RELIGIOUS TIE WILL BRIDGE SOCIAL GULFS

—GILKEY

Speaker Declares That Tendency to Separate is Becoming Forceful

CONFERENCE ENDS TODAY

That our civilization is becoming divided into economic, racial and social chasms, and that religion in university communities is best fitted to bridge these chasms was the theme of the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey's speech at the luncheon of the Campus Religious council Saturday noon.

He also spoke to a convocation last night at Lathrop hall on "Personal Construction," emphasizing the application of the parable of the Good Samaritan to modern life. He will close the Religious conference today in two addresses in Lathrop gymnasium at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Gilkey pointed out in his noon speech that this is a generation that is going forth to meet the problem of prejudice, hatred, and suspicion, and that it faces a separative tendency that is becoming more and more forceful. Racial feelings are becoming more defined, capital and labor are increasing the breach between them, and social distinctions are being more sharply drawn.

"Universal Bond"

"Religion, the most universal of bonds, is the power that can most easily bridge these gulfs," said Dr. Gilkey. If university communities can prove that with religion bonds of sympathy and understanding can be built over the chasm, the solution has been discovered, he said.

"If religion can't do it, can politics?" asked Dr. Gilkey. "Hardly, because politics itself is a system of chasms, castes, and classes. Rather a light must be lit in a university community, and lighted in a church. And then, if religion fails, civilization and democracy stand in the greatest perils."

Inn Keeper Praised

In Dr. Gilkey's speech on "Personal Construction" given in Lathrop hall gymnasium last night, he pointed out that the Good Samaritan was not the only good man in the parable of the Good Samaritan, but the inn keeper, whom he compared with the business man of today, was also one of the men to receive praise, because after the Good Samaritan had left, it was the inn keeper who had charge of the welfare of the man who had fallen among the robbers.

"The inn keeper was a business man," said Dr. Gilkey. "He might have been in partnership with the robbers and looked at the unfortunate man as one from whom he could get money to fill his own pocket, or he might have looked at him as a poor man who needed help, and since the Samaritan had helped him the first day, he could help him the second."

Referring to the large business interests of today, Dr. Gilkey said, "There are plenty of business men today who are in partnership with the robbers. There are business men who pay low salaries and keep long hours in order to put the honest man out of business."

Men's Glee Club Sings at Beloit

The Men's Glee club, composed of 30 members, sang to a large audience at Beloit, Friday night, March 10, despite a late train and damp weather.

The concert given at Beloit was the fourth concert of the season. There are two more to be given, the next is to be given at Music hall March 24 and the last one is to be given in Richland Center March 31.

The program to be presented in Music hall will be the same as that given in Beloit.

PENNEFEATHER AND LYMAN ARE FIRST IN BADGER RACE

AMBROSE J. PENNEFEATHER

Making up the first ticket in the field for the 1924 Badger, are Ambrose J. Pennefeather, Kenosha, candidate for editor-in-chief, and Howard B. Lyman, Madison, candidate for business manager. Both are sophomore assistants on the 1923 Badger staff and have received the recommendation of the staff.

Pennefeather is enrolled in the Course in Commerce. Before coming to the university, he was in the employ of the Simmons Bed company for a year and a half, gaining practical business experience as assistant to the general storekeeper. Last summer he was with the Jordan Motor company, Cleveland.

He was a member of the Commerce magazine staff in his freshman year and has been on the advertising staff of The Daily Cardinal since his freshman year. He was a member of the University Exposition and assistant chairman of the Cap Night committees and is now serving on the Varsity Jamboree, Sophomore traditions, and Sophomore dance committees. In the Memorial Union drive he was captain of a team. He is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi and of Inner Gate.

Lyman has worked on the business staffs of both the 1922 and 1923 Badgers. He was production manager for last year's senior play and a member of the University Exposition and Memorial Union drive committees. He is now a lieutenant in the R. O. T. C., a member of the Military ball committee, and chairman of the Sophomore dance publicity committee. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi and president of Skull and Crescent.

BADGERS WIN IN FAST GAME

Close Guarding and Long Shots
Feature 31-24 Victory
Over Chicago

(Special to the Cardinal)

CHICAGO—Winning from Chicago by a score of 31 to 24, the Wisconsin basketball team closed its season here last night in a hard-fought game with every man playing in top form. The game was characterized by long shots and close guarding.

There was no star in the game; every man played at top form. Ceaser and Taylor, playing their last game of their Conference career, led Wisconsin's scoring with six field goals each. Williams scored three baskets and Gibson one.

The guarding of Chicago was very close, but the Badgers, with a clear edge on defense, broke through for clean shots from under the basket. Long shots were frequent, however; it was the long shots of Ceaser and the close guarding of Tebell that were the deciding points of the game.

The final punch of the Wisconsin men was marked. At the end of the first half the score stood with four points in their favor; and in the second half, against the determined attack of the Maroons, they added three points to the lead.

Summaries

Wisconsin		Maroons
Ceaser	F.	Dickson
Taylor	F.	Halladay
Gibson	G.	Yardley
Tebell	G.	McGuire
Williams	G.	Romney
Field goals—Ceaser, 6, Taylor 6,		Williams 3, Gibson 1, Dickson 3,
Halladay, Yardley, McGuire, Rom-		ney 1 each.
Free throws—Taylor 3 out of 8,		McGuire 10 out of 12.
Substitution—Stark for Dickson.

250 PERSONS IN PLAY CAST OF GUN AND BLADE

Entire Chorus Holds Rehearsals
Daily Under Direction of Alice Keith

About 250 persons will take part in "The Bells of Beaujolais," the Gun and Blade play, which will be given at the Parkway theatre on the afternoon and evening of March 25. The entire chorus and cast has been selected, and rehearsals are being held every evening.

Miss Alice Keith, director of the play, who arrived from Chicago last week to take charge of the rehearsals, has selected the cast from among the members of the Gun and Blade club and students in the School of Music. In addition, the Madison high school glee club, and a dancing class of young girls from Kehl's, have been engaged to appear at the Parkway on March 25.

for university productions.

The members of the chorus for the play are as follows:

Louis Madden, Edith Suppiger, Laura Boyd, Lillian Netzow, Helen Olson, Florence Robb, Louise Lamson, Roberta Loudon, Eleanor Day, Della Powell, Rachel Griffith, Doris Perkins, Sarah Pauline Wild, Ruby Anderson, Florenne Lampert, Dorothy Ferebee.

The men in the chorus are:

Paul A. King, C. F. Iverson, Pat Engelbrett, Harold Reyer, C. T. Anderson, Clifford Jaquith, L. F. Dunwiddie, Bruno A. Stein, J. K. Jacobson, B. A. Berndt, Richard B. Butler, William Lowery, Alvin Hartlett, Norman Neiten, George Julius, and Godfrey Valine.

TWELFTH NIGHT ELECTS

Twelfth Night announced the election and initiation of the following freshmen: Helen Humiston, Charlotte Case, Helen Bowles, Margaret Ives, and Hazel Weingandt.

PLATTEN LIFTS JUMP RECORD IN TRACK WIN

Leaps 6 Feet 4 3-8 Inches As Badgers Defeat Iowa,
53 1-3 to 33 2-3

PUPIL MEETS TEACHER

One Wisconsin indoor record went by the boards when "Pete" Platten shattered the high jump mark in the Wisconsin-Iowa track meet which the Badgers won, 52 1-3 to 33 2-3, in the gym annex last night.

The new record of 6 feet 4 3-8 inches replaces that made by "Bob" Wahl, old Wisconsin athlete, and Loomis, of the Chicago Athletic association, in 1914. Platten skimmed over the bar at 6 feet 3 7-16 inches the first time that he broke the previous mark. In another attempt, he beat his own performance and raised the record to 1 7-8 inches above the old height.

Bresnahan Coaches

Badger track and field men won six first places, besides taking the relay race, in the first meet ever held between teams representing Wisconsin and Iowa. Teacher and pupil pitted their product against each other in the meet. George Bresnahan, Iowa mentor, was a Wisconsin cross country and track man under the tutelage of Coach Thomas E. Jones. He also coached track here until 1920.

Five second places went to the victorious Wisconsin squad. The three field events counted heavily for the Badgers. Platten marked up five points in the high jump, Merrick, Hamman, and Tomlinson chalked up eight and one-half counters in the cauld, and Sundt and Gude collaborated to score eight points in the shot put.

Brookins Stars

Brookins, Iowa sprinter, was the individual high point winner of the meet, with 10 points. He captured a first place from Spetz and Wilson, his team mate, in the 40 yard dash, doing the distance in 4 2-5 seconds. In the 440 yard dash, he bested Johnson and Wilson, the latter barely nosing out Spetz at the tape for third place.

CHICAGO AD MEN TALK WEDNESDAY AT CONVOCATION

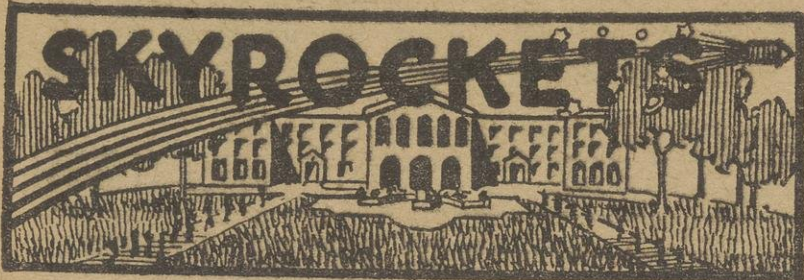

Charles Estey, Chicago, and James Young, Chicago, have been secured by William F. Engelhardt '22, president of the Advertising club, to address a convocation Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 in the auditorium of Sterling hall to speak at a banquet Wednesday night.

These speakers are in connection with AllCommerce Week, which starts Tuesday. The Advertising club has been given charge of the arrangements for Wednesday of the week.

Mr. Estey, who is president of Estey and company, will speak to the convocation on some advertising subject. Professor F. H. Elwell, through whom Mr. Estey was secured, said of Mr. Estey that he could sell anything and was the head of the livest advertising company in Chicago.

Mr. Young, who will speak at the banquet, is with Walter Thompson company, the largest advertising firm in the United States. "Every person interested is invited to be present at this banquet," said Engelhardt yesterday. Mr. Young is to speak on advertising campaigns. Mr. Estey will also talk at the banquet.

Reservations can be made for the banquet through William F. Engelhardt '22, at B. 195, or Horace Martin '22, at B. 1239. Tickets sell for 85 cents a plate. Members of the Commerce club, Woman's Commerce club, and Commerce Advisory commission are especially invited.

SWEET odors and damnable influences of balmy Spring! It must have been in such weather that one Shakespeare wrote the indecisive "To be or not to be," a perfect expression of the influence of the outside on one's inside. Whether it would be better to work on the thesis or to put in a call for a date, that is the question. To do or not to do! Whether it is better to suffer in body, or in the estimation of one's adviser. Ah, well! There really is no problem; we'll simply do as everyone else does,—succumb to the fever, and blurb bubbling assinnities to something feminine on the outskirts of the village.

SPEAKING of Shakespeare, there was a man arrested in Chicago for quoting the bard in public. The policeman charged him with swearing on the street. Think of it—around here you can get hauled up for not quoting him to Karl Young; and in Chicago,—well, just think how odd it would seem to have to bail Karl out of the hands of the law.

BLIND TO FAULT
When homely woman stoops to folly
And learns, of course, that men betray.
What can she be but melancholy,
Because God made her look that way?

The only trick she can discover
To hide her guilt from every eye
Is to select some feeble lover
Who's blind and just about to die.
HASHEESH.

JUST after the successful religious conference has led us to believe that we are all a nice bunch of God-fearing boys, we came across an item by Brisbane that stated that college men were irreligious and seldom prayed. On recalling that there was a sign hanging at the door of the conference which read "Standing Room Only," we are forced to agree with Brisbane,—only ministers pray while standing.

HELD on charge of wire-tapping, Phil Hilbert. Found climbing telegraph poles on State street.

HELD on charge of conspiring to defraud, Adine Lampton. Arrested at the clinic while filling out an excuse.

HELD on charge of violating the parking ordinance, John Pinkerton. Alleged to have been seen in Tenney park after dark.

HELD on charge of disturbing the peace, A. Flapper who owns the red Stutz.

HELD on charge of breaking curfew law, Marge Boesen. Alleged to have spoken impudently to the policeman who arrested her.

HELD on charge of violating the closing ordinance, the A. O. P. house. Entrance was gained after 10 o'clock and warrant served.

NOW that the course in humanities is well started, it may be expected that Wisconsin will follow the example of Boston U and institute a course in bellhopping. With all the stories about traveling salesmen and chorus girls and bellhops, there will undoubtedly be a rush to enroll in the course. And then there is the matter of tips. We know that an engineer is unable to accept tips according to the code of his profession. It is the same with medical men. Such a restrictive code will cause these courses to be depleted, considering the average run of medics and plumbers.

TEN STUDENTS DISCIPLINED BY FACULTY BODY

Five Men and Five Women Must Do Extra Credits to Graduate

Since its report in February, the committee on discipline has taken the following actions:

A girl music student must do five extra credits toward graduation, and is placed on probation until June, for altering dates on a medical excuse.

Two freshmen in Mining Engineering, found guilty of fabricating data in surveying, must each do 10 extra credits toward graduation, and are placed on probation until June.

An Agric junior, found guilty of dishonesty in the final examination in Physics 61, must do 15 extra credits toward graduation, and is placed on probation until June.

A Civil Engineering junior, found guilty of falsifying data in Topographical Engineering, must do 12 extra credits toward graduation, and is placed on probation until June.

A Normal Course junior girl, found guilty of gross plagiarism in English 30, must do 12 extra credits toward graduation, and is placed on probation until June.

A Letters and Science freshman girl, found guilty of plagiarism in English 30, must do 10 extra credits toward graduation, and is placed on probation until June.

A Commerce freshman, found guilty of dishonesty (after a previous warning) in the final examination in Spanish 1a, must do 12 extra credits toward graduation, and is placed on probation until June.

A Letters and Science freshman girl, found guilty of dishonesty in English 1b, must do five extra credits toward graduation, and is placed on probation until June.

A Home Economics freshman girl, found guilty of dishonesty in English 1b, must do five extra credits toward graduation, and is placed on probation until June.

Michigan Students Balk on $4 Rent

Feeling that an average rate of $4 a week for student room rent, is too high, The Michigan Daily, the official student paper of the University of Michigan, is conducting a "lower prices" campaign in Ann Arbor. In spite of the fact that there was an over-supply of rooms in Ann Arbor last fall, the price has not been reduced.

The whole question of student rents at Michigan is hard to solve because most of the housekeepers in Ann Arbor rent their houses in turn from landlords who refuse to lower the house rent on the score of high taxes. The Daily plans to investigate the situation and its causes, from the standpoint of housekeeper, landlord, and business man of the town in question, in several surrounding universities, as a basis for comparison with Michigan prices.

Jorns Wins Prize In Poster Contest

First prize was awarded the poster submitted by Byron C. Jones '24 in the advertising contest carried on for the Passion play to be given at the Parkway theater April 10-12. Honorary mention was given the poster of Gertrude Kehl '24.

The prize poster is simple, featuring perfection in technique, with a divided space showing three crosses silhouetted on a light sky, and a dark gray and green background.

Gertrude Kehl's poster represents a glow of warm light streaming through the stained glass of a cathedral window, which depicts two women standing below the cross.

All of the posters are on display in the Commercial National bank on State street. The winning posters will be used on hand bills advertising the play.

A DARING MAN, A DARING MESSAGE

ON the last day of the Religious conference it may be well to pause and reflect on the results as they appear while the conference is yet in progress.

Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, the principal speaker, has deeply impressed his hearers with his simplicity, his earnestness, and the depth of his spiritual experience. He is no sensationalist. He is no pulpit demagogue. He is a man who is fully persuaded that religion is the one reality to which the individual and society must turn for personal integrity and social well being. This message he presents with a dignity and a sincerity of conviction that give authority to his words.

He teaches by parable and metaphor (the world has learned its greatest lessons in this way). Had he done nothing more than interpret the story of the Good Samaritan in terms of national and international duty and duty as it faces the students on the campus of the University of Wisconsin, the conference would be worth every bit of energy spent in making it possible.

It is easy enough to nod in assent when we are told that robber-nations should be curbed and that our own country should be compassionated to her sister nations laying half dead and stripped of their raiment. How difficult it is to bring pressure on presidents and congresses to help bind up the open wounds.

It is easy enough to agree that industrial robbers should stay their hands. How difficult it is to convert this feeling into statutes and make it general in the hearts of the employer and the employed.

But is it not much more difficult to think that this classic parable has any bearing on the life of the students in their classes, on the hill, or in the committee room? Is it not difficult to realize, as Dr. Gilkey pointed out, that intellectual and social pride as well as steel and brawn can be used to oppress one's weaker neighbors? Dr. Gilkey did not hesitate to draw a fearless illustration from incidents common to most universities in this country—the example of a boy who comes down to school from some obscure country town, not prepossessing in his appearance and without the marks of wealth. He is ignored by the social and intellectual elite. He is denied the encouragement and the strength which come from championship. In the uneven struggle he often loses his grip and falls when he might have succeeded. The "priests and the Levites" pass by him on the other side.

This is one of the problems which the conference has brought before the students. It is an intensely practical problem and hence an intensely religious problem. It is only one of many problems which arise when someone asks the dangerous question "Why not put religion to work in your own household?"

THE MIDNIGHT HOUR

Midnight sessions are among the most enjoyable experiences in college life. No classroom discussion can possibly take the place of the friendly, rambling, soul-revealing sort of argument that most of us carry in our memories as the choicest parts of our undergraduate days. Count not that time lost which is stolen from studies and dull, profitable education, to drag discussion through interminable windings while the room is filled with the atmosphere of philosophy and blue tobacco smoke, and the hands of the alarm clock, which is to ring at 7 a. m., slowly move around to 4 o'clock in the morning.

This is the time when friendship is tested, when toleration, and fair-mindedness are taxed to the limit, when Utopian schemes are advanced to reform religion, college politics, or the social system. That is the time when generous or impracticable impulses have full sway, when man meets man without his deceiving mask of manner and custom, on a basis of complete acceptance and equality. That is the time when a man forgets that he has always considered it actually immodest to expose his own feelings and beliefs, and when he speaks the thoughts that are in his mind with full assurance of understanding. That is the time when the friends are made whom we mean to keep through life with us.—Columbia Spectator.

THE LONG-SUFFERING STUDENT

Midst a flood of attack upon the college student of today, the Dartmouth comes boldly to his support, venturing the opinion that he is not nearly as bad as his critics make out, and even going so far as to say that he as a type is improving in intellectual interests, standards of value, and morals. Of course there is a great deal of truth in what the Dartmouth has to say, just as there is much truth in what the critics say against the college student. The undergraduate has many good qualities and many shortcomings; to see either to the exclusion of the other is a mistake.

Says the Dartmouth: "Ask the men who flunked out this semester whether their parents are satisfied because they made the best fraternity, dressed well, made friends—and flunked out." The answer is that busting—as we call it here—is often a wholesome jolt to the student who has had his eye fixed on "getting by." The need of passing the required hours is too frequently a necessary evil accompanying a pleasant college life. When a student busts he realizes too late that his standards of value have been wrong.

It is such things as this that the valiant defender of the college student is likely to overlook. The critic who asserts that the undergraduate is all bad is equally blind to the facts. But a dozen students err by being too self-satisfied to every one who goes to the opposite extreme. We may expect a fair share of honest praise and of honest censure, but we shall benefit more by the latter.—Cornell Daily Sun.

Indecency Seethes In Latest Spasm of Petting Apostle

"Beautiful and Damned" Exceeds Paradise Book in "Realism"

By CEDRIC E. SEAMAN

If one is a regular reader of the Police Gazette one will be able to get a most profound kick out of F. Scott Fitzgerald's latest literary gusher "The Beautiful and Damned."

If the longshoreman who expresses himself in profanity is "clever," so is Fitzgerald. If vulgarity is a mark of literary ability, he is a writer. If it takes "a delicate weaver of words" to appeal to the literary tastes of a lover of obscenity, then the author of "The Beautiful and Damned" is just that.

Sinclair Lewis says that Fitzgerald will be the equal of any young European writer, and we agree that some day he may be the equal of the editor of "La Vie Parisienne."

Chance for Frosh

This latest offering of literary lumber is typically modern in that it has but a single purpose which may be condensed into a single character—$.

The psychology of advertising has proven that a book in order to be numbered among the "best sellers" must be seething with indecent references. This book is numbered among the so called "best sellers."

A high school freshman with an assortment of newspaper clippings, a few popular songs, and examples of eastern college satire, who could not duplicate "The Beautiful and Damned" should never receive a diploma.

"Books and Booze"

The general lack of unity throughout the volume reminds us of that familiar definition of ragtime as "the ravings of a gin crazed nigger."

Fitzgerald labels his descriptions in the same way that a country school boy draws a picture on the board and writes the caption below, "This is a cow."

Condensed, the whole thing amounts to just this:

A boob who boasts of a rich uncle and a gluttonous appetite for booze meets a hand-made blonde who boasts of a munitudinous following of passionate cave men and a weakness for gum drops.

Sober Up

The vamp is the kind of a woman that can take care of herself even to pushing a guy over a 16 foot bank when he tries to get fast with her. She smokes, drinks, swears, and loves promiscuously.

After a most nauseating affair de coeur, the boob drags the baby vamp away from a Jew salesman and marries her.

Their married life consists of sobering up long enough to sell more bonds to buy more booze.

But why go into details? If, as "The Bookman" says, "F. Scott Fitzgerald is one of the most promising writers of today," we feel certain that the millenium is far off.

Lit To Offer Prizes in Quotation Contest

("He kisses her definitely and thoroughly")

Do you recognize the above accurate and literal description of a familiar gesture? Does it call to your mind a certain notorious author?

To stimulate interest in modern and ancient literature the Wisconsin Literary Magazine will run in its next number an essay composed of many famous quotations, starting with the above, the source of which the reading public is invited to guess and win a prize certain $5 volumes, whose titles will be announced later.

U. W. Wireless Will Broadcast Music Recitals

A course in musical appreciation will be broadcasted by radiophone by the university wireless station under the direction of Prof. Edgar B. Gordon, chief of the Bureau of Community Music, Extension Division.

"The success of the experiments carried on by the radio station in broadcasting phonograph music, concerts, and recitals given at the university has led us to believe that this means might be used for the systematic and educational presentation of musical material," said Professor Gordon.

Introductory to the course, a violin recital was given last night by Waldemar Galtch, former professor of music at the university. The recital was supplemented by Professor Gordon's interpretation.

Farming Replaces Fighting In India Declares Warrior

P. C. Patil, Member of Military Cast, Picks Wisconsin For Ag Work

Warriors are out of a job in India, according to Pandurang C. Patil, a member of the maratha or military caste of India, who is enrolled as a graduate of agriculture at the university.

"The fighting men have become farmers," he says, "but there is little opportunity for intelligent cultivation. The farms are small, labor is cheap, and consequently the people are very poor."

Under the British government, Patil has charge of agriculture in a section of Bombay as large as Great Britain. Under him are 50 men who carry out his instructions in the management and development of small, non-profitable farms into large, scientifically cultivated plantations, which he expects, will become paying propositions.

Thinks Wisconsin Best

Considering the University of Wisconsin as offering the most practical course in agricultural economics, Patil came here for the first semester of this year to make an intensive study of the methods taught in the Wisconsin college of agriculture so that he may help solve the problems which are perplexing the economists and agriculturists of India today. He was pleased with the work, and became so enthusiastic over the "Wisconsin atmosphere" that he decided to stay longer.

"The American and Indian systems of education can not be compared," says Patil, "because here the schools are controlled by the people; rich and poor alike are allowed equal privileges, while in India only those with wealth and influence receive any advantages."

After graduating from college in Poona City, India, Patil managed a large experimental farm, and lectured in the college. He then traveled through Europe, studying methods of agricultural organization in the light of Indian conditions. In India and England, he was advised that the courses taught at Wisconsin in land economics were the best.

When he completes the second semester and the summer school, Patil intends to visit the northern and southern sections of this country, studying the systems of cultivation in use on our large ranches and plantations. He will also investigate the work of the government department of agriculture at Washington. A short trip through the West will end his stay in America.

"Glass of Fashion" Squelches Margot

Gentleman With a Duster Gives Gossip For Gossip in Pleasing Way

by
HENRY, EARL OF RAWSBURY
Rawsbury Manor
March Twelfth

"The Glass of Fashion" is by no means a magnifying glass but rather casts the true reflection upon two of the most notorious scandal-mongers of modern literature. The glib wife of the unfortunate Mr. Asquith, and the modern Malvolio Repington have received the reprimand that has been coming to them ever since the two began peddling other people's reputations.

Margot is shown in the proper light by one who knows her most intimately. Her gossip has been most thoroughly squelched by a man whose book has had a greater sale than the "Memoirs," which failed to shake the foundation from underneath British society as the Asquithian had expected.

Away With Glitter!

In short, the vanity of the Colonel and of Margot so overshadows the malignant anecdotes about good Anglo-Saxons that one is forced to laugh at the authors rather than at the characters of their books.

The Gentleman with a Duster uses his duster with great finesse. He sweeps the glitter and veneer from the surface of the two gossip-parasites and twists their own words down their throats and chokes them to death.

Of course, dear old "Duster" may be criticised for the very thing that he criticizes—gossiping, but when one dislikes a person, and one cannot be 100 per cent unprejudiced, it tickles the chords that respond so quickly and pleasantly to gossip.

Germicide Is Welcome

As are all the "Mirror" books, so is "The Glass of Fashion," delightful in style and language. The artistry of the "Gentleman" is more than interesting—it is fascinating.

All Britain welcomed this book as a germicide to disinfect the minds of the few feeble in America who took the "Diaries" and the "Memoirs" as gospel, but it is fortunate that the few feeble were fewer than was anticipated, and the work that "The Glass of Fashion" did to reinstate the British aristocracy was of slight consequence.

However, for those who want good, clever, portraits of those who gave themselves entirely and altruistically during the dark days of 1914, portraits unsullied by malice and childish malefaction, can have them in engaging installments in "The Glass of Fashion."

Earl Is Optimistic

One thing that the Earl of Rawsbury has learned is that for every literary disease there is a literary antidote. Dreiser, Hergesheimer, and O'Neil please note.

The Earl has received a telegram from Chicago which says that the police department has been convinced of the "Triumph of the Yegg."

But this is neither here nor there.

The Earl is positive that shortly there will bloom in this country a Gentleman with more than a duster whose power over the reading public will make it impossible for publishers to create a "best seller" save on the literary merit alone.

Lauds Yale Efforts to Abolish Publishing of Post-Season Myths in Papers

By CHAS. J. LEWIN

"Daddy, what ameks a crazy quilt crazy?" a youngster asked his ancestor on the paternal side during one of those occasions which are as rare as a day in June.

"The same thing, son," answered the fond parent, "that makes a blind tiger blind, a deaf mute deaf, and a cuckoo clock coo-coo."

This answer, which is an aggravated compendium of synonyms that border on the edge of nothing, could remain in cold type as a reply to the ages-old interrogation, "Why is an All-Conference Team?"

Ever since the recent uproar against professionalism among college sportsmen, there have been ways and means suggested to purge the methods of managing college athletics throughout the broad expanse of these United States and to put them on a basis where the cry of the white mouse to its mate and the frenzied shriek of Croesus to his athletic star could not be heard.

Yale Starts It

Among the divers suggestions was one emanating from an eastern university familiarly called Yale which asked for the abolition of All-American and all-star teams. Why Yale should ask for this abolishment is a mooted question. Walter Camp has surely treated her fairly enough, even going so far as to put one or two of the big Blue huskies on his all-constellation eleven each year.

But, that is neither here nor there. In the interests of the truly amateur athlete, worthy propaganda has been disseminated with the purpose of eliminating selection of mythical teams as one way of throwing a distinct nebula over the glamour which has recently been cast about college athletics.

From the great Camp down to the sporting editor of the Hicksville Cough, writers have busily wasted valuable time in their attempts to choose representative outfits in football, basketball, and baseball.

The East is Right

What other knowledge they gain about the basketball tossers will be the result of unreliable readings. An obvious injustice is done meritorious players who are left from such honorary teams as are picked, because of prejudices on the part of the judge. Athletes will fight as hard for their teams even if there is not a plum of honor hung out for them at the end of the season.

Much as we dislike to admit it, the East is right. The abolition of mythical elevens, fives, and nines would benefit all college sports up to and including crap games, which reminds us that there is, by the way, a movement on foot to hold a telegraphic crap meet in the near future. If this becomes a major sport, somebody will want to choose an all-crapshooters team.

All-Conference selections are usually about as fair as a Chinese judge trying a laundry case. They are as honest as the bird who buys moonshine with the money taken from his youngster's bank, and have as much weight as a Congressman's brains in a vacuum.

To make a short story shorter, honorary teams will soon be out of vogue, and as passe as the bustle, and amateur college athletics will undoubtedly benefit by their absence.

Jamboree Prizes to be Offered by Local Merchants

Everything from candy to Kodaks has been offered by Madison merchants for prizes at the 1923 Jamboree, April 1.

The best costumed groups and individuals, the best stunts, the best clown, and the best fox trotting pair, each will be awarded some valuable souvenir of the occasion.

A committee of seniors composed of "Bill" Purnell, Marjorie Boesch, and George Bunge will choose the prize dancers of the evening, while Prof. and Mrs. Carl Russell Fish, Prof. and Mrs. G. H. Stuart, and Miss Gertrude Johnson will decide the winners of the other prizes.

Group Prizes

Two first prizes for groups, one for men and the other for women, have been offered. The best men's group will be given a silver cup. The corresponding award for the women is a silver service. Other group prizes and their donors are: Six phonograph records, Albert Smith, Hook Brothers, Forbes and Meagher, and University Music shop; pecan roll, Chocolate shop; box cigars, Morgan Brothers.

Speth's Clothing store has offered the best clown a pen knife. The University pharmacy has given a box of cigars for the man of the best costumed couple and Mrs. Joachim a box of candy for the woman.

Costume Winners

The man with the best fancy dress costume will get a $15 Premo kodak from the Photoart; second best, a leather belt from Rupp's Haberdashery company.

A half a dozen photographs from the Badger studio will go to the woman in the most attractive costume and a box of stationery from Netherwood company to the winner of the second place.

For extraordinary fox trotting, the man will win a box of Morgan's cigars and his partner five pounds of Keeley's candy.

The three prizes for the best stunts on the program are: a pair of candlesticks donated by McKillop Art company; for the best large group, a desk lamp from the Frautschi Furniture company; for the woman in the best small group, a bottle of toilet water from the Badger pharmacy.

"LITTLE GIANT" DEBATES AGAIN

STERLING TRACY

Sterling Tracy '22, known in forensic circles as "The Little Giant," will appear in his third Wisconsin intercollegiate debate next Friday evening in Music hall when he will act as closer for the Badgers against the Michigan trio.

Tracy has had debating experience in a joint debate for his society Philomathia, as well as in the collegiate contests. Last year he further showed his oratorical ability by winning first place for Wisconsin in the Northern Oratorical contest. He was the fourth Badger in more than a quarter of a century to win this honor.

Tracy is also a member of Iron Cross, Beta Chi Sigma, Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Delta Chi, and Delta Sigma Rho fraternities. He is chief editorial writer of The Daily Cardinal.

Sandwiches Satisfy Inner Cravings Of Inmates Of Gath Inn

The hungry Ye Gath Inners craved food—sandwiches in general and deviled ham sandwiches in particular. So it was that Elizabeth Fox '23 came to their rescue and established a table that satisfies.

Drop a nickel and take your pick from an assortment of peanut butter, cheese, lettuce, or deviled ham sandwiches. Two dozen sandwiches disappear quickly. The "raid" is most violent between 3 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and again at 11 o'clock the starved throng gathers in the hall.

"Although I have only made 19 cents during the past week I feel sure that it would be a profitable business for anyone who wanted to earn money," said Elizabeth Fox, the originator of the Gath Inn sandwich system.

BOBBED AND HAIR NETTED

Bobbed hair has come into disfavor with University of Chicago co-eds. Members of two girls' classes whose shorn tresses had been conspicuous on the campus, today appeared with the bobs done up in hair nets. "The time for the bob is passed," one of them explained. "The girl of today wants to look like she had plenty of pretty hair."

WEATHER

The highest temperature during the past 24 hours was 39 at 2 p. m., yesterday, the lowest 29 at 7 a. m. this morning. The sun sets at 5:59.

Rain and wind is accompanying the storm from the southwest that is now crossing the central and eastern states. The weather is fair and warmer on the plains. The barometer is low in the Rocky mountains and plateau region with

Character Sketches To Be Presented

Character sketches drawn from the period between the medieval and the crinoline periods will be offered by Mme. Marie Lydia Standish Wednesday evening, March 15, at 8:15, in Lathrop concert hall, under the auspices of Red Domino, women's dramatic society.

Miss Standish will recite folk legends with musical accompaniment adapted from the original songs, and will give each sketch in a finished act with costume, special setting, and lighting effect.

She comes to the university recommended by Prof. J. M. O'Neill of the department of speech. She has been making tours throughout the country and has appeared before many groups.

Tickets will be 50 cents and may be secured Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at Bascom hall.

St. Patrick Stunts
Feature Functions
As Society Revives

Dinner dances and parties have resumed their normal trend, and unique St. Patrick stunts are being offered at week end affairs. Bridge parties are in evidence among the students who desire afternoon entertainment.

St. Patrick's Decorations
Feature Phi Sig Dinner Dance

Emerald and white decorations produced a novel and attractive effect at the formal dinner dance given last evening by Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity in the Elizabethan room at the Park hotel. Shamrocks, small clay pipes, and other features suggestive of St. Patrick's day were used on the tables, and favors of clay pipes and boxes of candy were laid at each cover.

Several guests from out of town attended the affair. Miss Elizabeth Twine and Willard Aschenbrenner, Milwaukee, Miss Helen Hartnell, Edward Fisher, Miss Katharine Finley, and Clark Finley, Janesville, were among those who came from away to be present.

Music Party an Unusual
Entertainment at Delt House

A record dance was a unique feature of the Delta Tau Delta dancing party last evening which was planned and decorated with everything suggestive of music. For the record dance, each guest received a victrola record and the records were matched for partners for the dance. The house was decorated chiefly with sheet music which was hung from the ceilings and on the walls. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Teckemeyer chaperoned the party.

Pi Phi Entertains
At Large Bridge Party

About 30 tables were filled yesterday afternoon at the bridge party which members of Pi Beta Phi gave at their chapter house for the benefit of the settlement school which the sorority keeps up in Gatlinburg, Tenn. A large number of alumnae as well as active members of other sororities were guests.

Delta Gamma Gives Banquet
And Entertainment for Alumnae

About 25 alumnae members of Delta Gamma were guests at the chapter house yesterday afternoon at an informal reunion. Guests were entertained by stunts given by the freshmen and sophomores of the chapter, and an informal banquet was served at 6 o'clock.

Dinner Guests Today at Delta Tau Delta House

Members of Delta Tau Delta will be hosts to several guests this noon at dinner at their chapter house. Among the guests who have been invited are Gertrude McFarlane, May O'Connor, Sybil Mossman, Helen Humiston, Helen Gillison, and Hildegard Jung. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Teckemeyer will chaperon.

Delta Sigma Phi
Initiation Announcement

Delta Sigma Phi fraternity announces the formal initiation of Ralph L. Nichols '25, Arthur R. Wienke '25, George G. Stebbins '25, Ralph V. Galby '24, and Frederick E. Jones '25. An initiation banquet will be given this noon at 1 o'clock at the chapter house.

Personal

The Misses Wilma Neuling, Esther Fehlhaber, and Grace Greenwood are visiting in Appleton this week end.

Miss Martha Hollingsworth is visiting at her home in Sheboygan. Miss Dierdre Cox, Beloit, is a guest of Alpha Phi sorority for the week end.

Miss Ethel Zimmerman is spending a few days in Milwaukee.

Miss Mildred Klann has as her guest at the Theta house for a few days, her sister, Miss Helen Klann, Milwaukee.

Miss Helen Bull, Oak Park, is a guest at the Alpha Phi house.

Miss Margaret Callen is at her home in Chicago for the week end.

Miss Helen Bradford is spending the week end in Appleton.

Parsley, Severance, and Kasbeer Are To Head Three Women's Organizations

MARJORIE SEVERANCE '23

The largest number of votes in the history of women's organizations was polled last Friday when Cleo Parsley '23 was elected president of S. G. A., Marjorie Severance '23, of W. A. A.; and Helen Kasbeer '23, of Y. W. C. A. The three presidents chosen have taken part in many student activities.

W. A. A. promotes an active interest in women's athletics; S. G. A.

CLEO PARSLEY '23

encourages the right kind of living and thinking.

Approximately 650 votes were cast for S. G. A., 441 for Y. W. C. A. and 135 for W. A. A. The joint election system, tried out for the first time in this election, was accepted as a satisfactory method of voting, both for its interest and economy.

Flapper Filofofe

Syncopated Flaps

"Broken Toy" and "Good-Bye Shanghai" are the best sellers in sheet music at Hook's this week. "Why Don't You Smile" in the Edison record and "Dapper Dan" in the Columbia record are the favorite tunes.

Cocoon Kisses

The next time he comes to see you, vary the program a little by treating him to some home-made kisses. They are very simple to make. Just measure four cups of powdered sugar into a blue china bowl, add the white of one egg, four heaping tablespoons of water, and as much vanilla extract and lemon extract as you think necessary.

Mix the sugar, egg white, extracts and water, and then add a cup of coconut being careful not to drop more than one shred in at a time. Beat until stiff and mold into balls. Serve them in cute little blue dishes. They are delicious and what's more, they are guaranteed to satisfy.

Fashion Follies

Kessenich's are showing white ratinee collars and vestees for tuxedo sweaters trimmed with colored embroidery, priced from $4 up. They are very smart for the new sport suits.

Commerce Honorary
Picks Women Soon

Alpha Gamma Pi, women's honorary commerce fraternity, will announce elections to membership within the next week. The list of recommendations is now in the hands of the faculty committee for endorsement.

Wisconsin chapter of Alpha Gamma Pi was installed in 1919 as Beta chapter of the organization founded at Columbia university. It is a strictly honorary group whose membership is based upon excellence in scholarship and general ability.

Laura Heim '22 is president, Pearl Lichtfeldt '22, vice-president; Ruth Lindstrom '22, secretary, and Margaret Kiekhofer '23, treasurer. Members in the faculty are the Misses Irene Hensey and Helen Roth. Prof. E. A. Scott and F. H. Elwell are honorary faculty members.

This year the Wisconsin chapter has carried on an advisory bureau for women transfers in the course in commerce.

The badge of the women's honorary commerce group is an open key with the letters running diagonally from right to left across the center

Basketball Tourney
Opens Friday Night
With Double Header

The women's basketball tournament which will open Friday night with a double header, seniors versus sophomores and freshmen versus juniors, gives every promise of being as close this year as it has been for the past three years.

Seniors, juniors, and sophomores will enter the games with practically the same lineup that they had last year. The juniors, who were victorious last year, have lost Margaret Henry, star forward, but the Knights-Humphrich combination has proved a great basket-getter in the preliminary practices.

Senior Hopes High

The team is also strengthened by the addition of Betty Pratt, whose guarding game is said to equal that of "Slim" Mainland, last year's Varsity guard.

The seniors, who ran a close second in the tournament last year, have high hopes for success this year. Lyman and Fish have an offense of close passing and dribbling, which seldom fails to put one or the other of them in shooting position, and they seldom miss a shot. Several possible center combinations can be worked with the three centers, Barton, Kilgore, and Roach, but it is probable that Roach and Barton will start the game Friday.

Freshmen Handicapped

The sophomores are placing their hopes largely in the speed and team play of Bilstead and Smith in the center. Harris who, as a freshman, made last year's Varsity, is expected to do much of their scoring.

The freshman team has been sadly handicapped by the loss of much of the best material through ineligibility. Fisher, at forward, puts up a formidable game and even the last year's champions are expecting no walk-away in next Friday's game.

Courage! Flappers!
There's Still Hope

The homely co-ed is no better adapted to university training than her pretty classmate, according to reports from the University of California.

After working out the averages of the co-eds in their departments of the University of California, Professor Bolin of the department of education, and Dr. L. S. Holes of the zoology department, contrary to their former belief, came to the conclusion that the "flapper" and the "campus vamp" are not mentally handicapped by their personal charms.

CUTTING CLASS— It is utterly impossible for any more or less human being to attend every class with mathematical precision. The Creator did not construct him according to any such Willy-boy plan. Nor does the Darwinian theory even imply that our anthropological ancestors were at all regular about being in the same tree at the same time. To say that the objections of a bunch of fossilated pedagogues to a man's absence from class, unless he is flat on his back with peritonitis, is anything but a hang-over from the hey-day of parental discipline would be opening one's mouth to splutter forth an idiotic platitude. When you deprive a full-grown and voting male, or an aspiring female, of the privilege of distorting his gray matter over the problem of not attending class, you are usurping the divine right of kings in a fashion that would make Wilhelm II raise his withered left arm in horror.

NEWSPAPERS FOR NOTHING—Diogenes knew that the beams of his lantern would never fall on an honest man. And who today can deny him his belief? Only those poor mental deficients who erect the help-yourself systems and then raise a rumpus because a few pennies were missing at the end of the week. And, after all, whose business is it whether a man puts two or three cents in the box when he takes his evening paper? And what if he fails to pay for it at all? It would be meet justice and a fair reward for the kind of slop called journalism that he has to read. Moral duty? Bla-a-a! What moral duty is there toward institutions that trade on advertised immoralities?

EDUCATION—Any man who asserts that he receives an education at a fresh-water college is either a fool or a liar. He may be both. Education does not consist in avidly gathering the second-hand pearls that drip haltingly from some professor's lips; nor does it consist in escorting some weak-minded female pompously about the streets and then shaking hands with her at the door. True, the average hunkey can grind his way through some course in four or five years and then hold down a job as somebody's underwear salesman at $10,000 a year, but what of it? The only time he caused any great movement within his cranium was when he tried to get a prescription or cribbed in a Latin examination.

UNDERGRADUATE DRUNKENNESS—In the first place it is childish and disgusting. The habit of reserving a week-end night for the purpose of patronizing some law-breaking son of Italy, and then appearing on the public way in a condition comparable only to that of a maniac or a Hottentot, is the product of a weak mind and general lack of stable character. These young bloods are aware that drinking is a gentleman's pastime, and being romantic youths, they would be gentlemen. Their most vociferous imitation falls short, and they prove themselves repellent asses. And yet there is no reason for believing that the established gentleman was not at some time or other a striving youth. But he had better stuff to strive on. He knew the difference between a dry Martini and Black Bear Kummel, and did not have to build a reputation on rotten grape mash or a few quarts of fusel oil.

CAMPUS HUMOR— There is nothing more pitiful than an undergraduate making a hopeless attempt to be funny. The popular superstition that the college man has a sense of humor ranks with the belief that the Englishman has none. The college publications and the alleged humorous columns are nothing more than excellent advertising pamphlet as for a manufacturer of tombstones. The impudent college lad who thrives on the reputation of a funny man would be hooted from the stage of a third-rate vaudeville house, and is preparing for a highly successful career as a cigar clerk.

BREAKING DATES— The co-ed who reserves the right to change her mind about a date when she is offered a more golden opportunity is a fool if she hesitates. And the man who condemns her is usually the one who had the first date. He has some cause for objection, no doubt, but his fellows should remember his prejudices and judge the woman according to her appearance and virtue.

Any woman who practices the art is influenced by two qualities; her strong mind, and her desire for entertainment. And when she has a date for a show and feels like riding around the country roads, who shall judge her if she breaks it and goes out with the owner of the desired amount of horsepower.

YOUNG INSTRUCTORS— No man under forty-five years of age should be allowed to instruct hopeless idiots in the art of living. It is not until a man reaches the middle ages that he has the unqualified nerve to take himself seriously. And a man under forty-five is himself nothing but a hopeless idiot. He is in the same class with those whom he attempts to instruct. His class-room conversation consists of feeble imitations of Oscar Wilde with a liberal sprinkling of jokes of a questionable character. The man who has passed the age of 45 at least think he knows what he is talking about; the young instructor does absolutely no thinking at all.

Offers Banks Advice To Safeguard Deposits

Banking Commissioner Marshall Cousins proposes to do more than the prescribed projecting of bank depositors' savings from fraud and speculation. He has undertaken means to provide for the frustration of theft and burglary. In a bulletin he notifies all banks that his department has arranged to enable banks to obtain expert advice in the erection of bank buildings, vaults, safes and protective devices. The service is free.

Gasoline Store Blast Causes Damage Here

Considerable damage resulted from the explosion of a gasoline stove at the home of Andrew Hefner, 1921 Winnebago st., shortly after 11 o'clock Friday night. Mr. Hefner was getting a late lunch for himself when the explosion occurred. Fire company No. 3 extinguished the blaze, but not before some damage had been done to furniture and bed-clothing. A roof fire occurred at the I. L. Lang home, 1135 E. Johnson st. Friday night. A small hole was burnt in the roof before the fire could be extinguished.

Historical Number To Be Largest Octy

Forty-four pages containing an abundance of satirical art drawings make the Historical number of the Octopus, appearing next Wednesday, March 15, the largest book published by the Octopus since its founding three years ago. The largest book size heretofore published has been 40 pages.

Two full page drawings by Hubert Townsend '23, one by Elmer Kruse '22, and a two page spread by Walter C. Sihuetz '23 are outstanding art features of the number. Copy and art have been prepared with predominate historical references to make the book a complete feature issue.

Muriel J. Leitzell '24, who has been contributing art work to the Octopus for some time, has been made a member of the editorial staff.

February Building in Middle West Increases

Building is picking up according to the F. W. Dodge Co.'s review of February construction, which shows for the United States an increase of 73 percent over February of last year. Although Wisconsin was not among the states having the highest increases, a pick-up of 39 percent over last February of 6 percent since this January are recorded.

February building contracts in the central west, including Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Kansas, and parts of Kansas and Nebraska, total to the sum of $45,250,000, and contemplated new work amounted to $127,869,000, more than double the amount of contracts awarded, which points to a still greater increase in building to come.

AMES SHUTS BADGERS OUT IN MAT MEET

52-0 Victory Gives Iowa Grapplers Clean Slate

With the worst defeat of the season, and the most decisive score ever piled up against them, Coach Hitchcock's wrestlers returned Saturday from Ames, Iowa, where they met the State "Cyclones" in a dual meet Friday night. The final score was 52 to 0, the same as has been rolled up against every Western collegiate team that met Ames this season.

"Wisconsin however has the distinction of having put up the closest scrap throughout all of the bouts the Ames men have gone through," said Coach Hitchcock. "In fact they were mighty lucky and admitted it themselves, to win decisions over my two men, Peterman and Templin."

Every match, from the 115 pound class to the heavyweights, was a fierce slam-bang affair, with the Ames men rushing their less experienced foes to the mat where they applied some of the fastest and most effective holds known to amateur wrestling. Only in the welterweight and middleweight classes did the Cyclones run into any serious opposition, and there they had to exert every ounce of strength and ingenuity to win decisions. The rest of the matches went by falls.

Ames will send six of their seven men to Madison for the big individual championship bouts Friday and Saturday nights. Wisconsin fans will then have an opportunity to see some of the cleverest men in action in amateur wrestling. Four men in each class, the pick of the Western conference, will be selected to fight it out for the titles.

Summary of the Ames meet:

115-pound—Sogaard, A., defeated Phelps, W., fall in 3:03.
125-pound—Loucks, A., defeated Woelffer, W., fall in 4:56.
135-pound—Bowen, A., defeated Cattau, W., fall in 2:58.
145-pound—Shepard, A., defeated Peterman, W., decision, time advantage 1:14.
159-pound—McKibbin, A., defeated Templin, W., decision, time advantage, 1:04.
175-pound—Smith, A., defeated Heuer, W., fall in 10:46.
Heavyweight—Zink, A., defeated Kiessling, W., fall in 8:36.

meissl, and Platten each scored five points to tie for Wisconsin high point man. Ramsay won the mile run from Ashton and Goodrich, of Iowa. He trailed Ashton until the last lap. Coming from behind on the stretch, the Badger runner overtook his Hawkeye opponent and beat him by a scant yard.

Newell's victory in the hurdles came after Stolley, who finished first, had been disqualified for knocking over three hurdles. The timers clocked Stolley in 5-1-5 seconds, one-fifth of a second faster than the annex record made by Capt. "Al" Knollin this year. The mark was not allowed because of Stolley's disqualification. Knollin failed to place in his event.

Although Wisconsin was weakened by the loss of George Finkle and Mark Wall in the distance runs, it took first place in both the mile and the two mile events. Rossmeißl stepped out in the longer distance and copped from Peterman, of Iowa, in a close race. Peterman spurred on the last lap, but was unable to overtake the Badger. Moorhead won third in the run, defeating Ashton.

Madison Sends Two Prep Basket Fives To Normal Tourney

Winners of Normal School Rounds Eligible For Meet Here

Basketball teams representing the two Madison high schools are working out regularly in preparation for the normal school tournament which will be held on March 16, 17, 18 at Whitewater.

Madison high and Wisconsin high have two of the best teams that will compete. Coach Otto Endres is sending his five through a series of hard practices. Other teams which are expected to loom as serious contenders in the tournament are Janesville, Milton Union, Fort Atkinson, Evansville, and Oregon. Evansville won first place in the Milton college tournament and Milton Union took second place.

The Platteville Normal school tourney is scheduled for March 15, 16, 17. Monticello, winner of the Beloit college series, is touted as probable winner at Platteville. Other strong teams throughout the state are Superior, Menominee, Elmwood, Rhinelander, and Antigo.

Superior, Menominee, Elmwood, and Rhinelander took prominent parts in last year's state championship tournament which was held at Madison. Rhinelander had a fast, little team which was unable to cope with heavier opponents and as a result did not get into the semifinals. Superior showed winning form throughout the tourney, but an unexpected defeat prevented the northern giants from gaining a place in the finals.

Chairman Hubert F. Perrin '22 and his various committees are in the midst of preparations for the Seventh Annual Wisconsin State Championship Basketball tournament which will be held at Madison on March 23, 24, 25. Winners in the normal meets are eligible for the championship tourney.

Hohlfeld, Wisconsin entries.

The mile relay was captured by a Wisconsin quartet in 3 minutes 37 3-5 seconds, two seconds slower than the annex record. Spetz took the lead at the start and gained a safe margin during his quarter. Stolley ran second and McCandless was pitted against Brookins. Iowa star runner, in the third leg of the race. Johnson, Wisconsin anchor man, maintained the lead given him and bested Wilson to win the race. Commerce runners won the two-thirds inter-college relay, and Letters and Science speedsters took first in the two mile relay.

The summaries follow:
40 yard dash—Brookins, I, first; Spetz, W, second; Wilson, I, third. Time 4 2-5 seconds.

Pole vault—Merrick and Hamman, W, tied for first; Tomlinson, W, Meder, I, and Jaqua, I, tied for third. Height 11 feet 6 inches.

Mile run—Ramsay, W, first; Ashton, I, second; Goodrich, I, third. Time 4 minutes 34 2-5 seconds.

40 yard high hurdles—Newell, W, first; Bolding, I, second; Shope, I, third. Time 5 1-5 seconds.

Shot put—Sundt, W, first; Gude, W, second; Harding, I, third. Distance 40 feet 11 inches.

Waste Containers to Be Placed Around City

New waste containers will be placed about the city free of charge. The council approved the report of the street committee last night, giving Walker and Davis Co. permission to install them. The company will use one side for advertising purposes, it is understood. The committee also recommended that the Wisconsin high-mission be granted permission to erect a gasoline tank in the 2000 block of E. Johnson st.
