Dedication

To DR. F. M. CORRY, who, as president of the Menasha School Board, has, by his earnest and untiring efforts and loyal support of all activities, made our four years in high school a success, we, the class of '29, respectfully dedicate THE NICOLET.

Foreword

THIS issue of THE NICOLET is an attempt to record those events of our school life which will help us to remember our school and to keep alive the love of our school friends. If this book shall in any way aid us in increasing our love and pride in our school, we feel that our highest aim has been accomplished.

Our Theme

THE THEME of our book this year is the sun, to which our school, with its surroundings and activities is compared. Our school like the sun, which is essential to growth and development, has become absolutely necessary in the community. Without it, we would be like a flower in a shady garden, one on which the sun never shines; we would not be able to progress, either socially or economically. It is the school which aids in developing the children into healthy citizens of the community—children who are true citizens—and who, because of their knowledge of civic affairs, will be able to assume the responsibility of their parents.

Community

*Happy the man whose wish and care
A few paternal acres bound
Content to breathe his native air
In his own ground.*

Pope

*Thy ever-youthful waters keep
A course of lively pleasure;
And gladsome notes my lips can breathe,
Accordant to the measure.*

—WORDSWORTH

Main Street

How often has this, the main street of Menasha, served as the pathway to innumerable pleasures while we talked and laughed with our friends, as we traversed it on the way to school, to the library, and to the various business houses. The Menasha High School Band will recall with pleasure their many concerts given for the entertainment of the public on the city triangle.

In recent years, there have been many improvements on this well-remembered street. Buildings have been erected, remodeled, and repaired, until we can now be proud of our old familiar main street.

The Memorial Building

THE MEMORIAL BUILDING, which was formally dedicated to the public on July 4, 1928, is used as a community hall. This beautiful and modern building, situated on the Fox River, serves as a place of education as well as entertainment for the general public.

The high school students have enjoyed a number of parties and dances here during the school year. Business meetings, public lectures, public dances, and private dances are held in the hall on the second floor. The citizens of Menasha can feel proud of having a community building of this type at their disposal.

*I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.
A tree that looks at God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray.*

—JOYCE KILMER

Administration

Then let us sow the seeds of knowledge.

Menasha High School

MENASHA HIGH SCHOOL was established in 1875. During the intervening fifty-four years, up to the present year of 1929, many improvements have been made in the building and also in the courses of study. Now, the students of the junior and senior high schools and also the students of the vocational school have ample class room facilities in which they are able to do their work successfully.

School Board

President DR. F. M. CORRY

Vice-President C. E. PIERCE

Secretary R. G. DuCHARME

H. E. LANDGRAF

H. JANKOWSKI

E. POWERS

The members of the School Board have cooperated with splendid enthusiasm whenever it was necessary for the school to obtain equipment for work in the various courses. The students of Menasha High School owe much of the success in their studies as well as in their extra-curricular activities to the members, and they take this opportunity to express their appreciation.

ASSEMBLY

SCIENCE-LAB

These Sophomore girls are busily engaged preparing themselves for the upholding of the old axiom, "A stitch in time saves nine."

The writing of essays and short stories is emphasized in the Junior English course. These students are very interested in their work on the Red Cross essay.

High School Courses

IN THIS day of education, the various courses offered at high school are of primary importance. Menasha High School aims to provide its students with a variegated course of those subjects which are essential and interesting and needed as an introductory course for college.

This year social problems and economics, under the direction of Mr. Fink, were added as half-year courses.

Miss Marshall taught a course in filing which was introduced into the commercial department. The necessary equipment, consisting of a miniature file and a textbook for each student, was secured.

A class known as sub-freshman English was added to furnish special help for those students needing additional instruction. Miss Bonnell has charge of the class.

SUPERINTENDENT J. E. KITOWSKI

THIS is the third year that Mr. Kitowski has been superintendent of the public schools of Menasha. Owing to his unfailing interest and support in all the activities of the schools, he has succeeded in establishing an enviable position in the respect of the faculty and pupils. Mr. Kitowski has been willing to adopt all the modern and necessary suggestions for our school system. As a result the standard has been raised, and our school has advanced to the equal of all schools of its size.

The students of Menasha High School, therefore, wish to express their sincere thanks to him for all his efforts toward their happiness and success.

Faculty

THREE members of our last year's faculty are teaching in different schools this year.

Miss Agnes Gleason, former head of the home economics department, is now teaching in Milwaukee.

Miss Irene Schmidt, who was the musical director here last year, is teaching in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Mr. Beauford Todd, who taught ancient and medieval history, modern history, and biology last year, is teaching in Longfellow Junior High School at Flint, Michigan. He is in charge of the vocational guidance and is the faculty business manager of the school paper.

The teachers who are in charge of the work this year are Mr. Demarais, Miss Treutel, and Miss Murray.

Mr. David Demarais was graduated from St. Mary's College at Winona, Minnesota, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree in history. He teaches ancient and medieval history and biology.

Miss Madeline Treutel, musical instructor, is a graduate of Marquette. She taught in Shawano before coming to Menasha.

Miss Bernice Murray, who was graduated from Rosary College, River Forest, Illinois, taught Domestic Science in the Milwaukee schools before she came to Menasha. She is head of the home economics department.

Miss Ann Burke, Latin and science teacher, was injured in an automobile accident while returning to her home for the Christmas vacation. Miss Friesch, who attended Rosary College, acted as substitute during Miss Burke's absence.

Miss Clara O'Connor, the mathematics teacher, is at the head of the Thrift Department. Her ability as an excellent dramatic instructor was shown by the successful production of the Senior Class Play.

The English department, with Miss Gladys Larsen at its head, is directed in such a way as to prove very interesting as well as educational to the pupils. The work on the year-book was supervised by Miss Larsen.

Mr. R. J. Fink, our principal, is teacher of history and civics. In addition to his regular classes, he coached the debate squad.

The physics and chemistry classes were made more instructive by various visits to paper mills, filtering plants, and gas plants. These visits were made possible by the efforts of their teacher, Miss Elda Anderson.

Miss Verna Marshall and Miss Alice Anderson are in charge of the commercial department. Those pupils who complete this course are well fitted to go out into the business world.

Our librarian, Miss Alice Bonnell, manages the library with competence, making it possible for the students to secure the latest and best books.

Mr. Crockett, Mr. DuCharme, and Mr. Lindquist teach in the manual training department, in which many useful and beautiful articles are made.

Mr. Calder teaches the freshman gym classes besides his regular coaching of the football and basketball teams.

In addition to Mr. Kraft's teaching several of the manual training classes, he puts untiring effort in instructing the pupils in orchestra and band music.

Miss Aline Ziebell has put on a number of excellent plays which proved her talent in that direction. She has regular classes in English and speech.

In Memory of Gloria Johnson

We all remember our friend and classmate, Gloria Johnson, who met with an untimely death during our freshman year. Gloria was killed by an automobile while she and number of her friends were hiking on the Appleton road. She was a girl whom everyone enjoyed knowing, and the Senior Class sincerely regrets not having her among its graduating class this year.

The Senior Class

SENIORS! How many freshman have gazed in awe at those dignified Seniors! Seniors! The very word breathes dignity, the attainment of success.

The freshmen, who entered Menasha High School in 1925, very green, very new, and feeling very unnecessary, are seniors—seniors, who are, of course, most dignified, successful, and sophisticated. In 1925, they acted very like freshmen and forged ahead under the guidance of their advisers. They elected Helen Christoffersen for the office of president; Lyle Timmerman, vice president; and Richard Jensen as secretary. Jerome Cordy, Lyle Timmerman, Lawrence Kuester and Edward Godhardt furnished their interest in athletics. Leola Loomans and Genevieve Liebl very ably represented the class in the Declamatory Contest, which was held on March 24. Thus, you see, the freshman of '25 enjoyed a successful school year. Very freshman-like, too, they had a picnic at the end of the year. Every one enjoyed it.

Sophomores! Another pace toward the goal! This year they enjoyed themselves immensely giggling at the much-to-be-pitied freshmen, for hadn't they gained the right to laugh?

Richard Jensen was elected president; Lyle Timmerman, vice president; and Leone Landig, secretary-treasurer. Walter Klinke and Lloyd Adams won honors for the class in football; Edward Godhardt, in basketball. Elsie Brezinski and Genevieve Liebl participated in the Declamatory Contest, while Richard Jensen went out for extemporaneous speaking. At the State Commercial Contest, May 14, Marie Wilfling and Helen Christoffersen received first and second places, respectively, in the State Junior Bookkeeping Championship.

Juniors! Only one more rung on the ladder to success. Jerome Grode received a place on the debate squad. Genevieve Liebl and Elsie Brezinski again participated in the Declamatory Contest. Then there was a prom, with Richard Kelly and Leone Landig acting the roles of King and Queen very successfully.

Now, they are seniors. Owen Sensenbrenner was elected class president; Hillard Jakowski, vice president; Harvey Meyer, secretary; and Richard Kelly, treasurer. Lloyd Adams, Walter Klinke, Joseph Prunuski, and Richard Kelly did splendid work in football. Lyle Timmerman and Lloyd Adams participated in basketball. Leone Landig, Bertha McAndrews, and Owen Sensenbrenner were members of the debate team. Elsie Brezinski and Leone Landig took part in the declamatory contest. Leone Landig sang in the All-State Chorus, and Owen Sensenbrenner played in the All-State Orchestra. Having finished their senior year in such a glorious manner, they wish the seniors-to-be all the success and happiness in the world.

The Junior Class

ON SEPTEMBER 8, 1926, we entered the high school as freshmen. And, being freshmen, naturally we were frightened, dumb, scorned, and everything else that goes toward making the life of a freshman miserable for the first week. But after a few months we began to be noticed by the other classes. This was greatly due to the following officers who were chosen our first year: Edmund Webster, president; Philip Vanderhyden, vice president; Ethel Liebl, secretary; and Lucile Pierce, treasurer. Edmund Webster, Clarence Vetter, and Dale Clough upheld the honor of our class in football and basketball. John Anderson was the modern "silver-tongued" orator and also debater.

As sophomores, we came back to school highly confident of ourselves and willing to assume the rôle of upper classmen. We chose Dorothy Tuchscherer for president; Ruth Rimmel for vice president; and Raymond Prange for secretary-treasurer. We also gave several parties and a play which caused the rest of the school to realize that we were an "up and doing" class.

Here we are, studious, peppy, and endeavoring to become worthy of the name of seniors. Our junior officers were John Anderson, president; Philip Vanderhyden, vice president; and Ethel Liebl, secretary-treasurer. Our four letter men, Edmund Webster, Dale Clough, Philip Vanderhyden, and Clarence Vetter, did excellent work in athletics. We were well represented in dramatics by Lucile Pierce, who won third place in the Declamatory Contest. John Anderson and Lucile Pierce took part in the play given by the Cue Club.

A Trip

OH, DEAR, I am tired. Guess I'll sleep awhile. Miss Ziebell won't know if I slump in my seat. Who is that I see coming toward me? Why it's Dorothy Tuschcherer. You want me to come on a trip abroad with you? Oh, I'd love to. We'll start right away."

"All aboard," cried a plump looking captain as we ascended the plank.

"Why, if that isn't Dale Clough! Doesn't he look darling in a uniform?"

On the way to our stateroom we met the porter, who looked very familiar. As we passed him, the old mischievous look came into his eyes and reminded us of Albert Apitz. When we got into our stateroom, we rang the bell for the maid. To our surprise, Deloris Ford entered and helped unpack our grips.

During the dinner Dorothy noticed two people sitting at a small table.

"Who are those people? Doesn't he look like Bernard Pokalski? And who is that 'flame' with him? Why, it's Helen Oberweiser. We must have a chat with them." The rest of our journey across was made very pleasant by our old friends of Menasha High.

After we landed, we hailed a taxi and were greeted by James Beck, who proved to be an excellent driver. He took us to our hotel, and, as we stopped, I noticed a brisk looking fellow rush up to open the cab door and help us out. He carried our grips in and was so quick on his feet that I knew he was Clarence Vetter. He said that he was in training for basketball and hoped to go back and show Menasha how to beat Neenah.

We called a taxi, later, and went on a sightseeing trip. We visited a zoo at which Arthur Hahnen was the caretaker. He showed us all of the animals and the animal trainer, who proved to be Clarence Kemmeter. After we chatted with them for a while, we went on. We met Clara Landig and Lillian Cartwright who were spending their vacations abroad, shopping and what-not.

When we got back to the hotel, we rang for the bellboy, and who should enter but Karl Kloepfel! He told us that Ray Prange, George Korth and he had "bummed" their way across shoveling coal, scrubbing decks, etc. We got to talking quite confidentially with Karl, and he told us that many of our old school friends were in Europe. He said that Albin Schoultz, Roy Malchow, Walter Prah, and Ed Lingnowski were acting as attendants to the King of England. Roy Malchow, he said, was a jester and proved to be a marvelous one.

We traveled through Switzerland and stopped at a hotel to see the ice carnival. We were quite astonished to see Edmund Webster give exhibition skating. We overheard a lady say that Eddie was quite the "go" there, especially with the girls.

In Holland, Dor accidentally bumped into Phil Vanderhyden. He took us to his home, and as we entered, we were greeted by Dorothy B.

While visiting Paris, we went to see one of the famous Paris Revues, and Peter Rohe ushered us to our seats. We enjoyed the performance immensely because John Anderson was leading man. Verna Merkley, Bernice Corry, and Marcella Rohe played in a snappy orchestra, which furnished the music for the show. We saw on the program that Grace Baldauf had designed the gowns for the revue.

"Hey, Lutz, wake up. You'll be late for Latin."

Juniors

*We have been juniors together
As comrades we work and we play,
Attending, regardless of weather,
To our duties and studies each day.*

*For three years we've labored together
The scale as juniors we ran.
No problems, though great and prodigious
Stopped us when once we began.*

*We've struggled for worthwhile attainment
With courage undaunted and true,
We'll try to be loyal seniors
And prove our ability too.*

The Sophomore Class

AS FRESHMEN this class was:

Green? Yes.

Dumb? Yes.

Awed by the seniors? Plenty!

Ridiculed by everyone in general? Lots!

We enjoyed the usual trials and tribulations of an average freshman class. The freshman officers were president, Allan Adams; vice president, John Walter; and secretary-treasurer, Alice Strong. Muriel Pocquette, Robert Lanzer, and Andrew Egan represented the class in football. Ann Michalkevitz took part in the Gold Medal Declamatory contest, and Allan Adams represented the class in debate.

This year the members of the class rated themselves as upperclassmen. The officers are Edward McGillan, president; Robert Lanzer, vice president; and Esther Hercher, secretary-treasurer. The sophomores were well represented in football with Andrew Egan, Robert Lanzer, and Muriel Pocquette on the team, and the basketball squad was supported by Robert Lanzer, and George Becker.

Marion Kudy won the gold medal, and Margaret Borenz won second place in the Gold Medal Declamatory Contest. Allan Adams was a member of the debate squad. Marion Kudy, Margaret Borenz, John Walter, and Richard Rendall were in the play given by the Cue Club. As a whole, the entire sophomore year was very successful, and we hope to be able to continue our good work next year.

The Circus

DEAREST ANN:

Really, my dear, the most exciting thing happened to us the other day. You have no conception! We went to the celebrated and world renowned "Kitowski Circus." Actually, my dear, it was scrumptious, and whom do you suppose we saw—? You'll never guess.

We reached the circus grounds, and the first person we saw was our old friend and history teacher, Mr. Demarais. He has the job of barker at the Big Top. We gathered that those noisy history classes got the best of him. He had a nervous breakdown; and after he recovered, Mr. Kitowski offered him this job, and there he was convincing hordes of people with his usual vim and vigor. He convinced us, naturally, and we moved on to buy a ticket.

Imagine our surprise when we saw the ticket-seller, Miss Murray. There was such a crowd that she barely had time to ask us whether we remembered the qualifications for president, when we were pushed unmercifully forward into the tent.

The ticket-taker looked familiar (by this time we were willing to expect anything.) In about two minutes we recognized him as Mr. Fink. Actually, dear-heart, by this time we were so excited we could only gasp and stare. Mr. Fink informed us that nearly our whole class was performing in the circus. We chatted with him for a while and then went into the tent expecting to see even Cupid, the mascot, if need be.

The first prize package was Muriel Pocquette as ringmaster! Can you bear it? He looked gorgeous in a riding habit. His black hair was slicked back, and he wore a small sophisticated moustache and looked as "sheiky" as possible. He called Mardelle, his wife, from the sidelines, and we talked over the good times we had had in High. Well, we sat in the bleachers and watched the show proceed. This is what we saw: Catherine Bednarowski and Grace Kloeppel entered as "trapezists." They were wonderful, and believe us, we sat on the edge of the seat during their thrilling act. Next Geraldine Klutz rode in on a beautiful white horse as Madame Violetta, the bareback rider. Actually, my dear, we were enthralled. We fairly gasped when John Walter came in as the Strong Man and held the audience with a marvelous act. He performed in the center ring. This is quite an honor they tell us. It was really more than we expected of him. Next we noticed a peanut vender near us. We nearly collapsed when we realized it was "Red" Gajewski. Didn't he play football divinely? At any rate he seemed to enjoy selling peanuts.

We noticed a troupe of clowns capering around, led, of course, by Ed McGillan and we grew faint from laughter at his antics, as we always did. Another clown we recognized was Louis Demeny. He was dressed as a woman and was calling among the audience for Charles! It was very surprising, for he used to be so quiet. Last, but not least, was the lion act. Louis Dennis was really wonderful as tamer in his gold braided uniform. He always was such a lion with the women. Richard Rendall was really marvelous as the magician—just as slick as ever! And Ruth Gaffney gave a wonderful Hawaiian dance. Virginia O'Keefe was the Fat Lady—? Alma Rawley was advertised as the Champion Pie Eater. The way that girl guzzled pies was nobody's business! The Silent Woman was Marie DeNell. She didn't move or speak! Imagine! Remember we used to call her "Perpetual Motion" at school. Marcella Kosloske and Hazel Lopas and Dorothy Gemmel were the midgets. They gave a wonderful song and dance act. The strong women were Esther Hercher and Catherine LaValle. We bet that they ate oodles of onions to get in that condition. Marion and Frances Egan were the Siamese Twins and are still as adorable as they always were. In the Wild West Show we discovered Louise Walsh, Ambrose Lingnowski, and George Becker. Louise, in her natural environment, was in the bloom of health. We were glad because she was such a frail girl in school. George and Ambrose were the handsomest cowboys. Katherine Lux, Allan Adams, and Oliver Schommer were performing in the "Motorcycledrome." Allan was satisfied at last, making as much noise and disturbance as possible. The cool nerve of Katherine and Oliver was astounding. As we were leaving the grounds, we came upon James Grode and Andy Egan hammering a stake into the ground. They were arguing on the subject, evolution. We discovered Bob Lanzer carrying water to the elephants. Rumor has it that he and one of the midgets are madly in love with each other.

Forever yours,

DOLLY AND MARION

P.S.—On leaving the grounds, we ran into Alice Strong who is married to George Thorne. He made oodles of money sculpturing soap statuettes of her.

Freshman Class

HERE we are, the class of '32, nearly ninety in number. And what a class! Of course, it was necessary for us to "grin and bear" many insinuations and tricks of the upperclassmen, but we have come through with our colors flying. Needless to say, we have enjoyed it all in spite of all the difficulties of becoming accustomed to the ways of our new companions and teachers. The following officers were wisely chosen by the class: James Sensenbrenner, president; Alice Lanzer, vice president, and Milton Walter, secretary-treasurer. As freshmen, we did our best toward making the football and basketball seasons successful. Clement Massey, Lester Beattie, and Andrew Stachowicz played on the team, and with their experience they will be able to make much progress next year. Our class was represented in debate by Allan Michie, Frank Robinson, and Milton Walter. Dorothy Carrier, Donald Brown, and Jeanne Pratt entered the Gold Medal Declamatory Contest. We gave a dance after the Menasha-East De Pere Basketball Game. As the music was good and the students ready for a dance, the evening was a success. All of these events and many others served to make this first year of ours an enjoyable one, and we are anxiously looking forward to the time when we shall be sophomores.

The Garden of Freshmen

DONNIE BROWN was doing algebra problems at home. It was 10:30 and she was tired. Besides, she had been to gym after school. Her thoughts drifted to the Freshman Class. She wondered why "freshies" were always designated as green and why they were always making mistakes, such as getting into the wrong classrooms and making out mixed-up programs. "O well," she thought as she yawned, "it certainly is a great life if you don't weaken!" and she promptly went to sleep.

Funny, wasn't it? There was Alice Lanzer dressed in an old fashioned frock with a white, fluffy, hoopskirt, and she had a tiny green sprinkling can in her hand. Sure enough, she was going to sprinkle a garden. This was going to be fun. Imagine Alice playing "Mary, Mary, quite contrary"—just wait until she told "Jackie" Hahnen about this. Alice was giving a patch of johnnie-jump-ups a drink, and if that tall one didn't resemble Jimmie Sensenbrenner, she'd actually recite in civics tomorrow. There were Clement Massey and Bob Hafemeister, too. They certainly did make handsome johnnie-jump-ups.

"Listen!" Elmer Grade who was right along side of Jimmie was talking. "Say, Alice, give a fellow a chance. Transplant me into that rose garden over there with June Humphrey an' Dorothy Carrier an' Florence Ste. Marie."

"Sure," Frank Rempel was piping up from a bed of Bachelor Buttons, "I'd like to move over into that bunch of Marigolds."

Yes, indeed, there were Grace Allen, Ella Fahrenkrug and Catharine Corry.

Next, Alice was talking to two sunflowers. They were Joe Liebl and Lester Beattie.

Soon, three candy-tuft boys were calling to her to hurry up. They were Milton Walter, Allan Michie and Frank Robinson, and they were debating on the question, "Are all freshmen extraordinarily intelligent, or is Menasha High School the only school which is honored by such a group of 'Bright Beginners.'"

Next Jeanne Pratt and Herbert Meyer claimed the limelight in the form of forget-me-nots. As if anyone could!

Last, but not least, Alice honored a group of daisies with her presence. Among them were John Trilling, Lewis Adams, Edward Christensen and Robert Parrish. They were singing "Sweet Adeline."

Suddenly, Donnie realized that she was present in this garden, too. She was a violet and was arguing with Joe Liebl, the sunflower. He seemed to be winning, and in doing so pushed Donnie off a cliff.

She awoke on the floor and immediately jumped up to finish her home-work.

Our Freshmen

*They're young and they're merry,
In school spirit they're strong,
They're gleeful and carefree,
With cheer and with song.
They're our freshmen.*

*They don't mind the weather,
To the highest they aim,
They're always together,
They're kind and they're game.

RICHARD KELLY—Dick, who is a senior this year, played quarterback on the team. The squad will miss him next season.

GEORGE BECKER—George, who has two more years to play, made the first squad and played center during the last football season.

CLEMENT MASSEY—Clem, after a little coaching, developed into a good halfback. He has three more years in which to show his ability as a football man.

MURIEL POCQUETTE—This was "Poke's" second year of football, and he has developed into an important backfield man. His hard line plunging stamped him as a fighting player.

JOE PRUNUSKI—In spite of the fact that Joe had hard luck the latter part of the year, he earned his letter. This is Joe's third and last year on the team.

PHILIP VANDERHYDEN—Diker played on the first squad as left guard. He was one of the mainstays in the line for opening holes for the backfield.

CAPTAIN-ELECT EDWARD WEBSTER—Ed upheld his position as end with such enthusiasm that he was known as one of the hardest and most aggressive players. Next year will be his fourth year of football, and he will share the captainship with Clough.

Football

TWENTY-FIVE candidates reported to Coach Calder's call for practice, but with only five lettermen and a light squad, the season's prospects were uncertain. To overcome this difficulty, intensive drills after school and in the moonlight were given with the hopes of producing a winning team.

The first game of the season was played against the Alumni, who boasted of such stars as the Klutz brothers, Harold Pierce, and Urban Rummel. They out-fought the high school men to a score of 24 to 14.

The West DePere game was the first one of the conference. Repeated penalties, slow plays, and inability to stop passes of the enemy caused us to lose this game. In the first half, Pocquette made several long runs, but without success. DePere was held for downs but fumbled, and Menasha recovered the ball. Klink made our only touchdown. DePere scored a touchdown when Pocquette kicked out of bounds. They also kicked the goal for the extra point. In the second half, our boys made repeated first downs and outplayed DePere. Penalties prevented Menasha from making a touchdown. DePere again made a touchdown on a clever play and also made another in the last quarter. The game ended with the score of 20-6.

The New London game, which was played here, was an exciting and interesting one in which we were victorious. Our team proved to be too fast for New London's, and we marched away from them with a score of 19-6 in favor of Menasha.

The third game of the season was played with Oconto. Menasha still thinks

Our Cheer Leaders

that our team would have won that game if the boys had had a regular field to play on instead of a swimming pool. Oconto won the game by a score of 24-19.

The next game was played with Two Rivers where Menasha was again defeated after leading up to the first half of the game with a score of 13-0. A fumble and injuries to Poke and Red caused Menasha's defeat. In the last part of the game, Menasha failed to hold the Two Rivers' team who made three touchdowns and goal to win the game by a score of 19-13.

The East DePere game started with a rush, and during the first quarter the game was played near mid-field. Both teams resorted to the passing game in the second quarter but were unable to score. Menasha was held to a scoreless tie throughout the game.

Our last game was with our ancient rival, Neenah. After the first few minutes of play, it was easily seen who was to be the victor. Menasha scored three touchdowns in the first quarter. Poke made two, and Klinke, who ran fifty-five yards through the center of the line, made the other. In the second quarter, Klinke again made a touchdown, and Massey made one in the third. All but one attempt at goal failed. Klinke scored the final touchdown in the last quarter. The game ended 38-6 in favor of Menasha.

A feature of the game was the appearance of an airplane between the first and second quarter. It circled over the field several times, dropping blue and white confetti. This was possible because of the willingness of the students who contributed their share toward a fund for this purpose.

DECEMBER 21, Clintonville. The poor condition of the players, due to injuries, caused us to lose this game by a score of 20 to 17. In the final quarter Clintonville added two field goals and one free throw and won the game.

January 11, West DePere. A pair of free throws in the last quarter after we had been leading throughout the game gave West DePere the victory. We were leading at the end of the second quarter with the score 6 to 8. DePere, during the last few minutes, made two free throws and won the game, making the final score 16-14.

January 18, Neenah. Menasha, playing with the Neenah giants, went down to defeat, but played a hard game. The game ended with the score 34 to 8 in Neenah's favor.

January 25, Oconto. Menasha surprised many by taking Oconto down from first place in the conference, by beating them 24 to 18. It was a fast and rough game. Oconto fought hard to tie the score at the end of the half, 8 to 8. In the third quarter with a "whirl wind attack" Menasha came to a lead, which Oconto could not overcome.

February 1, Two Rivers. At the close of the first half Menasha was leading 10 to 8. In the third period, Two Rivers outscored us 9 to 2. At the close of the game the score was 10 to 13 in Two Rivers' favor.

Basketball

February 8, East DePere. We outplayed DePere and won by the score of 23 to 10. In the first half the score was 12 to 3 in Menasha's favor. In the second half our team came back with the same fast attack as shown in the preceding quarter and completely outplayed DePere.

February 15, Oconto. In a rough game, our team lost to Oconto 20-10. At the end of the first half, the score was 5-15 in favor of Oconto.

February 22, Neenah. Menasha's fighting team was again up against Neenah's undefeated team. Neenah appeared with her second team of men, but in the second quarter, called in her first team. The game ended with Neenah leading 31 to 11.

March 1, New London. The New London game was a very exciting and an interesting one. Menasha won by a score of 20 to 14. Vetter and Webster were high scorers, making 9 and 7 points, respectively.

March 14, 15, 16, District Tournament. The district High School Basketball tournament, which was under the supervision of Mr. J. E. Kitowski, was held at the S. A. Cook Armory, Menasha. Awards were presented after the games were ended. First place honors went to Neenah, second place, to Kaukauna, and third place, to Lomira. Lomira also received the sportsmanship banner, and Neenah, a large trophy. Every man entered in the tournament received a medal.

Basketball

CLARENCE VETTER, Forward—Vetter's method of putting the ball through the hoop gave many a visiting coach a queer sensation when he started in with his long shots. He was quick and seemed to be all over the floor at once so that his opponent guard had to be as quick as he was to prevent him from shooting.

EDMUND WEBSTER, Center—Webster as captain was all that a school and team would desire in a leader. He was silent and modest on the floor and went about his way in a snappy manner that caused many to sit up and watch him. He also played guard. Edmund has one more year to play on the high school team.

ROBERT LANZER, Guard—Bob was a hard and fast player. He has two more years to develop into a star basketball player.

CLEMENT MASSEY, Guard—Massey, during his first year in high school, showed his ability as a basketball player by being placed on the first team. His work on the floor was of immense benefit to the Blue and White, and when Massey played, he played the opposing forwards off their feet.

Basketball

LYLE TIMMERMAN, Guard—Lyle was a substitute who displayed ability in his floorwork and at guarding the basket. He was quick and always on the mark ready to go.

LLOYD ADAMS, Guard—Red or “Ray Raw,” as he was called, was a peppy and fast player, liked by the crowds for his clean playing. Not many players passed a ball that Red could not intercept.

MURIEL POCQUETTE, Forward—Poke was one of the “subs” who showed his fighting spirit. Poke is not very tall, but he made up for this in speed and ability. He was always in to win, and when it seemed as though the team were losing, Poke was ready to cheer the players on and to help.

GEORGE BECKER, Forward—Becker has shown great ability as forward by his floorwork. He is a natural basketball player and is popular with the fans because of his good spirit and fight and because of his clever plays.

Girls' and Boys' Gymnasium Classes

"One—two; up—down; three—four; forward—back!"

How familiar these words are to the boys and girls in their gymnasium classes. And how they enjoy going through these invigorating exercises which give them the vim, vigor and vitality which is so necessary for them to possess in order to do their work in school satisfactorily.

Every Monday and Wednesday, the girls attend the class, and Tuesdays and Thursdays the boys have their physical training exercises. The instructor, Mr. Calder, makes his classes interesting by teaching new games which serve as exercises in themselves. Basketball and baseball are the two games most stressed and most enjoyed by the students. The fine points of the games are taught, and this enables the boys and girls to become better acquainted with them.

Girls' Basketball

For the first time the girls had an interclass basketball tournament. It was held in the Buttes des Morts gymnasium March 12 and 13. Miss Burke was coach, and Lorraine Echrich, the referee. The sophomores won first place by defeating the juniors 14 to 11, and the freshmen won third place by defeating the seniors 4 to 0. Members of the senior team are Margaret Ryan, Ethel Landig, Leone Landig, Elsie Brezinski, Mary Corry, Hazel Jury. Lillian Cartwright, Regina Bojarski, Mildred Asmus, Bernice Corry, Lucile Pierce, and Clara Landig represented the junior class. The sophomores who played are Geraldine Klutz, Mardelle Reimer, Ann Michalkevitz, Marcella Kosloske, Donnie Brown, Isabel Brich. Irene Bojarski, Angeline Nadolney, Donnie Brown, Catherine Corry, Virginia Rasmussen, Jeanne Pratt played on the freshman team.

Guardian Angels

Who takes care of dear old high when the caretaker's not taking care?
Ah-ha! I see the spirit of Demarais in the air.
He's guarding Room 208, I see. How queer he's acting now.
Oh yes! He's scolding "Red" DeNell—his face is one big frown.

And there's dear Miss Bonnell, on duty in the library.
And can it be she sees our Dorothy doing geometry?
I hear her say, "Don't you know that this place is for reference work?"
And Dorothy says, "I must do geometries. From them I never shirk."

And in the cruel office, I see dear Brother Fink.
He's writing out excuses—white, blue and pink.
"Please, please, have pity, Brother Fink, upon the poor, poor souls
That enter as the years roll by and plead, "I had a cold."

Near him sweet Sister Fahrback types a letter. Oh yes,
Christy, with his gilded wings, tries to help her. What a pest!
Next Mr. Kitowski enters—he's such a kindly soul—
And says, "Don't count any one absent, if he doesn't answer roll."

The time has come, I fear, dear friends,
For me to lay aside my pen.
Mr. Eckrich, the caretaker, has started taking care,
And he has disturbed the kindly spirits in the friendly air.

A Poem

Flowers and trees and birds and bees,
All are poems in themselves,
Dolls and babies and perfumes and ladies,
Grottos and tiny elves.
But in this tired brain of mine
Thoughts have gone round and met.
Much as I've pondered, no light shines;
I can't write a poem for that NICOLET.

Let Me Be Your Valentine

AS WAS his custom, Muriel Pocquette put on his dressing gown, yawned twice and opened the door which led from his bedroom into the study which adjoined it. For it was the butler's custom to place the morning mail on the large Circassian walnut desk. Muriel sat down, picked up the heavy ivory paper cutter and began to open the envelopes. There were five of them, and all but one contained a return business address in the corner. One personal out of five was a bad average for Muriel, and what was more, the envelope was red. His half-closed eyes carelessly touring the top of the desk, stopped for a moment on the calendar pad. It was marked in heavy crayon: "February 14, St. Valentine's Day—send flowers."

For the past year Muriel had sent flowers to Mardelle Reimer for St. Valentine's Day. He had also sent flowers to Mardelle for Christmas, New Year's Day, Washington's Birthday, as well as practically every Saturday afternoon. Mardelle was one of those girls who took such attentions for granted. But there still was Leone Zielinski. Leone was different. She thrived on Muriel's attentions and was most demonstrative in her gratitude. Muriel liked her demonstrativeness, her enthusiasm, her gusto. But then, Muriel could not get Mardelle off his mind. She was a go from the time he squeezed her delicate hand, a hand made to hold a lip-stick rather than a vacuum cleaner.

Muriel threw the four business letters aside and studied the big red envelope before opening it. He paused pensively; then he lifted it to his nostrils. "Funny," Muriel pondered. Then fishing into the envelope he pulled out a red heart made of thin Japanese paper. He laid it on the desk before him. Curiosity won. Muriel lifted the receiver of the telephone.

"Give me Butterfield 4423XYZ. Yes, that's right. Hello! May I speak to Miss Mardelle, please?"

Holding the receiver in his right hand, he moved the left toward the handle on the window and raised it a few inches. Then a little breeze swept in and right across the face of the desk. Suddenly the high red heart blew open. Muriel gasped in astonishment, for the Japanese paper was so thin, he had no idea the red heart was a double one. Nervously he read the printing on the inside:

Junk Dealers

Will Win YOUR Heart With

EXCELLENT SERVICE

Bang went the receiver!

And Muriel wondered, "Who can it be, "Mardelle or Leone?"

Lincoln, the Ideal

WHY is it that the name of Lincoln is spoken with reverence? What makes his name become more popular each year? Formerly this great man had been held up as a model for youth because of his passion for learning and his tireless industry. But now we also see him as an inspiration to middle age. Why? Again another question might be asked. Why is the popularity of Lincoln's anniversary becoming more noticeable each year, despite the fact that it is during that month in which so many of our famous men were born?

It would be a hopeless task for anyone to attempt a thorough explanation of these questions, but by peering into Lincoln's private life we might come to an affectionate understanding of that gaunt and weary, but devoted backwoodsman who was misunderstood by so many during his life and who died a martyr.

Abraham Lincoln was born in poverty. The word "poverty" itself gives us an opportunity for much thought. To some people it might mean happiness; to others it might mean everything which is bitter and ugly. Lincoln was one to whom the word meant happiness. That is, he was happy during his boyhood days, not because of his poverty, but in spite of it. It is those people who are unhappy because of lack of wealth, who should look up to this great man as a source of comfort and inspiration.

Lincoln was ambitious from the outset, but because of his coarse surroundings he was greatly hindered in his younger days. There are very few boys or girls today who have to gain their education under such difficult circumstances as he did. The total of his schooling amounted to about one year. Again we see in Lincoln an ideal—that of ambition.

However, this ambitious man did not advance rapidly in life. He was confronted with hardships and mishaps at various times during his life. In spite of his ambition and his sincere desire to please everybody, his repeated efforts toward advancement met with failure. But Lincoln was not a "quitter." After each failure, he resumed his efforts with renewed energy. Finally, in 1837, he entered into a partnership with an old friend of his in a law office. From that time on things began to assume a brighter aspect. Lincoln entered into many partnerships, thereby gaining much legal and political knowledge. So we see that no matter how gloomy and hopeless life may seem at times, it depends upon us whether or not we will succeed.

From the year 1838 when he was elected to the Legislature until his untimely death, Lincoln served his country in the political world. It was during this period of his life that we find the true person in Lincoln. During those trying years of our national hero's life we see truly the ideal—the man.

Lincoln was a man of sorrows. During those gloomy years of his administration he bore with him a continual sense of weariness and pain. But he was brave under all the difficulties, and indeed, if we wish to imitate any one person at times when we are sorrowful, we could choose none better than Abraham Lincoln. His feelings for his country and his people during that period of strife were of the deepest sympathy and compassion. His troubles and his numerous hurts were long-treasured and deep. But in spite of his melancholia, Lincoln was able to appear happy and carefree at times when he chose to do so. He had a ready and humorous wit, and he was able to keep his listeners well entertained by his numerous witty stories.

Those who enjoy upholding their point of argument may find a champion in Lincoln. But it must be noted that Lincoln always stood for the plain truth alone. He did not like single speeches, and whenever it was possible he engaged himself in a debate. He loved the art of retort whether it was formal or informal speeches. He was at his height when he was allowed to argue. Whenever it was possible to uphold righteousness, he did so, with true enjoyment of the task. His sense of truth and fairness was very keen, and he was an ardent advocate of everything honorable.

Lincoln understood the American people accurately, and therefore conquered them by power and truth. He was infinitely patient and did much serious and hard thinking for the good of his people. But because there are always some people in this world who cannot see other people esteemed, this noble man's life was brought to an untimely close by a political opponent.

The memory of Abraham Lincoln, the man, will always be cherished, for many people have felt and still continue to feel confident in choosing "Honest Abe" as their ideal.

Lincoln, The Man of the People

Here was a man to hold against the world,
A man to match the mountains and the sea.
The color of the ground was in him, the red earth,
The smell and smack of elemental things;
The rectitude and patience of the cliff;
The good-will of the rain that loves all leaves;
The friendly welcome of the wayside well;
The courage of the bird that dares the sea;
The gladness of the wind that shakes the corn;
The pity of the snow that hides all scars;
The secrecy of streams that make their way
Under the mountain to the rifted rock;
The tolerance and equity of light
That gives as freely to the shrinking flower
As to the great oak flaring to the wind.
To the grave's low hill as to the Matterhorn
That shoulders out the sky. Sprung from the West
He drank the valorous youth of a new world.
The strength of virgin forests braced his mind;
The hush of spacious prairies stilled his soul.
His words were oaks in acorns; and his thoughts
Were roots that firmly gripped the granite truth.

Help Wanted—Male or Female

IF YOU do not read the "Help Wanted" ads in the newspapers, you really ought to do this. For instance, you can thus become completely mixed up as to whether or not you are still young. "Young man wanted," you will read, "about sixteen years of age, in an office." Goodness gracious! It does seem that this is an age of young, very young men. On the other hand, you will read, "Wanted, young man, about thirty-five." Well, this is an age in which people remain young. There are no old folks any more; they are out of fashion.

If you are out of a job, I should strongly advise against your reading of advertisements for help wanted. In the first place, nobody ever got a job through one of these advertisements. If you are out of a position, it is plain to you that you are totally unqualified to obtain one again. For who are you, and what the Dickens do you know, that you are able to make a living in this world? A world where this is wanted: "Highly educated man! Must be fluent correspondent in Arabic, Japanese and Swedish, and an expert accountant. Knowledge of Russian lace-making and counterpoint necessary. Acquaintance with the subject of mining and engineering expected. Experience in the diplomatic service desired. Must play the flute and harp well and be fond of children. Highest credentials demanded. Salary, to begin, seven dollars."

Still, one seeking a position through want "ads" need not despair altogether. There are people wanted in these "Help Wanted Ads" (but not in real life) to do nothing but travel in pleasant and historic places as companions of wealthy, refined persons in delicate health. There are people wanted (in want ads) to share attractive homes in fashionable country places. Duties will be to smoke excellent cigars and take naps in the afternoon.

And there are as romantic things to be found among "Help wanted ads" as there are in the most thrilling romances. Now, in case it may be thought that some of these ads, illustrate the many kinds of ads, are gross exaggerations, I will copy from yesterday's paper an advertisement which makes Robinson Crusoe's adventures seem tame. Here you are: "Wanted—A man to live alone on an island, eight miles from shore; food, shelter, clothing furnished; no work, no compensation." Box G, N. Y. Tribune.

I once knew a man who got several replies to advertisements for help wanted. He bought ten New York papers on Sunday and a dollar's worth of two-cent stamps. At ten o'clock in the evening he went out and stuffed the ballot box. I mean the letter box. He said in his own handwriting that he was an excellent man to be manager of the upper floors of an apartment house, that he was uncommonly experienced in the moving picture business and knew the screen from A to izzard, that he had edited trade journals from the time he could talk, that he had an admirable figure for a clothing model, that he was very successful in interviewing bankers and brokers, that he was fond of children, and that he would like to add a side line of metal polisher to his list, and that he certainly knew more about Bolivia than anybody else in the world, and was prepared to head an expedition there by half past two the following day.

This man really got a job from his want ads. He copied letters at home, "light, genteel work for one of artistic tastes." But he soon found that he could not make any money out of it, because, after he had bought the outfit necessary he discovered that it was humanly impossible to copy the bloomin' letters in the somewhat eccentric fashion required.

That Menace Called Men

BABS was lying full length on the raft that was floating in Echo Lake, about six hundred feet in front of the Brandly estate. The sun was shining brightly, and Babs was out there for the sole purpose of acquiring a coat of tan. But her thoughts were far from being in harmony with the happy picture she presented.

"The only time I enjoy myself at home is when Alyce and Aunt Grace have sojourned to one of their measly pink teas. The house is positively a zoo when Alyce is at home and her devoted swains are draped about. It's terrible to have a sister like Alyce, when she's at the silly age of eighteen, and having millions of love affairs. I'm glad I'm sixteen; it's a much safer age. If Alyce had at least one sensible man, I'd be happy. There's only one boy in the whole world that I like—and that's Christopher Carter. He won the one hundred back-stroke at New York last season, and I think he must look just like Apollo. He must be gorgeous! How I'd love to meet him and have him take me to a dance at—oh say Margie Sannton's."

At that point, her thoughts were interrupted by the arrival of Aunt Grace and Alyce from their so-called pink tea. Barbara saw the car stop at the door and saw its occupants alight and enter the house.

"O dear," she thought as she stood up resignedly, dived into the clear water, and swam leisurely toward shore, "now I'll have to dress for dinner, and how I hate to. If I could have dresses like the ones Alyce has, I wouldn't mind, but Aunt Grace dresses me so childishly. Still, it doesn't matter, because no one sees me except Alyce's silly Beau Brummels, and I wouldn't care if they saw me in rompers."

She was greeted at her bedroom by enthusiastic Alyce who immediately launched on a story that (to say the least) took Barbara Brandly's breath away.

"Just think, Babs, Christopher Carter is coming to spend the week-end here. Aunt Grace knew his mother when she was young, and Kit—that's what they call him—wants to rest before he goes back to school. Mrs. Carter thought of Aunt Grace, and the result is that Kit Carter is coming Friday. Let's see. Tomorrow's Thursday; so we'll go to town tomorrow and get some new dresses. My, it's a pity you aren't older, Barbara, because you really aren't bad looking if you'd only grow up."

"O piffle!" cried Babs. "Boys are the most uninteresting things I can think of. Mr. Christopher Carter must be a terrific bore if he wants a rest before he goes back to school."

"O well," sighed Alyce, "every one to his own taste. By the way, Aunt Grace has employed a new chauffeur, and he arrives tomorrow."

The next afternoon found Barbara on the raft again and Alyce on a shopping tour with Aunt Grace.

Barbara's thoughts were running decidedly on the darker side of life. "Of course, Alyce can get new dresses and slippers and everything, and I have to stay home. I am beginning to think I'd rather be eighteen. Alyce does have all the luck. If Mr. Christopher ever saw me, I'll bet he'd run away and—"

A dark coupe was coming down the drive. Barbara looked at it perplexedly and then realized that the new chauffeur must be arriving in his own car. Babs swam to the shore and climbed up on the dock just as a young man stepped from the coupe.

"Hullo," she said, quite as if she were speaking to a nice friendly puppy.

"You're the new chauffeur, I suppose. Well, if you'll take your luggage, I'll show you to your quarters. They're over the garage. The bedroom is large and sunny, and the last chauffeur we had liked it real well, but he had to go West for his health."

He followed her to the garage and then into his quarters.

She continued, "Aunt Grace always has the privilege of naming our chauffeurs according to her fancy, but she's away, and I think I shall call you—oh, say Carter. Kit Carter, the swimmer, is coming tomorrow to spend the week-end with us. I have a mad case on him, but I know I haven't a speck of a chance because Alyce (that's my sister) is so much older. It wouldn't surprise me a bit if Aunt Grace sent me to the Acker's while he was here. Still, he must be a prize package if he's coming here for a rest. I hate boys that are sissies. Believe me, he won't get much rest here; Aunt Grace is continually trying to make a match for Alyce, and Alyce relishes it. Mr. Carter is quite a prospect. Huh! Coming here for a rest."

"By the way, the uniforms are at the dry cleaners, so wear a dark suit until they come."

She wandered down stairs then and went into the house, where she busied herself with the inevitable task of dressing for dinner.

The evening was spent in admiring Alyce's new dresses. They were so pretty that Babs forgot the new chauffeur completely, and it was not until Aunt Grace, Alyce, and Barbara were eating breakfast on the terrace that she remembered.

"O, Aunt Grace," she said suddenly, "I forgot to tell you the new chauffeur came. I showed him his room, and named him Carter, because I like that name and told him to wear a dark suit until the uniforms come from the cleaner and—"

"But, Babs," said that portly old lady, with some surprise, "I received a message yesterday afternoon telling me that the chauffeur would not arrive until next Monday."

"Then who's the man?"

"Good heavens," Aunt Grace started. "Could it be that—? Barbara, call the man immediately and bring him here!"

Babs did as she was told and found him smoking a pipe in the morning sunlight in front of the garage.

"Something's up!" she said breathlessly. "Aunt Grace wants to see you right away. Put on a coat and hurry." With this, she bounded back to the breakfast table.

When the young man in a dark suit stepped quickly up to the terrace, Aunt Grace gasped, rose, and walked toward him. "Why—why, Kit," she said. "I'm so sorry Barbara has treated you in this manner. Alyce, may I present Christopher Carter? And, Barabara—" She turned, but Babs had fled.

That afternoon found the very embarrassed Miss Barbara isolated on the raft.

"O dear," she mourned, crying a trifle, "did you ever hear of anything so childish? Now I've spoiled everyone's chances, including those of Alyce."

Suddenly, through slightly wet eyes she perceived that someone was swimming about the raft. It was Kit, and he was grinning at her. Wasn't that just like a boy? She supposed that he'd make fun of her as long as she lived. What a future!

"Aw, don't cry, Barbara," he wheedled. "I don't mind at all. It was a good joke. At least I'll stay away from the match-making Alyce, now."

"That's just the trouble," sniffed Babs. "I wish you were in the family."

Believe it or not, she got her wish.

Graduates

Graduates we go forth today,
From Menasha High School on our destined way,
Some to college and some to work,
But each one determined to never shirk.
What is the thought that we carry away,
As we leave our high school today?
That character counts more than everything;
That our tasks may be heavy but our hearts can sing,
That patience and honor and self control,
Are the highest points in the highest goal;
Success without honor a trifling gain,
Pleasure before duty is only vain;
These are the lessons we carry away,
Graduating class, from our school today!

April

See the crocuses and tulips with all their flags unfurled,
And see the tiny sprouts and leaves all peeping at the world.
The air is ever clear and bright,
The sky is a sunny blue.
And all our hearts are gay and light.
Oh April, how we welcome you!

Grove School Spirit Cup

OUR SCHOOL LIFE is made more entertaining and more worthwhile by our participation in outside activities. Contrary to the beliefs of many people, the students who are represented in these extra-curricular activities do not neglect their studies, but many of them are those who receive the highest grades in their regular school work. By partaking in extra-curricular activities, the students not only help their classes and school, but they themselves benefit by it too.

The competition among the classes was made keener this year because there was an incentive for their work. For the first time in the history of Menasha High School a School Spirit cup was presented to the class taking part in the greatest number of activities. This beautiful cup, which stands ten and one-half inches high when not on its shining black pedestal, was given to the school by Grove's Clothing Store.

This year the Junior Class received the highest number of points; it had a total of fifty-seven points. When the small number of students in the Senior Class is considered, we are able to see that they are a close second on the list, with a total of forty-six points. Third on the list is the Freshman Class; it finished with forty-one points. The Sophomore Class, with a total of thirty-five points, is fourth on the list.

Participation in any of the following activities entitles the participant to one point: Honor Roll, Glee Club, Band, Orchestra, Annual Staff, Football, Basketball, Declamatory, Debate, and Dramatics.

There are certain members of each class who have taken part in a greater number of the extra-curricular activities than others. By their enthusiasm they have helped their classes and have gained pleasure in doing so.

The two freshmen receiving the highest number of points are Jeanne Pratt and Milton Walter. Both had four points. Marion Kudy with four points and Margaret Borenz with three points led the Sophomore Class. The juniors were led by Lucile Pierce, who had five points, and John Anderson, who had four points. Both Owen Sensenbrenner and Leone Landig had a total of five points during their senior year.

HERE we are, the peppy high school band! We do our utmost toward keeping up the school spirit during the athletic contests and also for the other events during the school year. By practicing two nights each week we endeavor to keep up to the standard which our director, Mr. L. E. Kraft, has set for us. Our first appearance was made at the music festival in 1927, just after our organization under Mr. Mumm of Appeton. Since then, we have given numerous programs for the high school body and also for the general public. One of our most interesting and educational experiences was that of our participation in the Wisconsin Band Tournament at Waupun, where we were given eleventh place in our class.

The High School Orchestra

JUST another of the very active organizations in Menasha High School! We have spent much of our time in an effort to improve our orchestra. A great deal of our success is due to our leader, Mr. L. E. Kraft, who meets with us every Monday and Thursday during the noon hour. It was necessary for us to work harder than usual this year because many of the experienced members were graduated last June. This caused vacancies in many of the important positions. However, the new members have worked untiringly, and as a result we have been able to present several very successful programs before the public.

This is the second year in which our high school orchestra was represented in the State Orchestra at Milwaukee. James Sensenbrenner who plays the cello, Jack Hahnen who plays the oboe, and Owen Sensenbrenner, violinist, were the ones chosen to represent our school.

The New Poor

THE second production of the Cue Club occurred November 20, 1928, at the Buttes des Morts Gymnasium. The New Poor is an entertaining play for amateurs. This clever farce dealt with some Menasha High School students who posed as Russians for the purpose of working their way through school. The rich Wellbys hire them as servants, and romance and service are delightfully intermingled, resulting in a discovery of identities.

The cast was: Grand Duke, John Anderson; Count Ivan, Raymond Prange; Prince Vlademir, John Walter; Princess Irina, Marion Kudy; Mrs. Wellby, Alma Rawley; Amos, her son, Harvey Meyer; Alice, Constance, and Betty (her daughters), Lucile Pierce, Jeanne Pratt, and Margaret Borenz; Mary Maudsely, an authoress, Alice Strong; Mr. Gutteridge, a guest, Richard Rendall; Kirk O'Farrel, a detective, Peter Rohe.

Here is the talented group of people who succeeded in producing "The New Poor." It was necessary for them to spend many hours on rehearsals, but they were happy in the result of their efforts.

The Cue Club

THE CUE CLUB was reorganized by Miss Ziebell and Miss Burke on Monday, September 10, 1928. The purpose of the club is to encourage dramatics in the high school. Meetings are held every first and third Mondays of the month, and programs are given pertaining to dramatics.

The club is associated with "The Wisconsin Dramatic Guild" at Madison. The members also have pins which bear the symbol of dramatics—a small mask. Before receiving the pins each member made a vow to help carry on the dramatic spirit, to take part in all the plays that are given, and to help with all programs. The officers of the organization are: John Anderson, president; Edward McGillan, vice-president; Leone Landig, secretary-treasurer.

This is just one of the phases of the work done by the members of the Cue Club. This miniature theatre was constructed by the pupils so as to enable them to become more fully acquainted with the art of theatricals.

The Girls' Athletic Association

WE ARE members of one of the most active organizations in the high school—that of the Girls' Athletic Association. A peppier and more athletic group of girls has never been known in school. We earn our required points by hiking, skating, swimming, and other forms of sport, and have an enjoyable time while doing it. Those of us who receive a hundred or a hundred and fifty points are rewarded by numerals or letters. And you can just imagine how much competition there is among us in the effort to get those cherished "M's."

The officers of the association are Ann Michalkevitz, president; Margaret Ryan, vice president; Mary Corry, secretary-treasurer.

It's a merry life after all! Here we are ready to earn several more points toward our "M's" by spending a few hours skating. This is just a small group of the active members of the G.A.A., but each one is ready and willing to uphold the standards of this association.

The Latin Club

BONA NAVIS LATINA" or "The Good Ship, Latin" is the motto of the club. The Latin Club is composed of those students of the Menasha High School who are in the process of becoming classically educated. The purpose of the club is two-fold: first, to arouse greater interest in the things pertaining to Latin, Latin literature, and the life and customs of the ancient Romans; second, for social reasons.

Programs are given at the meetings which are held once a month. The members also have pins, which have an image of an old Roman ship, the motto of the club. The officers are Leone Landig, president; James Sensenbrenner, vice president; John Walter, secretary-treasurer.

These are members of one of the committees appointed to plan the monthly meeting of the "Bona Navis Latina." These meetings usually consist of humorous and educational programs, in keeping with the study of Latin.

A Home Run

THE annual class play was presented by the senior class on June 3. A Home Run was very unique and different. The play was directed by Miss O'Connor, whose efforts went far toward making it a success. The characters who were well chosen, interpreted their parts in a realistic manner. The story of the play was a delightful combination of college pranks, clever humor, lively situations, pleasing love plots and intense dramatic moments. The cast was as follows:

Lee Sterling, a civil engineer, Harvey Meyer; Harold Bessinger, Lee's business partner, Ellis Yaley; Dr. Wesley Forbes, an eye specialist, Edward Dix; James Arthur, a playwright, Owen Sensenbrenner; Hugh Cummings, a young doctor, Lyle Eckrich; Dorothy Henningway, a modern girl, Leone Landig; Ruth Henningway, a bit old-fashioned, Genevieve Liebl; Mrs. Dora Henningway, their mother, Elsie Brezinski; Miss Splivans, a neighborhood chatterbox, Margaret Gummow; Grace Spencer, a friend of the Henningways, Mary Corry.

The members of the cast were busy rehearsing for several weeks before the presentation of the play. This group is taking a last look at their lines before rehearsal.

Nicolet Staff

THE Nicolet Staff of 1929 has endeavored to make their annual a success. The success of our annual is also due to the untiring effort and enthusiasm on the part of our faculty adviser, Miss Larsen.

Members of the staff have worked ambitiously to produce a book which they hope will prove satisfactory to all who read it. Different sections of the staff met at scheduled times so as to enable them to carry on the work systematically and effectively.

The Girls' Chorus

TWENTY-SIX happy "song-birds"! Under the direction of Miss Madeline Treutel we do our best to improve our school life with music in the form of songs of every type. Every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon sees us busily engaged in singing. This practice and work on the part of Miss Treutel, Miss A. Anderson, our accompanist, and ourselves, seems not to have been wasted because we have been requested to sing at several programs. We entertained the high school assembly a number of times; we also sang for the Menasha Economics Club at their McDowell program. Singing makes us happy, and we believe our school life has been greatly improved by our membership in this organization.

This year the Girls' Chorus was also represented at Milwaukee for the second time. The State Chorus consisted of over six hundred high school girls and boys. Lucile Pierce and Leone Landig were sent as eligible members to the Chorus.

The Bank Cashiers

THRIFT is one of the requisites of every student in our high school. We are greatly encouraged in this work by Miss O'Connor, who is in charge of the banking. We students are expected to do our banking every Tuesday morning during the fourth hour. The banking is done by capable cashiers in each class, and there is a great deal of rivalry among the classes in order to get their 100 per cent each week. At the end of the first semester a number of new cashiers were appointed owing to the changes made in the various classes. Those who were appointed during the second semester are Clara Landig, Edmund Webster, Alma Rawley, John Walter, and Marie Wilfling.

Here are two of the cashiers busily engaged in the weekly banking. Little time is wasted by these competent cashiers, who make it their business to do their work accurately.

Forensics

THE GOLD MEDAL CONTEST which is held every year was given January 16. Two girls from each class entered, and the first four places were given to Marion Kudy, Margaret Borenz, Lucile Pierce, and Leone Landig respectively. Lucile Pierce, Marion Kudy, Alice Strong, and Alma Rawley were given the first four places in extemporaneous reading. In oratory, Owen Sensenbrenner, Jerome Grode, Allan Adams, and John Anderson received the places. Extemporaneous speaking was represented by John Anderson, Allan Michie, and Allan Adams.

The two elimination contests, which took place before the sub-district contest at Oshkosh, were successfully passed by Marion Kudy in Declamatory and Owen Sensenbrenner in Oratory. As Marion received first place, she was entitled to go to Oshkosh. Owen won third place.

The time and energy put in by Miss Ziebell, the dramatics coach, and the contestants were well spent, for the result of their efforts was thoroughly successful.

The winners of the first three places in the Gold Medal Contest are extremely interested in the criticism of the judge. By careful study and excellent coaching under Miss Ziebell, these contestants have been able to do justice to their readings.

Debate

MENASHA again entered the Oshkosh district of the Wisconsin Forensic Association. The question for debate this year was: "Resolved that the direct primary method of nominating candidates for the United States Senate, House of Representatives, and state offices in Wisconsin be abolished."

The affirmative was upheld by Mardelle Reimer, Leone Landig, and Owen Sensenbrenner; negative, by Allan Adams, Bertha McAndrew, and Allan Michie. Frank Robinson and Milton Walter were the alternates. Mr. Fink, assisted by Miss Murray, coached the teams.

There were two preliminary rounds of debate. In the first, the affirmative team went to Goodman and won 3-0. The negative debated Shawano here and lost a very close debate 2-1. The next week the affirmative lost to Waupaca here, and the negative was defeated by Kaukauna there. We finished the season with a total of five points which did not allow us to go on into the sectional debates.

Much time and work were spent on getting suitable material for the debates this year. This group of people worked untiringly for many weeks in order to make a good showing for their high school.

National Forensic League

MENASHA HIGH SCHOOL has a charter of the N.F.L. which is an honorary forensic society for high schools. There are several hundred chapters throughout the country. The qualification for membership is satisfactory participation in forensic contests. Election to this organization is the highest honor in the high school forensic world. At the present time there are eight student members, Gerald Ahrens, Leone Landig, Owen Sensenbrenner, Mardelle Reimer, John Anderson, Bertha McAndrew, Allan Adams, and Allan Michie.

Glee Club Operetta

THE GLEE CLUB OPERETTA, "The Wild Rose," proved very successful through the untiring efforts of Miss Madeline Treutel, director, and Miss A. Anderson.

The rôle of Rose McCloud was played by Lucile Pierce, a popular young society belle, who is bored with her artificial existence. Having achieved great success in society theatricals, she decides to go on the stage and is desirous of obtaining the leading rôle in a play written by Lady Grey. This part was taken by Ethel Landig. Much to Rose's disappointment, Lady Grey refuses to consider her request. In utter disgust Rose decides to leave the city and go to the country under an assumed name. A month elapses between the first and second acts. Rose is very happy in the country. She makes friends with a pleasant old neighbor lady who turns out to be Lady Grey. When the latter discovers Rose's identity, she promises her the lead in her play.

The finale of the second act was given at the Brin Theatre the following night. It was presented before a very large audience who seemed to enjoy it very much.

Union Vodvil

THE SECOND ANNUAL UNION VODVIL was held the evening of April 5 at the Buttes des Morts Gymnasium. It was attended by a very enthusiastic student body and many other interested people. An entertaining program was presented.

High School Band.....	Kindergarten Band
Bumps and Bats.....	A play coached by the advanced speech class
Tune Tinkers' Trio.....	Seniors
Kollege Kapers.....	Sophomores
Vision of Salome.....	Juniors
The Gay Senoritas.....	Freshmen Girls
Black Magic.....	Owen Sensenbrenner

After the program Norman Beck's Orchestra furnished the syncopation for a jitney dance that ended the enjoyable evening.

Senior Party

The high school students greatly enjoyed their first party of the year on September 14. This party, which was held at the Butte des Morts Gymnasium, was sponsored by the seniors. Although this was the first party and many of the new students were strange, they soon overcame their shyness and joined in the merry-making. The "Felix Vagabond Kings" furnished the music from eight to eleven.

Football Dance

The Memorial Building was a scene of much jollity the evening after the Two Rivers Football Game. This was the second of the senior parties, and it was given in honor of the football men. The football men needed much cheering after their hard fought game, but owing to the peppy music furnished by the "Vagabond Kings," they forgot their sorrows, joined the happy throng, and danced from eight to twelve.

Sophomore Party

Norman Beck's orchestra furnished the music for the third dancing party. This was given at the Memorial Building on November 3. Although this dance had to be postponed for two weeks, it was given in honor of the big victory over the Neenah football team, and this fact in itself made the evening a success.

The G.A.A. Dance

On January 25, the G.A.A. gave a dance at the Buttes des Morts Gymnasium. It was given after our victorious basketball game with Oconto. The students enjoyed themselves immensely, dancing to the syncopation of Norman Beck's orchestra.

Freshman Party

The Buttes des Morts Gymnasium was again the scene of much merry-making on February 8, after the East DePere Basketball Game. The students were especially happy after having seen one of the fastest games of the season; therefore, they had no trouble in enjoying dancing to the orchestra of Hank Johnson from Appleton.

The Junior Prom

There was a change in the annual Junior Prom this year. The juniors, instead of decorating the gymnasium elaborately and giving a formal dance, entertained at a delightful informal 'hop.' Music was furnished by an excellent orchestra, and the students, as well as many others, enjoyed a very pleasant evening of dancing.

Alumni Notes

THE faculty and students of Menasha High School still remember and are interested in the members of former classes. Almost all of the alumni of the latter classes are still residing in Menasha or in its vicinity.

Those of last year's class who are attending Lawrence College are: Elizabeth Plowright, Douglas Tuchscherer, Mildred Alger, Lucille Schwartz, and Charles Schultz. Helen Jones, Andrew Marx, Ellsworth Ellingboe, Robert Schwartz, Harold Pierce, Urban Rimmel, Kathleen Liebl, Lydia Reed, and Helen Peterson also attend Lawrence.

Eleanor Bodden, Frederick Jensen, and John Pawloski are taking an academic course at the University of Wisconsin.

Rachel Massey and Lorraine Bishop are attending business college at Appleton.

Dorothy Christoffersen, Verna Fahrbach, Carl Remick, Hillard Prange, and Gerald Ste. Marie, are employed in the offices of the Menasha Wooden Ware Company.

Viola Landskron and Dorothy Knoelke are taking a nurses' training course at Theda Clark Hospital and the Milwaukee Hospital, respectively.

Josephine Smith is in training at St. Mary's Hospital at Milwaukee, and Eva Webster is at a Milwaukee hospital also.

Bernice Landig has completed her course at the Theda Clark Hospital and is now a registered nurse.

Helen and Grace Corry are both attending St. Teresa's College at Winona, Minnesota.

Irwin Schoepel has a position at the First National Bank of Menasha.

During the last five years, quite a number of the alumni have been married. Edna Moore is now Mrs. Walter Kelley; Erna Landig married Julius Schierl; Mildred Hoffman married Jacob Reimer; Rena Zelinski is Mrs. Raymond Kraus; Irene Bishop is married to Melvin Smith; Marie Schmidt is Mrs. Anthony Novak; Reva Lampert is Mrs. Lester Bartlein; Cecil Kain is married to Roy Zeh.

An Appreciation

THE 1929 NICOLET STAFF wishes to take this opportunity to extend its heartiest thanks to all those who have made the publication of this book possible.

We wish to express our appreciation to the Banta Publishing Company, who by their cooperation with us have made business with them a pleasure. The helpful suggestions offered to our artist by Mr. Packard of the Appleton Engraving Company are greatly appreciated. We also wish to thank the School Board and the members of the community and of the school, who by their subscriptions have given us encouragement and assistance toward publishing our year book.

Great Oaks from Small Acorns

THE accompanying illustration is taken from an actual photograph of the small toy hand printing press used by George Banta when a boy of eleven years. It cost $11.00 but with it he learned the rudiments of the printing trade. Later, his son, George Banta, Jr., was allowed to use the press as a boy and gained a working knowledge of printing.

Meanwhile, the GEORGE BANTA PUBLISHING COMPANY was founded and it has grown from this small beginning to a plant occupying 73,200 sq. feet and employing upwards of 300 people. Originality, a painstaking attention to details and a high regard for quality have been contributing factors to the success of the enterprise.

Brief Cases

IT DOES sound odd, but it's what we've heard. Ben Thomas has lost his Lindbergh-like air and has fallen for Esther Hercher. Poor Spirit of St. Louis!

Probably the feeling isn't mutual and all that—but a case is a case— and as an honest staff, we feel it necessary to mention this. A certain freshman and a certain modest junior (he is also mildly interested in someone in Neenah) are thinking (we won't say how) of each other.

Verna Merkley and George Thorne? You don't say! Well! Well! after all, they are both in the band and have something in common.

Cookie has a different case every two months, and we haven't enough space to mention them all, so we'll just say that the last one has affected him in such a manner that he has graduated from notes on plain white theme paper to epistles on delicate pink stationery.

Allan Adams Gives Mr. Demarais His True
Opinion of Mohammed

MOHAMMED was a heathen of the lowest type. I do not like him for the simple reason that he appears in history and we have to study about him. That, I think is reason enough for hating anyone. I don't like to be forced to study anything; now if I were told not to study, why that would be an entirely different matter. Then I believe I should take steps toward becoming acquainted with a complete knowledge of his family history—all the way back to Columbus if necessary.

I am not alone in these beliefs. I have Ed. McGillan for company, and I believe if half the class weren't afraid to admit it, they would agree entirely with Edward and me.

P.S.—I don't expect any mark—merely wish to make known my personal opinion of Mohammed.

Brief Cases

AUSTIN LONGWORTH must be doomed! He has offered his "clean love" to every girl in the Freshman Class and it has been rejected. Alas! Alack!

Dorothy Tuchscherer and Pete Thiede? Need you ask? Fair and warmer! Last but not least we mention Lucile Pierce and Harvey Meyer. That's all we'll do, mention them. That's enough.

Mr. Demarais thinks it is going a little too far when the sophomore students in his fifth hour history class get affectionate while he is lecturing on the Crusades. But then, Marion and Edward always were considered the Constant Lovers.
