DEDICATION

E.J. PRUCHA, Registrar

A very cheerful man sat down for a chat with a student one day and said, "The only way to help someone with a problem is to put yourself in his place." "Even at my age," he continued, "I can still remember the problems I had as a student. The difficulty with too many of us is that we forget too much. We forget that those things which now seem awfully small to us may mean the whole world to someone else. It's easy to blame a person for his failures. But the only thing that can really help is a little encouragement." And as the student listened, the thought came to him that he was hearing this man's philosophy of life. The image became more clear to him as he recalled from personal experience the many times this philosophy had been helpful and influential.

Every day for the past years, students have felt the effects of this man's philosophy. Words like, "He sure is a grand guy," can almost invariably be heard whenever students walk down the steps from Mr. Prucha's office. All these things came into the student's mind as he listened and watched this jovial, yet dignified, man puff on a pipe that never really seemed to stay lit. As the bell rang, signalling time for other things, he was a little reluctant to leave. Because he, like most persons, wanted to talk longer with this man who has done so many things so well.

The intent of this foreword is a departure from the usual design of such a work. It has as its purpose not so much an introduction to the '58 Meletean, but to the year itself as witnessed by the students with whom this annual is concerned. Hope is held by the staff that those pages which follow will portray 1958 as it progressed on campus. With this in mind we would like to turn the discussion to happenings which are unfortunately impossible to portray in a college yearbook.

Students this year saw two major events take their place in history. They saw the genesis of a new age and for the Western World, particularly the United States, the arrival of a new era. The coming of the space age was an initial fulfillment of a dream that is almost as old as man. Significantly, and we hope symbolically, the coming of this age, in contrast to the last, was heralded not by destruction, but by creation—the creation of a tiny moon.

Ironically, the launching of this first satellite was not greeted everywhere by shouts of joy, nor even admiration. For in the Western World, feeling began to grow that the circling globe, small as it was, signified the beginning of a new era, a new balance of power.

Immediately, there began a vast scurrying. Some of it was sincere investigation. But much of it was little more than scapegoat-finding and me-firsting. The offshoot of it all was the same, however. Almost everyone wanted to know why the U.S. hadn't been first. This was a new experience for many Americans. They had been so long accustomed to being leaders that the second-place position was a bit unwieldy, a bit discouraging, and possibly even a bit frightening. Their mental image of Russians had to be revised. No longer could they be thought of as being slow-thinking and heavy-handed. It became obvious that their efficiency was not totally reflected in consumer goods production—the yardstick long used to measure American progress.

Some even had the courage to wonder if cars weren't getting a trifle too large and security measures, such as the censorship of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, a little too secure. In the end, though, the position was never really considered seriously.

Government news releases had a tendency to label the Russian's sputnik more of a propaganda victory than a scientific achievement. But regardless of the light in which the feat was considered, a national feeling still persisted that Pandora's box had been opened all over again. Trouble indeed lay ahead for the West. Public opinion clouds hung especially low on education's horizon. The humanities were crucified and the sciences blessed in an effort so spasmodic that it was rather humorous to many persons in the field.

Things quieted down considerably when the Army managed to get a satellite aloft. Still, however, there was little doubt that the U.S. had lost a lot of prestige.

Sporadic attempts were being made at East-West talks on everything from Arctic inspection routes to information exchanges. But nothing really came of them. The whole situation was reminiscent of two children arguing over a fence about who would come play in whose backyard. The defense budgets were fat and gaining all the time, and the order was still standing not to fire until the whites of their ICBM trail could be seen.

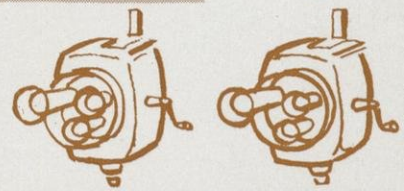

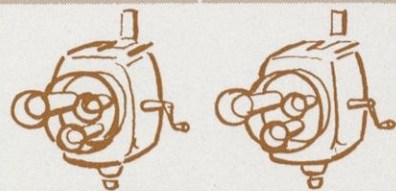

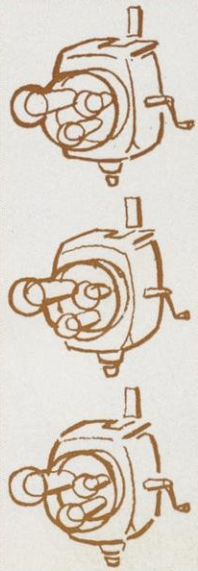

So, RFSC students left the campus for another year having witnessed the advent of a new age and the beginning of a new era, but without having seen the world "Powers" come to a solution of their "problems." Some of these same individuals, along with countless others, left shaking their heads. For they had gained an insight to the true significance of this situation.

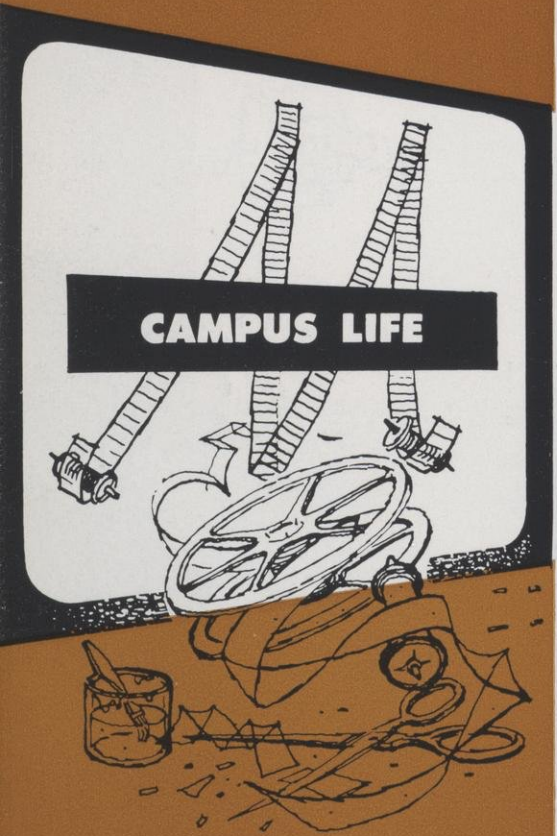

They had long since realized that the difficulty lay not in finding a solution to the problem, but merely in accepting one. This realization had come about by pursuing the world's current path to its logical conclusion: "do unto others before they can do unto you."

They saw that if each country continued down its nationalistic road with armies continually becoming more efficient at killing and men constantly becoming more intense at hating, the world could only wind up as one huge "defense" mechanism.

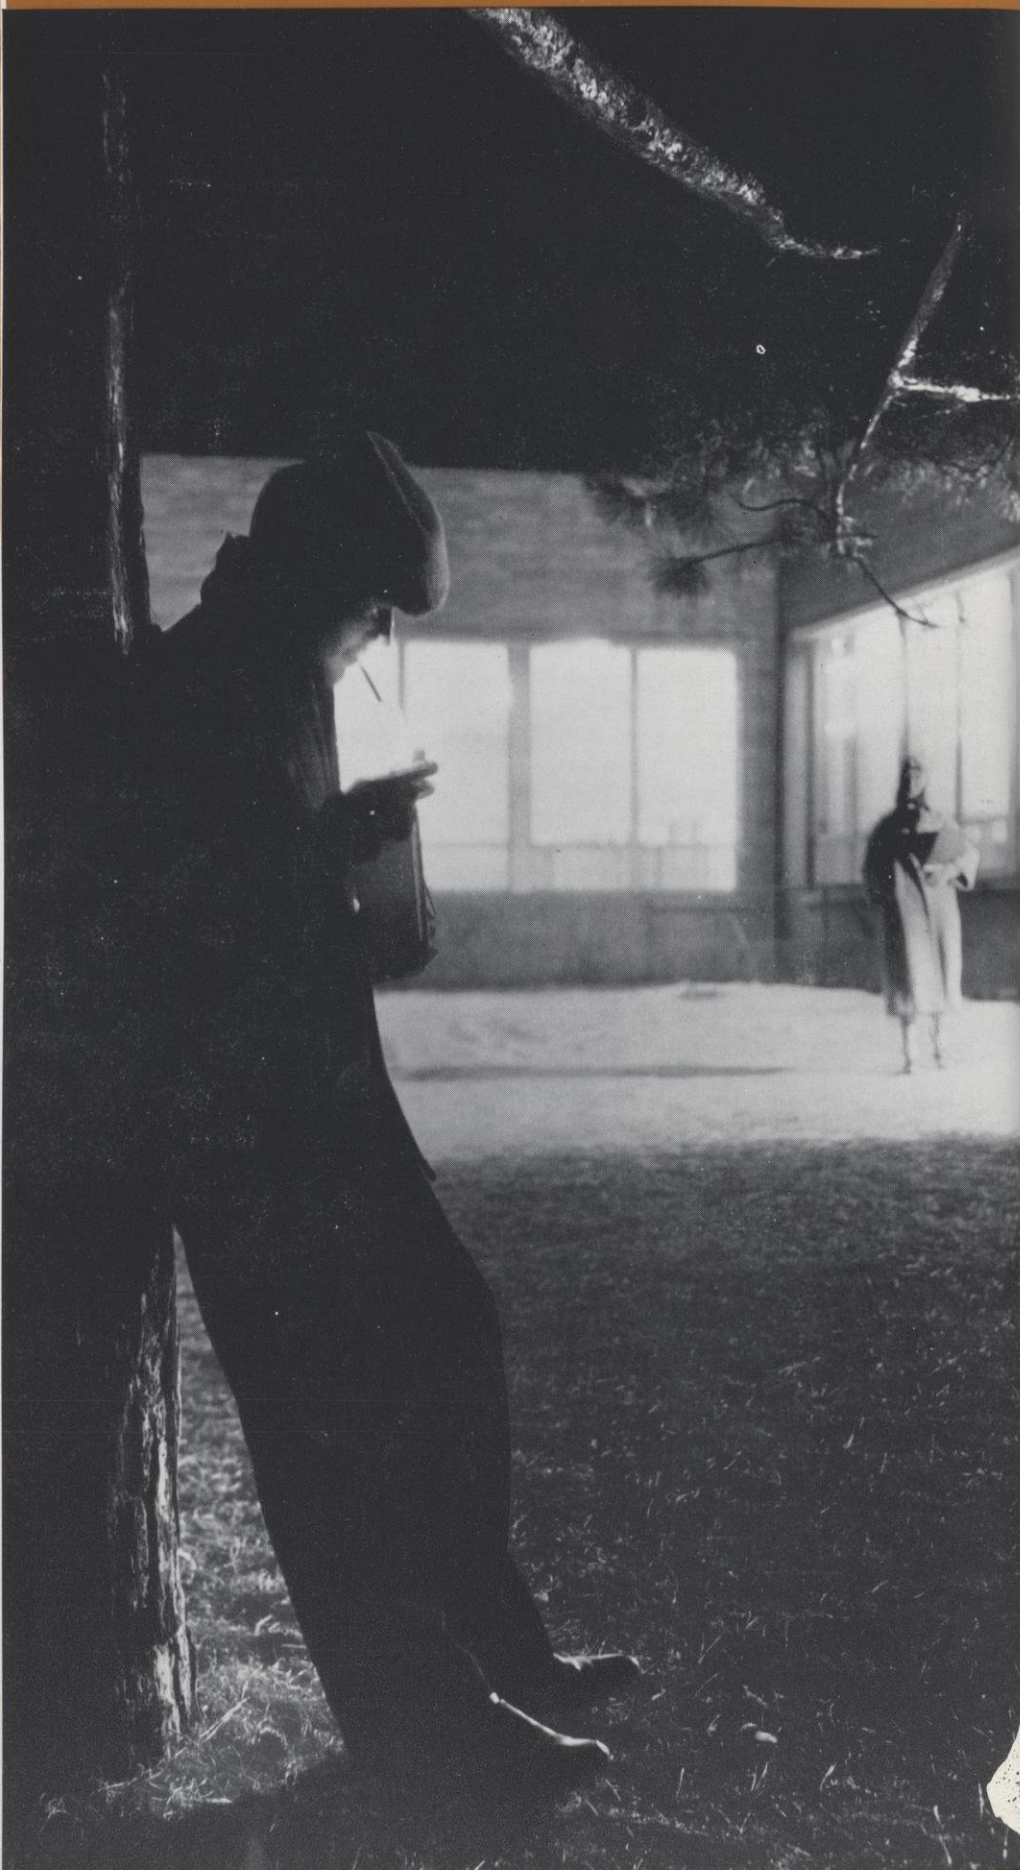

If war were to begin somewhere along the way life would be nothing. And if it didn't human existence would still be but a mockery.

With these thoughts, a few students leaving campus in the spring of 1958 turned to finding a way whereby people would work with rather than against each other. Their insight had shown them that only this solution could continue man's basic purpose of existing and improving.

THE CAMERA EYE

SCANS THE CAMPUS

catching students in varying activities—studying, attending class, engaging in extra-curricular activities, having coffee in the cafeteria, worshipping in church, competing in sports, chatting in the student center. All these are a part of college life.

The picture changes from season to season. First the crisp brown leaves of fall. Then the soft white of newly-fallen snow. The fresh green of spring is followed by a burst of color and the warmth of the summer sun. Campus life, too, moves in cycles—registration, mid-terms, final exams—Homecoming, Winter Carnival, Spring Prom—picnics, skiing, a drive in the country—football, basketball, baseball, and track — freshman, sophomore, junior, senior. The camera views the scene, stopping action, arresting time, recording what it sees.

Recording the Very Beginning of the school year, the photographer's lens travels the campus, pausing at the freshman picnic, glimpsing the registration procedures where students select their classes and decide, in consultation with faculty advisors, about their careers and their future. Will it be teaching . . . medicine . . . forestry . . . agriculture . . . engineering . . . law . . . science? Is it too early to decide?

Getting acquainted with the other 11:00 students or exchanging stories from the summer with old friends is also part of the beginning of a new year.

When Classes Start

the camera views a panorama of classrooms and laboratories. Science labs, lecture classes, group projects, phy ed classes, art labs—all these and many more are available to the college student.

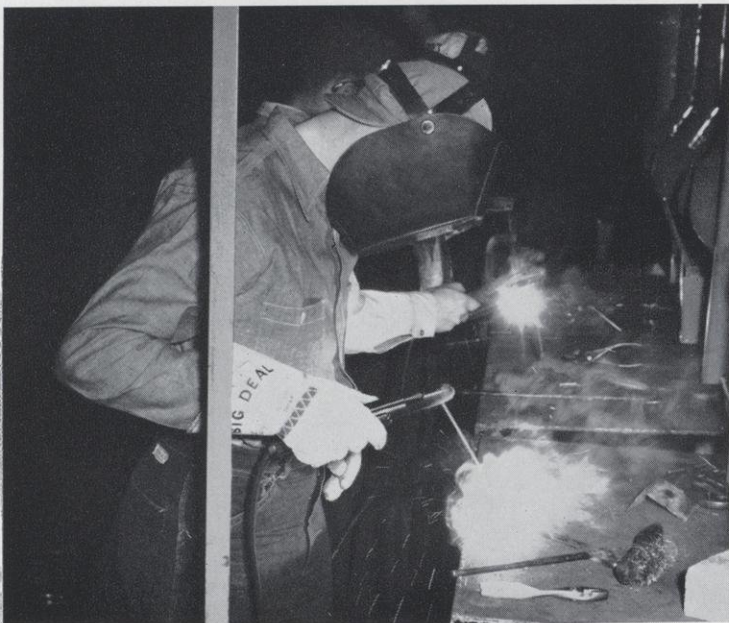

Perhaps as he samples the various offerings, the student finds the fields which most interest him—the studies in which he excels—the areas in which he can make the greatest contribution. In small classes he has a chance for personal talks with his professors—an opportunity to discuss his dreams and ambitions, or to get additional help.

Education Comes In Various Ways

It is an outlook—a way of thought. It comes in classrooms, from books, from faculty members, from fellow-students, from practice, from research, from the very atmosphere. The student learns to examine the ideas of others, to express himself effectively, to enjoy and understand the creative ability of man. Within the realm of books and ideas, he explores the world. Through experience and experiment, he adds to his knowledge.

... And in Many Different Places

The entire campus has a role in the education of the student. He learns in the dormitory, in the library, at social functions, on the athletic field. The student is the center of the college. Its whole program is designed to meet his needs.

Present and Future

The college is engaged in its greatest building program. The fall of 1959 will see the opening of its first dormitory for men — Stratton Hall. The Student Union Building, now under construction, will be completed by May 1, 1959. Work will begin during the summer of 1958 on the Health and Physical Education Building. Then, in quick succession, will come a new laboratory school and a second men's dormitory.

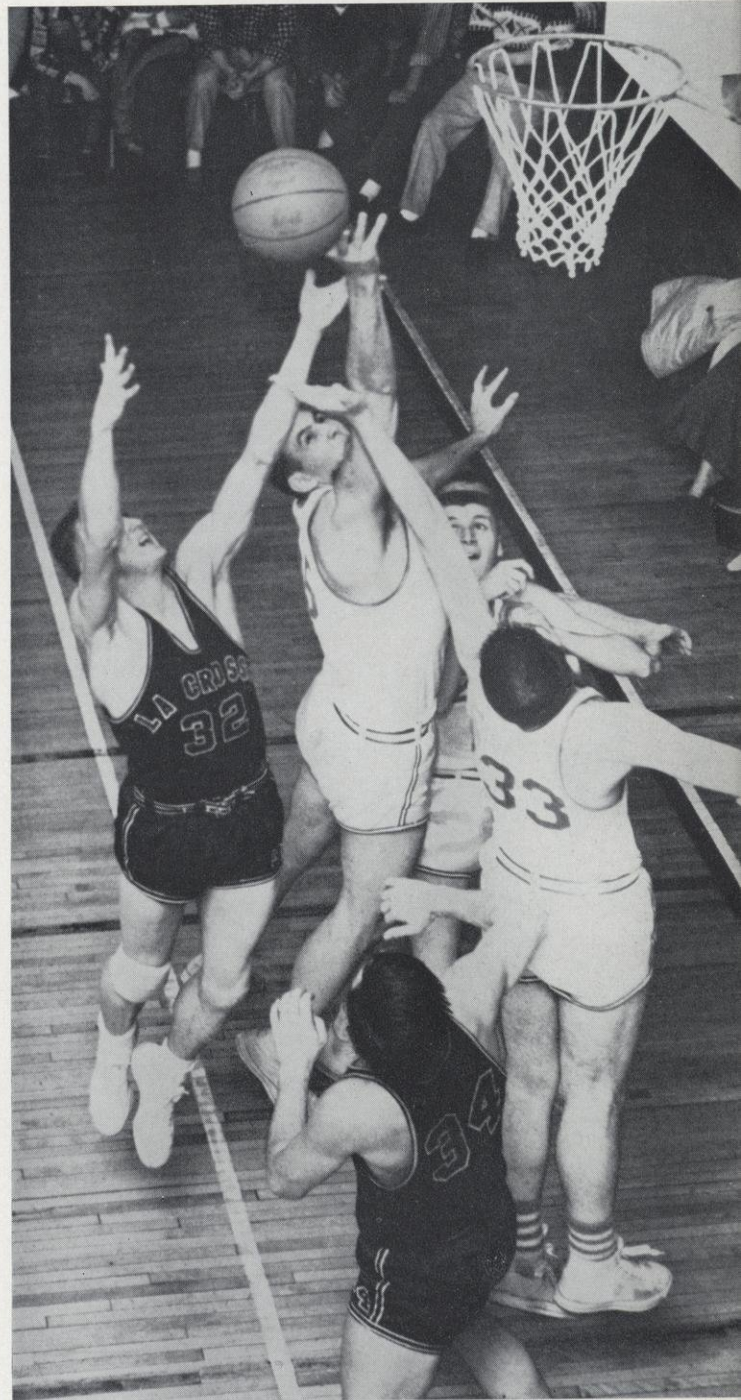

1. North Hall
2. Chalmer Davee Library
3. South Hall
4. Hathorn Hall
5. Industrial Arts Building
6. Agronomy Building

8. Student Union (under construction)
9. Health and Physical Education Building (under construction)
10. Laboratory School (to be constructed soon)
11. Proposed women's residence hall wings
12. Proposed men's residence halls

The Year Progresses

and the camera eye follows the changing scene. With the brisk winter weather the pace on campus seems to quicken. Stimulating personalities are brought to the college — outstanding musicians, writers, artists, and newspapermen come to share their experiences. Leading politicians explain their stands, scientists discuss new developments, travelers bring slides and movies of distant places.

There Are Scenes of Gaiety

and these, too, are reflected in the camera lens. The decorations at the dance sparkle under subdued lights. There is fun in student life — even moments of hilarity.

Parties at the dorm, an amusing happening at rehearsal — all these are part of campus memories. But there are moments also which are more serious.

Of Solemnity . . .

Moments for meditation and thought during which each one brings together the varied areas of learning and experience, binding them together into a way of living. Many students participate in church organizations. Some of these are designed especially for college youth, with weekly discussion periods and meetings of worship.

And of Achievement

The camera sees dramatic moments of achievement — graduation, points scored at a meet, the crowning of a queen, an award received, an honor won. But there are also moments of achievement of which only the student is aware — a difficult problem solved, an idea mastered, a new point of view discovered.

These, then, are scenes recorded in the camera eye. Scenes repeated each year with similar backdrops but a changing cast. Yet, for each student the camera records unique experiences which he will recall with pleasure throughout life.

In Memorium

President Kleinpell

E. H. K.

Members of the 80th graduating class of the college leaving the campus this year have seen an era of unprecedented expansion at River Falls. They have seen the dedication of the Chalmer Davee library, completion of the Agronomy building, the addition of a third floor to Hathorn Hall, the construction of Stratton Hall, and the beginning of work on the Student Union.

There is every reason to believe that freshmen who arrive on campus next fall may remain to see an even greater expansion. Those who are now on campus will eat, buy books, and relax in the Student Union, be graduated in the Health and Physical Education building, and see the walls rise for a new laboratory school.

But these buildings are only better tools for doing a job that has been well-done throughout the history of this institution—the task of educating Wisconsin's youth. Our students may be proud of the caliber of the education they have received here. The records made by those who have preceded them is testimony to its quality.

This has not come about by chance.

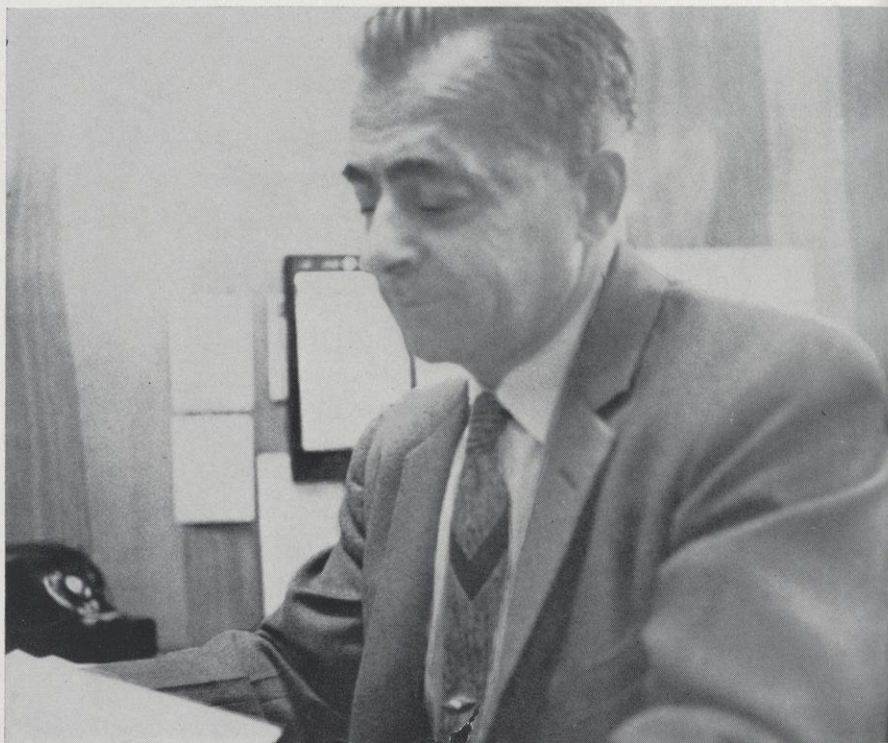

Education at River Falls has remained strong only because there have always been those who cared about it and believed in it—faculty, students, and alumni who have been strong in its defense. So long as this remains true, the College may look forward to an era of ever-increasing influence and service.

This Strange Thing Called A Teacher

And what is this strange thing called a teacher — just who is this being?
He's more than a drinker of coffee —
more than a reader of books — or giver of tests — or grades —
yes, more —
but how much more?
He's more than a thinker of thoughts — more than a giver of talks — or critiques —
for some!
But to how many is he merely a voice for an hour?
— an obstacle to more pleasant things?
— a person to be "outwitted?"
— a consistent bore?
— an old fool?
To how many does he present a constant challenge?
— new ideas and new analysis of old ones?
— new framework for discussion?
— new gratification?
— insight?
Who is he?
How much more is he?
Why is he?
It depends . . .

homecoming - - this was the big one - -

It was Friday, Oct. 11. My partners and I were trying to save a Homecoming. My name is Mike Dodge. My partners' names are Marlin Huppert and Dale Crisler. We're chairmen. The Homecoming is yours. This is how it happened.

7:30 —
It was hot in River Falls.
My partners and I were waiting at North Hall Auditorium for the pep fest to kick off. We were tense. Ozzie Cowles spoke. Then it happened. Queen Sandra Kins was crowned.
The crowd went wild.
We didn't flinch.
We had a job to do.

8:30 —
Huge fire started behind Hathorn Hall.
No arrests.
Saturday, Oct. 12.
My partners and I were lining up the parade.
The Homecoming parade.
Everyone was tense. We were going wild.
Our job was almost done.

10:30 —
Parade begins. Crowd loves it.
Vets Club wins first prize.
11:30 —
Parade is over. Crowd relaxes. We were tense.
We had to win the game.
1:30 —
Game starts. River Falls vs Eau Claire. Rough game.
We win, 23-0. I suspected as much. Sometimes you got to play the hunches. This one paid off.
We were lucky.

5:30 —
Smorgasbord dinner, Cafeteria. My partners and I were staked out under the coffee urn. It was hot.
We spotted two brunettes.
President Kleinpell and his wife.
No arrests.
9:00 —
Big dance. Hudson gym. Hilltoppers sing.
The crowd loves it.
We didn't flinch.
Too tired.

. . . and in a few months
you'll see the results of this trial:

"I wonder where the treasure is hidden this year?" . . . a familiar comment as the campus swings into its annual Winter Carnival. This was its thirty-second. The four days as usual were filled with activities to suit almost everyone . . . "and we get out of classes for the Midway this afternoon."

"Hey! we've got snow for the Carnival this year. Last winter we had to import it." Worked into all sorts of designs from a "Kool" penguin to a giant chocolate sundae, snow sculptures dotted the campus for most of the winter as a reminder of Carnival fun. First prize in sculpturing was won for the second consecutive year by United Student Fellowship with their version of "Baby It's Cold Outside," depicted by a mother kangaroo and her bundled baby.

"Only five cents for three throws . . . give him a good soaking with the wet sponge . . . get rid of your frustrations." Students hawked candy apples, paper leis, and oriental fans in the best midway tradition. Behind the scenes, Chairwoman Marie Forman and her two assistants, Carol Naiberg and Lynn Radkey were worrying if the bowling tournament was going to finish on time and if it might not be too cold for the hockey game.

"And I heard that the first time he saw snow was after starting school at River Falls" . . . as Al Suezaki was crowned King. Sonja Zoller . . . "that pretty little blonde" . . . reigned with him.

"Boy, is that wind miserable. I'm heading for the chalet" . . . the weather made outdoor activities a bit unpopular.

Some of the hardy Sitzmarkers didn't seem to mind, however, as they spent Saturday afternoon at Ski Mac.

But everyone got warm in the end as they danced at the Carnival Semi-Formal. "It was quite a Carnival, wasn't it?"

'hey, where are you going next?'

the theatre year

the teahouse of the august

oooh boss,

what you think?

"I sat down expecting to see an amateur performance and left feeling as if I had seen a professional production."

Remarks such as this come very close to summarizing the year in theatre at River Falls.

As usual, the season's program held enough variety to suit the range of campus tastes as demonstrated vividly by the sell-out crowds at TEAHOUSE OF THE AUGUST MOON for its three-night run.

Masquers began the year with the tragic DEATH OF A SALESMAN (by Arthur Miller). It was indeed ". . . a memorable experience."

For, as the Voice review continued, "conflict and feeling were present in the play, present in strength, and present with distinction."

SALESMAN, ". . . as every story, was the story of one man's war. The setting and the battlefield are only incidental."

These lines come not from SALESMAN, but from the year's second production, THE PRISONER (by Bridget Boland). Also a tragedy, this play was a perfect example of the adaptability, ingenuity, and general "make do" tradition of campus theatre. Following this tradition even to the extent of housing their electrician under a desk for the entire performance, Richard Doetkott and his cast presented a most favorable example of student drama and student creativity here.

An impressive amount of planning and thought was evident in the production's transformation of South gym into a proper stage, a stage on which good acting was seen.

As the season progressed, those close to the theatre generally came to the consensus that ". . . the most beautiful of all was the TEAHOUSE OF THE AUGUST MOON" (by John Patrick).

Masquers, under Dr. Blanche Davis, demonstrated definite professional ability in their portrayal of the simplicity, subtlety, meaning, and profound beauty which is to be found in TEAHOUSE. Little Theatre-goers next saw THE MISER (by Moliere), another student production, handled by Lynn Radkey.

The performance neatly brought out the comedy of grasping individuals as intended by the author.

Henri Elzinga's production of VIEW FROM THE BRIDGE (by Arthur Miller) rounded out the season. In this presentation, the true meaning could be seen of a statement once made by Maxwell Anderson:

"There is no test more exacting than to put a human emotion on the stage and examine it."

"... gives its members a deeper understanding of the cultural aspects of drama as well as the experience of acting in and staging plays."

The group encompasses all persons interested in theatre and provides them with a common bond.

Presentations this year included DEATH OF A SALESMAN and the Fine Arts Festival feature, TEAHOUSE OF THE AUGUST MOON.

In the fall a get-acquainted party for freshmen was given.

Various aspects of theatre at River Falls were shown to the new students. Masquers works closely with Alpha Psi Omega to promote dramatics in all forms on campus.

This year's officers included:

band and chior

It was a year of new things for the RFSC music program. Culture and agriculture were brought closer together when the College Concert Band moved to the old agronomy building, more commonly called, "The Hen House." A few practice sessions convinced everyone that the roof wasn't going to blow off after all and band members settled down to enjoying the convenience of having their own building.

The band's director, William Abbott, was also new this year. He soon came to be noted for his energy and was in a large part responsible for the music program's successful year.

Another first for the band was the inclusion of an electronic instrument, the Solovox, in its spring concert. So far as can be determined, this was the first time the instrument has been used as an integral part of an instrumental organization. The Solovox replaces missing reed tone color and augments the volume of certain reeds.

The Band and Choir, along with other music groups on campus, made big contributions to the Fine Arts Festival.

Both groups gave concerts during the week, the Band appearing with world-famous composer and pianist, Percy Grainger.

Additional programs by the Choir were a Christmas Music Festival, their twelfth, and a Spring concert.

The Festival featured Christmas music and carols from different countries throughout the world. Other appearances by the Band included a Spring concert, a pop concert on the lawn in June, football games, Homecoming, and Commencement.

The two organizations combined for a tour of Southern Wisconsin towns in March. The tour, according to Director Abbott, "was a reward for work well done during the past year."

music educator's national conference

"... expresses a music for every child, every child for music philosophy."

The Music Educator's National Conference attempts to acquaint future music teachers with some of the problems and their solutions that are often found in the field. Another goal is to create an awareness of music education's scope and complexity. MENC also tries to provide professional advancement and opportunities for the prospective teacher.

This year's officers included:

President, Harry Elzinga;
 Vice-President, John Kirk; Secretary-Treasurer, Audrey Kane; Advisor, Mary Laura Johnson.

madrigal singers

Harry Elzinga, Marge Olson, Edward Thompson, Audrey Kane, Richard Meulemanns, Phyllis Anderson, Jerry Olson, Shelby King.

During their second year on campus, the Men's Chorus, directed by Nicholas Jadinak, grew and prospered. The chorus performed at many musical events and was a feature of the Fine Arts Festival. The only all-girl college marching band in the state of Wisconsin is the honor held by the Falconettes.

Organized and directed by a senior music major, Marlys Olson, the group provided half-time entertainment at football games and performed at school and out-of-town functions during the year.

The Madrigal Singers, under the direction of Mary Laura Johnson, were another feature of Fine Arts week. They present a light touch in music on campus, singing rounds and folk tunes. The College Orchestra also adds a special touch to campus music.

Under the direction of Nicholas Jadinak, the group also performed during the Fine Arts Festival.

'58 was a year of accomplishment for the debate squad — most years are. The season's record was impressive, with the best team having an 83.3 win percentage. This was accomplished in tournaments at such places as Bradley University in Peoria, Illinois, University of Illinois in Chicago, University of Minnesota, Midland College in Nebraska, University of Wisconsin, and Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois.

But actually, as almost any experienced debater will verify, wins and losses are far from being the activity's primary aspect. This, as it might first seem, is not a cure-all rationalization for poor records. Debate is an intellectual activity of the highest order. The satisfaction that comes from logical thinking and convincing arguments transcends the lesser stimulation of winning and losing. The business of conceiving an idea, pursuing it through research, and finally expressing it clearly under the pressure of a time limit is exacting and often frustrating, but highly gratifying. Feats of this nature bring about personal evaluation. Debaters know when they finish a round whether they have "won" or "lost." The assignment of such terms by a judge is often superfluous. Overall, debaters seldom "lose."

" . . . perpetuates the ideal of persuasion, beautiful and just." Co-ordinating activities between debate alumni and the current squad, along with recognizing outstanding speech students by conferring honorary memberships, are the organization's main purposes. Annually, the group honors a sophomore member of the debate squad with a scholarship sponsored by the River Falls State Bank. The campus activities of Pi Kappa Delta this year were centered around a Homecoming banquet for the alumni, a "B" debate tournament, a Spring Festival, a Provincial tournament, and the annual spring initiation.

the publications

People are awfully hard to please.

That's probably the first lesson all editors and staff members of school publications have to learn. Student Voice editors soon discover that every story belongs on the front page and deserves at least a two-column head. Prologue editors find out equally fast how easy it is to hurt the feelings of a writer who has spent a great deal of time writing something that still needs a lot of polishing. And if The Meletean had twice as many pages, its editors would still see that there wasn't room for everything.

The result of all this is that some stories are cut, some articles condensed, and a lot of pictures cropped or eliminated. Everyone agrees that this process is essential for all items except those he himself has written or that concern groups of which he is a member. Each publication has its specific purpose and its specific considerations. The student body must always be considered, of course, along with the faculty, administration, and the school's alumni. Most influential of the three is the Voice which serves every week to stimulate, if not lead, campus opinion. Its weekly editorial stand, in one form or another, usually serves either to expound on some controversy, or bring one to light, something that often requires a certain amount of courage and insight on the editor's part. This year, as always, the paper has worked toward the goal set forth by its name.

The Prologue has continued in its second year to be an outlet for students doing creative writing. Inside a new color cover, the magazine has broadened its offerings with more picture-stories, contemporary cartoons, and poetry.

Traditionally, The Meletean serves as an illustrated memo pad. In '58 the book's staff, besides providing material for Vets Club skits, has attempted to catch the essence of the year as it progressed — a job that appears to be constantly growing.

Regardless of their different purposes, contents, and achievements, the publications all have one thing in common. They all owe a great deal of gratitude to those persons who make it possible for them to come out regularly, these being the same people who are so awfully hard to please.

the student administration

"A leader . . ."

"Mature,"

"Intelligent,"

"Thoughtful,"

"Sincere."

They meet every Monday night at 6:30 in the Knotty Pine Room, or the small, stuffy cubicle next to where they play ping pong.

It gets smokey in those places on Monday nights and a lot of coffee cups accumulate . . .

"Now, the next piece of business . . ."

And somebody from the Homecoming Committee asks who's going to write the check for the dance band . . .

"That's the treasurer's department, isn't it . . ."

"I thought . . ."

"We may want to send a representative to . . ."

"It'll cost you at least . . ."

"Who'd benefit?"

"Certainly the guy who goes. He'd have a ball."

"The school should be represented"

"There'll be a chance to talk to other students"

". . . bring back new ideas?"

"Maybe . . ." "Let's vote on it."

"Now, this class constitution . . ."

"It doesn't seem to allow for . . ."

"Is anybody here representing the Sophomore Class?"

"How do you plan to hold election of your officers?"

"You'd better write that in."

"Now, the Deans have a word to say . . ."

"This appears to be a problem."

"Would somebody like to put that into the form of a motion?"

"Several students approached me on this last week."

"President Kleinpell said . . ."

"We'll vote."

"Have you got that in the minutes?"

"What would that mean for the students?"

"Have you got a cigarette?"

"I'm out."

. . . and so goes this business of pleasing both student body and administration; in it there's little glory and much grief. Senate members always seem to have a little less time to sit in the caf and just one more detail which should have been done yesterday. And invariably that one question must be answered,

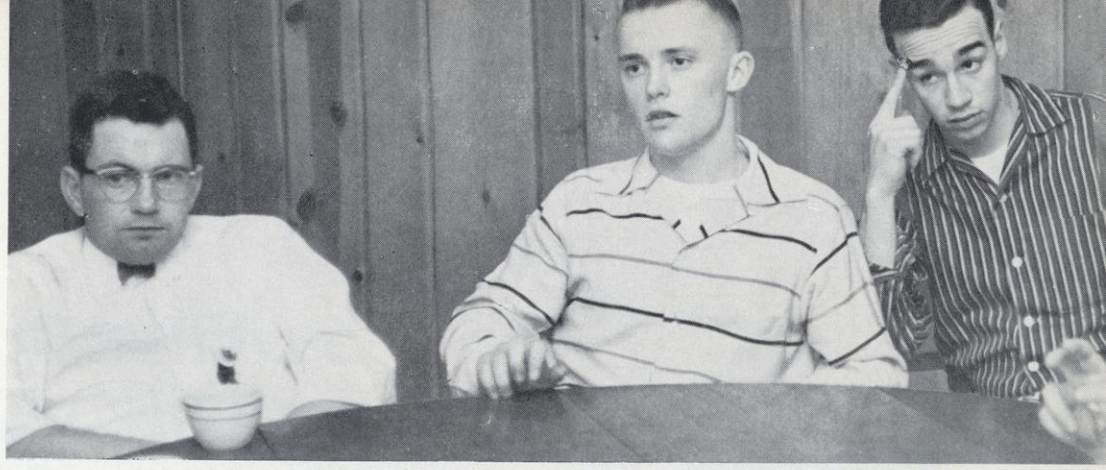

"Why?"

" . . . promotes and initiates all-school activities."

Positions in the group are filled by Student Senate appointment.

The Social Committee this year organized numerous all-school dances, along with the Doc Evans jazz concert, the Freshman Talent Show, and the For Mor Show.

They also assisted campus organizations in sponsoring social activities of various kinds. The work of this committee is to a large part responsible for the well-rounded calendar of school events.

This year's officers included: President, Marge Olson; Secretary, Lynn Radkey.

" . . . attempts to form a lasting bond between the school and its alumni."

They stress the duties performed by alumni to present students and promote fund-raising campaigns for campus improvements.

Accomplishments this year by the group included the organization of Foundation Week in April, featuring an assembly with State Senator Robert Knowles as guest speaker, a dance, an auction sale, and a musical revue. A total of $130, to be used in the purchase of furnishings for the Student Union was collected during the week.

gamma omicron

“ . . . fervent in spirit — serving the Lord.”

Gamma Omicron maintains and encourages Lutheran fellowship and consciousness on campus.

Establishing fraternal relations with Lutheran students of other institutions, Gamma Omicron held a Box Social with chapters from Eau Claire and Stout. In November the group attended the Lakes Region Fall Convention in Madison and held their annual Thanksgiving Banquet. Other functions attended by the organization were Winter Camp in Michigan, the President's Conference in Winona, Minn., and the Spring Workshop in Milwaukee. Gamma Omicron, by fostering study of the Bible, strives to train Lutheran students for lay leadership in the church.

newman club

... tries to enrich the Catholic student religiously, supplementing his professional education with theological training. Carrying out their religious education program, the group organized a course in church history for its members. Various speakers in the fields of law, medicine, and education spoke to the group on "How Catholicism Directs My Professional Decisions."

The acquisition this year of a Newman Center used for both religious and social functions brought further unity and a larger membership to the organization. Another addition to the club was a dance band, called the Cardinals, which played for school dances, club parties, and various dances outside the community. Activities which continued from past years included Sunday night suppers, First Friday breakfasts, and the year's highlight, the Cardinal Newman Day banquet. Through their various activities and programs, Newman Club strives constantly to perfect the student as a citizen and future secular leader.

united student fellowship

“ . . . attempts to discuss controversial subjects in a Christian light, provides a social outlet for students, and increases the religious understanding of all its members.”

United Student Fellowship is the collegiate organization uniting Evangelical and Reformed, Congregational, and Presbyterian students.

To bring a closer feeling with God, to preserve individual freedom in a world of ever-increasing conformity, and to provide social life in a Christian setting — these are some of the USF aims.

The group continued this year its Friday evening “Firesides,” which combine a discussion and social evening, thus giving students “something to do” on Friday night.

The group participated widely in campus activities, winning first place in snow sculpture during Winter Carnival. One highlight of the year’s activities was the “Meal in the Upper Room,” an inspirational program preceding Easter.

"... is organized for persons interested in the education and well-being of children from nursery through elementary ages." Its purposes include: promotion of desirable conditions, programs, and practices for the teaching of children; bringing into active cooperation all groups concerned with children; and informing the public of the needs felt by children with emphasis on adjustment of our schools to fit these needs.

In connection with National Book Week, the group sponsored a Book Fair during November. Delegates from the local chapter attended the National Convention in Atlantic City, N. J. Other special events included the annual get-acquainted picnic and spring banquet. Programs of speakers connected with various aspects of education were featured at regular meetings. ## atelier

“ . . . sponsors discussions about various art mediums and processes with special emphasis on understanding and attempting to appreciate the creator and his work.”

A large contribution to the Fine Arts Festival including arrangements for exhibits of paintings, prints, and work from the department was made by the group. The club also participated in displays during Homecoming and Winter Carnival.

Atelier strives to contribute art forms to the campus, while endeavoring to seek out the meanings behind them.

Their aims to understand and comprehend the basis of art contributes not only to the welfare of the college but also to their individual satisfaction.

chess club

"Check" . . . "En Garde!" . . . little else is heard at meetings of the College Chess Club since its members are interested only in improving their game — a feat that is not often accomplished by talking. Most of these persons no longer consider chess in the light of being a game.

To many it is more the pitting of one mind against another, with the knights and pawns, the bishops and queens, being mere extensions of the intellect. Each game means a new plan and a new counterplan. Traps are laid and sprung with the constant realization that every move can mean the difference between winning and losing.

Chess originated in India around the 13th century. It has often been called the game of kings, an air of nobility which Chess Club members feel it has every right to assume.

To the "uninitiated," however, the game frequently appears to be little more than a waste of time and extremely dull.

But anyone familiar with the game and its intricacies is aware of the high-pitched battle that takes place within the narrow boundaries of every chess board.

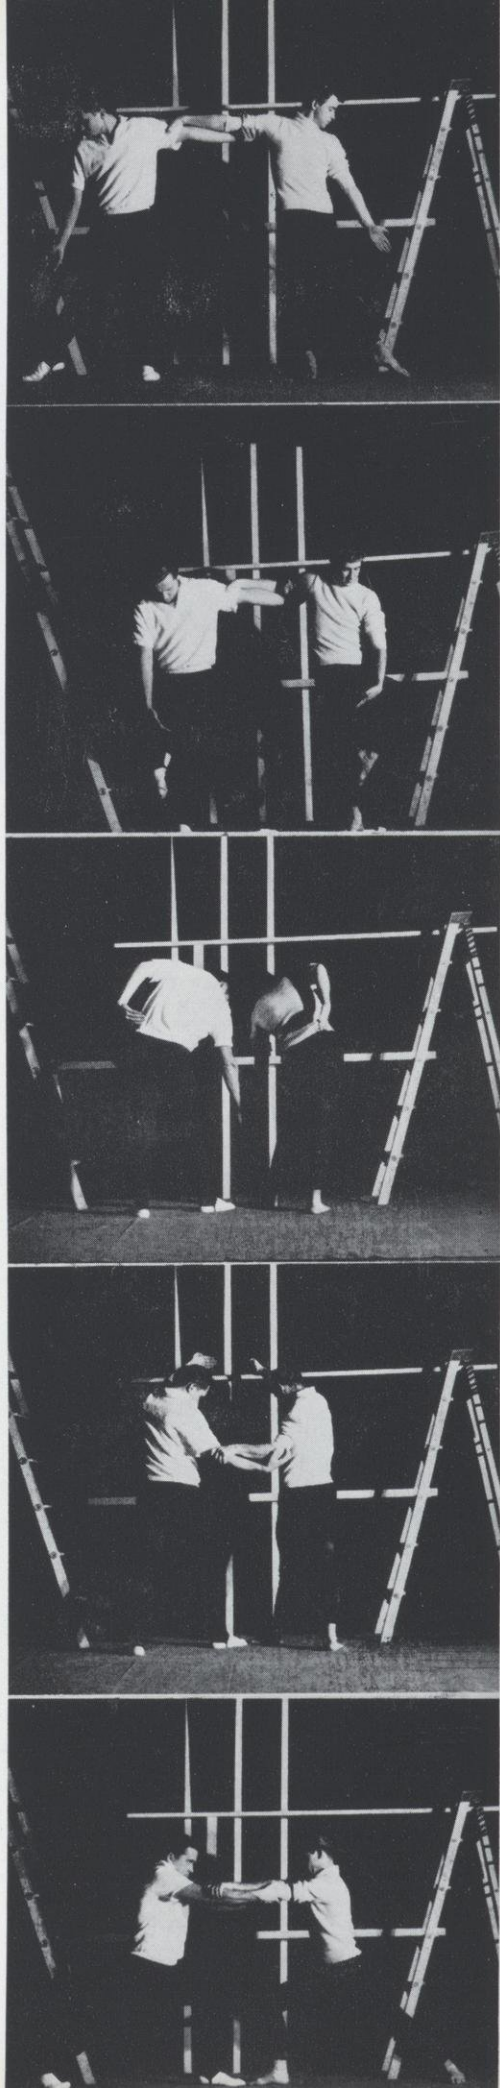

This conflict is the force that makes chess players sit for long hours saying little and thinking much.

dance theatre

A place to dance? — any place — a stage — a table. Music — Debussy — Richard Rodgers — Perez Prado. The music starts — the body and the mind begin to move — moving together now to interpret the music — constantly searching and grasping for a theme — an idea. Muscles respond as a mood can be felt taking shape. Mind and body coordinate to capture — to portray. The body is in motion — a motion of beauty — of meaning — and complete reality. A leg moves up — an arm movement develops to enhance body action and they converge into an entity for a dramatic lunge. The music grows to a crescendo — the heart pounds — veins stand out — and the soul feels alive because a creation has been experienced.

" . . . offers an excellent training ground for the development of leadership in agriculture and its teaching." Promotion of good citizenship among the group's members is evidenced by many events which they sponsor in close cooperation with one another.

Homecoming and Winter Carnival exhibit the energy of the organization in float-building, skits, and the annual Talent Show. The Winter Semi-Formal is another of the year's activities handled by the FFA. Among the decorations was a 12-foot high revolving snowman constructed in the ag shops. All these activities help to further one of the club's main purposes — providing capable instructors for high school FFA chapters in the state and nation. "... strives to gain a familiarity with the French people, their customs, and their language."

For example, members had a taste of French pastry during the annual Christmas party held at the late Monsieur McKeen's home. Delving a bit into French films, Le Cercle Francais sponsored "Pastorale Symphonie," by Gide in March. Later in the year, French drama was presented in the form of Jean Paul Sartre's "No Exit" by members of the club and drama department. Integrating all these activities was the effort to achieve a more complete command of the French language.

german club

“. . . attempts an understanding of the German people beyond the classroom." Informal meetings held each month allow Deutsch students to become better acquainted with the culture and history, as well as the language of Germany. A picnic supper introduced and concluded the year, with guest speakers, a German supper, and slides of the country's scenery making this year's activities interesting while furthering the club's objectives.

kappa delta pi

" . . . forms the nucleus of their national honorary education fraternity by selecting members on the basis of leadership and scholastic ability."

This year the members of Kappa Delta Pi established a scholarship for a worthy student in the field of education. Another project was the annual sale of Wisconsin Historical Society calendars.

Other activities of Kappa Delta Pi included a New Year's party, May initiation, and attendance at the National Convention in March.

math club

"... discusses numbers and problems over coffee cups."

At their informal meetings, the Mathematics Club provides an opportunity for students and faculty in the field to associate with others having the same interests within the framework of thoughtful discussion.

The club, which is open to all students, works to further this contemplation of math outside the classroom. Joining forces with the Chemistry Club, the group held their Christmas Banquet at Glen Park Lodge. Along with other campus science groups, they took part in the Annual Science Fair, April 10, giving high school pupils a chance to see a variety of scientific experiments in action.

national council of teachers of english

" . . . proposes to foster professional spirit and interest in Language Arts among undergraduates training for work in the field of education."

A social-professional organization, the local Council has regular informal and semi-formal get-togethers with the usual climax of coffee and cookies. Student and faculty discussion panels, guest speakers, a foreign film and a Christmas party filled the year's meetings with interest.

In an effort to cure its crippled financial condition, the NCTE sponsored a record dance and a magazine sale. Profits from such business ventures as these are used each fall to send a local member to the national convention.

In November, the NCTE, as a junior affiliate of the National Council, aided in organizing the national convention in Minneapolis and helped promote junior chapters in other colleges.

This year's officers included: President, Donna Williams; Vice-President, Bob Vermillion; Secretary-Treasurer, Sue Christenson; Program Chairman, Carol Naiberg; Advisor, Francis P. Chisholm.

“ . . . aims to perpetuate a spirit of good will and cooperation in relations with the faculty, student body, and campus organizations.” Its members are interested in the building of strong healthful minds and bodies.

The late coach, Philip Belfiori, will be recorded in the annals of this organization forever by the establishment of a needy-student scholarship in his honor. A Belfiori trophy will also be given annually to an outstanding football player by the club. The group serves to promote the best possible presentation of all college athletics, including intramurals.

This year's officers included: President, Richard Wood; Vice-President, Ken Ellingson; Secretary-Treasurer, Duane Teska; Advisor, Fran Polsfoot.

rural life club

" . . . attempts to become familiar with problems confronting rural school teachers today."

Club members are enrolled in the two-year elementary curriculum.

The organization's prime purposes are a broadening of interest in rural teaching and gaining increased knowledge on the problems found in rural schools and villages.

An informal Christmas party at the home of Dr. Garnett was part of the group's social activities. They also participated in Homecoming and Winter Carnival events.

" . . . has a threefold purpose of service, culture, and sociability."

To be a member of Sigma Chi Sigma, women must maintain a high grade-point average and possess desirable personality and character traits. Membership in the organization is by invitation only.

Each year the society serves the college by presenting a scholarship to an outstanding freshman girl and undertaking such drives as the Christmas Seal program. Along cultural lines, members attended a concert by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra and heard prominent speakers in the fields of art, music, and literature. Service and fun for all were combined when Sigma Chi Sigma sponsored a Spaghetti Supper in January and the afternoon Warm-Up during Winter Carnival.

Under the guidance of patient faculty members, Sigma members learned to play bridge at a February meeting. A dinner party climaxed their year of activities.

“ . . . a hole in the snow, caused by falling down,” an apt name for the college ski club. Comprised of a group of hardy outdoor enthusiasts, the club promotes interest in the sport of skiing and handles outdoor activities for Winter Carnival.

Despite below zero temperatures, Sitzmarkers sponsored a successful Ski-Day at Ski-Mac, a near-by resort, during Winter Carnival.

Other activities included weekend trips to various ski resorts in the upper Mid-West and a yearly ski journey to the mountains of Colorado.

student national education association

" . . . attempts to arrive at a real idea of teaching."

Formerly known as the Future Teachers of America, the organization tries to acquaint the student with teaching as a profession.

In addition, it attempts to familiarize future teachers with the problems they might encounter and also the rewards they will receive. The organization is open to any student in the field of education. SNEA members attended the Wisconsin Education Association Convention at Milwaukee in November. They later went to the state SNEA convention at Milwaukee Downer College.

In hopes of encouraging high school students to enter teaching, the SNEA promoted high school chapters in this area.

toastmasters

“ . . . makes possible self-improvement of skill in public speaking and the usage of parliamentary procedure.”

This all-male organization attempts to increase the poise of its members in business, civic, and social relationships. The local chapter is a branch of the Eau Claire Toastmasters Club of Toastmasters International. Each year the group holds a contest to select the toastmaster of the year who presides during their annual Spring Banquet.

"... is organized to provide a feeling of unity and fellowship among the veterans on campus."

This is brought about mainly through participation in school activities. The group sponsored many Homecoming activities and demonstrated an active interest in intramural sports. Outstanding events during the year were the annual Christmas party, a variety show of amateur and professional talent, and the Veteran's picnic. This spring the annual Children's Day provided for orphaned and needy children a day "on the Vets."

This year's officers included: President, Neil McClellan; Vice-President, Bernard Feld; Secretary, Otto Becker; Treasurer, Robert Nelson; Advisor, Gerhardt Bohn.

women's recreation association

" . . . promotes permanent interest in organizing and sponsoring recreational activities for women."

Volleyball, basketball, tennis, and badminton fill the year's calendar of sports for the Women's Recreation Association. Tournaments in all these activities are held for group members. In addition, they annually sponsor a high school Play Day and Faculty-WRA basketball game.

This year the faculty came out on top by a score of 12-9. Fran Polsfoot in his UCLA football jersey, bermuda shorts, and red and green argyle socks led the puffing faculty in scoring. WRA business enterprises include selling school stationery and Homecoming corsages. The year's social highlight was a formal candlelight initiation for new members.

This year's officers included: Co-Presidents, Pat Phillips, Marie Forman; Vice-President, Pat Kane; Secretary-Treasurer, Gwen Schlough; Publicity Manager, Marilyn Hedlund; Business Manager, Helen Monchilovich; Advisor, Adeline Levin.

“ . . . become better citizens through knowledge of the who's, what's, and wherefore's of politics.”

With this objective in mind, the Young Democrats took an active part in the March State Convention at Stevens Point. Theirs was the largest delegation of Young Democrats in attendance.

The Grass Roots Political Conference in January received full backing from this group. Events such as these help further the Y-Dem's aim of acquainting and informing students of the men and issues in our contemporary political world.

One of the largest of Young Democrat organizations in Wisconsin, the club was represented this year on the State Executive Board by Gordon Lee. Through their activities, the organization serves to stimulate an active interest in politics and, at the same time, serve a social function on campus.

This year's officers included: President, Jerry Anderson; Vice-President, Jay Bergstrand; Secretary, Robert Nelson; Treasurer, Mark Wyman; Publicity Chairman, Larry Gaunslacker; Advisors, Edward Peterson, Clarence Storla, Walker Wyman, Richard Darr.

young republicans

"... believe in party politics, not the uninformed, independent, and often apathetic approach."

With the aim of sound government through Republicanism, the group took part in a state convention in Racine this year. This meeting, along with campaigning for various elections, helped familiarize members with the basic principles and practices of government.

The Young Republicans gave political interest on campus and in the surrounding area a boost by bringing Lt. Governor Knowles to River Falls for an open meeting. The organization also helped sponsor a bi-partisan banquet during the January Grass Roots Political Conference.

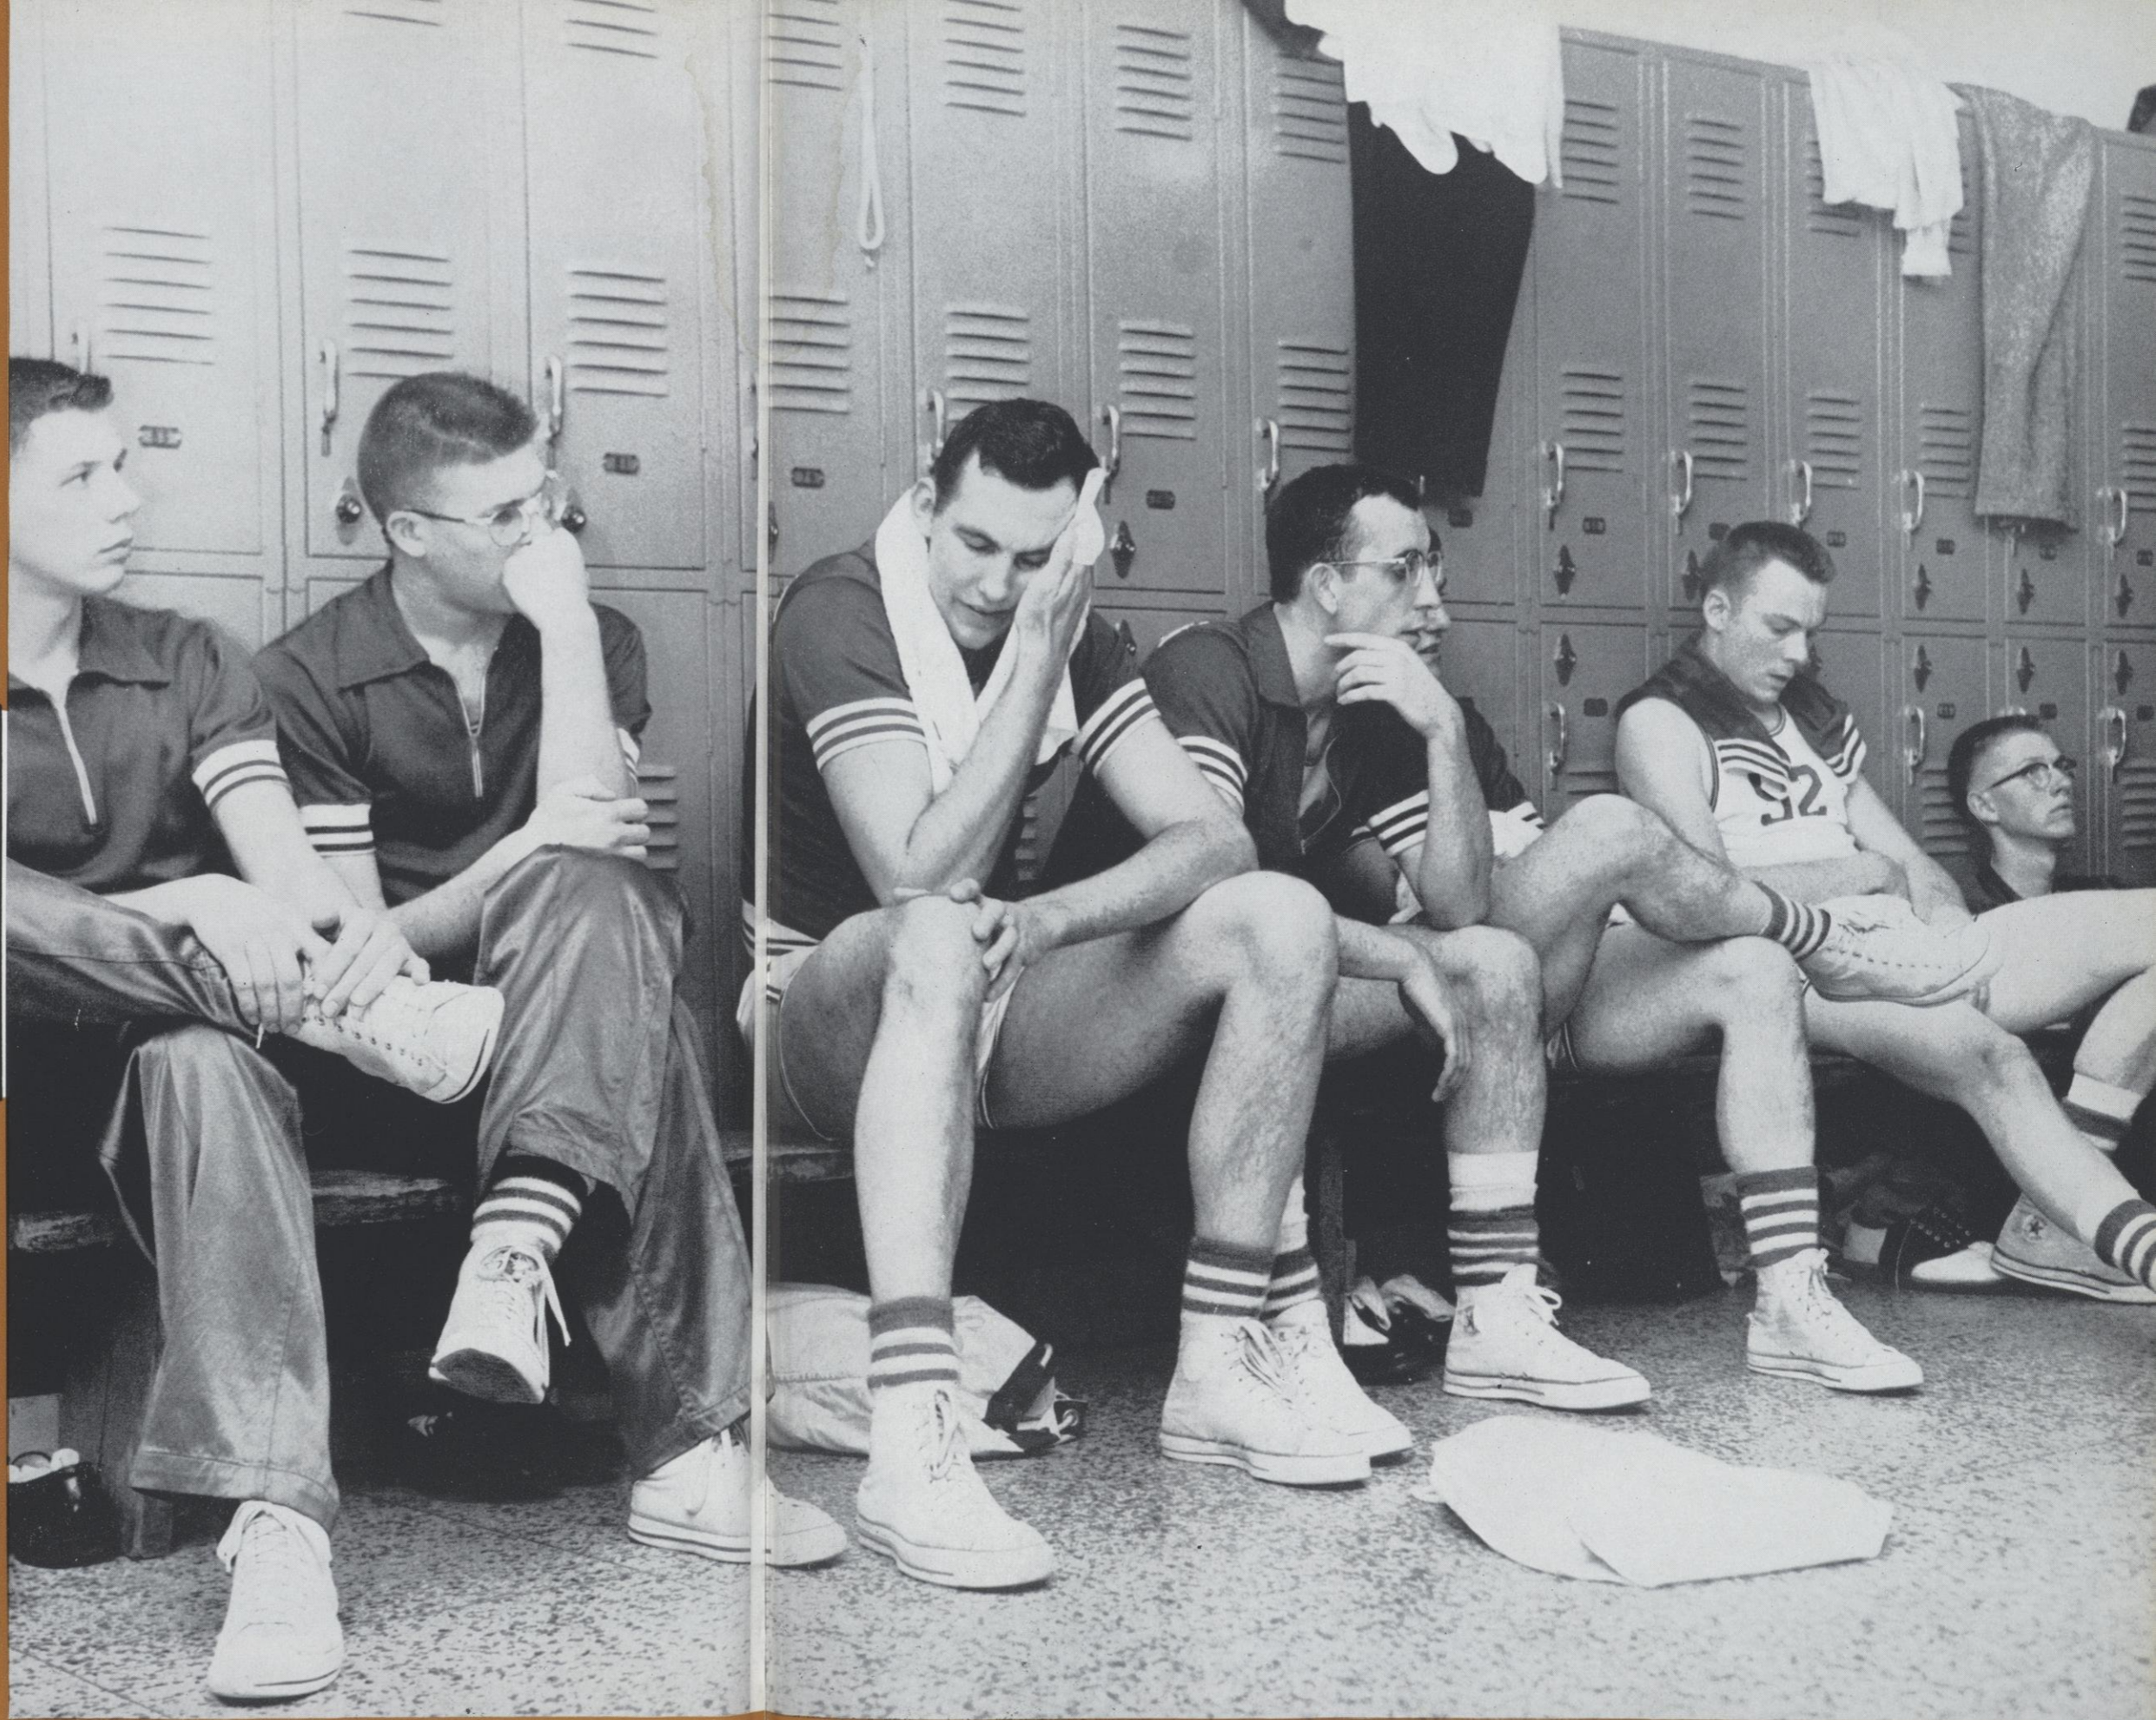

This year's officers included:
 President, Don Patin;
 Vice-President, Mike Stengel;

and well - played - -

Winding up the season with six straight victories and a second place finish in the Wisconsin State College conference, the 1957 Falcon football team will be remembered for its spectacular week-by-week improvement and its extreme youth. With only eight upperclassmen on the entire 50-man squad, Coaches Fran Polsfoot, Don Page, and Ben Bergsrud turned out one of the hardest driving teams in the league. The Falcons started the year with two losses, but jelled in the third game of the season and kept striving toward a peak as each weekend approached. Head Coach Polsfoot cites team effort and desire as the chief factors in overcoming youth and the lack of depth in building a successful season. Even amid constant teamwork, individuals stood out and helped spark the Falcons to their fine record. The all-around excellence of sophomore end Jack Neurer, a 175-pounder from Cumberland, was a key to RF success. Neurer made up for his relative lack of size by blocking five punts, recovering six fumbles, garnering 50 tackles, throwing opposing ball carriers for losses totaling 94 yards, catching 22 passes for 342 yards, and by keeping the team hustling all the time with his spirit. His game-winning block of a Stevens Point punt with less than 10 seconds left was the season's most spectacular play, but was significant of his hard work all year. Neurer was honored in selection by the league's coaches to the all-conference team along with three teammates — sophomore fullback Jack Omer, senior tackle Bob Koplin, and senior halfback Darrel Johnson. Omer was the only Falcon to surpass Neurer's 50 tackles, accounting for 59.

Koplin was third with 47. Omer was the team's leading scorer with seven touchdowns for 42 points. Mick Lauber had 19, followed by Neurer and Jim Hallen with 13, Johnson with 12, John Rassbach, Frank Sprenger and Dick Shimel — six, and Phil LaVenture — four. Top ground-gainer was Lauber, who carried the ball 64 times for 272 yards and an average of 4.3 yards per try. Omer gained 249 yards in 86 tries, Johnson 169 in 61 rushes and Sprenger 122 in 45 attempts to lead the Falcons in that department. Freshman quarterback Tom Everson was the leading passer with 21 completions in 37 tosses for 295 yards and a completion average of 57 per cent. Hallen hit 20 of 36 for 219 yards and 55 per cent and Lauber connected on 10 of 29 aerials for 113 yards and a 34 per cent completion mark.

Twenty-two players carried the brunt of the playing time for the 1957 Falcons. They were: Ends — Tom Shield, Jack Neurer and Vern Gilbertson Tackles — Bob Koplin, Jim Carew, Howie Madsen and Ed Olund.
Guards — Dick Shimel, Phil Lindemann, Al Wienke and Jim Mast Centers — Gordon Hoff and Larry Bagley.
Quarterbacks — Jim Hallen and Tom Everson.
Halfbacks — Mick Lauber, Darrel Johnson, Frank Sprenger, Jack Delahunt and Gary Tekampe.
Fullbacks — Jack Omer and Pete Hubin.

Only Koplin, Johnson, and Ken Ellingson will be lost to the Falcons next season via graduation.

One of the "youngest" basketball teams in Falcon history posted an 8-13 season's record and a 5-7 conference mark during the '57-'58 campaign. Under new Head Coach Don Page, the Falcons swept through the schedule with only two upperclassmen on the team — senior forward Neil Christenson and junior center Griff Howell.

Highlight games for River Falls were the 79-55 defeat of Winona for consolation honors in the Oshkosh Holiday Tourney, the 70-38 drubbing of Bethel in a non-conference tilt and the 66-61 victory over Eau Claire in the season's windup. Another outstanding contest, probably more remembered by the fans than any other, was the 78-76 victory posted over the star-studded alumni team in the Phil Belfiori benefit scrimmage.

The Falcons shot a respectable 38 percent from the floor for the season and hit on 66 percent of their free throws. Freshman forward Mick Collins had the top field goal percentage with a 51 percent mark. Darrell Hart hit 50 percent from the field, followed by Howell's 43 percent, and Mick Lauber and Jack Omer, each with 34 percent.

Hart, who during the first half of the season was sporting a free throw accuracy of over 90 percent, led the Falcon foul-shooters with a 77 percent average. Howell was next with 76 percent, followed by Lauber with 73 percent and Collins with 71. Howell and Lauber were far above all other scorers with 316 and 309 points for respective averages of 15.8 and 14.7. This pair teamed up with 6-8 center Manley Olson to lead in the rebounding department. Howell grabbed 184 stray balls off the boards, Olson had 181 rebounds and Lauber 152.

a big chunk of air

May 8 — Off to a phenomenal start with the season almost three-quarters completed, Coach Don Page's River Falls State baseball team racked up 12 victories in the first 14 games of a 20-contest schedule. Three of those victories came in conference competition, and placed the Falcons in a tie for first in the Wisconsin State College conference northern division with La Crosse. Both teams had one loss.

Five pitchers, none with less than a .667 winning percentage, handled the mound duties as the Falcons breezed to their fine early-season record. Senior Ken Barrows and freshman Tom Trainor both had posted records of 3-0, while veteran Lewie Johnson also was undefeated with a 2-0 mark. Jim Landry and Jim Turnquist shared records of 2-1.

Boasting a team batting percentage of .329, the Falcons had seven men batting over the coveted .300 mark. Outfielders Bill Halverson and Jim Larson were hitting the ball at clips of .441 and .432 respectively, and first baseman Ev Glaser had a .404 mark. Catcher-first baseman Duane Teska was hitting .391, shortstop Al Suezaki .370, second baseman Bob Maxwell .363, and outfielder Frank Gombold .300. Best individual days at the plate were had by Suezaki, with a 7 for 7 output, including two homeruns, in the Bemidji doubleheader, and Maxwell who had a double, triple, homerun, and seven RBI'S against Bethel.

In the first 14 games the Falcons had outscored their opponents 119 to 66 for an average of 8.1 to 4.1 per contest. The twelve victories included four wins over Macalester; two each over Bethel, Bemidji, and Stout; and one each over La Crosse and Mankato, while the losses were to La Crosse and Mankato.

golf

At Meletean press-time the rejuvenated Falcon golf team had already posted four consecutive victories and was pointing toward the Wisconsin State College conference meet. Leading linksmen for Coach Ben Bergsrud's team were Bill Halverson, Jim Hallen, Ralph Ryan, Hilton Schroeder and Val Barrows.

On a May 6 outing in which the team trounced Bethel 18-0, Halverson scorched the Como Course in St. Paul with a blistering six-under par 66 round which included five consecutive birdies.

Kneeling: Jim Hallen, Bill Halverson;
Standing: Val Barrows, Jerry Stern, Ralph Ryan.

track and field

it will be

Nine Falcon track and field competitors had already earned enough points for their letters by Meletean copy deadline early in May. Coach Fran Polsfoot's cindermen had squeezed four meets in between rain and cold spells, emerging victorious in one of them. After losing a dual opener to Winona, the Falcons drubbed St. Thomas and Eau Claire 78-45-28 on April 16, then went on to finish second to La Crosse and Mankato in triangular meets. Outstanding competitor for the red and white-clad crew was sprinter Frank Sprenger, who held his 100 and 220 times to 10.1 and 22.8 in racking up a total of  $25\frac{3}{4}$  points in the four outings. His best performance came against La Crosse when he won both dashes and anchored the relay team for  $10\frac{3}{4}$  points.

Others who had been consistent point-getters were:

Del Mottaz — pole vault, high jump, discus —  $23\frac{5}{6}$

Fred Coleman — 440, 880, relay —  $19\frac{1}{4}$

Dale Henning — high jump —  $15\frac{1}{3}$

Dan Teetzen — mile, two mile — 14

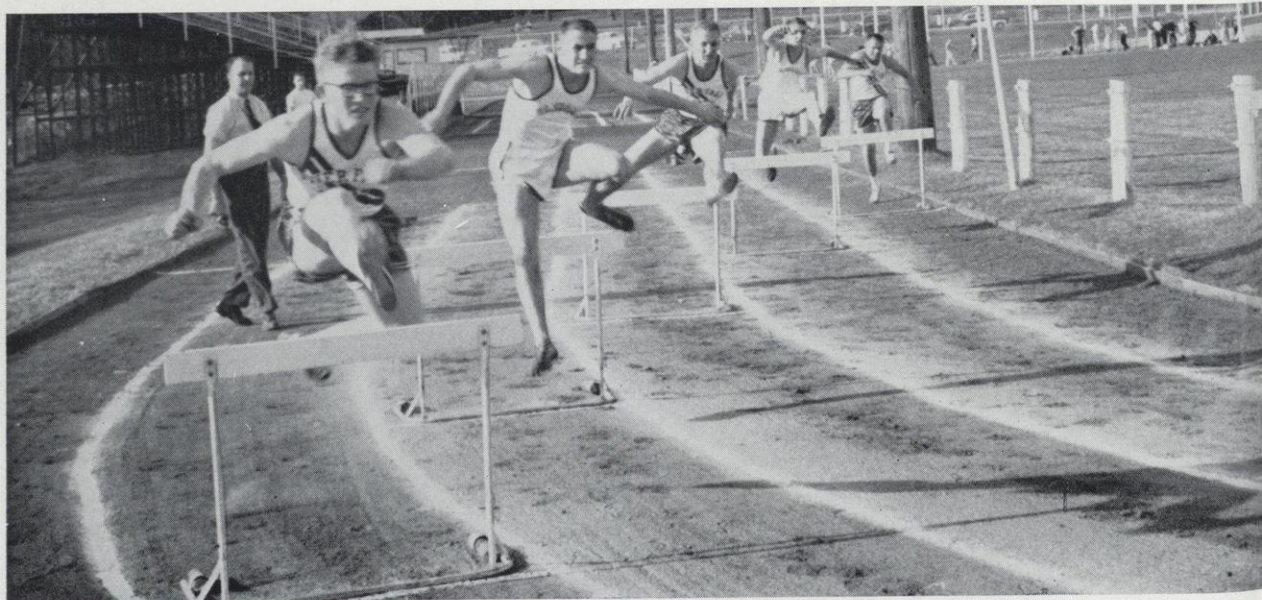

Cliff Lindsay — 100, 220, broad jump, relay —  $13\frac{3}{4}$

Bill Shimel — mile, two mile —  $13\frac{1}{2}$

Walt Wanzong — 440, 880 —  $11\frac{1}{2}$

Aaron Burchell — discus, shot put — 10

doozeys, phi sigs, maple splitters

win championships

Regardless of whether they're called, "Gridders, Cagers, Keglers," or students, they all herald the annual intramural season with anticipation.

Organizing teams of friends and participating in sports serves to round out individual interests and loose pent up energy.

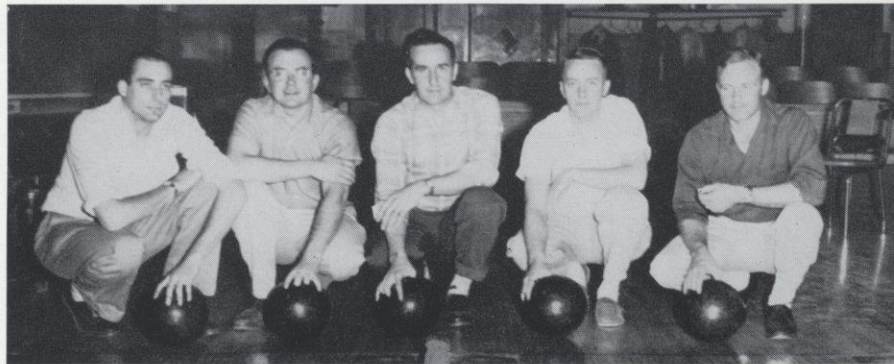

The "Gridders" season wound up with the Doozeys on top, having a record of nine wins and no losses. Combining a powerful offense with a stiff defense, they averaged 23 points a game. Running a close second were the Terrible Ten. Their only loss was handed them by the Doozeys.

The "Cagers" had a successful season with the Phi Sigs and the Bombardiers tied for first place as it ended.

In the championship playoffs, the Phi Sigs came out on top in the last ten seconds of play, 51-50. A free throw by Jack Neurer accounted for the one-point margin. Other members of the squad included: Neil Christenson, coach, Tom Shield, Don Swanson, Howie Madsen, Bill Halverson, Marlin Huppert, Al Suezaki, Ken Ellingson, Lewie Johnson, and Bruce Weeks.

The "Keglers" season began in early Fall and kept rolling until April.

Surviving the long year in first place were the Maple Splitters, bowling in the 180's to win the championship. The runner-up Jets slowed to a 170 pace. Intramural sports are an integral part of campus life. Teamwork and fellowship are always found in satisfying measures.

Bob Ames, Don Patin, Dick Leach, Rod Peterson.

The Senior Class

"Graduation" is just a word. But during the past year, as always, it assumed a slightly different meaning for a group of some 130 RF students.

Four years ago, these same students considered it something that seniors, juniors — maybe sophomores thought about, and then generally only when their advisors chastised them about their programs.

As the four years slipped by and other classes took their place in that long procession across Cascade, the feeling began to grow in these students that graduation was something to work toward — other persons said it was. Still, it had that abstract quality. At times the prospect seemed attractive. But these instances generally came only when things were going badly — although those last few warm weeks did get to be a little long for many. As seniors, these students began to acquaint graduation with getting a job. The two words became associated in their minds, job — graduation. But graduation as a signal for going to work wasn't the total thought. It had other connotations — the end of one type of life and the beginning of another — the end of classes and the beginning of another type of learning — the end of written exams and the beginning of another kind of test. For some of these students this was a year of reckoning. Many paid or were paid for their efforts at River Falls with jobs or graduate school assistantships and fellowships won or lost. But for the most part they were satisfied. All of them had their plans. And all were equally sincere about reaching the goals they had set for themselves. It was in this reaching of goals that each of these persons wanted to change the world just a little. And they probably will.

The Junior Class

term paper time

Something your class-president said when you were freshmen ". . . and we, as a class, can really contribute to activities at this school."

Yes.

It sounded like a platitude, like something from a politician's campaign speech . . . Still.

". . . and a class is just the people in it."

Somebody else said that . . . one of the deans, maybe . . . That sounded reasonable. ". . . just the people . . ." Not the class, then. But the people in it.

Maybe.

Three juniors were Homecoming Queen candidates. The Homecoming Chairman was a junior this year. A junior made state College history here. She was the eleven-hundredth student to register this year.

Juniors were saddened when one of their number died a tragic death last winter.

Football fans at River Falls saw many juniors on the squad this year. The center of the line was held by members of that class. Leading scorers on the basketball team were juniors. The Winter Carnival Chairwoman and King were members of the junior class.

They were all your people.

". . . these individuals contributed to activities at this school." Somebody said that. They were all members of your class. They, you — your class — did "contribute."

Maybe there is something about being a "class," then. Maybe there is something about being a person in a class . . .

The Sophomore Class

Mark Wyman, vice-president; Lewis Schoenwetter, president; Patty Ross, secretary; Carl Duch, treasurer.

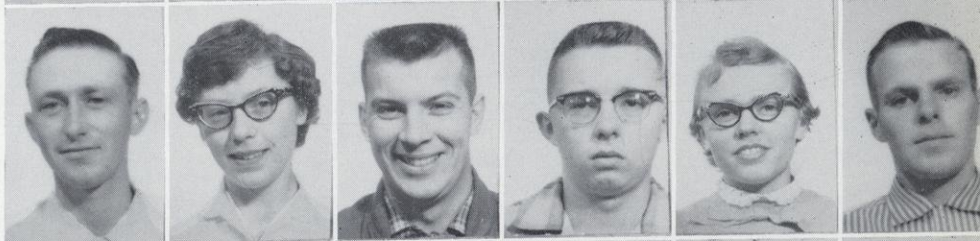

What's there to say about the Sophomore Class? An interesting question you would probably agree, even if you're a sophomore. Some things are obvious. The annual Kangaroo court is one example of their activity. Lit class is always good for a line or two. So are all the other projects they undertake, like Homecoming dance decorations and Traditions Day. But what of the individual persons who make up the class? Herein lies the really significant features of the sophomore year.

It's an important year. It's a year more than any other to capitalize on all the skills learned during the previous year. Study habits are invariably sharper, allowing more outside activity. Classes become more interesting as general requirements are slowly gotten out of the way. Friendships are cemented more firmly. And the "leaders" are separated a little more from the "followers." Because of such factors, the sophomore is a very valuable individual. He still has the enthusiasm that is so often lost to cynicism in later years; while at the same time, he has the insight and experience to do things well. Following lines such as these, we can think of many things to say about the Sophomore Class.

The Freshman Class

Changes are always interesting . . .
even more so when they happen to be personal ones.
Some are easy to see . . .
like changes in grade point averages.
Some are more gradual and less obvious . . .
like changes in personal habits.
And some changes are never seen . . .
some don't happen.
And some aren't seen
because they're not looked for.
But the best changes are those that are seen . . .
those that are solicited . . .
and those that are accepted.
Fittingly, the first year is usually a time of change.
These changes are generally nothing emotional,
or exciting,
or drastic.
And they certainly aren't anything like a conversion
or metamorphosis.
But they do occur.
What's more, they continue to occur.
At least they should.
It's when they don't
that upperclassmen say,
"This year's frosh are greener than grass. They seem to get worse every year."
It's then that change is needed —
in the upperclassmen.
