

---

Appendix

---

Folklore Institutions in the Upper Midwest

Department of Liberal Studies, University of Wisconsin-Madison

636 Lowell Hall, 610 Langdon Street, Madison, WI 53703-1195. Contact: Jim Leary.

Offers periodic continuing education lectures, classes, and seminars on folklore. Credit and noncredit independent learning courses in folklore are under development.

Folklore Program, University of Wisconsin

306 Ingraham Hall, 1185 Observatory Drive, Madison, WI 53706.

Offers a broad range of undergraduate and graduate courses, an interdisciplinary undergraduate major, and graduate minors. Sponsors periodic public lectures and special projects.

Michigan Traditional Arts Program

MSU Museum, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI 48824-1045.

Offers a broad range of public programs, including museum exhibits, an annual folklife festival, folk arts apprenticeship programs, internships and workshops for cultural specialists, folklore courses at Michigan State University, technical assistance to folk arts presenting organizations in Michigan, and numerous publications.

Minnesota Historical Society

345 Kellogg Boulevard West, St. Paul, MN 55102. Contact: Anne Kaplan, Publications and Research.

Offers books, documentary sound recordings, and occasional exhibits and public programs concerning Minnesota folklore. Maintains an archive, artifact collections, and a library with many materials relevant to folk culture in Minnesota.

Minnesota Traditional Arts Program

Minnesota State Arts Board, 432 Summit Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55102.
Contact: Philip Nusbaum, Folk Arts Coordinator.

Offers folk arts grants, a folk arts apprenticeship program, public programs, and technical assistance to Minnesotans.

UP North Films

331 Thomas Fine Arts, Northern Michigan University, Marquette, MI 49855.
Contact: Michael Loukinen.

Offers films and video cassettes concerning the folklife of the western Great Lakes region, with particular attention to the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, Woodland Indians, Finnish-Americans, loggers, trappers, and commercial fishers.

Wisconsin Arts Board

101 E. Wilson St., First Floor, Madison, WI 53702. Contact: Richard March, Traditional and Ethnic Arts Coordinator.

Offers folk arts grants, a folk arts apprenticeship program, technical assistance, public programs, and occasional publications to Wisconsinites.

Wisconsin Folk Museum

100 S. Second Street, Mount Horeb, WI 53572.

Offered exhibits, publications, media productions, and a line of folk arts cards and posters concerning the folklore of Wisconsin and the Upper Midwest. The museum closed in January 1996 and its collections were dispersed to other museums in the region.

Wisconsin Music Archives, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Mills Music Library, B162 Memorial Library, 728 State Street, Madison, WI 53706. Contact: Steve Sundell.

Maintains a research collection of Wisconsin and regional musical materials, with strong holdings in traditional and ethnic music. The archives always strives to increase its collection, which includes commercial and field recordings, sheet music, books and pamphlets, and correspondence and papers.