Ivy Sees Another Representative Team

To Alumni and Friends of Wisconsin:

IT HARDLY seems possible that my staff and I are about to enter our seventh football season here at Wisconsin this fall. The past six years have passed swiftly and pleasantly for us and I hope that the standard of Wisconsin football has met with your approval.

With the realization that the opening game of the 1955 schedule is only days away, I want to repeat what I said last year at this time in regard to the general outlook for the season. I said then that Wisconsin "now is settled in a victory tradition and the squad has the morale to accept the challenge that goes with it."

I say it again, because I believe that to be true of our football players. So I am reasonably confident that again Wisconsin will field a representative team.

I wouldn't even attempt to guess how far we might go or whether we will even be as successful as last year. But I do feel that we should be a tough team to beat.

We experienced a good spring practice period. We found some freshmen who are going to help, not as many as we hoped, but some. We've shifted a few veterans and the changes appear good. We've had some fine development among some of last year's squad which has been very important. And we've successfully installed, we feel, some of the new things we want to try in the fall, primarily a shift.

With the great All-American Fullback, Alan Ameche, gone from our midst after four wonderful seasons, we'll probably have to play things a little differently—get more running from our halfbacks and step up our passing game.

As to offensive formations, there will be some changes, too. This fall, there will be a shift from the straight-T with balanced line into the single wing with an unbalanced line, along with some use of an "off-half or semi-spread" lineup.

Elsewhere in this initial letter, Art Lentz outlines the 1955 football prospects in detail. You'll discover what our problems are and what boys have the answer for them.

Thanks again for your continued interest and support.

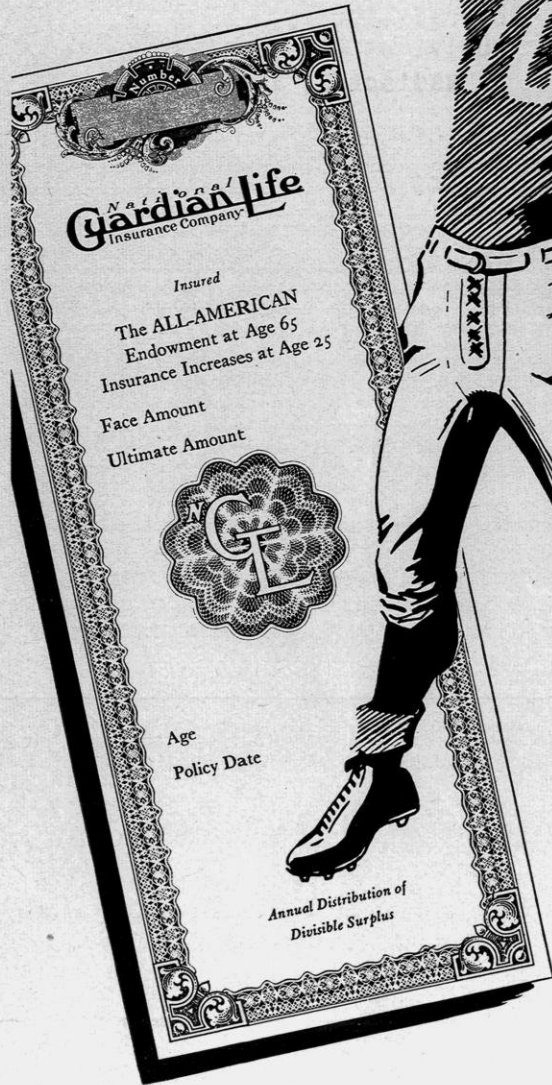

Sincerely,

Juan B. Williamson

THE 1955 BADGERS

“a tough team to beat”

By ART LENTZ

U. W. Sports News Service

Football Bulletin Schedule

As members of the Wisconsin Alumni Association, you will again this year receive four more information-packed Alumnus Football Bulletins, full of authentic facts and reports on Badger grid progress. Here's the schedule:

Bulletin No. 2, immediately after the Purdue game, covering that and the Marquette and Iowa contests;

Bulletin No. 3, following the USC and Ohio State games;

Bulletin No. 4, after the Michigan State and Northwestern games;

Bulletin No. 5, after the Illinois and Minnesota games.

HOW SUCCESSFUL will the Wisconsin Badgers be in grid-iron combat this fall?

Answering this question in the face of an unusually uniform set of contenders for the Big Ten title and Rose Bowl consideration is a tough assignment. Every Western Conference squad figures to be improved over last year—and the Badgers have a formidable slate of non-conference games as well.

But head coach Ivy Williamson is again planning to field a “representative” team—and that term means Wisconsin will be taking each game as it comes, with no inferiority complex in any case.

Williamson has produced a winning football team in each of his six years of tenancy at Camp Randall Stadium. He reasonably can do it again, if he solves the vexing problem of quickly converting raw material into poised, experienced personnel, capable of handling the continually tough assignments of Big Ten play.

The Badger grid boss sums it up like this:

“We’re not too disturbed about our first string. It’s the second string that has us uneasy. We’re thin at the ends and uncertain at center. Besides, you can’t get away from it, we’re going to miss the Horse (Alan Ameche). But we'll see—we should still be a very tough team to beat.”

THEY'LL GUIDE THE BADGERS AGAIN IN '55

Ivy and his hard-working staff have been brewing some new plans and formations that will offer something of a “new look” for Badger fans this fall. Some of them were unveiled in the spring drills.

During his first five seasons, you'll remember, Williamson employed only the T-formation, with occasional use of a spread or a flanker. Last fall, to make best use of the material at hand, he adopted the single wing as well, and by season's end this formation was used nearly 40 per cent of the time.

Now this fall there will be a shift from the straight T with balanced line into the single wing with an unbalanced line, along with some use of a semi-spread T formation.

In the final analysis, however, development of “new” formations is secondary to the development of manpower capable of a continual high performance standard in every game.

Right now, Ivy has an even dozen major lettermen returning and 10 of them are currently rated as first stringers. All saw plenty of action last fall, particularly in the last three games of the season. Two other major lettermen, plus seven junior varsity emblem winners, offer supporting strength. But the rest depends on sophomores who still must prove themselves.

Pre-season analysis of Wisconsin material, based on known performance last year and in the spring drills, might indicate a first team lineup something like this:

James Reinke and Dave Howard, who won their spurs as second string ends last fall, would be at the flanks. John Dittrich and Captain Wells Gray, both regular starters last fall, at tackles. Veteran Paul Shwaiko and junior “W” winner Steve Ambrose working in the guard tandem. Bill McNamara, twice a major letter winner as a reserve, in the pivot spot. The backfield: Jimmy Miller at quarterback, Pat Levenhagen and Billy Lowe at the halfbacks, and Charles Thomas, a reserve for Ameche during the past two seasons, at fullback.

Bob Konovsky, a starter at tackle until injuries sidelined him last fall, is one of the two major lettermen in reserve. The other is Jim Haluska at quarterback, a happy circumstance for Wisconsin. Haluska was the signal caller in the 1952 football campaign and set many school passing records. A broken leg kept him idle in the 1953 season but he came back to be of invaluable aid last fall.

Six other candidates who have won junior “W” awards as reserves include Tom Rabas, center; John Bridgeman, halfback; Glenn Bestor, fullback; Jack Stellick, Dick Kolian and Ron Hoenisch, ends. Of these Rabas, Bestor and Kolian are the most likely to challenge for starting positions.

Foremost of the sophomores are Art Bloedorn, center; Doug Russell and Jon Hobbs, guards; Tom Peters, end; Rocco Cinelli, tackle; Pat Cvengros, quarterback; Eric Hagerup, fullback;

Danny Lewis and Jan Jay, halfbacks. The latter two have fine potential and currently rate second team berths.

Williamson can also call upon other men with some experience, including Jerry Cvengros, a 6-3, 246-pound tackle; ends Bill Brandt and Rod Anderson; tackle Myron Cooper; guard Bill Gehler; quarterback Dick Simonsen and halfback Bill Sorenson.

Indications are that both coaching staff and players will be giving everything they've got during the season ahead. And if Ivy's past record with the Badgers is any indication, that should be a good deal.

Williamson's unprecedented record against major competition of 37 victories as against 13 defeats and four ties in over-all competition (excluding the Rose Bowl) for the past six years at Wisconsin indicates that Ivy hasn't misplaced his confidence in the Badgers.

Nor have Wisconsin enthusiasts misplaced any confidence in Ivy and his solid, capable staff of assistants.

“SOLD OUT” Sign On All Home Games

Wisconsin home football game tickets, a scarce commodity for the past few years, will be even harder to come by this fall.

All four conference games at Camp Randall were reported sold out in July and the Marquette contest was a sell-out by Sept. 1.

Bill Aspinwall, athletic business manager who handles all ticket sales, reports a new high in season ticket sales. Including students, faculty and other special groups, “steady customers” account for 40,500 seats out of the stadium which has a capacity of 52,000. These season ticket buyers get preference, by athletic department policy, so most of the approximate 11,500 single seats left are well outside the range of “preferred seating.” And conference rules reserve a number of these tickets for visiting teams.

Aspinwall said that ticket allotment followed the usual pattern. Persons who have ordered season tickets without interruption over the years were given top priority. New season ticket applications were then processed, with Alumni Association members getting first call. Then, with all season tickets assigned, individual tickets were allotted, WAA members again getting first choice—if their applications were received by the July 15 deadline.

$1 UW PARKING FEE SET

To help provide funds for expansion of parking facilities, the University of Wisconsin will charge a $1 fee for parking this fall in University lots near Camp Randall Stadium on football afternoons.

The fee, first proposed a year ago, has now been put into effect by action of the University Board of Regents. It will enable the University to provide parking lot attendants and thus make safer, fuller use of the 1,000 spaces near the stadium, according to University officials.

Areas opened for football parking will include not only those adjacent to the Field House but also a number of large lots on the College of Agriculture and College of Engineering campuses.

Free spaces will be provided for working members of the press, radio, and television, but all others will be charged the $1 fee per game.

Parking problems near the stadium on football afternoons have grown so serious in recent years that there was, at one time, a proposal before the University regents to abandon the present stadium and move football games to an area where space for parking would be plentiful.

With funds available from the new fees it is expected that parking areas can be developed to relieve, somewhat, the parking problem not only for football but also for other public events.

ON THE AIR

Most Wisconsin alumni in the mid-west area will have access to Wisconsin football broadcasts this fall. Again about fifty stations will carry the Badger grid games, with originations for these broadcasts coming from five stations.

In addition, there is the likelihood that one or more home or away games will be televised, although no definite programs were set at this writing.

Originating broadcasts at Camp Randall will be WTMJ, Milwaukee; WIBA and WKOW, both of Madison; WHA-FM, which will feed broadcasts to the state network as well as to a number of private Wisconsin stations and to WEAW in Evanston, Ill.; and WFHR, Wisconsin Rapids, which will be reporting for 17 other stations in Wisconsin cities.

Regent Boards Jointly Okay Coordination Plan

A NEW PLAN to coordinate higher education in Wisconsin was approved by the University Board of Regents and the State College Board of Regents in a joint meeting at Milwaukee on August 30.

The new plan, which keeps both regent boards intact, will go to the Wisconsin Legislature in October in bill form. The measure, with strong backing which includes the support of Governor Walter Kohler, seems likely to take preference over three other higher education bills pending in the Legislature.

Approved by a 14-7 vote at the joint meeting in Milwaukee, the new plan calls for a 15-member coordinating committee. This would include five members from each board, four citizen members appointed by the governor and the state superintendent of public instruction.

The Milwaukee meeting followed earlier meetings by compromise committees of the two regent groups. The plan was presented jointly by Charles D. Gelatt, La Crosse, UW Regent chairman, and William McIntyre, Eau Claire, state college regent president. Seven state college regents voted for the plan and five against. UW regents favored the idea by a seven to two count.

Here are other highlights of the plan, which will be presented in complete detail in the October issue of the Wisconsin Alumnus:

- The 15-man committee would make "studies and recommendations" in the educational fields to be covered by the schools in the systems, in building needs, in budget requests to the Legislature, and would advise the Legislature in the formation of new laws effecting higher education.

- Milwaukee State college and the UW Extension at Milwaukee would be merged into "a single institution of higher learning, offering a four-year program of undergraduate instruction" by Jan. 1, 1957. The school would be under University regent control, with a provost as its head reporting to the UW president.

- Each board would name its own members to the committee for a one year term. University and state college presidents would alternate as committee chairmen.

Governor Kohler, who has led a campaign for higher education integration during the last two legislative sessions, described the combined regents' action as "statesmanship of high order and called for passage of the bill this fall.

UW regents for the measure were Oscar Rennebohm, Wilbur N. Renk, Mrs. Helen Laird, Dr. R. G. Arveson, Gelatt, C. O. Wanvig and George Watson. Voting against were John D. Jones, Jr. and A. Matt. Werner.

State college regents voting for the measure were McIntyre, Harold K. Geyer, Harold G. Anderson, Barney Barstow, Eugene Murphy, Robert L. Pierce and Watson. Against were Elten S. Karmann, Herman T. Hagestad, Mrs. Helen Eby, Mrs. Avery Sherry and Lewis C. Magnusen.

The new measure will join three other measures for consideration by the October session of the Legislature. They are bill 452(S) providing only for merger in Milwaukee under the University, which was passed in both houses but vetoed by the governor; 279S, Senate version, providing for a 15-man superboard of regents replacing present boards, and 279S, Assembly version, providing for cooperation between existing boards through a coordinating committee.
