Badger Star Ties For First at 12 Feet 7 3/4 Inches

(Special to Daily Cardinal)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Merrick, Wisconsin, and Gardner, Yale, tied for first place in the pole vault at the twenty-seventh annual Pennsylvania relay carnival here today. The bar was at 12 feet 7 3/4 inches. Wilder, Wisconsin, tied with Harwood, Harvard, and Jenne, Washington State, for second place at 12 feet. All the events were run off under adverse weather conditions.

The summaries of the other events follow:

Javelin throw—Won by Brouder, Penn.; second, Brede, Illinois; third, Hamilton, Missouri. Distance 183 feet 1-4 inch.

High jump—Won by Osborne, Illinois; second, Chamberlain, Virginia; third, Alberts, Illinois; fourth, Murphy, Notre Dame. Height 6 feet 2 3-8 inches.

Two mile college championship—Won by Yale; second, Iowa State; third, Penn.; fourth, Georgetown. Time 7:53 4-5.

100-yard dash—Won by Farwell, Brooklyn college; second, Paulie, Grinnell; third, LeConey, Lafayette. Time :10 2-5.

120-yard high hurdles—Won by Thompson, Dartmouth; second, Wright, Nebraska; third, Barron, Penn.; fourth, Coughland, University of South. Time :15 3-5.

Four mile college championship—Won by Syracuse; second, Penn.; third, Cornell; fourth, Notre Dame. Time 8:22 3-5.

Broad jump—Won by Gourdin, Harvard; second, Cowles, Yale; third, Uebelaeker, Princeton. Distance 23 feet 10 inches.

Discus throw—Won by Weiss, Illinois; second, Sandefur, Kansas; third, Ashton, Westminster. Distance 138 feet 8 inches.

Four mile college championship—Won by Illinois; second, Cornell; third, Princeton; fourth, Penn State. Time 18:9.

"NOT RESPONSIBLE" TO BE SHOWN SOON

Varsity Movie is Almost Ready For First Showing

"Not Responsible," the title of the first movie ever produced by a college or university, is practically ready for its first showing at the Fuller theater. Only the final details need to be completed before the exact date can be announced.

The Edwin Booth club is responsible for the movie. This year the club has concentrated on the cinema production and omitted the regular features of its dramatic season. The Open meeting and the Ballet Booth specialty dance as well as the regular programs at meetings have been sacrificed.

The original story was written by Elwin Hartlett '22 and was adapted for the screen by Willet Kempton '23. The subtitles were written by Horace Gregory '23, and Robert Holcombe '22. The continuity, which is the arrangement of each scene and title in logical sequence, was rewritten four times before the present arrangement was decided upon.

Growth of Fund to be Shown by Novel Cemetery

An imitation cemetery in front of South hall with head boards representing the lives that may be saved in the Chinese famine fund campaign will be measured during the coming week. As each $3 representing the saving of one Chinese life, is paid in at the booth near by, a head board will be removed and an American flag put in its place.

Chinese Life-Saving stamps will also be sold at the booths for 3 cents apiece, each one that is sold meaning that one person has been supported for one day.

"Stick the stamps on every bit of mail you send out," said Prof. E. A. Ross, manager of the campaign among the students. "They will be a token of your own interest, and will also serve to awaken interest in the drive in others."

"In cafeterias and fraternity and sorority houses we are asking a

SOPHS HOLD DANCE AT ESTHER BEACH

The annual sophomore dance will be held on Saturday, May 7, at Esther Beach. A number of special features has been arranged, and the committee promises something novel in the way of decorations.

Attendance is not restricted to sophomores, and all students are invited to attend. Tickets will be $1.50 and will be placed on sale early in the week at the University pharmacy, Morgan's, the Badger pharmacy, and the Park hotel.

RHODES SCHOLARS ARE OFFERED RARE OPPORTUNITIES TO TRAVEL

Editor's Note.—At certain times throughout the school years elections are made of deserving persons to numerous honors. One of the highest to be attained is that to represent a state as well as an alma mater in the capacity of Rhodes scholar at Oxford, England. To stimulate interest in this year's election, the following article was prepared by two members of the faculty who were Rhodes scholars and who are consequently on the present election committee.—By Alexander G. Fife and James H. Wilson.

Before the year 1921 is over, another Wisconsin man is to be elected to represent this state for three years at Oxford, England, where he may continue in his chosen field, whatever it may be, with almost incomparable opportunities of travel and rare associations. Instead of being required to undergo bothersome examinations in Latin, Greek, and mathematics as was necessary at the time when the writers were elected, under the present system the respective scholars from each state are requested to accept; that is, the most likely candidates in each university or college of a state are selected by the faculty of that institution—the University of Wisconsin may have five candidates—then all candidates appear finally before the electing committee, which is composed of former Rhodes scholars, and the man who gives greatest promise of contributing most to Oxford and consequently getting the most out of his three years abroad is tendered the scholarship without the necessity of further action on his part.

It is to be hoped this year that we shall hear of a large number agitating the matter and presenting their case so that when the time

FLAME AND GREY IS COLOR SCHEME FOR MAY SUPPER

Barnard Hall Court to be Transformed Into a Spring Garden

Vivid flame color and pearl grey decorations will transform Barnard hall court into a spring-time garden next Wednesday, May 4, when Mortar Board will give its annual May day supper for the benefit of its scholarship fund. Bowls of spring flowers will decorate the tables while the lights will be festooned with the flame color material.

The same color scheme will be carried out in the decoration of the two Barnard hall dining rooms which will also be used for the occasion. Frances Ellen Tucker '21, in charge of the decorations, will make use of the flame color and grey color scheme in order that the May day supper will be true to its name.

Tickets will be sent to the various organized houses to be sold for 60 cents.

JONES AND FREYTAG TAKE BOARD JOBS

Everett Jones and Arthur Freytag are the newly elected sophomore members of the Cardinal Board of Control as the result of the spring elections held on Friday.

The scores showed such close results that a recount was necessary. Complete returns of the vote are as follows:

Arthur Freytag 493, Everett Jones 445, Madeline Johnson 442, Thomas Dartnell 442, Katherine Perry 389, Blanche Field 317.

(Special to Daily Cardinal)

CHICAGO—Wisconsin hammered three Chicago pitchers all over the lot yesterday for enough runs to defeat the Maroons 7 to 1, the same score as in the game against Northwestern Friday.

Paddock, pitching for the Badgers, was in great form. Although the Maroons had men on bases many times, he was especially effective in the pinches. Besides striking out nine men and issuing only two passes, he scored the last run of the game with a two-base drive over center field.

Five of the Badger hits were for extra bases. In the fifth inning J. Williams connected with the ball for a home run into deep center field, scoring Farrington ahead of him. Farrington again had a great day at bat. He hit safely once for three bases. R. Williams, Paddock, and Elliott were all credited with two-base knocks.

The Badgers' first two runs came in the fourth as a result of Chicago errors. Three more were added in the fifth when R. Williams doubled, Farrington singled, and J. Williams hit his home run. One more run crossed the plate in the eighth and another in the ninth. The win over Chicago gives the Badgers three victories and one loss.

Score by innings:
Wisconsin... 0 0 0 2 3 0 0 1 1—7 9 4
Chicago... 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—1 5 4

Batteries—Paddock and Davey; Crisler, Dixon, Palmer, and Yardley.

Home runs—J. Williams.

Three-base hits—Farrington, Palmer.

Two-base hits—R. Williams, Elliott, Paddock.

Struck out—By Paddock 9, Crisler, 3.

Base on balls—Off Paddock 2, Crisler 1, Dixon 1, Palmer 1.

SENIOR OCTOPUS TO APPEAR ON MAY 25

The Senior number of the Octopus will be published on Wednesday, May 25. This is to be the last edition this year and will be unusually full of "quips and quanks and want-on wiles." "We want to kid the seniors along a bit before they leave us," said the editor.

A request has been made that all copy for this last Octopus be handed to the editor or put in the copy boxes on or before May 6.

BY sad experience we have learned that it is very easy to spend more money than one should; we have also learned a few ways to save some of this money. The following suggestions have been tried and found to be very helpful:

Don'ts for Thrifty Men

DON'T go walking in the afternoon—she might want you to take her to dinner, and walking helps the appetite too much.
DON'T send flowers; send candy, and you may get a chance to eat half of it.
DON'T suggest ice cream; she might have forgotten it had you kept still.
DON'T take her to the depot if she goes home for the week end—railroad tickets are horribly expensive.

SOME poets write free verse, others blank verse; here is a combination of both, with all the faults of each:

ODE TO ROSEMARY

I found her name
Among many others, in the directory,
And the music in her name alone—
Rosemary Gwendolyn Loving-well—
Charmed me, thrilled my romantic heart,
And made me long for something,
I knew not what,—But now I know,—
I called her up, and already loved her when
She said she would be glad to meet me,
My romantic heart palpitated when she said
"Tomorrow night."

II
This is "Tomorrow night"—
My heart palpitates no more,
For I've met Rosemary Gwendolyn.
Her hair is red—a deadly shade of red—
Her stockings had a run in them, a hole in the heel
And her shoes were run over, needed a shine—
She talks loudly, like a soap-box orator—
But, worst of all, she chews gum,
And chews resoundingly, continuously.
Her name should have been Tessie,
And she should say, "Number, pleez."
I'm through with girls
With romantic names—like Rosemary.

AFTER having given our valued advice to the men, we offer these suggestions to the other sex:

All you have to do to make a man think you are smart is to make him think he is smart.

It's a poor man who can't be worked both ways.

A few men are good for goodness' sake, but most of them are good only because they have money. Learn to discriminate.

THE following are having spring practice:

1. The football team.
2. Ku Klux.

Washington State is considering the adoption of temporary captains for each game in varsity sports rather than one man elected for the season. Difficulty over the election of basketball captain is said to have led to the consideration of the new plan.

BORE

The auger said: "This constant round
And grind of work sure make me sore;
I am not lazy, but I've found
This life to be a constant bore."

Funny Facts

MORE words are uttered and less is said in barber shops and pool halls than in any other places we know.

The fellow who hollers because his girl takes so long to get ready is sore when she doesn't look as good as the other girls.

It isn't the way you look at other women that makes your woman mad; it is the way you don't look at her.

AFTER all, we believe that women will never get to the stage where all they will have to hide is their feelings.

BY this time the reader must be saying, as the negro did when being hanged, "The suspense is killing me. When does this all end?"

YES, we have an 8 o'clock, too.

VAIL SENDS CREWS OVER LONG COURSE

Held Four Practices During Week-end in Spite of Bad Weather

Rowing practice of the varsity crews and freshman crew for the past week was finished by Coach Vail yesterday in sending the three crews over an eight mile course. Despite inclement weather, four practices were held during the week.

"The conditions of the varsity crews is developing satisfactorily," Coach Vail declared yesterday, "and all men have maintained good form throughout the work-outs." Prehn '23, who has been stroking, will very likely hold down his position for the remainder of the year.

One boat has been assigned exclusively to the first varsity crew. The present lineup of the crew is as follows: Toepfer 1, Puestow 2, Captain Samp 3, Okerstrom 4, Platten 5, Klussendorf 6, Pauerbach 7, Prehn 8 and strokes, and Haanley, coxswain.

FRANKLIN TO GIVE THREE TALKS ON AMMONIA SYSTEM

Prof. E. C. Franklin of Stanford university will give a series of three lectures on "The Ammonia System of Acids, Bases, and Salts," in the auditorium of the Chemistry building.

The lectures are all open to the public and will be given on Monday, May 2, at 8 p. m. and on Tuesday, May 3, at 4:30 and at 8 p. m.

SPANISH CLUB TO GIVE PLAY MAY 3

A lame girl, a bashful man, and an irate uncle are the chief instigators of the plot of the Spanish club play, which will be presented on Tuesday, May 3, in Lathrop hall.

The play, which is the first open entertainment to be given independently by the Spanish club, has been coached and directed by students without the aid of faculty members. The three vital characters will be played by Minnette Montgomery '21, Herman Hoffmann '23, and Calvert Dedrick '24.

An added attraction of the evening will be given by a group of Philipinos led by Carlos X. Burgos, who will entertain with music. Gertrude Espinosa '22 will dance.

The connection between athletics and life was the subject of a talk given by Dr. C. M. Kahlenberg, director of the New York Y. M. C. A. industrial athletic organization, Thursday night at a get-together dinner of about 100 Burgess Battery members. C. F. Burgess acted as toastmaster.

TRAVEL CHANCES ARE OFFERED TO RHODES SCHOLARS

the natural sciences, including physics, chemistry, biology, botany and forestry. Degrees are also given in engineering, medicine and music—the work in many cases being given under the best minds of the British Empire. The opportunity of studying in the leading continental universities is also afforded in the long summer months.

Recently the authorities of Oxford, as a special concession to the Rhodes scholars who might be capable of doing research work along original lines, decided to grant the degree of Ph.D. to proper candidates for the first time in the history of the university; formerly another B. A. or A. B. Litt. were the only titles we could bring home.

The social and athletic advantages of Oxford deserve important mention after the above summary consideration of its intellectual opportunities. There are 22 separate colleges at Oxford ranging in size from 40 to 250 men, all of them together forming the University of Oxford, though each in itself is a separate and distinct unit; each undergraduate is a member of the university by virtue of his being a member of a college, but he never comes into contact with the functioning of the university save in the cases of matriculation, graduation, disciplinary measures, or in the use of university property such as libraries—the second in England and one of the finest in the world, the Bodleian, being at Oxford—and museums.

Each college has its own athletic grounds, and there are teams of every description so that everybody is doing something, either rugby or soccer football, tennis, hockey, cricket or rowing; one of the beauties of classic Oxford is that it is about half playground. If Matthew Arnold had been American, or German, he would have added this explanation in a foot note to his sentence about "our young barbarians." It is very trite to remark that the Englishman's love of sport is quite different from our own, but surely nothing could be more refreshing than the way in which everybody goes out for some healthy sport each afternoon. These friendships, so easily made on the field of fun, are further strengthened by the social teas and breakfasts, which are characteristic of the life of the active undergraduate. Indeed, Oxford is a place to study men almost as much as to study books; the vacations are really the time for hardest work. Oxford is the best place in the world to meet, not only representative Englishmen, who in another 25 or 30 years will be leading public thought in their tight little island, but also men from every part of our own country; many a provincialism and sectional misunderstanding can be cleared away during those years of comradeship; then too there are the men from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Tasmania, Jamaica, the Bermudas and Canada.

But one should not think of accepting a Rhodes scholarship unless one has the bump of travel developed to some extent, at least, for staying all the time, year in and year out in England, would cause much of the charm of Oxford to disappear. True the Rhodes allowance is limited, but, in company with some genial friend, and by using one's wit a bit, it is possible to see far more of Europe in a brief space of time than the average American tourist does in a whole year. Ah! what golden years they were! A Christmas at Rome or Naples, an Easter in Spain to see Holy Week at Seville—the pearl of Andalusia—and then the long vacation in France or climbing among the Alps.

There has been much small talk in this country about the inevitable anglicizing of the Rhodes scholar during the years in which he is transplanted, and his loss of punch when he returns to America. Certainly he will have acquired a great and genuine love for England and for what she has stood throughout history, but home is always welcome when the time comes to leave, especially as he has acquired valuable experience and a better understanding of relative values to bring back with him. As for the loss of punch for which he has been frequently reproached, may it rather be the result of the subduing process which must inevitably result from daily contact with one of Europe's oldest civilizations and a mild disgust with the charlatanism and noisy advertising, which in this country usually accompanies what we so proudly point to as punch.

Even though England may be "behind the times" because there are no steam radiators at Oxford and because some of the colleges have not yet installed electric lights, there is something very appealing in the value set upon character and thoroughness, the lack of sham and shoddiness, the entire absence of confusion in the manner in which she has been battling for the centuries to gather the best of her traditions into the new self that expands slowly, year by year. It is into this atmosphere that the young American comes with his habits of hustle and bustle, his worship of appearance, and his thorough going belief in machine efficiency—and in himself. But the first lesson he learns, and perhaps the richest residue he will bring back, is the unforgettable respect for thoroughness, the distinction between really knowing a thing and half knowing it. It is a sobering process which may make the returned Rhodes scholar seem less American to those superficial, but critical, friends, who are confidently expecting more "grand stand" play on his part; but we trust that a little band of recruits is thus being formed in our country whose influence will be lent whole heartedly to help those educators who believe that intellectual honesty and thoroughness must become the keynote of our educational system, however democratic it may be.

Further information about the scholarship, or conditions at Oxford, will be gladly furnished by the authors, at their office, 308 Bascom hall, or by any other members of the electing committee.

THE ELECTION

THE election Friday was a rousing, old-time political fight carried on in a good-natured albeit spirit of fashion.

The Engineers, the Ags and the Medics turned out in full force to put their favorite candidates over.

It has been many days since anything has occurred in these parts that has interested such numbers. At every turn the boosters of this or that candidate were on hand to vouchsafe good service on the topic of the day: how to vote.

An interesting turn on the election was the fact that few enterprising co-eds busied themselves on the hill advocating their views on the amendments upon which the male electorate voted. Wisconsin women seemed to manifest some concern on the issues of student government.

Since the votes have been counted, the victorious candidates have been showered with felicitations and the vanquished have resigned themselves to their fate. It was a great election; a clean fight, and it did us good to have it.

The amendments to the constitution of the Senate have been passed by small majorities—which indicates that a great many students are not so sure that the personnel of the senate should be augmented by new representatives. It is held that the amendments were not given sufficient time for student consideration—and that is a valid criticism.

PART OF THE FIRST PLANK

HAVING proved itself in test a few days ago, the warning siren at the pumping station was put into actual use last night. The facilities at the university life-saving station are showing a change for the better, and Captain Isabel is getting some of the co-operation he deserves.

When the lake roughened up about nine o'clock last evening the siren notified canoeists that the safest thing to do was to come ashore, and the Cardinal set out at once to round up the stragglers. The whistle means business, and the Cardinal represents the law of the lake.

A portion of point one on the platform above is hereby stricken out.

ON THE REFERENDUMS

Editor Daily Cardinal:

The election is over, the candidates are elected and all that, but there is dissatisfaction manifested on the way the amendments to the constitution of the Student Senate were railroaded through.

Those who opposed both of the amendments hold that the student body was not given the opportunity to consider the amendments. On the second amendment—which provided for a place on the Senate to the president of the Council of 40—it is argued that the constitution of the council does not permit the president to commit that body to any definite action. The Council of 40 is a sort of soviet, organized ostensibly for the purpose of crystallizing student sentiment. It is composed of the heads of various student organizations, captains of teams, and also of a number of our w. k. "fine minds." The council, according to its own constitution is merely advisory, not executive, in nature. The decisions of the council cannot be made by any officer of that body, hence he cannot represent the outfit on the Senate or anything else.

In view of the intense interest shown at the election on the amendments (in which even the co-eds busied themselves), the closeness of the vote, and the declaration in some quarters that the amendments were shanghai'd through unfairly, it is only fair that the student body be given a chance to hear both sides of the question.

Why not call a mass meeting of male students at Music hall as early as possible so that these amendments may be thoroughly threshed out to the satisfaction of all?

Those who have any ideas on this matter should be given a chance to heard. At such a mass meeting Dean S. H. Goodnight should be asked to be chairman. The president of the Senate should be called upon to expound on the amendments, the president of the Council of 40 should let us know how he is going to represent his group, and those who believe he should not be in the senate should be called upon to tell why.

The leaders of the opposition on the first amendment, Messrs. Murphy and Maier, should be heard. Arnold Perstein, Melbourne, and Rodney Welch should tell why the first amendment should have passed and the second defeated.

In all seriousness, on such fundamental changes in the form of our governmental machinery in which our First Internationale is to get a seat among the mighty, it is only fair that the rank and file of the student body be given a chance to hear the "ins" and "outs" of this whole election deal which was pulled off in such a rough-shod way that it has aroused suspicion.

Let's get together, talk it over, reason it through, and then decide on a plan of action.

A. J. FEHRENBACH.

Music Memory Contest

Suggestions for Contestants.

No. 16. The Receptive Listener. Just as people in almost every walk of life can be divided into two classes according to the main traits in their character, so we can divide listeners into those who take in and those who give out. We all know the distinction between the students who expect everything to be done for them and those who accept responsibility and do things for themselves. The one says to his instructors: "Pour in knowledge. I am waiting." The other says, "I am going out to get knowledge and power for myself irrespective of what you do for me."

All persons who are following the Music Memory contest should know that listeners are divided into two classes; those who are receptive merely; and those who in addition to being receptive are also creative. The first kind is discussed today; tomorrow the second will be considered.

It is no small task to be the right kind of a receptive listener. It means the giving up of one's self entirely to the music, the saying to the composer and performer "Now I am ready for your message. You shall have my undivided attention until you have finished. During this time I shall not be thinking of today's worries or of tomorrow's possible troubles. I shall not be looking around the room to see who is here nor what new hats or clothes are in evidence. If my eyes are not under control and persist in wandering and distracting my attention, I will dare to brave the suspicions, jeers, and nudges of those around me and will close my eyes so that your message may come to me unimpeded. Moreover, I am willing to show you the same courtesy that I would to anyone who might be speaking to me. In other words, having by my presence indicated that you are to have a hearing, I will give you respectful attention unto the end. Even though I do not like everything that you say I will still maintain silence. I realize that there is much in music that I cannot get at the first hearing. I am willing to believe that when competent critics have told me that your music is classed among the great compositions of the world I should listen patiently and appreciatively with a view of finding the reason for their judgment. If I find that you have no message of beauty and inspiration for me, we will part company without bitterness."

The point of view indicated in this imaginary speech is not idle fancy. The audience at a concert are more than so many figureheads. There is an important place in the scheme of human relations for some one besides the producer, the inventor. The consumer is also necessary. It takes at least two people to carry on a conversation: one must talk and the other must listen. Frequently what is said is largely dependent upon the attitude of the listener. Johnson needed his Boswell; the composer needs the receptive listener.

little self-denial—that students substitute for their Sunday dinner something simple like bread and milk, and that they cut out desserts during the week.

"They would be willing to do this if they actually saw a starving person and knew that they could save a life. But if they do not want to deny themselves this, they can at least give the equivalent money.

"Bottles will be placed in prominent places to receive the money which has been saved. Every night it will be counted and the report will be published in the Cardinal of the number of lives saved during the day.

"The drought which caused the famine is an unprecedented calamity in China. Those that need to be fed are not excess population. If we in Wisconsin had lost three successive crops, we would be starving too.

"Never was there such a low quotation for human life. If we tide the Chinese over until the late June harvest, we will have saved their lives, and set them on their feet again. One can know absolutely that $3 will save one person."

That the Americans have an influence in China such as no other people has, was explained by Professor Ross. The Chinese divide the non-Chinese into foreigners and Americans. To them we are a class apart.

"In 50 years the Chinese will be more like the Americans than any other people on earth. China will become a second America, in the best," Professor Ross continued. "We are the one country that is actually injecting civilization into China."

At The Theatres

AT THE MAJESTIC

An all-star cast superior to any of the past year, is the outstanding feature of the latest Thomas H. Ince picture, "Beau Revel," which is to be the leading Paramount attraction at the Majestic theater today. Lewis Stone, Florence Vidor, Lloyd Hughes, Kathleen Kirkham, Harlan Tucker, William Conklin, and others stand forth in the cast.

Mr. Stone, a former Broadway stage favorite, has scored tremendous screen successes in "The River's End," "Inside the Lines," and numerous other productions. Florence Vidor has been featured and starred in a number of screen successes notably "The Turn of the Road," and "The Jack-Knife Man." Lloyd Hughes, who was recently elevated to stardom by Thomas H. Ince scored heavily with Hobart Bosworth in "Below the Surface," and was featured in "Homespun Folks."

Kathleen Kirkham, one of shadowland's most capable emotional actresses, has done such brilliant work that she is shortly to be starred in her own productions. William Conklin and Harlan Tucker are almost equally well-known.

"Beau Revel" was directed by John Griffith Wray from the screen adaption of Louis Joseph Vance's novel of the same name. Henry Sharp was the photographer.

A Mermaid Comedy "Duck Inn," a News Weekly and musical numbers complete the program. The "Call of Youth" another Paramount picture is the last three days starting Thursday, and Norma Talmadge in "Ghosts of the Past" next Sunday.

COMING TO THE ORPHEUM

Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday—Will Stanton & Co., Johnson, Baker & Johnson, Lucien Lucca, Mathews & Blakeney, Story Q Clark, Jas. & Etta Mitchell, Pathe News weekly.

AT THE ORPHEUM TODAY

There's a little of most everything in the vaudeville line in the program which is on view at the Orpheum for today. The headline feature is furnished by Irving Goslar and Rhea Lusby, an artistic singing and dancing offering in which Miss Lusby offers a routine of pretty dancing numbers accompanied by Mr. Goslar at the piano. Bright fresh comedy is presented by Bevan and Flint, while the Four of Us, a male quartet, sing as if they enjoyed their work, and at the same time prove all members have good singing voices. In The Bottomley troupe is seen one of the most daring flying act seen in vaudeville, and Orren and Drew entertain with a Barnyard Episode. The sixth act on the program presents Jack Roshier and his dog Muffs, one of the best trained animals seen here this season. Kinogram pictures complete the bill.

COMING WEEK AT GRAND

Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday—Roy Stewart in "The Westerners." Wednesday and Thursday—Mildred Harris in "Old Dad." Friday and Saturday—George Walsh in "The Plunger."

"The Westerners"

The glamour of movie life exists mostly on the screen. It is best enjoyed in an orchestra chair, after standing a half hour in line. The actual making of the picture is work—word, hard and grinding as bench or counter. Rare moments, however, occur when the tinselled joy grows real, when the blood tingles to the urge of music, and the feet cannot hold still. For the dance music, in good pictures, is real.

Such a moment came to "The Westerners" company, which enacted for the screen Stewart Edward White's famous novel at the brunton studios—a big dance hall scene of early days, when a waltz meant the good, old fashioned waltz of yore, without frills or furbelows. Nowadays, not every good dancer can perform this properly.

When the strains of "Sobre Las Olas" floated toward the calcium, and Director Solomon called "Stand by!" a fresh gleam lit up the eyes of the tired camp beauties. Those who had reached the careful age, where one studies the art of pulling certain hairs which no longer match, and becomes interested in wrinkle eradicators, could waltz to perfection. But some of the—er—younger members of "our set" slipped perilously close to such anachronisms as the tango, the hesitation, or something else!

"On with the dance!" And you'll see it when at the Grand theater, beginning today.

CITY ACTS TO CUT LAKE TOLL

Ordinance Body to Submit Drastic Ordinance to Council

A recommendation that all canoes be off Madison lakes by 9 o'clock at night and that warning alarm system be installed on Lake Mendota in the near future will be made by the special committee on navigation to the common council at its next meeting. The matter was taken up at a meeting of the committee Friday night at which Dean S. H. Goodnight, H. J. Thorkelson, university business manager, and Capt. Thomas Isabel of the university life-saving station, were present.

A rigid ordinance demanding the fitting of power boats with life preservers and fire extinguishers, requiring an engineer over 18 years old, defining the capacity of the boat and prohibiting smoking on such craft while afloat will also be presented to the council by the committee, Chairman Thomas Quinn announced on Saturday. City Atty. Ryan is preparing the ordinance. The city is determined to eliminate the annual death toll of the lakes.

AT THE STRAND

"Her First Elopement"

Wanda Hawley in her latest Real-art picture "Her First Elopement," will be the attraction at the Strand theater Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday. Christina Elliott, young beautiful and wealthy, has many suitors, but is less interested in her own heart affairs than in those of her kid cousin, Gerald, who has fallen desperately in love with a very notorious lady of uncertain years but very definite reputation.

The family threatens to cut poor Gerald off without a cent unless he gives up the notorious Lotta.

Meanwhile another family is also vastly concerned over the love affairs of its youngest son, who has also fallen into the clutches of the busy Lotta. Adrian Maitland, a very eligible bachelor, determines to end the affair of his younger brother, Ted. He goes to the summer cottage of Lotta's. Lotta happens to be away when Christina arrives, so the latter sits down to write her a note. Maitland too arrives, and mistakes Christina for Lotta.

To further complicate matters, it happens that Lotta and a party of her friends, including the enamored Gerald, returned to the island by ferry just as Christina puts off with Maitland on his yacht.

Christina goes to Lotta's island with a full knowledge of her real character and mercenary motives. Lotta dramatically tells the crowd about the yacht trip, but is foiled beautifully when Maitland calmly announces that he and Christina were married shortly after he discovered Christina's real identity, the evening of the cruise.

Larry Semon in "The Sportmon," another of his funny comedies, will be the added feature.

STRAND CALENDAR

Sunday, Monday, Tuesday — Wanda Hawley in "Her First Elopement," also Larry Semon in "The Sportsman."

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday — Maurice Tourneur's "Deep Waters," Buster Keaton in "The Haunted House."

60 ENJOY DANCE GIVEN YESTERDAY BY GREEN BUTTON

Interesting selections by freshman girls and music by Thompson's orchestra furnished enjoyment for the dancers at the Green Button matinee dance, which was held Saturday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock in Lathrop concert room. About 60 girls were present.

The program which was given between dances consisted of a song, "Hopi Indian Cradle," by Hilda Schultz, with accompaniment by Lois Jacobs, and interpretative dance by Josephine Jung, and a recitation, "Who's Afraid," by Arlean Klug. Encores of each number were demanded by the audience and received enthusiastically.

The chaperones were the Mmes. H. L. Ekern, H. O'Malley, C. D. Cheverell, and Freshman Dean of Women Mendenhall. Helen Keeney was chairman of the entertainment committee.

SKETCHES FEATURE NOVEL CARNIVAL

A group of unusual selections made up the Cosmopolitan carnival, attended last night by a large audience in Music hall. Sketches were given of seven countries of the nine which are represented in the International club, which has a membership of 100.

A Chinese playlet, staged in Shanghai, began the program. A South African lion hunt was next, with scenes representing the Transvaal. The Scandinavian program consisted of folk dancing and native songs, and a Philippine string quintet gave a group of selections.

A Hindu song, a Mohammedan prayer, a Japanese ju-jitsu, and a sketch called "Hawaiian Feasting" completed a carnival of vividly cosmopolitan atmosphere.
