Travel Club Contestants Are Showing Great Enthusiasm As Campaign Enters Second Period

Next Nine Days Most Important

Big Credits End Saturday, Oct. 11 — Earnest Effort Required of First Prize Aspirants.

Only nine more days—count them yourselves. Just one more week and three days in which to secure those double, second period credits in the Appleton Review Merry Christmas Travel Club. Just nine more days in which to redeem all promises; nine days in which to gather in enough subscriptions and credits to “cinch” the prize you most desire.

This is your last chance for the Big Credits. Never again during the campaign will it be possible to secure so many credits on subscriptions as between now and October 11. Remember that date and remember it in such a way that it will burn itself into your very soul, for it is what you do in these next nine days that has such tremendous bearing on your final standing in this great campaign.

If you have the proper ambition to win any one of five beautiful DeLuxe Sedans, or the Tour of Europe for two people—think campaign, talk campaign, sleep campaign; in fact, make campaign the “main issue” during these next highly important nine days, when results must be obtained if you hope to be in at the finish.

An Even Chance

All the club members are fairly well bunched at the present time, but the next few days will probably see some startling developments in this campaign and such developments will be due to the efforts of those club members who get out and strive to make their credits count higher. Anyone can win but it means effort and plenty of it. You will find it hard to get subscriptions, but that's part of the game. If it had been an easy task, those wonderful prizes would not have been offered. We are giving you the opportunity to earn big money in a short time. It is up to you.

It is not what you have done, it is what you are doing now that counts.

Up to $250 a Week

No matter what you have been earning heretofore you can make your time worth hundreds of dollars during the remaining days of the campaign. You

This is Last Free Issue of Review

The free distribution of the Appleton Review will be discontinued with this issue. Beginning next week the Review will be sent only to paid-in-advance subscribers as announced last week. The Review will be published as a semi-weekly beginning October 17. If you enjoy the Review and wish to continue receiving it, read the ad on page three and either use the subscription blank or telephone 79 and we will send a contestant to call for your subscription.

can win the prize you most desire if you put in effort at the proper time, or during this period when subscriptions are worth more credits.

No one else is going to affix the value of your time. As a club member in this race you are in business for yourself, according to the way you figure, plan and work. Every member is the appraiser of the value of his or her time. It rests entirely with you whether you make your time worth many dollars an hour or just a few cents. The pay will be in the form of the prize you win at the close of the campaign and the prize you win must be decided according to the number of credits you earn.

Yes—there is plenty of opportunity for live wires to enter the campaign at this time and win the big prizes. All it takes is the initiative to enter and the energy to ask your friends and acquaintances for subscriptions.

The first storm of the fall Friday and Saturday caused considerable damage to lake shipping and resulted in the loss of a number of lives.

The cancer research committee of the American College of Surgeons at its annual conference in Chicago reports decided gains in the treatment of bone cancer.

For reasons not given out but stated as “for the good of the service” James Wagner, postmaster at Chilton, has been removed from office by the department and Herman Rau has been appointed acting postmaster.

Relative Standings Changing—New Workers Entering—Competition Becoming Keener Daily

This is an unusual subscription campaign. The competition between all of the active workers is so keen and the race for credits is so close that it would be almost impossible for any man to make a prophecy as to which candidate will be successful in winning first grand award at the close of this drive.

The first week Mrs. Mary Pardee lead the list with John Rooney a close second. The second week as indicated by the standings of the contestants in the box on this page, shows that Miss Irene Albrecht has climbed from fourth place to first place with Mrs. Mary Pardee and John Rooney running Miss Albrecht a close second and third. All other contestants have made up their minds to have their names appear at the top and are working hard to accomplish their goal.

In the list of contestants below you will notice that there are two new workers whose names did not appear in last week's list, Mrs. Blanche Jannes and Miss Elsie Vogt. In spite of the fact of their late start, these two new workers will surprise their friends when next week's standing is published. Watch for it!

There will be another big credit drop with the close of next week and now is the time for everyone to get enthusiastically behind their favorite candidate and assist him or her in reaching the goal for which all candidates are so valiantly striving.

Everyone should make this a personal race and be determined that their favorite candidate will garner first honors. Wouldn't you like to see the headline read that your favorite candidate (Continued on page 11)

Standing of Contestants [For Week Ending Saturday Sept. 27]

Below we give the relative standing of the contestants for their work in the Review “Travel Club” Subscription Contest for the week ending Saturday, September 20. These comparative relative positions of the club members are based on the weekly CASH RETURNS made to the club manager and are absolutely accurate and reliable.

WATCH THEM CLIMB—HELP THEM CLIMB

Your paid-in-advance subscription would change almost any worker's position—they are truly grouped together—with too small an amount of credits between them. Subscriptions not paid before Saturday, October 4, will lose them thousands of credits.

Who's Who in Appleton

"BILL" PRIEST

William H. Priest is ready to concede that Grandpa Langstadt may be a few years older than he is, but he is very emphatic in his claim that he has lived in Appleton longer than anybody else. If our readers know anybody now living who came here before the winter of 1849 we would like to hear from them, so as to give those old-timers an opportunity to get together and talk it over.

Mr. Priest was born in Essex county, New York, but while still a child his parents came west and settled in Illinois. That did not suit them and they moved to Waukesha county where they remained a couple of years, moving to Neenah in the spring of 1849.

After a few months in our neighboring city, which was not a city at that time, they decided to settle in what was later to become the city of Appleton. They arrived here on Christmas day, 1849, and took up their abode in a one-room log cabin, located in the wilderness about one and one-half miles north of Calmes Corners, near what is now the Freedom road.

Here they spent the next three years with no neighbors and no connections with the outside world except a trail through the primeval forest. During those three years our family had just one sack of flour; they lived on corn mush and milk and the flesh of wild game. The corn meal was obtained from the government grist mill at Neenah and the male members of the family had to carry the grain to the mill and the meal home on their backs. The milk was furnished by two cows and the meat came from wild game which could be shot without leaving the little log cabin.

In 1852 the family moved to Appleton, building a little home on the lot where the Meating residence now stands. The father built the first saw mill in Appleton and young Bill helped saw the first lumber. The mill stood on the river bank just above the present site of the Atlas paper mill. Their first house was a small frame structure, built with lumber sawed by the members of the family. Later another frame building was purchased and built onto the original house.

During the early fifties the government canal was dug and the upper and lower dams built. These original dams were made of logs, but they answered the purpose until replaced by the present structures. Young Bill was one of the crowd which watched the burning of the original Lawrence university building and he afterward watched the construction of the present Main hall, which was considered a marvelous piece of architecture in those days.

When the Civil war broke out young Bill and his brother Al, who passed on a few months ago, were among the first to enlist and they served through the entire war, returning to Appleton after peace was declared. He has made his home here ever since, though in his younger days he made occasional excursions into the outside world, but he always came back and says that Appleton is one of the best towns on the map. Mr. Priest is now commander of the Geo. D. Eggleston Post of the G. A. R., the ranks of whose members have thinned with the passing years until only eleven are left. His leisure time is spent, as shown in the picture, with his beloved old pipe and a pack of cards, playing solitaire.

After the above story had been written and set in type Mr. Priest suffered a fall in which he injured his hip. Because of his advanced age he was unable to rally from the shock and on Tuesday evening he passed away at his home, 333½ W. College avenue. He leaves two sons, William R. and George N. in Minneapolis; three daughters, Mrs. Nellie Rossback in Appleton, with whom he has made his home for some time, Mrs. R. H. Dohr in Rockford, Ill., and Mrs. Hattie Gannon in Cloquet, Minn.; six grandchildren and three great grandchildren. The body was taken to the Brett Schneider funeral home from which the funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, Rev. J. A. Holmes officiating.

FATHER FITZMAURICE

A Tribute by Dr. H. E. Peabody

In the passing of Father Fitzmaurice not only the Roman Catholic Church but the City of Appleton has lost a saintly Christian pastor and a friend. With a meaning wider than the official sense he was a spiritual father to this community and thousands beyond his own communion were stronger against temptation, and better Christians because of him. "He stood four square to every wind that blew," a man of monumental integrity and remarkably catholic in his spirit.

He was an eminent citizen. He has always been a staunch friend of temperance, a champion of better, purer homes in the city. Of late years he has been a member and was for some time an officer of the Committee of Fifteen.

He was the leading spirit among the Catholic clergy in cooperation between his church and the other churches of the city. He strongly approved the Week Day School of Religion which the Protestants have been conducting in connection with the public schools. "You Protestants," he used to say, "don't give your children half enough Christian education to suit me. I'll help you all I can."

He sometimes attended the Appleton Ministers' Meeting, which is a kind of unofficial, ministerial club, and took a helpful part in its discussions.

He was a man of genuine culture and had very unusual gifts as a conversationalist. His strong sense of Irish humor often made his talk sparkling and brilliant.

Deep affections and racy humor made him a delightful friend. Many of the older residents of the city will associate him in memory with Rev. John Faville, another man of like qualities with his own. He and Dr. Faville loved each other sincerely and often used to discuss religion together with both wit and earnestness. While a staunch believer that salvation was to be found only within the Roman church, he could not easily reconcile himself to thinking of Dr. Faville in hell. And he once said with an affectionate smile, "John, you probably will go to hell, but I don't know; St. Peter may let you by on account of your ignorance."

FREE DISTRIBUTION ENDS

For nine months Appleton Review has been rendering a wanted service to the people of Appleton and surrounding territory without charge. During that time it has received much commendation and some adverse criticism. We are grateful for the helpful things that have been said and done and, of course, we are not surprised at the knocks. Every good new thing has its share.

Being ourselves a sort of necessary human gadfly to spur our city on to better things, we are bound to be criticized in turn. When that criticism is constructive and friendly—given in the spirit of our own—we receive it with open mind and the resolution to improve our part in community building accordingly. The uninformed and unjust "knock" that is just a "knock," we disregard, believing that a hammer is better for building than just knocking.

In some quarters there seems to be a false impression that Review is just another newspaper, instead of that newcomer in the periodical field—a news-magazine. In both you sometimes "read today's news" tomorrow, or even next day or next week. To keep up with "redhot" news a paper would have to be published every hour (as some one predicts newspapers will be in 1970) and then they still would lag behind the word-of-mouth, the radio, and other news-spreading agencies.

So, when Review gives its readers a digest of important news it is filling the need of the busy man and woman who wants to keep abreast of significant events and trends and still does not have the time to read through and sort out a great mass of printed matter scattered over many loose pages.

As the Rev. Canon A. P. Shatford, Montreal, said very recently, "The weekly plays a more important part in the lives of its readers than the daily. The city daily is an incident but the weekly is an episode. It is looked forward to until it arrives; it is then read and digested, and talked about until the next one appears. Everything should be given a fair trial before it is criticized. The weeklies have time to study and contemplate the trend of events before giving a considered judgment, and people expect that from them."

In addition to this news service Review carries many features and departments similar to those in the great national weeklies and some entirely unique and its own. Others will be added as need and demand require.

The editors have not hesitated to incur the wrath of the few in defending the best interests of the many and will continue to do so, stressing those things which lie nearest to our homes, our families and our town.

This is the last free issue and many who have not subscribed weeks or months ago are hastening to do so now in order not to miss a single number. The subscription campaign offers to persons who will avail themselves of it an opportunity for well-paid employment as well as the chance to win valuable cash prizes. Subscriptions already listed will be dated from this issue. Beginning with Oct. 17, there will be two issues each week for the price of one. All the news of any consequence, honest and considered editorial comment, the best of the "store news," helpful and instructive features, a chance to express your own ideas and wants, pictures of your own town, and a host of other things all bound up in bright, convenient, readable magazine form, coming to your door twice a week for FOUR CENTS.

Can you afford to do without it?

APPLETON'S ORTHOPEDIC SCHOOL

The newest of Wisconsin's seven orthopedic schools is under way for its first full year, with a score or more of pupils, a teacher, a physiotherapist and a housemother, in what was formerly Smith House, Lawrence college girls' dormitory.

Any interested person who will visit the school will find ample proof that it justifies its existence as a part of our educational system. The children are given all the work of regular grades besides the corrective work and supervision looking toward their physical improvement. Ideals of health are held before them; correct posture is stressed. The applied physiotherapy consists principally of light and heat treatments, and massage. This is all done by a trained and experienced physiotherapist. Regular rest periods are assigned.

While the school is comfortably housed and all the essentials of food requirements are taken care of, available funds are limited. The problem of overcoming undernourishment in some of the children is also to be met. Like others, these youngsters love pretty things to look at and good things to eat. You can add to their pleasure, and so to their well-being, by sending in an occasional treat—enough for about twenty-four portions—jellies, jams, canned or fresh fruits and vegetables, ice cream, cookies; a basket of flowers for the table or schoolroom, anything that would make your own children happy.

ALDERMAN VOGT'S PAVING PROGRAM

Alderman Vogt of the Sixth ward has worked out a plan whereby he hopes to reduce the street maintenance expense of the city very materially. Briefly put, the alderman proposes to pave fifteen miles of streets immediately, but to permit the property holders to pay for the improvement over a term of ten years. As an added inducement to the property owners he suggests that the city carry one-half of the interest charges, so that the property owners would only pay three per cent.

There can be no questioning the fact that Mr. Vogt's plan would save the taxpayers considerable money in the long run. Unfortunately it cannot be carried out without bonding the city, and that would be impractical at the present time.

The city has no funds and consequently cannot effect the savings which would come from carrying out Alderman Vogt's plan.

STATE AND NATION

Secretary of State Stimson, addressing international good roads congress, emphasized the intimate relation between good road communication and national prosperity and the fact that good highways make for peace.

In the fourth of a series of national broadcast addresses arranged by the Republican national committee Speaker Longworth Monday evening blamed the Democrats for the slow recovery from economic depression.

Drop in the state assessment this year which has been announced by the tax commission as $79,520,787 less than that of last year coupled with a certain slash in income tax receipts is held to mean a decided jump in state taxes to be levied within a few weeks.

The slump in state taxable property and income taxes are both due to the general depression. The drop in property values means that the university, the teachers' colleges and the common schools will get less money through normal channels and is certain to lead to bitter appropriation fights at the next legislative session.

Each one of the educational branches is allotted a definite mill tax on property in figuring their regular appropriations. The university and teachers' colleges then get this amount out of the income tax and what is left goes to the common schools. This year with both property valuation and income taxes for the common schools and a larger portion of this latter expense must come with a property tax levy.

Last year's total state tax was $4,296,778.51. One official estimated that the state tax this year would be at least $2,000,000 more than this figure.

Kimberly

The noon hour inter-departmental softball games for mill employees are drawing large crowds and interest is high. At present the Maintenance department seems to have a good claim to the championship but may get knocked off by the strong Electricians. The Construction department also plans on making a bid for the honors.

The Kimberly Mill Employees organized a twelve team bowling league and will start bowling on Tuesday, October 7, at five and seven o'clock. Four more teams will be in action Thursday. Friday will see the other four teams at the alleys for business.

At the last meeting of the League of Bowlers, M. Judkins was elected president; Al Wilkinson, treasurer; and Ed. Krueger, secretary. The rules and a schedule were adopted as drawn up by the committee.

The schedule calls for twenty-two weeks of bowling. Handicaps will be changed every three weeks with new handicaps starting after the first half of the schedule.

Due to the recent fall weather the swimming pool has been closed. The attendance at the pool was 100% above expectations during the short time it was open. Officials promise to open it as soon as weather will permit next spring and hope to be able to offer the bathers better locker room facilities.

The outdoor evening sports have been abolished and indoor activities have replaced them. Harold Williams has already scheduled a dartball game and has his men practicing. Anyone interested or wishing to learn the game should get in touch with Mr. Williams.

Mrs. John Limpert entertained the K. L. Ladies bridge club Monday evening at her home. Prizes were awarded Mrs. Ben Greb and Mrs. William Anderson. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Carl Krieser.

Kimberly High School

The Kimberly high school, at Kimberly, is one of the youngest high schools in the state, having been organized as a high school four years ago. During that period of time it has increased in enrollment from 26 to 85. The building houses the grades and kindergarten as well as the part time vocational school which was added the past year. The following courses are offered: English, manual arts, home economics, and commercial. The building, aside from being new, is well equipped and houses about $14,000 worth of equipment. There are six teachers in the high school and four in the grades, in addition to two music teachers. The high school has been on the accredited list since it was first organized. J. E. Roberts is in charge of the school.

County Items

The Happy Valley Parent Teachers' association in Town Greenville had a very interesting session last Friday evening. The 4-H club of the school demonstrated the work it had done during the summer and put on a business meeting for the benefit of the parents.

The Town Grand Chute board of appeals last week granted the request of George Vander Velden to install gasoline pumps in front of his property on highway 41. The building in question was constructed in accordance with the terms of the county set-back ordinance, but Mr. Vander Velden desired to install the pumps in front of the building and within the set-back distance. As no further construction is contemplated and the pumps would not interfere with traffic the permission was granted.

The new piece of road built on highway 55 between Kaukauna and Freedom will be completed within the next few days. The project included the improvement of three and one-half miles of road and the building of the same amount of new road and the total cost will be approximately $85,000. Funds for the work were provided by the state highway department and the work was done under the direction of the county highway department.

County rural school supervisors attended a conference called at Green Bay Tuesday by the state educational department.

The county highway commission is losing no time in ordering the snow removal equipment recently authorized by the county board. The commission intends to be all set to fight snow when it comes.

Henry Heitling, 79, died Tuesday at his home in Kaukauna. He was born in Germany and had lived in Kaukauna 35 years. He leaves his widow, three daughters and two sons. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon from Trinity Lutheran church in Kaukauna, Rev. Paul Oehlert officiating.

After an illness of twenty years, Dr. George F. Donaldson passed away Tuesday at his home in Shiocton at the age of 72. He leaves two daughters and one son. The funeral was held this afternoon from the Congregational church in Shiocton.

Legion Boxing Matches

First Card Next Thursday Evening at the Armory

Boxing fans are looking forward to the opening of the Legion boxing matches next Thursday evening at the armory. The headliners will be two of the best lightweights in the state: Winston (Windy) Thomas and Leonard Bernstein of Milwaukee. Thomas needs no introduction to local fans. Bernstein is from Joey Sangor's stable and is the leading boxer of his weight in Milwaukee. He is the only one who was able to give Thomas a fight last spring, besides Benny Goldblatt who beat him. But Bernstein says he is going to be the first Wisconsin boxer to beat Thomas, so fans can look forward to a real match, as Thomas is not likely to agree to such sentiments and expects to have something to say about the result of the match.

The semi-windup will be between Freddie Bush of Sheboygan and Frank Stanja of Milwaukee at 147 pounds. Bush fought here twice last year and his eagerness to mix it with his opponents made a big hit with the fans. In Stanja he will meet a boy who knows how to throw plenty of gloves, so that a real fight is in prospect.

Herbie Thompson of New London, a natural born fighter, is also on the card and three of the valley's best are after him. No selection has yet been announced, but whoever it is will have his hands full, because "Herbie sure can go."

There will be the usual six bouts on the program, including everything from feather to heavies. Make your reservations early, or you will be out of luck.

Cleaning Up

Appleton Review:—For the second time I notice that the premises of two property owners, Antone Stadler and Martin Boldt, are to be discussed, with reference to "cleaning up," by the mayor, the city attorney and the building inspector.

I don't know the exact conditions of these two properties, but I doubt if they can be more obnoxious than those occupied by some of the junk dealers of the city or the vacant building at 229 College avenue, or the great heaps of rubbish in our ravines that are such sore spots on the landscape. Why single out two citizens when the city itself sets the example to the many? Isn't it the case of the mote and the beam over again?

A Danger and a Remedy

Editor Review:—Permit me to call your attention to the following editorial clipping, taken from a recent issue of the Milwaukee Sentinel. It should be read by every auto driver.

"Autumn, which presents so many allurements and delights to the motorist, is, nevertheless, a dangerous period for those who traverse city streets or country highways.

"The falling of the autumn rains brings down the leaves, and as they drop on pavements they form a surface slippery and dangerous and often deceptive, especially to the inexperienced driver.

"Safety experts tell us that in a year some 300,000 persons are killed or injured in motor accidents due to skidding. And the autumn months provide, as remarked, their particular danger in this regard.

"Those who have studied the subject advise that the tires that are stiff and hard are the ones that slip and slide. Tires run on low air pressure are more nearly skid proof. That which is intended to grip and cling, on hard surfaces, they say, must be itself soft and yielding.

"It isn't a very difficult experiment to make. Drop the air pressure on your tires a few pounds and see if they do not work on treacherous, leaf strewn pavements more safely and agreeably."

Almost $50,000,000 have been paid to persons injured in industrial accidents under the workmen's compensation law since its enactment in 1911, according to the state industrial commission. There has been a steady increase in the amount of compensation paid beginning with $253,300 in 1912 to $5,402,467 in 1929.

A total of 330,554 cases have been reported during this period; the average benefits paid all cases were $173 of which $130 was paid in indemnity and $42 in medical care.

Courageous Bluebird

How a vigorous attack by an apartment seeking bluebird routed an already settled English sparrow from his comfortable home is told by Ruth Grant of Providence, Rhode Island, in whose yard the bird fight took place.

The bluebirds were looking over an unoccupied birdhouse when the sparrows, who already had taken possession of an adjoining home and begun to raise a family, came over to perch defiantly on the roof as if to say, "not for rent."

The bluebird did not waste words. He valiantly pitched in and the female, a Xantippe in her way, made for the sparrow female, too. The battle ended ingloriously for the sparrow, when stopping for rest on a fence he was picked up by the bluebird, carried by the nape of his neck to about a foot above his own house, and then dropped. It was too much; the sparrow took to his wings and did not return.

Later Miss Grant found young bluebirds in the house so bravely defended, and the next spring a like number returned to the yard. Perhaps they were the same ones coming back to the scene of their father's victory.

Bluebirds are, as a rule, the most peaceful of neighbors, but I think and hope they are learning to hold their own against the sparrows. I only wish more birds would become aggressive, that are so quiet and unassuming.

Hawaii is suffering from human interference with nature's balance. The Indian mongoose, imported in quantities to kill off rats, unfortunately did not stop at rats, but killed off all the songbirds and now Hawaii is importing quantities from the United States and Japan, including a number of our own Kentucky cardinals.

Let us hope we will leave the mongooses where they are and so help to save our birds, poultry, and game.

Children Need Wholesome Food

Feeding the small child is a problem which may be solved with little trouble by the careful housewife, according to the New York state college of home economics. By simple changes in the various dishes, the same menu can be given the child that is prepared for the adult members of the family.

Where coffee is served to adults, the child should be given milk; where highly seasoned tomato sauce, for example, is served with fish to older members of the family, an appetizer of tomato juice may be substituted in the child's meal. Pastry and hot breads should not be a part of the diet of young children, and whole wheat bread is used instead of white because it helps supply necessary vitamins. When a custard pie is on the menu, a portion of the filling may be baked separately for the child. Graham crackers or other wholesome, slightly sweetened crackers or cookies should be substituted for rich cake, though sponge cake is suitable for children.

Spices should be entirely lacking in children's cooking, and salt used sparingly. If the food is well-cooked, the child should be expected to learn to like it on its own merits, and not because of another flavor combined with it. Cooking for children should always be done with care, since the dislike of many children for certain vegetables may be traced to an unappetizing flavor, texture, or color when they were first served. No vegetables should be cooked after they have become tender, and color should be preserved by cooking green vegetables uncovered and red ones covered.

The diet of every child should contain one quart of milk a day, which may be taken partly in drinking, partly on cereal, and partly in cooked food. A cereal, an egg, and two fruits, one of which should be a citrus fruit, or a tomato, should also make up part of the child's daily diet. Meat or fish may be served three or four times a week.

Hollyhocks

The hollyhocks are standing
 In line on gleaming line,
 Like soldiers at attention—
 See how their helmets shine!
 In royal, bright battalions
 I watch them, row on row.
 Where will this glorious army be
 When autumn winds first blow?

Ah! Scattered through my garden
 Their wounded forms will lie,
 In tattered, hushed confusion
 Beneath a windy sky.
 And I shall praise their courage,
 Who faced the autumn storms
 Elate, and proud, imperial,
 In gorgeous uniforms.

They go down to disaster,
 As men must face the years.
 The thunder of the summer
 Shakes all their upraised spears.
 Undaunted at their danger
 They live, and die, and wait
 For June's authentic footfall
 Returning to my gate.

O brave and wondrous legions
 That guard the outer edge
 Of this small world, my garden,
 Beside the prim green hedge,
 I love your stalwart spirit
 That cannot be denied.
 You are the country's glory,
 You are the country's pride!
 —Charles Hanson Towne.

WANT SPECIAL ADMINISTRATOR FOR AUGUST KNUPPEL ESTATE

A petition for the appointment of a special administrator in the estate of August Knuppel who died intestate August 27, 1929, has been filed in probate court by Arnold Knuppel of California, a son of the deceased. The hearing on the petition, which asks that Heber H. Pelkey be appointed administrator, has been set for October 28.

Last spring the state appointed a special administrator to determine the value of the estate and the amount of inheritance taxes due the state. This report was filed March 25 and placed the value of the estate at $139,068.56 and the inheritance tax to be paid by Mrs. Eugenia Wettengel as transferee at $7,585.48.

For the first time in many months state supreme court now has a full membership of seven. Gov. Walter J. Kohler named George B. Nelson, Stevens Point, and John D. Wickhem, professor at the university law school, to the last two vacancies. They succeed the late Justices, Charles H. Crownhart and E. Ray Stevens. Due to frequent deaths Gov. Kohler was required to make five appointments to the Supreme court in less than two years, probably an all-time record.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMITTEE ORGANIZES

A. H. Krugmeier Re-elected Chairman

With thirty-nine of the forty-five precinct committeemen from the county present the Republican county committee held its first meeting Tuesday evening and re-elected A. H. Krugmeier chairman, after a test vote had shown that the Progressives dominated the committee by 22 to 17. Oscar J. Schmiede was re-elected secretary and treasurer. Immediately after the primary the old conservative committee had checked up and thought it controlled enough votes so that the decision would be close. It was discovered that the election returns showed no committeeman elected from certain precincts and voters were found who certified that they had voted for committeemen in two of those precincts. On the basis of these affidavits a recount in these two precincts was demanded, but as the demand was not made until five days after the board of canvassers met, whereas the law specifies that such demands must be filed within three days, it was refused by the county clerk. However, this decision had no bearing on the final result, as the vote at the meeting showed that the Progressives had a clear majority.

The meeting adopted resolutions pledging support to state and county tickets, though individuals announced that they would not support the national ticket if Hoover ran on the same platform in 1932 as in 1928.

PROGRESSIVES CONTROL STATE ORGANIZATION

The Republican platform convention was in session in Madison the past few days and, as was expected after the result of the primary was known, was completely dominated by the Progressives. On the first test of strength, State Senator Walter H. Hunt of River Falls was selected to preside over the convention. He lead E. G. Smith of Beloit, Conservative choice, by 84 to 42. Robert A. Nixon of Bayfield was elected secretary; he will also be Progressive floor leader in the next session of the assembly.

Every plank of the Progressive platform was adopted by overwhelming majorities so that the platform is practically the same as that on which Phillip La Follette made his phenomenal run for the nomination, except that there is inserted praise for the conduct of the governor's trial for violation of the corrupt practices act. Several resolutions indorsing the administration of Governor Kohler were offered, but were swept aside by votes of four and five to one.

LOCAL POLICE TO TEST BRAKES

Local drivers are urged to report to the police in front of the Lawrence chapel on E. College avenue as soon as the streets have dried off after the rain to have their brakes tested. The tests will be made with the aid of the Friedli Automatic Recorder, a device which is attached to the running board and automatically records the distance in which the car is brought to a stop at different speeds. Cars having two wheel brakes should be stopped within 9.2 feet at a speed of 10 miles per hour, 37 feet at 20 miles, 83.3 feet at 30 miles and 140 feet at 40 miles. Cars equipped with four wheel brakes should be stopped within 6.7 feet at 10 miles per hour, 24.7 feet at 20 miles, 5.5 at 30 miles and 98.7 at 40 miles per hour.

There will be no charge made for testing the brakes and if they are found to be in proper condition stickers attesting that fact will be pasted on the windshield. If the brakes are inadequate, the drivers will be instructed to have them repaired immediately to comply with the requirements of the law. The Firestone station at the corner of W. College avneue and Richmond street and the Milhaupt Spring & Auto company on N. Appleton street are the only local firms equipped with the necessary automatic equipment for testing brakes and recording the tests so that the driver can be certain the brakes are in proper condition. It is especially important that cars equipped with four wheel brakes should be tested at one of these two stations because a slight variation in the braking pressure on different wheels may be a serious matter in autumn and winter driving.

DEMAND REMOVAL OF NEENAH DAM

The controversy between power interest of the lower Fox and the riparian owners of the upper stretches of the river entered a new stage at the meeting of the Association for the Relief of High Water held last Saturday at Oshkosh. The power interests had petitioned the government for permission to raise the level of Lake Winnebago from 15 inches above the crest of the Menasha dam to 21½ inches which request is being fought by the riparian owners. At the meeting held in Oshkosh it was decided to take legal action to bring about the removal of the Neenah dam unless the power owners agree to maintain the present level. A number of new claims against the government for damage from high water were filed to be added to the claims amounting to over $4,000,000 already on file.

American women spend close to 750 millions a year for the services of beauty shops and materials for beautification, according to Prof. Nystrom of Columbia. It is also stated that the 30 per cent of the feminine population who patronizes beauty shops has not decreased its expenditures in financial depression.

While the Gutenberg Bible valued at $300,000 has been placed safely in the library in Congress, one page of the valuable book is in Wisconsin. The single page is in the possession of Albert H. Griffiths, a farmer living in the town of Fisk, Winnebago county, and its value is placed at $2,000.

A Northland Romance

by ROBERT W. SERVICE

INSTALLMENT XIV

"Oh, just this: in the nasty mud and slime of Dawson I saw a lily girl. She lives in a cabin by the Slide along with a Jewish couple. I only caught a glimpse of her twice. They are un-speakable, but she is fair and sweet and pure. I would stake my life on her goodness. She looks like a young Madonna—"

He was interrupted by a shout of cynical laughter and shut up abashed, but I had my clew. I waited until the last noisy roisterer had gone.

"In the cabin by the Slide?" I asked. He started, looked at me searchingly: "You know her?"

"She means a good deal to me."

"Oh, I understand. Yes, that long, queer cabin highest up the hill."

"Thanks, old chap."

Very softly I approached the cabin, for a fear of encountering her guardians was in my heart. Carefully I reconnoitered, and soon, to my infinite joy, I saw the Jewish couple come forth and make their way toward. The girl was alone.

How madly beat my heart! It was a gloomy kind of night, and the cabin looked woefully bleak and solitary. No light came through the windows, no sound through the moss-chinked walls. I drew near.

I knocked at the door. No answer.

"Berna," I cried in a faltering whisper.

Came the reply: "Who is there?"

"Love, love, dear; love is waiting."

Then, at my words, the door was opened, and the girl was before me. She stood gazing at me, and a little fluttering hand went up to her heart as if to still its beating.

"Oh, my dear, I knew you were coming. Something told me you would come at last. And I've waited—how I've waited! I've dreamed, but it's not a dream now, is it, dear; it's you?"

"Yes, it's me. I've tried so hard to find you. Oh, my dear, my dear!"

I seized the sweet, soft hand and covered it with kisses. I loved her so, I loved her so!

"High and low I've sought you, beloved. Thank God, I've found you, dear! Thank God! Thank God!"

"Oh, it's you, really, really you at last," she cried again, and there was a tremor, the surface ripple of a sob in that clear voice. She fetched a deep sigh: "And I thought I'd lost you forever. Wait a moment. I'll come out."

Endlessly long the moment seemed, yet wondrously irradiate. Then, at last, she came. She had thrown a shawl around her shoulders, and coaxed her hair into charming waves and ripples.

"Come, let us go up the trail a little distance. They won't be back for nearly an hour."

When we had seated ourselves on the hillside, she turned to me.

"And so you found me, dear. I knew you would, somehow. In my heart I knew you would not fail me. So I waited and waited. It was cruel we left so suddenly, not even time to say good-by, but I could not help myself. They dragged me away. They began to be afraid of you, and he bade them leave at once."

"I see, I see." I looked into the pools of her eyes; I sheathed her white hands in my brown ones, thrilling greatly at the contact of them.

"Tell me about it, child. Has he bothered you?"

"Oh, not so much. He thinks he has me safe enough, trapped, awaiting his pleasure. But he's taken up with some woman of the town just now. By-and-by he'll turn his attention to me."

"But, Berna, surely nothing in this world would ever make you yield? Oh, it's horrible!"

She leaned to me tenderly. She put my arms around her neck; she looked at me till I saw my face mirrored in her eyes.

"Believe me and trust me. I would rather throw myself from the bluff here than let him put a hand on me. And so long as I have your love, dear, I'm safe enough. Don't fear. Oh, it's been terrible not seeing you! I've craved for you ceaselessly. I've never been out since we came here. They wouldn't let me. They kept in themselves. He bade them. But now, for some reason, he has relaxed. They're going to open a restaurant downtown, and I'm to wait on table."

"No, you're not!" I cried. "Berna, I can't bear to think of you in that garbage-heap of corruption down there. You must marry me—now."

"Now," she echoed, her eyes wide with surprise.

"Yes, right away, dear. There's nothing to prevent us. Berna, I love you, I want you, I need you. I can't bear it, dearest; have pity on me; marry me now. I want you now. I can't wait."

She looked at me gravely. Her voice was very soft, very tender.

"I think it better we should wait, dear. This is a blind, sudden desire on your part. I musn't take advantage of it. You pity me, fear for me, and you have known so few other girls. I'm not worth it, indeed I'm not. I'm only a poor ignorant girl. If there were others near, you would never think of me."

"Berna," I said, "if you were among a thousand, and they were the most adorable in all the world, I would pass over them all and turn with joy and gratitude to you."

"Ah, no," she said sadly, "you were wise once. I saw it afterwards. Better wait one year."

She went on very quietly, full of gentle patience.

"You know, I've been thinking a great deal since then. In the long, long days and longer nights, when I waited here in misery, hoping always you would come to me, I had time to reflect, to weigh your words. This is June. Next June, if you have not made up your mind you were foolish, blind, hasty, I will give myself to you with all the love in the world."

"Perhaps you will change."

She smiled a peculiar little smile. "Never, never fear that. I will be waiting for you, longing for you, loving you more and more every day. Let us wait, boy, just a year."

I saw the pathetic wisdom of her words.

"I know you fear something will happen to me. No! I think I will be quite safe. I can withstand him. And if it should come to the worst I can call on you. You musn't go too far away. I will die rather than let him lay a hand on me. Till next June, dear, not a day longer. We will both be the better for the wait."

I bowed my head. "Very well," I said huskily; "and what will I do in the meantime?"

"Do! Do what you would have done otherwise. Work! It will be better for you to go away. It will make it easier for me. Here we will both torture each other. I, too, will work and live quietly, and long for you. You will come and see me sometimes?"

"Yes," I answered. My voice choked with emotion.

"Now we must go home," she said; "I'm afraid they will be back."

She rose, and I followed her down the narrow trail.

We reached the cabin, and on the threshold she paused. The others had not yet returned. She held out both hands to me, and her eyes were glittering with tears.

"Be brave, my dearest; it's all for my sake—if you love me."

"I love you, my darling; anything for your sake. I'll go tomorrow."

"We're betrothed now, aren't we, dearest?"

"We're betrothed, my love."

She swayed to me and seemed to fit into my arms as a sword fits into its sheath. My lips lay on her, and I kissed her with a passionate joy.

"I love you, I love you," she murmured; "next June, my darling, next June."

High School Notes

By Wilhelmine Meyer

The first Student Council dance of the year will be held on Saturday, Oct. 4, from 7:30 to 11:00. Because of the limited facilities only students will be admitted.

Lawrence college observers have begun their work this week under the direction of Dr. R. B. Thiel. The students must do this in order to qualify as teachers. They have been using Appleton high school classes for study for a number of years.

* * *

The present enrollment is 980 students. This is the highest in six years, and is very close to the record set in 1924, when four classes were held at the high school.

A. H. S. ATHLETICS

By Norman Clapp

Last Saturday the Appleton high school football team fell before Coach Humbird's Marinette eleven by the score of 12-0.

The first half ended in a scoreless tie. The Orange flashed some good football in that period. The defense looked great, and at times the offense looked pretty good.

Several men showed up well in the game, in view of the fact that it was the first of the season. Mortell played a good all around game. His punting was under perfect control, and his running had lots of drive. Holterman, captain, was calling the signals, and played a great defensive game.

It was in the second half that Marinette scored both its touchdowns. Tomorrow West Green Bay furnishes the opposition.

The West Green Bay cross country team will also be here tomorrow to run against the Orange harriers.

It will be the first competition of the season for the local cross country squad. Appleton hopes are pinned on Captain Babino and Gene DeYoung.

The meet may disclose some promising material from among the sophomores and juniors.

VIKINGS READY FOR WISCONSIN U

By Russell Davis

Undaunted by their 27-0 defeat in Milwaukee last Saturday the Lawrence Vikings returned home to begin a week of intensive drill before their appearance at Camp Randall this week-end.

A resume of the game with Marquette last week showed that this year Lawrence will be represented by a team that, when hitting on all eleven, will make it interesting for Big Four opponents. The power plays used against the huge Marquette line were smothered, but with a few more practices the coaches feel confident that the Vike backs will be able to pile up considerable yardage from the same formations. The aerial game was used but little by the locals, but one toss from Fischl to Trankle was good for seventeen yards.

The biggest item of cheer from a Lawrence standpoint was the fact that the squad was not afraid to mix it up with the boys from the Cream City brain factory. Last year it was apparent that the Blue team was a bit timid about brushing elbows with the wearers of the Gold but the fans this past week noted that the battle was give and take from the first to the last whistle. The excitement was so intense that in the third quarter Mr. John Sisk, known to Milwaukee fandom as the Big Train, was smacked lustily to the soil by Mr. Bickel of the local team. Sisk was knocked as cold as a Kelvinator and was assisted from the fray.

This week the boys journey to Madison to take part in a double-header with the University of Wisconsin squad. Carleton college will be on the other half of the "bargain bill." No serious injuries mar the prospects of the aggregation and the full strength will be pitted against the Cardinal.

After this game the team has an open date before starting their Big Four schedule.

INSTRUCTION IN AVIATION AT VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

University instruction in aviation, offering a course in air navigation and meteorology, will be conducted in Appleton by the University Extension division beginning Tuesday, October 14. It is announced the class will meet every Tuesday evening for 16 weeks at the Vocational school.

Local arrangements for the class have been made by Herb Heilig, director of the Vocational school, and Marshall C. Graff, field representative of the Extension division.

The class will be conducted by Clinton D. Case, assistant professor of mechanical engineering, University Extension division, a pilot of extensive flight and ground training experience, including duty with naval aviation forces. It is open to licensed pilots desiring seriously to learn more about the problems of flight.

Only five cases of tularemia, none of which proved fatal, were reported to the state board of health in 1929, according to Dr. H. M. Guilford, director of the bureau of communicable diseases. The disease is found in the blood of rabbits, and the state board advises hunters to wear rubber gloves while engaged in cleaning this form of game.

The cutting of logs into lumber is still an important activity in the state although it is doubtful if more than a fourth of the present sawmills are assured of a log supply beyond the next decade, according to F. G. Wilson in a bulletin issued by the Wisconsin college of agriculture. To supply its mills Wisconsin still has available about eight billion feet of saw timber, Mr. Wilson says. Very few organizations have available standing timber in the state to assure operations as long as 20 years.
