TWO STUDENTS ADMIT PASSING BOGUS CHECKS

Police Seek Third Party in "Forgery Gang"—Mer- chants Are Victims

Following the confession of two university students to the charge of forging checks, which were passed this week on Madison merchants, efforts are being made by the police today to locate a third party in the "forgery gang" that has caused a recent wave of bogus checks in the city.

Ringleader Admits Forgeries

Sidney La Pook '24, Chicago, believed to be the ringleader, made a formal confession yesterday morning to Judge A. C. Hoppmann, of Superior court, admitting that Henry M. Franklin '24, also of Chicago, and he had passed forged checks to the amount of $176 upon Madison merchants.

The entire story came to light when Franklin was caught Monday night after he had attempted to pass a forged check at the Kamera Kraft shop. He had made previous efforts to pass two $50 checks at the Co-operative store and at the Commercial National bank. A fourth check for $15 had been successfully passed at Morgan Bros.

Confesses, When Caught in Act
Caught in his room while practicing the forging of a signature, after a clerk at the Photo shop had trailed him and reported the fact to the police, Franklin made a confession admitting his guilt and implications with La Pook and the third party.

La Pook was arrested at once, and taken before Judge Hoppmann Tuesday morning where he finally broke down under severe grilling and admitted his part in the gang. Under testimony which was made yesterday morning in the Superior court, it was intimated that Franklin, age 19, was used as a dupe.

Few Bogus Checks Before

Bogus checks have been circulated and passed in the city for the past two months, the police state. Previous to the recent wave, very little forging by students has been experienced by Madison merchants. The rule was adopted at Morgan Bros. recently for the first time in years of requiring the fee card to be presented when checks were presented.

Acids were used by the trio to remove their names from the fee cards issued at the opening of the semester. Franklin forged his checks under the name of "T. T. Mann," giving his address as 1507 University avenue.

Police Hunt Third Party

The parents of the two Chicago youths are in the city now. The hearing on La Pook and Franklin was opened this morning. As soon as the third party is apprehended and remanded to the custody of Madison officials, the hearing will be continued.

JUDGE SIEBECKER TO BE CHAIRMAN AT GIRLS' DEBATE

Contest on Philippine Independence Arouses Great Inter- est on Campus

Chief Justice Robert G. Siebecker, of the Wisconsin Supreme court, will be chairman of the annual Pythia-Castalia joint debate on the question of granting Philippine independence at 7:30 tomorrow night in Music hall.

Justice Siebecker was a member of Athenae in his undergraduate days at Wisconsin, and he has always maintained an active interest in campus forensics to the extent that his judicial duties have permitted.

Final Workouts Today

With the approach of the contest, members of both teams will meet today to put the finishing touches on their respective cases. At 7 o'clock tomorrow night all members of both societies will assemble in the Pythia and Castalia rooms for a half hour "pep" session. Following this they will go to the debate in body.

Meetings of all the men's literary societies tomorrow night have been moved from 7:30 to 8:45 to permit the members to support the girls' contest, and will also attend the debate in a body.

The contest will start promptly at 7:30 and be concluded at 8:35. The first two speakers for each side will be given seven minutes for main speeches in addition to three minutes for rebuttal speeches. The closers are allotted 13 minutes to be divided ten and three for main and rebuttal speeches.

Keen Rivalry Between Societies

Although the question being debated is a relatively old one, the recent agitation for the independence of the islands has made it one of the most vital issues demanding the attention of administration leaders at Washington. Both teams have done extensive research work on the side they are debating, and this together with the keen rivalry existing between the organizations should make the contest exceedingly worthwhile.

EIGHT SURVIVE TRYOUTS FOR ATHLETIC FRAT

22 Candidates Eliminated in Tests for Sigma Delta Psi

Only eight candidates out of 30 survived the first four requirements for membership in Sigma Delta Psi, national athletic fraternity, which held its initial 1921 tryouts in the gymnasium annex at 4:30 yesterday afternoon.

Judges of the four tests, broad jump, pole vault, swimming, and shot put, refused to divulge the names of the eight successful candidates until the completion of the 12 requirements which are necessary for membership.

The tryouts, which all students are eligible to enter, will be resumed today at 4:30 in the annex. Entries for most of yesterday's trials were members of the varsity and freshmen track squads.

Twelve Wisconsin athletes are members of Sigma Delta Psi. They are A. T. Sands '13, Walter Keuhn '20, Clyde Nash '20, Allan Spafford '20, L. A. Cox '20, O. J. Endres '20, Meade Burke '17, Donald Dixon '17, Harold Knapp '20, Paul Kayser '21, Guy Sundt '22, William Maleckar '20.

He has captained the Pennsylvania gym team, as he did Wisconsin's, and has won his honors against all the largest schools in the east and the west. Woodard is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

LITERARY MAGAZINE SALES TO CONTINUE

March numbers of the Wisconsin Literary magazine will be sold at the center table in Bascom hall today for the convenience of those who have been unable to secure a copy of the magazine, it was announced by the business manager last night. Since there are only about 50 copies of the edition left, it is advisable to buy a copy immediately.

GAY BUNTING TO DECORATE MANY EXPO EXHIBITS

Electric Lights Will Transform Gym at Night Into Old Castle

With more than 10,000 yards of cardinal and white bunting Wisconsin will show her colors at the University Exposition, April 21, 22, 23, in a dazzling display, according to David Lacey, chairman of the decoration committee.

Following the medieval outlines of the turrets and towers of the gymnasium, electric lights will trace out at night the appearance of a castle-like edifice. A huge welcome sign will inform visitors that within is the university exposition.

A gala appearance will be presented within the gymnasium and annex by flags of all nations hung from the roofs, and by flowers and plants covering up all the space not filled by exhibits.

A uniform scheme of decoration will be used with the booths. White bunting forming the sides and back of the booth will prove an effective background for posters and charts belonging to the individual exhibits. Red and white bunting interlaced will form the roof and a wide strip of the red along the front of the booths.

Special designed medallions of carved wood will be placed at intervals along the top of the lines of booths. Warren O. Coates is making the design.

Lieut. Gov. Comings is to speak before the Social Science club of the University at Music Hall on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "The Struggle in America against privilege."

YOUR MIND?

Find Out What Kind You Have at the University Exposition

Do you want to know what kind of a mind you have? You will be given a opportunity to find out at the University Exposition.

"Know your own mind" is the slogan of the exhibit to be put on by the psychology department. You can try yourself out on all sort of contrivances and find out what you really are. It might help you to know whether your type of mind is visual or motor.

You will also be able to find out how good your memory is, and whether you have any ingenuity or not. The most ancient form of movie, the kinetoscope, will be another interesting exhibit of this booth.

The pharmacy department will show you the sources of the principal drugs, the meteorologists will set up their thermometers, and barometers and show you how they forecast the weather.

HISTORY DEPARTMENT DELVES DEEP INTO RECORDS OF PAST FOR EXPOSITION

Assyrian and Babylonian contracts, receipts, temple records and tax rolls dating from 2450 B. C. to 525 B. C. will be an interesting feature of the history department exhibit at the University Exposition.

"We will have a choice collection of original clay tablets and cylinder seals from the reigns of Sennacherib, Tiglath Pileser, and Ashurbanipal on display," said Lowell J. Ragatz, chairman of the department. "These are from 2500 to 4400 years old, and were discovered in Mesopotamia and deciphered some years ago. They are very valuable and we consider it a great privilege to be able to show them. Translations of the various cuneiform inscriptions will be shown with every item. Visitors will doubtless be surprised to see from these what good business people the ancients were."

Egyptian papyrus discovered in a royal tomb built 3,000 years ago, medieval manuscripts in reproduction, an English manor roll, manuscript books written in monasteries during the middle ages, early printed books, books printed by members of the history department faculty, over a hundred theses on Wisconsin history written by students, charts and diagrams showing the work and growth of the department, and maps to illustrate the new world order are other features.

A display to show how history is written, from source to finished article or book, has been made possible through the courtesy of Prof. Eugene H. Byrne, who is at present engaged in research on Genoese trade.

NEW YORK WRITER SPEAKS TO GIRLS IN COMMERCE

Mrs. Orlene Foster Relates Success of Women in Business World

Mrs. Orlene Foster of New York City, a writer of personality stories and business fiction, spoke at a luncheon yesterday to the girls of the Commerce club. She told of many women who have made a success in the business world, particularly in the banking field.

In an interview with the president of a large automobile industry, prior to writing a personality story of him, she asked what had been one of the fundamental things that had contributed to his success. She was rather surprised, she said, to learn that he was a C. P. A., and that a thorough knowledge of accounting in all of its branches had helped him more than any one thing.

Among other interesting incidents that she related was one about a chorus girl, who, finding it necessary to earn more money, originated the idea of making doughnuts in the window of a shop, some three or four years ago. Today this woman is successful at managing a kitchen where hundreds of doughnuts are made daily.

One of New York's cleverest business women, Mrs. Foster declared, has successfully originated and managed the Chinese Candy shop in the McAlpin hotel, to supplant the bar of former days.

TALK IT UP

LESS than four weeks remain until the University Exposition will be in full swing. The committeemen are driving ahead to make the affair truly representative of the greatness of this institution.

The thing to do now is for every student to get busy and help spread the news broadcast over this section of the country. The Exposition is intended for people outside the pale of the university. It is intended for the taxpayers and citizens of the state who have made the remarkable achievements here possible. It is intended to be testimony of the results of their interest and support.

There are students here from practically every county in the state and they represent every walk of life. From time to time these students write letters home. Why not put a word about the Exposition in every letter until the affair is held? It would do a great deal of good and would go far toward insuring the success of the Exposition.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

THE Wisconsin Literary Magazine and the Octopus, the serious and the frivolous, made their appearance simultaneously on the campus this week. Both publications rank in their field among the best in the collegiate world.

The "Lit" is serious. It expresses the straight-laced notions of those who believe that we are not getting down to earth in earnest with our work on the hill. It is like the voice of one crying in the wilderness, and too few, indeed, harken to the voice.

The Octopus is frivolous. It pats on the back and, let's us enjoy the happiness of springtime. It makes us laugh at ourselves. It is a real tonic.

The "Lit" stands for discipline; the Octopus for relaxation. We need both.

OUR GOVERNORS

THE student body this evening will have the opportunity of hearing two representatives of the state discuss problems that are of vital interest. Gov. John J. Blaine will make an address under the auspices of the Badger club at the University Y. M. C. A., at 7 o'clock, and Lieut. Gov. George F. Comings will speak at Music hall at 8 o'clock.

Governor Blaine will set forth the attitude of the state toward the university regarding the appropriation which is needed and expansion of the university. Lieut. Gov. Comings, a former member of the faculty, will discuss economic questions and legislation.

Both speakers have a message that will be worth hearing.

SHOW YOUR FEE CARD

A number of merchants on State street, who have recently been the victims of bad checks, have agreed among themselves not to honor checks written by a student unless the student presents his fee card. Some students, who in the past have spent their money freely in Madison, will naturally resent this requisition on the part of local merchants. This measure had to be taken by the merchants because of the increase in the number of checks that have been returned. If you have lost your fee card, pay cash.

CUMONT TRACES THEORIES ABOUT IMMORTALITY

"In ancient Roman times the immortal soul was looked upon as a mere possibility. The Greeks first gave the conception of Hades to the other countries. From that time on, philosophers propounded many different theories concerning future life. The three great schools of philosophy, Epicurian, Stoic, and Sceptic, all devised certain theories of what would happen to the soul after death and prescribed rules of living to be used in preparation for death."

So said Franz Cumont, a member of the French Academy, in lecturing on "The Evolution of the Belief of Immortality among the Ancient Romans," Tuesday afternoon in Bascom hall.

M. Cumont described the events that led up to the belief in the immortality of the soul, and pictured in detail many of the weird customs and fantastic ideas that grew up out of the belief. He declared that Plato's conception of immortality could only convince the already convinced, while Pythagoras' theory was more enlightening and easier to believe.

M. Cumont is the world's most eminent authority on the later period of Roman Paganism. He was formerly a professor in the University of Ghent, and from 1911 till the outbreak of the war, he was curator of the Musee Cinquantenaire at Brussels. This is his second tour of the United States, the first trip being in 1911.

BADGER FRUIT TREES ESCAPE

Frost Causes Heavy Damage in East and Middle West

Wisconsin fruit trees were not far enough advanced to be injured by the cold, according to J. G. Moore, professor of horticulture at the university. There will be no danger of injury to Wisconsin fruit crops unless a period of warm weather which causes the fruit trees to bud is followed by a period of cold weather, he said. No reports have been received at the university of any serious damage to northern fruit crops, but some southern fruit regions have sustained injury due to the belated cold weather.

Damage Is Large

WASHINGTON — Leaving widespread destruction behind it in the orchards of the east and middle west, the cold wave which crossed the Mississippi river Easter passed out over the Atlantic today with a return to normal temperatures following in its wake. Government reports said today the freeze was "disastrous" to fruit, especially early varieties, but no attempt was made to estimate the extent of the damage. Wisconsin got off with light damage.

WHAT PARIS WOMEN WEAR ON FIRST WARM DAYS OF SPRING

Behold, the coat, the cape and the suit which Paris is sponsoring for the first warm days of spring. Paris boulevards are full of smartly dressed women, both French women and Americans, and the visitor may watch the crowds of women and know that real Paris fashion is strolling by. Here are the outfits which were snapped recently on one of the balmyest of afternoons when all of fashionable Paris seemed to be taking a walk.

The costume at the left, which looks like a coat, is in reality a coat-dress. It has a satin panel and un skirt which gives the dress effect and the coat is heavily embroidered navy blue. Note the short flare sleeves, for you will see them often on our own smart styles.

center. It features small pleats on the side skirt and coat and the neckline of the coat features a heading. The fluted collar is perhaps the most distinctively Parisian thing about the suit.

The return of the cape is marked by the costume at the right. It is also of navy blue and is accented pleated. It is cut something after the manner of a former military cape, but is made suitable for many occasions of the daytime hours.

At The Theaters

AT THE STRAND

Douglas Fairbanks in his latest triumph "The Nut," will be shown at the Strand theater for four days starting today. It all happened in Greenwich Village. A man with an inventive turn of mind loved a maid with a fixed obsession. She wanted to interest people of wealth and refinement in her welfare scheme and he wanted her to have what she wanted. But—like the classic cat in the well—for every step he advanced he went back two. The party he gave to advance her theory ended in disaster. The "society people" he sought to interest turned out to be crooks. When, in desperation, he tried to alleviate her disappointment by a trick, she discovered the deception and refused to forgive him and added to that, he became an object of suspicion to the police and an object of interest to the newspapers. Taking advantage of the girl's resentment toward her lover, a gambler who had horned his way into Greenwich Village society induced her to visit his home—still in the interest of her theory. Finding out that she was there, our hero followed her there. On his trail were the police so he nearly forced upon her the humiliation of becoming the victim of a police raid. In the end he rescued the girl and turned the tables on the villain, and is dragged before a magistrate and sentenced to "happiness for life." Booth Tarkington's Adventures and Emotions of Edgar Pomeroy will be the added feature attraction.

AT THE GRAND

"The New Republic" apparently has but little use for the movies for mention of them seldom appears in its columns, but the current number carries a glowing tribute to Charles Chaplin and Jackie Coogan for their work in "The Kid," which is now showing at the Grand theater. "The New Republic" says: "It has remained for Charles Chaplin to adopt a standard absolutely high, and to be rewarded by the gratitude of millions, for millions of movie patrons are finding joy in the integrity of The Kid. Under the hand of Chaplin Jackie Coogan is as expressively and imaginatively natural as if he himself had Chaplin's genius. His eyes speak, and they say not only eloquent and direct things but things indirect, troubled, complicated. And not only do his eyes speak, but so do the turn of his head, his entrances and exits, his place on a lonely door-step, on on a curb. No child that I have ever seen on the stage created a part so full before. This film should go some way towards revolutionizing motion picture production in this country. From an industry The Kid raises production to an art."

AT THE FULLER

Saturday afternoon and evening at the Fuller theater an offering not to be missed by those who wish to see a refreshingly wholesome comedy, briskly diverting, frolicsome and nicely and peppily flavored with bright dialogue, is "My Lady Friends," with the celebrated musical comedy favorite Jack Norworth as the star of his own distinguished company of New York players. This piece was the outstanding success of all last season at the Comedy theater, New York, and was written by Emil Nyitray and Frank Mandel. Mr. Mandel has also gained fame as the co-author of "Mary" the latest Geo. M. Cohan success. Jack Norworth, than whom there is none better known as a singer and writer of popular and topical songs sends his audience away nightly humming or whistling "I Want to Spread a Little Sunshine."

WEATHER

The highest temperature during the past 24 hours was 41 at 4 p. m. and the lowest was 32 at 5 a. m. Sun sets at 6:22.

Southerly winds and rising temperature prevail in a barometric trough that is crossing the plains throughout the eastern half of the country. Unsettled weather with northwest winds and snow flurries and much colder follows the trough on the northern plains.
