SELECTION OF N. O. L. ORATOR MADE TONIGHT

Annual Forensic Contest to Be Held This Year at Iowa on May 6

Wisconsin's representative in the Northern Oratorical League to be held at the University of Iowa on May 6 will be chosen at 8 o'clock tonight 165 Bascom hall from among the following winners in the preliminaries: K. Frances Karel '23, Samuel Sygmund '22, Sterling H. Tracy '22, Melbourne Bergerman '22, Thomas Amlie '21, and Victor S. Von Szeliski '21.

The N. O. L. contest has often been termed the greatest intercollegiate oratorical contest in America. It is composed of representatives of Chicago, Iowa, Michigan, Northwestern, and Wisconsin, and participation in the contest has long been looked upon as the greatest undergraduate forensic honor which can come to any student in the universities taking part.

The contest this year will be the thirty second annual. Since its inception the league has evolved a system of judging and conducting the contest in a fashion which has correctly earned for it the leading place among all American oratorical events. The judges of the contest are composed of the coaches of the respective orators. Each judge, in rendering his decision, considers every speaker except the one representing his own school, and in this

ATHLETIC REVIEW ON SALE APRIL 7

Material for the second issue of the Wisconsin Athletic Review is rapidly being assembled and it is planned to place it on sale two weeks from today, April 7.

The issue will be devoted to the interests of track. There will also be a large section devoted to crew. The issue will be sold for the same price as the first one, twenty-five cents for two copies. The extra copy is intended to be mailed to some high school athlete who might be interested in coming to Wisconsin.

THE OPEN DOOR

THE university entertains this week-end the representatives of the state high schools who have come here to contest for the state championship in the annual high school basketball tournament.

The student body heartily welcomes these young athletes, many of which are destined to become wearers of the "W" within a few years.

Students from the cities represented in the tournament will be glad to have the chance to cheer once more for the standard bearers of their high school alma mater, and to see the calibre of athletes that is now being developed in the high schools throughout the state.

The visitors are cordially invited to look us over, to determine for themselves whether their prospective university measures up to their idea of what this institution should be.

Wisconsin welcomes this opportunity to show the men who will be leaders in the next college generation that their state university needs their type if the leadership of today is to hold its own tomorrow.

SECOND STATE BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT WILL OPEN TODAY

CONFERENCE HEARS STUART TALK ON LEAGUE PROBLEMS

Prof. Fish Will Address Next Meeting, April 5, on Japanese Question

The clarifying of matters of jurisdiction, duties, and past actions of the League of Nations occupied the greater part of the discussion at the meeting of the International Relations conference in the Y. M. C. A. parlors Tuesday evening. Prof. Graham H. Stuart of the political science department, chairman of the meeting, briefly outlined the needs for the League and its provisions and functions. The meeting was then given over to general discussion.

The questions "Should America have entered the League before and should it enter now?" and "Should Germany be allowed to enter the League?" received spirited response and brought to light recent actions of the League. Austria, Bulgaria, Finland, and Luxemburg have been admitted to the League; the work of stamping out typhus in Poland has been started; and the repatriation of soldiers, many of whom are Americans, has progressed steadily. That the cost of the League to the United States would have been only $104,000 this year as compared to an expenditure of $200,000,000 for defense in peace years, and 10 billion dollars in time of war, was brought out by Professor Stuart as an indication of a possible financial saving for the United States should it enter the League.

Prof. Carl R. Fish will lead the discussion of the next meeting of the conference, which will be held at the Y. M. C. A., April 5. The Japanese question will be the subject for discussion.

"IS EVIL ULTIMATE?" ROBINSON ANSWERS

The interpretation of evil in the Bible will be discussed in Dr. D. S. Robinson's lecture "Is Evil Ultimate," at 4:30 Thursday in the auditorium of the Biology building.

This will be the ninth of a series of ten lectures by Dr. Robinson on philosophy and religion. The last one "Is Man Immortal," will be given next week.

Waukesha Will Meet Monticello in First Game at 3:30

At 3:30 this afternoon the first whistle of the second annual high school basketball tournament will be blown, when the Waukesha and Monticello fives line up for the first game of the series.

Other games are as follows:
4:30—Elmwood vs. Menominee.
6:45—Madison vs. Superior.
7:45—La Crosse vs. Rhinelander.
8:45—Appleton vs. Neillsville.

Two Teams Eliminated.
A big step has been taken this year toward raising the standard of high school athletics. Two district winners, Platteville and Racine, have already been barred from competing and there is a possibility of further development along that line today.

The reason given for the forced withdrawal of the Platteville team is that one of the men is over-age. Racine used a professional man in the Milwaukee tournament. These two cases will unquestionably have a tendency to improve the athletic standard in the state in years to come.

The Rhinelander team arrived in the city at 9:00 o'clock Tuesday evening the men are staying at the Phi Gamma Delta and Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity houses. They spent the day yesterday in acquainting themselves with the city and the university campus. A short practice was held early in the afternoon on the gym floor.

Mr. Chemwin, one of the Rhinelander coaches, issued the following statement: "Our men are all in good shape for the tournament. The glass backboards are new to the boys and may somewhat handicap them." Rhinelander plays its

CHARITY BALL IS RECORD BREAKER FOR TICKET SALE

Proceeds of Mixer to Go for Social Service Conference

The largest advance ticket sale of any university mixer has been made for the charity ball which is to be held in the men's gym on April 2. Over 1,000 tickets have already been sold.

The committees on mixing and special features are especially active and announce that it will be a brave person who will risk staying out on the side-lines while the dancing is going on. An array of costumed "clownettes" will defy any too sober minded man who comes with a vague idea of not mixing.

Some question has arisen about the nature of the ball in the matter of costume. All members of committees will be in costume, but students will not all be expected to come in costumes unless they wish. Makeups of bums and Apaches are already becoming popular.

The proceeds of the Charity Ball mixer are to go to the Wisconsin State Conference for Social Service. Edward Lynde, executive secretary for the conference, has given an office in the university extension building to carry on his work of bringing to remote communities throughout the state facilities for helping neglected, feeble-minded, and dependent children and for arranging all kinds of sociological exhibits and conferences.

SPRING is indubitably here now. A week ago we saw a robin, but one robin no more makes a spring than one swallow makes a jag. Today, however, we saw two robins at once.

THE publishing of names of persons who have braved the icy waters for a swim seems a bit uncalled for. Why, we went swimming six months ago and got no credit for it. If we go swimming during the next month certain two Sigs will get the credit. We refer to their threat to throw us in.

INSTRUCTOR SAYS COLLEGE STUDENTS KNOW FEW FACTS

Atlantic Monthly Article by West Charges Little Knowledge

"What do College Students Know" is the title of an article, in the Atlantic Monthly for March by Paul V. West, instructor in the School of Education at Wisconsin and his article is based on a series of psychological tests given to a good-sized representative college group.

"Simple biological facts that are supposed to be in common knowledge," writes Mr. West, "are outside the mental realm of the college students, or are confused with it. Four per cent of them would be willing to ask a dairyman if his cows are Leghorns. And when we discover that six per cent do not know what an artichoke is, while six more assert it to be a fish, three a lizard, and one claims it as a snake, we cannot but wonder in what world these sixteen per cent received their information - or lack of it.

Ignorant of Geography

"Geography does not make any better showing" he continued, "It would be a decided affront to some of our time-honored American institutions if they should learn that out of 100 students who wish to attend Yale university, four would have to look in the atlas to know what part of the world they were bound for, while six would purchase railway fares for Ithaca, and thirty-six would proceed blithely on their way to Cambridge.

"History might also benefit from a migration of college students. Some of them learn that the battle of Lexington was not fought in 1620, or in 1864, nay, not even in 1812, but in 1775; for many a student now alive scarcely remembers that day and year."

NOT BASED ON WISCONSINI
When interviewed about his article, Mr. West said, "My purpose is mainly to bring out college students' ignorance of common facts and of current events. On an average I

IMPOSSIBLE FOR MAJOR WOOD TO COME FOR BALL

In answer to a telegram inviting him to attend the 1921 Military ball, Major General Leonard Wood has written that he will be unable to attend because of his proposed trip to the Philippines. The letter in full follows:

"Referring to your telegram I appreciate very much the invitation of the university cadet corps and the interest of the American legion, Thirty-second division, and Scabard and Blade in the ball to be held April 8.

"It will be impossible for me to come, however, as I am making preparations to leave for the Philippines and expect to sail on April 2.

"Thanking you for your invitation, and wishing you all possible success on the occasion, I am Sincerely yours,

LEONARD WOOD.

YALE PROFESSOR TO GIVE HISTORY TALK

Prof. Charles M. Andrews of Yale university will lecture on "The American Revolution," in 165 Bascom hall, at 4:30 Friday afternoon.

find that they are so engrossed in the strict routine of school work and social affairs that they know little of what is going on in the world.

"No, my article is not based on tests of the students at Wisconsin. As yet we have not made sufficient tests to size up the students here, but I imagine they would rank practically the same."

Mr. West, who is working on his thesis here, had an article entitled "Combination for Educational Research" in a recent copy of School and Society.

Comic Opera to Be Presented

Cast

Miss Alice Keith is coaching "The Maid and The Middy", the musical comedy to be given April 1 by Gun and Blade, the disabled soldiers' organization at the university.

Miss Keith is not a stranger in Madison. She belongs to the class of '16, and was a member of Red Domino and Theta Sigma Phi. During her Junior year at the university she had charge of the music in the Madison High school and the following year was assisting supervisor of music in the public schools. For two years she supervised music in LaCrosse city schools.

During the war Miss Keith was director of dramatics with The New England Division of War Camp Community Service, producing plays, pageants and opera in Boston and neighboring cities for the benefit and entertainment of soldiers and sailors in those communities. Last year she was a member of the cast of Rachel Crother's play "A Little Journey," which ran in Philadelphia, Washington, New York and other eastern cities.

Although I have directed this opera several times before," she said, in speaking about the Gun and Blade comedy "I still like it because it is so full of clever music and witty dialogue. I have never seen a better cast. The comedy leads are exceptionally fine, but best of all, the spirit of the Gun and Blade men is just what might be expected of wounded men who have experienced together the suffering and hardships of overseas service."

CHEMISTS HEAR

way a reliable and uniform decision is always reached.

Contest here last year.

A year ago the contest was held at Madison. In this connection it is interesting to note the remarkable reawakening of student interest in forensic contests at Wisconsin. One of the largest crowds in the history of the league turned out to hear J. J. Goshkin of the University of Michigan and Gladys Borchers '21 of Wisconsin win first and second place respectively in a contest notably close and intensely interesting.

Wisconsin has not won a first place in the league since Alvin C. Reis, '18, carried off the honors in 1913. During the interim, however, the Badger entries have invariably placed high. In the 32 years of the league's existence Wisconsin has won four firsts and according to the law of averages is due for another win this year.

In 1901 ex-Governor Lowden of Illinois, himself a winner of the N. O. L. contest for the university of Iowa, endowed the league to extent of an annual first prize of $100 and a second prize of $50. Every two years the orations of all the entrants are published by the league.

Copies of the speeches for the last biennium are now on sale at the office of Prof. J. M. O'Neill, of the department of speech, 204 Bascom Hall at 25 cents each.

The final contest tonight will give the student body the last chance to hear a Wisconsin intercollegiate forensic representative during the present season. This year's contest is being held away from home, and with no additional intercollegiate debates scheduled for Madison a large turnout is expected to greet the orators tonight. There will be no admission charged.

See the Hoover demonstrated at the store.

Most rugs are so closely woven that the spaces between their strands are very small.

In the attempt to clean such rugs by air suction alone, the air passes only through these small spaces. So only the dirt in these spaces is removed. Many times as much dirt as this, embedded and caught in the nap, remains in the rugs. Consequently, to clean rugs by air alone is to clean them partially.

Beating the lifting of the rug and the shaking loose of the destructive embedded dirt from its moorings in the nap—is necessary for thorough electric cleaning. When this dirt is shaken to the surface, then—and only then—can air remove it.

Inasmuch as only The Hoover beats rugs besides electrically sweeping and air cleaning them, we recommend it to our patrons as the one thorough cleaner.

WHO WAXED THE FLOOR?

To the Editor of the Cardinal:
Circumstances under which physical education work has had to be carried on during this week and under which the first inter-class basketball games of the tournament had to be played off Tuesday night at Lathrop gymnasium were so deplorable as to warrant real consideration not only of the players themselves but of every student who may have occasion to visit Lathrop hall. It seems to be practically a reoccurrence of what happened last fall in the men's gymnasium; also a case where a whole organization must bear the brunt of over-cathusiasm on the part of one of its members.

Because the dearth of suitable places on the campus is realized by those in charge of the hall, a policy of holding none of the regular women's activities on Friday and Saturday nights has been assumed as precedent.

When the Men's Glee club was permitted to hold its dance in the Lathrop gymnasium last Saturday night the same privileges were extended to it as to all other student organization. Likewise, a return of courtesy was expected at least to the extent of respecting requests of those in charge and respecting the primary purpose of the gymnasium. When four pounds of wax were poured onto the floor while the janitor's back was turned it may have helped toward the success of the dance, but it was not the regular means provided by those in charge, for improving the floor.

The importance of the annual basketball tournament in woman's activities needs no comment. Regulations in Lathrop hall are not whimsical; it is relinquished to any and all students on the two recreation nights of the week. Is it asking too much of those organizations using it to respect reasonable requests so that the regular activities can be carried on without actually endangering the players or ruining the possibility of playing a creditable game?

LAST YEARS CHAMPIONS

Last years state champions reached here from Superior early yesterday morning. They held a light practice on the varsity floor yesterday afternoon. The northern men are much heavier than the Rhinelander five and presented a decided contrast when they appeared on the floor. Two of Superior's men, Hancock and Nevers, played with the Superior team here last year, and both were placed on the all-state team. Their familiarity with the gym floor should be an asset to their team in the coming games. They are being entertained by the Acacia and Alpha Sigma Phi fraternities.

Coach Endres put the finishing touches on his Madison high school men yesterday afternoon. All of the men are ready for the tournament.

The entire student body is asked to do everything possible to aid in making the visitors' stay in the city a pleasant one.

Easter lilies are plentiful this season, according to Madison florists. There was a brisk sale of lilies Wednesday in florists' shops and other stores which have a stock of flowers. Lilies selling at 50 cents a blossom are the favorites, but there has been a considerable demand for tulips, hyacinths, jonquils and other spring flowers.

WEATHER

The highest temperature during the past 24 hours was 34 at 3 p. m. and the lowest was 26 at 4 a. m. Sun sets at 6:13.

Cold northeast winds prevail in the east and south where high barometer is passing off eastward. It is raining in Tennessee and North Carolina. Southerly winds and rising temperature and unsettled weather prevail on the plains, in the upper Mississippi valley and the lake regions in front of an area of low barometer the center of which is on the Rocky mountains. Unsettled and colder follow on the Pacific slope.

Miss Edith Glicksman of Milwaukee will come to spend this next week end with Miss Josephine Jung at Barnard hall.

AT THE GRAND

Each picture that Shirley Mason has made since she became a star a few months ago has added to her reputation. "Merely Mary Ann," presented at the Grand theater last night, throws new light on the capabilities of this dainty young star, even in comparison with "Her Elephant Man," in which she made her debut last spring.

Israel Zangwill's play, "Merely Mary Ann," became one of the greatest stage successes on record when it was produced a few years ago, and every thrill, every touch of human interest, has been retained in the motion picture version. It tells the story of a maid-of-all-work in a London boarding house. Hope and love kept Mary Ann smiling in spite of the hardships she suffered. The love idyll of Mary Ann and Lancelot is one of the sweetest stories ever presented on the screen, and Miss Mason, with her beauty and her charming ways, could not have a part more suitable to her.

The part of Lancelot, the struggling musician, is played with feeling and dignity by Casson Ferguson.

And Come Straight Here Tomorrow for the Easter Clothes and the Values You Are Rightfully Entitled to Ordinarily, we have always advised our readers to COMPARE this store and stock with others—but in this case the time is too short for preliminaries.

The gong is ringing on the main bout. You must have new clothes for Easter morning. You don't want to take any chances either on the garments or the values—therefore at the top of our voice we say to you—

Come here and place your last minute needs with a tried and true concern. Paul Revere didn't stake his ride on a dark horse—nor should you.

Men's Suits for Easter
$27.50 to $50

Made by Michaels Stern and Levy Brothers and brought by us to Madison with the sole object of offering our thousands of friends over 36, the finest tailoring and the largest values they have ever seen since their high school days.

Young Men's Fitform
Suits for Easter
$30 to $60

To see them thru' 18 to 36 year old eyes is to love them for to use the vernacular this selection embraces more new turns than a new leaf. Reasonably priced on a low profit basis so that hundreds of new young men can know us for VALUE.

Soft Hats
for Easter
$4.00 to $10.00

No man will go away disappointed unless he is out to discount his face value. The selection is as wide as the values—so judge for yourself.

Easter Shirts

DR. ROBINSON'S LECTURES

THE course of lectures given by Dr. Robinson of the department of philosophy every Thursday afternoon at 4:30 in the auditorium of the Biology building, has been one of the most interesting features on the campus during the past semester. Dr. Robinson's discussions of the religious aspects of philosophy, or rather, the philosophical interpretation of religion, have attracted a large and thoughtful audience, representing all manner of sects, creeds, and religious persuasions.

The "open forum" discussions, which follow the lectures, take up the more difficult aspects of the topics considered and give those who have ideas and particular views to present ample opportunity to air them. Meetings of this kind are a splendid thing. The opportunity to get light on the subject so ably presented by Dr. Robinson should not be passed up.

Hear Dr. Robinson this afternoon!

THE GLEE CLUB EXPLAINS

THE Women's Physical Education department is justified in protesting against the act of some member of the Men's Glee club who violated orders and waxed the floor of the gymnasium in Lathrop hall for the Glee club dance Saturday evening.

Specific orders forbidding the use of wax on the floor were disobeyed, according to a statement printed in another column of this issue.

Those in charge of the dance declared yesterday that they were unable to discover who perpetrated the petty misdemeanor, but the club has agreed to pay the expense of removing the wax and putting the floor back into shape for basketball.

It is just such incidents as this one, however, that will make the Women's Physical Education department more reluctant to loan its basketball floor even to organizations more considerate of borrowed property.

SPRING ELECTIONS

FOR some unknown reason student elections during the present college generation have been regarded altogether too lightly. Nominations have lagged, interest has waned, important posts have been filled by default, and too few students have exercised their right to determine who shall represent them.

The forthcoming spring elections must produce a change.

It must be a change so marked and so wrought with interest on the part of every student that no one will ever again venture the question, "Is the student body actually behind every elective organization?"

The first consideration obviously centers on getting candidates in the field who are possessed of no uncertain ability. Equally important is the fact that nominations should be in early in order to arouse interest and make people want to get up enough initiative to stop long enough to vote.

Discussions on the short ballot have no place on this campus when applied to student elections. Let's have a goodly number of good candidates in the field early for the spring elections.

SMITH COLLEGE TO OPEN FIRST CLUB HOUSE IN GOTHAM

Mrs. Seth Milliken, president of the club.

Women graduates of Smith college are rejoicing at the opening of the first Smith College Club in the country. The club house, which is in New York, was formerly an old Russian mission, whose spacious halls have been converted into a most artistic and modern club with cafeteria, dining rooms, living quarters, both single rooms and two and three-room apartments. The campaign for raising the money took only two months. Mrs. Seth Milliken is president of the club.

ITALIANS HAVE HUMAN QUALITY —SHOWERMAN

"You do feel in a foreign land at first in Italy, but people understand what you mean before you say it, and make you feel at home. People seem to have the hand of friendship for the visitor, and they are easy to get acquainted with. The Italian people have a human quality—they are easy to get acquainted with."

This was the theme of Prof. Grant Showerman, address on "The Italy of the Italians" at the open meeting of the Dante club last night in Lathrop parlors. The meeting was well attended, many outside the membership of the club taking advantage of the opportunity. Professor Showerman's lecture was illustrated by stereopticon pictures of Italian scenery, architecture, and people.

To Lecture on Dante

Since the year 1921 is the sixth centenary of the death of Dante, which is being commemorated all over the world, the club intends to have something about Dante at every meeting. At this meeting, Prof. A. Lipari lectured on Dante. "In Italy, the Divine Comedy of Dante is a bible," said Professor

Lipari. "It is found in every home where people can read. Even though they cannot understand its deeper philosophic meaning, they read it for its lyric beauty. It is a work of art and more immortal than history."

"Dante comes at the end of the Middle ages and the beginning of a new era. He is the historian of the past and the prophet of the future."

URGES LEGION TO DO BETTER WORK

Prof. Stephen A. Gilman of the Commerce school addressed the American Legion meeting Tuesday at Biology hall in the form of a forceful encouragement to action on the part of the legion to establish itself at the University to do real work. Professor Gilman's speech was followed by a mock dramatic skit by William Tannewitz '23.

The legion decided to put the next program in charge of the nine women who were completely outvoted by the men when the question was put to vote. The program was followed by a lunch consisting of coffee and doughnuts.

Music Memory Contest

FIFTH OF 28 DAILY SELECTIONS
DANSE MACABRE (DANCE OF DEATH) by SAINT-SAENS (1835-still living.)

Music usually attempts to do little more than express or suggest a mood. Occasionally, however, a composer, such as the veteran Frenchman Saint-Saens, tries to make it tell a story, or at least illustrate a story which someone has already put into words.

Last year Saint-Saens was represented by The Swan, his beautiful tone-poem descriptive of the stately movement of the bird as it floats over the waters of a lake. "Danse Macabre" is one of the four symphonic poems written by this renowned French composer. These compositions are 'program music', because they are dependent for their inspiration upon some poetic basis.

According to tradition, once a year - on Hallowe'en - all skeletons, under the leadership of Death himself, are allowed to emerge from tombs and indulge in ghostly revels until the break of day. The opening tones of this grotesque composition, based upon a poem by Cazalis suggest the tolling of the midnight bells, the signal for the appearance of the ghosts. Death summons them by tuning his fiddle which has been sadly neglected for an entire year. With his bony heel he clicks out the time on a tombstone as he starts his wierd time. With rattling bones, represented in the music by the hollow sound of the xylophone, the skeletons scamper forth and begin their wild dance. They romp thru the graveyard, now near and now far, as the curiously distorted waltz tune is played by their leader. Eventually the sound of the cock is heard and all the dancers hurry back to the tombs. Death lingers for a moment to play a plaintive strain before he, too, abandons music for another year.

In listening to the composition one should both give free rein to his imagination and also notice carefully the ingenious means by which Saint-Saens has obtained his strange effects - the curious instrumental combination such as harp, oboe, tuba, English horn, and xylophone, and the varied ways in which each instrument is used. The violin, for example, is made to give forth both graceful and sliding tones on the upper or E string; sharp, biting tones on the A, especially as it is tuned; round tones on the D; rich melancholy tones on the low G; and, added to all these, picking or pizzicato effects on the upper strings.

At The Theaters

AT THE STRAND

"Burglar Proof" is now being shown at the Strand theater. Bryant Washburn, the star, makes a clever distinction between a "tight wad" and a man who is sensibly thrifty. And "Burglar Proof" deserves special mention because it is one country-boy-goes-to-the-city-story in which the hero doesn't marry the rural sweetheart!

There are really two heroines in the piece. One is Jenny, the country girl, spoiled by the city into a gum-chewing, slang-using teacher in a dance hall. She is well done by Grace Morse whose distinctive style sets off the part splendidly. Laura, on the other hand, is a city beauty who has remained sweet and pure despite the temptation of the lighted boulevards. Lois Wilson makes her usual hit in this attractive role.

Mr. Washburn proves himself, as ever, the finished actor. The country boy, shamed because he is broke, becomes a "tightwad." Then we see a change when "Burglar Proof" meets a girl he loves, ending with the moral that the world hates a tightwad.

The special added attraction is Buster Keaton in "The Scarecrow."

AT THE FULLER

One of the novel attractions of the season is that billed to open at the Fuller theater, when the Fanchon and Marco "Satires of 1920" opens for two days commencing with Sunday matinee, March 27. This show, which has had a big run at the Olympic theater in Chicago, has proved a revelation and has won the encomiums of the press and the box office receipts from the public. It is a refreshing idea in entertainment, being a revue with a plot, and this plot concerns itself with certain aspects of the motion picture industry which lend themselves to a satirization. Jean Havez wrote the book, and he practiced on "The Follies" for several seasons to get himself in trim. The music and lyrics are by Fanchon and Marco, producers and stars of the revue. Nelson and Chain, Arthur West, Al Wohlman and John Sheehan form the battery of fun-makers. Eva Clark is the prima donna, and Muriel Stryker the sensational dancer. As for the chorus, it is composed of two dozen pretty girls known as the "sun-kissed peaches" of California. Scenery and costumes are rich and elaborate.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Cardinal Gibbons passed a restless night and was weaker this morning, his secretary said, adding however, that the doctor had reported the patient's pulse to be good and had told the members of the household there was no immediate danger unless something unforeseen set in. His heart action was said to be weak and his temperature low. His physician said the prelate's condition was very serious and that he would have to be watched constantly.

"THE KID"

In his new six reel picture Chaplin shares a large measure of the honors with a marvelous child actor, Jackie Coogan, a Chaplin discovery.

In "The Kid" Chaplin goes in for a great deal of legitimate acting. He has laid aside his old-time bag of tricks. "The Kid" is in a class by himself, unlike anything that has ever been done before.

Those who see it go back the second, third and even the fourth time.

70 New York theaters are showing "The Kid" right now.

BASKET RULES IN GIRLS' GAME NEED CHANGE

—DR. MEANWELL

Varsity Coach Favors Giving Guards More Freedom in Shooting

"The present rules for girls' basketball do not give the guard and center the chance to shoot baskets, which is the greatest pleasure of the game," said Coach W. E. Meanwell, after witnessing the first girls' game of the basketball season last night.

"The work of the teams was excellent, especially the individual technique as to passing and catching the balls. There was very little fumbling and the combination work was excellent as far as the rules, as they now are, permit," he continued. The chief criticisms which he made were not with the play, for he emphasized that it was one of the besting the ball. There was very little passing games that he had witnessed and are so differentiated that

Guards Restricted

"By restricting the guards to the guard area they are not only deprived of shooting baskets, but do not get the training in neuro-muscular co-ordinations that comes from shooting for baskets. Also the elimination of the guard from offensive team play reduces the possibilities." He further explained that the criticisms which apply to the guards, apply as well to the centers, who in the game as it is now played, are simply floor workers whose functions are very limited.

The forwards therefore have the entire scoring function to perform, but have none of the other duties such as guarding or advancing the ball. The functions of the guards, forwards and centers are so restricted and are so differentiated that no girl can secure an all around training in the game.

Doctor Meanwell has been a coach of girls' basketball for several years and has seen various types of play worked out. He says that "For fine team work a concentration of players is requisite, and the three zone, although played absolutely, prevents such a desirable combination."

Forwards Have Edge

Again as to the type of defense. A tall forward is given absolute freedom to calmly shoot a ball in, even when her opposing guard has secured a good defensive position before her and could easily prevent a shot. The guard should be permitted to slap or bat the ball even though it is in the possession of the forward, provided always, that the guard makes no contact with the person of the forward, other than her hands—that is to say, the guard may slap or catch hold of the ball while it is held by her opponent, provided she does not touch the forward other than her hands.

"A two line game is my idea of the best possible girls' game. I know that it works out well, as I coached it for several years in Baltimore, where I was coaching a girls' team," said "Doc" emphatically. This is the way such a game is played—one line would extend from basket to basket, thus dividing the floor into a right and left half. The right forward and right guard could play anywhere in the right half of the court by this central line.

Suggests Change

Another line drawn from side to side, at right angles to the first, passes through the center circle. This is the restraining line for centers only. One center plays on the defensive side of the line and the other on the offensive side, but they change positions at half or quarter time, and thus have opportunity to enter into the scoring. A center may run from one side to the other of the court and from the end line to the center line, thus having one-half the playing space to cover.

The forwards and guards also have one-half the entire space to cover, only it is to the right or left of the longitudinal line.

"In this game all the girls have the same opportunities," said "Doc," in explaining his reasons for favoring it. "They all have the same space to cover, all may score, all must guard, all may feed and play the floor. The benefits are thus enjoyed by all and derived from the various types of play. It is also possible to concentrate any or all of the six girls within quite a small area, and thus team combinations can be developed far beyond anything now possible."

Free Game Favored

The objections to the cross line game suggested are those common to any innovation, newness and the upsetting of established methods. To prove his statement that this game is the most favored, Meanwell said, "The girls who have played the free game suggested would not desire to play the present restricted one any more than boys would go back to the line game, which the girls now play. Boys once played the line game now played by the girls.

"These," he said in summarizing, "are the chief suggestions I would propose with the view of making basketball for girls more of a co-operative team game, than it can possibly be as now played."
