Legis. committee endorses merger

By BRIAN POSTER
of the Cardinal Staff

Riding a rocky path to victory, the proposed merger of the University of Wisconsin and Wisconsin State University system was approved late Thursday afternoon by the Joint Finance Committee of the legislature on a vote of 7 to 6 with one key abstention.

The budget of the UW system was all but approved as a half dozen changes left the UW with a budget of 300.1 million for the 197-3 biennium. On Wednesday, a $184.2 million budget was approved for the WSU system.

WHILE CONSIDERATION of the budget took the major portion of the committee's time, the issue of merger left its six Republicans shouting at and denouncing the eight Democrats for "highly irregular" tactics. The meeting ended in a shambles before final approval could be given to the budget, which is entwined with the merger issue.

The committee first voted 7 to 7 in effect a vote against the merging of the two university systems, as proposed by Democratic Gov. Patrick Lucey. One Democrat committee co-chairman Rep. George Molinaro (D-Kenosha) voted "no" because he felt merger would hurt the UW-Parkside campus, which lies in his district.

Fifteen minutes after a secret caucus by the eight Democrats, a new vote was taken. This time merger was approved 7-6 with Molinaro out of the room so he wouldn't have to again oppose his Democratic chief executive.

Efforts by the six Republicans to table the question of the merger and adjourn the meeting before the second vote was taken failed. This led Rep. Byron Wackett (R-Watertown) to charge, "We have destroyed the American principles we believe in."

Republican legislators would rather see their own similar version of merger approved so they could receive the credit.

SEVERAL CHANGES were made by the Joint Finance Committee in the proposed merger which must be passed by both the Democratic Assembly and Republican Senate.

The proposed mandatory advisory campus council for each campus, on which students would have representation, was made optional after UW President John Weaver announced his opposition to them. He claims that campus councils would be "absolute chaos in the management of the institution."

The merged Board of Regents would total sixteen members and would make final recommendations to complete implementation of merger by January 10, 1973 instead of the January 2, 1972 date originally specified. The merger, if approved, would become effective this Aug. 31 or thirty days after passage, whichever comes first.

The $303.5 million 1971-3 budget set for approval by the committee is a decrease of $3.5 million from Lucey's request, which he recently increased by $4.5 million. In Thursday's action, the committee cut $8.1 million while adding another $4.6 million.

ONE OF THE key cuts made by the committee was a decrease of 2 per cent each year, in the proposed faculty pay increases, thus saving $3.2 million. The new proposed faculty pay increases are 7 per cent the first year and 7 1/2 % and 11 1/2 boosts each year for the WSU faculty. A plea by Weaver to eliminate the 1 per cent cut for the first year was rejected.

A savings of $3.6 million was gained when the committee approved $12 million for a merged central administration, instead of $15.6 million that had been set aside. Lucey had stated in proposing the merger that $4 million could be saved in the operation of a new central administration.

The other important cut was a slash of $600,000 in the funds allocated for "instructional workload." The committee made this cut because of a "reduction of students in projected enrollment."

TAA, U start negotiations

By REGULA EHRLICH
of the Cardinal Staff

The Teaching Assistants Association (TAA) contract with the University will expire Sept. 1971 and the University and the union are holding weekly bargaining sessions in the hopes of averting a strike showdown.

Students, however, can expect "some sort of strike action next fall" according to Steve Zorn, president of the TAA. Zorn told the Cardinal that "repetition of last year's student boycott of classes is not a probably form for the action" but that "more effective ways of dealing with the management are being investigated."

According to the union, the contract will be "worth fighting for." The TAA will bargain for provisions concerning women's rights, ecological safeguards and job security.

Meanwhile, complications continue with the old agreements. TAs in the history dept. have brought formal charges of intimidation, impairment of undergraduate education, and requests for back pay in arbitration proceedings this week.

Fifty six history TAs are seeking back wages from the fall semester when they averaged 51.6 hours of overtime.

THE UNIVERSITY has put a work rule into effect in the present semester which prohibits any TA from working over 240 hours a semester. Teaching assistants must submit monthly reports of hours worked and failure to do so can result in suspension from teaching.

TAs must budget a schedule of four discussion sessions, grading exams, office hours and lecture attendance in an average 13 and a third hour work week. The work rule demands that any TA must cease all teaching duties upon reaching the maximum 240 hours.

The TAA claims that teaching assistants are forced to lie in regards to the number of hours.

THE TAA HOPES to replace the "professional arbitrators" or "experts from the outside" in the existing grievance procedure with a workers review council. The council would be elected by constituencies within the University including faculty, students, research assistants, student employees, technicians, secretaries, office workers, and members of Local #171 of University employees. It would operate from the democratic premise of one vote for each member.

The TAA's bargaining proposals include the provision of day care for children of employees represented by the union and a balanced ratio of women and men in graduate school.

Contract proposals concerning the ecology include the restriction of motor vehicles on campus, restriction of air pollution in regards to the University heating plant, as well as water, noise and pesticide pollution and preservation of University natural woodlands.

The TAA's contract positions will be presented to the University bargaining committee the first week of June. "We will deal with objections to our proposals at that time," Zorn commented, "and revise our contract to submit to the bargaining committee in final form in July."

If bargaining fails, Zorn said, the general membership would decide the tactical solution.

More arrested in draft bus protest

By PHIL HASLANGER
of the Cardinal Staff

Three persons were arrested at the Badger Bus Depot early Thursday morning as they stood in front of a bus carrying men to the Milwaukee induction center.

It was the second time this week that people have been arrested as they tried to block the departure of induction buses. Nine others were arrested early Monday while they sat behind a bus in an effort to keep it from backing out of its position.

THE THREE arrested yesterday were William Handy, 21, an orderly at Madison General Hospital; Patrick Miedl, 21, an orderly at St. Mary's Hospital; and Gregory Youngchild, 22, a student at the University. All three were charged with disorderly conduct.

Judge Michael Torphy conducted the arraignment yesterday morning and entered a plea of not guilty for the three. The trial date was set for May 27 at 3:00 p.m. in Judge Russell Mittelstadt's court. The three are now free on $200 recognizance bonds.

The next exodus to Milwaukee sponsored by the Selective Service System is scheduled for 6 a.m. on Tuesday, May 25 from the Greyhound Depot.

The action began shortly before 6:00 a.m. Thursday when about thirty-five people gathered at the Greyhound Bus Depot by mistake. When it became evident that the induction bus was not departing from there, they raced over to the Badger Bus Depot, arriving moments before the bus did.

ALTHOUGH ALL three had considered nonviolent civil disobedience before, this was the first time any of them had engaged in it. They said they felt the time was ripe because of the action by the nine on Monday.

"To demonstrate my support, for you and for all those who seek to end oppression through non-violent means," Youngchild wrote to Fr.

Few afflictions of the human race are so universally seen, yet so generally considered hopeless, as common baldness. This common, "Creeping" type of baldness accounts for the vast majority of cases. It is so common that it is considered normal among men. But this is not true. Hair loss is abnormal. Baldness is not inevitable. Nor is it hereditary. Men do inherit scalps that have the tendency toward balding, but it is the lack of proper scalp care that permits the balding process to take place.

If you have the tendency toward baldness, slipshod methods of hair and scalp care will avail you nothing. To prevent baldness, you must act positively. Frommes treatments can restore your scalp to normal health and stimulate new hair growth. Act now. Visit us today for a free examination and scalp analysis. WSA reorganizes executive

of the Cardinal Staff

Student Senate Thursday night approved an executive reorganization plan which created five vice-presidential positions in the fields of academic affairs, political education, governmental and community relations, special projects and financial affairs.

At Cardinal deadline, appointments to four of the positions were challenged by senators on grounds that all four appointees were male and charges that the selections were made before interviewing was completed.

WSA Pres. Tim Higgins replied that he did not make the appointments until they were announced at the meeting, and that he earlier said only that the person already working in the area would be appointed to each position unless someone more qualified turned up.

THE SENATE, on a 15 to 8 vote with two abstentions, failed to get the necessary two-thirds vote to override Higgins' veto of a $200 Senate appropriation to the Womens' Counseling Ser. to help that group pay its debts. Higgins said he vetoed the bill in order to establish the precedent that groups seeking WSA funds would make specific requests in advance of Senate meetings.

The Senate subsequently passed a bill authorizing WSA to pay the group's debts up to $200 after the WSA-sponsored Frank Zappa concert May 27. The concert is expected to garner additional funds for WSA, which is presently running a large deficit.

THE WSA financial report presented at the meeting showed WSA with current assets of $461.68 and liabilities of $4942.45. Of the liabilities, $3049.68 consists of unpaid telephone bills. WSA also owes $838.00 to the Daily Cardinal, $250.00 to Kaleidoscope, $145.51 to the University Book Store, and $136.40 to the Bugle American.

Senator Fred Caplan said it would be difficult to get the phone bill reduced because the payments are made to the University, which in turn pays the telephone company. It would have been easier to get the debt reduced if WSA could deal directly with the telephone company, Caplan said.

WSA Treas. Stuart Weissler has reportedly stopped payment on a previous Senate donation to the Camp McCoy Three on the grounds that funds for the donation are not available. At a previous meeting, the Senate voted to hold fund-raising events in lieu of a direct contribution to the Residence Halls Student Labor Organization because of fund shortages.

SENATE ALSO passed 11 parts of a 12-part resolution by Sen. Ron Allea, which would create a WSA petition and complaint center, ask that someone be hired to clean up dog shit around the campus, set up a WSA recycling center for cans and bottles, work on course evaluations, ask local businesses to use recycled paper, update the WSA exam file, provide an up-to-date budget report at each Senate meeting, and abolish the grading system.

The motion to abolish the grading system passed on a fairly close vote. The only part of Allea's motion to be defeated was a pledge that all WSA senators and executives would donate blood at least once a year except for those with religious objections.

Senator Ira Mintz moved that the suggestion of Wisconsin Sen. William Proxmire as a speaker for the New Student Program be rejected, but his motion was ruled out of order at the time and had not been renewed by Cardinal deadline.

Jill Anderson was confirmed as chairman of the New Student Program by the Senate.

Higgins announced that the University administration had opposed WSA's health insurance plan on the ground that students were required to buy a WSA card to get the insurance and not on the ground that there was anything wrong with the insurance itself. The University is offering insurance in competition with WSA for the first time this year.

Jury to hear Huggins' testimony read

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — The jury pondering capital charges against Black Panther Chairman Bobby G. Seale and a local party leader returned to the courtroom Thursday for a lengthy rereading of testimony by Seale's codefendant.

Judge Harold M. Mulvey of Superior Court approved the jury's request to have the transcript of Ericka Huggins' 2 1/2 days of testimony reread. It covers 500 pages of the 4,500 page transcript.

The trial was recessed at 6 p.m. until Friday after two-thirds of the testimony had been read.

Mulvey also said the five black and seven white jurors may hear the tape-recorded interrogation of Alex Rackley, who was questioned and tortured at the local Panther headquarters, then taken to a swampy river 20 miles to the north and killed two years ago Friday. The tape was expected to be played Friday.

The jury had deliberated eight hours when it made its requests to rehear testimony from the six-month-old murder-kidnap trial.

North Viets gain new Laos supply route

SAIGON — The North Vietnamese gained a new supply route through southern Laos Thursday just as monsoons began flooding older routes farther to the north.

This setback to allied commands in Indochina came with the abandonment by Royal Laotian forces of the last remaining outpost on the Bolovens Plateau in southernmost Laos. Control of the plateau gives Hanoi drier access to South Vietnam's central highland and northeastern Cambodia.

Monsoons have begun sweeping the northern part of South Vietnam and the Laotian areas near it and the allied commands had been counting on the weather to hold off any Communist command offensives over the next few months.

The government outpost at Houei Kong in the Bolovens Plateau was evacuated in the face of advancing North Vietnamese troops when Laotian field commanders decided it could not be held.

McGovern challenges Dems on priorities

WASHINGTON — Sen. George S. McGovern challenged fellow Democratic Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and Hubert H. Humphrey Thursday to specify how they would shift national priorities in view of their refusal to support a 50 per cent cut in US troops in Europe.

"If they're not willing to cut expenditures there for the military," McGovern asked at a news conference, "where are they willing to cut?"

The South Dakota Democrat, only announced candidate for his party's 1972 presidential nomination, said that unless specific cuts are made in the $80 billion defense budget, the talk about changing priorities is just "rhetoric."

He said that the votes by Muskie and Humphrey against the amendment by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield were "a serious blow to any credibility they have with regard to a serious change in priorities."

The 61-36 vote Wednesday against the Mansfield amendment, McGovern said, "shows that a lot of people are still hung up on those same outmoded foreign policy assumptions that got us into Indochina."

Asked if that included Muskie and Humphrey, potential rivals in his campaign for the presidency, McGovern said, "Yes, it does. They're involved in those assumptions."

County board size is debated

By KARL IDSVOOG
of the Cardinal Staff

With all other speakers in opposition, at a Thursday night public hearing before the county board, an expert on reapportionment urged that no specific number of supervisors be set.

The rest of the speakers favored keeping the county board at its present size of 47.

Dick Lehmann, author of one of the chapters on county reapportionment in a book published by the University Extension, said that a fixed number would make reapportionment difficult.

"The demand for population equality is very strict, for districts," said Lehman. If the number were left open the board could choose the number of districts which would allow population equality among the districts without "chopping up" certain segments of the county.

The board used to be a 90 man body, but now 47 is the maximum allowed by state statute, which was amended in the 60's.

Protesters arrested

Fred Kreuziger, one of the nine arrested Monday, "I am going to attempt to repeat your action against the 'Selective Slavery System' and, with the support of others, block the 'butcher wagons.'"

The Monday action had other consequences as well. When the bus which the nine had blocked reached the induction center in Milwaukee, a number of those who had been brought there for their pre-induction physicals remained on the bus for several minutes, debating the advisability of refusing to take the physical. Finally, they all went into the induction center.

Assembly votes investigation into alleged Warren dossiers

By BARRY PALMER
of the Cardinal Staff

An investigation of state attorney general Robert Warren and his justice dept. to determine whether dossiers of Wisconsin legislators and private citizens are being compiled was approved Thursday afternoon by the state assembly on a vote of sixty to thirty-eight with disgruntled Republicans preparing a counter-revolution to investigate Gov. Lucey.

The vote of approval came after nearly four hours of debate. The real resolution states a special committee of three assembly majority leaders. The vote of approval came after nearly four hours of debate. The real resolution states a special committee of three—the assembly majority leader minority leader, and the dean of the UW law school—must report back to the assembly within sixty days with a study of the allegations.

The charge that Warren is keeping a file on legislators and private citizens was made Tuesday at a study hearing by rep. Fred Kessler (D—Milwaukee), who is speaking on a bill proposing a commission to supervise data collection by state government agencies. Kessler said a person in the state capitol gave him his information.

However, at both the committee hearings and on the floor of the assembly, Kessler refused to give details of how many persons are in Warren's files and the nature of the dossiers being kept. Other Democrats backed up Kessler's silence by saying the special committee should be the source to publically issue Kessler's allegations.

Kessler's silence led to a barrage of charges by Republicans in yesterday's floor debate.

"This is a raw political partisan assassination (of Warren), "charged an angry representative Tom Thompson (R—Elroy). "These false accusations are a reincarnation of the witch hunting of the 16 hundreds."

Republican attempts to delay the resolution and the bill by sending it to committees or broadening the investigation to include all state agencies decisively failed. The featured unsuccessful amendment was a proposal that Gov. Lucey should be investigated for awarding a state public relations contract to a firm that handled his 1970 gubernatorial campaign.

Lack of funds

Blue Bus may be forced to close doors

By CHARLOTTE FELDMAN
of the Cardinal Staff

After almost a year of invaluable service to students, the Blue Bus Clinic may be forced to close due to lack of funds.

The present Blue Bus, located at 222 Bassett Street, is an outgrowth of last year's student operated clinic which actually was stationed in a blue school bus parked in front of the Miiflin Coop. Run by volunteer medical students, doctors, and nurses, the Blue Bus was begun primarily as a free clinic to treat venereal diseases.

Last August the Blue Bus felt the need to expand and the Bassett Street building was made available at a reasonable rent. At that time the Blue Bus workers approached the Regents with a proposal for the expansion signed by the head of the Medical School. The proposal was passed by the Regents and money for the rent was allotted. The University budget, however, had already been planned and as a result, this year's Blue Bus funds were taken from a one year Drug Information Fund which expires in June.

WSA has also been providing the Blue Bus with funds which have helped to cover medical supplies and other operational costs. However, as there has been a recent change in WSA administration, these funds could be cut also.

Since the Bassett Street Blue Bus opened last August, it has treated an average of 30 patients a night. Open Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 7:00 p.m. until 9:30 p.m., the clinic provides free venereal disease tests and treatment, pregnancy test, mononucleosis tests, strep throat tests, pap tests, and various information on problems from birth control to vitamin deficiencies. A doctor is always present at the clinic and the State Board of Health provides laboratory workers and has helped in the training of lab technicians.

A recent addition to the Blue Bus is a free psychiatric service. Staffed by three psychiatric residents, the service is available Tuesday afternoon from 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., and Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings from 7:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. Free counseling is provided and group therapy sessions can be set up as necessary. Students are encouraged to come in and discuss their problems.

A benefit is being held this Friday night from 8:00 p.m. to midnight in Great Hall to raise money for the Blue Bus. Sponsored by the Committee to Revive the Blues, the concert will feature "Methyl Ethyl and the Keytones."

"The Bull Frog Blues Band," and "Crank." Admission is $1.00 and all profits will go to the Blue Bus. All students concerned with saving the Blue Bus should be sure to attend.

Paranoid fantasies

Political activist Leslie Bacon was sentenced to jail for contempt Wednesday after she refused to answer federal grand jury questions about the bombing of the United States Capitol on March 1 and the May Day demonstrations earlier this month in Washington, D.C.

Leslie faces up to eight months in jail—the amount of time the federal grand jury has been given to perform its investigation.

Once again, as Leslie herself put it, the United States government is acting out its “paranoid fantasies” in the elusive search for structured anti-government conspiracies.

Although federal authorities have attempted to connect Leslie to everything from last year’s New York bombings to the sinister manipulation of recent May Day activities, they have failed utterly to produce factual evidence (save the ominous presence of an anonymous police agent informer) to substantiate their suspicions.

Leslie has consistently denied the charges made against her. Her parents have similarly been outspoken in her defense. The Weather Underground issued a communique three weeks ago in which Weathermen took total credit for the Washington, D.C., bombing.

“I’ve testified over and over,” Leslie told U.S. District Judge William Goodwin. “I feel the government is trying to frame me and other innocent people.”

It may be difficult for government bureaucrats and administrative lackeys to realize that opposition to the U.S. government is not characterized by smoke-filled back-room politics.

There is a conspiracy against the U.S. government, but it is a conspiracy of workers, GIs, students and growing numbers of the American people who are realizing that corporate greed and social inequality are the hallmark of American life and the logical force behind the United States’ involvement in the Vietnam War.

It is going to be a very difficult conspiracy for the United States government to pinpoint, prosecute or halt.

Leslie Bacon is being used by federal authorities as a pawn in their effort to smear the motives of May Day protestors.

Leslie has refused to answer seventeen questions, although she was granted immunity during her testimony, because the questions posed to her by the grand jury were studded with implications and could possibly incriminate people beyond their original intentions and actions.

The immediate ploy of the federal grand jury in Seattle appears to be an effort to tie a vaguely-described “Seattle Contingent” into a (of course) national conspiracy against the federal government.

The amorphous “Seattle Contingent” is an outgrowth apparently of the government’s initial charges against the Seattle Eight, a group of persons indicted on conspiracy charges last year after demonstrators went on a rampage through Seattle streets in reaction to the verdict of the Chicago Seven’s trial in Chicago.

The original Seattle Eight trial was declared a “mistrial” and is scheduled to be resumed sometime this summer. Not to be daunted, the federal grand jury is attempting to tie Charles “Chip” Marshall, one of the defendants in that trial, into another conspiracy, this time around the May Day demonstrations.

The situation is almost a parody of itself as the government focuses on one person after another, Rennie Davis and then Abbie Hoffman, David Dellinger and then David Hilliard, in their frenetic drive to round up the imagined puppet masters of the masses.

Marshall and Bacon and all of the other defendants in all of the other witch-hunting conspiracy trials across the country are, indeed, mad conspirators just as the government fears—but their is method in their madness.

And a corresponding list of their co-conspirators would be endless, even as it grows.

The Leslie Bacon Defense Fund needs contributions. Send what you can to Box 1984, Seattle, Washington.

A different kind of weekend trip

Over the course of the weekend, anyone with a dollar or so in his pocket can participate in two events that promise to have more redeeming value than the usual Madison weekend trip.

On Friday night a benefit for the Blue Bus clinic will be held Friday night featuring “Methyl Ethyl and the Keystones,” “The Bull Frog Blues Band,” and “Crank.” Admission is a dollar for a dance that will support the clinic run by volunteer medical students, doctors and nurses which supplies free medical and psychiatric aid to over 30 patients a night at its Bassett Street residence.

On Saturday, Julian Bond will speak at the Field House on the topic “Collision Course in a Divided America.” Proceeds will go to the Human resources and Education Fund for the University of Wisconsin-Madison five year tutorial program. Cutbacks on both the federal and state level have curtailed financial assistance the University offers to disadvantaged minority students.

Letters to the Cardinal

FRANK ZAPPA'S POWER TRIP

I thought that you might be interested to know that one of Madison's top groups is getting screwed by “super star” Frank Zappa.

Zappa and the Mothers are booked to play May 27 at the U.W. Field House. WSA helped get the Tayles the opening spot on the show.

Zappa refused, through small print on his contract, to have a local act open the show. He demanded that the organizers use a back up band that he is pushing.

For the sake of the organizers and all the people who have worked so hard to bring concerts to Madison, the show can't be boycotted. But Madison should let Zappa know what they think about his power trip and ego trip.

The Tayles don't want any trouble in the community. They didn't even want me to bring this entire thing to light. But I feel that your paper should know and should write something.

Sincerely yours,
Larry A. Schumann

One late night last week as I walked past an empty Taco Grande and looked in the window, I thought I saw a plowhorse laying a wreath on the frijoles and giving last rites to the tacos. The scene brought back vivid memories of the old Burgerville, where all the campus heavies used to fight it out for the window seats during the lunch hours. Burgerville was slick, it was impersonal. Yet it was a place for all the lovely couples to hang out after the State Street movies on the weekends, where guys would try to roll “the old pins,” racking them with “the old pelvic thrusts.” Some girls would just giggle affectionately, as their dates popped dimes; others would wait impatiently, hoping for an early tilt.

But then, Burgerville wasn't a place to eat. It was, however, a place to be SEEN while eating. For me, a subgourmet lover of junk food—good junk food—neither Burgerville nor Taco Grande could ever fit the bill. Their junk was and is too pedestrian.

I'm admittedly after the high class junk. Like the old 12 cent burgers at White Castle (they're now 14 cents). We used to trip over to the “WC” during lunch hour at school, to feast our eyes on the oily building, the sooted napkins, and the generally rancid clientele. But most of all we went there for the greasy delicacies posing as ground round—the burgers our mothers warned us against, the burgers our friends called the “pandora's box of the Bronx” (“it's okay to eat 'em” they used to say, “but please, please don't ever lift up the buns.”)

Some of my friends sometimes confused White Castle with White Tower, and as a result, tragically overpaid for the same piece of meat. When I was in Washington recently, I had the misfortune of eating at a “WT.” “You know,” began one customer as he struggled with the soup of the day, “every time this city has a riot, at least one of these joints gets itself trashed, and it's usually done by the people who were eating here at the time.”

As I strained the grease from my french fries, I began to see his point.

Usually, however, we are given a choice in our search for the best in super-junk. In Madison, we have the two veterans, McDonald's and Burger Chef, followed by a supporting cast of dozens of Kelly's, Arby's and Robby's, not to mention Red Barn.

One of history's worst burger joints was on University Avenue, across from the Union 76 station. King Burger was the name, and they offered ridiculous variations on the same sawdust 'neme. Peanut Butter Burgers, Blueberry Burgers, and rumor had it that on special order one could have a cat burger. The place was always empty, except for the poor fellow at the counter. Then one day he disappeared, too.

King Burger's big competition was Schmidt's Burger Chef, located conveniently next to the Fitch-Lawrence funeral home (they shared the parking lot). To the newcomer, the Burger Chef was just another hamburger joint, but to the regulars, it was a professional display of hamburgerology.

For an order of a cheeseburger, fries and a coke, one was able to witness the chain of command. The girl at the counter would take your order, and then turn, facing the cook, eight feet away, and she would yell, “One delicious cheeseburger, please, one golden brown fries please, and one coke please.” The cook, responding as if participating in a language textbook dialogue would say “one delicious cheeseburger working please, one golden brown fries ready please,” and finally, “thank you please.”

One night after we had waited on line, hearing the same conversation (always ending in “please”), a friend of mine ordered “one cheeseburger, one fries, one Big Chef and your place is on fire,” and the girl almost said “our place is on fire please.”

Of course, McDonald's continues to pack 'em in, and the language there is less relaxed—it's automated and mechanical. At McDonald's it's a system, and it's so much less fun. The only time you hear anything is when you order a burger with onions only, pickles only, etc. Then the guy just yells “GRILL” and everyone looks at you—after all what's so bad about a hamburger with everything on it (also, the boys at McD's aren't amenable to special orders.) And, while I'm at it, here's a little test for all of you to try at home. Buy one McDonald's “thick shake.” Take it home. Put it in the ice box (or refrigerator as the case may be). Wait two hours. Open the ice box. Ahah! What has happened to your 26 cent shake?

But, back to burger lingo. The classic of them all still occurs, I am told, at a place called Booby's in Highland Park and Northbrook, Illinois.

You can find Booby's near a bowling alley, and the featured treat is (get ready) the Big Boob. Try ordering two plain hamburgers to go, and don't be too shocked if the counter man doesn't say “two naked boobs walking. Hold the fries.”

Regents discuss budget cuts

By SUZY HEWITT
of the Cardinal Staff

The regents will act Friday on the budget recommendations as outlined at the Thursday meeting of the Regent Subcommittee on the budget. The recommendations if approved would eliminate 260

University non-teaching jobs and would affect students in the areas of housing and health services.

One hundred of the 260 jobs would be eliminated from the Residence Halls Division, while the other 160 would come from the Medical Center of University Hospital.

Rent increases from $4 to $6 for married student housing and faculty units in University Houses, effective Sept. 1 were also included in the projected residence halls budget.

Seibel bows out well

By MURIEL HERBERT
of the Cardinal Staff

The Heiress, which closed Tuesday night at Compass Theatre, is based on Henry James's Victorian chronicle Washington Square. Set in the archetypal, repressed parlor of that era, the play at times has difficulty in overcoming James' obsession with description and dialogue, as any adaptation would. Lynn Seibel's production of The Heiress had the distinctive success of taking almost three hours of dialogue and creating a richly textured parlor drama that escaped tedium.

The direction of the play focused upon a group of singularly repressed and obsessed characters and scrutinized them with the intensity of a magnifying glass. Dr. Sloper is a tyrannical man whose obsession with his dead wife and constant comparisons of her with his daughter, Catherine, has made him unable to give her anything but disparagement. She wants desperately to please him, but is clumsy and tongue-tied. Into her life glides Morris Townsend, a smooth and handsome idler who finds Catherine's prospects of an inheritance of $30,000 a year so alluring that he passionately courts her. He is egged on by Catherine's romantic Aunt Penniman and thwarted by Dr. Sloper, who sees the fortune hunter for what he is. The major action of the play concerns this courtship and the motives of the characters involved in it.

THE PLAY was extraordinarily rich in characterization. Martha Bray was outstanding as Catherine. Each gesture was beautifully expressive of the fears of this love-starved girl, from her nervous laugh to her way of shyly glancing up as if the world were her obstacle. Her performance had a remarkable consistency throughout her evolution from innocence and longing to the exhilaration of first love and finally to the warped bitterness of frustration.

Lisa Davis, as Aunt Penniman, was equally impressive as an ageing, rather fluffy-brained romantic. She was delightfully comic, a cupid longing to chaperone the elopement. Her well developed gestural range and sincere warmth made her extremely believable as the most sympathetic character in the Sloper ménage.

THE OTHER performances could not compete with the skill of these two actresses, and the ensemble at times came close to laziness in letting them keep the play alive all by themselves. The most outstanding scene was not surprisingly between Catherine and her aunt, as the girl waits to elope and is left waiting, suitcases packed, deserted by her fiancé because the marriage might disinherit her. The tension of waiting and the merciless shattering of Catherine's hopes was beautifully executed and left many of the audience in tears.

Ralph Sandler, despite some weak sequences, was a gruffly believable Dr. Sloper, at his best when angriest. K.C. Kelly was a good-looking but unconvincing Morris. His declarations of love to Catherine are supposed to seem sincere while his mind is lecherously fondling her bank account. Kelly's performance was disappointing in its lack of complexity.

THE SET was a beautiful representation of a parlor, but it seemed inappropriately scaled to the small Compass theatre. The stage encroached uncomfortably upon the audience—the stifling atmosphere of a Victorian parlor need not be so literal.

The production of The Heiress far surpassed the text it had to work from and was both profound and enjoyable. As the final production of director Lynn Seibel on this campus and the final show of the spring season at Compass, The Heiress was a generous bequest.

Screen Gems

May 21—Sunrise (1927) — In one international poll of film critics in the 1950's, Sunrise was voted the greatest film ever made. If this judgement seems slightly overstated, there is no doubt that Sunrise is one of the greatest movies of all times, certainly among the five major dramatic works of the silent era, ranking alongside the best of Eisenstein and Griffith. F.W. Murnau's starting point is a simple, clichéd story: A man has an affair with a wicked vamp but returns to his wife. And after they go through some hard times, they are reconciled and on better terms than before.

But Murnau's visual method in showing the changing moods of the man's life is what is so incredible, as Sunrise moves from dark Germanic expressionism to brightly lit, lyrical realism in its conclusion. The relationship between huge, muscular George O'Brien and his tiny wife, Janet Gaynor, is a thing of beauty. As their hostilities melt and they come back together, you will cheer. Without a doubt, Sunrise is the film of the week on campus. Green Lantern - 8 & 10 p.m. (also Sat.)

May 21—Flesh and the Devil (1927)—Twenty-one year old Greta Garbo became an international star here in her third picture as a result of her pittance against box office King John Gilbert. Their hot romance both on and off the screen was the talk of 1927, making Flesh and the Devil an immense popular success. The film was also a critical favorite, considered the most tempestuous love story of the whole silent era, with praise heaped on the direction of Clarence Brown. (Brown was to be responsible for most of the major Garbo vehicles in the 30's, rivalling at MGM the Dietrich-Sternberg collaboration at Paramount.)

Flesh and the Devil, lost for over four decades, was only put back in circulation last year. This is the Madison premier of this important Greta Garbo film. 1127 University Ave. 7 & 9 p.m.

May 21—Faces (1968) — John Cassavetes shot bits and pieces of Faces over a five year period on 16 mm stock whenever finances became available. Finally Cassavetes' substantial acting salary for Rosemary's Baby allowed him to finish shooting the movie and also to edit it himself. Faces, now blown up to 35 mm, had its debut at the Venice Film Festival where it swept almost every acting award and established once and for all Cassavetes' credits as one of America's major young directors. And perhaps most important Cassavetes demonstrated impressively that a major film can be made in America completely outside of the studio system. The triumph of Cassavetes' incredible film on the dissipation of the American marriage set up the climate of the last several years in which independently made films (Easy Rider and others) finally are looked at, and often picked up, by distributors. Play Circle - 2, 4:30, 7, 9:30, & 12 p.m. (also Sat. & Sun)

May 21—Rosemary's Baby (1968) — Francois Truffaut stated that he has liked only one American movie in the last several years, and that is Rosemary's Baby. Truffaut is not being a philistine, for Rosemary really is an excellent work from every perspective. The script is consistently intelligent and very credible, the cast is polished and expert, including underrated Mia Farrow as the walking anemia, Rosemary. And borrowing much from Hitchcock, Polanski maintains visual style which is ice-cold and unnerving, with many moments to give you the creeps. If you were too snobby to see this Hollywood movie on its release because of its mass appeal, reconsider and attend. Rosemary's Baby is worth a thousand Love Story's. B-10 Commerce - 7:30 & 10:15 p.m.

May 21—Prime of Miss Jean Brodie (1968)—A fairly interesting if melodramatic teacher story with an overrated Maggie Smith performance as Miss Jean, Maggie quivers and talks with a stuffed nose, therefore winning an undeserved Academy Award for her shameless histrionics. But really superb is Celia Johnson as the headmistress, everyone's woman elementary principal, stern yet dignified. OK, but never as good as the simpler, totally schmaltzy old classic, Goodby Mr. Chips. B-102 Van Vleck—7:30 & 9:45 p.m.

May 22—8 1/2 (1962)—One of the greatest intellectual and visual achievements of the cinema and the film which has influenced the film medium more than any other since its release, 8 1/2 is most important because of Fellini's proof that what goes on in the head of the film director can be worthy subject matter for a film. By its very success, 8 1/2 is the best argument ever for a subjective cinema. 8 1/2 has inspired directly both minor works (Alex in Wonderland), Dennis Hopper's new Last Movie and major filmic achievements (Bergman's Persona), and indirectly almost every director who now argues in his work for the validity of a personal cinema. B-102 Van Vleck—7:30 & 10:15 p.m.

May 21—Putney Swope (1969)—This Robert Downey movie is completely a matter of taste, and there is no more to be said. Either you will think it one of the funniest movies ever made or you will consider Putney a crude, TV type comedy which strains for laughs. Probably the more seriously you take the film medium, the less you will be impressed with Putney Swope. 105 Psychology—7 & 9 p.m.

May 22—The Man With the X-Ray Eyes and The Horror of Dracula—A superior horror double-feature. The first is an above average Roger Corman film starring Ray Millard as the man who sees through buildings. The second is the best of the British Hammer horror series with Christopher Lee as an athletic, sexually adept Dracula, who can suck the blood of five women faster than Bela Lugosi could say "I am Dra-a-a-cu-la." U Budget

RESIDENCE HALLS budget is expected to have a $625,446 deficit this year. In addition, dorm occupancy is estimated to be down 1,300 next year.

Regent Walter Renk of Sun Prairie said requiring all freshman and sophomores to live in dorms "is something that must be considered."

Donald Percy, executive vice-president of the University, retorted that option was "the last and final recourse."

Housefellows in the dorms might have to look for additional sources of income next year, if as suggested, they are paid with room and board, without the usual tuition fee remissions and monthly stipend.

In regard to food services in the dorms, a revised food plan was suggested. It would include item pricing of what a person actually gets and a cash option.

STUDENTS WILL ALSO pay only $20 fee per semester for use of the University Student Health Service.

The reduction of $3 reflects the elimination of a three day hospitalization coverage, considered unnecessary since it was found that 75 per cent of the students were covered by family insurance.

Alternative hospitalization coverage will be offered by the Wisconsin Student Association (WSA), contingent upon the organization restructuring their health insurance plan.

Challenge to sex-separate want ads is frustrated at Madison Newspapers

By MARIAN McCUE
of the Cardinal Staff

The efforts of two Capital Times staff members to change the sex-segregated want ads policy of two Madison newspapers have been frustrated by legal complications and the "executive runaround" on the part of the publishers of the Wisconsin State Journal and Capital Times. Whitney Gould and Johnna Johnson have appealed through several routes in order to change the "Help Wanted Male" and "Help Wanted Female" classifications, and to have job listings only according to the positions available.

"We tried talking to the editors and using moral arguments and citing legal precedents and that didn't work," Gould told the Cardinal. "We don't like the fact that we've had to make a big fuss over this, but we're pursuing it because it indicates a general pattern of sex discrimination. Thousands of women in the job market are affected by these listings," she explained.

GOULD AND JOHNSON wrote two letters to the editors involved and received no direct response. They currently have an appeal pending to the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission (EEOC), and failing this, they intend to take Federal Court Action.

Ald. Alicia Ashman, Ward 10, has said that she will introduce a resolution to the City Council which would make this sex-segregated advertising policy illegal. A similar ordinance passed in New York City compelled the New York Times to change their policy.

"We've received the delays from the editors because they have to deal with advertisers, and a new policy would be inconvenient for them," Gould said, "but we don't think the papers should be making it easier for advertisers to discriminate. Many other newspapers have changed their policies with no uproar." She also noted that the first area paper to change this policy was the Appleton Post-Crescent, which is not otherwise known for its liberal viewpoint. "One would expect that the Capital Times, with all its liberal policies, would automatically do this," she said.

APPARENTLY the EEOC is not sure whether they have jurisdiction in this type of case, as there is confusion as to whether or not newspapers are included in the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which bars discrimination in employment agencies. Gould and Johnson contend that newspapers do function as employment agencies as they refer people to jobs. A ruling is expected within two weeks.

Miles McMillin, Editor and Publisher of the Capital Times, has explained to the women that "other things have higher priority." He elaborated on this in a recent interview with the Cardinal.

"I know a woman on the East Side who couldn't care less about Women's Liberation; she likes the convenience to look at those want ads the way they are," he explained. "Businessmen who use the want ads don't care about women's lib either; they're interested in making a living for their wives and families. The principle is all fine and good, but there are other things to consider."

U environmental studies get boost with $1.5 million gift

By STEVE THIELE

The National Science Foundation has given the University's Institute for Environmental Studies $1.49 million to develop environmental problem-solving research programs.

The institute, which has previously done research for, among other things, the US Army engineers, plans to broaden its scope to include campus-wide Environmental Studies programs.

Plans include development of a wide range of undergraduate and advanced courses studying the environment. Undergraduate studies will mainly involve training the student to become aware of and knowledgeable about his environment.

A master's program will be set up to train students for positions as environmental managers, educators and communicators. A doctoral program will also be made available. It will involve research and education mainly centered on subjects such as environmental modeling.

THIS YEAR IES offered a limited number of courses on topics related to the environment. The major course for undergraduates is called 'Forum on the Environment'. It is the only non-departmental course offered.

Other IES courses deal with the environment. They range in topics from physics to studies of the atmosphere and from studies on use of the soil to systems and management of the environment.

Dr. Bryson outlined IES projects, including population redistribution; management of residuals from urban, agricultural, and industrial wastes; recycling specific wastes; quantitative systems description and simulation of land-water interactions; and the social processes of regional space utilization and resource distribution.

The Marine Studies Center, the Center for Climatic Research, Remote Sensing Group, and the Lake Wingra Ecosystem Project of the International Biological Program are now administered by the institute.

THE NUMBER OF REFUGEES crossing the border from East Pakistan to India has gone from 30 to 50 to 100 thousand per day as the Bengali war of independence increasingly takes the form of a classic guerrilla struggle. At the same time, this change in strategy has forced the Bangla Desh movement to rely on leftist forces for leadership and organization. The major beneficiaries of this development are the Maoists, the East Pakistani Communist Party (Marxist-Leninist), who have a province-wide underground network. The EPCP-ML also maintains ties with its West Bengali counterpart, the Naxalites, and there is a strong chance that the Maoist ascendancy in Bangla Desh will not stop at the Indian border.

THERE IS LESS FIGHTING in Ceylon as the insurgent JVP (the Peoples' Liberation Front) regroup in the central forests to await the monsoon. The government, trying to prove to the nation's youth that its commitment to socialism is real, passed a law abolishing private property. They also passed a law permitting members of parliament to import new foreign cars not otherwise available to the island's citizens.

A NEW BATCH of documents stolen by the Citizens Committee to Investigate the F.B.I. was released this week, showing how the federal agency, in conjunction with local police forces, was employing boy scouts as voluntary spies. The scouts were instructed to observe their neighbors and report any "suspicious" activity.

THE FLORIDA EVERGLADES,

already threatened by a diminishing water supply, is faced with a new danger. Mobil Oil has announced a plan to begin a drilling program in the national preserve, "mindful", of course, of the environmental hazards. In the same statement, Mobil informed the public that consumers will pay the added $ 2.5 billion oil exploitation costs wrested from the major corporations in the recent contract with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

THE FEDERAL COM-

MUNICATIONS Commission has ruled that consumers do not have the right of reply to counter misleading television commercials. The FCC holds that the rights allotted to political figures are not applicable to issues involving corporate production and marketing.

ENVIRONMENTALISTS IN AMERICA and Europe are stepping up pressure in the effort to ban the use of pesticides. One response to this from agribusiness and its cousins in the chemical industry has been to investigate the possibility of using synthetic hormones to disrupt the reproductive cycles of pests. They hope to be able to use this method as an alternative to current insecticides, but what the effect will be of massive hormone sprayings, no one knows.

PRESIDENT NIXON HAS

declared an all-out war on cancer, but he has avoided the issues stemming from the environmental propagation of the disease. His decision to develop breeder fission reactors instead of fusion reactors for nuclear power guarantees increased levels of radioactive contamination, especially as the "safety" levels set by the Atomic Energy Commission are an affront addition, the Food and Drug Administration has done virtually nothing to protect us from carcinogenic food additives.

THE AEC HAS BEEN accumulating large quantities of radioactive waste in temporary storage areas around the country, but now they are looking for a permanent dump. Their current choice is a salt mine near Lyons, Kansas, where they hope to dispose of the 38,000 tons of waste expected to be produced by nuclear power plants during the next thirty years. Some scientists, however, don't like the idea. They point out that the AEC has inadequate information on the potential dangers, such as the contamination of groundwaters and unknown properties of the radio-active waste mix. They are also worried about the fact that no retrieval system has been developed in anticipation of a possible emergency. The AEC has replied by claiming it has all the information it needs, and that, in any event, they won't know for sure how good the plan is until they try it. Unless the state government of Kansas moves to stop the project, the AEC will develop its dump-the Lyons Nuclear Park.

A RECENT ISSUE of Science magazine reports that three children became ill after eating pork from a pig that had been fed grain sprayed with a mercury fungicide. The poisoning, which took place in December, 1969, in New Mexico, is the first documented case to be caused by mercury contamination in animal feeds.

Paterick, Piacenza sign cage tenders

By JIM COHEN
Sports Staff

JANESVILLE—Tim Paterick, one of Wisconsin's finest high school basketball players in recent years, Thursday night became the fifth player to sign a National Letter of Intent to attend Wisconsin.

The signing here partially took the excitement out of the fourth signing which had occurred late Wednesday night. Rick Piacenza, an impressive 6-6 forward from Highland Park, Ill. inked his name in a relatively unpublicized ceremony.

Paterick, a 6-3 guard, had to decide between Wisconsin, Marquette, Michigan and Kentucky before he sent in his Big Ten tender early in the week and signed the national form here Wednesday night.

Paterick was one of only 24 players named to the prestigious Sunkist All-America team. Another was Kessem Grimes, a 6-10 center from Gary, Ind. who signed a Wisconsin tender Tuesday.

"I don't know if we've ever had even one player here who was listed in the top 24," Badger coach John Powless said after Paterick's signing. "Now we've got two in one year."

Powless, however, noted that the other three players are also fine prospects. "It's not disrespectful of the others that they didn't make it. We're going to have a fine freshman team next year."

Powless, who signed all three in-state cagers that he "definitely wanted" now has three guards and two big men in the fold.

Did Paterick hesitate before signing, knowing two guards had already signed at Wisconsin and Al McGuire of Marquette had still not signed anyone?

"I don't think he would have signed if he didn't think he could make it," Janesville Criag coach Stan DuFrane chipped in quickly.

"COACH POWLESS recruited me more than any other coach," said Paterick, explaining why he chose Wisconsin in what he admitted was a tough decision. "He's been in contact with me since the football season."

Paterick, who averaged 26 points per game and shot 86.6 per cent from the line last season, is "definitely a leader and a really great outside shooter," according to DuFrane. "He takes control of the ballgame; he can feed and he can shoot."

Piacenza was recruited by such schools as Fordham, Bradley, Northwestern and Illinois. "He's a tremendous team ballplayer," his coach, Chuck Schram, told the Cardinal.

"He's unselfish and can handle the ball like a little man. He's extremely quick on defense," he added, noting that he has performed equally as well as a guard. "He really wanted to go to Wisconsin, and I'm glad he didn't. He'll play well in the Big Ten."

If he wishes, Powless can still sign two more players.

Hannah, Whittaker: Nicknames unknown

By JIMMY KORETZ
Sports Staff

Wisconsin football fans and sportswriters seem to be very acquainted with the menagerie of nicknames (Grapejuice, A-Train, Roadrunner) the Badger football roster sports.

But "Moondog" and "DeAlbalow," alias split end Terry Whittaker and flanker Albert Hannah, must sound strange to even the most devote gridiron follower, though they are often heard amidst the lockerroom chatter.

"A couple of guys saw this album in a record shop on State Street," said Whittaker. "The name of the album was 'Moondog' and it had a Roman warrior on the front of it. He had a long beard and was sort of old and one of the guys started slinging the name around. Then one day in the lockerroom it just got attached."

"I got my nickname from my grandmother," Hannah said. "She's Indian. 'DeAlbalow' means running stream."

Whittaker, a product of Phoenix High in Hampton, Virginia, had an outstanding senior campaign and was named to the Virginia All-State teams in football and basketball.

LAST SEASON as a 6-3 1/2, 189 pound junior, Whittaker caught 15 passes for 242 yards and two touchdowns. However, "Moondog" was very disappointed with his performance last year.

"At the end of the season, my performance sort of went down," Whittaker remarked. "It seemed like instead of improving as the season went along, I wasn't doing as well as when it started."

Head Coach John Jardine cites Whittaker as one of the most conscientious griders on the squad.

"Whittaker isn't a natural receiver," Jardine noted. "He works hard at it and he's made some big catches for us."

"He's got to improve on holding on to the football. As for blocking and hustle, he's improved and gives 100% all the time."

HANNAH WAS A four-letter man at Miami's Mays High, gaining All-State honors in football, basketball, and baseball. After weighing the college offers, he chose Wisconsin because "it's a good school academically, and I like the location—beautiful country."

Despite being hampered by a leg injury last fall, Hannah managed to grab 10 passes for 156 yards and two touchdowns. But Jardine feels Hannah will blossom into a better receiver.

"Hannah is capable of having a

Six seniors bow out as UW nine Closes season with OSU, Indiana

With the trees just getting green and flowers coming into bloom, it seems odd that Wisconsin's baseball season should be drawing to a close.

The Badgers will be playing their last games of the season this weekend, hosting Ohio State today and Indiana on Saturday.

The baseball season is the Big Ten's shortest season, lasting only one month from late April to late May. In that time, each team plays only 18 games—two games against each conference opponent.

Should rain strike on one of the five weekends of the season, it could wreak havoc with the standings.

MICHIGAN STATE, which leads the standings going into the final four games, must give some credit for its lead to mother nature. Showers washed out MSU's doubleheader on the road against Ohio State a couple weeks ago, and since then the Spartans have been on top and are now 10-2.

Minnesota is one game behind MSU at 11-5 and only has two games against Iowa remaining in its season. The Gophers, if they hope to retain their baseball crown, must sweep their doubleheader and hope for sunny skies this weekend as Michigan State goes to Purdue and Illinois.

Getting back to the Badgers, they are currently 6-8 in the conference and out of it, five games behind MSU.

Wisconsin, 17-18 overall this year, hopes to finish its first season under Tom Meyer's direction over the .500 mark, and can if they win three out of four this weekend.

Ohio State and Indiana, Wisconsin's adversaries in the finale, both are 4-8 in the conference and have suffered frustrating seasons.

TODAY'S DOUBLEHEADER against Ohio State will start at 2:00 p.m., at Guy Lowman Field. The Indiana doubleheader will begin an hour earlier tomorrow at 1:00 p.m.

Six seniors will be playing their final games this weekend in Wisconsin uniforms. Three of those six are from the pitching staff and all three will see starting action.

Lon Galli, who will start tomorrow's first game, is a native of Manitowoc and has been a Badger starter for the last three seasons. As a sophomore, the 5'9" left-hander compiled a remarkable 1.79 ERA, and last year was 6-3 as he completed seven of the ten games he started. This year, Galli, whose specialty is the off-speed pitch, is 3-3 and has a 3.23 ERA. He is majoring in history.

Starting the second game will be fastballer Jim Enlund. Like Galli, this husky hurler from New Berlin has been a three year fixture on the Badger mound. Enlund had some trouble early this season, but has looked extremely sharp in his last three outings. A victory this afternoon would give him a winning 5-4 season mark.

Hard luck has plagued the third senior hurler. He is Mike McEvilly, who has had to sit out much of this Big Ten season with a sore arm. McEvilly boasts a career record of 14 wins against only eight losses, and despite his ailment this year, is 3-2.

ON TUESDAY, the Madison East graduate picked a relief win against Whitewater State in his first appearance in almost three weeks.

The other three Badger seniors occupy infield positions.

Team captain Tom Bennett, a hustler on the field and at the poker table, will be bowing out at second base. He made the second team all-Big Ten last year at third, and is vying for all-Big Ten honors this year at second. Despite his diminutive size, 5'7" and 160, the Madison native has been able to send a pair of towering drives over the fences this season.

First baseman Paul Shandling took the long route to get to Wisconsin. He is from Lincolnwood, Illinois and originally enrolled at Arizona before transferring to Wisconsin. Last year, Shandling hit at a torrid .353 clip and this season is just under .300. He is far and away the Badger's most explosive hitter.

Backstop Dan Skalecki rounds out the graduating Badgers. He started the season at third, but coach Meyer switched him to catcher, where Skalecki has performed splendidly all season long. Skalecki, a pharmacy major, has done quite well at the plate also. Right now, the Milwaukee native is hovering around the .280 mark with his bat.

Rugbers play Illini

Rugby is back in town this Saturday afternoon. Wisconsin, after an up-and-down series of games in Minneapolis last week, takes on the University of Illinois club Saturday at the intramural fields north of the Nielsen Tennis Stadium.

Both the first and second teams will play, and it also is expected that UW-Parkside will be on hand. The first of the three games should get under way at about 12:30.

Wisconsin won two games and lost one in Minneapolis. The gentlemen, playing under "adverse" conditions and without several key players, lost to one University of Minnesota team, 3-0, beat another, 16-0, and then defeated the Minneapolis Rugby Club, 14-3.

BADGER SPLIT END Terry Whittaker fought off two TCU defenders to snare this 35-yard gainer last year. John Jardine noted that Whittaker "made some big catches for us," and both he and Whittaker hope that the bombs come with great regularity.

very good season," Jardine commented. "He has a lot of natural ability, very fine speed, and he's worked harder and improved his pass receiving."

"I definitely wasn't satisfied with last season," the 6-4, 190 pounder said. "I didn't get the ball too many times."

"This season I'd like to give all I have and make my last season my best. I'll do everything I can to go all the way."

LIKE HANNAH, Whittaker is very concerned about the team and has set some very definite goals for his team and himself.

"First I'd like to go to the Rose Bowl," Whittaker said. "I've never been to California. I'd like to perform to my peak and do anything that might benefit the team."

Both Hannah and Whittaker feel the 1971 Badgers will surprise some people next fall.

"I think we're capable of achieving a perfect record," Whittaker prognosticated. "That's if everyone performs up to their ability. We have some outstanding personnel."

FLANKER ALBERT HANNAH pulling in one of two touchdown passes against Illinois during a 55-14 Badger victory his sophomore year. Though he only caught ten passes for 156 yards last season, Hannah now promises to "make my last season my best."
