A few floats will follow the procession characterizing the following schools and colleges: Journalism, Commerce, Medicine, Agriculture, and Engineering.

BRYAN TO SPEAK HERE ON MAY 5

Visit is Under Auspices of University Forensic Board

William Jennings Bryan is coming.

May 5 is the time and the university armory is the place.

Colonel Bryan will visit the university under the auspices of the Forensic board and will deliver an address entitled "Brother or Brute?" This is the colonel's latest prepared lecture and his friends say it is one of his best.

The commoner is no stranger to Madison. He has spoken here on numerous occasions and has always commanded an enthusiastic hearing. However, his coming visit promises to be of unusual interest because he will give a polished lyceum address divorced from politics. The subject lends itself admirably to Colonel Bryan's genius for eloquence.

The ticket sale opens Monday April 11 and will be in charge of Carl Laun, 211 N. Murray street. All seats will be reserved at 50 cents each. All mail orders should be addressed to Laun as promptly as possible. The best seats will be assigned to the earliest applicants.

GONE

A Wonderful Saturday That Might Have Been

Gone, but not forgotten, a Saturday which might have been bright and sunny and springy. All those who had expected great things of the departed, join in deplored the tragic loss.

The end came unexpectedly when a pleasant attack of south-easterly winds changed suddenly to snowy northwestern and the deceased soon had acquired the pallidness of death. The bereaved were with the departed at the end.

The loss, of course, falls hardest on a few; it is ever thus. It comes as a distinct shock to those who had planned to commune with the departed and with nature and other things assisted by Dad's car or the canoe. Fancies which were all set to turn to thoughts of love inspired by the departed turned to thoughts inexpressible and expressions unprintable.

The departed is gone. Gone with it are all the hopes and plans and there remains with us only the memories of what the departed might have been.

OCTOPUS DEADLINE EXTENDED TO 4:30

The deadline for material intended for the "Bathing-Suit number" of the Octopus has been extended by the editors until 4:30 today, in order that no good jokes may be kept out because of tardiness.

"Contributors who handed in material last month which did not appear should not be discouraged," said the editor. "We have quite a bit still set up down at the printers, which we could not find room for, and your copy may appear yet."

FREYTAG IN RACE FOR BOARD PLACE

Arthur Freytag '23 is a candidate for sophomore member of Cardinal board. He is publicity manager of the Octopus and is actively engaged in work on the University Exposition. He was a member of the Who's Who staff last year. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and of Inner Gate.

"W" MEN TO SELL ATHLETIC REVIEW ON HILL MONDAY

Travers Predicts That Issue Will Be Sold Out Rapidly

The baseball number of the Wisconsin Athletic review will be on sale in four buildings and on the hill Monday owing to the postponement of the baseball game with Campion on Saturday where it had been planned to sell them.

This is only the second number of the Athletic review, but it already gives promise of speedy prominence among the campus publications.

"It is unfortunate that the sale of this number has been delayed," said "Wes" Travers '21, circulation manager "but we are sure that the issue will be sold out rapidly, because of its many snappy pictures and articles."

Special sections are devoted to baseball, track and crew. The Review will be sold by "W" men in cardinal and white sweaters.

UNION BOARD HAS CROWD AT MIXER

A large crowd of students attended the all-university mixer given by Union board at Lathrop gymnasium Saturday night, in spite of the many other social functions being held at the same time.

A committee headed by Frances Beecher '23 helped all who attended to get full programs. Other members of the committee were Dorothy Williams '21, Mary White '22, Louis Fritsche '22, and Olga Andersen '23. Prof. and Mrs. F. O. Reed chaperoned. Thompson's 12-piece orchestra furnished the music.

The next mixer will be Saturday, April 30.

HOLD MEETING OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY HERE

Historians of Mississippi Valley Association in Conclave

The Mississippi Valley Historical Association is made up of all those interested in local history of the Mississippi valley. While the majority of the members are interested in a professional way, the association is in no way thus limited. Many amateurs are enthusiastic workers and find much benefit to be derived from these conferences, an interesting sideline.

The program deals with many phases of historical work in general including addresses by constructors in history from University of Texas, University of Illinois, Ohio State, Butler, and various other universities and normal

The advantages of a classical education are beyond enumeration. Some things that students learn in their hours of study they will find of inestimable value in the outside world, such as:

"E pluribus unum" means "In God We Trust." "Madison" was an Indian name meaning "Four Lakes," and "Numen Lumen" means "Not Much Light."

SOME people from Pear Creek, Iowa, say that they can't appreciate "Main Street" to its fullest because the scenes are laid in Minnesota. It was careless of Sinclair Lewis not to run off special editions for Iowa and Indiana.

2. Let him spend his Sunday school penny, for he may be learning to spend the money from the whole church treasury some day.

ENFORCING TRADITIONS

THE student senate has taken active measures to prevent the wanton violation of university traditions by heedless or insolent freshmen. Within the near future, the judiciary committee of the senate will sit each noon, will try freshmen caught in the act of violating university traditions, and will order the immediate execution of the sentence given. For example, any freshman caught without the prescribed green cap will be brought before the senate committee, sentenced, and immediately punished in the manner ordered.

The new system is calculated to meet the laxity in complying with university traditions. Since the senate has put the ban on indiscriminate hazing, many freshmen have taken it upon themselves to cast defiance at traditions for many years held inviolable.

That the student body does not desire the return of indiscriminate hazing is clear. Few students are willing to jeopardize the good name of Wisconsin. At the same time, the students will not tolerate any freshman trampling the Wisconsin traditions in the dust whenever and wherever he desires. As long as traditions exist, they will be enforced without fear or favor. The new judicial system is the agency through which such enforcement operates.

The freshman who lives up to traditions need not fear. But the guilty—let them beware, for the wheels of justice are at last well oiled.

IMPROVING STUDENT GOVERNMENT

DURING the past two days, a representative of the University of Wisconsin has been attending a convention at Columbia, Missouri, of the representatives of student self-government in the leading American universities. Within the next week, another representative of the university will go to a similar convention to be held at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge. Wisconsin thus stands with the leading schools in the east and the west in their efforts to better student self government in the universities of the country.

Student government, like civil government, must be progressive. It must be constantly improving. In the effort to attain this improvement, there is no more effective means than the pooling of the various universities' experiences through conventions such as those referred to. The universities have had various trying problems to solve. The wisdom attained in the solution of these problems will henceforth be the joint property of other universities, the University of Wisconsin included.

There are, moreover, numerous unsettled problems now calling for solution. The conventions should help to ascertain a suitable course of action in these cases.

There are among the unsettled problems here in Madison the questions of centralizing student government and giving it more executive power. The matter, in fact, is before the student senate at the present time. From the experience of other universities, as well as our own, our representatives in the senate should draft a proposal that will give Wisconsin an unexcelled system of student government.

Wisconsin believes that the other universities who hear of our experience in student self government will be benefited. Wisconsin hopes that, from the various experiences set forth in the self-government conventions, her own government may approach nearer perfection. Wisconsin is looking to the student senators who represented her in the self-government conventions for truly constructive policies in regard to the problems now confronting us.

FOREST PRODUCTS
BOOTH IS VARIED
EXHIBIT AT EXPO

Interesting Phases of Work at Laboratory Will Be Shown

A working model of a drum box testing machine which has been specially shipped from Washington will be in operation in the forest products booth in the University Exposition. This machine, 4 feet in diameter, is a model of two which are used at the forest products laboratory, one 14 feet in diameter, and one 7. Miniature boxes will be subjected to 30.00 pounds pressure in the model to illustrate how boxes are tested and strengthened.

The original of this machine was invented by a man working in the forest products laboratory. It was used a great deal during the war to test boxes for overseas shipping. It now saves thousands of dollars for companies shipping manufactured products in crates.

Another mechanical device in operation will be the Olson testing machine used to test ply work in the mechanics laboratory of the engineering school.

Displays in the wall cases will contain letters from forty different countries seeking information from this laboratory. The various stages in the manufacture of propellers for aeroplanes will be shown. The method of manufacturing ethyl alcohol from sawdust will also be illustrated.

One case will show the use of wood in sporting goods skis, tennis rackets, baseball bats, and snow shoes. Effects of proper and improper drying of wood will be shown in another case. The effects of fungus on maple wood and maple pulp will also be displayed.

This Week's Attractions at the Theaters

AT THE GRAND

Charles Ray, the popular screen star, will be seen this week at the Grand theater in "The Old Swimmin' Hole." It is said to be one of the most appealing pictures in which he has yet appeared and to call forth more laughs and tears to the reel than any other of his past successes.

Riley's verse is interpreted with such artistry as to both charm the thousands of admirers of the Hoosier poet and to win new converts to his ballads of boyhood's happy days.

From the opening scene to the close the story is brimful of heart interest. Charles Ray, as Ezra, is "just plain boy," wholesome but mischievous. He would rather fish and spend his time at the old swimmin' hole than study. He loves Myrtle, the flirtatious belle of the country school, but after bringing him to his knees and robbing him of all his treasures she jilted him for his best friend, "Skinny." However, there is happiness awaiting him in the loving graces of the ever faithful Esther. Ezra is so busy falling in and out of scrapes that it is a wonder that he finds time for sweethearts.

It is skillfully directed and so wonderfully acted as to obviate the necessity for a single sub-title. It steals into the heart of the audience until the breath of new mown hay seems to pervade the darkened theater and the audience are wafted back on the wings of memory to their own school days. The play has received most enthusiastic notices wherever shown and will undoubtedly repeat its success at the Grand theater.

COMING WEEK AT GRAND
Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday — Charles Ray in "The Old Swimmin' Hole." Friday and Saturday — Mildred Harris in "The Inferior Sex." Dan Marion in "A Toonerville Comedy."

AT THE FULLER

"Don't Neglect Your Wife!" the Goldwyn picture being shown at the Fuller today for the last times, is the first story written directly for the screen by one of America's greatest living women writers, Gertrude Atherton. As in her books, so in this photoplay, Mrs. Atherton gives us problems of a beautiful, young married woman who has been disillusioned in her husband and has found herself caring for a distinguished editor. The domestic triangle is solved in a very plausible manner, but with a dramatic intensity impossible to attain when the characters involved are the usual flat-foys one sees too often on the screen.

After all, the mature woman, with her ability to cope with life, is a far more interesting screen subject than a girl whose sole appeal lies in her prettiness. But in Mrs. Atherton's story, the wife happens to be the beautiful Mabel Julianne Scott, the husband, that excellent actor, Charles Okey; and the other man, Lewis S. St. John, all three of whom give sterling performances which make the story take on the semblance of flesh and blood.

The action of "Don't Neglect Your Wife!" takes place in San Francisco and the old Five Points section of New York. The picture was mounted gorgeously by Goldwyn and directed splendidly by Wallace Worsley.

The Hallrooms Boys in a new comedy will also be shown as an added attraction.

There will be three performances today, matinee at 3 o'clock and evening at 7:15 and 9 p.m.

Leo Beers Comes Monday
Leo Beers, vaudeville's distinctive entertainer will head a most unusual six act bill opening at the Orpheum Monday night and continuing for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Captain Jack Absolute proved an uninteresting and dignified lover but his voice was pleasing and the little singing done added materially to his performance. Sir Lucius O'Trigger was possibly the character best portrayed. But none of the cast stood out as actors.

It is a bit hard to judge an early comedy when it is so very poorly played, but certainly it was the clever lines, and especially those of the delightful Mrs. Malaprop that alone made the performance so amusing.

RIVALS PRESENTED AS "FARCE" COMEDY

By K. R.

"She overpowered us with her gentility," did Martha Miller as Mrs. Mala prop in "The Rivals," as played in Music hall yesterday afternoon by the Coffey-Miller players.

In really lovely costume of brocaded silks she swept aside such material handicaps as lack of elegance. Maybe it was the lack of "powdered gentility" in the rest of the cast that made one wait constantly for an ejaculation of "By Heck" or the proverbial "I Swan" to the vanished wife returns, sees the threatened tragedy, and to save those she loves, enters the sleeping nurse, a humble Irish girl, who there after grows in spirit, personality, and even in appearance, so like Alice that she is able to comfort Roger and little Peter, and really take the place of the dead wife. Roger again finds inspiration for his work, finishes a beautiful statue for which Alice was posing when she died, and with the critics acclaiming his art, he recognizes in Nora his lost Alice and marries her.

The added attractions will be pictures of the Military Ball which were taken at the capitol Friday night, the latest News Weekly and a Comedy cartoon.

don't neglect your wife
by Gertrude Atherton directed by Wallace Worsley

The Law — the man-made Law — commanded her to stay with her husband, who had treated her with cold and selfish neglect.

But the law of her heart urged her to the side of the man who had made her barren life blossom with the flowers of his devotion.

Which did she follow? Every man and every woman will want to see this remarkable drama of the irresistible forces of life.

Celebrates Birthday

Prof. John B. Parkinson, vice-president emeritus of the University will celebrate his eighty-seventh birthday tomorrow, April 11. The entire family with the exception of one grand daughter and her husband will be at the family home, 516 Wisconsin avenue, for Sunday dinner today. Professor Parkinson will be at home to his friends this afternoon and evening.

Founder's Day Banquet

Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity celebrated the anniversary of its founding with a banquet at the home, Friday evening, April 8. The date marked the anniversary of the local chapter as well as that of the national organization.

Features of the Formals

Programs for the Military Ball were enclosed in brown leather folding picture frames with red, white and blue cords.

Instead of the customary program dance, the Theta Delt party featured robber dances. Masks were worn during the early part of the evening, by the guests and fraternity members all of whom were attired as Apaches. Cider and free lunch were dispensed from a mock bar in the room.

A special feature solo dance was performed by Miss Hazel Hedstrom at the formal dinner dance given by Pi Delta Phi sorority Friday night at the Park hotel. There were small tables each for four persons, decorated with jonquils, sweet peas, and other spring flowers. Programs for the party had white ivory covers with the sorority monogram cut out showing a background. For decoration, the effect of an artificial ceiling was obtained by streamers of many colors stretching from the center to the walls of the room.

Arched rose arbors and walls banked with evergreens transformed the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house into a veritable bower of roses for the formal dinner dance given by the fraternity, Friday evening. Pale pink shaded candles and corsages of roses and sweet peas on the small tables lent to the spring garden effect of the decorations. Tiny boutonnieres of colored candy and silver fountain pens mounted with the fraternity crest were favors for the guests. There was dancing between the courses of an elaborate dinner. Programs were of brown leather with Greek initials on the covers.

Festivities were continued at an informal dance last evening at the lodge. Among the out-of-town guests for the week end who attended the parties were: Misses Dorothy Hart, and Isabelle Hill, Milwaukee; Evelyn Laughlin, Sheboygan; Florence Rueping, Fond du Lac; and Alice Bemis, Chicago, Miss Bemis's brother, Walter was also a guest.

New Chaperon

Mrs. Alma Battisford who has chaperoned the Phi Mu house this year, has resigned her duties as housemother to return to her home in Lake Geneva. Mrs. Else E. Newton, Washington D. C. arrived yesterday to take Mrs. Battisford's place.

Personals

Miss Vera Eastman left Saturday for her home in Grafton, Ill. where she was called because of illness in her family.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Warner, Beloit, are guests of their son Lawrence Warner this week end.

There are the following guests at the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house this week end. Harold A. Hollister and Leonard P. Carty of the Beta Iota chapter, Beloit college, Walter C. Barnes, an alumnus of the Chicago Alpha Theta chapter of the fraternity. Harlan Graffman and Howard A. Gladden, former members of the Wisconsin chapter.

OF $21,563.90 Y. W. C. A. HAS RAISED TOTAL

The Y. W. C. A. campaign for $10,000 turned the first leg of a three cornered race Friday and is now on the second lap. The grand total reported at noon Saturday was $1,563.90.

Ernest N. Warner, recently elected to the board of trustees, addressed the team members at luncheon Friday, referring to the fact that since the campaign of 1909, the association had not asked the public for funds. "The time has now come," said Mr. Warner, "for the Y. W. C. A. as an organization to be sold to Madison. The citizens should awake to the activities conducted here. As for the board of trustees, we are enthusiastically back of the present campaign.

Returns of the campaign are shown daily on a huge thermometer

There are 17 other windows in the city where special Y. W. C. A. exhibits have been arranged. The Haswell Furniture Co. has permitted the Girl Reserves to build a replica of the Girl Reserve Club room. At about 4 o'clock each day the window is occupied by a detail of live girls. Another live window is at Van Deusen's.

At Burdick & Murray's an athletic "Y" window has been arranged. At Andelson Bros. a "Y" sports window, at Kessenich's a Girl Reserve window, while Keeley-Neckerman have emphasized the "Y" class in home furnishing, and Kornhauser has put in an exhibit of dolls. At the Kroncke Hardware Co. playing tennis on a tiny court is shown. At the Joseph M. Boyd Co. the services of the "Y" to travelers is portrayed. At C. MADISON FACES CHILLY SPELL

City in Grip of Blustering Snowstorm From Canada

A blustering April snowstorm held Madison in its grip Saturday. Though considerable snow fell during the day, little of it remained on the ground.

There is no end of the present cold and rainy period in sight, according to Eric R. Miller, in charge of the local U. S. weather bureau.

"The cold air is rolling down on us from western Canada," he said Saturday, "and the cold snap is likely to continue for a week anyway. The temperature may fall as low as 25 degrees above Sunday morning."

"The sun probably will shine intermittently on Sunday but it will remain cloudy and cold all next week."

Music Memory Selection

The selection of the Music Memory contest for today, Sunday, is "Deep River," a negro spiritual song. Its cadences ring with simplicity and true religious fervor. Its rich harmonies have the minor undertone that adds so greatly to the charm of all the true negro melodies. The effect of simplicity in the melody suggests the perfect faith of a child. This enhances piece with an air of quiet grandeur.

Next Tuesday evening the Glee Club will give two of the selections of the Music Memory contest at the Grand theater. They will sing "The Rosary," by Ethelbert Nevin, and "Hark, Hark the Lark," by Franz Shubert. That will be a rare opportunity to hear two old favorites again.

Twenty-third of 28 Daily Selections For Sunday, April 10.

DEEP RIVER - NEGRO SPIRITUAL

The Biblical saying, "The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner", seems to be proving true of negro and Indian music. More and more our composers are turning to these native songs and dances with their highly original melodies and rhythms, in order to give to their compositions a characteristic American or national atmosphere. Negro music is peculiarly rich in religious themes and Deep River is a superb example.

These negro melodies, intricate in rhythm, and forceful in their harmony, probably came to these people as a part of their African heritage, although they were influenced by church music in this country. Here in America the slaves developed the African themes by the addition of harmonies and the quaint exts expressive of religious fervor and life in its various forms on the plantation. The songs thus became the expression of their hopes and desires in whatever phase of life they happened to be. To this extent they are distinctly American. Almost all of the new songs preserved are of a religious nature and are called "Spirituals". Both Deep River and Swing Low, Sweet Charlott, which was in the contest last year, are typical examples — the one stately and sustained, the other vigorous and almost conversational. They breathe a hope and a faith in the ultimate justice and brotherhood of man. This is the significance of the phrase "camp-ground over Jordan"; death is to bring the slave freedom and happiness "over there".

Keenly sensitive by reason of his racial heritage to the inner meanings of these songs, it has been given to Harry T. Burleigh to arrange and present them to the American public. Of these probably the most appealing is his arrangement of Deep River. There we find expressed effectively and strikingly that age-long desire dominating a people who see in their religion alone a deliverance from the things life here has seemed to deny them. Burleigh, born of negro parentage, has won an enviable place among the musicians of America by dint of sheet ability and indefatigable effort in overcoming the obstacles that beset him. His compositions are widely known and he stands preeminently as the great interpreter of the folk music of the American negro. One critic has said in commenting upon his work, "This man is a composer by divine right and, what is more, he is a thinker; a man who writes music because he feels profoundly in the language of tone. He is contributing to American art song examples of creative music that deserve world wide attention and respect."

The 23d selection in last year's contest was The Swan by Camille Saint-Saens.

Twenty-fourth of 28 Daily Selections For Monday, April 11
THE ROSARY, by NEVIN (1862-1901)

If it is true that there is no critic so severe as time, Nevin's Rosary must be classed as a worthy song. It has outlived thousands of songs, has now passed its quarter century mark, and is still widely popular. It is a good example of America's simpler and better love songs.

Ethelbert Nevin, known best by his melodious Narcissus, was represented in last year's contest by his tuneful duet "Oh That We Two Were Maying". All of his compositions display smooth and graceful themes and while they never reach great heights, it must be remembered that the composer has elected to restrict himself to small forms. The intimate attitude of Nevin toward his work is shown by the story of how he composed The Rosary. He was away from home, in New York, where he received a letter from a friend enclosing a copy of the poem. After having read the first line his imagination was aroused and the very next day he sent the manuscript to his wife in Pittsburgh with the note 'Just a little souvenir to let you know how I thank le bon Dieu for giving me you'.

In spite of its name the song is not religious in character. It merely borrows from the church t'at idea of a rosary or string of beads used in many religions as a reminder of prayers to be said. The pleasant hours are represented by the beads; the sacrifice which must come in every career is represented by the cross or crucifix.

The music is skillfully constructed so as to be easily remembered and learned and still to be different enough to hold the interest and adequately express the changing ideas in the poem. There are three verses, each having four phrases. In each verse the first two phrases are the same, the one being an exact repetition of the other. The third phrase is also the same in each verse, although it is different from the first two. The fourth phrase, however, is changed in each verse to suit the three varied ideas — the first verse expressing tender devotion ('my rosary! my rosary!'), the second, bitter dismay ('And there a cross is hung'), and the third resolute determination to accept the sacrifice ('To kiss the cross, sweetheart!'). Another means of increasing the interest is found in the accompaniment which, after being the same simple succession of cords for the first two verses, present a pleasing and flowing countermelody in the third verse, as tho a second voice were turning the song into a duet.

The 24th selection in last year's contest was Polonaise Militaire by Frederic Chopin.
