Three Fraternities and Sorority Take Action for Recovering Funds

Warner System to Appear in Court as Defendant in Easton Case

Legal action taken by three university fraternities and one sorority was started yesterday in the effort to recover funds lost when E. B. Easton disappeared last February with money entrusted to the Warner System, Inc., fraternity and sorority business agents.

The fraternities were Phi Gamma Delta, Sigma Chi, and Theta Xi; and the sorority, Kappa Alpha Theta.

Warner to Appear

Paul S. Warner, who has an interest in the Warner System, Inc., and Reuben J. Neckerman of the Continental Casualty Co., who is said to have issued fidelity bonds to protect the campus organizations, are to appear before Court Commissioner E. J. Reynolds, at 10 o'clock this morning to submit to adverse examinations.

Each of the campus organizations have filed separate actions through their attorneys, Cyril E. Marks and Frank A. Ross, but the adverse examinations will be joined.

In affidavits filed with the suits, the two attorneys for the fraternities declare that they wish to discover the relationships between the various organizations and the individuals.

Records Destroyed

That Mr. Warner destroyed records of the fraternities and sororities entrusted to the accounting firm was inferred in the affidavits.

"What books and papers belonging to the plaintiff fraternity were destroyed by the defendant, Paul S. Warner, in the offices of the defendant, The Warner System, Inc., or elsewhere, on or about the 13th day of February, A. D. 1927 and what was the reason for the destruction of such books and papers?" is one of the questions the attorneys wish to determine.

Other Points

Another points to be determined is what knowledge the defendant had if any, of the embezzlement or loss of moneys of the plaintiff fraternity during the period from Jan. 1, 1924 to Feb. 12, 1927, and if any such knowledge.

Intramural Cup Won by Barnard

Athletics for Women Stressed at W. A. A. Meeting by Miss Davis

Barnard hall was the object of much envy when it was presented the 1927 intramural championship cups at the W. A. A. meeting last night in Lathrop gymnasium. Miss Blanche M. Trilling of the department of physical education presented the cup awarded jointly by the physical education club, W. A. A., and Y. W. C. A., to Walda Gerhardt, '28, president of Barnard hall.

"I believe heartily in W. A. A.," said Miss Trilling, "and I want women to enter it, in connection with athletics, not to make points, but for the fun of playing."

Dorothy Bucklin '28, president of W. S. G. A., presented the W. S. G. A. loving cup, which does not leave Lathrop hall, but which is to be placed in the trophy case to be erected in the Lathrop lobby.

"We want this cup to stand where everyone will be able to see it, so that it may be a source of inspiration to intramural teams," said Miss Bucklin.

Miss Susan B. Davis, freshman women's dean, in speaking of the intramural activities, said, "Athletics tend to develop a wholesomeness in the women who go out for them. Last year more than 1,000 women playing together were out for intramurals, and when people play together, they learn to live together in a wholesome, happy way."

Sylvia Meyer '28, president of W. A. A., encouraged women to go out for intramural sports. "It was only last year that intramurals came to be taken seriously," she said, "but since then they have become closely bound up with W. A. A."

Speaking in the manner in which women can earn enough points for W. A. A., she stressed the fact that there were numerous ways aside from making class teams in which girls not skilled enough for such teams might easily get into the association.

Registration for Dramatic Players to Begin Today

Tryouts for First Plays Next Week; Production Positions Open

The Wisconsin University Players will register all students interested in dramatics, either acting or in any of the various branches of the production department, at the theater box office in Bascom hall today and tomorrow.

The box office will be open for registration from 9 to 12, and from 1:15 to 4:30 both today and Friday. All students intending to try out for parts in the casts of any of the plays to be produced this year, or wishing to work on the Bascom theater production staff are requested to register at this time.

Tryouts Monday

Tryouts for the casts of the first two plays to be produced will be held next week, Monday and Tuesday, October 3 and 4. The first play to be presented this season, "The Dover Road," a drama by A. A. Milne, is scheduled for October 21 and 22. This play will be followed by a special production for Father's Day, "In the Next Room," a comedy by Eleanor Robson and Harriet Ford, which will be put on November 4 and 5.

There are 21 parts in the casts of these plays, and both productions will be cast from the tryouts held next week.

All plays will be directed by Prof. William C. Troutman, director of Bascom theater and faculty advisor to Wisconsin University Players.

A permanent production staff for Bascom theater will be organized as soon as the casts for the plays are selected and rehearsals begun. There will be places on the production staff for stage managers and assistants, set designers, scene painters, interior decorators, costume designers, wardrobe mistresses, stage carpenters, electricians, publicity writers, members of the advertising staff, and workers for the business office.

All positions on the production staff, and all parts in casts, will be filled by competitive tryouts, which are open to all students who are scholastically eligible.

Students who registered for work with the Players last Spring, and who intend to work again this year, are requested to report to the theater box office sometime during the registration and have their cards checked.

Expulsion Rule Given as Cause of Discipline Committee Resigning

Mysteries Among City's Catacombs Remain Hidden

Romance, mystery, thrills, midnight conclave in a vault 75 feet underground and initiations in the catacombs of Madison which were originally designed to store thousands of kegs of old German malt!

This is not an advertisement for the University Players, but a story on that staid institution which represents the student body of the university—the Union board.

For the reason, one might read the following news story discovered by an ingenious Cardinal reporter in the Ann Arbor Times this summer: "Madison, Wis., July 12.—(AP)—Winding stairways lead to a subterranean vault, 75 feet below Madison's business district suggesting the catacombs of Rome.

Three flights below the street, the vault now serves as the setting for initiatory rites of the union board, student governing body of University of Wisconsin.

Once it was merely a storage place for barrels of beer manufactured by a brewery which occupied the premises above, and which found that the deeper it built its vaults, the cooler was the beer.

Today the cold dark recesses are used only for the induction of new members into the student board, and few are aware of the vault's existence."

Investigation of the location of old Madison breweries reveals the fact that before prohibition there were three in the business district — Haussman's, Faurebach's, and Breckheimer's. Even the buildings these breweries once occupied have been torn down and replaced by commercial buildings.

The truth or falsity of the Associated Press dispatch cannot be ascertained, because Union board officials, when approached on the topic, become strangely non-committal. They seem, however, slightly dismayed, and are at a loss to say yes or no.

FROSH MEETING!

There will be a mass meeting for all freshman men at 7:15 o'clock tonight on the lower campus. Organization of the class of 1931 for the coming rush will be considered. Arthur Brandt heads the committee which was formed at a preliminary meeting to formulate plans. He is assisted by Mayer, Gutheim, Levings, Toll, Groth, and Hovey.

Protest Against Stringent Penalties Results in Failure to Appoint Members

The rule compelling suspension or expulsion from the university for students found guilty by the discipline committee was revealed by a prominent faculty member yesterday as the underlying reason for the failure of the committee elected last fall to assume its duties.

Protest against such a stringent scale of penalties was made by the Board of Regents to the faculty, this man said. The Regents' protest caused President Frank to refrain from appointing the fifth member of the committee, and thus the committee never took over the work. Discipline was administered last year by the committee appointed in the fall of 1925. This committee has this fall expressed a belief that its term of service had expired.

Special Meeting Planned

It was reported in a Madison newspaper Tuesday that the executive committee of the Board of Regents were planning a special meeting Thursday night to determine whether the protest on the penalties required that the faculty draft a new plan or merely change the one clause of the "Otto plan."

M. E. MacCaffrey, secretary of the regents, said yesterday that he knew nothing of the special meeting. He added, however, that he might not have been notified as yet as he has been out of the city for several days.

Should the executive committee clear up the situation at the meeting Friday it was understood that action will be taken on the problem at the faculty meeting on Monday, October 3.

State Supreme Court Makes Time Extension on Law Qualifications

The State supreme court today ruled an extension of time for the qualification of law students to Sept. 1, 1928. Under the provision of the rules adopted June 21, 1926 the new rules were to become effective Jan. 1, 1928.

The extension of time is the result of extra work which would necessarily have to be forced upon law students already enrolled in the course.

The Secretary of the Board announced that there will be no mid, winter examination this year. The next examination will be on the third Tuesday of July, 1928.

Y. W. C. A. Tells Members of Plans

Several Hundred Women Attend First Association Meeting for 1927-28

For the purpose of acquainting new women students with the Y. W. C. A. and of informing former members of the plans made for work this year, the first general convocation of the association held last night in Lathrop concert room brought together the plans and needs of cabinet members and those women working in various departments.

Several hundred women students attended the meeting, which was presided over by Beth Hirsig '28, vice-president. Discussions and talks were given by Miss Mary Anderson, secretary of the organization, Miss Jean Hord, member of the advisory board, Laura Barrett '28, president.

Miss Anderson, who is back in Madison after a year abroad, told in particular her visit to the little city in the Bavarian Alps where the Passion play has been given every 10 years for the past three centuries. Although Miss Anderson was not in Europe at the time of the production of the play, her party visited the actors at their homes and shops, in order to become acquainted with their conditions.

Miss Hord stressed in her talk the importance of friendship in education, while Miss Barrett outlined the Y. W. C. A. program for the year. Cabinet members of the association discussed the work of their departments and requested that all interested girls volunteer their services.

Fraternity, Sorority Members Have Higher Standing Than Other Students

The all-student scholastic average of the university for last semester was 1.433, as compared to 1.313, the average for the preceding semester, and 1.415, the average for the second semester of the academic year 1925-26.

The average of all women, 1.615 is again higher than the men's average, 1.313. Both the fraternity men with an average of 1.319, and the sorority women with an average of 1.658, are higher than the non-fraternity men and women who have averages of 1.303 and 1.576, respectively.

Agriculture Leads

The College of Agriculture led all other colleges in the university with a scholastic average of 1.479. Letters and Science was second with 1.463, Engineering third with 1.347, and Law fourth with .889.

UNION VODVIL FATE RESTS ON STUDENTS

"Whether Union Vodvil is to be held this year or not depends upon the interest shown by the student body," was the statement made by Clyde Kluckhohn '28, president of Union board after a meeting of that body Tuesday noon at the University club. If the students are eager to have the vodvil, and if there are enough volunteers for acts, it will be held next spring.

Haresfoot Classes Start at Lathrop First of Next Week

Haresfoot dancing classes will begin at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Lathrop concert room, when Don Albert '28, Don White '28, and William Rahr '28 will conduct the first practice.

Only scholastically-eligible upperclassmen may enter these classes which will continue for four or five weeks when a first cut will be made.

The first meeting of Haresfoot orchestra candidates will be held at 7 o'clock Tuesday in room 1, Music hall. Jack Mason '29, will have charge of the practice. Musicians playing piano, violin, saxophone, trumpet, trombone, bass, cello, flute, or clarinet are needed.

According to the affidavits, actions by the court are "for the purpose of enforcing liability against the defendant, The Warner System, Inc. on account of the embezzlement and loss of various sums of money belonging to the plaintiff while such sums of money were in the possession of the defendant, while said defendant was purporting to act as the business manager of the plaintiff association, for the further purpose of enforcing liability on account of the embezzlement and loss of such moneys against the defendant, Paul S. The meeting Tuesday was conducted by Launcelot A. Gordon, former assistant secretary of state, who stated the ideals and principles of the association. "The Young Men's Progressive association was founded by a group of men who were not principally office seekers, but who were fundamentally interested in the promotion of progressive principles followed by the late Senator Robert M. La Follette," said Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Intramural to Make Bow in New Suit

778 Men Apply for Football
Suits; Games to Start
Soon

After several weeks of intensive preparation, the stage has at last been set for the first starring appearance of Mr. Intramural Sports on the Wisconsin campus. Mr. Intramural is a big chap, rather difficult to manage, but the athletic department claims to have him under control and can quote statistics to prove the point.

As the first and biggest step in the organization of Wisconsin's new program, Director George E. Little announces a total sign-up of 778 men students who will play football this fall. The apportionment of this number, by far the largest ever to register an active interest in football, is as follows: varsity squad, 65; all-American squad, 60; freshmen not in the four-year Physical Education course, 268; freshmen in the four-year course, 58; intramural players, 325.

Ten Gridirons

Ten completely equipped football fields, at Camp Randall and at Intramural field, will provide plenty of space for the hot contests that are expected to take place when interfraternity and inter-group competition gets under way in the two sports of touch football and tackle football.

In addition, the contests will have the advantage of genuine supervision this year, for the athletic council has appointed Captain E. Hull of the military science department to assist Mr. Little, and George Berg, director of intramural athletics, in coaching the various teams.

Regular Games

Regularly scheduled contests are expected to start early next week, in spite of the fact that recent rains have left all of the gridirons in rather soggy condition. Schedules are being made up now by Mr. Berg's assistants.

Though not immediately concerned with intramural sports, the policy of expanding supervision is noticeable in the recent appointment of three graduate students to coaching posts. Wallace Cole '27 and Robert Kasiska '27 were officially named as assistants to freshman coach Pat Holmes when the athletic council met Tuesday night. George Schutt '27, captain of last year's cross country team, has charge of freshman cross country runners and freshman track classes.

Track Men Work in Early Drill

No Official Call Yet Issued;
Eight Veterans Return to Squad

A squad of 14 track men including eight veterans from last spring's varsity squad are working out in the annex in a pre-season preparation for the indoor track season.

Coach T. E. Jones will have it understood that no official call has been made for indoor track men, but the majority of these men are quarter-milers, and weight men who will benefit by the conditioning derived from gradual training. These men are not working daily nor on any consistent plan, but rather at random as is suitable to their leisure.

Limberg Back

Good news for Wisconsin track prospects is the return of W. Limberg, a shot put veteran from the 1925 track team which traveled all the way to California to meet the University of California track team. Limberg has a couple of "W"s and should greatly reinforce the Wisconsin weight division. It may be remembered that the lack of weight men was practically the cause of Wisconsin's elimination in the outdoor track championship at Camp Randall last spring. Limberg is now in the law school, and is ineligible for varsity competition, but it is expected that he will be qualified for varsity competition by next semester.

He has had only two years of varsity competition and if he satisfies the authorities on grades he will be able to compete with Wisconsin's team.

Smith Works Out

Capt. Gil Smith, Wisconsin's veteran dash man, has been issued a locker and is working out now and then. Smith was improving very rapidly at the close of last season and if expectations are correct, he will be an extremely valuable man on the squad.

Training able Tips

We scoop the world this morning with the announcement that Wisconsin will play Cornell college on or about Oct. 1—weather permitting, of course.

Joe Steinauer has located several promising candidates for the swimming squad during the past two or three football practices. Bo Cuisinier did a forty-yard free-style in close to record time the other evening, and Gene Rose looks like a good breast-stroker. Remember Aesop's witticism about the ill wind?

* * *

Having produced several good football teams, Michigan has now taken to producing good stories as well. They claim to have a boy on the football squad, known to the trade as "Freaky" Flajole, who gains weight in practice. Two men bore witness that he weighed 176 pounds going out and 178 coming in, but we still don't believe it.

* * *

It's a bad year for lettermen at Illinois. Ten of 'em are sitting on the bench while sophomores hold down all the heavy jobs out on the gridiron. The Illini may not win a championship this year, but they'll be up and coming the next two.

* * *

Coach A. L. Masley has issued a call for gymnasts and fencers to meet in the gym this afternoon. Though neither of these sports ever attract much public attention they require ability, both physical and mental, of the most admirable type. We often wonder that in a country where every boy plays soldier almost until he is grown up, there are not more candidates for the fencing squad. Perhaps it's because we're so near Chicago.

* * *

Emil Iverson, track and hockey coach at the University of Minnesota has returned to Minneapolis with a wild tale of hunting in the Canadian wilderness. "When Indians have been dead more than a hundred years, they are hard to find," was one of Emil's truisms concerning the trip.

The new Minnesota fieldhouse will be ready for use February 1, 1928. It is costing $650,000.

Hoosier Eleven Hit by Loss of Briner, Lineman and Kicker

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Sept. 28.—Indiana University's line was hard hit today for the Kentucky and Chicago games, when Head Football Coach Pat Page announced that Louis Briner, Garrett, star guard of 1926, will not be able to play in either game. The Hoosier coach also stated that it is probable that he will be lost for the entire season.

Briner suffered a severe injury to his leg in the Northwestern game at Evanston last year and has never fully recuperated. An operation was performed last summer in an effort to have the injured limb ready for the grid campaign. The injury failed to heal quickly enough, and as a result Briner has been unable to don a uniform.

Coach Page had counted on having Briner ready for Chicago on Oct. 8, at the very latest. Now that he will not be able to participate, Page will have to go hunting through the large squad to select a man to fill his shoes.

GYMNASTS, FENCERS

All candidates for the varsity gymnastic and fencing teams are asked to meet on the top floor of the gymnasium at 4 o'clock today.

Among the veteran quarter-milers who are working out are: Pat Dugan, Chamberlin, Jack Kanalz, and A. Stowe. All of these men were capable quarter-milers last season.

Bill Ramsey, captain of last year's frosh team and one of the most capable 440 men that the frosh team had, is now conditioning in preparation for the indoor season. Another quarter-miler who was captain of a frosh team is Hummel, who captained the 1926 frosh team.

Other men working out occasionally are: Pahlmeyer, veteran low and high hurdler; Murphy, also a low and high hurdler; J. Meyer, javelin thrower; and Pfeifer, hurdler from last year's freshman track team.

As a final gesture before the Wisconsin football team enters upon its regular season, President Glenn Frank, of the university, will address the squad in the dressing room at Camp Randall this afternoon.

Following the address by President Frank the Cardinal squad will go into the stadium to workout for the first time this year upon the actual field of battle.

Collegiate Paternalism

THE FOLLOWING editorial, entitled "Automobiles in Education" recently appeared in The Detroit News:

The freshman class at the University of Michigan will be smaller this year than last, according to a preliminary checkup by Ira Smith, registrar. It is believed by officials that this decrease may be due to the ban on student automobiles.

If that belief is justified, it is to the gain of the university. Few, if any, institutions offer more to the student than does the University of Michigan. There a student may acquire a solid background for appreciation of this world. He may become truly cultured in the arts and sciences and the humanities. He may get the training necessary to the practice of any profession. It will develop his potentialities to the furthest degree of which the native capacity and interest of the student are capable.

The student who would let the fact that he could not drive an automobile while attending it outweigh all these advantages would probably go there more for the pleasure of automobile driving than to train himself for serious life duties, and so would hold back more serious students. The university is better off without him.

In contrast to this decrease in Michigan's enrollment, Wisconsin's registration increased very noticeably this year. Student automobiles are not under the faculty ban here. May we not therefore assume from the News writer's insinuation that some 500 new students were attracted to this campus because our officials have not yet succumbed to the swiftly-spreading plague of collegiate paternalism?

In banning automobiles from a college or university campus, the faculty of that institution hopes to decrease the danger to life and limb, to force the student to have more time which may be employed in training for "serious life duties," and to create a cultural atmosphere which will be untainted by fumes of burning gasoline and undisturbed by the rattle and clang and honk-honk that distinguish the collegiate Ford.

College officials, in banning student autos, take away some of the student body's playthings, some of their means of recreation, and hope that the valuable time hitherto frittered away in automobiling will be applied to subjects in the curricula. It is like taking playing cards from the professional gambler and expecting him to spend the time formerly occupied with poker in attending church.

These officials seem incapable of realizing that an American body of students is composed of a number of ordinary human beings who must have their recreation in one way or another, be it driving an antiquated flivver, seeing the movies, playing bridge or more exciting card games, reading the Saturday Evening Post, dancing, or merely wasting time in the lengthy fraternity bull session over atheism, sex and whatnot.

They fail to realize that this need for diversion, though it be great, cannot be squelched or diminished to any appreciable extent by removing only one of the means of recreation, the one now most popular in the majority of our institutions of higher learning. It is like attempting to keep water from the sea by throwing a dam across a river's bed. Another course for the stream, another type of collegiate diversion, is always found.

If they wish to accomplish their purpose, they ought to set up a strong set of blue laws for the campus and have them rigidly enforced by a few thousand diligent Pinkertons.

Returning to our editorial writer of The Detroit News, he states that the university is better off without the frivolous, automobile-driving student. But are there no other means of getting rid of him than by taking away his car? If the University of Michigan is such a paragon among the country's universities as the writer claims, surely the scholastic standards must be sufficiently high to keep out any dead timber which "goes there more for the pleasure of automobile driving than to train himself for serious life duties."

And this, we believe, is the only just solution to the student car problem—the raising of standards. If standards are sufficiently high, the sheep will be separated from the goats via the dismissal route—and the goats will be free to take their enjoyment in automobiling somewhere else. Those who enter a university to work will remain in the university; those who come to the campus to frivol away their time will be deported as scholastically undesirable aliens.

Under this system, which is sufficiently apparent to all except a small group of over-zealous academic officials, the earnest student will have to be more moderate in his recreations. Under this system, the student body is treated as men and women, rather than as a pack of hare-brained adolescents who must be supervised and guarded over at every turn by their official foster-parents.

We believe that the University of Wisconsin deliberately or unconsciously, has this system now. Our university has a reputation for being "tough." Let that warning, rather than "keep out" signs to automobiles, be sufficient to make the frivolous minded search for greener pastures.

Dean Nardin, W. C. T. U., and the Deadly Nicotine

WE FIND that the Wisconsin branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union is still alive and kicking. This time its public-spirited members happen to be kicking about feminine cigarette smokers in the university.

Just how lustily they are kicking is conjectural. It seems that the organization recently held a "narcotic conference" up in Fond du Lac. It was reported by several metropolitan newspapers that a resolution was adopted at this conclave asking Dean Nardin to make Wisconsin co-eds refrain from the noxious weed. But upon being interviewed, Dean Nardin denied that representatives had been to see her, stating, however, that if such a plea were received it would be given courteous consideration by the authorities here.

If it isn't one thing with the W. C. T. U., it's another. The reformers must keep the ballyhoo in operation, must do something to keep their virtuous activities before the eyes of the people. We shall dismiss their reported resolution as a matter undeserving of serious consideration.

But Dean Nardin made some significant statements. She said, "Women smokers . . . literally burn up money that could be put to much better use. I don't think very highly of the girl who spends money on cigarettes while her Memorial Union bills are unpaid." We are not committing ourselves for or against feminine smoking, but we believe this statement indicates something akin to a mid-Victorian attitude on the part of the Dean of Women. It reminds us of the time a dean told a group of women they should not say "prunes," "soup," or "purse" in the presence of a man, because the enunciation of those words puckered up one's lips so they became altogether too alluring.

On the other hand, we wish to commend Dean Nardin's policy toward women's smoking. She realizes that a faculty ruling prohibiting smoking would be extremely hard to enforce, and seeks to discourage the use of cigarettes by working through group leaders and house mothers.

Persuasion is a better method than compulsion in this case, although the efficacy of neither is great.

England is going to tax monocles. Having to wear one should be sufficient penalty in itself.

It takes, from all appearances, one year and thirty-nine minutes for a championship fight—six months ballyhoo before, 39 minutes for the fight, and six months argument afterward.

The Cleveland "baby puzzle" has also caused many cross-words.

Well, the French action on tariffs ought to call our attention to the fact that an infant industry thirteen feet tall looks peculiar in rompers.

Mid-week dates have been abolished at the Kansas State Teacher's college at Emporia, Kan., by the Pan-Hellenic council, according to house rules sent out by the Dean of Women.

women interested in intramurals should be present at this meeting. "There is a great deal of important business which must be attended to by the entire association," said Sylvia Meyer '29, president of W. A. A., "and it is necessary that every member be present at this meeting." Miss Gladys Bassett, faculty adviser of the women's intramurals committee, urges the different group representatives to bring a complete list of their teams to this meeting. "This year," said Miss Bassett yesterday, "we are encouraging especially women who have no group affiliations to come out for intramurals. We are hoping to be able to compose one or two teams of this nature, and we want all such women to turn out for the meeting."

Miller Answers Weather queries

Failure in Arrival of Cold Spell Causes Week of Rain

As a result of many questions and surmises made by the student body regarding the causes of the prolonged rainy spell which descended upon Madison Sunday and is still with us, Eric Miller, head of the local station of the United States weather bureau on the fourth floor of North hall, made the following explanation of the rainy condition.

Mr. Miller says that on last Friday night a cold spell had descended upon the Saskatchewan valley in southern Canada. As the center of disturbance moved eastward, it lost the greater part of its energy and force and by the time it reached Madison all of it had been spent. Thus, we have been cursed with rain for four consecutive days and nights and with no prospect of any immediate let-up for a few days, according to the forecast of Mr. Miller.

Such a weather prediction does not promise any ideal condition for Saturday's football game with Cornell. Rather, we have visions of the Cardinal warriors swimink under water to elude the Cornell line.

Mr. Miller does not intend to stake his reputation by making any false predictions in respect to the coming fall and winter. He declines to assume the responsibility of a knowledge of the multitude of factors which may affect weather conditions, neither does he believe that any one else is capable of forecasting the weather for the distant future with any degree of accuracy.

However, one thnig is certain, rain today and tomorrow. Beyond that no one knows.

I. U. Eleven Gets New Plays

Hoosiers Prepare for Stiff Tussle With Kentucky Saturday

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. Sept. 26 — Coach Pat Page will pass out final plays to the Indiana university football team tomorrow for the opening game of the season next Saturday against the University of Kentucky at Lexington. The tilt with the Wild Cats is the first to be played away from home on the opening day of the schedule in recent years.

The dynamic I. U. chieftain had hopes of issuing plays several days ago but due to the large squad available, his time was taken up in separating the teams and conditioning the men. Coach Page has made diligent search for big men who might develop into linemen. Bundy and Dudding, new faces on the varsity squad, appear to be the only real "white hopes" among heavy material. Bunker who will stick to the old costume merit at the tackle position. Dudding, of Hopo, is suited for guard.

Southerners Strong
Kentucky has had several more weeks practice than Indiana, and the advantage of being under fire in one game. Coach Page has hopes of having every man in condition for the fray. Few and far between injuries have occurred among the varsity candidates.

Hoosier football fans will watch the result of the Kentucky invasion with interest, due to the great home schedule on the Indiana field this year. If successful against the Wild Cats, Pat Page's warriors can be depended upon to give Minnesota, Notre Dame and Purdue a battle when they appear here in Memorial stadium.

Arrangements are being made to give the squads a great send-off Thursday night. They will leave early Friday morning, and will go through a light drill at Lexington Friday afternoon.

Many Former Stars Report for Freshman Basketball Drills

With the second practice of the freshman basketball season over, and the assignment of definite practices for the rest of the year, the outlook for a good frosh squad looks more than promising.

The large squad of 200 men were seen through a workout last night consisting of illustrations of the short pass systems, the dribbling methods, and the use of the five man defense system.

Many of the men now out for the squad have something of a reputation preceding them, and if they make good the Wisconsin varsity will have something to fall back on in a year or so. Among the good men listed are:

Homer Davidson, Marion, Ind., a last year's all-state man, and also in-terscholastic golf champion. Besides these two sports, Davidson is something of a football and track man.

Edward J. Kowalski, of Cicero, and an all-American interscholastic player from Morton High School, the school that won the title last year.

Milton Gantenbein, captain of the state championship La Crosse team during the last basketball season. Gantenbein is also a football player and at present is out for an end position on the frosh team.

Fred Peters, also of La Crosse and a fellow teammate of Gantenbein's, who was elected as center on the all-state team after the tournament held here last year.

Sam Behr, of Rockford, Ill., an all-Illinois center and an all-around athletic star.

With such men as these out for the squad, the coming battles between the frosh and the varsity should see some of the closest and fastest competition between the two squads that there has been in recent years.

Bradley Tech After 27th Victory; Play Illinois Saturday

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 28—Peoria, home of Bradley Tech, first opponent of the 1927 University of Illinois football team, is most enthusiastic over the game next Saturday and will invade the stadium with a great contingent of rooters headed by the Bradley band.

The Peorians base their optimism upon the enviable record of the Bradley teams over a period of three years, during which 25 teams in succession have bowed to the Maroon and White.

While Bradley was making Western Teachers' college its twenty-fifth victim last week, the Illini were rolling up the largest score counted against the freshmen during the Zupke regime, one point better than the 55 to 0 victory of the varsity over the freshmen in 1919. The lineup against the freshmen is expected to be Zup's choice to face Bradley.

Use Sophs

This outfit, the strongest possible, to take care of the Bradley threat, includes only three lettermen and six of the remaining eight players are sophomores. The aggressive challenge of the newcomers has left ten lettermen sitting on the bench for the present at least.

Mills and Walker, sophomore half-backs, are taking care of the punting this year. Mills is listed in the starting lineup along with Jud Timm, Humbert, a plunging fullback, and French, letterman, who calls signals.

Numerous Reserves

Burdick and Gordon, rangy and fast sophomores, are to start as tackles with Crane, another sophomore at guard. Jolley and Deimling, playing their first year of football, will hold down the ends.

Other athletes, veterans and newcomers, who will likely break into the game, include Butch Nowack, sub tackle who has been shifted to full-back, Stewart and Stuessy, Walker and Grange, all backs; Schultz, Mariner, Grable, Muegge, Perkins, Nikol and D'Ambrosio, all lettermen and Wietz, Wolgast, Short and Brown, linemen.

The new $10,000 electric scoreboard has been installed at the north end of the stadium and will be in operation Saturday.

Sally Dresses
29 E. Main St.

"I can't forget her—she was powdered, perfumed, demurely attired, and how! It was a black silk chiffon velvet pleated at each side and trimmed with lace. She was the big attraction—that dress on that figure would be anywhere."

"From a Sally Shop," one girl whispered.

PRINCE ALBERT is the kind of a smoke you get clubby with, right off the bat. You'll be calling each other by your first names after the very first pipe-load. It is so genuinely friendly, in spirit and in fact.

P. A. treats your tongue and throat as gently as a mother handles a new-born baby. Never a bite. Never a parch. These are details, of course. The thing you'll remember longest is that wonderful taste! So cool, so sweet, so soothing.

No matter how hard you hit it up, this long-burning tobacco never hits back. You can go to it before classes, and right through to Lights Out. Get yourself a tidy red tin of Prince Albert today. The School of Experience has never produced a greater smoke than good old P. A.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

FROM FRESHMAN CAP TO CAP AND GOWN

All Your College Needs Are Found At The Co-op

Four years to go. . . In that time have you stopped to calculate what you will spend for books, school supplies, furnishings for your room, clothing, shoes and the other thousand and one things that a student needs. . . If you were offered a saving of 15 per cent on that amount would you take it? . . . Well that's what we are offering.
