Wisconsin College of Physicians and Surgeons.

This School, in affiliation with the Association of American Medical Colleges requires attendance upon four full courses of instruction prior to graduation. The annual sessions begin about the last Tuesday in September of each year, and continue twenty-seven weeks, exclusive of the mid-winter vacation. Instruction is given by lectures, recitations, conferences, laboratory work, practical exercises and clinical demonstrations. The college is equipped with one of the most complete buildings in the United States. Without extra fee the regular work includes instruction in the new "Marks Laboratories" recently fitted up at a heavy expense with the latest appliances. Clinical instruction is given in the wards and lecture rooms of the St. Joseph's and the Wisconsin Maternity Hospitals. Graduates of the General Science, Pre-medical, or Pharmaceutic courses of the University of Wisconsin are admitted without examination to the sophomore class, thereby saving one year's time on the four years' course. SUCCESS

This is the magic word that marks the limit of every man's aspiration. Men who have and men who will achieve Success are those who take advantage of every faculty which the world affords in their particular line.

The Disbrow

Combined Churn and Butter Worker

IS ITSELF A SUCCESS and will promote the success of every man or institution which uses it. It will make MORE and BETTER butter than any separate machines. Nearly all the premium butter exhibited at fairs and conventions during last year was made in these machines.

Our Line of Creamery and Cheese Factory Apparatus and Supplies is Complete.

In Our Milk Dealers' Supply Dept.

can be found everything used in the Dairy or Milk Depot. Try our "IDEAL" Milk Jars and Caps. We know our jars are stronger, of better shape and color, than any other. Write for our special Milk Dealers' Price Current. Also our little booklet "Suggestions to the Milk Dealer." Free.

The State Historical Library.

BY

RUEBEN G. THWAITES, Secretary and Superintendent.

The State Historical Society of Wisconsin was first organized on January 30th, 1849, nineteen days after the opening of the first session of the state legislature in Madison. Its members were chiefly state officers and legislators, and Gov. Nelson Dewey was the first president. Increase A. Lapham, a distinguished scientist and antiquarian, was secretary, but he was able to give no time to the work. Public addresses were given before the society in 1849, 1850, and 1851, by prominent citizens of the state; but beyond these, nothing of importance was done during this period. A library of fifty volumes was slowly accumulated, the meagre collection being contained in a small glass-faced case, kept on a table in a corner of the governor's office, and this case is now exhibited as a curiosity in the society's museum.

It was evident that at this rate of progress, the society would never amount to anything. Somebody must devote his entire time to the work, becoming personally responsible for the conduct of the society's affairs, and giving to it life and character. The man for the place was imported to Madison in October, 1852. He was Lyman C. Draper, a young Philadelphia antiquarian, who had already achieved much success in the accumulation of materials for the history of the Middle West and the South.

For various reasons, it was January 18, 1854, before the society was thoroughly reorganized for work on the new plan. Draper was at that time chosen secretary, and at once entered with joyous enthusiasm upon the undertaking of accumulating books for the library, relics and curiosities for the museum, portraits for the gallery, and documents for publication. In the course of a few weeks, the little library case was too small. By the close of the year, the secretary was able to report to the society the acquisition of two thousand volumes and pamphlets. For want of space, the greater part of the acquisitions were stored in Draper's residence until August, 1855, when a small room in the basement of the local Baptist church was secured for the society's use.

The society soon securing legislative aid, the collections grew rapidly, until nearly the entire basement of the church was occupied. This place was, however, dark, damp, and dingy, and in no way suited to library purposes. In January, 1866, the library, portrait gallery, and museum of the society were, by authority of the legislature, removed to quarters especially prepared for them in the then new south wing of the capitol. It was thought that there was now ample room for the accessions of at least a quarter of a century. But such was the rate of increase, that by the year 1881, cords of volumes, pamphlets, and relics were piled in out-of-the-way corners and rooms throughout the capitol, there being no space to shelve or display them.

In 1881-84, two new transverse wings were added to the capitol. To the use of society, there were assigned the three upper floors of one of these wings, and into it the society's possessions were transferred in December, 1884. But the new quarters soon proved to be inadequate in extent, faulty in construction, and not fire-proof; moreover, the state government in time came to demand for the use of legislative clerks and committees the space occupied by the society. The great need of the latter was seen to be a commodious fire-proof building, designed and equipped upon the most approved models, for the accommodation of its library and museum, and its several offices. After many years of agitation, the legislatures of 1895, 1897, and 1899 came liberally to the rescue, with tax levies which in due time will aggregate $620,000. The desired building is at last nearing completion, upon an ample plot of ground given for the purpose by the board of regents of the state university, in the proximity of that institution. It is anticipated that the removal into this building—to occur, probably, during the early summer of 1900—will be accompanied by considerable private gifts to the library and museum, and a general broadening of the society's influence and usefulness.

The society is actively engaged in several departments of historical and economic research and collection; has a fairly-equipped historical and ethnographical museum; and a considerable portrait gallery of Wisconsin worthies. About 50,000 persons visit the gallery and museum annually.

Yet whatever reputation the society may have won among scholars, has chiefly been the outgrowth of its library, and its numerous historical and bibliographical publications; in these it takes great interest, and is doing its best educational work. In 1875, the miscellaneous books in the state library, at the north end of the capitol, were transferred, by order of the legislature, to the Historical Society's library, leaving the former purely a state law library, under the control of the justices of the supreme court; while the latter became, to all intents and purposes, the miscellaneous state library, in charge of the Historical Society.

The State Historical Library now numbers about 205,000 titles. The average annual increase is 6,500 titles. It is a general reference collection, with the departments of American and English history, economics, politics, sociology, travel, and geography developed with especial care.

There are a few special collections, which largely contribute to the reputation of the institution. One of these is the so-called Tank Library, consisting of 5,000 old and rare volumes, mostly in the Dutch language—probably the largest collection of Dutch books in the United States. Nearly half of them are richly bound in vellum, and many are profusely illustrated with seventeenth-century copperplate engravings; in the collection are numerous Bibles, atlases and charts, old editions of the classics, early lexicons, and historical works.

Of the principal daily and weekly newspapers of the state, the society's files generally reach back to the first issues of the journals represented. The collection of bound newspaper files published outside the state, amounts to nearly 9,000 volumes. From the date 1656, there are few years not represented by some prominent English or American journal; from 1750 forward, the collection is unusually strong, especially in the American department.

The Draper collection of about 400 bound volumes of manuscripts, covering the history of the West and South from 1734 to 1816, is a famous possession of the society. So also, are the Wisconsin MSS., and the great mass of printed material for the original study of Western history. The collections of genealogy, Shakesperiana, early English dramas, English local histories, reports of public institutions, and bound magazines are all of them notable among scholars.

On account of the proximity of the state university, about ninety per cent. of the readers in the Historical Library are members of that institution, and in purveying for the library their wants are taken into consideration. The university history seminars, and some special classes in that line of work, are given the use of rooms adjoining the library; and in the new building will have still more ample conveniences. The students and professors are, in fact, encouraged to use the library as freely as they would that of the university itself; and indeed, they chiefly rely upon it in the domain of history, economics, and kindred subjects. In addition to university students, specialists from all parts of the country may be found in the Historical Library, especially in the summer months.

ORATORY AND DEBATE.

COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF ORATORY STEINWAY HALL, CHICAGO.

 HE Professional man is beginning to realize that scholarship is not lessened but rather strengthened by practice in public speaking. He is beginning to desire the possession of the power to speak forcefully and effectively, but he shrinks from the imitation schools on the one hand and the mechanical cut-and-dried-by-rule schools on the other. A man who has been through a solid collegiate course in which he has been taught to think for himself finds it both undignified and distasteful to stand before an elocution teacher and copy his forms of expression, while it is hardly less unreasonable and unscholarly to be told to commit a lot of rules of expression to memory.

In striking contrast to these are the methods used in the COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF ORATORY. Here there is no imitation, no speaking by rule, but a system of mental training especially for the speaker or reader.

THE COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF ORATORY was opened in 1890, and with but little advertising has become the largest school of oratory in Chicago.

This has been accomplished by earnest, self-sacrificing teachers working according to correct educational principles, by the enthusiasm of pupils, graduates and friends, by the success of the graduates in securing and holding positions and by honest business methods.

There are now twenty two college men in the day and evening classes.

AUDITORIUM HOTEL, CHICAGO.

BRESLIN & SOUTHGATE.

R. H. SOUTHGATE, MANAGER.

THE most massive structure in the world, built of stone and iron, eleven stories high having a frontage on the street of one thousand feet. The hotel is absolutely fire-proof, affording perfect safety to its occupants under all circumstances. In all its features, including its furnishings and fittings in every department, the hotel is without its superior anywhere in the world. The location, on Michigan Avenue, Congress Street and Wabash Avenue, at the beginning of the finest drive in this country, overlooking Lake Michigan and Park, and at the same time within four blocks of the post-office, leading theatres and business center, makes it positively unrivaled in this respect by any hotel that can be named.

The hotel is directly connected with the Auditorium, where the performances of Grand Opera in Italian and German, the concerts of the Chicago Orchestra under the direction of Theodore Thomas, those of Sousa's Band and other like organizations, are always given; and with the "Studebaker," where the Castle Square Opera Company is permanently established, giving performances of the standard operas, in English, of the highest class. Guests can go directly from their apartments in the hotel to either, without going to the street, thereby saving the expense of carriage hire, or the danger of exposure to inclement weather. The Auditorium is the only hotel in the world enjoying such privileges. The hotel is conducted upon both the American and European plans.

Stations: Illinois Central, Michigan Central, Steamboat Landings, Elevated Railroads, Cable Cars, all within one block of hotel.

The Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co.

OF MILWAUKEE, WIS.

Another Link in the Chain of Indisputable Evidence of the Superiority of the Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co. in reducing the cost of Life Insurance.

Any man choosing the Northwestern may feel confident of three things; first, that his money is safely invested; second, that he will receive fair and honorable treatment; and third, that no Life Company can do so much in reducing the cost of life insurance, or making large returns on money invested, as the Northwestern.

There is not a more careful, conservative or safe company in this country.

D. J. BREWER,

Associate Justice Supreme Court of U. S.

Sincerely yours,
PHILIP D. ARMOUR.

Good Workmanship and Good Materials are essential to high-class tailoring. We are not high priced tailors; to pay much less than we ask is to sacrifice some of the good qualities that go toward making a man well dressed. We do not sacrifice anything in our establishment, We are particular in every detail.

Shoes for Men and Women.

Our store contains three complete separate Shoe Departments Men's Shoes, main floor, in Men's Furnishing Store. Women's and Children's Shoes, second floor. Low priced, reliable shoes, basement salesroom. * * * * *

We doubt if any exclusive shoe store carries a larger stock than we,—few carry as large,—and we may add to this that none carry better shoes, nor equal qualities at lower prices.

Shoes, as well as Dry Goods in general, can be purchased satisfactorily by mail. A letter or post card of inquiry will be answered fully by return mail.

GIMBEL BROTHERS

MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN.

STUTTGARTER UNDERWEAR.

We would not like to have our patrons or underwear buyers generally forget that we are sole agents in Milwaukee for this purely Natural Wool Sanitary Underwear. It is almost a sure preventative of rheumatism and neuralgia, and even where these troublesome ailments are of long standing the soothing influence of this warmth-giving fabric is beneficially felt at once. We have it for Men, Women and Children, in perfect-fitting, exquisitely-finished garments.
