saturday of every month. This space is utilized only once a month to any great extent. It has been suggested that if this large area could be fixed up for an attractive farmers' produce market it could be used for a public parking space most of the time. The produce market would be held only once a month or once a week and the remainder of the time this large area would be available for parking space.

street department would be northeast of the water tower and north of the present buildings. Removal of the two buildings now on the fair grounds would leave an ideal location for a public market.

A number of cities in Wisconsin have public markets every week or every two weeks. At these occasions hundreds of farmers from all the surrounding vicinity come to town and bring with them farm produce for sale. Goods offered consist of fresh vegetables, potatoes, honey, butter, cheese, some handiwork and home made articles. Merchants in these cities, as a rule do not object to this farmer competition once a week or once a month because the more the country people sell at the market place the more they will spend in the local stores on market days. This applies to food stores just as much as to any other kind because farmers must buy an enormous quantity of staple products such as cereals and packaged goods.

Many merchants feel that if the fair grounds could be fixed up as suggested in these articles their trade on fair days would be doubled. As the situation now stands hundreds of farmers from all over this region come to Appleton the last Saturday of each month to buy, sell, and trade pigs. That is, they come here by the hundreds if the weather is at all favorable.

If it happens to be a rainy day, as has happened many times on Pig day, the chances are that the farmer will drive over better roads getting to Appleton than he will experience when he gets to his destination, the stock fair grounds on N. Walnut street. It is a very disagreeable place on a rainy day—very wet and muddy and decidedly unpleasant to walk around in. That concrete pavement is very much needed for this area is conceded by everyone who has attended a Pig day when it happened to rain.

This Pig day and the large stock fair grounds which goes with it is one of Appleton's greatest assets, from a commercial and monetary standpoint, but it is one which has hardly been developed or appreciated at all. The farmers and traders have come here in large numbers despite the lack of interest in their welfare by people of this city. The monthly stock fair in Appleton is an event which brings buyers here from points as far distant as Springfield and Chicago in Illinois and Sault Saint Marie in Michigan. There is no other stock fair in Wisconsin to compare with it except possibly the one at Watertown.

Appleton's problem of finding a place for its hundreds of automobiles in the business district would be solved by using the stock fair grounds for parking space, at least as far as the west end of College avenue is concerned.

Labor Committee Makes Plans for Open Forum

A committee, representative of the Appleton Trades and Labor council, was appointed at the meeting Wednesday evening in the Trades and Labor hall, to study the feasibility of sponsoring an open forum for Appleton. The committee consists of Samuel Sigman, I. C. T. Mace, Edward A. Matzke, and Edward Henke. The forum plan was presented by Mr. Sigman, and embraces the entire lecture course outlined by the League for Industrial Democracy. Sponsors would finance the course, under tentative plans, and if enough of them were secured, the public would be admitted to the lectures free.

A mass meeting has been planned for June 5, at which time labor problems will be presented to the public. New impetus was given the plan for organizing.

"Grandpa" Langstadt Known to All Appleton People, Dies This Morning

Grandpa Langstadt is dead!

Appleton's oldest veteran of the Civil war and one of the oldest residents of Outagamie county, Gottfried Langstadt, passed away at his home, 211 E. Franklin street, at 7:15 Friday morning at the age of 95. Mr. Langstadt, better known as "Grandpa," was a familiar personality to everyone in the city of Appleton and was very active practically up to the time of his death. On Tuesday morning he suffered a fall at his home and did not recover from the shock of the accident. Only about two weeks ago "Grandpa" attended an entertainment given by Oney Johnston post of the American Legion for the surviving Civil war veterans of Outagamie county, Neenah and Menasha. He thoroughly enjoyed the program and was one of the last G. A. R. veterans to leave the hall.

Gottfried Langstadt was born in Westphalia, Germany, in October, 1835.

Gottfried "Grandpa" Langstadt

At the age of 25 he came to the United States and settled in La Crosse just prior to the outbreak of the Civil war. Already in love with his adopted country, he was one of the first volunteers to enlist in the Second Wisconsin cavalry. He served with this organization for the duration of the war. This regiment was included in General Sheridan's command during the long drawn out western campaigns. When peace finally came "Grandpa" was mustered out of service in Austin, Texas. He lived in Austin for a short time, but decided he liked the north better and returned to La Crosse to make his home. He lived in La Crosse until the death of his wife in 1898 and since that time has made his home here with his son, Al.

Up until a few days ago "Grandpa" was out every day, walking up and down the business streets and chatting with his many friends and acquaintances. He did the marketing for the Langstadt family almost every day and spent many of his afternoons playing cribbage at the Elks club of which he was a very active member. He was said to be the oldest active Elk in Wisconsin and probably in the United States. After such days of activity he was not content to rest at home in the evening as most men of his age or much younger would have done. "Grandpa" was an ardent movie fan and attended the theatres very regularly. He had an extensive knowledge of the many actors and actresses and liked to discuss their merits.

For many years "Grandpa" was an enthusiastic worker for the Democratic party. He was always much interested in politics and public affairs and retained this interest throughout his advanced age. The passing of "Grandpa" Langstadt leaves only four surviving members of the Grand Army of the Republic in Appleton. They are Charles Brown, Charles Gosha, Steve Meidam, and Robert Merkel.

Survivors are three sons, Albert of Appleton, Nathan of Anaconda, Mont., and Otto of Butte, Mont. One brother, Herman of La Crosse, and three grandchildren also survive. Funeral arrangements have not been completed, as the family is awaiting definite information from the two sons in Montana.

Hotel Will Build Service and Parking Station

Motoring services for the convenience of patrons of Hotel Appleton will be afforded under plans for a parking and filling station to be constructed immediately on the grounds adjacent to Hotel Walter, N. Appleton and W. Franklin Sts., formerly known as Hotel Egbert.

Under plans announced by Theodore Heid, manager of Hotel Appleton, and joint owner with Charles Greunke of Hotel Walter, the grounds in an area measuring 85x135 feet will contain thirty individual all metal garages to be erected by Treitsch Bros. Metal Manufacturing Corporation, Madison. These will open on the north side of the grounds and the alleyway leading in from Franklin St. Twelve will be occupied permanently by residents of Hotel Appleton and the remainder will be available to other patrons of the hotel.

Immediately back of the hotel building there will be erected a filling station of Mediterranean design, with the lower half brick and tile and the upper half green and white stucco. The inside will have ornamental colored plaster. There will be a "powder puff" room for the ladies and a lavatory for the men. Near this building there will be an hydraulic hoist for cars being greased and serviced. Four gasoline pumps will be placed on the grounds.

Remaining space will be set aside for the free parking of automobiles for hotel guests. The sheds used for so many years by farmers to tie their horses will be torn down next week. The grounds already have been in use and 228 cars were taken care of there last week for traveling men. An attendant will be in charge from 6 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night, and cars will be taken to and from the hotel by messengers. The latest ornamental lighting system will be placed on the grounds by the Hollaphane Co.

It is the plan of Mr. Heid and Mr. Greunke to erect a building of one or two stories shortly on Appleton street between Hotel Walter and the Kottke blacksmith shop, where a service station for tire, battery and repair work will be housed, fronting on Appleton St. and opening also onto the parking court. The hotel is to be repainted on the outside and other improvements made, including a new roof. About $5,000 will be spent on the project.

During the day periods when the parking grounds are not in demand by traveling men, parking privileges are to be extended patrons of the Geenen Dry Goods Co. under a plan soon to be announced. Mr. Heid recently completed installation of a union bus depot at Hotel Appleton and is now installing a drinking fountain there with artesian well water. The contract has been let for a canopy over the sidewalk where the busses take on and discharge passengers.

Announce Program For Business Conference

Though planned primarily for merchants, the fourth annual Business Men's Conference which will convene at Madison Monday is of equal interest to manufacturers. The central theme of the conference is "Preparing for Prosperity." The principal address of the morning session will be given by Benjamin M. Squires, Chicago, chairman of Illinois Governor's Commission on Unemployment and Relief, who will speak on Stabilizing Industrial Employment. Governor Phil La Follette will give the address of welcome and short talks will be given by Chester Lloyd Jones, director of the School of Commerce at the state university, and John R. Commons, professor of economics. There will be a luncheon at Tripp Commons, Memorial Union building, at noon. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, will preside at the afternoon session. William Nelson Taft, a speaker of national note, will address the gathering on The Merchant's Part in Insuring Prosperity. An intermission of ten minutes will be allowed at the close of the first afternoon session. Harry Jerome, chairman of the department of economics at the university, will preside at the second session. Forces Which Restore Prosperity will be discussed by David Friday, Washington, D. C., president of the Domestic and Foreign Investors' Corporation. A general discussion, with brief speeches from the floor, will conclude the program.

George Dame, chairman of the convention committee of the chamber of commerce, received a letter of appreciation from Miss Lucretia Zimmerman, chairman of the entertainment committee for the seventh annual Green Bay Association Baptist Young Peoples' convention which was held in Appleton last Saturday and Sunday. Miss Zimmerman expressed her gratitude for the co-operation, ordering of welcome flags and car tags issued to convention visitors.

COMMUNITY SERVICE WITHOUT BALLYHOO

When the booklet, "The Eleventh Year's Work," came to our desk from the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, we read it from cover to cover seeking an opportunity for praise or constructive criticism or both.

These annual reports published in detail for the last eleven years since the chamber was organized are an interesting history of community effort and accomplishment. They show conclusively the wisdom of having in our midst this institution binding up so effectively the various units of our people who are making a good city better.

There is nothing spectacular in the eleventh year of work. The report records a loyal, consistent service of an earnest board of directors, standing and special committees and the managing secretary, Kenneth H. Corbett. The chamber does not attempt to "play to the galleries." It keeps a constant check on the pulse of the community, watches closely every activity, senses those needs to advance the welfare of the city and places the proper group at work to study, recommend and serve.

Sometimes it is a matter of aggressive action, as illustrated by the post office building project. Here the acute congestion of the old post office and the prospect of unemployment led the chamber to hurdle as much of the government red tape as possible so as to speed construction of the new building. Excellent results were obtained. The chamber again functioned when the specifications stipulated a brick building. By proper contact, the bids were requested on stone as well as brick and Appleton will now have a beautiful structure of stone.

In other cases, the chamber functions largely as a research body. When the garbage disposal question was an active issue, facts concerning various systems used in other cities were collected and the information placed at the disposal of those working for the project.

The chamber is always ready to co-operate with the city government in matters of this kind so as to gain for Appleton that which will be best in the end.

At other times the chamber of commerce proves the medium of contact in the building of public sentiment for or against certain proposals. It stimulates education and discussion so the community emerges from a controversial matter well informed on all sides, thus bringing about a decision that is mature and not the snap judgment of political passion or over-stimulated enthusiasm.

In the matter of industrial development, the report shows that several prospective industries desiring new locations were investigated, but "these investigations, with one exception, disclosed that the industries were seeking undeserved financial assistance and they offered no promise of success or adding to the industrial stability of Appleton." Mention is made of the re-opening of the Atlas mill of the Kimberly-Clark Corporation, and the establishment of the Fuhremann Canning company and the Wisconsin Drawn Steel company. The chief work of the last year, the report says, has been to retain the industry Appleton already has. One industry was saved, although, through circumstances over which nobody particularly would have control, two or three were lost. The chamber of commerce would like to be spectacular to the extent of bringing one or two large industries to Appleton every year because this would overcome a criticism often expressed by the rank and file, but until the committee locates something that is not a promotion scheme, this desire will not materialize.

It is sometimes felt by those not closely in contact with the chamber of commerce that the organization is not doing much. Everything the chamber accomplishes cannot be written down in black and white or quoted in so many figures. Many of the benefits are intangible. The very existence of organized community effort is a benefit in itself. Many times the actual work done by this organization is not in evidence when the final results are achieved, because the chamber may be assisting some other body heading up a movement and the credit goes elsewhere.

One tangible value of the chamber is its facilities for giving information of many kinds. During its last fiscal year, the office received or transmitted a total of 40,000 telephone calls, besides answering questions over the counter from thousands of callers, among them large numbers of visitors and tourists seeking information about the city or travel instructions.

No doubt the most tangible form of service is that derived by the retailers of Appleton, who find they can work co-operatively through the chamber of commerce to better advantage than in any other way. A series of co-operative merchandising events is made possible each year through the retail bureau, and customer relations are greatly improved by the merchants' information bureau, through which credit and trade information is exchanged annually in large volume. Likewise, the merchants are able to lend better co-operative assistance to community enterprises through this organization than by individual compliance. The merchants bear the expense of their bureau themselves, and it is a foregone conclusion that the stimulation of retail business through joint effort benefits the city generally as well as the tradesmen themselves.

If one or two big annual events could be conceived and carried out by Appleton Chamber of Commerce, in which the entire public could share, we believe it would lend that element of "ballyhoo" which is demanded by the rank and file of the people in order to be satisfied that the organization is doing things. Just what this should be we cannot name definitely, but we believe some sort of community celebration of an amusement nature could be made an annual event which the people would look forward to and remember thankfully as something the chamber of commerce does for them.

Those who know the organization intimately appreciate its essential place in the community, its stabilizing influence, its ability to harness the civic forces to keep Appleton going ever forward. A little more "salesmanship" on those not so intimately connected with it would give the chamber an additional regard and public backing.

WISCONSIN, THE MEDIOCRE SALESMAN

Wisconsin's tourist industry is losing its standing as our greatest asset because our salesmanship is mediocre when compared to that of our recreation competitors, Minnesota and Michigan. They are furnishing an unanswered competition of so effective a nature that motorists are driving by our door and going elsewhere.

With the most to offer the vacationist, Wisconsin was conspicuously absent from the great annual outdoor exposition in Chicago recently. Michigan and Minnesota had elaborate exhibits, because each had the assistance of state funds in putting up displays adequately advertising their summer attractions. Their enterprise will attract business, because they have much to offer.

Wisconsin cannot live on its reputation alone in the face of such live competition as this. Recreation has been characterized as one of our greatest industries, but its patrons must come from other places. They cannot learn about our natural beauty, our show spots, our myriad lakes and rivers, our fishing, our good roads and our many other advantages without having the information brought to them.

Members of the Wisconsin legislature attended the Chicago exposition and we hope they were convinced of the injustice to this great industry in the denial of reasonable promotion funds. A bill is now before the legislature asking two hundred thousand dollars annually for state advertising. This money will not be an expense to the taxpayers. It will be conservatively invested to bring a hundredfold return in actual business and eventually will find its way back to the state treasury in income and property taxes.

"What for?" yelled Pete De Vargas. Yancey fixed him with a pitying gray eye. "Because, you Spanish infidel, part of a church service is taking up a collection. Southwest Davis, I appoint you to work this side of the house. Ike Bixler, you take that side. The collection, fellow citizens, ladies and gentlemen—and you, too, Pete—is for the new church organ."

"Why, h—l, Yancey, we ain't got a church!" bawled Pete again, aggrieved. "That's all right, Pete. Once we buy an organ we'll have to build a church to put it in. Stands to reason. Members of the congregation, anybody putting in less than two bits will be thrown out of the tent by me. Indians not included."

The collection was taken up, in two five-gallon sombreros, the contents of which, as they passed from one hairy sunburned paw to the next, were watched with eagle eyes by Southwest Davis and Ike Bixler, and in fact, by the entire gathering. The sombreros were then solemnly and with some hesitation brought to the roulette table pulpit for Yancey's inspection.

"Mr. Grat Gotch, being used to lightning calculations in the matter of coins, will kindly count the proceeds of the collection."

Arkansas Grat, red-faced and perspiring, elbowed his way to the pulpit and made his swift and accurate count. He muttered the result to Yancey. Yancey announced it publicly. "Fellow citizens, the sum of the first collection for the new church organ for the Osage church, whose denomination shall be nameless, is the gratifying total of one hundred and thirty-nine dollars and fifty-five cents. Heh, wait a minute, Grat! Fifty-five—did you say fifty-five cents?"

"That's right, Yancey." Yancey's eye swept his flock. "Some miserable tight-fisted skin-flint of a— But maybe it was a Ponca or an Osage, by mistake."

"How about a Cherokee, Yancey!" came a taunting voice from somewhere in the rear.

"No, not a Cherokee, Sid. Recognized your voice by the squeak. A Cherokee—as you'd know if you knew anything at all—you and Yountis and the rest of your outfit—is too smart to put anything in the contribution box of a race that has robbed him of his birthright." He did not pause for the titter that went round. He now took from the rear pocket of the flowing Prince Albert the small and worn little Bible. "Friends! We've come to the sermon. What I have to say is going to take fifteen minutes. The first five minutes are gonig to be devoted to a confession by me to you, and I didn't expect to make it when I accepted this church meeting. Walt Whitman has a line that has stuck in my memory. It is: 'I say the real and permanent grandeur of these states must be their religion.' That's what Walt says. And that's the text I intended to use for my sermon, though I know that the Bible should furnish it. And now, at the eleventh hour, I've changed my mind. It's from the Good Book, after all. I'll announce my text, and then I'll make my confession, and following that, any time left will be devoted to the sermon. Any lady or gent wishing to leave the tent will kindly do so now, before the confession, and with my full consent, or remain in his or her seat until the conclusion of the service, on pain of being publicly held up to scorn by me in the first issue of my newspaper, the Oklahoma Wigwam, due off the press next Thursday. Anyone wishing to leave the tent kindly rise now and pass as quickly as may be to the rear. Please make way for all departing—uh—worshippers."

An earthquake might have moved a worshipper from his place in that hushed and expectant gathering; certainly no lesser cataclysm of nature. Yancey waited, Bible in hand, a sweet and brilliant smile on his face. He waited quietly, holding the eyes of the throng in that stifling tent. A kind of power seemed to flow from him to them, drawing them, fixing them, entralling them. Yet in his eyes, and in the great head raised now as it so rarely was, there was that which sent a warming pang of fear through Sabra. She, too, felt his magnetic draw, but mingled with it was a dreadful terror—a stab of premonition. Twice she had seen his eyes like that.

Yancey waited yet another moment. Then he drew a long breath. "My text is from Proverbs. 'There is a lion in the way; a lion is in the streets.' Friends, there is a lion in the streets of Osage, our fair city, soon to be queen of the Great Southwest. A lion is in the streets. And I have been a liar and a coward and an avaricious knave. For I have pretended not to have knowledge which I have; and I went about asking for information of this lion—though I would change the word lion to jackal or dirty skunk if I did not feel it to be sacrilege to take liberties with Holy Writ—when already I had proof positive of his guilt—proof in writing, for which I paid, and about which I said nothing. And the reason for this deceit of mine I am ashamed to confess to you, but I shall confess it. I intended to announce to you all today that I had this knowledge, and I meant to announce to you from this pulpit—" he glanced down at the roulette table—"from this platform—that I would publish this knowledge in the columns of the Oklahoma Wigwam on Thursday, hoping thereby to gain profit and fame because of the circulation which this would gain for my paper, starting it off with a bang!" At the word "bang," uttered with much vehemence, the congregation of Osage's First Methodist, Episcopal, Lutheran, etc., church jumped noticeably and nervously. "Friends and fellow citizens, I repent of my greed and of my desire for self-advancement at the expense of this community. I no longer intend to withhold, for my own profit, the name of the jackal in a lion's skin who, by threats of sudden death, has held this town abjectly terrorized. I stand here to announce to you that the name of that skunk, that skulking fiend and soulless murderer who shot down Jack Pegler when his back was turned—that coward and poltroon—" he was gesturing with his Bible in his hand, brandishing it aloft—"was none other than—"

He dropped the Bible to the floor as if by accident, in his rage. As he stooped for it, on that instant, there was the crack of a revolver, a bullet from a six-shooter in the rear of the tent sang past the spot where his head had been, and there appeared in the white surface of the tent a tiny circle of blue that was the Oklahoma sky. But before that dot of blue appeared Yancey Cravat had raised himself halfway from the hips, had fired from the waist without, seemingly, pausing to take aim. His thumb flicked the hammer. That was all. The crack of his six-shooter was, in fact, so close on the heels of that first report that the two seemed almost simultaneous. The congregation was now on its feet, en masse, its back to the roulette table pulpit. Its eyes were on one figure; its breath suspended. That figure—a man—was seen to perform some curious antics. He looked first of all, surprised. With his left hand he had gripped one of the taut tent ropes, and now, with his hand still grasping the hempen line, his fingers slipping gently along it, as though loath to let go, he sank to the floor, sat there a moment, as if in meditation, loosed his hand's hold on the rope, turned slightly, rolled over on one side and lay there, quite still.

"Lon Yountis," finished Yancey, neatly concluding his sentence and now holding an ivory mounted six-shooter in right and left hand.

Screams. Shouts. A stampede for the door. Then the voice of Yancey Cravat. Powerful, compelling, above the roar. He sent one shot through the dome of the tent to command attention. "Stop! Stand where you are! The first person who stampedes this crowd gets a bullet. Shut that tent flap, Jesse, like I told you to this morning. Louis Heffner, remove the body and do your duty."

"Okeh, Yancey. It's self-defense and justifiable homicide."

"I know it. Louie, . . . Fellow citizens! We will forego the sermon this morning, but next Sabbath, if requested, I shall be glad to take the pulpit again, unless a suitable and ordained minister of God can be procured. The subject of my sermon for next Sabbath will be from Proverbs XXVI, 27: 'Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein' . . . This church meeting, brethren and sisters, will now be concluded with prayer." There was a little thudding, scuffling sound as a heavy burden was carried out through the tent flap into the noonday sunshine. His six-shooters still in his hands, Yancey Cravat bowed his magnificent buffalo head—but not too far—and sent the thrilling tones of his beautiful voice out into the agitated crowd before him.

" . . . bless this community, O Lord. . . ."

Knowing Our Children Better

By

Edith D. Dixon

The Glib Child

Children who develop conversational powers early are often given credit for intelligence they do not possess. Such a child was John. At an early age he could speak complete sentences, and was considered an unusual child by his parents.

He had an excellent memory, could recite poetry by the yard, tell stories in an interesting manner, and answer questions without hesitation. He made a good impression upon strangers. He entered kindergarten at 4½ years and was reported by the teacher as "a very bright child."

John did fairly well in the first grade but was considered annoying because he wanted to talk all the time. By the time the second grade was reached, it became apparent that school was not going well. John was very unhappy. The teacher said he did not seem able to concentrate. His arithmetic was poor, he was very slow in reading, and he day-dreamed most of the time. He was not a leader among the children; in fact, he did not want to play with them and preferred to talk to the teacher.

At home John was beginning to arouse criticism also. The mother felt that he was "lazy" about trying and would read only under compulsion. His father blamed him because he did not fight for his rights and "stand up" to other boys.

When John was brought into a child training clinic for an examination, it was found that he was a rather frail boy, several pounds under normal weight, and that he had a slight eye defect. It was apparent that the outstanding thing about him was his talkativeness. His associates had been confined during preschool years largely to adults. Because of this, he had learned to talk in a grown-up fashion, which gave the impression of superiority. He had not played much with children of his own age because his mother did not approve of the neighbors' children.

It was found that John had only average intelligence and that too much had been expected of him. He had been pushed along in school before he had grasped the fundamentals and had formed the habit of covering his failures by incessant chatter.

His weakness became more apparent as he progressed in school, and the disappointment of his parents over his failure caused him to resort to day-dreaming as a temporary escape from an unpleasant situation.

It was found necessary to build up John physically and to fit him with glasses. When the parents permitted him to make his own friends, when they purchased for him a tool chest, and his father taught him to play ball, John became a "regular boy." Instead of reading stories to him, they helped him to read aloud for a brief period each day. In six months his school work was on the mend.

What Shall We Have For Dinner Today?

THE GIRL GRADUATE

Frilly Frocks and Sweets for Her Garden Party

Commencement for the young girl graduate is really her debut into another world of activities and interests. So why not make this "coming out" affair of hers a garden party—if you have sufficient faith in the kindness of the elements, or if you are the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter of the wisest old weather prophet.

This year the frilled and ruffled frocks, the lovely pastel jackets and the broad brimmed droopy hats, all seem especially to belong in a garden setting.

If the party is to be quite a large one three or four small service tables may be set up; or the service may be simplified by using one long table. If your garden is blessed with a sufficient number of trees to make a woody background you may carry out the rustic idea in planning your table set-up. But if yours is one of those lovely old-fashioned flower gardens, dress your table accordingly.

But to the food! Boys always like fruit punch, and ice cream and cake with plenty of rich, thick frosting.

If you like to make your own ice creams try the mint stick kind. It is most refreshing, and easily made. Put $2\frac{1}{4}$ cups of rich creamy milk in top of double boiler. Add $\frac{3}{4}$ cup peppermint stick candy broken into small pieces and heat until the candy is dissolved. Pour over a slightly beaten egg, beating tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp. cinnamon, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. nutmeg, and add alternately with $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk to first mixture. Add $2\frac{2}{3}$ cup sliced dates and drop by spoonfuls onto well oiled baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375) about 15 minutes. This makes three dozen cookies.

Delicious Beverages

For the beverage you may use your favorite fruit punch recipe, lemonade, with any of its numerous variations, or any other fruit ade materials which may be at hand or easily obtained, remembering that all fruit drinks are improved by boiling the sugar with a little of the water to form a sirup. A thin shaving of lemon rind may be cooked with this, if desired.

Plain lemonade may be glorified in any number of ways. Some that have been tried out are adding crushed berries or other fruit, pineapple juice, ginger ale, grape fruit juice, grape juice, maraschino cherries with their sirup, fresh crushed mint, cranberry juice, or other fruit juices, a few crushed wintergreen berries, and so on ad infinitum.

The simple menu of fruit punch, ice cream, cakes and bon bons, may be elaborated with sandwiches and salads, if you like. But the suggested menu will be entirely satisfactory, if there is "plenty of everything." Then, if the weather man fails you at the last minute, you can bring the party inside, using sunroom and porches, without too much trouble. The young people will provide their own entertainment.

Back to the Nursery

If a family sometimes balks its daily ration of milk—a quart a day for everyone under fifteen and a pint a day for everyone else—in spite of all the housewife's efforts to present it pleasingly in the form of custards, omelets, cocoa, cream soups, and creamed vegetables, perhaps the simple old-fashioned English nursery dish, milk pudding, will be welcome.

To every cup of milk add a tablespoon of rice, a quarter of a teaspoon of salt, and from a half to a whole tablespoon of brown sugar. Put it in a baking dish, place in a slow oven (300° F.), and bake for two and a half to three hours, or until it is as thick as the family prefers it. It should be stirred every half hour, taking care to scrape off the brown skin at the edge of the pudding and turn it under.

The flavor of the pudding is not unlike that of condensed milk, because of the long cooking process and the resultant process of condensation in the oven. It should be served immediately after being taken out of the oven and eaten without cream.

William Warnecke, Kaukauna, was haled into court before Judge F. V. Heineman to explain why he failed to contribute to the support of his aged and destitute parents. Warnecke was charged with contempt of court when he flatly refused to contribute to his parents' support, and was committed to the county jail. Warnecke, a brother and sister were ordered to appear in court February 27, 1931 and explain their reason for not making an effort to aid their parents. They were instructed to do so, but William Warnecke failed to comply with the order.

A protest against continued operation of the Flanagan and Loughrin Pickle factory on W. College Ave., has been filed with John N. Weiland, building inspector, by eighteen property owners of the Third and Fifth wards. The protest states that the factory emits noxious odors. Under the city ordinance, operation of any plant in the commercial and light manufacturing district is prohibited if there is an offensive odor. Factory officials have been called into conference on the matter.

Men from the Fox River valley interested in the Cub Packs and Boy Scouts programs are attending a meeting at Milwaukee today, at which Dr. H. W. Hurt, New York, was to discuss the cub program. Pratt, Neenah, chairman of the American Legion post Cub committee, headed the delegation of valley men.

Lawrence college students were to choose the twenty-fifth May Queen during student convocation period this morning. Each student will vote for five senior girls, the one receiving the highest number of votes to be crowned Queen of the May Day festivity on Saturday, May 23. The four receiving the next highest number of votes will be the queen's attendants. The May Day pageant will be presented on the campus at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, May 23. Dances and other traditional events will follow the coronation.

Miss Marguerite Woodworth, dean of girls at Lawrence college, has appointed four girls to act as counsellors for freshmen at Peabody house and seventeen to serve in a similar capacity at Ormsby hall. Junior and senior women with recognized leadership qualities were chosen to live in the dormitories next year and assist freshmen girls to adjust themselves to college life. Faith Kuter, Winifred Lockard, Viola Bush, and Christine Flower were selected as counsellors at Peabody house, and Jeannette Jenkyns, Elizabeth Fox, Virginia Call, Elinor Chapman, Betty Plowright, Imogene Perschbacher, Harriet Brittain, Ruth Nickel, Christine Nibbe, Enid Smith, Patsy Malzow, Hazel Gloe, and Clare Pilgrim, were chosen as Ormsby counsellors.

The Wisconsin railroad commission will conduct a hearing at the city hall Thursday afternoon, May 21, on the application of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company to reduce bus service between Neenah, Menasha, and Appleton, and to change the operating time schedule between Neenah, Menasha, Appleton, and Kaukauna.

These will prove a big attraction to the male members of the party at least. To make them cream $\frac{1}{2}$ cup shortening (half butter) until smooth and plastic. Ninth District Clubs Chose Antigo for 1932 Meeting

Antigo was chosen as the convention city for the 1932 meeting of the ninth district Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs, at the closing session of the convention in Appleton on Wednesday.

Mrs. L. A. Leadbetter, state president of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs, was the principal speaker at the session held at the Methodist church Tuesday afternoon. She talked on the importance of women in bringing about a stabilization of employment, in that women control the major portion of the purchasing power of the dollar in their homes. She also discussed women's clubs programs.

Program material was the subject of a talk given by Mrs. Horace E. Stedman, president of the ninth district, at the Tuesday session. She praised the work of the Appleton Woman's club, citing specially its activity in the Girl Scout project and interest in many rural clubs. The cantata "Robinson Crusoe" was presented by pupils from Appleton schools, under the direction of Miss Irene Bidwell. Mrs. E. V. Werner, president of the Woman's club, extended greetings, and Mrs. S. C. Shannon, Appleton, was among those who gave short talks. The convention banquet was served Tuesday evening at the Methodist church. Miss Margaret Reynolds, Sturgeon Bay, was the principal banquet speaker. She talked on International Relations. Dr. H. W. Wriston, president of Lawrence college, was the speaker at the Tuesday evening meeting. "Skill in Living" was the subject of his address.

State and district nominating committees were elected at the business session on Wednesday morning. Mrs. Joshua Hodgins, Marinette, was elected ninth district member of the state nominating committee. The district committee includes a member from each county, Mrs. E. V. Werner being the member from Outagamie county.

John Schlitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Schlitz, was awarded the Helen Mears Memorial Art prize. The pastel crayon sketch for which young Schlitz was awarded the prize will be entered in the state contest as the first place winner in the ninth district.

Appleton Woman's club pledged $100 to the newly organized Foundation fund, which was discussed by Mrs. Robert E. Elder, first vice president of the state federation. The purpose of the fund is to raise money for the federation in an organized manner. Half of the fund is kept within the state and the balance is sent to national headquarters. The money will be used for program research and bulletin material. Presidents and individual representatives of the clubs presented reports, and several minor changes in the constitution were approved.

Wednesday afternoon was devoted chiefly to an open forum on rural club problems. Mrs. F. H. Bartlett, state department chairman of rural co-operation led the discussion. She stressed the importance of developing club programs in the rural districts.

Miss Edith Foster, executive secretary of the committee on crime and criminal justice, Milwaukee, was the luncheon speaker Wednesday. In her address on "Adventuring in Legislation," Miss Foster outlined the faults and remedies of the children's code.

The ninth district adopted a resolution approving the two-tenths of a mill property tax to raise funds with which to fight forest fires in northern Wisconsin. The state federation recently endorsed the entire legislative policy of the conservation commission.

One hundred and forty women registered for the convention. Sixty-eight of these were delegates, forty-four visitors, sixteen district department chairmen, five county chairmen, seven district chairmen, seven state chairmen, and one general federation trustee.

Valley Dentists Will Meet Here Monday

Fox River Dental society will hold its twenty-eighth annual meeting at the Elks club in this city Monday. The formal meeting will be preceded by a golf tournament at the North Shore Country club Sunday. Dr. R. R. Lally, president of the organization, will open the meeting with an address. Talks will be given during the morning session by F. O. Zillesen, formerly of the Mayo clinic, on "Some Microbes and Diseases a Dentist Should Know from the Pathological Viewpoint;" Edward Ryan on the "Economic Aspects of Preventive Dentistry;" and P. G. Puterbaugh on "Control of Pain in Dental Practice."

"The Loss of Natural Teeth and Their Replacement" will be the subject of an address in the afternoon by W. D. N. Moore. Carroll W. Stuart, Chicago, will speak on "Mouth Infections and Their Relations to Systematic Conditions." Dr. L. H. Moore is chairman of the local arrangements committee, and he is being assisted by Drs. H. K. Pratt, and F. V. Hauch. Drs. S. J. Kloehn, R. R. Lally, L. H. Moore, H. F. O'Brian, J. C. Stillman, C. I. Perschbacher, and J. M. Donovan, Neenah, have charge of the golf tournament.

Congressman Reilly Talks to Fourth Degree Knights

A number of Appleton men attended a banquet of Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus Tuesday evening at the Hotel Raulf, Oshkosh, at which Congressman Michael K. Reilly, Fond du Lac, spoke on the present business depression and its causes. Fourth degree knights from Appleton, Menasha, Neenah, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac were in attendance. The affair was given by the Oshkosh assembly.

Congressman Reilly declared that industry must in some way work out a plan to prevent future depressions such as the one we are passing through now. "America," said Mr. Reilly, "is the richest nation in the world yet seven millions of her people have been unemployed, unable to provide themselves with the bare necessities of life. An encouraging note in the situation, however, is the generous manner in which communities have acted in the emergency and have spent millions in caring for the jobless."

Congressman Reilly stated that Russia, with her undeveloped resources, far greater than those of the United States, constitutes an economic menace to this country.

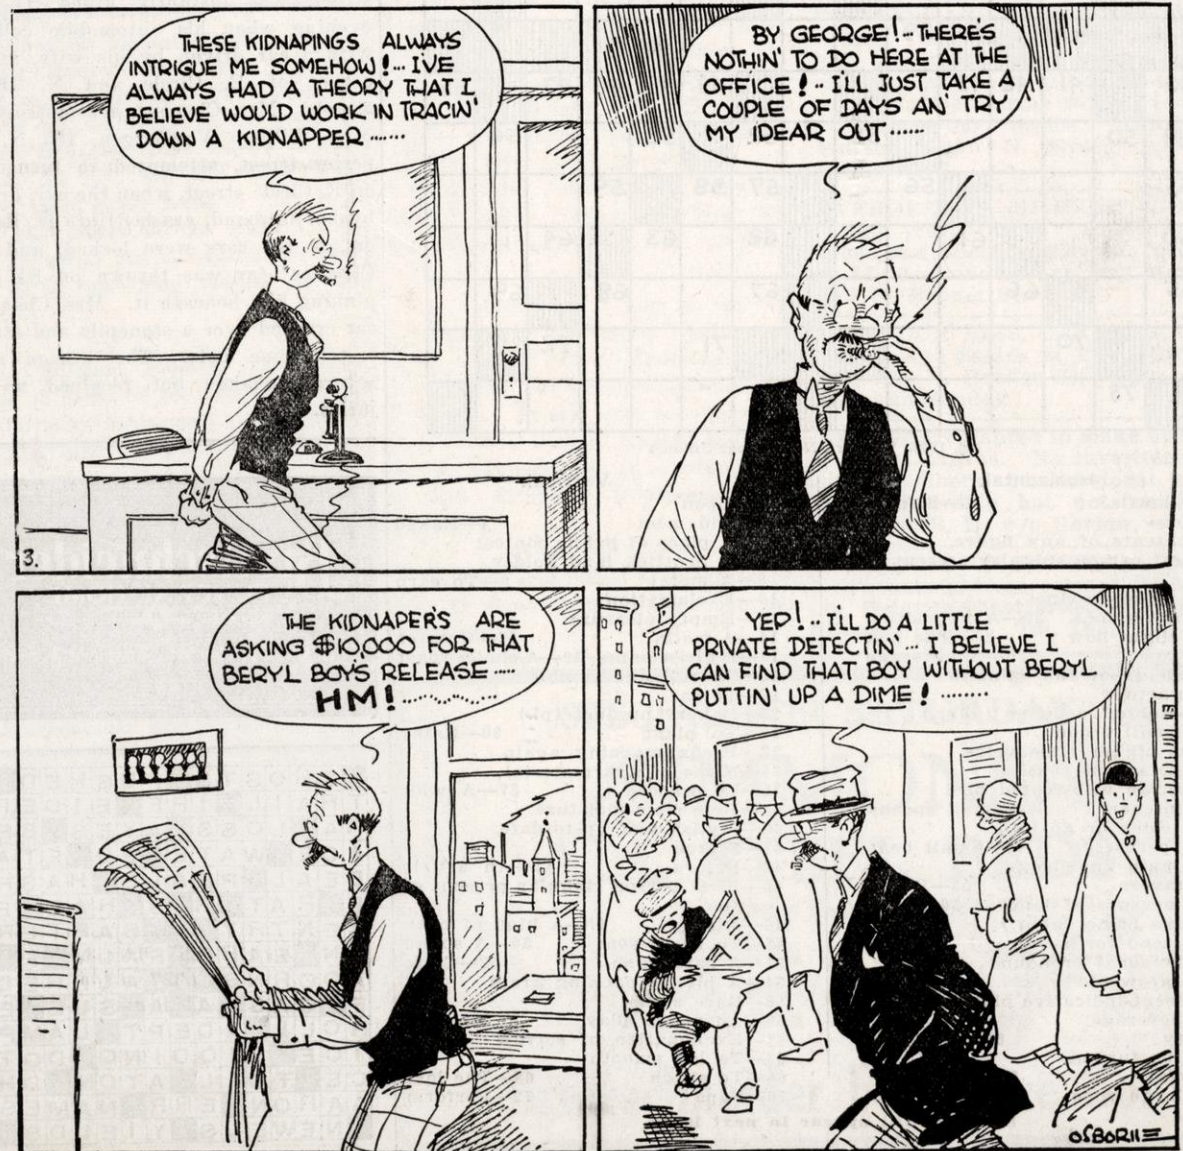

H. C. Herman, Chicago, a national Y. M. C. A. council secretary, and Guy V. Aldrich, state secretary of the association, addressed the board of directors of the Appleton Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening. National and foreign Y. M. C. A. work was discussed by Mr. Herman, and Mr. Aldrich talked on the state program. The nominating committee, headed by Dr. R. V. Landis, submitted the names of ten candidates to fill vacancies which will occur on the board this month. Election will take place May 26. F. J. Harwood, A. C. Remley, T. E. Orbison, delegates to the state convention, and employed officers submitted reports.

A home products show for Appleton, as an educational feature to acquaint Appleton citizens with the various products that are manufactured in the city, will be discussed by Appleton retailers and manufacturers at a meeting in the basement of the Insurance building this evening. The chamber of commerce retail division suggested the project, and a committee consisting of Karl M. Haugen, Otto Fischer, and E. J. Murray was appointed to investigate it.

Wriston Will Be Principal Speaker at Treaty of Cedar Dedication

A throng of several thousand is expected at the unveiling of the Treaty of the Cedars marker on Highway 41 Monday afternoon under auspices of Appleton Lions club. The high school band will start a concert at 1:30 and will play for about an hour while the crowds are being seated for the program. The main exercises will start at 2:30 and the entire public is urged to attend.

History that affects everybody living in northeastern Wisconsin was recorded in the signing of the Treaty of the Cedars on Sept. 3, 1836 between the Menominee Indians, headed by Chief Oshkosh, and the United States government, represented by Henry Dodge, territorial governor of Wisconsin. This huge boulder and bronze tablet marking the spot therefore have attracted widespread interest and prominent historians will be among those present to see the dedication ceremonies.

Among those invited from outside of Appleton are the mayors and presidents of cities and villages of the Fox river valley, respectively; members of Outagamie county board and the county highway commission; Col. Marshall Cousins, president and Dr. Joseph Schafer, superintendent of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin; C. E. Brown, curator of the state historical museum; Arthur Kannenberg, of the Winnebago County Historical society and important friend of the Menominees; C. E. Broughton, editor of the Sheboygan Press and president of the Sheboygan County Historical society; ex-Governor Walter J. Kohler, of Kohler, and Judge Emil Baensch, Manitowoc, curators of the state historical society; officers of all other historical societies in the state; Gov. Philip LaFollette and other state officers, state, county and city educational officials and many others.

Dr. Henry Merritt Wriston, president of Lawrence college, will be the principal speaker. The program also will include an explanation of the treaty and its history by Dr. Louise Phelps Kellogg, research associate of the state historical society; music by Appleton high school band; a talk by Mr. LaMotte, an aged Menominee Indian who will tell the meaning of the treaty to the Menominees; a prayer of dedication by the Rt. Rev. Bernard H. Pennings, president of St. Norbert college, DePere; the introduction of Princess Alice Oshkosh, hereditary chieftain of the Menominees by Taylor G. Brown, mayor of Oshkosh, the city named after the old chief; the unveiling of the marker by Princess Oshkosh. Dr. J. A. Holmes, chairman of the Lions historical committee, will preside.

Six Menominee Indians clad in their tribal regalia, will be on the speaker's platform. These are Princess Oshkosh and her mother; Mr. and Mrs. LaMotte and an Indian girl who is their ward, and an interpreter who will convey Mr. LaMotte's words in English to the audience. The committee planned to have a war dance by young Menominee warriors, but they were unable to be present.

Highway 41 will be closed to traffic during the ceremonies, except for the automobiles of those attending. Parking space under boy scout supervision will be available right at this point for all who attend. The marker is located between Kimberly and Little Chute on Highway 41. A large platform will be erected, and will be decorated in patriotic colors. A large flag also will be suspended over the highway. College Ave., will be gay with flags commemorating the occasion. Monday morning bombs will be discharged and mill whistles blown reminding the public to attend. Further bombs will be set off in the afternoon and an airplane also will circle overhead.

Members of the Lions club and their wives and those taking part in the program will gather at the Conway hotel at noon for luncheon and will go by automobile to the scene shortly thereafter.

The granite boulder on which the tablet is mounted resembles an Indian arrow head in shape. It was found on the farm of Simon Eagan, town of Lebanon, who donated it to the Lions club. The quality of the stone was analyzed by Dr. Rufus M. Bagg, geologist of Lawrence college, who pronounced it an admirable selection capable of withstanding the rigors of weather.

Local Boy Wins Third Place At Speaking Contest

Vernon Bechman, who represented the Appleton high school at the Fox River valley extemporaneous contest at Sheboygan Thursday afternoon, was awarded third place. First place was won by a speaker from Oshkosh, and second place went to Sheboygan. Medals were awarded to the winners.

Vernon Bechman won first place in the Bolton-Roth extemporaneous contest held at the Appleton high school a week ago.

Entertain 100 Girls in Play Day Program

Play Day will be observed at the new Alexander gymnasium Saturday, when the Lawrence college Women's Athletic association entertains approximately one hundred girls from nearby communities. The guests will be entertained at lunch at Russell Sage dormitory at noon and the afternoon will be spent at the gymnasium where a program of volley ball, baseball, kickball, and other games will be carried out. Teams will be selected regardless of school affiliation to promote acquaintance. A tea will be given at Ormsby hall, freshman dormitory, after the play period. Delegates are expected from high schools of Shawano, Sheboygan, East and West Green Bay, Manitowoc and other nearby localities.
