HOMEcoming BUTTON SALE BEGINS TODAY

W. A. A. Teams Each to Dispose of 600 Em- blems

One hundred and twenty co-eds, armed with 6,000 small cardinal and white celluloids, will swoop down upon prospective purchasers from points of vantage all over the campus when the Homecoming button sale opens at 8 o'clock this morning.

Each team captain was allotted 600 buttons which the team is expected to sell for 25 cents or more apiece. With 12 workers for each team, the average number to be sold by each is 50.

The results will be checked twice a day and marked on the race track signboard posted in Lathrop. Each team is represented by a running figure whose progress marks the number of sales which the team has made.

Competition will run high, it is prophesied, in the scramble to win the prize of a devil's food cake, which is offered by W. A. A. to the winning team.

The red and white buttons, with a sketch of the gymnasium in the background and "1920 Homecoming" printed in the foreground, was designed by Herbert Brakhausen, and is a copy of the sketch which will appear on the programs, handbills, and posters. This design was adopted by the Homecoming committee as one of the features which will distinguish all Homecoming printed material.

Today will mark the highest excitement in the button sale, although the race between the teams will not officially end until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The members of each team will check up with their captains daily and the captains will in turn report the results between 12 and 1:30 and from 4:30 to 5:30 in Lathrop.

HOUSE DISPLAYS TO BE JUDGED FRIDAY

Decoration of fraternity, sorority and rooming houses for Homecoming must be completed by 6 o'clock Friday evening, according to Jack Bigler, chairman of the decorations committee.

Judging of the displays will begin at that time if the schedule is followed out. A prize will be awarded for the best decorated sorority or woman's rooming house and another will be given for the best decorated fraternity or men's rooming house.

Colored lights which have usually been given out in the gymnasium to the various houses at this time have not yet been definitely secured and announcement will be made later regarding the place at which house decoration committees may secure them.

Merchants of the city will also have special displays in their show windows and will compete for a prize that has been offered for the best decorated store.

GOBBLE-GOBBLE!

Homecoming Turkey in Morgan's Window Hands Out Clever "Line"

The 20-pound turkey that has been drawing crowds in front of Morgan's window since yesterday morning is to be the pet of whichever rooming house or sorority wins third prize in the Homecoming program sale contest.

It used to be one of the Madison Packing company's favorite gobblers, but they donated it for a good cause. Reports are that they miss it already, but will not demand it back.

The versatility of this gay bird is evident at first glance. When the reporter was passing down State street last night, it was imitating a canary, and hopping lightly around on the top of its little cage, trying with some success to make its gobble sound like a canary's chirp.

Later some stern keeper had pushed the protesting bird back into the cage, and it was dignifiedly imitating Napoleon "with neck outstretched, you fancy how."

Another of its roles is that of a parrot. Every day it will have a new "line," the committee says, and its clever sayings will be printed on a card and displayed.

GOOD MOVIE PLOTS FOUND BY CONTEST

A number of excellent plots for the Varsity movie scenario contest have been received by the production staff and the results have been found to be very satisfactory. The winner of the contest will be announced after Homecoming.

The production staff has appointed the following judges to select the prize winner: Lawrence Murphy, Flora Filzer, president of Red Domino, Frances Ellen Tucker, president of Twelfth Night, Foster Strong, president of Edwin Booth, Carl Richter, president of Haresfoot, Eleanor Riley, Playwriters club representative, Jack Bigler, member of the movie staff and representative of the Union board, and Clifton Tuttle, who will photograph the movie.

Everyone who desires to work on the movie and who has not yet seen Willett Kempton, production manager, personally, should do so at once. He may be reached at Fairchild 819 or at the office in the Union building. Office hours are from 1 to 1:30 and from 4:30 to 5 every day except Saturday.

"LIT" OUT THURSDAY WILL TEASE CO-EDS

The Wisconsin Literary magazine will invade the campus again on Thursday morning when the big Homecoming number will be placed on sale.

The current issue will contain several new features, and for the first time in its history the magazine will carry an illustrated cover.

One of the best contributions this month is one by Paul Gangelin entitled "What's the Matter?" which bids fair to provoke as much comment from the gentler sex as did the offering "My Dear" last season.

A play of a pseudo-Russian nature produced by the Wisconsin players is an especially fine piece of work in this month's issue.

SHORT COURSE ATTRACTS MEN TO AG SCHOOL

Record Attendance Promised by First Day's Enrollment

Today's enrollment in the short course in agriculture indicates that a record will be made this year. Exactly 71 students from last year have returned and the first year men registered today numbered 115. This exceeds the first day's record of last year, when 185 men registered. A large enrollment of second year men is expected tomorrow; for it is felt that, being more familiar with the rooming situation in Madison, they have completed arrangements before their arrival here.

Three men have registered in the cow testing class, a new feature of the course. This class is for the benefit of those who wish to make tests for any of the various advanced registry or cow testing associations of the state. A good sized class is expected to register for this course.

The short course is attracting men of excellent student calibre and many of the young farmers who have already been successful on their own farms are arranging for a year in the short course so that they can take up the more approved methods of production and marketing of farm products. The Wisconsin short course is one of the reasons why Wisconsin leads in so many phases of farming.

BANQUET OPENS DEBATE SEASON

Expect Large Turnout at Forensic Dinner Tomorrow

The debating season will be officially ushered in at 6 o'clock tomorrow night at the Belmont hotel when the forensic board will join with Delta Sigma Rho, honorary forensic fraternity, to give an all-university forensic dinner.

Included among the gems of oratory to be delivered will be short talks by Prof. J. M. O'Neill, former intercollegiate and joint debater; Gladys Borchers, Wisconsin's feminine oratorical "ace," and Arnold Perstein, last year an intercollegiate debater.

Advance information indicates the largest turnout that has ever greeted the coach at the start of the season. The prime reason for the record crowd seems to be in the fact that the members of the women's literary societies will attend en masse.

The former practice of limiting attendance to members of the board and prospective intercollegiate debaters has been eliminated to permit the attendance of all men and women interested, whether or not they intend to try for the teams. Those desirous of attending can sign up between 1:30 and 2:30 today in 204 Bascom hall. The charge will be 80 cents per plate.

Professor O'Neill will outline

BADGERS FACE HARDEST GAME ON SATURDAY

Every Man in Good Condi- tion After Gopher Battle

Returning from Minnesota with every man of his squad in excellent physical condition, Coach Richards started a week of hard drill yesterday in preparation for the Homecoming game with Illinois. With the Illini undefeated, and doped as probable winners of the conference title, Wisconsin will meet the stiffest opposition of the season, and will be forced to the limit to defeat Zuppke's combination.

Ohio's defeat of Michigan and the result of the Illinois-Chicago game last Saturday made it possible for the Badgers to go into a tie for first place in the conference title race. However, if the Badgers win the remaining two games, they will finish in second place. The title now rests between Illinois and Ohio, with the former having a slight edge in that they have more conference games on their chart.

Neither Illinois nor Ohio State have been defeated thus far, and since Ohio has but one game remaining, these two teams will meet for the championship at Urbana on November 20. Should Wisconsin win over the Suckers, the outcome of the Illinois-Ohio game will still decide the conference. That contest will be one of the best seen in Western circles this fall. Illinois is undoubtedly the strongest team, but Wilce's men will enjoy a two weeks' rest before entraining for Urbana.

Illinois' exhibition against the Maroons last Saturday has increased the hope of a Cardinal victory this week-end. The Chicago combination, minus four of its star performers, succeeded in holding its opponents to one goal from the field. While the Badgers did not run up a big score on the Gophers, they gained much more ground.

TICKETS SOLD TODAY FOR MINSTREL SHOW

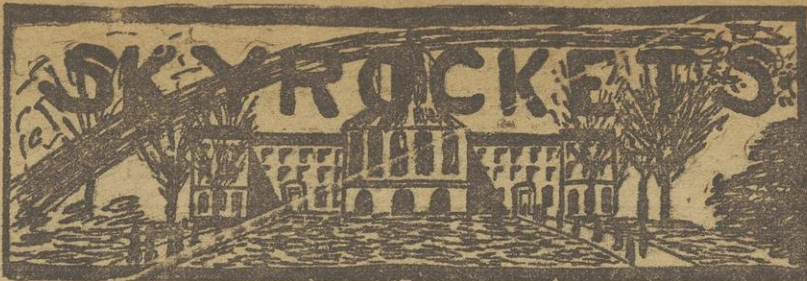

At 10 o'clock today, open sale of tickets for the Engineers' minstrels will start at the ticket office on the first floor of the Union building.

The office will be open today from 10 to 12 and from 1 to 5. During the rest of the week until all the tickets have been sold, the hours will be from 9 to 12 and from 1 to 5.

Rush seats, which are selling for 75 cents, will be obtainable for the first time today as they were not distributed through the mail. All reserved seats remaining from the mail order sale will be put on sale at $1.50.

The sale of reserved seats has been progressing rapidly, according to Henry Warmuth, business manager of the production, and he urges students who expect to entertain friends or relatives over the week-end to secure reservations as soon as possible if they have not already done so.

SPOKEN AND UNSPOKEN

The Co-Ed to the Young Instructor
Spoken: Oh, indeed, I simply adore to read Bennett. Of course, I can't always agree with his theories, but he is so masterful, so forceful, and so inspiring. I became so interested that I read two other of his books, and they are simply wonderful. Yes, aren't they? I'd much rather put in my time doing that kind of work than cram on needless details. After all, grades are only the least of studying, aren't they?—I think you presented Bennett in such a pleasing way last class. I really enjoy that section SO much. Well, thank you very much, I've got SO much from this. Yes, I will come in again. Good-bye.

Unspoken: Gee, I waded through six pages of the stuff, and it's hideous. I think the man writes terribly. Of course, you like him, you little shrimp. I'm not interested at all in Bennett, but I know he's one of your pets, and I've got to make an Ex in this course. Maybe if I keep stringing you on like this, I'll get it. I know you like my looks, but quit staring at my hair. I hope I won't have to ask you over for tea, but I'll do it if I have to. You certainly are the biggest bore in class I ever saw. I sleep through every one of them. So you're done at last. Say, I'll never go through this again as long as I live. I'd rather flunk. Oh, good-bye.

DON'T let a little dampish weather lead you into thinking it'll be a wet Homecoming.

"Y" MEN GO TO CARROLL MEET

Freshman Commission to Be Announced at Banquet Thursday

The Wisconsin deputation to the first annual state student Y. M. C. A. conference, held at Carroll college, Waukesha, over last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, returned to Madison Sunday evening. With the delegation was Secretary F. W. Wolf, who has been active among the state college secretaries in the promotion of this meeting, which took the place of the Lake Geneva conference.

According to the delegates, the conference accomplished a great deal in bringing the associations of the different colleges closer together, and in putting the best aims of the Y. M. C. A. before the students who attended.

The program of the major events follows:

At the opening session Friday evening remarks on the purpose of the conference were made by Ray Sauer, college "Y" secretary for the state; and Chet Hartlet, who was the chairman of the conference, was introduced. Dean Dancey, Carroll college, welcomed the conference to Carroll. At a later meeting, at 8:15, Charles W. Gilke, pastor of Hyde Park Methodist church, Chicago, gave the first of the addresses.

At 9 o'clock Saturday morning, J. Stitt Wilson gave the first of three talks on the subject "World Unrest," and at 10:45 he was followed by "Dad" Elliot, who talked upon the general problems of the college student. Saturday afternoon at 2, there were two group meetings, one led by Hans Feldman of Wisconsin, and the other by F. S. Brandenburg of Madison, who is prominent in state "Y" work. At 3 o'clock there was an address by E. S. Turner, who spoke before the Badger club here Sunday, on "Our Responsibilities to Students of Other Lands." The conference banquet, at which "Doc" Dorward entertained with several of his Scotch songs, was given at 6:30; and Stitt Wilson gave his second talk before the students gathered in an informal meeting at 8 o'clock.

On Sunday morning the delegates spoke at the Industrial school, and at all of the Sunday schools in Waukesha. In the afternoon the last meeting of the conference was held, and the last talk by Stitt Wilson was given. Many of the men gave informal talks in this meeting on the meaning of the conference to them as students and men.

plans for the season and announce the question for the preliminary intercollegiate tryouts scheduled to be held one week after the dinner. Judged by prospective debates, the present season promises to eclipse all of its predecessors.

The schedule already includes debates with Illinois and Michigan, with the possibility of contests with Southern California, Columbia, Minnesota, and Ohio State being ready for announcement tomorrow night.

Somewhat unlike the usual protracted forensic gathering, the dinner will be concluded promptly at 7:45 in order to allow for other engagements for the evening.

EVERY ENGINEER HAS CHANCE FOR 10 OR 15 JOBS

Wisconsin Graduates Get to All Parts of World After Finishing Course

"There are from 10 to 15 positions open for every graduate in the college of engineering," said Prof. G. L. Larson of that department yesterday. "From one to six representatives of various companies called every day during the last month of the college year trying to interest seniors in their particular line of work. This month the demand is even worse, for two concerns have already sent their representatives here."

"About 80 per cent of the men who graduate from the engineering courses stay in the work," declared Dean F. C. Turneaure. The rest are on farms, are dealers in real estate and automobiles, and many other lines of work. Most of the graduates go into engineering at first.

The men go to all parts of the world. They are in every state, in nearly all South and Central American republics, and in many foreign countries. The Standard Oil company wants men to go to Spain and India, and a mining company has asked for several men to go to Chile. One engineer is working for the Standard Oil company in Athens, Greece, and another is a Y. M. C. A. secretary in Japan.

An important meeting of Press club has been called for today at 11:50 in the journalism auditorium, South hall, for the purpose of voting on membership applications. Any applications may be handed to Henry "Pat" Dennis or Mildred Nusbaum before that time.

Plans for regular meeting of Press club to be held every Tuesday beginning November 16 have been outlined by the president. BUDGET PLANS ADDITIONS FOR "U" BUILDINGS

Bascom Hall to Have Central Portion Re-built

Plans for several additions to university buildings are included in the budget for the next two years, as outlined by H. J. Thorkelson, business manager of the university.

The shape of Bascom hall, according to plans, is to be changed from its present "U" shape to the shape of the letter "E"; and the center portion of the building is to be re-built.

A new engineering shop building is contemplated. Mr. Thorkelson says that the engineering college has grown more than any other technical college and now has an enrollment far in excess of its capacity. This addition, he says, will enable the engineering college to provide equipment for shop instruction comparable with that of similar institutions and adapted to modern needs of shop practice and instruction.

Another important addition is urged for the chemistry building where students are said to be crowded to such a point that it is necessary to store apparatus for separate students in small tool boxes. A fire-proof book-stack addition to the law building is planned. The school of music, which now has a number of its studies in rented rooms downtown, is to have additional practice rooms, according to the plans.

In the college of agriculture additions are planned to the building in plant pathology. A practice cottage for students in home economics, a beef cattle barn, a central feed storage building for economical handling of feed and minor buildings at the branch stations are asked for. With the hospital building now under construction, the new shop buildings and additions to university buildings, the business manager says that it will be necessary to provide additional boilers at the heating station.

The principal problem to be presented to the legislature will be that of housing the enlarged university, Mr. Thorkelson said. In common with practically all universities of the country, Wisconsin now has an enrollment 40 per cent in excess of any previous year, which means an attempt to accommodate 7,000 students in an institution built for 5,000.

The budget does not provide for any general increase in salary for professors and instructors. Wages of the faculty were increased a year ago to a point fairly comparable with those of competing institutions, Mr. Thorkelson said, and as a result of the action of the special session of the legislature, the regents were enabled to give new salary increases which brought them approximately 50 per cent above the pre-war rate.

Y. W. C. A. SECRETARY TALKS AT LUNCHEON

Miss Constance L. Ball, Y. W. C. A. student secretary of the central field, talked to the advisory board of the local organization yesterday noon at a luncheon at the University club on the issues of the Cleveland convention. She laid special stress upon the social ideals of the churches, which were ratified at the convention.

"These ideals should be understood by every member of the association, that they may know what the organization stands for," said Miss Ball. "These ideals are for furtherance of reform in social and economic fields, especially in regard to wages, hours, and conditions of labor for women and children."

Miss Ball emphasizes the importance of the third resolution adopted by the convention, which reads, "Resolved, That the Y. W. C. A. use its resources to further the preparation of women for responsible citizenship and to direct their energies toward achievement of social righteousness."

"I shall be glad to talk with any girl in regard to taking up Y. W. C. A. work after graduation," said Miss Ball. She will be here until Thursday night inspecting the local field.

Mrs. Charles T. Wolfe, member of the committee appointed to investigate the reasons for the scarcity of workers in Y. W. C. A., has also been here in her official capacity over this week end. Her purpose is to discover how university students can become more interested in taking up Y. W. C. A. work as a profession.

BUY A HOMECOMING BUTTON

THE sale of Homecoming buttons begins today. Six thousand buttons must be sold in order to make this Homecoming a success. This means that each student must contribute at least a quarter.

When you are asked to buy a Homecoming button, dig down in your pocket for a quarter or more. Show your loyalty to your school.

Let's make this the best Homecoming ever seen in Madison. Here's the chance.

STOP THIEF

OUR yearly visitors, the sneak-thieves, have come again this fall. Their numbers are larger, and their activities are more pernicious than in any previous year. Conditions have reached a point where the students can no longer stand back in an attitude of toleration and meekness.

Each day two or three students report that they have had coats stolen from the cloak rooms. The number of books stolen from the library shelves is increasing at an amazing rate. One girl reported that her note-book was stolen from a table in the library while she was returning a book to the desk. University offices have been looted. Apparently respect for the property of others is a matter of ancient history.

The time is past when we can stand by and condone these thieves. The situation calls for quick and effective action—action which will forever end such stealing in the University of Wisconsin.

Each student should take it upon himself to help suppress the sneak-thief. If a student notices any act of thievery, it is his bounden duty to report the same to the proper authorities.

If the university officials would employ efficient detectives in sufficient numbers to locate and apprehend the sneak-thieves, the difficulty could be lessened materially. Amateurs have little chance of solving the problem. This is a job for professional plain clothes men.

If the thieves caught are students (and we hope they will not be), they should be expelled from the university, and their names should be given publicity throughout the state.

Further procedure would, of course, be in the hands of the courts. The courts in these cases could do much by fixing severe penalties. At the present scale of prices, the theft of an overcoat constitutes an offense punishable by a penitentiary sentence. The more severe the penalty, the greater will be its efficacy in stopping this wave of stealing.

In the next few days, let us see some concerted action on the part of the students, the university officials, and the courts.

Let us stamp out the sneak-thief and attach such stigma to his name that he will never revive.

RELIGIOUS INTEREST

AT the first of the year, a pamphlet was issued under the signature of President Birge to encourage university students to attend the study groups organized by the various religious sects. Since the appearance of this pamphlet, these study groups have been organized, but many students have been slow to avail themselves of the opportunity offered.

"College students are at an age when they are confronted with many questions, and practical answers, though in many cases provisional ones, will be given during the four years of their course," says President Birge. Indeed, university students should endeavor to solve their religious problems. Does a college student want a religious or a non-religious life, and why? If he chooses a religious life, what should be his religion? What should be the college student's attitude toward the Bible? What should be his outlook on life?

An intelligent answer to these questions can be made only on the basis of knowledge. One cannot reasonably oppose a specific religion, or all religions or the Bible unless he knows what he is opposing. Similarly, one cannot reasonably support a specific religion, or all religions, or the Bible, unless he knows what he is supporting.

The various study groups organized by the different religious sects afford the student an excellent opportunity to get a knowledge which will serve as a basis for his religious beliefs and conceptions.

In addition, if the teachings of these study groups are of no religious value, they are of informational value. They give an understanding of some of the most potent influences in the world today—an understanding which a college trained citizen should have. The information is valuable in one's contact with other persons.

University students should attend religious groups. It will help them in their intercourse with other people; it will help them solve their own problems whatever the solution be.

Communication

Editor Daily Cardinal:

Fritz Kreisler's concert is no longer news. But the lucky ones who heard it have not ceased to enjoy it, for the hearing of such music, if it be anything more than momentary audition, is an experience of lasting pleasure.

Long after those who didn't hear Kreisler have forgotten that they didn't, the others will still enjoy the music he made. Had the critics been hundreds of times more capable not all their reports would have described the evening's music. So those who were not there don't know what they missed and in the most serious sense they never will until they hear for themselves,—for after all, music is not described by words.

But why this ado, you ask? The only apology that the writer can offer is that of wishing that not so many of those absent thousand or two were students.

The Cardinal editorial plea of Sunday morning for a suitable concert hall has a very timely thought. The gym is most unsuited for the purpose and what's more it is too small. Some question may arise whether the Memorial building could contain so large a hall as we need. In any case we need a large hall.

Many more students could have heard Kreisler if they had had a more far-seeing wish to. No one wants to limit the musical offerings of the campus in any way so as to keep out town people from hearing them; but there is no doubt that union board had the students in mind when they planned the concert series of which Kreisler's was the second. When Benno Moiseiwitch comes there will no doubt be many students disappointed again. All this because when the season tickets for the series were on sale students neglected to buy and nearly half of them went into the hands of music-lovers off the campus.

The student body needs only a reminder to understand that the first essential for the successful establishment of a Union concert series is student support. This is only had when the students take,—demand the season tickets. Further it is obvious that the full support of the student body is the only way that the cost of admission can be got down much below that in commercial ventures.

This season's series of three concerts is an assured success, it is true; but had the student body purchased nearly all of the season tickets it would be more so, both in a financial way and from the point of view of bringing to the students the best music of the country,—or the world. It would be a fine thing if the plans for another Union concert series could be more extended; but that means we must be out to support them.

If you didn't hear May Peterson or Fritz Kreisler, take it from those who did, you should have. If your order for tickets was returned remember that season tickets were on sale for $3 for weeks and that the Cardinal and every daily paper in the city told you about this again and again. —MAX PETERSEN.

PRIZES

Juicy Steaks and Valuable Articles Await Best Hoboes in Undress Spectacle

Prizes for the best hoboes in Saturday's parade have been selected!

A large delicious steak dinner at Hick's was weighed against a cold useless loving cup and won hands down as the more appropriate first prize for the best group of Weary Willies who are known by nature to be constantly in a mood to eat.

A smoking stand will go to the second best group in the parade and for the third prize Everett Grubb and his committee have selected a box of particularly fine cigars.

The real race for prizes is expected in the individual contest where $35 worth of especially useful articles are at stake.

The best individual tramp gets an $18 pair of high boots. The second best wins an $11 hat and the third receives a $6 pipe. Then in addition to these prizes the contestant who wears the longest home-grown beard will be awarded a cigarette case.

Those who expect to enter the parade next Saturday morning should communicate immediately with Everett Grubb, 620 N. Lake street, B. 192. The nature of the stunt and the names of the participants should be given. Additional information may be secured from Dave Bowlby, B. 195.

SPEAKER TELLS OF PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

E. S. Turner, of New York, head of the Y. M. C. A. work in the Philippine Islands for a number of years, was the speaker at the Badger club, in the university "Y" last Sunday night. His talk dealt with a number of phases of the American work in the islands and in the Far East.

Much of his talk was devoted to a presentation of the progress of the Philippine people with the official and un-official aid of Americans. He had many interesting facts on the present conditions in the islands, and was able to give many comparisons with previous conditions, telling of the great sanitary achievements, and fact that the mortality rate of Manila today is on a level with that of New York city and other great American cities. In addition he had a good word for the political attainments of the Philipinos, and a hope for their eventual national existence.

"Y" GIVES HELP TO SHORT COURSE AGS

The university "Y" is extending the efforts which it made at the beginning of the semester for all incoming students to the short course agricultural students who are starting their term this week.

The room service has been put at their disposal, and no shortage of houses will occur, although the course has started with a large enrollment. The "Y" is further endeavoring to obtain employment for the new men, and for the students generally through its employment bureau. The service of the association is at the disposal of students, who will be assisted in any manner necessary.

RIFLE CLUB PLANS FIRING SCHEDULES

Firing schedules will be made out and range officers appointed at a meeting of Rifle club to be held Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in the Scabbard and Blade room of the Armory.

A record twenty-shot prone match, with three singhings, is scheduled to take place Friday of next week, and it is urged that entrants arrange their schedules and get their practices in early.

The gallery, from now on, will be open every afternoon and evenings after 7 o'clock except Saturday. No one will be allowed to fire, however, who has not filled his schedule and had regular hours assigned him when the firing schedules are arranged at the meeting Thursday.

At The Theaters

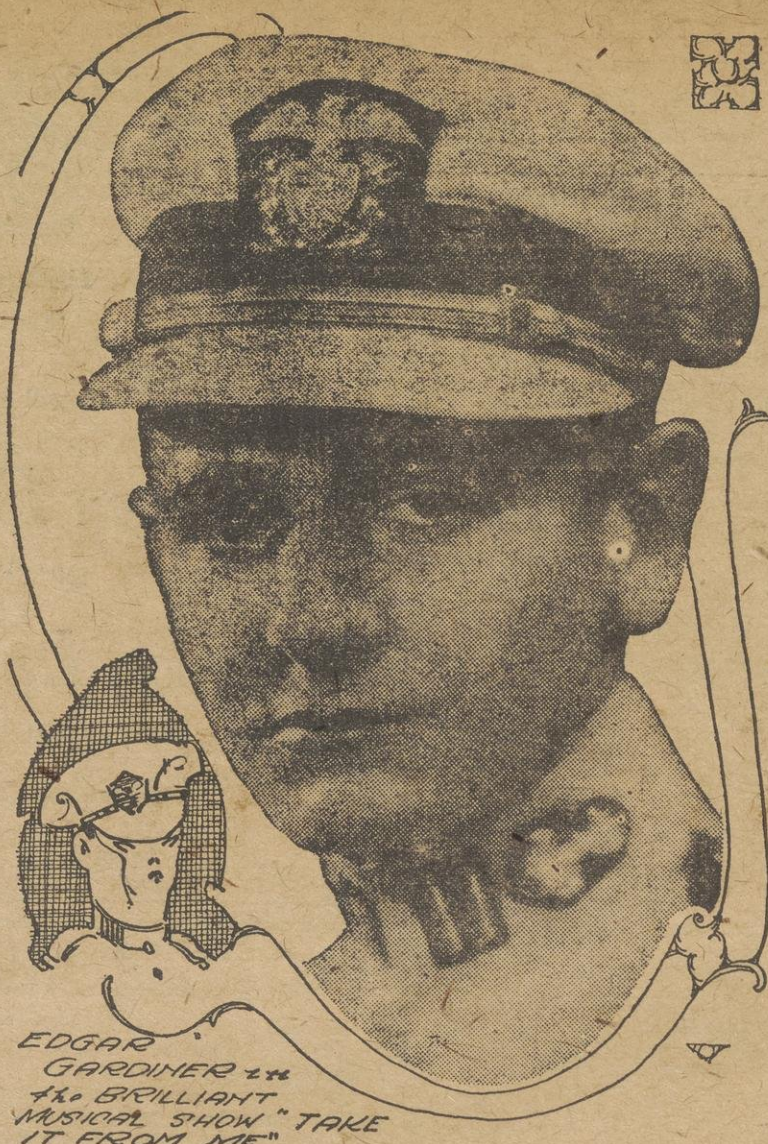

AT THE FULLER

Dancing is Hard Work—It demands Incessant Study and Practice

Unique in the field of artistic endeavor is the work of the Gardiner Trio now appearing in "Take it From Me." Picturesque, colorful, and dramatic in their interpretation of music, poetry, and dancing, they dance with every fibre, chord and muscle of their being. There is no contortion—nothing freakish or repulsive about their dancing. Their art, their grace, their rhythm is not, as is often the case, the result of sensuous pictures. Their dancing is real, flamboyant, and splendid. In their way they are classical.

They began to dance when the eldest of the trio was only seven years old, and have appeared before the most exclusive society gatherings in America and Europe.

"Dancing is hard work," said Arline Gardiner. "It demands incessant study and practice. In connection with our physical training we believe in a comprehensive study of music, literature and the art of painting and sculpture. We interpret music through mood and movement, painting and sculpture through line and color, and we interpret drama through pantomime and characterization. Music is the golden thread upon which we string our ideas. That is for the ear of our audiences. And to please the eye we work out original costuming through the color scheme that shall flash our meaning at a glance; while through pantomime expression of face and body we impart our story and idea so that a printed program becomes wholly unnecessary.

"Recently we received praise for originality from a distinguished critic. Honestly, we could not claim originality and frankly I told the critic so, while I thanked him for his appreciation. There is no such thing as a new step in the dance. Invent one if you can, and you will have every dancer in the world dancing for hours before mirrors, performing that selfsame step."

There is, however, as the Gardiner Trio have shown in their performance in "Take it From Me," originality in method, personality and individuality most pronounced.

AT THE STRAND WEDNESDAY

The story of an author who wrote a successful play only to find on the night of its premiere that he has based the plot on the indiscretions of his own wife and has made her the subject of gossip for all Paris is artfully told in "The Devil's Pass Key," a Universal-Jewell photoplay produced under the direction of Erich von Stroheim, and which comes to the Strand for a four day engagement commencing Wednesday.

Mr. von Stroheim was the author and director of "Blind Husbands." Sam de Grasse, who played the husband in that production, has a similar part in "The Devil's Pass Key." Una Trevelyn, as his wife, Clyde Fillmore as a wealthy young American army officer in Paris, Maude George, Mae Busch, Ruth King, Leq White and Jack Mathews are also in the cast. The plot is taken from the story "Clothes and Treachery," by Baroness DeMeyer.

Superb direction and artistic acting feature the production, which also contains scenes at the famous Grand Prix, the Theater Francais and many other incidents of Parisian life which have been accurately reproduced.

Thomas Meighan and Lila Lee in "The Prince Chap," a sparkling story of love among the artists in London's Latin quarter, is being shown for the last times today.

The central figure, played by Mr. Meighan, of "The Miracle Man" and "Male and Female" fame, is a sentimental California bachelor who joins the bohemian artist colony in Soho, London, to win fame and fortune with his brush. Becoming the guardian of a 4-year-old orphan girl, he refuses to abandon the child, even when it means a break with his fiancée. And, after many vicissitudes, when his ward blossoms into glorious womanhood, he marries her and "lives happily ever after."

AT THE ORPHEUM

The Orpheum bill this week is unusually good. Probably the most ambitious of the acts is Gill F. Brown's artistic presentation of "Breath of Spring," with Mary Spoor and fourteen novelty artists. This spectacle includes everything from grand opera to musical comedy. The setting and dancing are especially effective.

Their personality, rather than their singing and dancing, and their spontaneous comedy, is the basis of the popularity of True Rise and Flo Newton in their song and talk act.

Alice Brindley in "At the Candy Booth," showed more originality than her partner, whose chief asset was his smile. Her realistic interpretation of the song "I've Got a Cold in My Nose," scored a big hit.

The broad humor of the bill was supplied by Bobby Randall, "The Melodious Mirthquake," with his funny "When I was in the army" stories, which found the audience very appreciative.

If one likes monkeys, Everest's Novelty circus presents a large and talented company of these simian artists. Probably their most interesting act is the trapeze performance, in which their prehensile characteristics are given full play.

The Dorothy Morris trio of pretty girls staged a rather colorful Chinese dance. In the other dances they were limber rather than graceful.

Box Sale Now Open for Singer's Midgets Coming to Orpheum

Tickets are now on sale at the Orpheum Box Office for Singer's Midgets, known as the best act of its kind in vaudeville. This extraordinary attraction is booked at the Orpheum for a full week, commencing with a matinee next Monday.

The midgets are really teeny folk, little men and women, but they can perform. Not only can they sing and dance in a way that many full grown individuals might well copy, but they drill and march and do thrilling acrobatic stunts and they put elephants and ponies through paces that would do credit to the largest three ring circus. Yes, indeed, the little people decidedly big. Singer's Midgets are to be presented in conjunction with four other Orpheum acts, which will be changed for the last half of the week.

LARGE CROWD TURNS OUT TO HEAR LECTURE

Prof. Bancroft Will Address
Chemistry Students Again
Today

In spite of the inclement weather, some 300 persons turned out last evening to hear Prof. Wilder D. Bancroft of Cornell university, who spoke in the Chemistry auditorium on the subject of "Contact Catalysis."

"Future chemistry," said Dr. Bancroft, "will have to deal largely with catalytic reagents; it therefore behooves us to get ahead on the theoretical side of this subject."

"Many theories have been advanced for the chemical reactions involved in catalysis but no one theory can be said to cover all cases. Nevertheless, the intermediate contact theory is the most satisfactory so far advanced."

"I never expect to see every case of contact catalysis displayed in the same way. What we need to do is to stick to facts and drop speculation in order to gain ground in our research along this line. As a matter of fact, we know very little about contact catalysis at the present time, but this is a problem with which the organic chemist of the future will have to deal."

Dr. Bancroft, who is a past chairman of the Chemical Division of the National Research Council, will speak again this afternoon at 4:30 in the Chemistry building on "Promoters and Poisons," and tonight at 8 o'clock on "Applications of Contact Catalysis."

OUTING CLUB PUTS OFF USUAL EVENTS

Because the festivities of Homecoming will demand the attention of so many students, Outing club will not provide any of its usual events this week-end.

"There are so many outside attractions that will take the interest of the women this week-end," Zirian Blish, president of the club, said last night. "We cannot ask them to spend any of their Homecoming week-end time for outdoor sports. But we will make up for the omission of this week's activities by more concentrated and attractive ones in the weeks that are coming."

There will be an important meeting of W. A. A. tonight at 7:15, S. G. A. room, Lathrop. Attendance will be carefully checked up.

UNION PLEDGES ARE SOON DUE

Memorial Committee Will Start Collections Next Week

The University of Wisconsin Memorial Union building committee, which recently opened headquarters in the Alumni building, has announced that it will begin the collection of outstanding pledges on November 15.

After a conference between the committee and Union board, it was decided to ask all students and faculty members who subscribed in the campaign to make payment of their subscriptions at the committee's office, second floor of the Alumni building, 821 State street. The mails will be used for the collection of subscriptions from other cities and states, but it is believed that it will be much simpler to get a general notice to students and faculty subscribers than it would be to notify each by mail.

Union board urges all student subscribers to look up their pledges and make preparations to start payments promptly on November 15.

Payments can be sent by mail or taken in person to the Memorial committee's office in the Alumni building. All checks and money orders offered in payment of subscriptions should be made payable to H. O. Seymour, treasurer.

The Memorial committee has a record of all subscriptions and any information desired can be obtained from the secretary. The telephone is University 139.

Subscribers who selected the monthly or quarterly payment plan have the privilege of making several payments at once or of paying their entire subscriptions if they so desire.

BADGERS FACE HARD GAME ON SATURDAY

Wisconsin was also greatly handicapped by the absence of Captain Weston from the line-up. Tebell was forced to remain on the sidelines until late in the game.

Dope gibes the Illini an advantage because of their 17 to 7 defeat of the Gophers. At this time "Doc" Williams did not have his strongest line-up on the field, but nevertheless succeeded in outplaying Zuppke in the early periods. Critics say that the Cardinal should have scored at least two touchdowns on Minnesota, had any of the breaks of the game been with them. Once Tebell picked up a fumble and ran for a touchdown, only to be recalled by Umpire Schommer's whistle.

Chicago, in view of the loss of the Illini contest, is now out of the title race. Next Saturday the Wolverines and Maroons will resume gridiron activities after a lull of more than ten years, but the outcome of this game will not affect the championship chase.

LAST CHANCE TODAY

Men and women who wish to attend the forensic dinner on Wednesday evening at the Belmont hotel must sign up today in 204, Bascom hall, between 1 and 2 p. m.

SENIORS MUST HAVE PICTURES BY NOV. 15

"Seniors who hold up the procession by failing to get their pictures taken by November 15 are going to be dropped this year," declared Margaret Chambers, in charge of the senior section of the 1920 Badger. "Arrangements for sittings must have been made by next Monday at the very latest."

"Everyone cannot be in Who's Who but every senior can be in the Badger, which is a record of achievement for the seniors themselves and a handy reference book for everyone else. The families and home town friends of students are often more interested in the year-book than the students themselves, and, partly on that account, it is to the interest of every senior to see that his picture is ready in time to be used."

Although photographs have been coming in rapidly lately, according to Miss Chambers, many are evidently leaving the matter till the last minute or failing to attend to it at all. The success of the department depends on its completeness, and seniors are urged to make appointments at once so that few omissions will be necessary.

HAAKE SPEAKS TO ENGINEERS TONIGHT

Prof. A. P. Haake will speak at 7:15 tonight in the engineering auditorium on "The Relation Between Business and Engineering."

Professor Haake is at present teaching the course in "The Fundamentals of Management" in the economics department.

In addition, the Henrickson brothers of the Norwegian house, will give several musical selections, and Herbert Wheaton will speak on highway work.
