Ivy Sees Good Squad, With High Morale

To Alumni and Friends of Wisconsin:

THIS IS A YEAR of optimism throughout the entire Western Conference and I have reason to believe that there is much to substantiate that collective view by coaching staffs of the member schools.

At any rate, there never has been such an array of top-flight football talent in the Big Ten since I came to Wisconsin six years ago.

All of which points to another stirring championship campaign in which the contention will be wide spread.

We will have a good football team this fall at Wisconsin. What this presages in the number of victories and losses, only time and circumstances will reveal. But we have a squad that now is settled in a victory tradition and has the morale to accept the challenge that goes with that.

For the first time since 1949, we have some depth in material, although it is inexperienced and untested, particularly at the tackle positions where we have only one major letterman returning. But the promise is there and it can be developed.

We will have a fine quarterback in young Jimmy Miller, top rated passer in the Big Ten last year as a sophomore, and we have the greatest fullback in the nation in Alan Ameche, the best football player I have ever coached. Captain-elect Gary Messner is a good leader and a fine center, particularly on defense. And there are others, all of whom are designated in the report on Wisconsin football prospects by Art Lentz in this Bulletin.

Last year I told you that you can expect to see a hustling and representative Badger football team whose play will be encouraging to all of our followers. That goes for this year too.

Sincerely

Ivan B. Williamson

During the past five years Guardian Life's Insurance has increased over 50 Million Dollars

Back when the forward pass was just a stunt, National Guardian Life had its beginning. Today it is recognized as one of Wisconsin's great institutions. Insurance in force totals over $162 million, an increase of over 56% since Ivy came. Guardian Life, like Wisconsin's football team, has gained national recognition.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT squad shows balance and depth

BY ART LENTZ

U.W. Sports News Service

THE CHANCES are pretty good that Wisconsin again will field a "representative" team on the gridiron this Fall, and, if it does, Badger football fans will be assured of a sixth straight season of high-grade performance by an Ivy Williamson-coached eleven.

By "representative" is meant a tough contender for Big Ten title honors and Rose Bowl consideration. The term is predicated on the past five seasons of football effort by the Badgers who, each time, have gone to the final gun with a chance to win or tie for the Western Conference championship.

Main reason for the openly optimistic viewpoint around Camp Randall stems from the fact that Wisconsin, more than any other time in recent years, is physically equipped and prepared for the strenuous schedule that lies ahead of it this Fall.

It is true that the Badgers lost three of their four regular tackles by graduation and that the tremendous "outside" running threat supplied by the Harland Carl–Jerry Witt tandem has run its alloted three-year course. But, at this writing, the talent available from freshman ranks and the holdover from last year's campaign gives Wisconsin adequate depth in material for the first time since Ivy took over the Badger coaching reins.

Even more important is the fact that there is little dropoff between first line and reserve stock. All of which leads to a more competitive situation in the squad itself. This was fairly closely defined in the Spring drills and even more noticeable in the Spring final game.

Inexperience at some positions and a lack of explosive speed in the backfield are the two main problems confronting the Badger grid staff but these can be discounted by the prospects of a stronger defensive effort and a more powerful, though slower, offensive.

To make full use of the material on hand, Williamson and his aides added the single-wing formation to the offensive pattern of T-formation and split-T which has characterized Wisconsin football since 1949. The squad readily adapted itself to the new formation during Spring drills and the results were much more than were expected. How much the single-wing will be employed during the fall is debatable but the Spring game revealed its use to be about 20 per cent.

Badgers will have to grind out yardage the hard way - but they've got the equipment to do it!

Specifically it was added to give more diversity to Wisconsin's attack and to further utilize the running ability of Jimmy Miller, the quarterback who made good as a sophomore last Fall. Certainly it has given Alan Ameche, Wisconsin's All-American fullback, a wider range for his stampedes.

Your Next Football Bulletin follows the first three Badger games and will be the second in the 1954 series published by the Wisconsin Alumni Association

At the same time, Williamson has acknowledged that, by its employment, Wisconsin would learn also how to defense properly against it. Of the 12 defeats sustained by Wisconsin since 1949, seven were to teams using the singlewing while two of the four ties were with single-wing teams. Of course, those single-wing teams which defeated Wisconsin were top-notchers.

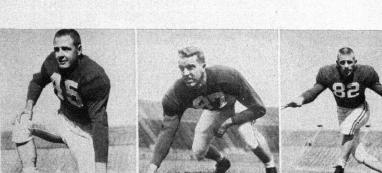

Williamson has available for this Fall

a list of 16 major lettermen, 13 of them returning from the 1953 squad while three others come from the 1952 squad. Of the latter, only Paul Shwaiko, now shifted from defensive halfback to guard, appears set to take his place in the top 22. James Haluska, 1952 quarterback, and Don Voss, 1952 All-American defensive end, still are handicapped by injuries which slowed their Spring drill efforts to simple conditioning exercises.

Haluska, who broke his leg during the summer of 1953, only recently had a fiveinch plate removed from the injured member while Voss, who underwent a knee operation at the outset of the 1953 Fall drills, still does not appear physically able for rough work. While neither are counted out, Ivy still does not count too much on their availability at this time.

There are 10 seniors on the list of major letter winners who'll report this Fall. Two of them have been regulars for the past three seasons: Alan Ameche, the incomparable fullback, and Clary Stensby, guard. Both broke into the varsity lineup, along with Voss, as freshmen in 1951 and have been starters ever

Other seniors include Captain Gary Messner, center; Norm Amundsen and Don Ursin, guards; Clary Bratt, and Bob Gingrass, halfbacks; Glen "Buzz" Wilson, a reserve quarterback, and Jim Temp and Ron Locklin, ends.

Other lettermen include Martin Booher. tackle; James Haluska, and Jim Miller quarterbacks; and Bill McNamara, center,

BASED ON performance in Spring drills and from known performance of returning regulars, the Wisconsin first string squad lines up like this:

LEFT END-James Temp, twice a major letterman, looks like the starter at this position, although he'll get a lot of competition from two sophomores, Dave Howard and Bill Brandt. All three are big and rugged, adept at rushing the passer on defense. Temp was handicapped by injuries, missing half of the season in 1953, and he caught just two passes for 39 yards. If Don Voss is able to go, he'll give everyone a real battle for the starting role.

LEFT GUARD—Clary Stensby started at this position as a freshman in 1951 and there's no reason why he won't be a starter this Fall. Challenging him are Paul Shwaiko, letterman as a defensive halfback in 1952 and scholastically ineligible last Fall, and Arnie Ludwig, a junior "W" winner in 1953.

CENTER—The situation remains as it did last year. Captain-elect Gary Messner has the starting nomination but he'll'be relieved at times by Bill McNamara, a junior, who won his letter last Fall. A third center of ability is Tom Rabas, a sophomore.

RIGHT GUARD — Letterman Don Ursin should hold down the starting job but he'll have a challenge from Norm Amundsen, a letterman last year as first reserve for Ursin. Steve Ambrose, a husky sophomore, rates third at present.

RIGHT TACKLE — Wells Gray, a member of the Rose Bowl squad as a second semester freshman reserve in 1952, has come along as expected. Last Fall, still a reserve, he won a junior "W" but he's ready this Fall, for sure. Also bidding for the job is Bob Konovsky, a junior "W" winner as a reserve end last Fall and a Big Ten heavyweight wrestling champion. Two other tackle aspirants include Jerry Cvengros and James Grosklaus, both sophomores. Cvengros won numerals two years ago but did not return to Wisconsin until he cleared up his eligibility status. Grosklaus, one of the best tackle prospects produced in the state in 1952, was sidelined in the spring drills because of a knee injury.

On the Air

No part of Wisconsin will be without access to Wisconsin football broadcasts this fall. Some fifty stations will carry the Badger grid contests, with the originations for these broadcasts coming from five stations.

In addition, national television viewers will see the Wisconsin-Rice clash on October 9 over ABC.

Originating broadcasts at Camp Randall will be WTMJ, Milwaukee; WIBA and WKOW, both of Madison; WHA-FM, which will feed broadcasts to the state network as well as to 30 private Wisconsin stations and to WEAW in Evanston, Ill.; and WHHR, Wisconsin Rapids, which will be reporting for 17 other stations in Wisconsin cities.

The Wisconsin Alumni Association

RIGHT END — Ron Locklin, whose vastly improved play last fall brought him high rating by opponents, is virtually a cinch for the starting job at this position. Last year, he was second best receiver with 13 catches for 209 yards and his defensive play was superb. Also listed for this position are Dick Kolian and Jack Stellick, a pair of juniors who won junior "W" awards last Fall and an up and-coming wingman in Sophomore James Reinke.

QUARTERBACK — Jim Miller, who blossomed out as the Big Ten's best passer last Fall as a sophomore, naturally gets the call here. However, he may have to share the role with a healthy Jim Haluska (Rose Bowl quarterback), or Dick Frecka, last year's student manager, or Glen "Buzz" Wilson, letterman as a reserve signal caller last Fall. Frecka, who was rated a fine halfback two years ago, had been sidelined with a trick knee which seems OK now.

At right, a typical view of Ivy pacing the sidelines. Do you suppose the Badgers were leading, or behind?

as well as a steady ball carrier and blocker. Back of Gingrass are two sophomore prospects, Pat Levenhagen and Dave Strehlow. Of the two, Levenhagen is the best and likes rugged going. He'll add real power if not speed.

FULLBACK—This is no problem, except for opponents. The starter and leading man in this role is the incomparable Alan Ameche, pounds heavier, bigger, and stronger, and ready for a fine senior windup to an already fine career. Acting as reserves for this position are Charles Thomas, a junior "W" winner last Fall as a sophomore, and a newcomer of promise, Sophomore Glenn Bestor.

Wisconsin again will play a hard, smart defensive football game, perhaps even better than last year, but, on offense, it will have to grind out the yardage because there is no real threat of explosive speed. In Jim Miller (Q.B.) and Ameche (F.B.) there will be a double offensive threat to worry opponents. Miller has proved his running and passing ability and so have Williamson and his staff proved their ability to make the best possible use of the material on hand.

Ticket Problems Rise Along With Grid Successes

AGAIN THIS YEAR, Wisconsin football ticket sales are setting all-time records. Before the filling of any single-game tickets on Sept. 1, there had already been issued more than 38,500 season tickets, including those reserved for students, faculty and other special groups. That's the word from Athletic Business Manager Bill Aspinwall.

With the seating capacity of Camp Randall Stadium remaining at 52,000 spectators, and the location of only 18,000 of these seats between the goal lines, it follows that the single game seats—as well as many of the season ticket seats—will be well outside the range of "preferred seating."

The only chance for better-than average single game tickets rests on the possibility that a visiting team may relinquish some of the seats reserved for its supporters as a particular game approaches. But even here, ticket committments to visiting schools last month were running five percent above figures of a year ago.

It seems evident, however, that the location of seats will be secondary as the season progresses. The big question will be: do you have any seats, anywhere?

Here, briefly, is how the tickets have been allotted this year:

As usual, persons who have been ordering season tickets without interruption over the years were given top "priority" this year. New season ticket applications were then processed, with Alumni Association members getting first call. Then, with all season tickets assigned, individual tickets were allotted, WAA members again getting "first choice." As some members have found, of course, by the time any individual tickets are distributed the "first choice" means but little.

The WAA First Team

Coach Fox selects his line-up

HILE Coach Ivy Williamson is busy developing his starting eleven for the Wisconsin-Marquette game on September 25, President Gordon Fox is working with the committee chairmen who will make up his first team during the Association's 93rd fiscal year which started September first.

As Association president, Gordon automatically serves as Chairman of the executive committee which consists of the five WAA officers and two members of the Board of Directors. Here is the list of committee chairmen who will play an important part in the Association's activities this year:

Executive Committee: Gordon Fox, 109 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago

Alumni Awards Committee: L. J. Fitzpatrick, 3230 University Ave., Madison

Resolutions Committee: Mrs. Silas Spengler, 342 Park, Menasha

Membership Committee: Mrs. John Schindler, 532—22nd Ave., Monroe

Scholarship Committee: Walter Keyes, 123 N. 3rd St., Sturgeon Bay

Constitution Committee: James D. Peterson, 135 S. LaSalle St., Chicago

State Relations Committee: Gordon Walker, 200-17th St., Racine

Athletic Committee: Charlie Byron, 38 S. Dearborn, Chicago 3

Student Awards Committee: Dean Elvehjem, 23 Bascom Hall, Madison 6

Integration Committee: Howard Greene, Genesee Depot Magazine Committee: Mrs. Lucy Rogers Hawkins, 1008 Main, Evanston, Ill.

Life Membership Fund Committee: R. A. Teckemeyer, 1 S. Pinckney, Madison

These committee chairmen are mapping out a productive program of activities for the Wisconsin Alumni Association's 93rd fiscal year. WAA starts this year as the fourth largest alumni association in the country. Only three are larger—California, Ohio State and Pennsylvania.

To make sure that we stay in the Big Four President Fox has asked all members of the Association's Board of Directors to serve on the membership committee. These directors know from first-hand experience that increased membership is the key to a better and stronger alumni association. They know that three or four thousand new members will make our Association increasingly effective as the strong right arm of the University.

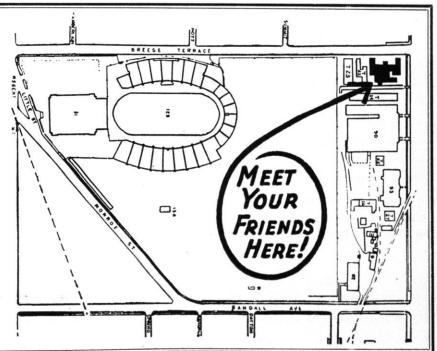

Perhaps you would like to share in this membership campaign by signing up one new member for the current year. Ten chances to one you know of some Badger who should be a WAA member. In many cases, an invitation from a member like yourself is all that is necessary to convince this Badger that right now is a good time to join the Wisconsin Alumni Association as the 93rd fiscal year gets under way. Annual membership fee—$5. Annual family membership fee (husband and wife)—$6.

Productive teamwork wins football games at Camp Randall. Teamwork will also bring in the new members needed to make the Wisconsin Alumni Association more and more effective in getting things done for the University of Wisconsin. It will also make your membership increasingly valuable to you because your benefits grow as membership grows.—John Berge, Executive Director

Here's a Solution to Double Problem

For the sixth straight year, returning alumni will find a special football day treat arranged by the Wisconsin Alumni Association and the Wisconsin Union.

The Memorial Union's Breese Terrace Cafeteria—this convenient dining room will again be available this year for football fans at all home games. Take advantage of this service and you'll simplify your parking problems by getting to the stadium area before the big rush. The cafeteria, on the corner of University Avenue and Breese Terrace, one block from Camp Randall Stadium, will open every football Saturday at 11:30 a.m. and remain open until 1 p.m. Game time is 1:30 p.m.
