CHURCH DEMANDS INVESTIGATION OF BOOZE SITUATION

Cardinal Editorials Are Cause of Methodists' Resolution on Liquor

Editorials appearing in The Cardinal at Homecoming deplored the tendency of alumni and students to make a drunken spree out of the occasion, were the cause of a resolution being drawn up by the men's forum of the Kingsley Methodist church of Milwaukee on Sunday asking that the university authorities investigate the situation. The resolution asks:

"That the proper school authorities and the student body be hereby petitioned to institute an investigation to determine what agencies at the University of Wisconsin foster, promote, or tolerate such conditions."

"That all school functions which by custom have become occasions for general drunkenness be abolished."

Ask Respect for Law

"That a program be devised which will insure a higher standard of morality and respect for law among the students on the university."

The editorials which gave rise to the resolution are in part as follows:

"The eyes of hundreds of alumni and visitors from east and west will be on the student body this week-end. Criticism will be passed freely on us, the microscope of friends and enemies alike will be held closely over our works and actions. It is unavoidable. We could not run it aside if we wished to. We can, however, be responsible for what falls under the rays of the glass."

Cardinal Discredits Drinking

"Call it a matter of pride, a matter of self-respect, a matter of loyalty, decency or what you will—it would be a splendid idea to be sober during these days. If drinking is necessary, save it from another time, when you do not offer cause for your university being severely criticised."

"Respect is one of the finest things an institution can have. We can arouse disgust among visitors and shame among alumni and disrespect among all our guests. Which shall it be?"—Daily Cardinal, Oct. 26.

"The annual drunk is over. Practically every student is

Prepare Annual Punkin Holler in Ag Triangle Club

The preparations for the annual Punkin Holler are well under way and the end of the week will see the result of many week's work on the part of the members of the Agri Triangle club.

The Punkin Holler is an annual gathering of rural talent mixed with campus ideas and presented under the auspices of the Agri Triangle club as a rural community evening program. The purpose in view is to portray community life and foster neighborly feeling.

This year the program will be given on two consecutive days in order to accommodate the crowds that gather. Friday night is designated as Dane county night and a large delegation from among the farmers of Dane county is expected to be on hand. Saturday night is Short course night at which no effort will be spared to make the newly arrived Short course men feel at home.

The men in charge of the affair are:

George Helz, '25, General Chairman; M. Harris, '26, refreshments; E. Kaufman, '25, decorations; W. Osius, '24, publicity; L. M. Klevay, '26, publicity; G. Scarce, '25, tickets; T. Ford, '24, costumes; M. Schaefer, '24, music.

Will Hold Debate Tryouts Next Week Weaver Announces

Preliminary try-outs for the variety debate squad will be held November 22, Prof. Andrew T. Weaver, debate coach, announced last night. The trials will take place in room 165 Bascom hall at the hours of 4:30 and 7:30 o'clock. All students interested in debating are urged to try-out for the squad.

Candidates will prepare a four minute speech on the following proposition: "Resolved, that the drainage project of the Chicago Sanitary District in so far as it involves the diversion from Lake Michigan of such quantity of water as may be necessary to provide adequate sanitation for the city of Chicago, should be permanently guaranteed." This question will probably be the question for debate for the Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan triangle. All contestants in the preliminary trials are requested to register in room 206 Bascom hall.

SELL 300 BADGERS IN DAY'S CAMPAIGN

Set Week's Goal at 5,000; More Interest Manifest in Book Than Ever Before

Approximately 300 copies of the 1925 Badger were sold yesterday, first day of a week's campaign to sell 5,000 copies.

Interest has been aroused in the year book by a display of art work more advanced than was ever before the case this early in the fall.

More complete organization and increase in number of solicitors will undoubtedly bring sales up considerably on today, Willis G. Sullivan, '24, business manager, reported yesterday.

The plan for the sales prices of the 1925 Badger is practically the same as that of the 1924 book. Solicitors will sell subscriptions for $4 this week if the entire amount is paid at once. The time plan includes a payment of $2 now and $2.50 in the spring. Mail orders are sold at $4.50. As was the case last year, there will probably be some copies left for open sale in the spring, but Badger officials will not guarantee a surplus. In case there is a surplus, copies will be sold not lower than $5, Sullivan said.

Nearly 300 workers are organized in the sales campaign. The work of nearly every department in the Badger office has been suspended to permit workers to join the sales staff. Fraternity, sorority and rooming houses are covered by a band of organized workers under Dan Seeber, '24, associate business manager. Another band of several hundred loosely organized workers are canvassing the hill and streets near the university.

Solicitors are asked to report the returns daily at the Badger office. This is asked so that a daily report of total sales can be made.

Persons desiring to enter the competition for golden staff badges to be offered for subscription prizes can obtain campaign information and material at the Badger office.

OUTING CLUB HOLDS WALK-OUT THURSDAY

Outing club will hold a walk-out Thursday evening in place of the regular meeting in Lathrop hall.

All girls interested in Outing club whether members or not will sign up for the walk-out before Wednesday noon on the poster which is on the Outing club bulletin board in Lathrop hall.

The walk-out will leave Lathrop hall promptly at 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening. The club will have a picnic lunch on the drive, after which the regular meeting will be held. Lunch sacks are being prepared by Halls and Commons. These sacks containing frankfurts, buns, apples, and fried cakes will cost 35 cents each.

This is new feature of Outing club, the purpose of which, according to Anita Haven '24, president, is to give the girls who are interested in Outing club a chance to become better acquainted in an informal way.

CO-EDS ABSOLVED FROM ALL BLAME IN AUTO ACCIDENT

3 Students Not at Fault When Cars Crash on Way From Urbana

Florence Killilea, '25, Margaret Pergande, '24, and Katherine Kennedy, '25, were entirely absolved yesterday noon by the Chicago Heights police from all blame in connection with the automobile accident Sunday resulting in the death of John T. Murphy and Miss Agnes Erb of Chicago Heights.

The three girls were returning from Champaign where they had driven for the Wisconsin-Illinois game and were four miles out of Chicago Heights when the accident occurred a little after 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Car Attempts to Pass

The car driven by Murphy attempted to pass that driven by Miss Killilea, according to Mrs. O. B. James of Richland Center, who was chaperoning the party and who was following directly after them in another car with four other university women.

Swerving across the road Murphy hit the rear of the auto driven by the girls, and skidded off to the right. Turning back it side swiped the engine of the other car and ran head on into a telephone post. Hitting the pole with terrific force the car went up and then fell backwards on its top. Two were killed instantly while Joseph Marthaler and Miss Dorothy King escaped without injury.

Only Miss Killilea's great presence of mind saved the girls from serious injuries. One entire side of the Cadillac was jammed in, and the top, windshield, rear fenders and radiator were demolished. The car driven by Murphy was a complete wreck.

No charges were made against the girls, and witnesses and the Chicago Heights police stated that Murphy was entirely at fault in what they termed "accidental death."

PRESS CLUB TO HOLD COMPULSORY MEETING

A compulsory business meeting of the Press club will be held at 7:00 o'clock tonight at the Delta Pi Delta house.

Harry Barsante, '25, will present the plans completed by the committee for the fall frolic, an annual Press club event. Plans for the initiation will also be made at this meeting. New applications for membership which the membership committee will bring up will be considered.

Jerome Bjerke, '25 will be prepared at this time to take orders for the new club pin, designs for which have been lately adopted.

Union Vodvil Calls For Another Act To Complete Bill

WANTED—An A number 1 comedy act and string and brass instrument players for an orchestra. Apply Union Vodvil.

This is the message broadcasted Monday by Gordon B. Wanzer '24, general chairman of the 1923 Vodvil which will be given at the Parkway on December 14 and 15.

"There is still time for a good lively comedy act to get into the show," Wanzer said. "The rest of the show is pretty well lined up now. Bill Purnell, production manager, will start rehearsals with some of the acts this week."

Musicians for the Union Vodvil orchestra are asked to report to Nelson Fairbanks, F. 365 at 104 Langdon street. Fairbanks will be musical director of the show.

IMMENSE THROB GREETS GRIDDER

More Than 1,000 Students at Northwestern Depot to Meet Players

"We want the team, we want the team," the early morning rooters told the men inside the Northwestern sleeper during the half hour preceding the teams appearance from the rear door Sunday morning.

The new Cardinal wagon was drawn from the lower campus at 6:50 o'clock Sunday morning with 200 rooters, more than half women, crowding around it. A volunteer band, riding in state, gave the crowd, "Varsity," "On Wisconsin," and other Badger songs; "Shorty" Walstead, from the rear of the wagon platform, induced the rooters to far-sounding efforts in cheers and locomotives.

Large and small groups joined the wagon's following at every corner of the route up Langdon to North Henry and from North Henry, on State street, to the square so that the number of rooters exceeded 700 as the "red wagon" turned down King street, and rose near 1000 when the procession found over 200 students already at the station.

A hasty tempered taxi driver almost invoked a threshing by attempting to drive through the mass of students near the depot.

A small part of the crowd joined with the musicians in calling the men from the sleepers. The rest gathered around the wagon at the door of the station and cheered the town awake.

Silent in the midst of the cheering, the men came from the cars and walked down the platform, through the station, and to their seats on the Cardinal wagon in an aisle formed by close packed rooters on the shoulder of enthusiastic admirers.

"Marty" Below steered the wagon on its return to the lower campus. During the march up King street, around the square, and down State street, the crowd kept "Shorty" Walstead busy leading cheer after cheer, and song after song.

In the center of the lower campus the football men jumped from the wagon and hurried towards the gymnasium. The thousand Wisconsin spirits ended the initiation of the Cardinal wagon with a last series of cheers for the men on the team.

UNION BOARD ISSUES CALL FOR HELPERS

Union board has issued a call for men to assist in conducting the activities of the board. The action follows the passing of the Student senate—Union board joint resolution which permits the board to recommend candidates for election to its membership. All men who wish to help the Union in its work are asked to call at the Union board office downstairs in the Union building between 3:30 and 4:30 o'clock today.

JONES EXPLAINS INCREASED PRICE FOR GRID-GRAPH

Need of Funds and Precedent of Other Schools is Cause of Rise

That the Athletic department needs the money and that 50 cents is the customary charge at other universities are the reasons for the raise, in the grid-graph admission price given by T. E. Jones, director of athletics last night.

Admission price for the Illinois grid-graph game Saturday was raised to 50 cents, and last Thursday afternoon the sign announcing it was placed in front of the gym.

Illinois Receipts $800

Much criticism has been voiced on the campus on the manner in which the plays were portrayed on the grid-graph. During the second half, according to the graph, Wisconsin only returned one punt for any yardage and once they punted on the first down after fighting for it.

The receipts from the grid-graph go into the Interclass fund which is separate from the other department funds. Money taken in the sophomore-freshman football game, Homecoming committees and interclass events where admission is charged goes to this fund which pays the expense of sending the freshmen and all-Americans to the Chicago game.

Receipts from the Illinois game, the first one where 50 cent admission was charged, amount to approximately $800, and expenses were about $75.

"In comparison with other universities for the identical grid-graph service our prices are no higher. For instance Ohio State charges $1, Michigan 50 cents and Purdue gets 35 cents," Frank Nickerson said yesterday.

"Too Much," Says Marty

"It is too much," Marty Below, '24, captain of the football team said yesterday afternoon. "They should only charge enough to cover expenses. The students that cannot follow the team should be given a fair chance to see the game. The charge is the same as for a game at Camp Randall."

"There is no department connected with our athletics that is so poverty stricken that it can hook the fans 100 per cent in raising the price of admission to the grid-graph," was the opinion expressed by Roy L. French, grad, last night.

Physical Culture Number of Octy Appears Tomorrow

The "Physical Culture Number" of the Octopus will appear on the hill tomorrow in a striking cover of yellow and black. The design is by Marshall Glasier, '27, whose unsigned work in the last issue aroused considerable curiosity. The magazine is full of pictures, drawn by more than fifteen University artists, who portray the whims and foibles of the physically elect with a great deal of ingenuity.

The book is replete with such thrilling tales as that of "How Physical Culture cured Me;" It has explicit directions telling how to play tennis, golf and horseback; it gives rules for health and new variations of the daily dozen. A dozen writers give every opportunity for the reader to "laugh and grow fat."

Besides the title material, there is a large number of short jokes, and some very good light verse of various kinds. The blithesome limber alternates with the nonsense-rhyme, and the thrilling poetic story has its place. Several of the poems are illustrated, as usual.

Last month saw a record sale in spite of the rainy day on which the book appeared. This month ought to be even more favorable with Dad's Day a few days later, and it is advisable for students who wish to purchase extra copies to get them as soon as possible. Subscriptions will again be taken at the selling-tables throughout the buildings.

TSING HUA ALUMNI MEET AT BANQUET

Say Wisconsin is Most Popular University Among Chinese Students

"No, this is not a meeting of all the Chinese students. It is only a reunion banquet of the Tsing Hua alumni."

This is what T. T. Li said when asked whether the group of thirty Chinese students gathered in Authors room, University Y cafeteria, last Sunday noon, represented all the Chinese students in the University or not.

"Don't be alarmed," continued Mr. Li, "for the total number of Chinese students here is not in proportion to the number of students from Tsing Hua college. In fact exactly twenty-eight of the forty-one Chinese students in the University come from Tsing Hua."

Mr. Li went on to explain that Tsing Hua college was founded in Peking twelve years ago upon the Boxer indemnity fund which the United States returned to China and that it sends annually over eighty students to America to study.

"That Wisconsin is very popular with the Tsing Hua students," declared Mr. Li, "can be seen from the fact that over ten of the eighty students that arrive every year choose Wisconsin. No other institution in the mid-west gets such a high quota."

The reason for this popularity, explained Mr. Li, is that Wisconsin is well-known for the excellent course in chemistry offered and also for the courses in economics and political science. Another reason is, according to another student, because Madison is so famous for its beautiful location.

"Wisconsin is our favorite university, and we have the largest alumni chapter in the mid-west. We meet every three weeks to exchange experiences and to talk over things in China and in our alma mater," Mr. Li concluded.

The meeting is taken care of by a rotating committee, which changes with every meeting. Mr. Li was the chairman of the committee in charge last Sunday.

once more sober. The 'grand old homecoming spree' is becoming a mere matter of history—repeated history.

"What is this phase of Wisconsin spirit that induces silence at the game and intoxication on the nights before and after on the part of many and many of the students?

"This is the part that hurts. It is not so much the fact that a few men go out and express their personal liberty by imbibing unrestrainedly in illicit liquor that creates a menace. Neither is it the fact that these men disgrace themselves openly and make pigs rather than gentlemen of themselves that so pertinently concerns the student body as a whole.

"It is the fact that these men are doing this all in the name of Wisconsin! They have the distorted notion that to display true loyalty to school and alma mater, it becomes necessary for them to gurgle

Action long delayed, must be taken. No man has the right to inflict his maudlin, intoxicated self upon the attention of the self respecting element of the student body. If any man feels the need to drink let him go into his own private apartment and there drink and disgorge to his heart's content. The legislation and the desire for decency are in existence. BADGERS RESUME PRACTICE FOR REMAINING TILTS

Hope to Upset Michigan at Camp Randall Next Saturday

Out of the conference title race, much as it means to the varsity football team, little showed itself at Camp Randall last night when Jack Ryan's charges went at practice again.

Another goal has loomed ahead which must be looked to, the task of upsetting Michigan, that cocksure team which already feels a tie for the championship of the conference within its grasp.

Next Saturday the Wolverines will be in Madison to continue their successful march by walking over the Badgers. Whether or not they will succeed in doing it depends greatly to the work the Badgers do this week.

Until late last night the Cardinals worked at Camp Randall, doing no strenuous work, but going over missteps at Urbana last Saturday and learning to avoid those things again. Being defeated by Illinois does not in any way mean that Wisconsin cannot meet and defeat other conference teams.

In theory, the Badgers are the under dogs in the next two conference tilts, those with Michigan and Chicago, but practice may throw a different angle on the subject. Grange beat Chicago by a hair on a wet field and beat Wisconsin by a slightly larger score on a dry field. His ability lies in speedy running on a dry field.

The Wolverines, victors over all opposition so far this year, have yet to meet a team of Wisconsin's type. Undoubtedly the Badgers have a strong defense which may stop their scoring machine.

GRID-GRAPHS

BY ORIE

The Illini battle is over—we lost—let's forget it and remember that we went down fighting—Grange was to much for us, that's all.

Michigan will be here next Saturday without the services of one of their best bets—Uteritz, quarterback. It's too bad he broke his leg at this stage of the season. Our regrets to Michigan and Uteritz.

Without Uteritz Michigan will be seriously handicapped. Rockwell is the next best quarter, but the Wolverines will look lots weaker—that's sure.

The one impressive thing about the whole Illinois school, is the spirit they have. ILLINOIS only means the name of their college, but ILLINI means everything typical of FIGHT and SPIRIT. That's what we need up here gang—why not have the word BADGER typify our spirit?

The Zetas had a big day at Illinois last Saturday—Grange and Taft were the representatives of their respective chapters, and both starred. The general sentiment around the campus seemed to be that the score was Grange, 10—Taft, 0.

LaTotgkn sl.—s1 now ...lto... yesterday. He said the whole squad thought we had gotten the wrong score up here, after they saw the gang down at the station with the red wagon. That's the way to make 'em feel—win or lose.

This week Ryan will prepare for Michigan. Yost realizes that the Badgers still have at least one big win in their systems, and he isn't sure whether it'll be Michigan or Chicago. We want both don't we Badgers?

Many of the faithful Wisconsin alumni who witnessed the game Saturday, were of the opinion that Wisconsin was holding out on a lot of stuff. They seemed to lack plays or

Meeting is Held For Soccer Fans Today

This afternoon at 4:30 all those who are interested in soccer will meet in Coach Schlatter's office in the gymnasium. This meeting is for the purpose of arousing enthusiasm in the student body. Various phases of the game will be discussed and a captain and manager will be elected for next year's varsity.

The prospects for a first rate soccer team next year are excellent. Coach Schlatter thinks it very probable that the schedule for next season will include games with Minnesota, Illinois and other colleges in the Big Ten Conference.

Lawrence Weinreich '25, who is this year's captain and a three year soccer man at Wisconsin will be eligible next fall. Sam Zweiger and Les Kearny and Martinez are out for a regular berth on the team. Many men on the Chinese team will also be eligible for the varsity. Wang, Liu and Sun, have all had a number of years experience on college teams in China, where soccer is the major sport.

Saturday morning at 10 o'clock the regulars will play a return game with the Chinese. Last week the varsity was seriously hampered by the absence of Weinreich and Martinez. Both will be in the line-up this Saturday and a stiff game is expected with the varsity primed to make up for their first defeat. Coach Schlatter is drilling his men hard on defense in scrimmage this week, as this was the most notable fault which showed in the first game.

RECORD BROKEN IN CLASS MEET

Cassidy Lowers Marks For 2.9 Miles By 24 Seconds

The inter-class cross country meet last Saturday brought out some of the best running in years among non-varsity men when the record for 2.9 miles course was lowered by 24 seconds.

The new record was made by Cassidy, a sophomore, who by dint of exceptional running, covered the distance in 15 minutes 44 seconds. The old record, which was hung up several years ago, was 16 minutes 8 seconds.

Kubly, also a sophomore, broke the tape for second place, finishing shortly after Cassidy. His time for the distance was also under the former record.

With fourth, sixth and seventh places to their credit, the sophomores defeated the first year men handily by 19½ points to 39½ points.

The varsity distance squad is busily engaged in preparation for the dual meet with Michigan next Saturday on the local course. This will undoubtedly be the stiffest race of the year and the Cardinal runners will do well if they can outdistance the Wolverine harriers.

In a triangular meet at Ann Arbor last Saturday between Ohio, Michigan and Illinois, the former were returned victors by the narrow margin of four points. Michigan was a close second with 40 points, while Illinois brought up the rear with a total of 44 points. The winners, Wikoff and Bayne of Ohio, covered the five mile course in the fast time of 26 minutes and 3 2- seconds.

Michigan would undoubtedly have made a much better showing if Harry Davis, one of their best runners, had not been decidedly off form. He was unable to do better than finish twelfth, being beaten by four of his own teammates.

If the Wolverines are in form Saturday they will finish Coach Burke's men with the hardest competition they have faced this year. The Badger runners are quite aware of the strength of their opponents and are governing themselves accordingly.

something, and it looked like they were saving their stuff for Michigan or Chicago.

Blackman got into the game at end just before Taft made his second sensational run of the game. Good stuff Blackie.

Pyre Disagrees With Alumni Group On Eligibility Ruling

OPTIMISTS SEE BRIGHT FUTURE

Coach Ryan's Style of Play to Bring Home the Bacon

An optimistic outlook on the future games with Michigan and Chicago and the future of Jack Ryan's style of play was the key note of the editorial which appeared in The State Journal yesterday.

"We had a team at Urbana, but we had no stars of the Grange magnitude," the Journal states. With Williams and Tebell we could have won. With a little more help Taft almost certainly would have plunged his way to the goal.

"If we want to be fair, let us ask ourselves who in the world would have said last March that Wisconsin would this year have a team like which fought the game, up-hill battle at Champaign?

The editorial points out that

People who criticize our brand of football are comparing Jack Ryan's first attempt with a team which has lost two great stars in Williams and Tebell with Zuppke's system which he was perfecting for many years. The Journal points out.

"This is the first year of Ryan, and it is his first conference year. What Rockne and Zuppke have said and done in football is worth his study, and one reason why he is here is that he had been recognized as a student and thinker.

"Let's get over the disappointment of a defeat that we should have expected. Let's get back of the team for Chicago and Ann Arbor. And if we defeat one and hold the other to a close score, let's admit that we got all we had any right to expect in 1923. The next chapter will be 1924.

FRESHMEN TAKE 5 TO 1 DRUBBING

Anne Smith is Junior Star With Three Field Goals

The junior hockey team defeated the freshmen team by 5 to 1 at Camp Randall yesterday. Both teams scored after five minutes of play. The first point was made by Anne Smith '25, center. Two minutes later the frosh tied when Evelyn Tough, left inside, sent a swift shot through the junior defense.

Anne Smith made three of the five goals for the juniors. Daisy Simpson, center, and Martha Williamson, right wing, made the other two.

Poor shooting on the part of the juniors continually sent the ball outside the goal posts, when it should have rolled between them and raised the score. Lorraine Fritz, manager and center half, led the defense for the frosh, which was strong and well-knit, despite the fact that the ball shot back and forth in their territory the greater part of the game.

The juniors, unlike the frosh, had a goodly number of rooters backing them. They greeted their opponents with sister-class songs, that were handed down to them by their sister class '23, and which they will hand down to the class of '27 when they graduate.

The juniors will clash with the seniors, Wednesday at 3:30, and with the sophomores Friday at 3:30. The seniors will meet the frosh Thursday at 3:30.

Answers Resolution Presented to Birge By Chicago Grads' Club

"I believe it would not be feasible to pass any regulation that would forestall action until the end of the season when pertinent information concerning the eligibility of any player is received in the middle of the season," is Prof. J. F. A. Pyre's reply to the resolution submitted by the University of Wisconsin club of Chicago to President Birge, who has turned it over to Professor Pyre.

The resolution follows:

E. A. Birge, President,

The University of Wisconsin,

Madison, Wisconsin.

"Resolved, that it is the sentiment of the University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago that the athletic directors of the Conference Colleges take under consideration at their forthcoming meeting the enactment of some rule or procedure by which the amateur standing of conference athletes will be determined in advance of the athletic season and that consideration of mid-season protests of eligibility will be deferred until after that athletic season.

"Charles L. Bryon, President, University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago."

"Although I think it would be extremely unfortunate if information received during the season could not be acted upon until the season was over," continued Professor Pyre, "I believe legislation might be passed reducing the probability of anyone's eligibility being protested in the middle of the season. There exists a conference regulation now, stating that three weeks must elapse after the first information is received before final action may be taken."

Professor Pyre stated that the resolution received would be turned over to the conference directors at their next meeting. He expressed skepticism, however, as to any action being taken.

"I would like to make a statement about the use of the word 'protest' in connection with Wisconsin's reception of the recent ineligibility ruling," Professor Pyre added. "We had no intention of making any protest; we simply wished to investigate the case ourselves. We are satisfied with the results.

"It was thought at the beginning of the season that a thorough investigation of the eligibility of all the players had been made, but information of which we had no inkling came up. Not implying any criticism of the athlete involved in the present case, I believe that frequently matters would prove less troublesome if more accurate and complete information would be volunteered in the beginning by the men concerned."

"Of course," Professor Pyre added, "criticism like that of this resolution may itself be criticized. Alumni seem always to be more interested in having the athletic machinery run smoothly than in maintaining the eligibility standards."

Rotary Will Hear Birge Education Week Talk

President E. A. Birge of the university has been secured by the Rotary club to speak at their National Education week program at the Park hotel Wednesday noon, Nov. 28. The subject of Dr. Birge's address will be "Education". The committee in charge of the program consists of John Callahan, George Hambrecht, Prof. V. A. C. Henmon and Foster S. Randle.

With the conference football season rapidly drawing to a close the race for honors has virtually been narrowed to two teams, Illinois and Michigan. Minnesota, although unbeaten as yet, has only a bare possibility of tying for first place.

Illinois is well on its way for a thousand per cent team. The on-rushing Illini have taken the measure of Wisconsin, Chicago, Iowa, and Northwestern and have two weeks to prepare for their final game of the season with Ohio.

Zuppke's men should top the conference standing, unless something radically unexpected occurs in their game with the Buckeyes. Grange was withdrawn from the game Saturday at the beginning of the second half but received only minor injuries and should be in top condition in two weeks. If he continues his sensational open field running he will doubtless make a strong bid for a berth on the all-conference team, if not on Walter Camp's mythical eleven.

News that Uteritz, Michigan's star quarterback, received a broken leg in Saturday's game with the Marines has sent the Maize and Blue stock tumbling rapidly downward. Uteritz possessed an uncanny knack for finding his opponent's weak spots and was the mainstay of Yost's passing attack.

Wisconsin and Minnesota present two barriers to the Wolverines' hopes that are causing Yost a lot of worry. In order to tie with Illinois for first place Michigan must win both of these games, as the Suckers should encounter little difficulty in disposing of Ohio, their only remaining opponent.

Minnesota, with Iowa and Michigan still to be met, has small chance of completing the season undefeated. The Hawkeyes have been beaten twice but are a fighting bunch and spill the Gophers, while Michigan is probably strong enough to defeat them.

THE DOUBLE STANDARD

Time and again the little pink eligibility slips from the dean's office come back with "Lack of Grade Points" scrawled across them to indicate that such and such a person can not be permitted to take part in this dramatic farce, that journalistic endeavor, or other campus activity.

And then, the disgruntled student goes out to the football field, the cinder path, or the gymnasium and sees men, whom he knows have lower marks than his, eligible for intercollegiate competition.

That there is a double standard in activity eligibility requirements in which athletics are favored above others, has long been known but seldom aired until this year when the long list of "insufficient grade point" accusations poured in.

According to that bible of information, the Green Book, a student to be eligible for campus activities must have:

GRADE POINTS AT LEAST EQUAL TO CREDITS for the preceding semester; no unsatisfied failure, condition, etc.

On the other hand four pages later in regard to athletic competition the statement is made:

The requirements for membership on an intercollegiate team are as follows: One year's residence at this university; regular enrollment and a program of not less than 14 credits; no unsatisfied failure, condition, or incomplete; A WEIGHTED AVERAGE OF AT LEAST 77 for the preceding semester.

It is understood by the student body that the above is a statement of the general ruling which governs the eligibility of all conference athletes under the Intercollegiate Conference Athletic Association.

Nevertheless, it is evident that it brings about a distinct and unjust discrimination against those other university activities which are so vital and worth while both to student and school.

Under these two rules it is possible for a man to have three fairs and a poor and be eligible to play football with an average of over 80, but still be excluded from dramatic participation because he is shy three or four grade points.

Again, a student can have an ex, a good, and two poors, and run in all the track meets he wishes, but he must not, can not, write a news article for the Cardinal twice a week, just because he is short his four grade points.

The sense of this editorial is not directed in a bitter tone against the athlete. His eligibility is determined by intercollegiate rules. It is only fair, however, that other activities, which in most cases carry an intellectual benefit in their performance which should add to their importance in a faculty's eyes, should be placed on the same basis.

Student activities which are so annually hit by this hoodoo, should rise in united protest and demand of the faculty equal rights with the athlete. What's fair for one, is fair for the other.

Double standards in other conditions of society are condemned. Why not here, where the injustice is so obvious?

STUDENT TO STUDENT

As an experiment to ascertain somewhat the attitude taken by one student to another, the writer of this editorial undertook to greet every student he met on the hill with a smile and a "Hello." Furthermore, he carried books in his hand to make his identity as a student self-evident. The results—if such may be said—were pitiful. Student after student passed by without a sign of having heard the greeting; many others responded with a bored look and nothing more; still others looked frankly disgusted and offended that a student to whom they had not been formally introduced should dare to greet them; many merely showed puzzled astonishment that a student unknown to them should greet them; a few were embarrassed; and a few others grunted a brief recognition. But now and then—be it said to Wisconsin's credit—there came a student who responded to the smile and the greeting with another smile and a "Hello." Men and women differed not at all, the results being the same with both sexes.

Be this experiment indicative of whatsoever it may, the writer still entertains the belief that Wisconsin men and women are fit to be spoken to by one another, and he still believes that there should be a friendliness of student spirit. Is all of this not so?

COLLEGE SCANDAL TALK

Conjecture, misunderstanding, and false statements seem to surround the mystery of the identity of a Miss Suzan Brown who recently took her own life by poison. The papers of Chicago, the city in which the suicide resided immediately prior to her death, have taken great delight in playing up the fact that she was a former resident of this city and that she was once a student at the university here. It would seem that in the opinion of the Chicago papers, anyone who lived in Madison must have been a student at the university.

While no great crime has been committed by the statement that Miss Brown was once a student here, the general tendency of the Chicago papers to tack anything and everything disreputable onto a university deserves a little comment.

Do these papers play up news of this kind because readers want it, or because they have a grudge against education? It could hardly have been promoted by any other motive. It is doubtless true that people like juicy bits of scandal better, if they connect up with someone who has had the benefit of a college education, than if they don't, but even people of this type get tired of too much of it.

If a newspaper in Chicago or anywhere else has to resort to padding the news with misstatements to attract its majority of readers, and if these readers are of the type that enjoys seeing the leading educational institutions of the country belittled, then it is time that either the newspapers get a different class of readers or else educate those they have at present.

If readers do not want that kind of news, and it is only reasonable to suppose that they do not, then it is the duty of the newspapers to be a little more careful about some of the statements made in their columns essentially when they relate to a force for good in the world such as an educational institution.

The Lit's out and the Octopus had better look for its laurels. The cover alone is a knockout, so restful in color, so harmonious with the contents of the magazine.

As for humor, who can hope to equal some of the unconscious witticisms? Not the Octopus, for unintended wit is the most relished.

Take this line now: "Life is a young man with a dagger and a flower in his eye." Sheer posey, sheer poesy!! A humorous writer might have put thus:

"Life is a young man with one foot around his neck and the other one jazing on Main street." Of course we all notice the difference. And there you are. The Lit's the thing.

"I came upon two little boys warming the air in a delightfully Swiss dialect. I could have embraced the words." There's Literature for you, and in the Lit only will you find it, at only two bits a copy.

Kenneth Fearing, editor-in-chief, he of the dusky long locks and melancholy air, puts forth a defense of last month's Lit that ought to be preserved for the sake of one word alone—OBFUSCATION. A laka-palooza of a word, isn't it?

While the readers of the column take a deep breath, we should like to offer a contrib in a lighter tone, but philosophical through the influence of the Lit.

TRIOLET TO TRUTH
"What is truth?"

Critic of Commerce
Mag Reports Stories
Of Varied Interest
BY W. A. F.

The second issue of the Commerce magazine appears on the hill today with its usual fund of interesting and informative articles. In spite of the attempt of the editors of this year to confine the articles in the magazine to purely commercial and business subjects there is an interest in all the articles which should appeal to a great many in all schools.

An article on "Advertising in England and in the U. S. A., Compared," by W. H. Burke, a London publicity man, is perhaps the most important as well as of the most cosmopolitan interest this month. The article shows how in spite of the great similarity between the two nations, minor matters of custom, tradition, etc., make a great difference in publicity attitude.

According to Mr. Burke, the essential difference between the countries is in the matter of reserve and conventionalism on the part of the British. Electric light signs, for instance, have in England nowhere near approached the importance of this mode of advertising in America.

As usual the Commerce people have taken great pride in themselves in their issue and have pointed out with much pride the number of men they have on the football team. These local articles often appeal just because of their invariable and boastful presentation.

Dr. Scott has written the introductory article which gives an interesting account of the various ways in which people interpret things. Arthur N. Loig of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., has a more or less technical article on accountancy and the home it makes for character building. On the whole, the article reminds one a great deal of a typical speech before a typical Rotary club.

George A. Jones, an evident disciple of Mencken, and no doubt a reader of the Smart Set, boldly makes his hero read "Tom Jones," "Mademoiselle De Maupin", and an Illustrated "Aphrodite". Percy, the hero, reads also Stendahl, Remy De Gourmont, and Nietzsche. All five at one throw. Might we be so bold as to ask for the titles of the books belonging to the three authors, read by Percy.

Oscar Riegel deserves the Commendation of the Course in Journalism for naming one of his characters Tiburce. His opprobrium of motion pictures should be read daily by any student contemplating a visit to a movie.

Without comment we quote a few choice bits:

"Played a Sicilian monody

"To a neurasthenic jay."

"Young death sits in a cafe
Her METHEGLIN eye."

As well, what's the use, but just the same we bat an illustrated copy of "The Memoirs of Fanny Hill" that the November copy of the Lit is a liberal education not to be equaled by any magazine West of the Alleghenies and East o' the Moon.

You will find a Rubberset Brush

Your beard, however tough,

Rubbing in the lather with your

Late Rooters Rush
Back Home Again
After Illini Trip

The last train back home from Illinois arrived in Madison barely in time to carry tardy Badger rooters to their eight o'clocks yesterday morning. Perhaps that accounts for some of the arm bands, megaphones, and suitcases that appeared on the hill up to noon. Among those returning from the game are the following groups:

Central High In Parade
Of Square

Loaded with more than 150 girls of Central high school, 23 Yellow cabs paraded around the square Saturday afternoon. The girls were dressed in the orange and black colors of the high school. The procession traveled down State st. to Camp Randall, where the city championship football game between East Side and Central high schools was to be played.

A long time resident of Madison called The Capital Times office today and stated that this "stunt" reminded her of the days back in 1890 when she was a student at the Central high when such public spirited men as the late Mose Klauber and S. P. Rundell were enthusiastic backers of high school football teams.

VODVIL, DRAMA
CINEMA"THE VIRGINIAN"
WILL SATISFY
MOST CRITICAL"THE VIRGINIAN"
Presented at the Majestic.
Featuring Kenneth Harlan and Florence Vidor.

By E. M. S.

Owen Wister's novel, "The Virginian" makes an excellent movie. Part of its merit lies in the fact that it reflects the spirit of the book, and follows the incidents quite accurately, except in the arrangements of some of the scenes. It is a fine, strong story of the west, containing very little of the melodrama so characteristic of pictures of that type.

Kenneth Harlan, in the title role, does complete justice to Mr. Wister's portrait of the hero, while Florence Vidor is rather pleasing as the New England heroine. The characters of Steve, the Virginian's pal, Trampas, the villain, and Shorty are splendidly portrayed.

Molly, of Puritan stock, whom you will many times want to shake because of her prejudices, comes west to be the new school marm at Medicine Bow, Wyoming. The stage-coach gets stuck in the middle of the creek, and the Virginian rescues the terrified heroine. That evening, at a party given for her, Molly snubs him so consistently that he and Steve become reckless and change all the babies' clothes! Consequently, parents take home their neighbor's babies, and there is a general mixup.

There is, however, pathos as well as humor in "The Virginian". Poor Shorty, who has lived in dreams of some day possessing an accordion, dies without realizing his ambition. The highest point in the play is the execution of Steve at the Virginian's command. The dignified treatment of this one scene is sufficient to exalt the picture above the average cow-puncher movie.

"The Virginian" is well-backed in the elements of humor and pathos, love and honor, as well as in its sequence of events. The photography is exceptionally fine in its reproduction of the beauty and grandeur of outdoor scenes. Those who are looking for something above the average in the cinema field, should find satisfaction in this picture.

There is also current news and an Andy Gump Comedy, "Watch Papa." You would hardly recognize friend Andy, Min and Chester, but it's amusing in spite of that.

FILM MAGNATES LACK GOOD SCENARIO PLOTS
"THE THRILL CHASER"

Featuring Hoot Gibson and Billie Dove.

Presented at the Strand.

By SAPPY

There seems to be a terrible lack of good movie scenarios in Hollywood. Pictures that have a real good story are becoming more and more scarce, and the pictures that are just a conglomeration of everything possible are being thrust upon the poor public with a something that borders dangerously near audacity and naivete.

"The Thrill Chaser," is such a picture. It has absolutely no story, it is just a patching together of all kinds of scenes that are supposed to have an Oriental atmosphere, and the result is pretty bad. The beginning, scenes laid in Hollywood and the Universal city itself, are fairly interesting, but when the hero has to play an Arabian sheik's part, —

The only things that save the picture are the subtitles, which are clever and good, and Hoot Gibson. But even Hoot seems to have been bored by the picture, and we don't blame him. The only times that he woke up, was when he could mount his pony and chase around, and in those scenes, Hoot is always fine.

Another good part is played by Billie Dove, as Olala, the heroine. Miss Dove is still but a dim star, and she is trying hard to "do her stuff," to become a bright one, and there really is no reason to believe that she will not reach the top; she does well by her role.

Ben Bernie and His Orchestra Now Showing at OrpheumBUSTER TICKLES FANS
IN "THE THREE AGES"*"THE THREE AGES"
Featuring Buster Keaton, Margaret Leahy, and Wallace Beery.
Presented at the Madison.

By TED

If you like Buster Keaton, (and if you don't, how do you get that way) you will like "The Three Ages" now being presented at the Madison.

Buster's smile-less face, as usual, shows every expression but mirth throughout the whole picture, and his gymnastics are as good as ever. The picture is not so jammed full of laughs as are his shorter ones, but it contains enough to produce a very noisy audience.

The Three Ages are; the stone age, the Roman age, and the present age. Buster endeavors to show that through all the ages from the beginning of time, one thing has not changed, and that is Love. He seems to think that not only has Love not changed, but that the methods employed to gain it are still essentially the same as in "the good old days"—except for a few minor variations.

Wallace Beery plays the part of the villain. Naturally he does it well, but we can't help thinking that we would as soon not see him in slapstick comedies. He makes a better Roman charioteer in the picture than he does a foot ball star; but then, it's a queer game of foot ball they play in "The Three Ages" anyhow.

Margaret Leahy, who plays the beautiful cause of all the strife, is new; brand new, in fact, a little too new. She may have won a beauty contest over 80,000 others, as the papers have stated, but she can't act—at least not yet. Opinions may differ, but, personally, we think that out of 80,000 we could pick several just as good looking as she, and maybe more so.

Ernest Evans, who was at the Parkway with his prologue last week, proved so popular that he will be there again next week with an entirely new review.

"Mixed Marriage" rehearsals indicate that this first attempt of the Wisconsin Players in serious drama will be a success.

Those of you who like to fuss on week nights will be glad to hear that "Mixed Marriage" will come on a Wednesday night, with promises to the dean that all will be over by 10 o'clock.

Yesterday afternoon tryouts for the Prom Play began. "The Torchbearers" is supposed to be a screamingly funny comedy.

The Haresfoot club will put on a show for the University of Wisconsin Chicago Alumni club the night before the Chicago game which will be broadcasted over the country by the Chicago Daily News radio station.

Theodore Roberts took his cigar out of his mouth long enough the other day to say, "Each and every laugh is more to a motion picture than a pail full of tears."

buckling and the customary overly-opportune rescues from desperate situations—but still the whole thing was handled in a way which made you forget that it was inevitable that the hero be saved and that the heroine fall in love with him for his bravery and nobility of character.

The photography was most artistic, with exceptionally good use of lights and shadows.

Romance abounded throughout and the action, the excitement, the constant plights and rescues make one wish that 1923 had more of the satin cloaks, flashing swords, doublets and galloping horses and decidedly less of sleepy eight o'clock and mid-semester exams.

The picture is one of the best that we have seen this fall.

REAL ACTION, GOODACTRESS SELLS MOVIE
"ASHES OF VENGEANCE"At the Parkway.
Produced by First National.

Featuring Normal Talmadge,

Conway Tearle.

By HIT and MISS

Action that keeps you intensely interested throughout the five reels of gorgous costumed and artistic settings sums up "Ashes of Vengeance"—which is really a production far different from the type which the name leads one to expect. The leading lady (you know her well) is as good as ever.

A national massacre of the Hot-tentots following an edict of the half-crazy king of France, a thrilling fight of a half dozen men against a large body of soldiers in defense of a cowardly lord hiding in the tower room, the killing of a wolf by Conway Tearle single-handed to save two unprotected maidens—there are only a few of the many tense scenes which are vividly and artistically shown in the picture.

True the plot followed rather conventional lines of seemingly exaggerated chivalry of early ages with the usual amount of swash-buckling and the customary overly-opportune rescues from desperate situations—but still the whole thing was handled in a way which made you forget that it was inevitable that the hero be saved and that the heroine fall in love with him for his bravery and nobility of character.

ENGINEERING MAG COMES OUT TODAY

Article on Milwaukee Harbor is Feature of November Number

Replete with illustrations and filled with news the November issue of the Wisconsin Engineer will be distributed today in the Engineering building.

The leading article in this issue an excellent one on "Port Terminal Development at Milwaukee," by F. A. Kaiser, '18, who is now senior engineer with the Milwaukee Harbor commission. In his description Mr. Kaiser describes not only the technical features of the development but its economic significance as well.

The histories of last summer's courses in civil and chemical engineering make two interesting stories. "The History of the 1923 Survey Camp," by Lawrence Stebbing, '24, and "The Summer Course in Chemical Manufacture," by W. E. Ouweleen, '24, contribute much to the issue.

The alumni notes, athletics, and campus notes are taken care of in the usual thorough manner. A new department to be known as "Engineering Review" has been added in which engineering news items will be reviewed and discussed. H. C. Wolfe, '26, is in charge of this department.

FARMERS ENROLL IN SHORT COURSE

Number of Early Arrivals Gives Indication of Increased Enrollment

Wisconsin's future farmers began arriving at the College of Agriculture yesterday to register for the thirty-ninth annual short course. Early indications were that the enrollment this year would surpass last season's figure.

According to those in charge of the work the course of study has been changed to meet more specifically the needs of the young men from the countryside, to enter at the beginning of any of these five weeks sessions. The course of study has been broadened to meet the ever varying demands made upon men in agricultural pursuits today.

"Many of the boys entering the course this year have had high school education," T. L. Bewick of the Badgerfarm school said, "but anyone over twenty years of age is permitted to enter the course. We usually hope that the newcomers will have had an eighth grade education."

H. L. Russell, dean of the College of Agriculture, will officially welcome the boys entering the short course shortly after they are registered and settled in their new work.

WOMEN FISH MEET IN CLASS CONTEST

Sophs to Clash With Seniors While Juniors Compete Against Frosh

The second women's inter-class swimming meet, at which the juniors will swim against the sophomores and the seniors against the freshmen, will take place at 7:15 o'clock tonight in Lathrop pool.

The clash between the sophomores and the juniors will be one of keen competition. Both teams are almost evenly matched, since they both won over their competitors last Thursday night by large margins. The sophomores defeated the seniors 40 to 17 while the juniors won over the freshmen 42 to 15.

Lois Barry '25, with her 60 foot plunge and her first place in diving last Thursday, is expected to roll in the winning points tonight. Rhoda Koch '25, with her speed in the back stroke and the crawl, is another star of the junior team. Of the sophomore team, Elna Mygdal and Beatrice Marks in the 40 yard breast and crawl and the 20 yard back stroke, and Esther Rosenberg in diving will do much to keep competition close.

The frosh swimmers showed some good material in the meet Thursday. They and their opponents tonight, the seniors, are well matched. Judging from the score the frosh rolled up in the first meet they have a good chance of winning.

SPORTS BODY TO SET DATE FOR CARNIVAL

Early action is necessary in order to inform the Badger Ski club whether the city will combine the carnival with the annual ski tournament at Muir Knoll.

Jesse Cohen '24, Horace Taggart '24, Chris Hendra '23, and Dorothy Thuringer provided the entertainment which consisted of musical selections and fancy dancing. The patients enjoyed it very much, and were sorry when the program was over.

This is the first of a series of programs that the committee has planned to give at the hospital. It is hoped that students who have any talent which could be utilized in this work will offer their services for a few hours some Sunday afternoon.
