FIVE CENTS

FIRST COMPLETE SHOW REHEARSAL SCHEDULED TODAY

300 Tickets For Evening Shows
Remain Unsold; Matinee
Seats Available

With the first performance only five days away, preparation for Union Vodvil will enter its final stage when the first complete rehearsal is held this morning at the Parkway theater.

Approximately 300 seats remain to be sold for both the Friday and Saturday evening performances and 400 for the Saturday matinee. Yesterday's sale at the University pharmacy resulted in the purchase of more than 150 tickets.

The sale will be continued on the hill tomorrow. Tables where tickets may be obtained will be set up in Engineering hall where the sale was conducted Wednesday and Friday. Beginning at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning all tickets will be sold through the Parkway office.

Seats Are Cheaper

Last year all the seats on the main floor sold for $2 each, but this year the last eight rows downstairs are selling for $1.50 each. Very few of the seats in this part of the house and in the lower balcony are disposed of, for, according to Norton Smith '26, business manager of the production, most of the sales so far have been in the $2 and 50 cents sections.

"We have reserved the best seats in every performance for the students," Smith said yesterday, "and a great many of the good seats in the student section are still unsold."

The Chinese violinist, the banjo trio and the others who are giving musical specialties, rehearsed their acts together for the first time at the musical rehearsal yesterday afternoon. Every one in the production will have to turn out this morning for the first complete rehearsal at the Parkway.

Work During Week

Tomorrow night the show will be gone through again and on Tuesday, Director William Purnell '22, will concentrate his efforts once more on some of the musical specialties. Dress rehearsal with all the orchestra, scenery and lighting effects is scheduled for Wednesday.

LOBECK TO TALK ON "GENESIS AND GEOLOGY"

How long did it take to create the earth? In his discussion at the forum of Wesley foundation at 7:30 o'clock tonight, Prof. A. K. Lobeck will express his opinion on the question of "Genesis and Geology." This is the second of a series of discussions at the foundation on the subject, "Science and Religion."

ORCHESTRA PLANS ANNUAL CONCERT

Morphy Arranges Artistic Numbers on Musical Program For Next Sunday

The annual first semester concert of the 60-piece University orchestra, will take place in Music hall at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, December 7. A group of three songs will be sung by Eugene Leonardson, baritone soloist, who will assist the orchestra.

"The size of our clientele is apparent," said Edson W. Morphy, director of the orchestra, "if one recalls that last year the crowd of persons wanting to hear our final concert was so large that many had to be turned away."

"Our program this year will be in keeping with the dignified standards already established by this organization," Mr. Morphy added. "It is so carefully arranged and balanced and it is made up of such high class musical material, that, although composed of miscellaneous selections, it cannot fail to furnish auditors with a musical entertainment as well as an artistic performance."

To Speak Tuesday

Donald Odgen Stewart, American humorist and writer, will speak on "Laughter in the Jazz Age" at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday night in Music hall under the auspices of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic fraternity. Tickets for the lecture are on sale at Hook Brothers Music store and the University pharmacy.

ADD FEATURES TO Y. W. C. A. BAZAAR

Women Busily Working For Success; Ticket Sale Begins Today

Plans for the Y. W. C. A. bazaar which is to be held Saturday, Dec. 6, are very nearly completed, according to Alice Drews '26, publicity chairman. New features are constantly being added by the women who are working to help make the event a success.

The sale of tickets begins today. They can be obtained at almost every sorority, fraternity and rooming house for 10 cents. Peggy Read '27, is chairman of the ticket sales committee. The sub-chairmen are as follows: Jane Gaston '27, general sales; Dorthea Stoltz '27, sorority sales; Virginia Sinclair '27, fraternity sales; Lila Hicks '27, and Camilla Gabel '27, rooming house sales.

From 3 o'clock to about 5:30 o'clock there will be dancing in Lathrop parlors. The Sigma Nu and Teke orchestras will furnish music. Tickets will cost 50 cents for the entire afternoon, or 10 cents a dance per couple. Josephine Dietrich '27, is chairman of the dance committee and as co-workers she has Elizabeth Bloom '27, Jane Fuller '28, Marjorie Robinson '27, and Ruth Leadstone '27.

Side shows will be open only during the afternoon from 2:30 until 5:30 o'clock in the gymnasium. Martha Williamson '26, is in charge of all side shows and under her are Winifred Fletcher '27 and Alice Brown '27.

Geography Stumps Spanish Novices Gasping for Words

Spanish la students refused to be governed by any geographical facts in a recent quiz on South America and introduced some highly original ideas.

"South America is separated from the United States by the Straits of Gibraltar," wrote an ed, but he was flatly contradicted by a co-ed who was sure that "it is separated from the United States by the Isthmus of Panama."

"South America has a shape similar to North America," was the opinion of one. Another, enlarging on the subject, wrote, "It is a nation composed of important countries belonging to England, France, and Germany, such as Brazil, Argentina, and Uruguay." Guam, Buenos Aires, and Lima would appear to be republics. "Famous cities of South America are Peru, and Cape Horn; its most important river is the Columbia."

Present Body is Unwieldy, Leaders Declare; Publica- tion Awards Made

That the need of a new organization of the Central Interscholastic Press association is now necessary because the present one is unwieldy, was the verdict of the leaders at the business meeting held yesterday noon. The organization decided that the association must learn more about what the state organizations, which have not co-operated much as yet, are doing. The national character of the association was especially stressed.

For the coming year it was decided to award the presidency of the C. I. P. A. to the winning newspaper, the vice presidency to the winning annual, and the secretaryship to the winning school magazine. No plan for selection of officers in the future could be decided upon and it was asked that ideas be sent to the officers.

Permanent Convention Seat.

The idea that the convention should meet at a different place each year was unfavorably received by the delegates. Officers also stressed the importance of high schools getting behind the "Scholastic Editor" more than has been done in the past.

"Better advertising means better publications," was the advice of Prof. E. H. Gardner, who spoke to the convention yesterday morning on "School Publications as Advertising Media." "Writing Advertisements, to the best of one's ability," he stated "is excellent training for the future."

Professor's Gardner talk was followed by another group of round-table discussions similar to those held Friday afternoon in which special problems arising in student publications were discussed.

Publications Wins Prizes.

In the afternoon after Lee White's address, the contest awards were announced by Prof. G. M. Hyde, who was in charge of the contests. Of the newspapers entered, the "Southern" of the South high school of Minneapolis, won first place. The "Quiverian" of the Kansas City, Kansas, high school won first place in the contest for annuals.

In the school magazine contest "The Quest" of Central high school of Minneapolis, was awarded first place. Washington high school of Milwaukee was awarded a cup for having the most delegates present at the convention, and the "Stadium World" of Tacoma, Wash., traveled the farthest and won first place in that contest. Northwest high school of Detroit, with the best vodvil won first place in that contest. The convention was officially closed at 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

"Many famous people come from South America, such as Hudson, Cuneo, and Firpo; it is noted for the 'wild bull of the pampas,' new rich millionaires; old automobiles, 1910 models; and the tango."

"The South Americans are not wild and woolly Indians but are civilized like us; they are very dark complected." "They are not such a peace loving people," says one and suggests that "they should kill off all the rebels at one time and save all this bother."

An inquiring soul has heard "that South America is noted for yellow fever and would like to know where it is most prominent." A thoughtful one decided "South America is the largest field in the world for ambition," and another, "I would like to do welfare work there as it is so strange to me."

HARRIS TO LECTURE ON DE BUSSY'S MUSIC

Julian Harris, of the romance language department, will lecture on the French composer, De Bussy, at the next meeting of the French club, which will be held at 7:15 o'clock Tuesday evening in Barnard hall.

He has returned recently from Paris, where for the past two years he has been studying at the College de France. Mr. Harris has made a study of modern music, the trend of which De Bussy greatly influenced.

During the course of his lecture, Mr. Harris, will play several selections from the works of De Bussy.

C. I. P. A. GUESTS VIEW STYLE SHOW

Coranto Entertains Delegates
With New Gown Displays and Dance Features

Special features of the style show given by Coranto for the entertainment of C. I. P. A. delegates yesterday afternoon in Lathrop concert room were musical numbers and fancy dancing acts.

Pupils of Kehl's dancing academy and of Mildred Rodolf furnished selections, while Ora Louise Anderson '28, played the musical solos.

The fashion review was introduced by a talk, entitled "In Paris," in which Beatrice Morgan, graduate of the university and advertising manager at Manchester's, outlined the main characteristics of the French fashion center as she saw it last summer.

All the garments, displayed through the courtesy of Manchester's and Simpson's, were within the financial reach of the average college girl. They were divided according to their respective functions into five groups, thus:

"On the Hill," school clothes; "Around the Lake," sports togs; "Over the Demi-tasse," afternoon wear; "When Lights Are Low," formal evening apparel, and "Three o'clock in the Morning," negligees and lingerie.

Tuhtar is Slowly Evolving Plans of Great Exposition

To plan and execute such an undertaking as the all-university exposition, requires a great deal of careful preparation, and the workers in charge are proceeding slowly in order to select the best possible personnel for the affair. Eugene W. Tuhtar '25, general manager of the exposition for the Union board, has opened offices in the old clinic building and is laying the ground for his plans.

Committee appointments will not be made for some time according to Tuhtar as the committee in charge does not wish to choose workers before having had an opportunity to interview all available students. More workers will be needed for the exposition than for any other student enterprise.

The offices of the exposition are in rooms 11 and 13 of the old clinic building. Tuhtar's temporary office hours are 1:30 to 3:30 o'clock daily.

WORLD CLUB DELEGATE WILL ATTEND MEETING

The International club, at its meeting Friday night in Lathrop hall, decided to send a delegate to the convention of the association of American Cosmopolitan clubs which will meet at Ames, Iowa, December 27 and 28. The delegate will be elected at the next club meeting, Friday, December 12. Meetings will hereafter be held in the cabinet room of the Y. M. C. A. The club voted an increase of dues to five dollars a year, payable by semesters.

College Trained Writer Has Opportunity For Greater Social Service

"A college education or its equivalent is necessary for anyone who hopes to make a success in journalism," Lee A. White, editor of the Detroit News said in the closing C. I. P. A. convocation talk on "Preparation for Journalism," yesterday afternoon.

Cases of successful journalists who had no college training are extremely rare according to Mr. White who said that the fact that men like Pulitzer and Medill left large sums of money for journalism schools is evidence of the importance that great journalists place upon college preparation.

There is great opportunity for social service in journalistic work Mr. White pointed out, and fully to realize that opportunity, determination and zeal are needed as well as a background of learning. The newspaper is the people's university and the worker on the newspaper must go at his task with enthusiasm and earnestness to seek the truth, Mr. White observed.

Education a Success Aid

To illustrate the value of adequate schooling and its relation to success he gave figures which showed that whereas only one out of every 161,000 people who have never been to school achieve success, one out of every 1,606 high school graduates and one out of every 173 college graduates is successful.

"The greatest contribution that a high school education gives the prospective journalist is a mastery of the English language" Mr. White said. "Words are meant to convey ideas not to conceal, and a knowledge of correct expression is essential in order to carry messages to the public."

Need Accurate, Simple Writing

The speaker stressed the need for simple, direct, clear, accurate and refined writing and spoke of the dangers resultant from laborious and muddled writing which often gives the public the wrong ideas and puts the paper in a false light.

"A good journalist should distinguish between the written and the spoken language," he declared, "and should not write in slang. He must remember not to write above the heads of his public and likewise should not cater to its baser desires."

One of the biggest problems that journalists have to face nowadays

STOCK TEAM IN NATIONAL MEET

Wisconsin Entrants Have Practiced
Since September;
Fargo Coaches Team

The College of Agriculture stock judging team left for Chicago, Friday, to compete against 20 teams from all parts of the country, at the International Livestock exposition.

The six members of the team have practiced since the opening of the semester, under the direction of coach Prof. J. M. Fargo. The team will spend Saturday afternoon judging 12 rings of stock which include three rings of hogs, three of beef, three of sheep and three of horses.

"Wisconsin is sending a well balanced team to Chicago this year," said Professor Fargo. "No one man is outstanding and we therefore feel that Wisconsin should place some where among the first five teams when the winners are announced."

All of the judging teams will be entertained at the Eugene Daveyport dinner, Sunday night, and the winning team will be announced at that time. Wisconsin's team members are C. J. Weyker '25, F. D. Crutcher '25, H. E. Hill '25, H. M. Wood '25, S. J. Arnold '25, and C. H. Whitworth '25, alternate.

CROSS COUNTRYTwo of Champions Return;
Several Freshmen Show
Considerable Ability

At first glance it would seem as though Mead Burke's chances of developing another winning hill and glade team next year were rather slim since he is losing four of the six men that won the conference championship this year, when Captain Piper, Perry, Bergstresser and Link receive their sheepskins this June.

However there is a wealth of reserve material that should develop into a first class team by next fall. Two of the men who ran in the conference race will be back to follow the cowpath trail next fall. Kubly, the midgeet harrier, has displayed excellent form all season. He placed first in the Michigan dual meet, tied for first in the Minnesota meet, was eighth in the conference meet and has placed high in all the other dual runs.

Petaja, the other member of this year's whinnig team who will be back in running togs next season, should make a good running mate for Kubly. He had a bit of hard luck this fall in the way of injuries as he was run down by an automobile at the Michigan dual and the injury bothered him the rest of the season.

Cohen, Schutt, Campbell, Schilke, and Schwenger have all had one year of varsity experience and should increase in their ability to the extent of 25 per cent. Cohen and Schutt especially showed rapid improvement toward the end of the season. Butz won the cup at a big cross country run held in Milwaukee a year ago but was ineligible this year.

Frosh Look Good

The members of this fall's frosh squad of harriers will have to be reckoned with when speaking of next year's prospects. In McKee, Paine, Klevay, Johannes, Chapman, and Ellison. Coach Burke will have six men who can give anyone a real run for their money. In the Turkey race McKee broke the record made by Kubly last year. Ellison starred in the mile and two mile at Ripon a year ago and should be in even better form when the men start training next September.

All in all the prospects for a championship aggregation of harriers next fall are about as bright as when Coach Burke called his men together this fall.

The number of auto parking light law violators dwindled to six last night and only three of these appeared in court this morning to answer the charges. They were A. Van Wagenen, A. Bremer and N. Lawrence. Each paid $2 and costs. The other three were Joe Bailey, Carl Krausslach and Joe Moran.

Two speeders, H. E. Rice and W. L. Matteson, were fined $10 and costs.

"Scotty," Ohio Game Star, Was on Camp's Mythical Grid TeamDeveloped Football Knowledge at University; Known as Stellar Tackler

Immediately following the days of the famous Cub Buck, another stellar tackle frolicked on the gridiron at Camp Randall in the form of Ralph Scott, better known to the football world as "Scottie."

Scotty came to Wisconsin in his freshman year without any previous knowledge of football, but in some way he was persuaded to go out for the frosh team. All of his first year Coach T. E. Jones, who was then coaching the frosh, used him at center. It did not take long for the big fellow to master the rudiments of the sport and before the season was over everyone was expecting great things from Scotty.

In 1917, his sophomore year, Scott made the varsity as a tackle and played in every game. As the whistle blew that ended the last play in the final game of the year, Scotty discarded the moleskins in favor of the khaki uniform of his country.

When the gridiron season of 1919 rolled around prospects at Wisconsin were considerably brightened when Scotty returned to take up the duties at the tackle position again.

For two years he played a high brand of football on Badger elevens. In the heat of the fray he would set his jaw grimly, a steely glint come into his eye and the light of battle shine from his face. Then everyone knew that his side of the line would be well taken care of.

In the Ohio game of 1920 Scotty was the whole works. He blocked punts and place kicks and stopped everything cold that came near him. Walter Camp, whose choice of all-Americans teams is recog-

Horns Are Empty

The Wisconsin rifle team is in dry dock.

The Badger sharpshooters find themselves with empty powder horns and there is no more ammunition in arsenal. The next rifle meet is set for next Saturday with the St. John's eight but Shirfes men have been forced to practice for several weeks with "dry shooting," without bullets, awaiting 190,000 rounds of ammunition which has been ordered since last spring.

The rifle team has been receiving challenges from various Big Ten universities and matches probably will be held with Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Ohio, Northwestern and Michigan.

nized to be the final word in footballdom, was a spectator at that game and later in the season when the famous sport critic issued his selections for berths on his teams the name of Scotty was found at one of the tackle positions on the first honorary eleven.

At present the all-American tackle is known as Mr. Ralph Scott, bond salesman and broker.

Gill Brothers Plan to Enlarge Central Garage

Plans for enlarging the Central garage building on E. Washington ave., and Webster st. are being considered by George E. and Arthur Gill, owners. The building has been crowded to capacity since its completion late last winter. The addition may be erected on the Butler st. side of the garage. Foundations of the building were laid to support a five story structure.

We Want Ryan!

"That the Chicago-Wisconsin game clearly makes Wisconsin the traditional rival of Chicago," is the opinion of Allan Cooper, sport editor of the Daily Maroon. "It was a repetition of too many similar games in which the Badgers have outplayed the Maroon when rated as the underdog. Wisconsin is never to be underestimated," he continued. In the two years that Jack Ryan has coached the Badger squad he has been handicapped by the lack of experienced material. New and inexperienced men necessitate experimentation, but with each game, Ryan's system has become more popular. The comeback staged by the Badgers at Chicago, was due mainly to the consistency of good coaching. Give Ryan a chance to prove his ability with the material he has trained in the past two years! Let's back him, and win the 1925 conference title!

Conference Coaches Herald
Badger Revival of Fencing

Have the western conference major sports driven fencing from the list of college athletics? Such a supposition is not true here, for the "big red building" houses a large room in which grace and speed of movement, coordination of eye and hand, and ease of bearing is taught to more than thirty men each year.

Coaches throughout the middle west are heralding a revival of interest in this gentlemanly sport. Especially has this interest been noted at Wisconsin, where the men are trained under the careful supervision of Coach F. E. Schlatter, himself an adept at the art.

"Men with foreign blood in their veins make the best fencers," remarked Coach Schlatter. "The Frenchmen and German have a natural talent for the foil, while the Russians and Norse are especially adapted to the sabre. Three of the men on the varsity squad are Russians, while one is a Norseman.

"American youths must work steadily for months to attain the rudiments of form," continued Coach Schlatter. "They have no the feeling for the weapons that the Europeans have.

"Watch Italian children," he added, "when they are pretending to fight with swords. It will be noted that they have a natural grace, a perfect movement, wonderful coordination, and a feeling for the weapon which the American can hardly ever attain."

FEAST ON SPOILS
OF TURKEY RACESolve Cross-word Puzzles Before Banquet; Prophecy
Another Winning Team

Last night around thirty harriers gathered at the Y. M. C. A. to enjoy the spoils of victory which were won in the annual turkey race.

Prior to going into the grand feast the older members of the squad delved into the mysteries of the cross word puzzles just as they did at the conference run at Michigan. Running true to form Johnny Bergstresser easily outclassed the field at figuring out the latest form of indoor sport.

Following the dinner Dick McKee started off the toast program by welcoming all the men, in behalf of the winners of the prizes of the turkey run, to the banquet. He ended by wishing all the men who graduate good luck in the future, and expressed hope that the members of this season's frosh squad would prove worthy of carrying on for Wisconsin.

Seniors Give Advice

The four senior members of the squad each gave a bit of advice to the men who will be back next year. Perry and Link prophesied that Wisconsin would have another winning team next year. Bergstresser advised all men out for cross country to go into it for the love of the sport and for the service of Wisconsin; not for a letter or for publicity.

Captain Piper advanced the opinion that one of the important factors in the success of cross country at Wisconsin was the interest taken in the sport here. He cited the situation at Chicago where only enough men turn out for practice to make up the team and at Michigan where no one ever comes to cheer the Wolverines on or show any interest in the team.

Burke Thanks Team

Bill Jackman, varsity manager, proved to be the king's jester at the banquet. In a short but very snappy talk he put the assembled guests in a weakened condition from too much laughing.

In conclusion Coach Burke told how the Badgers won the championship by being consistent in practice and willing to work. He thanked the members of the squad for co-operating with him in turning out a championship team and expressed regret at losing the four men with whom he has worked for four years.

Basketball Ticket Sales Plan of Last Year
Adopted as Season Schedule is CompletedThree Series of Three Games
Each to Be Sold; Tickets
For Alumni

Basketball ticket sale will begin a week from tomorrow was the announcement made today by Paul F. Hunter. Tickets to court games will again be sold in three series, with two games in series to which tickets will be sold at open sale.

The plan this year, essentially the same as that which was followed successfully last season, divides the games of the season into Series A, series B, and series C. Each student will be allowed one ticket to each of the three games of any series he chooses, and he may also get a ticket for a friend on another's fee card. His own tickets, however, must be purchased on his own fee card.

Three Games in Series.

Series A admits to the games with Wabash, Minnesota, and Illinois, to be played Friday, December 12, Saturday, January 24, and Monday, March 9, respectively.

Series B admits to games with DePauw on Tuesday, January 6, Iowa on Monday, February 16, and Michigan on Saturday, February 28.

Series C admits to games with Ohio, Franklin, and Purdue, on Tuesday, January 13, Wednesday, February 11, and Monday, February 23.

The open sale series includes games with Butler on Saturday, December 19, and Grinnell on Tuesday, December 22. The Butler game may be shifted to December 18 due to the opening of Christmas recess on noon of the nineteenth.

Open Sale Dec. 11.

The admission price will be 50 cents for seats on the ends, and $1 for seats on the sides. Two windows will be open for the convenience of buyers.

Series A will go on sale exclusively to students and faculty on Monday, December 8. Series B will be sold Tuesday, December 9, and Series C on Wednesday, December 10. On Thursday, December 11, any remaining series tickets will go on sale to both townspeople and students, at the same prices. No fee cards will be necessary during this sale.

Not to exceed 200 $1 tickets will go on sale Saturday, December 6, to members of the faculty and alumni through the mail.

The seating capacity of the gymnasium this year will be 2,250, according to Hunter, who urges students to get their series tickets on the days designated so that there will be tickets for all who wish to attend the games.

So It Seems

Br-r-r. Guess such sports as backyard football, tennis, golf and cross country are doomed. Even the bravest of the brave have given up hopes of daily dashes in Mendota. Winter has snapped the first whip around our legs and soon the winter sports will be on in full blast.

The all-day marathon for basketball tickets begins a week from Monday. But last year the worst scrimmage came off the night of the games when there was a mad scramble for the unsold seats. Let's buy 'em in series this year and have 'em.

"Doc" Meanwell comes out with his pre-season prediction that Wisconsin will finish in fifth place. Respecting his lack of material, and appreciating his psychology, we'll read the Encyclopedia Britannica from first vol. to last if his team doesn't turn out within the first three.

Eckersall likes Wisconsin this year. Polaski gets no place on his three teams, yet Thomas of Chicago gets on the first team and Lidberg and Schutte, star Gopher backs, get no place at all.

"The record of the Maroons this year may have been cloudy," says the Daily Maroon, "but ten years from now

New Lineups Appear on Badger Floor; Opponents'
Strength Uncertain

The schedule for Doc Meanwell's cagers is virtually complete. Three new lineups will appear on the Badger court this winter. Michigan, Minnesota and Purdue are the three teams to be met that were not on last season's schedule. The other conference teams to be opposed by the Badgers are holdovers from last year. Iowa, Ohio State and Illinois are the teams to clash again with Wisconsin's quintet.

Just what form of opposition the new teams will offer is not exactly known. The Northmen will be working under a coach who is experiencing his first year in the Big Ten and are not doped to show any great strength. Purdue has lost its star, Spradling. Michigan should rank among the first five teams and should give the Badgers some real opposition.

The other three teams caused the Badgers the most trouble last year. Illinois, Iowa and Ohio all defeated the Badgers on their home floors and are doped to repeat the performance again this year. All in all it is as good a schedule from the standpoint of interesting games as Wisconsin has had in recent years.

EIGHT CANDIDATES FOR IOWA GRID CAPTAINCY

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 29.—The captaincy of the Hawkeye gridgers for 1925 will go to one of eight candidates when the squad is entertained by President Jessup at the annual football banquet next Wednesday. Four backfield men, Graham, Schirmer, Dauber, and Fry, and four linemen, Krasuski, Romey, Griffin and Olson, are eligible for the honor.

HAWKEYE SWIM TEAM HAS WEEKLY MEETS

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 29.—Weekly swimming meets are planned by Coach David Armbruster to get his men into shape for the university championships Dec. 13 which will be the outstanding event of the Iowa aquatic program. The team has been put through time trials during the past week following a long period of endurance work.

it will be recorded still as a championship and the tie scores will be forgotten."

And says Albon Holden, of the Big Ten Weekly, "The Badgers did not win a conference game, yet they were not the weakest team in the race."

BADGERS OMITTED

HONORARY ELEVENJack Harris is Captain on Second Squad; Three Maroons Named

No Wisconsin football player was placed on Walter Eckersall's first all-conference team, although Capt. Jack Harris was placed on the second team as right halfback and captain, with Adolph Bieberstein on the third team at left guard.

On his first team Eckersall places Parkin, Grange, Baker, and Thomas in the backfield, with Parkin as captain. Otte of Iowa and Kassel of Illinois are placed at the wing positions. Claypool, Purdue, is center; and Pondelik, Chicago; and Abramson, Minnesota, are guards. Tackles are Cox, Minnesota, and Gowdy, Chicago.

The three teams see five Maroon players, four Hawkeyes, two Badgers, five Wolverines, four Gophers, four Purple players, four Illini, one Buckeye, two Boilermakers, two Hoosiers.

ICY WINTER BRINGS
JOY TO HOCKEY MEN

As the time approaches for King Winter to hold High Court and jolly festival, the knights of the Hickory Clubs and Shiny Skates don their armor and enter the icy lists in preparation for the coming tournaments. And so, a band of twenty warriors journeyed to the lagoon at Vilas part yesterday afternoon under the leadership of R. D. Parks, frosh hockey coach, and were taught the methods of warfare. The methods consisted mainly in passing the puck and limbering up. Later in the afternoon two teams were chosen and a game was played.

WHA WILL BROADCAST
MUSIC MONDAY NIGHT

Three pieces will be broadcast at the university radio station, WHA, at 7:45 o'clock tomorrow night. The numbers are the allegro movement of Mendelssohn's "Trio in D Minor," the andante from the "Trio" by Schutte, and the "Oriental," by Caesar Cui, will be played by Ruth Derision '27, violin, John Bach '28, cello, and Frances Lañdon '23, instructor in piano music, at the piano.

EAST AND WEST

A report published in a last night's paper states that Cornell may come here for a game next fall. While it is not certain that the game is even a tentative proposition we hope that something materializes. Several times the students have gone on record as favoring intersectional games, but the proposals did not meet with the approval of the coaches.

Certainly a game with an Eastern college would draw a crowd equal to any that would attend a Big Ten contest and would be one of the best attractions on the card. Intersectional games between Big Ten universities and Eastern colleges have been satisfactory in the past and have been good advertising for both contestants.

We hope that an intersectional game will appear on the Badger's card when the schedule is complete.

IN SUGGESTION

Certainly it is not well for one publication in the Badger group which people like to look upon as a kind of family to criticize a sister publication in that same group. But it can not be amiss to offer advice, in such an instance, friendly and sincerely.

Advice we have to offer to the campus humor magazine. Probably the Octopus is the most read publication at Wisconsin, perhaps barring the Daily Cardinal. It is typical of the university in its own way, always spicy, clean, enjoyable. During the five years of its existence, and during the existence of its many predecessors, it has worried along very well accepting and using undergraduate contributions which have flooded its office, and only on rare occasions, such as the "Old Timers" numbers, has it accepted the work of any one who was not an undergraduate.

When one finds, accordingly, that this year the Octopus is accepting and using material which comes not only from one who is not an undergraduate, but also from one who has no more connection with the university than that he rooms with a graduate, one can think only two things—that undergraduate contributions have fallen off in their quality or that the Octopus is trying to become as professional as possible.

We agree that the professional work is excellent —what more could one say about it? and that it catches the spirit of Wisconsin fairly well. But it is difficult to believe that the quality of undergraduate contributions has fallen off any this year.

The year book for some time has been carrying on the same practice of using professional work. Perhaps it has more excuse for so doing. But the Daily Cardinal can only say that it is sorry to see the humor magazine following suit.

FRIENDSHIP

Although we are all here, supposedly, to get an education at the university, think how little our studies would mean to us if it were not for our friends. "Friendship," says Bacon, "is the only receipt which openeth the heart and a friend to whom we may impart our griefs, joys, fears, hopes, suspicions, counsels, and whatsoever lieth upon the heart to oppress it is our only remedy." This, certainly, is a fine tribute to friendship and yet "friendship" does not appear on the curriculum of any university, for friendship is an experience and cannot be gained from books. Friendship, true friendship, is something intangible and cannot be started by two parties merely saying, "Let's be friends." Friendship is deeper than that. Friendship, as the college student knows it, means as much, nay more, to him than does any study. Friendship is what makes college a real, vital, living thing to every student. Friendship is the panacea for our ills.

JUST A VISIT

The announcement yesterday that Prof. D. D. Lescoghier is to go to the University of California for the second semester reminds us that several of Wisconsin's professors have left for other fields during the last three or four years. While they have gone to accept better positions we will have to admit that the loss is hard to replace.

It would be well to hope that Professor Lescoghier does not learn to like the California climate so well that he should decide to make his home there. In this instance we hope that it will be only a visit and that he will be back at Wisconsin next fall.

Exchange professorships and loans are valuable both to the institution and to the professor, but sometimes they result in a loss to the favorite college.

14. ON MARKS AND GRADES

One hears a good deal of talk, at this time of year, about marks and grades. This holds true of athletic as well as academic records, although one might sometimes imagine that the latter are quite satisfactory. Marks are a record of the student's achievement; they are not a reward for it. They show, with such approximate accuracy as human judgment affords, what rank in scholarly achievement has been won by the student in his courses. The instructor is not entitled to thanks for the high grade which the student has secured or to reverse thanks for a low grade. If such thanks are, occasionally, tendered they are accepted only as an expression of the student's legitimate satisfaction or unhappiness at his own progress. Marks are a record, not a reward.

And yet one has to recognize the existence of a curious twist in the attitude of some students toward high scholarship. They seem to say: You are bound to do your best in playing football or organizing homecoming or gathering news or planning a party, but when it comes to chemistry or Shakespeare or philosophy, it's enough to "get by." How long, I ask you, would a player stay on an athletic squad who took that attitude toward the game?

And how long, think you, would our patient and idealistic people continue to maintain their state university, if it became usual to take this attitude toward its chief activity, to wit, the promotion of the highest scholarly achievement that the students are capable of? Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well. The doing of scholastic work in a slipshod way is dangerous to one's mental habits. It leaves a deposit of independability which it is difficult to eliminate.

I admit that the securing of an A by a grind is a deterrent to strenuous scholastic endeavor by students of high capacity. Fortunately it occurs less and less frequently, as instructors realize that an A represents mastery which involves the power to use the mastered material or technique in an original way. Any student who is content to do less than his level best in his studies is wronging himself and his alma mater. The enlightened section of the public realizes the significance of marks. It would be a surprise to some students to learn of the inquiries I get from professional schools and from large business concerns, asking what subjects such and such an applicant studied and what grades he secured. They know what's what. Let no one fool himself. A high grade is an outward sign of an inward accomplishment.

The town of Chicago was in an uproar. It was the day of the big game with Wisconsin in 1925. Everywhere were flags flying, but it was the Wisconsin voices that were ringing out on the streets. The boys and girls were joyous, for the game was to be theirs for once. Wisconsin had come through the season with flying colors and would not be denied the victory on that day.

Within the Chicago circles, all was gloom. Stag's men were a bunch of pills, as always, who had managed to sneak through with a few victories over the girls' academies at Indiana and Purdue, and had managed to tie a few of the other weak schools. Behind Wisconsin was a ring of victories that the Kappa Sigs had amassed.

"What shall we do?" cried the old Chicago alumni and the student body.

"Let's see Stag!" was the final yell, so away they went, and cornered that victim finally.

"Talk to the men. Make them fight as they never have fought before!" they told him.

"I'll do it," said Stag, and an hour before the great game he gathered the team together and talked to them such as he had never talked to them BEFORE.

The teams lined up, and amid the cheers of Wisconsin and the pleadings of Chicago they fought for four quarters as two teams had never fought BEFORE. Tears rolled from the cheeks of the Chicago men, who were playing their hardest game for Alma's mother.

Chicago's quarterback stood well back with tears rolling from his cheeks as he pleaded for his men to fight, fight, fight. As he waited, Leo broke loose around the end, and came down the field all alone. The quarterback stood and waited, for Leo had headed right for him. Finally Leo switched and the quarterback started to move with him—

The tears falling from his eyes had transformed the dry ground into a pool of mud and he slipped and Leo went over for a touchdown.

Victory!

Hamand is considering suicide. He gave a bid to Prom and it was turned down. The scene of the attempt will be out on the Drive tomorrow night. Any young ladies wishing to qualify as life-savers will appear there shortly after dinner. Many tests will be given. The position, if attained, is worth about $60 around the first of February.

About the best one of the week is due to Stan Wheatley. We saw him come slowly down Langdon with a new pair of shoes on the other day.

"What's the matter?" we asked.

"Do they hurt your feet?"

"Naw," said he. "The fellow forgot to cut the string that tied them together."

Making dumb cracks at fraternities and sororities is much easier and less harmful than making them at trucks, isn't it, Tom?

We are now thinking of writing a book on cremation and naming it "Flaming Youth."

This week Skyrockets is presenting the Lit office to the fellow that came over to our house looking for one of the Lenicheck boys.

"Which one?" said the pledge, that answered the door. "There are two brothers living here by that name."

"I want the one that has the sister in Milwaukee."

THAT'S FINE.

The police force seems to have a little grudge against Hamand. We were given a lecture and a quiz the other morning. It was sort of an entrance examination. The dean asked one question and we guess that we answered it right, for he told us to go down and pay our tuition—$14.55. We don't like that place.

Talking about nice girls though. We walked into a pharmacy down State street in quest for a magazine. Went up to the counter and asked the blonde young fuzzy:

"Have you Life?"

"Judge for yourself," said she.

We can't refrain from telling a good absend-minded professor joke when we hear it. Listen to this.

"What are you looking for?"

"I'm looking for my hat."

"Why, it's on your head."

"Thank you. But for you, I would have gone away without it."

1896.

His arm went around her slender waist,

She coyly raised her head,

"Your form," he said, "is quite divine."

"Of corset is," she said.

She was just an old-fashioned girl.

'Tis rumored that Methuselah became disgusted with the cold-blooded actions of H. Heated H. the other night, and when she became scared when he just missed hitting another Ford, and said:

"Why, my heart just came up in my mouth," he came back with a dirty dig labeled:

"I hope that it didn't chip your teeth."

Methuselah, Methuselah, Solomon's thousand wives surely gave you an awful line.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT—

There were no Chi Psis at the Phi Psi dance last night.

This idea of Union Vodvil may be all right, but it shouldn't refer to the actors and actresses. In Vodvil it's a case of united, we get hit; divided he can duck the rotten tomatoes more easily.

Great work is being done by the carpenters at the Parkway this week. They are nailing down all of the chair-arms on the seats to prevent any possible mishaps to the actors.

To prevent any such occurrence as happened at the Homecoming Follies, we suggest that the boys leave all of their pennies at home and carry nothing but dollar bills. In case anyone becomes irresponsible we will be back of the stage waiting for those pieces of money to flutter up.

Famous LAST lines:

"Whv, I just promised another boy that I would go to Prom with him."

HAMAND.

AWARD PRIZES AT POULTRY EXHIBIT

Preparations Are Being Made
For Show to Be Held
Dec. 13-15

Final preparations for the sixth annual Badger poultry show are nearing completion rapidly. The show will be held on December 13, 14 and 15, in the Poultry building.

"A splendid variety of prizes and premiums is being awarded at the show this year," O. A. Hanke '25, general chairman of the show, said yesterday. "The Short course men will find many practical prizes among the collection which will be worth while working for. Silver cups and other prizes will be offered to the winners and the Long course men should win their share of the prizes."

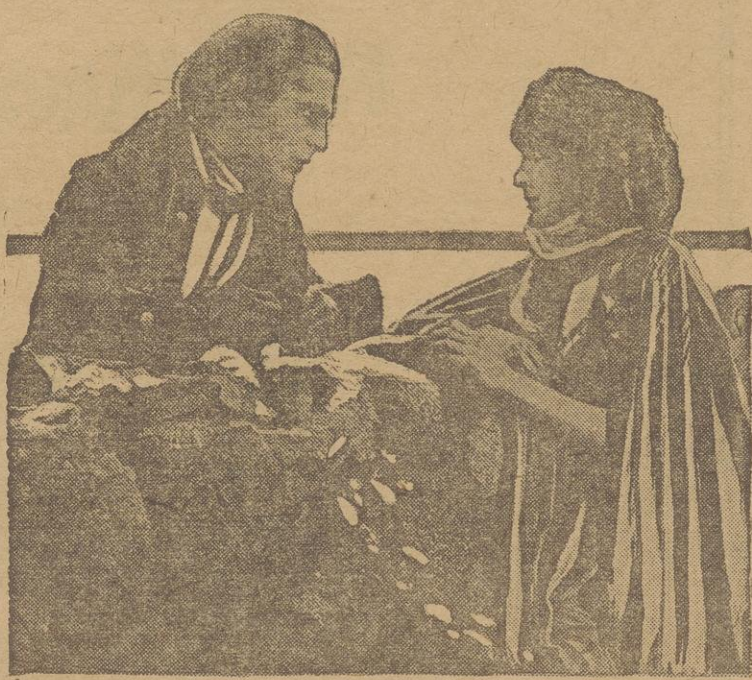

High school judging teams were to compete at the show, but it has been planned to hold the judging in connection with the Wisconsin International show in February. However, a student judging contest will take place after the poultry show and will be open to all agricultural students.

The men in active charge of the show are O. A. Hanke '25, general chairman, R. J. Elmer '27, arrangements, H. A. Menz '28, awards, H. L. Kropp '25, publicity, and C. M. Bice '27, show secretary.

RUTH PERSSION PLAYS FOR HOSPITAL PATIENTS

Ruth Persson '27 of the School of Music, gave a violin program at Forest Lawn sanatorium at Jefferson, Wis., yesterday afternoon. This was the first of a series of programs which will be given by students and Madison townspeople to the patients of hospitals in the vicinity of Madison. Miss Persson was accompanied by Margaret Otterson at the piano.

Guests of the sanatorium during the program included Mr. and Mrs. I. Milo Kittleson and A. M. Brayton.

In response to an appeal by "S. E. K." a former student at the university that the students and townspeople join in bringing music and recreation to patients in neighboring hospitals, Mr. Brayton has inaugurated a recreation project to bring entertainment to those who are shut off by illness from the outside world. Mayor Kittleson is also interested in the project.

C. I. P. A. Delegates Are Campus Guests During Convention

This being the first week end for many weeks that there has not been a football game either here or elsewhere there are many students out of town visiting at home or with friends. To make up for the number that have left Madison are the delegates to C. I. P. A. who are staying in all the fraternity and sorority houses on the campus as guests during the convention.

The guests at the Alpha Chi Rho house this week include five delegates here for the C. I. P. A. convention.

Hawley Cahill '26, is in Milwaukee for the week end visiting his parents.

Frank Zahorick '27 is spending a few days in Green Bay this week end.

Margaret Callsen '24 is a guest at the Chi Omega house for several days.

Murray Whitfield '24 has gone to Milwaukee to spend a few days visiting friends.

Hans Grieser '25 is visiting in Chicago over the week end.

Florence Poppenhagen '25 is visiting friends in Sheboygan this week end.

Cliff Nolte ex-'25 of Wauwatosa, and Harry Lyford '23 of Monroe are guests at the Beta Theta Pi house for the week end.

Evelyn Bonniwell Wheeler ex '25 is a guest at the Chi Omega house this week.

Russell Sterling '25 is visiting in Sterling for several days.

Irene Montgomery '24 who is now teaching in Findlay, Ohio is a week end guest at the Chi Omega house.

William Christians '26 and Arthur Fritch '27, have gone to Milwaukee to spend a few days with friends.

Charles Kading '26 and William Brandt '27 are guests in Watertown for a few days.

Herbert Wible '23 is a guest at the Delta Chi house for several days.

Vivian Dollard '24 is in Madison this week visiting her family and friends before she returns to Minnesota to resume her teaching.

Ellen Killen of Cedar Falls, Iowa is a guest in Madison this week.

Martha Hollingsworth '25, is visiting her parents in Sheboygan this week end.

Edward Gibson '23, is a guest at the Alpha Gamma Rho house this week end.

Romance Threads

"America," Show At Strand Today

D. W. Griffith, the foremost producer, perhaps has been more successful in portraying first love, the most fascinating of all emotions with succeeding pictures notably in his great romance, "America," which opens a seven day showing at the Strand starting today.

In "America," Mr. Griffith has taken the first love of a vivacious, impetuous Virginia girl of fashionable family, intensely loyal to her father; and a young Massachusetts college boy ablaze with the adventure, perils and greatness of the cause he serves.

These two, so opposite in every thought, are sweethearts at first meeting, plunging themselves into the complexities of first love as well as the opposing interests of the day. Perhaps never before has first love been so subtly and charmingly revealed. The boy's part is played by Neil Hamilton, the young man who has been accepted by sculptors as the ideal young man of this nation; and the girl by Carol Dempster.

SOUTH AMERICAN TOUR PLANS MADE

Tentative Trip Includes Chile, Bolivia, Argentina, and Brazil

"The suggestion has been made that a South American tour be arranged for a group of Wisconsin students during the summer of 1925, if a sufficient number are interested in making the trip," said Prof. Casimir D. Zdanowicz, of the romance language department yesterday.

"The tentative plan would call for departure from New York on June 25, a stop at Lima, some two weeks in the mountains and among the Inca ruins in Bolivia, and two weeks in Chile and Argentina. The party would then travel to Brazil, sailing from Rio in time to return to New York by Sept. 14.

"If a sufficient group of students desire to make the tour, some member of the romance language department will conduct the party and give special training in Spanish while en route. Anyone interested may inquire at the department office," Professor Zdanowicz concluded.

"Square" Copper Has Active Part in Union Vodvil Photo

"Hey, there cop, can you do any acting?"

And the policeman on the square was made an actor instead of a cop on the city hall beat.

Members of the Wisconsin University players cast were having the picture taken by DeLonge for the pictorial section of yesterday's Daily Cardinal. No sterner was available in the university district, so the cast went to the city hall on Monday noon to take the picture in the court room. But a policeman was needed and the patrolman was called off his beat, to lend the proper atmosphere.

The other Union vodvil picture in the pictorial section, all taken by DeLonge, were obtained without any difficulty, except that of Maxine Walker '25 and Margaret Mc Govern '26, in the satirical act, "Wisconsin Life—As It Should Be," who were photographed at the De Longe home.

NOT STUDENT OPINION.

Editor, the Daily Cardinal:

We, the undersigned students in the University of Wisconsin, regret very much the appearance of the editorial in the Daily Cardinal entitled "Not Guilty" and which concerned the verdict in the Patrick Powers case, and which appeared on Friday morning, November 28th, 1924.

We feel that the editorial does not reflect the general student opinion. It seems to be an attempt to stir up passion and create prejudice as a result of the outcome of the case of Patrick Powers and we believe the student body as a whole disapprove of the sentiment in the editorial.

The shooting of Peter M. Pospny was tragic but now that Patrick Powers has been acquitted, we believe the student body will accept the decision of the jury, which alone had the authority to decide the issues after reviewing all the evidence in the case on both sides of the case. The students stand for law and order. Regardless of the outcome of the case against Patrick Powers the students will do all that is possible and reasonable to cooperate with the police of Madison in the enforcement of law and order.

POLITICAL ORPHANS SORE AT REGULARS

Norris and Nelson Show Fight at Republican Expulsion Order; La Follette Better

WASHINGTON, D. C. — In the wake of the action of the Republican caucus, dominated by white house spokesmen, reading four senators elected as Republicans out of the party, neutral observers here today foresaw vexing troubles ahead for the Coolidge administration.

Senators Norris and Borah neither of whom attended the caucus appeared as incensed as Sen. Howell with the action taken, Howell having voiced his opposition in the caucus.

The senators, speaking for western Republicans generally, expressed the opinion that the administration has taken a fatal step so far as the west is concerned in the 1926 elections, insuring the defeat of Republican senators and congressmen who will be candidates two years hence.

The caucus action, it is believed, means that Sen. Brookhart of Iowa, now repudiated by his party, will speedily be unseated in favor of Dan Steck, Democrat, as soon as the new congress meets.

Opinion here is practically unanimous that LaFollette, on the first occasion offered at the December session, will deliver a blistering indictment of the Old Guard Republican leaders, closing the door to any hope of reconciliation between the "Insurgent" and conservative elements in the Republican party.

Members of the solid Wisconsin delegation of "Insurgents" in the house, now preparing for similar treatment by the house Republican caucus, appeared to be ready to follow any retaliatory plan LaFollette may direct.

"I have been with 'Bob' LaFollette for something like thirty years," Rep. John M. Nelson declared, "and I have never known him to take a licking lying down. The Old Guard leaders who are responsible for this action, and who apparently worked in cooperation with the white house, will live to curse the evil inspiration which prompted them to take this step. They did not need Wisconsin to win this election. Next time they may need Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa and a dozen other states in the west and they have adopted the best possible means of permanently alienating them from the Republican column."

Seasoned Democratic leaders could not believe their ears when informed that the Republican caucus had read four of their Western senators out of the party.

The Democrats contemplate no similar action toward Sen. Wheeler and others who supported LaFollette.

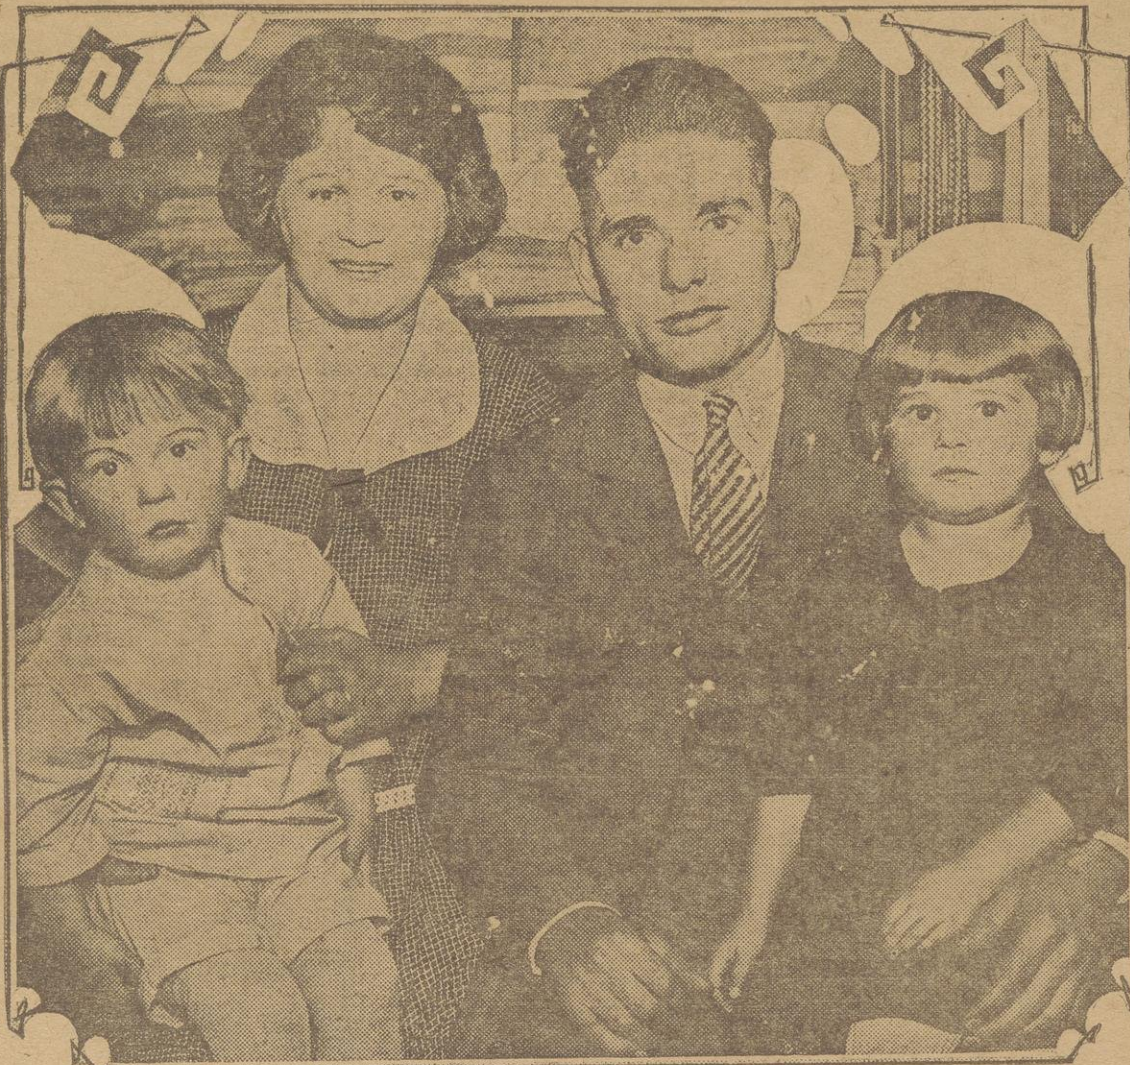

Fire Razes Station and Grain Elevator

MONROE, Wis. — Damage estimated at $30,000 resulted at Juda last night when fire, starting from a defective chimney in the Milwaukee road station, destroyed that building and spread to the nearby grain elevator and storehouse, owned by Ben Roderick, Brodhead. Although the Monroe and Brodhead fire departments were called, they were unable to save the Roderick property. The station was leveled when the firemen arrived.

Hallucinations Guide Student In Fraternity House Thefts

The young man who has confessed to Detective Jesse Smith of the police department that he is the person who has been wreaking havoc in the Latin Quarter with repeated and daring robberies of fraternity and other student rooming houses, is suffering from hallucinations.

So says Dr. William F. Lorenz, president of the state board of control, who has examined him. Within a few hours the youth, himself a student and member of a fraternity, will have been committed either to the Wisconsin hospital for the Insane or will have been transferred to a private asylum by his parents who have been called to Madison.

The youth, in his own mind, is a master of detection and crime. To him, the Madison police department was a scornful office unworthy of his assistance. Single handed he would solve the identity of the mysterious night prowler who for the last eight weeks has preyed on the student district.

A few days ago, he got a clue. It was the key, he knew, that would unlock the envelope of secrecy in which the burglar had been working. Willing to teach a member of the local department a lesson or two in the unraveling of crime, the youth took Detective Smith into his confidence.

For two days the officer and the student closeted themselves together, or skipped through the night following the inclinations and dreams of the boy's mind. But always the elusive goal hovered in the distance.

Then Thursday afternoon, Detective Smith, who had learned the secret of the student's hallucinations, locked himself in a room with the youth, and questioned him.

Trapped, the student confessed then told where might be found the loot.

A few hours later an up-state train pulled into Madison, bringing the boy's parents. Because they have aided police in the recovery of much of the stolen property and because they are willing to see him cared for in an institution, Police Commissioner Frank Jenks, Police Thomas Shaughnessy and Detective Smith have promised to keep secret the youth's identity.

Investigation still is being made into a report that two other students were his cohorts on many of his midnight visits to Latin Quarter rooming houses.

Pythia, Castalia Hold Trials Soon For Annual Debate

Castalia and Pythia Literary societies are making plans for their yearly debate. Castalia tryouts will be held a week from Friday and those of Pythia on Friday. The question for debate this year is, "Resolved, that Capital Punishment Should be Abolished Throughout the United States." This proposition, which intercollegiate debaters are considering this year, deals with a modern problem. Castalia and Pythia are considering a challenge to debate Rockford college and Iowa college sometime during the school year.

At the Castalia meeting Friday night, Gertrude Baume '27 opened the evening's entertainment with a review of a play, "A Beggar on Horseback." Carol Hubbard '25, talked on some of the more important topics of the day. Dorothy Hapeman '27, gave "The Patchwork Quilt" as a musical reading.

Julius E. Callis '25, is the head of a committee appointed to make plans for the subscription dance which Castalia plans to give for the benefit of the new English house on the first Friday after the Christmas vacation.

The Pythia meeting was a short meeting put on entirely by the new members. A reading by Marjorie Henry '27 and a clog dance by Ruth Ligon '28 were the main features.

BETWEEN THE LEAVES

By C. K. K.

In a Shantung Garden, by Louise Jordan Miln, Frederick A. Stokes & Co., 1924.

The primary reaction to Mrs. Miln's latest effort is a sense of the complete unreality of the whole. This exotic, gorgeous picture of China, steeped in superstition and governed by custom and tradition, is vivid, it may be authentic, but it is not convincing. The plot is neither real enough nor unusual enough to make the picture seem incidental; attention is focused upon the picture, and so both plot and picture seem a little absurd. The dramatic quality, the thrilling mystery, the call of the siren East, which held one breathless in Mr. Wu are attempted in "In a Shantung Garden," but the attempt is not logical enough to make the novel absorbingly interesting.

The intricate beauties of Chinese life and culture are enfolded to Tom Drew, a young American business man who by middle age would probably have developed into something of a "Babbitt" type had he not gone wandering. He is swept into the very heart of the East, he really learns China. This portion of the story is truly colorful, but the interest is lessened by the vagaries of the plot. It seems almost ridiculous that Drew, as he is characterized, should ever fall in love as he did with a Chinese girl. Likewise the atmosphere of international intrigue, which is created, is too suggestive of E. Phillips Oppenheim to be satisfactory.

In the conclusion Mrs. Miln endeavors to introduce a touch of pathetic tragedy. Indeed the ending is altogether unpleasing. Nothing is accomplished, nor is there the soul-stirring depths of great tragedy. We felt that there were many irreconcilable incongruities in both story and setting.

"I suppose I was a kind of wandering God's fool—trying sailing, gold-digging, treasure hunting in the Andes, sealskin fisher, Indian trader, anything and everything," says Charles J. Finger of the adventurous years before William Marion Reedy told him that he could write.

Whether or not he came back laden with nuggets, he did bring a treasure of folk lore from the Indians in the "Silver Lands" of South America, strange enchantments and ways of breaking them, giants and witches and undersea people, fairy folk who are very real to forest dwellers. In "Tales from Silver Lands," which Doubleday, Page & Company have just published, Mr. Finger recounts for his own children, Helen and Herbert, and all other boys and girls, the stories of the rat that had a tail like a horse, the Calabash man, Na-Ha the fighter of Cape Horn, El Enano the snag-toothed who hid in the forest, Cabrakan the robber who ate goats like strawberries, and many another.

The book is illustrated by Paul Honore, the mural artist, with many black and white wood cuts and ten in color, all of them flooded with yellow sunshine against the silver blue of forest and river.

Men as a rule write better novels than women, not because of superior aptitudes or brain power but because they carry business methods into their writing, says Mrs. Harriet Comstock, whose long career as a successful novelist proves that novel writing as a business is a practicable one for women. Novels do not "just grow" like Topsy of old, she insists, but most women writers have seemed to think so.

"Writing has always been a business, but until lately women have tried to carry it on along lines quite different from other professions and not subject to the rules or regulations of business," says Mrs. Comstock.

"With men, this has not been so. Once they adopted writing as a profession, they applied to it the common sense rules of other occupations and this accounts principally for the difference in quality between the writing of men and that of women. Not a question of sex and superior brain power at all. But

Hidden Hand That Rings Class Bells in Observatory

By K. D. K.

Did you ever wonder whose is the hidden hand that rings the bell announcing to you that you are late again for your 8 o'clock, or that the dull lecture is over at last? I've been wondering for some time and finally started on a hunt for that hand. The quest led me first to the registrar's office where I was told to go to the observatory.

I went to the south door and entering found that there were three doors, two of which were labeled, "No Admittance." The third was locked.

Turning to depart I bumped into a pompous-looking man, of whom I inquired if there were any means of access to the interior. At that moment a door opened and a woman asked me in. At last I was to obtain my longed for information.

She turned me over to a man who led me into a small room where there were two clocks, one, an electric clock, the other, an ordinary timepiece, which was a main telegraph station by itself, with an electric apparatus attached to it. Each building in the university corresponds to a local telegraph station. This system is divided into three circuits controlled by the clock at the observatory. The bells are rung automatically by an arrangement of circuits in the back of the clock. The first circuit runs through Bascom hall, North hall, Engineering building, Science hall and ends in the hydraulic laboratory.

The second circuit runs through South hall, Biology building, Music hall and Chemistry building. The third runs through the agricultural buildings.

On the back of the clock there are two dials: one of which is used in the morning and one for the afternoon. The markings on the dials correspond to those on the face of dial a magnet is so placed that contact is made at ten minutes of the hour, and at the hour. This same process takes place on the afternoon dial.

Pastels and Bronzes to Be Shown Here

An exhibition of pastel studies by Arthur Spear, and bronzes by Albert Laessle will be presented here soon in the state historical museum by the Madison Art association. The exhibits are coming from the Milwaukee Art institute where they have been for the last month.

Albert Laessle is an instructor in sculpture in the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. His fine work in bronze is represented in the permanent collections of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Carnegie institute, and Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. His works are noted for their flawless technique.

Arthur Spear whose pastel studies are to be exhibited is especially known for his paintings in oil and for his marked ability as a draughtsman. The pastel studies in the current exhibition were most of them made during the course of preliminary work for important paintings but they are possessed of such charm and are executed with such virtuosity as to make them in themselves a real contribution to contemporary graphic art.

Charles Scribner's Sons plan to publish a new book by Ring W. Lardner, in the spring, and have taken over all his books from former publishers with a view to issuing them in a uniform style. Mr. Lardner, author of "How to Write Short Stories," six printings of which have been necessary since its publication by Scribner's last spring, has just returned to this country after visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. Scott Fitzgerald at Hyeres, France.

the lack of organization on the one hand and the force of it on the other.

"No woman can write when and where she can with very little concentration and always with an eye and ear open for outside and disturbing interruptions. She must devote to it the time and concentration that any other profession demands if she is to make a success."

Maxine Walker

Miss Maxine Walker '26, is one of the stars of Union Varsity to be presented at the Parkway Dec. 5 and 6. With the support of Gordon Brine '26, Russell Winnie '27, and Otis Wiese '26, she will give a "true to life" representation of life as it is at the University of Wisconsin.

The International club will put on one of the most interesting acts in the show. In an exotic atmosphere of colorful oriental costumes, the soft twang of strange instruments, the low, musical voice of a little China girl, all set off with expressionistic panelings of the stage, almond eyed, and dark-skinned peoples will bring the world in review before our eyes.

Miss Anna Chang '25, of Kinkiang, China, dressed in her native robes, will tie the different acts together, reading the explanation of each as they come on. One of the features will be a contrast of American and Philippino jazz given by a Philippino orchestra.

John Galsworthy, whose new novel, "The White Monkey," recently issued by Charles Scribner's Sons, is already in its fourth large printing, will be represented on the New York stage in January by a new play, "Old English," announced for production by Winthrop Ames. George Arliss will play the leading role in the American production. Mr. Galsworthy's famous "Forsyte Saga" is now in its seventh printing. His new book "The White Monkey" has become one of the best sellers all over the country and promises to be his most popular book.

Bernice Lesbia Kenyon is the guest of Struthers Burt, author of "The Interpreter's House" and the recently published "Diary of A Dude Wrangler," and his wife, Katherine Newlin Burt, in southern France. Miss Kenyon, whose book of poetry, "Songs of Unrest," was published not long ago by Charles Scribner's Sons, expects to bring back with her from abroad the finished copy of a first novel. In interesting contrast, Mr. Burt, known thus far chiefly as a novelist, will have a book of poems in the Scribner list for next fall.

2 Dead In Auto Crash; Actress Is a Victim

EATON, Ohio—Two persons are dead and another is probably fatally injured as the result of the wrecking of two automobiles at the main street crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad at 9 A. M. today. Fourteen persons including a party of actors and actresses appearing at a local theatre were occupants of the machines.

The dead are Mrs. Charles Fagen 29, known on the stage as Ruth Janette and a woman whose body was taken to a local morgue and which has not been identified.

Roy West of Dayton, was probably fatally injured.

News Print Problem May Be Solved in Forest Products Lab

A solution of the newsprint paper problem may lie within the walls of the United States forest products laboratory here.

In an article by Bart Campbell in the Editor and Publisher, Charlie P. Winslow, director of the laboratory, states that it has now under development a process for manufacturing newsprint paper from black gum, cottonwood and other southern hardwoods, which if successful will spread the burden of newsprint supply over a large number of woods and new regions, particularly in the South.

The new paper will be made from black gum among others. Nine-tenths of a cord produces one ton of this paper as compared with 1 1/2 cord of spruce required to produce a ton of newsprint by the usual processes. Similar satisfactory results have also been obtained with poplar and birch.

"This produce and the process by which it was made are still in the experimental stage," said Mr. Winslow. "Nevertheless, the high yield and excellent natural color of the pulp give promise that such broadleaf woods may be used profitably to supplement the rapidly diminishing supply of spruce which is at present practically the only species considered suitable for newsprint."

"These broadleaf woods are widely distributed, constitute a large proportion of the present stand of growing timber, show rapid growth and reproduce easily, so a continuous supply is promised the pulp mills which will establish in the new regions. Heretofore the southern woods have not offered much possibility to the pulp manufacturer except for the making of wrapping paper."

"After two years of experiment we have been able in the Madison laboratory to utilize these woods by a new chemical process giving a yield of paper equivalent to 80 per cent of the weight of the wood. This is as high a yield as is obtained in the usual processes of making newsprint which are adaptable only to spruce, and a very few other soft woods."

Paton MacGilvary Lives in Portrait

Paton MacGilvary, one of the University's gold star war heroes, and the son of Evander Bradley MacGilvary, professor of philosophy, lives again in the beautiful portrait now on exhibit in the State Historical museum. It was done by Norwood MacGilvary, uncle of the aviator, who is professor of art at the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

MacGilvary was graduated from the engineering school in 1916. He went to Italy with the American aviation in 1917 and became adjutant of the combat division at Foggia. The Italian government gave him three medals and many citations.

There is something of the spirit of dare devilry in the portrait. There he stands in the center of the aviation field at Foggia talking to three of his confreres, after having just landed from an air raid—laughing and chatting to these brother officers of his who have come-up to get the news. There is no excitement on his face, no sign of war or a dangerous flight successfully completed. His expression is perfectly natural—laughing, boyish—you almost expect to see him puff the cigaret he is holding so carelessly in his hand.

The picture is most colorful. Done for the most part in dull blues and greens, it has here and there a vivid splash of red to liven it. MacGilvary, himself, stands in the center foreground, hatless but still wearing his leather jacket just as he jumped out of his plane—that Caproni that carried him so successfully through 30 or 40 bombing raids against the enemy.

The picture is not one which will strike you with its full force at one glance. It loses something in this. You must study it to really appreciate its beauty. At the first glance it gives the impression of being somewhat shallow. But when you stop to think that the MacGilvary who stands there facing you so friendly is now dead, when you get the significance of the dark wreath

KNOW YOUR OWN CAMPUS

By R. W. K.

South hall is truly the most romantic building on the campus. It began as a dormitory and at present houses the best school of journalism in the country. At one time or another it served the purpose of a home for the president of the university and his staff of professors, as a men's dormitory, as a woman's dormitory, as a normal school and as the school of agriculture.

South hall was the second building to appear on the campus. It was built in 1855, four years after North hall.

When it was completed the president of the university moved into the south end of the main floor and professor Allen moved into the north end. At first the rooms above were used as a men's dormitory, but when in 1863 girls began to appear on the campus and the normal department was instituted, the men in North hall had to double up and 148 had to seek room away from the hill.

"The men were very much humiliated when we girls first entered the university," said Mrs. Sterling Smith '67, the only member of the first class of girls living in Madison and one of the four still living.

Boys Ignore Girls

"For almost a year the boys wouldn't speak to us, they ignored our existence. It was not until the Castalia exhibition that we ever spoke to them. Mrs. Sterling invited the junior and senior boys over to her parlors and we met them for the first time. After that we were on speaking terms."

It was mainly due to Professor Allen that the Normal department was installed.

"There is a strong feeling of opposition to the Normal department, mainly on the ground of its bringing females to the university," was a clause inserted in the regent's report of 1851. Professor Allen's revival occurred in 1863 when 119 enrolled.

At one time it was almost impossible to get a president for the university because of "circumstances beyond control of board"—referring to the co-educational clause.

Female College Begins

Both Dr. Joseph and Dr. Chadbourne refused. In 1867 the Normal department was changed to Female college entirely separate from the university proper and Dr. Chadbourne accepted the presidency.

Th girls lived together in suites of two bedrooms and one study, four girls to each suite. They paid $1.72 for living expenses per week while the faculty paid $3.00 for the family.

In 1869 when the agricultural course was inaugurated, South hall was used for that purpose and during the last thirty years it has gained the reputation of being the best school of journalism in the country.

Will Refund Money On Red Cross Seal Sale

Madison residents who have purchased Red Cross seals through the invitation of the Forest Lawn Fellowship club, Jefferson, Wis., will have their money refunded. This method of selling is a violation of the agreement between communities, according to Don E. Mowry, general secretary of the Association of Commerce, who has conferred with officials of the local Red Cross organization regarding the sale. Plans of the Red Cross association are that each community will buy seals only of its local organization.

More sewage has been pumped by the Madison sewage disposal plant during the last four months than during the same period in 1923, according to James Mackin, superintendent of the plant. During the last four months, the flow showed an increase of 103,651,000 gallons.

Mail Carrier, War Vet

Shot by Stray Bullet

STURGEON BAY, Wis. — William Bourgeois, city mail carrier and star baseball player of Door county, was struck in the face by a stray bullet while he was making the rounds of his mail route.

The bullet entered at an angle on the lower portion of his cheek and struck the upper part of his teeth, which deflected it, and it left his face near the nose. Bourgeois thinks the bullet was fired by boys shooting at doves.

Local Realtor Advises

Knowledge of Prospect

"Every real estate man should know something about his prospect before showing a house," said Paul E. Stark, to the members of the Madison Real Estate board at the Madison club Friday noon.

"Knowing your prospect will help sweep away the barriers that bar the way to success. Every real estate man should carry out the following points: visit the home of the prospect, know his social life, his business, get outside references about him, know his previous experiences with real estate, inquire into the motives of the prospect, and finally, know who is the boss, the wife or the husband?"

"The Oak Park Real Estate board owes Madison a very great debt for the fine treatment received while in Madison," said George Heminway, a member of the Oak Park board and a guest of the Madison Real Estate board, speaking in behalf of the Oak Park board.

Going back to his original theme of the necessity for education, Mr. White declared that good English is merely the tool for expressing worth while thoughts and in order to have worth while things to say a journalist must be in constant pursuit of more and more knowledge all his life, even after his formal and must go at his work with a real desire to help his fellow men and benefit society.

"Nobody should go into journalism," Mr. White said in conclusion "unless he really is interested in it and truly desires to lead a life of society service."

State Child Labor Laws

Adequate, Women Told

Dr. Dorothy Reed Mendenhall, speaking at the Madison Law Enforcement committee meeting Wednesday afternoon, pointed out that Wisconsin child labor laws are so nearly adequate that no federal law passed under the 20th amendment would affect this state.

"Any labor law applies only to children of unsuitable age who are engaged in a useful occupation in the industrial world, but not in any way does it pertain to children who are helping with the chores on their own farms or in their own homes," she said.

Kill Chemist to Get Formula for "Hootch"

LOS ANGELES — Fred W. Ferrer, 40, a French chemist found stabbed to death in a Los Angeles suburban cottage yesterday with an undischarged revolver by his side and a "lucky rabbit's foot" in his pocket, was killed by persons eager to gain possession of a secret formula for the manufacture of illicit liquor, according to police today.

Bank clearings in Madison for the week of Nov. 17-24 exceeded those of the same period last year by $386,497.70 according to the A. C. bulletin. The figures for 1924 were $7,756,554.23.

The Daily Cardinal Has Over 15,000 Readers

A large portion of the Cardinal circulation goes to fraternities, sororities, rooming houses, and boarding houses where four or five persons read each paper.

It is evident that the Daily Cardinal is the logical medium to use for reaching the university men and women.
