Hangover Blues

Last night I stopped at the corner bar just to have a friendly beer
 I said to myself I'll just have one
 Then home to wifey dear

As I sat there on the stool sublime
 An walked a friend and said me

Let's have one beer before suppertime

And like a fool I did

~~We had one beer and then another~~

~~As we laughed and talked of old times~~

~~And the first thing you know its time to go~~

~~Cause the bartender says its closing time~~

Chorus

Hangover, what happened to me

I must of got hit by a locomotive

Or a semi truck by gee

My legs are bent

My tongues on fire

My stomach feels like flat tire^{old}

Alcohol is surely a sin

All never never ^{do it} drunk again

Now I'm rough and tough and hard to bluff
I'm not afraid of man nor beast
But when I come staggering home ^(at two)

I'm nervous to say the least

I opened up the front yard gate

As quiet as could be

I took one step and my old hound dog

Chorus Took a bite of me

I finally quieted my hound dog down and headed for the door

I opened it up and there stood my wife and brother did she roar

She blacked my eyes and bent my nose and knocked me to the floor

She said if you ever come home like this again

Chorus I'll throw you right out the door

Next day when I got up to ^{for} go to work

My wife looked at me like a fighting truck

She says if you want breakfast dear

Why you can fix your own right here

I says that's o.k. I ain't very hungry any how and so I staggered off to work

My head pounding and my stomachs gone beserk

The boss looked at me with scorn
He says I'll make you wish you'd never been born
