FRANK VISITS DORMS AT OPEN HOUSE SUNDAY

1,200 to 1,500 Persons Attend,
Including Many Faculty Members

Between 1,200 and 1,500 persons including President Glenn Frank attended the first annual open house held by Tripp and Adams halls, Sunday afternoon.

A throng of professors, fathers, and mothers, interested townspersons and students of the university kept coming and going nearly all afternoon. But while many interesting people left their impressions upon the minds of the men in the dormitories, the man who left the biggest impression was Prexy.

Pres. Frank Attends

Glenn Frank personally visited every section of both halls. Several men who were in their rooms working were interrupted by the president of the university, who dropped in to call. Many a freshman who did not recognize the executive nearly dropped in a faint when the immaculately dressed president held out his hand and quietly said, "My name is Frank."

Late Sunday afternoon one freshman who had had this experience said, "My knees aren't just right yet!" Another who happened to be working when the presy dropped in to call remarked that he was going to paint a cross on the floor where President Frank stood.

Professors Visit

Among the faculty members who were noted among the crowds were: Prof. L. J. Cole, Prof. W. D. Frost, Prof. E. B. McGilvray, Prof. C. D. Cool, Dean W. G. Bleyer of Journalism school, Major E. W. Murphy, Prof. C. L. Corp, Prof. J. L. Gillin, Prof. Alexander Micklejohn, Prof. Max Otto, Prof. A. Dresden, and Prof. E. J. Kraus.

Several of the outstanding attractions were the decorations in sections F and H in Tripp; the snakes and botany collections in Dick Wilson's room, Adams H; and the orchestra in Adams A.

Between 15 and 20 members of the Delta Zeta sorority, accompanied by the house mother, attended the open house in a body.

LIST OF FATHERS' ROOMS ANNOUNCED

Efforts Being Made to Accommodate 700 Fathers in University Dormitories

As was announced last week, the Daily Cardinal is today publishing a list of available rooms in the university district to help students get rooms for their fathers for Fathers Day, Oct. 30. These rooms were listed by Dean Goodnight's office and a copy of them may be had by calling at 201 South hall.

In addition to the rooms on the list and the accommodations of the local hotels, the Fathers' Day committee has arranged to take care of 400 fathers of freshmen in the new dormitories. Four hundred cots with 1,200 blankets are being shipped to Madison and will be placed in students' rooms at the dormitories. The charge will be 75 cents for the first night and 35 cents for the second or third nights which the cots are used. Further details as to where and when the cots will be available will be published later, according to the committee.

The list of rooms follows with the name of the landlady and address:

Robinson, 138 Breese Terrace; Wyatt, 308 Breese Terrace; O'Malley, 416 N. Butler; Meiss, 129 N. Charter; Oldham, 1601 Chabourne ave.; Stephenson, 437 W. Dayton; Maves, 612 W. Dayton; Countryman, 1115 Drake st.; Kremer, 2215 Fox ave.; Sinclair, 811 Garfield st.; Gav, 2536 Gregory st.; Collyer, 2112 Hollister ave.; Axtell, 1543 Jefferson; Lloyd, 1517 Jefferson; Lapley, 1303 W.

Dollard Publishes Thanks

Mr. A. P. Desormeaux,
Strand Theatre,
Madison, Wisconsin.

Dear Mr. Desormeaux:

This letter is to thank the Strand theatre, Flint's orchestra, the Loraine hotel, the Wisconsin State Journal, the Daily Cardinal, and the Democrat Printing company for their joint efforts in making a success of the Memorial Union dance which was held in the Crystal room of the Loraine hotel on last Saturday night. The profits of this dance, more than $800, have been added directly to the Union fund, will speed the letting of our contracts and the construction of our building.

In particular I want to thank Mr. Lee O'Brien who with the managers of the above mentioned organizations engineered the show. It was a fine and welcome tribute to the university and the Memorial Union at a time when help is badly needed.

Very sincerely,
John Dollard,
Secretary.

700 FATHERS TO ATTEND DADS' DAY

Deadline on Application for Minnesota Football Tickets
Set for Today

Seven hundred fathers of university students have already accepted President Frank's invitation to attend Fathers' Day, Oct. 30. Following the receipt of each father's acceptance a post card was sent out by the committee notifying the students that their fathers were coming and that they were expected to get his football ticket for the Minnesota-Wisconsin game.

The sale at student rate closes tomorrow. Students who have received cards from the committee and who have not yet purchased their own tickets are asked to mail both applications along with $3.20 to the ticket office at 711 Langdon street. After tomorrow the regular price of $2.50 will be charged all students for tickets.

Students who already have purchased their own tickets for the game will mail them in along with the post card from the Fathers' Day committee and $2.50 and receive in return two tickets in the special Father-Sons-Daughters section of the stadium.

Those whose fathers have not accepted, but who feel that they will accept, are requested to order one ticket for the game at student rate, and then exchange after their father's acceptance comes in.

FIRST ISSUE OF WEEKLY CARDINAL ON FATHERS' DAY

Cardinal Board of Control
Gives Approval to Editors' Proposal

Plans for a weekly edition of the Daily Cardinal were completed yesterday when the Board of Control officially approved the proposal of the editors. The paper will be a resume of the week's news of particular interest to fathers, mothers, and alumni. The first edition is planned for Fathers Day, Oct. 30.

In contrast to the daily paper, this edition will be called "The Weekly Cardinal," and will be published every Monday morning, according to James M. Nelson '27, managing editor.

To Reprint News

Important news items from the Daily Cardinal will be saved throughout the week and reprinted in the weekly edition. Editorials on important university questions, news accounts containing names of students, accounts of engagements, marriages, parties, together with alumni notes will be featured in this weekly edition.

The paper will follow the make-up of the Daily Cardinal to a great extent, according to Nelson. There will be an editorial page with a "Skyrockets" column and selected Readers Say So.

To Inform Absentees

"The Weekly Cardinal was conceived," Nelson declared, "as a means of informing those interested in the university, but who are away from the campus, of the true news concerning the university. State and national papers often contain garbled reports of campus occurrences and no means has been available of correcting false impressions left by such news items. We have received many letters during the past year asking for some paper, giving in a condensed manner the chief items of interest about Wisconsin. Alumni have asked for detailed accounts of the games; fathers have asked for items about their sons and daughters here. We feel that in the Weekly Cardinal we shall be able to answer these requests," Nelson stated.

STAFF MEETING

All reporters, special writers and those trying out for the Daily Cardinal staff are required to be at a meeting at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday in the editorial offices. String books, containing all clippings of stories published, are due at the meeting.

First Issue of The Wisconsin Engineer Has Popular Appeal

BY E. M. H.

With a new cover, a slightly altered make-up, and an attractive array of titles on the contents page, the Wisconsin Engineer makes its initial appearance of the year on the campus today. Just as full of fact as ever, but brightened up by the use of more "human interest" material, the magazine has strong appeal.

Prof. D. W. Mead welcomes the incoming engineers and pronounces the invocation with his "Suggestions to Engineering Students." In his article he speaks of the years of college as a road along which activities form most attractive side-trips.

Even though he applies his statements directly to engineers, his words of warning are general in their application.

"These side-trips both break the monotony of travel and have a value of their own, in training, in instilling cooperative effort, in forming character, in developing skill, in maintaining health and good spirits. But the main highway must not be lost in the pursuit of the issue."

the side trips, and the diversions should be made only when the required rate of travel in the right direction has been maintained."

L. E. Chase '23, has contributed to the Engineer an article on sewer construction and the Bloomington and Normal sanitary district, an article of primary interest to engineering students, but with a certain interest to the casual reader.

R. T. Homewood '27, editor of the Engineer, has prepared "The Log of the Good Ship 'Survey,'" an amusing account of the experiences of the civil engineers in their survey camp at Devil's Lake. The group spent six weeks in camp with various results all of which Mr. Homewood has described.

Accounts of faculty changes, news of alumni, and campus notes add the personal interest to the magazine and, together with an article by Prof. Edward Bennett "Seminars for Practicing Engineers" complete the contents of the issue.

INAUGURATE HALL AT OREGON TODAY

Paxson to Deliver Address at Ceremonies for Former Colleague

The inauguration of Professor Arnold Bennett Hall, formerly of Wisconsin, as president of the university of Oregon will take place today with formal ceremonies at Eugene, Oregon.

Prof. A. B. Hall left the faculty of the university at the close of last year to accept the new honor which the western university offered him. The occasion of his inauguration is especially significant because this year is also the half century mark in the history of the University of Oregon.

Prof. Frederick Paxson of the history department left Wednesday for Oregon to speak on the Western Pioneer movement at the three-day celebration and inauguration. Joseph Schafer of 1102 Grant Ave., Madison, will read a paper on the latest period of development of the western university.

Prof. Hall's course in elementary and constitutional law which he gave in his capacity of professor of political science and associate professor of law were very popular and he was very well known and according to his former colleagues in the political science department liked upon the campus.

Professor Hall was born in Franklin, Indiana, July 22, 1881. He received his A. B. at Franklin college in 1904. A. J. D. cum laude was awarded him at the University of Chicago, 1909. He was admitted to the Indiana bar in 1907.

The former Wisconsin professor is the author of "The Past," is the author of several books, among which are "The Past, Present and Future of the Monroe Doctrine," and "Popular Government."

PROF. KOFFKA STARTS CLASS AT UNIVERSITY

Prof. Kurt Koffka yesterday took his place as one of the faculty of the university when he conducted his first classes in the psychology department. Coming from Giessen, Germany, Prof. Koffka is one of the world leaders in his science. His classes are in "Psychology of Mental Development," and "Psychology of Perception."

Start Haresfoot Dancing Classes at Labor Temple

The first meeting of the Haresfoot dancing classes will be held this afternoon at four-thirty in the Labor Temple, at the corner of Johnson and State streets, it was announced last night by Russell Winnie, '26, president of the club. "All men who registered at the first tryouts are expected to attend" said Winnie. "There will be several instructors to give complete information as to the nature of the work and to start the actual dancing."

Over three hundred men registered at the first general meeting held last Wednesday.

CARRIER IS NAMED ASSOCIATE EDITOR

New Daily Cardinal Staff Appointments Made by Board of Control

Vernon Carrier '27, was appointed associate editor of the Daily Cardinal by the Board of Control at its regular meeting yesterday. Carrier has worked for three years on the staff, filling the positions of library editor, assistant desk editor, and desk editor. He is a member of Sigma Phi fraternity.

The board also accepted the resignation of Elmer Beth '27, as news editor and approved the recommendation of Beatrice Aronson '28, to fill the vacancy.

Several new officers were created by the officers with the expectation of improving staff management as well as service to students. John Gillin '27, formerly member of the Board of Control, was appointed Night manager. He will have charge of all night staffs. Wesley Peterson '28, was appointed Literary editor for the weekly book page. The new position of Music editor was given to Annette Hirschfeld, formerly Theatre editor. In the attempt to be of service to alumni a column of news about graduates is being written three times a week. Helen Liebman '28, has been appointed Alumni editor to gather the news items.

Lucille Bohren, '27, who conducted the society column of the Summer Session Daily Cardinal was appointed Society editor for the year.

450 WOMEN IN AQUATIC CLASSES

Tryouts for Class Swimming Teams Being Held This Month

About 350 university women are taught to swim each year by the Women's Physical Education department. At present there are 450 women enrolled in swimming who are taking the sport either for gymnasium credit or to be able to pass the swimming test that each university woman has to pass before she can graduate.

Those who are able to swim are and will be trying out for class teams for the remainder of this month. Bernice Marion '27, is president of the Senior team, Winifred Smut '28, is president of the Junior team, and Anne Dean '29 is president of the Sophomore team. The Freshmen will elect their captain at the time the team is chosen. Marcella Steel '27, who is student head of swimming, has charge of the Freshmen till the election of a regular president. Sixty are trying out for teams at present; 27 Freshmen, 23 Sophomores, 11 Juniors, and 9 Seniors.

Miss E. H. Hastie, who is the head of swimming in the Women's Physical Education department, has 12 student assistants to aid her with classes. At Thanksgiving, Miss Hastie will begin a class for those who wish to pass the Red Cross life saving tests.

Regents Take Up Budget Tuesday

The biennial university legislative budget will be taken up by the finance committee of the board of regents beginning tomorrow. The meeting of the committee will last through to Friday when the board will convene in special session to pass upon the recommendations of the committee and to take action on the Wisconsin Memorial Union.

The board of regents finance committee consists of M. B. Olbrich, Madison, John E. Cashman, Denmark, George A. Nelson, Milltown, Daniel H. Grady, Portage, and Theodore Kronshage Jr., Milwaukee.

DELEGATE TO WORLD Y. M. C. A. MEET IN FINLAND DESCRIBES CONFERENCE

When 2,500 fellows from every race and 50 nations of the world get together to talk things over, something is almost bound to happen. Some high lights of the International Y. M. C. A. conference, which was held in Helsinki, Finland the first week in August this summer were described yesterday by George Burroughs, '30, one of the delegates.

Three men who are living in Madison this year composed the student delegation from Wisconsin to the meeting. Burroughs who comes from Green Bay, and John Cinkosky, Milwaukee, are both freshmen in the university while Marshall North, Madison, is finishing his last year in high school this year.

The conference was the first of its kind to be held since the world war. Men from every race spoke before the assembled boys. Strangely, when it came to the boys choosing the topics which they wished most to discuss, the first was, "The Home and its Foundations."

"To us," Burroughs said, "that did not seem as important as the international peace question, but in those countries devastated by the war, the home is a real problem today.

"Every branch of Christendom was represented," Burroughs said, "From the American Indian in his native robes to boys from China, Japan and India."

Among the speakers were John R. Mott, president of the Worldwide council of the Y. M. C. A., the Archbishops of Sweden, K. T. Paul, India; Mr. Lu, China; Tracey Strong, Switzerland; Karl Fries, Germany; Eric Strange, Germany; Archbishop of Servia and many others.

Quiz County Assessor On Town Of Madison

Walter Dick, Dane county assessor, was being questioned by Atty. Miles Riley as to the methods used in estimating the values of land in the town of Madison before a meeting of the town board of review in the county courthouse today.

Mr. Riley is representing a number of farmers in the township whose land is assessed too highly, according to their claims.

The hearing has been going on since Thursday, with the exception of Saturday.

Ferguson Made Road Bribe Offer, Is Claim

AUSTIN, Texas. — (P) — Charges that James E. Ferguson, husband of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, had offered to obtain road maintenance contracts for a money consideration, were made here today before the legislative committee investigating state departments.

J. D. Winder, highway contractor of Belleville, Texas, testified that Ferguson had made a proposition to obtain contracts in five counties for $7,500 to be delivered to Ferguson in five and ten dollar bills. The offer was made in April, 1925, the witness said.

League of Women Voters Meet at Lathrop Tonight

All of the women in the university who are interested in the political problems of our state and country are invited to attend the meeting of the Collegiate League of Women Voters in Lathrop parlors at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Members of the Dane county League board have been invited to this social meeting in order to give the women of the university an opportunity to meet them. Mrs. W. G. Bleyer, Mrs. M. V. O'Shea, and Mrs. P. B. Potter are among the board members who have been invited.

Prof. J. P. Harris, of the political science department, will give a short talk on "Voting Intelligentely."

The league is not alone for women of voting age. It is an organization of college women who take an interest in the problems of the day. Women who are considering joining the league are urged to be present tonight.

Missionaries Good Ads For American Goods

"Buddhism is going to take all that is good in Christianity and unite its own," according to Wayman Smith in a talk at the weekly luncheon of the American Business club at the Park hotel this noon.

Mr. Smith, who has just returned from the Orient, emphasized the practical results of the sending of Christian missionaries to China and Japan.

"The business men of these countries are beginning to realize the practical benefits of Christianity," he said. "Missionaries are the best advertisers of American products in the Orient."

Training Table

Former spotless records were considerably besmeared when the haze of battle lifted Saturday. Some of our very best people, in fact, lost out in the race for touchdowns and carried tales of woe and worry back to the trusting hometown fans. So it was with Minnesota, so it was with Iowa, so it was with Chicago; and certainly Wisconsin cannot be credited with holding Purdue to a scoreless tie.

The Badger experience at Lafayette is serving as a timely warning for certain schools that had formerly looked upon Purdue as a good practice opponent. Chicago, battered from pillar to post by Pennsylvania last week, is shivering in its shoes. The Maroons have always met more or less resistance from Purdue; this year it seems they are going to meet more. Purdue and Chicago will settle their 1926 argument Saturday.

Stan Kalish, ye sport editor, reports that he occupied a seat in the press stand next to Maury Kent, who coaches basketball and baseball and also scouts football for Northwestern. Maury scribbled vigorously throughout the game and incidentally dropped the remark that "this isn't funny at all; they're too doggone strong." Purdue meets Northwestern a week from Saturday.

Michigan did all kinds of damage, including the scoring of three touchdowns on Minnesota in the first half, and then had to fight with their backs to the wall throughout the last half to keep the Gophers from scoring. Minnesota, possessing a great line and a quartet of the drivetest, toughest backs in the conference, fell before the greater variety and the spectacular efficiency of the Wolverine attack. Minnesota plays Wisconsin here on Fathers' day, October 30.

Though "Shorty" Almquist, Minnesota halfback, has been kept out of the game by ineligibility and injuries, his loss has been made up for by Barnhart, a rising star in the Gopher constellation. Barnhart is a good punter, but better than that, he is a magnificent plunger. He and Joesting ripped the Michigan line so savagely last Saturday that even Fielding H. Yost scarcely recognized it.

Open work was the main feature of Illinois' homecoming triumph over Iowa. The referee had scarcely taken the whistle out of his mouth when "Cowboy" Kutsch, Iowa halfback, threaded his way through 11 Illini and 65 yards of turf for a touchdown. Then Illinois evened it up with a pass, Lanum to Daugherty, which went for a touchdown. "Frosty" Peters brought his kicking skill into play to score two goals from the field. On one occasion Kutsch was nailed within inches of the Illinois goal line and the Hawkeyes lost the ball on downs.

As most people expected, Ohio State ran over, around and through Columbia with little apparent respect for the ordinary rules of courtesy. Elmer Marek was unable to play for long, but Captain Marty Karow, Eby, Kruskamp, and Clark carried on the good work.

Sheer fighting spirit held Northwestern away from the Indiana goal line for three whole periods. But that fight couldn't stand forever against the onslaughts of Baker and Lewis, and the Wildcats paraded down the field for three scores in the last quarter.

Overland Co. To Build Washington Ave. Garage

The Madison Overland Co., which has just been re-incorporated by the Wisconsin Motor Sales Co., is already making plans for a new home to be erected in the 600 block on E. Washington ave. on the lot which is now being used for the used car display of the Overland company, between the new Behrend Bros. tire store and Charles Rieder's tire store. Building of the garage, which will be 66 by 1500 feet, is expected to be within a few months.

HOOSIERS WITH PAGE APPEAR AS BADGER MENACE

Indiana Brings Powerful Grid
Machine for Seventh Meeting of Rivals

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 17.—When Pat Page and his Indiana University football squad returned from Northwestern they immediately started pointing toward the Wisconsin game Saturday.

Facing the Badgers, Coach Page has a real job on his hands. Wisconsin has been met by Indiana probably less times than any other eleven in the Big Ten. Only six games have been played between Wisconsin and Indiana. The Badgers have run away with all but the contest of 1910 when the Hoosiers slipped over a 12 to 3 defeat.

Purple Interest

The game with Northwestern drew much attention from Indiana fans because of its significance in being the first of the double-headers. The Crimson are eager to get the Purple inside Memorial stadium before their own crowd on homecoming day. Indiana has dropped a few games on this occasion; many sections of the stadium have already been reserved, by Indiana fans that the Hoosiers are assured the advantage of support from the sidelines.

Page's sophomores will have experience by that time and will be in better shape to withstand the howling of Crimsonites for a victory. Benet, Beckner, Butts, Garrison, Matthews, Randolph, Moses, and Harrell—every one playing his first year of varsity football—can be counted on. Improvements have been marked in the last few days and in two weeks' time the playing of the sophomores should be considerably above their present stride.

Other Games

After the Wisconsin and Northwestern pigskin clashes come Notre Dame at South Bend, Mississippi A. and M. at Bloomington, and the curtain affair at Purdue.

The Mississippi contest, November 13, is the last of inter-sectional games this season for the Big Ten teams.

HAWKS PREPARE FOR OHIO STATE

Have Taken Buckeyes Into Camp at Every Meeting

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 17.—After drawing a long breath of relief over Sunday following the game at Illinois, Iowa's football team is ready to take on another keen edge for the Ohio State battle next Saturday. The Hawkeyes turn to the eastern rim of the conference for the third game at Columbus in four years.

Some hidden spring of power seems to be reached in the Hawkeyes each year they meet the Buckeyes at the Ohio capitol. The precedent has been that the invading Iowans sweep down Ohio State, no matter how excellent appear the prospects for a Buckeye victory.

Four games compose the gridiron background of the Hawkeye-Buckeye series and Iowa has never lost. The limit of Ohio State success was a scoreless dead-lock on Iowa Field in 1924.

Ohio State's powerful team, opening their Big Ten season Saturday will be keyed to score their initial victory over Iowa while the Hawkeyes face a severe task in rising to heights after the Illini affair.

September Construction Exceeds August Mark

September construction volume in the state of Wisconsin amounted to $10,993,500, according to the F. W. Dodge corporation. This figure exceeded August of this year by 46 per cent. However, a two per cent decline from September 1925 occurred.

Wisconsin had $86,045,800 in contracts for new building and engineering work during the first nine months of this year, compared with $76,055,000

BADGER GRIDDERS START PREPARING FOR INDIANA CONTEST ON SATURDAY

Post Issues Call for Water Polo Squad Candidates

Captain Stan Post urgently calls for all men who have played water polo or are interested in the sport to report at the gymnasium tank on Tuesdays and Thursdays for regular practice at 5 to 6 o'clock. Freshmen are also wanted to build up a frosh team and train them for future squads.

Prospects are good for a winning team this year. The entire forward wall composed of Stewart, Ratcliff and Post returned to school. The only regular in the other end of the tank to return was Woddsom. Scott, Esser, Proctor, Elkins, Hodges, and Weichers of last year's squad returned and all give promise for this year's team.

However, it takes more than the seven or ten men on the first squad to make a winning team. The sport is comparatively new in conference competition, and hence none of the men have had great experience in the game. The team must have more men out to help make it a winner.

GREEK BOWLING ENTRIES WANTED BY I.M. OFFICE

Fraternities wishing to enter the bowling tournament are requested to have their entries in before Tuesday night at the intramural office. The intramural office is anxious to get started on bowling so as to furnish the preliminaries before the Holidays.

Hub Store is Robbed of Clothes

Some one who wears a size 34 suit of clothes outfitted himself for the winter Saturday night when he broke into the Hub clothing store on the square and departed richer by two suits of clothes, a pair of gloves, overcoat, hat, sweater coat and necktie. The loss is estimated at about $200.

Though there was a large sum of money in the till in the store, the thief did not take any cash.

The thief gained entrance by sawing the lock on the door of a freight elevator in the rear, thus gaining entrance to the elevator shaft. Once in the shaft, he could enter the store, the elevator doors not being locked on the inside. The Hub was the victim of a similar robbery about two or three years ago, it is reported.

Rangers Report More Deer In North Woods

SUPERIOR, Wis.—There is more deer and wild game in north Wisconsin woods this season than there has been in the last ten years, in the opinion of P. A. McDonald and H. E. Percy of the forest range and fire warden service, stationed as lookouts over the counties of Douglas and Bayfield. Deer were traveling in droves to salt licks in small lakes, said the men. Grouse and partridge also are plentiful.

Dodgeville Clergyman Continues To Improve

(Special to The Capital Times.) DODGEVILLE, Wis.—Continued improvement in the condition of Rev. B. O. Steffenson of this city was reported today at St. Joseph's hospital. The clergyman was injured Friday when the car in which he was riding with his wife was struck by a train at a crossing near here. His wife, who was killed in the crash, will be buried tomorrow.

Decide Today On Plan To Save Belgian Franc

BRUSSELS (AP)—The Belgian cabinet council today will make final decisions concerning stabilization of the franc. It is expected the entire matter will be settled. Decrees are ready for the King's signature before he embarks for Stockholm on Oct. 30.

DOPE RUNS TRUE TO FORM EXCEPT FOR BADGER GAME

Cardinal "Dopester" Picks
Them Right Except for Purdue Tie

The Daily Cardinal's predictions remain 100 per cent except for the Wisconsin-Purdue game which was truly a blow to the most conservative prediction. It is doubtful if any one predicted such an outcome and the game has been called one of the few upsets on last Saturday's card.

Michigan handled Minnesota without a great deal of trouble. This was generally looked for. Although the Gophers are a strong rating team, it was generally conceded that Michigan was too strong for them this early in the season. In a return game, it is possible that the tables may turn. Right now, Michigan looks like the best in the conference.

Illinois Powerful

Illinois proved, as was generally believed, that Iowa has not the strong teams which usually represent the Hawkeye institution. Illinois showed a lot of speed at times, but nothing so brilliant as to consider them beating Michigan Saturday. Ohio State is all excited over their squad this year and they have cause to be for the overwhelming victory over Columbia proved that Ohio is strong.

Northwestern won a nice victory over Indiana Saturday, but the real test with Notre Dame is before them and if they should be able to beat the Irish—Coach Yost will have real cause to tremble. Chicago was an easy victim of Pennsylvania though the Maroon passing attack still looks dangerous. Chicago goes clashing with Purdue Saturday and after the Purdue-Wisconsin game, is especially fearful of Coach Phelan's Boilermakers.

Rev. Barstow's Sermon

No small amount of comment has been caused throughout the nation since the Daily Cardinal ignited its anti-prohibition bombshell Sept. 29. We have been made the object of much vituperation as well as of commendation. Perhaps the most powerful attack launched against our editorial stand has been the sermon preached by the Rev. Robbins Wollcott Barstow of the First Congregational church of this city on Oct. 10. In a scholarly and dignified manner, the Rev. Barstow vigorously assailed our assumption that prohibition as it exists today has been a failure.

Although he does accuse us (indirectly) of being illogical, he does not lose control of himself as certain state editors have to call us "hairbrained adolescents" and other such uncomplimentary terms. We respect his criticism as much as we admire him as a man, and agree with him on certain points, or rather he agrees with us. He devotes part of his sermon to saying that drinking is increasing. We admit that. It was one of our original contentions. The point we were insisting upon is that drinking was becoming more or more demoralizing.

The respected clergyman, who has also been talking over the radio on prohibition, is evidently vexed with us for reporting the truth and he questions our reasoning. We expect that. For the past three weeks we have had our methods attacked by our elders. Those attacks characterize the intolerant attitude which the "mature" generation seems to have for youth and youth's ideas.

A beer referendum asking for modification of the Volstead law will come before the people in the elections Nov. 2. Following is the referendum which will be voted upon:

"Shall the congress of the United States amend the 'Volstead Act' so as to authorize the manufacture and sale of beer, for beverage purposes, of an alcoholic percentage of 2.75% by weight, under government supervision but with the provision that no beverage so purchased shall be drank on the premises where obtained?"

The state legislature resolved to submit this question to the people of the state because the eighteenth amendment to the Federal constitution was ratified by the legislature of the state without submission to a vote of the people. Another reason for the referendum is that a large portion of the citizens of this state are desirous that the National Prohibition law be amended so as to permit the lawful manufacture and sale within this state of palatable beer of an alcoholic percentage not in conflict with the provisions of the eighteenth amendment.

This resolution simply provides for the submission to the voters at the coming general election on Nov. 2 of a question framed to ascertain the opinion of the electors of Wisconsin as to whether the Volstead act should be amended in the particulars stated in the question. No change will be effected in the constitution or the state laws by the vote upon the question submitted.

The Daily Cardinal believes that the student body should know the facts about prohibition before the election. We feel gratified in having cast the spotlight of public opinion on the question and in arousing the amount of discussion that we have. We want the people to know both sides of the question, and for that reason we have thrown open our columns to pro and con discussions. To allow for further enlightenment on the situation, we have secured a large quantity of printed copies of the Rev. Barstow's sermon entitled "Rights and Renunciations" and we are now prepared to distribute them to any students who call at our business office for them. The sermon, which drew applause from a church audience two weeks ago for the first time in Madison's history, is printed in neat pamphlet form.

It is an able discussion. It is written in the forceful, assertive style which has made the Rev. Barstow so popular with student congregations during the past two years. His speech has dignity poise, and depth of thought—qualities which are lacking in the talks of typical Anti-Saloon league speakers. And logic! We can't be expected to refute such inexorable logic. Immature as we are, all we can do is report the true conditions, as we see them with adolescent eyes. Alas, we have no rose-colored glasses to view the world through. Rank realism confronts us in the form of flagrant dry law violations. We have to face facts, because we have to live in this material world for a long time yet—much longer than our elders.

We recommend the reading of the Rev. Barstow's speech to all students. Just walk into the Daily Cardinal business office (the first door to your right as you enter the Union building) and ask the young lady at the desk for a copy of the Rev. Barstow's speech. The pamphlets are gratis. No reading slips required.

Praise Where it is Due

He is seldom seen in the limelight; he rarely gets any favorable write-ups in the news columns of newspapers; he hardly ever receives letters commending his work and telling him how fine it is. The only personal letters which reach his desk are from raging alumni who have found that the rules of this man's office apply to them just as rigidly as they do to the lowliest frosh on the campus. Yet he is doing a fine piece of work for the university and deserves high praise for the order and peace which he has brought to a section of university life which was hitherto marked by its chaos and strife.

We speak of George Levis, director of ticket sales. How many of us remember the turbulent strife which existed over the ticket situation some years ago! How many of us remember a line of students a block long waiting for long hours on a cold, cold fall day for tickets to a Chicago-Wisconsin football game! And then some of those who had waited longest got left out of the ticket distribution. It is by recalling situations similar to the above and comparing them with present peaceful conditions that show just what success Levis has had, reveal the order he has instituted to take the place of chaos, display the sympathy which his department now has in place of the hard-boiled "try and get them" attitude of former days.

George Levis has no easy job. You cannot account for his success in that way. It has been by adding sympathy, organization, system, and rules to the department that has brought our present happy condition in regard to getting tickets. It has been a man's sized job and we take this opportunity of congratulating Mr. Levis and telling him how much we appreciate his fine work. May it continue!

DISAGREES WITH MR. SCHWENGER

Editor, the Daily Cardinal:

When weighed in scales, it seems to me that the argument of Mr. Scheier is far more correct than that of Mr. Schwenger in regard to the question of non-sectarian campus religious convocations.

I admit with Mr. Schwenger that Christmas as well as numerous other occasions are social vestiges of forgotten religions—but religious views and social institutions are two very different matters. A man's religion is his own private concern, therefore a sectarian campus convocation tampers with the student's freedom and violates an ethical rule as well as a university rule.

Mr. Schwenger says there are two reasons why Mr. Scheier should not object. The first concerns tolerance—but what is more intolerant than sectarianism at a free university? The second reason was that

by
The Man in the Case
CHAPTER ONE
His Early Life

Until he was seven years old, Ten-Minute Jim had never been known to swear. His grandmother (whose picture is printed herewith) is authority for this fact.

Of course, it is admitted by his mother (the rumor is he had one) that at the age of five he was kicked in the face by a mule and was never quite the same afterwards. It may also account for his shocking immorality at the age of seven.

Neighbors of the boy's family all agree that he was never any trouble at all, was kind to animals, and, in fact, loved live pets—but never seemed able to keep them that way.

Early in life he showed some inclination toward his present nefarious profession, when his mama went into the basement of the house one day and found him conducting a miniature drug store.

"Hic," said little Jimmie, "it must have been two other guys. Besides, that wasn't no lady; that was my wife."

His wit at once earned for him the reputation of humorist and to this day the cleverness of his child tongue is perpetuated in Octy and other humorous publications like the Lit.

(Tomorrow the second chapter of the tragic life of Ten-Minute Jim will appear in these columns.)

Little Boy Blew narrates of "Ye dumbe co-ed who, overhearing an argument between some workmen

Mr. Scheier "would sit back comfortably and smile in silence if he recognized the strength of the movement he voices." But I believe I speak in accordance with Mr. Scheier when I say that he does not care to "sit back and smile" about intolerance.

Mr. Schwenger concludes by saying that the only example of non-sectarian religion would be a debating club. I would reply that non-sectarian concerns not debating but ethical living which deals with truth, beauty, education, love, virtue, and the greatest amount of happiness of the greatest number of people.

HERB POWELL '27.

OUCH!

Editor, Daily Cardinal:

The attached is from the Chicago Tribune which in the interests of its liquor propaganda is persistently guilty of gross violations of truth and good ethics in its quotations of public expressions from other sources. But assuming that this is an accurate resume of the opinion of your Campus "wets" an elderly observer can only say:

"Boys, except for your probably correct recital of campus devilry, you don't know what you are talking about."

There is not one of you, not one, who is old enough to have had any comprehensive observation whatever of the workings of "tolerance" in the good old temperance days.

Absolute mental clarity in facts and reasoning and intellectual integrity is the first essential toward deciding any social question. Answer honestly yourselves: Have you any ideas on liquor prohibition which you have not absorbed second-hand, chiefly from such pandering daily publications as the Chicago Tribune?

You see so-called "students" getting drunk. That isn't the only bad thing that they are doing. But do you honestly know that they didn't get more drunk and worse drunk 20 years ago?

You object to the quality of your liquor. What qualifications have you for judging liquor? I don't know Madison. But I know absolutely on the Bascom addition, wanted to know how long the classes in Italian had been meeting in the new part of the building."

L. B. B. further contribs this: "The fellow who sleeps next to us in history lecture rushed in the other day with his hair badly mussed. We told him about it and he said, 'What? I combed it just after gym class. But there were so many guys around the mirror, I'll bet I must have combed somebody else's hair."

UNANIMOUS:

We elect to the Hall of Fame and suggest a Carnegie medal for the Badger student who toured Florida this summer with a California pennant on his car.

Darn it, what's a Rocketeer to write about? Kissing jokes are taboo, we gotta lay off the Memorial Union, Like, Drive, etc., and if we write about ourselves, we're said to be stuck-up. Well, we are in a mess.

So far we havn't given Zopelka his usual free advertising. Well, her goes—ZOPELKA.

The leaves are falling, Falling everywhere. Falling on the ground—And also through the air. Falling, falling, falling everywhere.

The Lit can have that splurge now. We've used it, we've got the credit for it, now let them take the blame.

YEAH, LET'S!

Now is the time of year when people remark that the last summer was so successful there is talk of having another one next year.

And the leading question of the day is: Are you going to vote for somebody, or are you a candidate?

that the vilest convocations were peddled to working-men and ignorant kids like you in Chicago and Detroit long before prohibition laws and at all hours of day and night, often in connection with the vilest of other practices, in violation of all and every law made in the interest of "temperance" regulation. And never anywhere, except in the small communities, have I seen "temperance" in the slightest observable degree effective until it had the aid of prohibition law to back it up. And it was the fact that temperance appeals and regulative laws didn't get anywhere which necessitated decent society, in very self preservation, finally, to go to the roots and pass laws against the manufacture and sale of intoxicants.

You admit that you patronize bootleggers, that you have so little restraint over your own folly that you deliberately violate the laws of your country, yet you mere kids set yourselves up as qualified to say what the laws of your country should be. Can you truthfully assert that you who now get drunk, and encourage law violation so that you can get drunk, would not still get drunk if the University should go so far as to furnish you free wine and beer, instead of water, in its class-rooms? And if the wine and beer, which you profess to howl for, is not harmful, why shouldn't you have it free in your class-rooms?—or say in penny drinks?

And precisely what do you mean by "modification"? Have you really thought out what you mean? Would you have Uncle Sam go into the liquor business and test every container, mug and bottle, to be sure that you exuberate specimens of "personal liberty" shouldn't still get "white mule" and "spiked beer"? Have you figured out how many inspectors and policemen it would take to "modify" your campus alone?

Why, you haven't made a child's beginning on this subject.

The page comes to an end. And I have time to only say further, that, regardless of the merits or demerits of intoxicating liquors and of the possibility of enforcing pro-

Miriam Cutler '26,
George Freese '25
Married Saturday

The marriage of Miriam Cutler, ex '26, Rockford, Ill., to George Freese '25, Sioux Falls, S. D., took place at high noon last Saturday in the First Congregational church, Rockford.

Evelyn Freese of Sioux Falls, a cousin of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and Helen von Weise '27 and Patricia Childe '28, sorority sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Rudolph Hoffman, Sioux Falls, was best man for the bridegroom and the ushers were John Bergstresser '26 and James Culvertson '27.

The bride is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and the bridegroom is affiliated with Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Freese motored to Madison with the Misses von Weise and Childe and Messrs. Bergstresser and Culvertson. They attended the Memorial Union dance at the Hotel Lorraine that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Freese are now on their wedding trip in the east and on their return they will live in Sioux Falls where Mr. Freese is in the insurance business.

Says Intrigue Disappearing From League

Prof. Potter Tells Unitarian Laymen Of His Impressions

Prof. P. B. Potter, professor of political science at the university, gave an illustrated talk on the activities of the league of nations before the Unitarian Laymen's League Friday evening at the Unitarian parish house.

Prof. Potter recently returned from a trip to Geneva, the seat of the league.

"There are five prominent impressions one gets in viewing the various activities of the league of nations," says Prof. Potter. "When you go to Geneva, the first impression you get is that the league is inadequately housed. Neither the assembly nor the council have adequate meeting rooms with the result that not as many visitors may attend their meetings as would otherwise be able to. Anyone can get in."

"The second impression you get is that the league organs are working full speed."

"The third impression is that the crusading spirit of eight years ago has been replaced by something more stable and more effective. It is a conviction that the league is permanently established, that there is a determination to make it effective."

"Fourth, one sees quite clearly that international political maneuvering is not entirely absent from league activities, but it seems to be less noticeable today than five years ago."

"Fifth, if you come from the United States, the question of American relationship to the league arises. It is in a very different position today from what it was previously. At first it was assumed that the U. S. would go in in spite of her apparent refusal to do so. Now a third stage has been reached, and you hear three or four things in Geneva whenever the question is raised. First, the U. S. is bound to come in eventually by the natural force of events. Second, there is no use trying to push, for trying to push it along might do more harm than good. Finally, the U. S. is collaborating with the league so fully at the present time that its help can be obtained when needed in spite of non-membership."

Argon, Kept Out in Cold, Finally Sees an Excellent Show

By Argon the Lazy

"Hello," we said to the ticket-taker at the Madison, "can we exchange this pass for a couple of your nicest tickets?" She eyed us glassily. "But a woman always reviews this show," she said. "You aren't a woman." "If we are," we said, "the Hata Lie frat club has been fooled something awful for two years." "I don't," said she, "believe this pass is genuine." "It is," we said, "one of the most genuine passes on this American continent. Bite it and see if it isn't." "Nope," she said, "a woman always reviews this movie. You aren't a woman."

The fact was uncontroversial. We plopped down sixty cents as if we had a lot of money, such as, say, a dollar and a quarter, and walked in.

The show was good. It was unfortunate. We wished that the show would be rotten, so we could condemn it to unfathomable perdition in frenzied polysyllables. But the show was not rotten. It was good.

More than that, it was very good. It was founded on one of Peter B. Kyne's Cappy Ricks tales and was called "More Pay and Less Work." It was funny. The acting was good. The plot was good. The action was good. Even the painted scenery, resorted to once or twice, was good and almost convincing. We liked it.

Arthur Gran, or words to that effect, played the part of Cappy Ricks, and did it well. He was art and fat, in contradiction to Kyne's Ricks, who is tiny and slight. But he was good, with an expansive smile and an infinite capacity for infinite anger at a moment's notice. And his foil, the business rival, was portrayed by E. J. Ratcliffe, was if anything better. Mary Brian, one of the reasons why we have always wanted to go into the movies, played the part of the heroine. Her mere presence is enough to set any film spinning along. She did not do much acting. It was not necessary. To ask her to be a superb actress as well as a first class adornment would be something like asking Venus de Milo to turn handsprings.

In addition to the feature production they had a comedy that we had seen twice before, a scene feature that was one of the few that we can sit through without a sadistic desire to murder the man next to us, the bird that photographed the scenes, and the dean of the law school, and an organ solo that left us with the highest regard for an all-kind providence that allows childhood to rime with wildwood.

But, as we believe we have said before, the Madison is good. We, prejudiced and biased, enjoyed it. If it doesn't tickle you pink, we'll be surprised.

Addenda: The associate reviewer, familiarly known as the static, wanted something said about the hero. Personally, we thought he was a good old horse, capable, but without much of a part. Anyhow, we promised her we would say something about him. Here it is.

PS: We wonder if we'll get our sixty cents back.

Woman Celebrates Her 103d Birthday

DE SOTO, Wis. — Mrs. Julia A. Coons of De Soto, Wis., has just celebrated her 103d birthday. She was born in Pennsylvania and came to Wisconsin with her parents when 12 years old. She was the other of eight children, and has forty-seven grandchildren, twenty-eight great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild.

POYNETTE — The Poynette Creamery Co. of this village was broken into and robbed some time Saturday night of about 1,000 pounds of butter. P. Dodge, E. H. Tucker and P. W. are the owners of the creamery.

The Cinema

Orpheum Presents Bill Well Balanced and Above Average

By H. B.

"Into Her Kingdom" reminds us a lot of "The Volga Boatman," although it can't compare with it in greatness. But the settings are both in Russia; The plot has similar points; the terrors of revolution are showed somewhat in both; and both have scenes of pathos. Both stress the wide breach between the Russian noblemen and the peasantry, and both show that breach healed in the end by the marriage of the noblewoman and the peasant. But where "The Volga Boatman" gripped you, "Into Her Kingdom" may please you, but it won't move you especially.

Inconsistencies can be detected in various parts of the picture. Although Tatiana and Stepan were supposed to have fled to America in great haste and danger, yet she brought with her, her coronation gown. And again there is that old question of how could a girl born and raised in royalty be happy with a common peasant. Of course, it's possible, but —

A new Corinne, a tragic, crest-fallen person is revealed; a Corinne in a dry-goods store; and a Corinne, as a story-teller to the little neighborhood children. And, by the way, there's the darlingest little girl in this picture; she's just as sweet as she can be. Generally speaking, Corinne does much better in her usual type of picture, where she wears fashionable clothes and is surrounded by society people.

While the picture, "The Ace of Cads" does not compare with Menjou's previous film, "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter" it is the same Menjou who plays the same type of role—that of the blasé man of the world.

Adolphe Menjou has built up for himself a wide following among the cinema fans of today, and yet he is not at all the virile type of youth which most Americans adore. However, it is just that difference which attracts, for Menjou looks inscrutable and inscrutable people usually look interesting. He is not versatile for he always plays the same type of role, that of the suave man about town. Of course sometimes he is a business man, sometimes a king or a prince but always he is efficient and clever, and cognizant of his charms.

In spite of the wonderful-sounding combination of a story by Michael Arlen and the portrayal of it by Adolphe Menjou, "The Ace of Cads" would have been a better picture if the producer had not followed Arlen so closely. At times the subtitles are forced and the action is delayed to make way for repartee—athing which has little place in the silent drama.

Borah Going to Capital to Battle Court

Will Organize Fight to Rescind Action Of Senate

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho will be here next week, it was announced at his office today, to spend the next fortnight before the assembling of the senate in November organizing a fight to rescind the action of the World Court taken at the last session.

Borah will come here directly from his speech at Minneapolis Thursday after conferring with Sen. Shipstead, also an opponent of the World Court.

The Idaho senator will be joined here next week by Sen. Norris of Nebraska, Republican, one of the western Senators who favored strong reservations but voted for the court resolution on the final roll-call. Norris is reported to be ready to join with the irreconcilable foes of the court in a move to rescind ratification of the pact, on the ground that the general situation in Europe and the attitude of members of the League of Nations on

President Coolidge, rather than Sen. Borah, is seen here as holding the key to American entrance to the court. The President has indicated unofficially that action taken at Geneva on the American reservations was unsatisfactory but his policy has not been clearly defined

INTO HER KINGDOM AT STRAND IS MEDIOCRE

By "HECK"

"Nothing new" is probably the most appropriate comment for "Into Her Kingdom" playing at the Strand this week. The picture, as pictures go, is not bad, but nothing different or "out-of-the-ordinary" distinguishes it from the usual Russian film.

The plot is one frequently used and shows Corinne Griffith as the Grand Duchess Tatiana ordered shot by the rebels who have overthrown the Romanoff dynasty. Stepan, the head of the revolutionary faction, forcefully marries her, and, swearing to "break" her proud spirit, takes her with him to America. There they open up a small shop in a New Jersey village, and after a year's time Tatiana gives up her chance for a regaining of her royal kingdom for the kingdom of her husband and child. And the "prince and princess" live happily ever after.

Corinne, without her customary display of gorgeous apparel, is rather weak. In her pictures where she parades in lavish gowns, one forgets the fact that she is inclined to be "posy," but one notices it in this picture where she wears only one extravagant gown, her coronation attire.

A rather imaginative character is given to the picture by the use of colored film in those portions where Fate is shown weaving the various threads of life.

The man who takes the part of Stepan, a new actor, probably does the best acting in the picture.

In brief, "Into Her Kingdom" isn't bad, nor is it special ygood.

3 Russians, One a Woman, Shot as Roumanian Spies

BALTA, Russia — (P) — Three Russians, one a woman, were shot today for alleged espionage in behalf of Roumania. It was charged they gave information systematically to the Roumanian war office respecting the location of soviet army forces.

Three Boys Escape As Locomotive Hits Auto

The slow speed of a car in which they were riding and of a switch engine which struck them was all that saved four youths from serious injury Sunday evening. The crash occurred at the Milwaukee road crossing on W. Washington ave. The boys were Al Gullickson, Potter Brayton, Al Hooker, and a fourth boy whose name is unknown.

Dapper Menjou in Clever Film Now at the Parkway

BY C. P.

"The Ace of Cads" now on at the Parkway would have been much more entertaining than it is if the director had forgotten to use a few subtitles which are taken directly from Michael Arlen, author of the story.

This evidence of stilted production could not, however, prevent the picture from being clever and amusing, since Adolphe Menjou plays the stellar role. His portrayal of a man who in youth having been deprived by trickery of the girl he loved goes through life attempting to forget her is excellent. Menjou's performance always give the impression that he is living the part and not acting it. Alice Joyce has little opportunity for real acting, but she is "easy to look upon." Norman Trevor rather overdoes his role and in the only place where he could do something besides squint his eyes, he doesn't seem to know what to do.

The vaudeville attraction offered in addition to the picture this week is the Marilyn Revue. A particularly clever Irish dance is the only thing which makes it different from most revues.

Nab Platteville Merchant for Arson

PLATTEVILLE—Charged with arson, James Luce, a prominent Platteville business man is in jail here following a fire which threatened destruction to the W. F. Grindell and Sons furniture store.

The entire attic and the rear end of the two story structure had been saturated with kerosene.

Luce was placed under arrest by Julius Krug, assistant state fire marshall, who investigated the fire.

The Grindell company recently offered creditors a settlement of 30 cents on the dollar and is considered insolvent. It is owned by James Luce and Wilma Grindell, having been inherited by them from Charles Grindell.

R. O. T. C. STEPS TO MUSIC AT IOWA

Loudspeakers Bring Victrola Music to Ears of Marching Military Students

A unique "band," the personnel of which consists of a small Victrola, a microphone, several hundred feet of wire, an amplifier, and four loudspeakers, is an innovation in the military science department of the University of Iowa.

Deciding that the use of music would instill a more martial spirit in the new students in the R. O. T. C. drill unit, Capt. Anthony Lagorio, instructor in military science and tactics, successfully tried the experiment with a class of advanced students in the armory. The four loudspeakers were placed on one side of the armory, with the amplifier just outside of a sliding door.

To the amplifier was connected the microphone, which was placed in front of the Victrola on the ground. Commands issuing from the loudspeakers mingled with the music, directing the marchers.

It is expected that this new use of the amplifiers and loudspeakers will be of particular value next spring when the R. O. T. C. students drill out-of-doors. The additional volume and range will enable the men to hear every command given.

Wisconsin Men on Oriental Students' Finance Committee

Four Wisconsin students were named as members of the Finance committee of the National Oriental Students' conference at a meeting of the executive committee in Garrett hall, Evanston, last weekend. Those appointed are Gengo Suzuki, '27, grad, chairman, Yoshinari Sajima '27, Irving Cherdron '27, and Arthur Gosling '28.

The appointments were made by President Haridas T. Mazumdar as part of the plan to hold the second annual meeting of this group at Taylor hall, Racine, Sept. 7-14, 1927. The purpose of the conference is to bring the nationalities of the East and West together to discuss economic, political, religious, and cultural questions.

The first conference, held last September, was attended by students from 14 countries. Wisconsin students who were there are Gertrude Jacobs, '28, Arthur Gosling '28, Gengo Suzuki, grad, Yoshinari Sajima '27, Irving Cherdron '27, and Adelbert Young, Grad.

This group was the largest single delegation.

1928 Badger Will Have Indian Art Theme Throughout

A strong, big-muscled brave dips his paddle deftly into the moonlit waters of Mendota. Opposite him, sitting in the canoe and grasping its sides with long, slender fingers, is a brown-skinned maiden, tanned by summer heat and autumn sunshine.

Such is one of the drawings made by an internationally known artist who has been engaged by the 1928 Badger to do its art work for the art theme of this year's Badger is distinctly Indian. Mr. Holling of Chicago is the man, who was secured through the Brock Engraving Company, a local firm.

At present he is a member of the faculty of the round-the-world trip being conducted by Columbia university. Mr. Holling is a recognized authority on primitive art. His wide knowledge of the Indian tribes of the United States makes his drawings authentic as well as artistic. All of the drawings which he is making for the Badger will be reproduced in seven colors.
