"What's de Scoah?" The Tragic Truth, Listless Retreat

Bounding three steps at a jump up the stairs leading to the downtown Cardinal office last night, an excited individual stopped outside the door.

A dusky head peeked in. "Say, what's de scoah? How'd de boys make out at Iowa?"

A desk man glanced up and looked into a beaming ebony countenance. "Wisconsin 19, Iowa 22."

The smile faded; slowly the head disappeared and footsteps, one at a time, were heard moving listlessly downstairs.

The Wisconsin players left the floor last night at Iowa City with tears in their eyes and lumps in their throats after making a superhuman rally and giving everything they had, but Wisconsin is not out of the running, and the team still has every chance of tying for first place. Hopes for a clear title are gone.

Win or lose the student body pledged itself to turn out and greet the team when it returned from Iowa City. Win or lose—and the team lost. The team is downheart-

VILLARD TO SPEAK ON WORLD TANGLE

Editor Will Discuss European Muddle and Its Effect on America, Tomorrow

Oswald Garrison Villard will speak in Music hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, on "America and the European Problem." He will be introduced by Prof. E. A. Ross, of the Sociology department. Villard is coming under the auspices of the Social Science club.

Villard, a grandson of William Lloyd Garrison, is now editor of The Nation. He was compelled to sell his interest in the publication.

As a consistent opponent of war and militarism, Villard has commanded national attention. He spoke here two years ago. Since then he has spent several months in England, Germany, and France.

The experiences that he gathered there will provide material for his lectures here. He will discuss the problems of the labor government in Great Britain and that of the solution of the present European muddle.

"The Proletarian is not intended to be a radical paper, but we are not refraining from saying what we sincerely believe for the sake of anyone's feeling," Corbett stated. Several well known campus writers and outsiders have contributed.

"Marya Zaturenska, adult special has written a feature article for the paper in which she discusses frankly her opinion of the looks and personalities of some fifteen prominent campus women.

LAST NIGHT'S SCORES

Iowa 22, Wisconsin 19.

Illinois 23, Michigan 20.

Iowa turned back the title seeking Badger quintet last night, 22 to 19, crushed Wisconsin's hopes for a clear title to the conference basketball championship and sent Coach Meanwell's luckless team home with but a bare chance for a tie for first place in the Big Ten race.

A tragic first half, in which Wisconsin was unable to sink a single field goal, and in which the Hawkeye aces, Janse and Jensen, ran up 10 points to 3 for the Badgers, sealed the lid on Cardinal hopes and gave the Iowans a lead which Wisconsin tried to overcome in the final minutes of play, but which proved insurmountable.

Fail on Free Throws
The first half seemed to predict an over whelming victory for the Hawks, with the scoring all being done by Barry's sharpshooters. Only once did Captain Gibby and his mates threaten to jump into the lead, and that was early in the game, when, with the score standing 3 to 1 in favor of Iowa, Gibson sank two free throws and tied the count at 3 all.

Failure to score on free throws cost the Badgers a chance to at least tie the score. Wisconsin missed eight chances from the foul line while Iowa made all but five of their opportunities.

Badgers Forge Ahead
At the start of the second period Gibby led a rally which came near submerging the triumphant Hawks and sending them far to the rear, but the effort failed. With the score reading Wisconsin 7 and Iowa 21, Spooner, Gibson and Bar-

1924 INDOOR TRACK SEASON WILL CLOSE WITH RELAY MEDLEY

Carnival March 22 to Be Composed of Special Events and Six Relays

By holding the eighteenth annual relay carnival in the gymnasium annex Saturday, March 22, the 1924 indoor track season will be officially closed.

The relay carnival is composed of handicap events, special academy events, and six relay races. The handicap events are open only to students of the university and consist of the 40-yard dash, 40-yard high hurdles, shot put, pole vault, and high jump, while the academy competition will consist of the 40-yard dash, high jump and shot put.

In the relay runs, the feature events will be the annual intersorority and interfraternity races, while teams representing the academies, intramural league and high schools will contest for superiority in their respective classes.

Eleven Sororities Entered

Because more than 11 sororities have been entered in the intersorority races, already, it is expected that more than 20 will compete for the four trophies which will be awarded to the winners. Each sorority nominates a captain for the team which represent it, and the athletic department selects the other runners from the varsity and freshman track squads, in order to give each sorority an even chance to win the relay.

Among the sororities which have sent in entries for the carnival and the captains who have been chosen are Kappa Alpha Theta, John Bergstresser; Delta Gamma, George Finkle; Delta Delta Delta, George Piper; Barnard hall, Wells Sherman; Kappa Delta, Earl Schneider; Chadbourne hall, Gerald Wade; Alpha Phi, Lloyd Valley; Alpha Chi Omega, Thomas Carter; Delta Zeta, Charles Meissner; Phi Mu, John Read; Pi Beta Phi, Russell Perry, and Phi Omega Pi, Ray Kubly.

Carnival is Oldest

Phi Kappa Sigma is the only fraternity to enter its team in the interfraternity events, but more applications are being received at the gymnasium daily. Fraternities which plan to compete in the relay carnival are requested to file their applications as soon as possible.

The Wisconsin relay carnival is the oldest of its kind in the West. It began as an intramural meet for university students, but for a number of years, state colleges and normal schools were invited to participate. This year it reverts to the intramural basis, as far as college competition is concerned, while the three events and relays which are held for academies and colleges will be continued and a special two-mile relay race between Northwestern and Wisconsin will be held as an added attraction.

Better Awards Planned

More expensive prizes will be awarded to the winners this year than at any former carnival. Four trophies will be given to the winners of the intersorority relay races, five trophies will be awarded in interfraternity relay, while gold watch charms will be given to the winning team in the intramural league relay.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded in the handicap and academy events; gold and silver medals will be given in the high school relay; and gold medals will be given to the winning team in the special two mile relay match between Northwestern and Wisconsin.

The Arlie Mucks trophy will be awarded to the winner of the shot put, and a special trophy will be given to the high point winner in the academy events.

W. A. A. COLLECTS CLIPS, SNAPS FOR SCRAPBOOK

Sometime this week every alumnae of W. A. A. will receive a letter from the mailman that will stir her memory to violent action. Nothing more deadly than a plea is contained in the envelope—yet the reaction in the mental reservoirs of these ex-members is expected to be explosive. The letters were sent out March 1, according to Mabel Rugen '25, and are expected to bear fruit in the near future, in the form of old snapshots, clippings and data for the W. A. A. scrap book. Each note also contained an invitation to the W. A. A. reunion to be held during commencement week.

Organization of Independent List Is Now Complete

Organization of the Independent league composed of independent men has been completed, and teams from ten of the sixteen blocks are now competing in basketball and indoor baseball, while four teams from the Wisconsin league are competing in basketball play.

The Independent league was formed in order to give independent men an opportunity to participate in all forms of athletic activities, while the Wisconsin League was formed with much the same intention, in order to take care of men living in outlying districts.

The sixteen blocks lying between Langdon and West Dayton streets, were organized under the direction of "W" men, who will act as sponsors for their groups, and were named after prominent Wisconsin athletes.

The completion of this work gives every man an opportunity to take part in team athletics through the agency of fraternity leagues, the Independent league, and the Wisconsin league.

George Berg, director of intramural activities, gives the following as the objectives of the organization:

"Through this widespread participation in athletics to develop in Wisconsin men the qualities of courage, determination, cooperation and sportsmanship.

"Through athletic competition to give our men preparation for the later competition necessary to successful living.

"To improve the health and vitality of the race by encouraging activities that compel intense physical and mental effort.

"To create a bond that will hold the loyalty of Wisconsin men to the institution, because, through participation in these activities, these men are brought more closely into its life."

The hope is that this organization together with the already organized fraternity group, will form the nucleus for the future Wisconsin Union. Hundreds of independent men are being brought into closer contact with each other, and now have the opportunity to join into something of which they have long felt the lack.

Wisconsin's letter men, men prominent in every branch of athletics, are taking an intense interest in the work and are doing everything in their power to bring the plan to a successful realization.

Recoil Writes For March Lit, Adopts Author Pseudonym

Recoil, former satire writer for The Cardinal, has a story in this month's Lit, written under a pseudonym, it was learned yesterday from John F. Weimer '25, managing editor.

"Dona Juana" is one of the feature stories of the issue, a combination of satire and good humor, written in a whimsic vein.

"Kaukana," the story of a Japanese wedding feast, is another feature article in the issue.

Eliot Sharp has written another series of campus sketches, similar to those in last month's Lit by David Steenburg, but written in a different style.

SAY CO-ED MARKSMEN OUTSHOOT MEN'S TEAMS

Will co-ed marksmen eventually outshoot the men in the colleges in this country? At a recent meet in the University of Oregon, the co-ed rifle team defeated the five best marksmen of that institution, by a score of 952 to 927.

The highest individual score was 193 out of a possible 200, made by a co-ed. This success is due to the fact that the women worked hard to develop their eyes, nerves, and muscles, according to Captain J. T. Murray, coach of the rifle teams of the University of Oregon.

In view of the fact that the Wisconsin co-ed rifle team defeated the team at Oklahoma college a short time ago, it would be wise for the men to look to their shooting.

A movement is under way to make rifle shooting a minor sport in many universities of the country. If this plan is adopted that sport will rank with tennis, swimming and wrestling.

BADGER QUINT DROPS 22 TO 19 GAME TO HAWKEYES

TITLE HOPES HIT SNAG FOLLOWING FATAL FIRST HALF

Wisconsin Unable to Sink Single Field Goal in Initial Period

wig sank baskets in close order. Ken Elsom got loose under the basket and caged an easy setup, but Iowa turned back the barrage of baskets, sank a free throw, and weathered the storm successfully. Jensen, Iowa sharpshooter, led the scoring with 11 points, while Gibson ran him a close second with 10. Farwell, who has been setting the Badger fans afire with his sensational shooting, failed to garner a single field goal and missed all three chances from the free throw line.

Wisconsin, by losing to Iowa's fickle cagers, dropped from second to third place in conference standing, and retained nothing but a gambler's chance of ending up in a tie for first place in the Big Ten heap. One thing, however, is in the Badger's favor; both of their remaining games are on their home floor, and, with everything at stake, will put its last ounce of energy into turning back defeated the Maroon cagers, and in picking a sweet revenge off of the Iowa team. If the Badgers win their two remaining games they will end up in a tie with Chicago, but another loss will be fatal to all hopes and will send them down to third or fourth position.

Dwight Spooner, who has been held out of play for the last few games with an injured leg, broke into the fray and caged two goals in the face of his home folks. Marsh Diebold and Wackman, guards upon whom Meanwell has been relying to stop short the conference's leading scorer's, failed to break into the scoring column, and were unable to stop Barry's slick scoring machine in the form of Janse, Laude and Jensen.

Had the game lasted a few minutes more the Badgers, at the pace they were hitting, would have undoubtedly whittled down the Hawkeyes' lead and pulled ahead, but the gun ended the tilt, and sounded a knell for Wisconsin's hopes for a clear title to the Big Ten trophy.

The scoring:

Iowa (22)	B	FT	PF
Janse RF	1	2	3
Laude LF	2	1	2
Jensen C	4	3	0
Duhm RG	0	0	2
Hicks LG	1	0	4

Wisconsin (19)	B	FT	PF

Hitting the High Spots with Ken

Remember way back in 1914 when the whole student body turned out Sunday afternoon at 5:40 to see the basketball team off for its last game which, if won, would bring home the championship with a 1,000 percent standing in the Big Ten?

Today our team returns defeated in a hard game with Iowa. Chances for a clear claim to the title are gone, but we may yet share it with Chicago.

At 11:35 this morning the team arrives at the St. Paul station, West Madison. Let your conscience be your guide. The band comes on the same train.

The boys must have been going great guns those last minutes of the game. The score was 10 to 3 at the half, 21 to 5 along the first of the second half, but ended 22 to 17. Some going!

A one legged freshman reported for wrestling at Indiana. Members of the squad thought he would be easy to throw. But they were surprised at his agility and strength.

In the swimming meet Friday night "Troubles" Gerber gave an exhibition of swimming stunts along with his dives. His imitation of a torpedo sure was the berries.

"This is next year's champion relay team", announced Joe at the start of the frosh and "con squad" relay. "If they are eligible," he added.

TOURNEY PRELIM PLAY THIS WEEK

State High Schools Divided Into 16 Groups; Interest Growing

After the preliminary games of the state high school basketball tournament have been played off in the local district tourneys on March 13 to 15, the university sponsors of the annual event here will know what teams will come to Madison to enter the final race for state championship.

All high schools throughout the state are divided into 16 groups, each with a district manager. Since the state board of control asked the university to take over the tournament in 1920 the event has grown steadily in interest and popularity, according to those in close touch with the high school men last year.

An effort has been made by the publicity committee to reach all the high schools that recognize basketball as a major sport through a letter describing the general facts of the tournament. District managers have been asked to cooperate with the athletic department in arousing interest among the schools.

Visiting teams will be entertained at fraternity houses during their four day stay here. A luncheon for coaches will precede the first game making it possible for all officials to familiarize themselves with the rules of the tournament and also to get acquainted with university officials.

Attractive prizes have been offered by the department to the champion team and the winners of the consolation series. The winner of the tournament will receive a gold plated basketball. Individual charms will be given to the coach and members of the team. The state champions also will receive the traveling trophies of the Milwaukee Journal and the Athletic Review.

Among this year's frosh who will be on the squad are Fritz Peich, Leon Emmert, Alfred Moorhead, Bill Lidicker, Carl Jansky, Harold Ruf, Phil Halls, Jim Mason, Don Mitchell and John McCarted.

Irish Take Seven Firsts; Badgers Take All in High Jump

(Special to The Cardinal)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 8.—By winning seven first places and the relay, which decided the meet, and by placing in every event except the high jump, Notre Dame defeated Wisconsin in a dual track meet this afternoon. It was Wisconsin's first dual defeat this season.

The Badgers pushed the Irish so hard that they were forced to break three local gym records to win. Records were shattered in the mile, quarter mile and relay events.

Meet Is Spectacular

It was a spectacular meet, characterized by close finishes and fast time. Cassidy ran a beautiful race in the mile, but was outdistanced on the last two laps and lost to Kennedy of Notre Dame. Schneider finished third. Kennedy, Irish captain, shattered a 14-year old record in this event.

Valley fought hard for a win in the half-mile but Cox beat him on a flying finish. The Irish never lost their lead in the quarter mile, although Wisconsin copped second and third, Hill and Kennedy finishing second and third respectively.

KNOLLINS, ELLIOTS WIN IN HOOP PLAY

Davey and Smiths Lose in Intramural Games. Contests Are Fast

Triumph of the Knollin quintet over the Daveys 20 to 10 and the complete rout of the Smiths by the Elliots to a 15 to 2 count, featured the play in the Wisconsin Intramural basketball league yesterday.

The Knollin-Davey game was a much more equally fought battle than the score indicates. A real scrap featured every quarter. Olson, of the Knollins, and his teammate Anderson were the score registers for the match. Berger upheld the Daveys end.

Backed by good team work in the second game Plettner, of the Elliots, sunk five from the field. The Smith aggregation were unable to score more than two free throws.

WRESTLERS LOSE MEET TO PURDUE BY 11 TO 6 COUNT

Badgers Win 135, 145, and Heavy Classes; Northwestern Gets Only Fall

The Wisconsin wrestling team lost to Northwestern here last night in a dual meet by a score of 11 to 6. The bouts were very fast and kept the spectators on their toes continually. The Purple men won a fall in the 175 pound class and decisions in the 115, 125, and 153 pound classes. Wisconsin won decisions in the 135, 145 and heavy-weight classes.

The most exciting bout of the evening was in the heavyweight class. Bieberstein, who is the regular in this class, was unable to wrestle. Coach Hitchcock was ready to forfeit the bout, when he saw Chada in the stands. He was asked to wrestle at a moment's notice, and easily won his bout on a decision. He belongs in the 135 pound class, and was outweighed by his man by at least 50 pounds.

Chada Good Material

He is only a sophomore and will be a wonderful man for next year's team, according to the coach. This was Chada's first appearance in a conference meet, while the man he wrestled against was one of Northwestern's regulars.

The only fall of the meet was in the 175 pound class, when Horton threw Plettner of Wisconsin with a bar lock and body scissors in eight minutes. Probably the fastest bout of the meet was in the 145 pound class, between Zodtner and Fisher. Holmes of the Badger team tried hard for a fall in the 135 pound class, but had to be content with a decision.

Prepare for Big Ten Meet

This was the last meet for the Badgers, and the men will now get ready for the conference meet at Chicago next week-end. The summaries of the bouts is as follows:

115 pound class—White, N., decision over Hanson, W, in two overtime periods.

125 pound class—Hines, N, decision over Withworth, W.

135 pound class—Holmes, W, decision over Anderson, N.

145 pound class—Zodtner, W, decision over Fisher, N.

158 pound class—Hathaway, N, decision over Gregor, W.

175 pound class—Horton, N, threw Plettner, W, with a barlock and scissors in 7:50.

Heavyweight class—Chada, W, decision over Howard, N.

MEET THAT TEAM

Wisconsin's basketball team played a hard game against Iowa's last night and went down in defeat. Whether the team won or lost, though, makes little real difference. It represents the university and, we know, fought hard. It will return to Madison this morning, and Wisconsin is going to be on hand to give it a real welcome. Wisconsin meets her football teams; she will meet her basketball teams. The time is 11:35 o'clock; the place is the West Madison station of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. The reason isn't over yet; let's go!
Varsity out!

EDUCATION; A LUXURY

"Do you consider a college education a luxury or a necessity?" That is the question which was asked by the inquiring reporter in the Chicago Tribune several days ago and the answers, as is usual in that column, are interesting, although they naturally present both sides of the question.

One answer points out that it is not a necessity but a luxury because "the hod carrier makes more than the pen pusher," because "people come here from abroad and make more money than men who go through college." Doesn't that answer sound like money-grabbing America? It presumes that the sole purpose of life is to make money. Perhaps its presumption is justified, as far as Americans are concerned. Perhaps it is, but there is a deal of room for argument on that score. The figures on the number of university graduates who go into teaching, newspaper work and other lines where money-making counts for little are astonishing. No, American students are not all open to criticism for being money-mad. A fair percentage of them are going to institutions of higher learning in order to learn how to live happily, and the answer given above, which too many Americans are apt to give to the same question, is a poor one on the whole.

But apply this answer to yourself and see whether or not it is a poor one for you. The purposes of a college education are not well defined for most people, although they should be. But look into yourself and see where you stand. If you are a freshman, did you enter university last fall with the view in mind of better fitting yourself to make money or to enjoy life in a spiritual way? If you are a senior, no matter what your earlier aspirations may have been, have you prepared yourself only to earn money and neglected to think of the times which are coming in your life when you will have to do something else besides earn money, when you will tire of drinking bouts and poker playing and wish to get a little real appreciation out of life?

THE EYE-SORE HAS GONE

The middle of last November an eye-sore was erected on the north side of the six hundred block on State street, a tin-can structure where furniture was mended and electrical fixtures sold.

Now it has disappeared, over night, for which praises be. It disappeared of its own accord, not by any act of the citizens of Madison who take pleasure in criticising student house groups for not making their premises more attractive. No, it disappeared of its own accord; may all other similar eye-sores follow its fate.

From Czar to the Bolsheviki; World War Brought Revolution

By RAYMOND BASSETT

There is no doubt that Professor Sorokine succeeded in drawing a very sad picture of the Russian situation. He is a master in using dark colors, and it looks as though he has knowledge of brighter and more appealing colors. He painted according to his reactionary ideas, and the bright spots of the Russian revolution were innocently left out, as though they did not exist and will never be cherished in the minds of true Russians. It is really very unfortunate to see the Czarist government in the archives of Russian libraries and dream about the golden days of Nicholas II when only a very small minority of the Russian people felt perfectly safe and well.

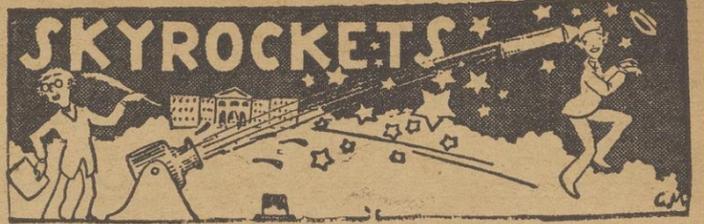

Professor Sorokine belongs to the minority and he sees only the evils of bolshevism. In his last lecture he failed to trace all the causes of the present "chaos" in Russia. He is even modest in not giving credit to himself for starting the revolution in 1917. He said: "The revolution was not started by cadets, by the socialists or by the Bolsheviki. The women and children of Petrograd started the revolution. They came to the palace of the Czar clamoring "give us bread," and so it went on. He only mentions this very reason for the breakdown of the Czarist government in a few words and goes on explaining his "scientific" treatise of biological and pathological impulses which govern the modern human societies, as though these impulses are the only causes for revolution. He innocently forgets that while he was lecturing in the University of Petrograd, starvation in Russia was going on. He heard the women and children cry for bread, but he kept on his "scientific" work and has not done anything to help these victims of the Czarist regime.

The real cause of the Russian revolution, it seems to me, was the World War into which Russia had been drawn absolutely unprepared. From the very day of mobilization the Russian people felt the pinch of war, and the economic situation grew worse. One need not be reminded that even in time of peace Russia was a vast undeveloped country using primitive methods of production on her fields, with a poor manufacturing industry. Always being in debt to foreign powers, mismanaged by Czarist officials, Russia was economically a backward country. While western Europe was living in the twentieth century, Russia conducted her life in the eighteenth, with, of course, some exceptions. Her art and literature were on a par with the rest of the world, but economically she was behind the times.

The calamity of the World War was felt very much at the end of 1916 when the Russian armies had consumed all the products saved, and when the great mass of young peasants and workers were killed off. Women, children and old, physically broken men were the only persons left in the land and the flow of agricultural products came to an end.

This was the danger signal. Everybody knew "it" was coming, but nobody dared to speak about it. Russia's great retreat, demoralization and the dissatisfaction which crept into the rank and file of her armies were the beginning of the Russian Revolution. Beaten, economically ruined, the Czarist government gave way and the Kerensky government came into existence in 1917. Bound by treaties with the Allies, the new Provisional government could not handle the big problem, for it was willing to conduct the war with demoralized, hungry forces, and was ready to starve the people instead of concluding immediate peace with the enemy. Since this government did not change the situation and since prospects for economic betterment were fading away, it was doomed to last a short time. Its weakness, instability and postponement of a national assembly played in favor of the Bolsheviki, who in November, 1917, succeeded in a bloodless revolution and thus established themselves as the ruling party in Russia. They are still holding the reigns of the government.

What the Bolsheviki have inherited from the Provisional governments, what were their obstacles, and the causes of the famine, starvation and other phases of Bolshevist Russia will be discussed in Wednesday's issue of The Cardinal.

My true love hath my pin and I have his

I hold his dear, and mine he can not miss,
There never was a truer bargain driven,
My true love hath my pin and I have his.

My "uncle" hath my watch, and in exchange
A ticket and some money gave to me,
And now my once filled bank book has the mange,
But still I wear her pin on my vestee.
She costs me dear, but still I wouldn't change,
For while I still spend money she loves me.

D. P. E.—No, that would be fraud.

NOT SPECIFIED

Finance—How can I tell until he returns it?

A certain well-known prof was much annoyed by a young man who came to class regularly, but who never took a note. At last he could bear it no longer. "Why aren't you taking notes on my lectures?" he asked.
"Oh," replied the youth, "I have my father's."

After spending the evening with a chatty girl, ask her to introduce you to a friend of hers saying "She's the only girl I have seen up here who appeals to me."

Take your girl to the Orph and when you find your rival in the seat next to her, punch him on the nose.

You are lost because of gin,
Up above me now so high,

The men answer last Sunday's outburst against them by listing the girls on the "Never Never" list as follows:

1. The girl who smiles at you when your "sweetie" isn't looking and glares at you when she is.
2. The one who invites you to the house for the evening, and then spends most of her time gurgling over the phone to "Jack, dear."
3. The flapper who declares all men are pests, and always goes about with a bodyguard of at least three of them.
4. The emotional high-brow who cries and chews gum at the same time when you tell her you read the Post.

The Reader's Say-So

FORENSICS AND WISCONSIN

Editor, The Cardinal
The two communications which have appeared in this column lately dealing with Forensics have given me a surprise. That literary societies are not as strong as they once were is undoubted. But that things are as bad as they are made out in these articles is probably not true. For instance, the fact that there were but 40 men at the meeting last week is explainable on the ground that no advertising was done for it. It was hasty plan, not even voted on in the societies, made necessary because the slides shown had to go back to Washington before another meeting could be held. No notice was given for the meeting except the little notices in The Cardinal.

Only the three Hill societies met, anyhow. Neither of the girls societies nor Ag Lit attended. I personally believe that such meetings are a mighty good thing for the societies. It gives them a chance to meet each other, to have more extensive programs, and to arouse interest in Forensics at Wisconsin, which I admit is needed.

One fact that has been keeping the societies down is their night of meeting. It is almost too much to ask that a man give up a Friday night for a literary society meeting. There are too many other things going on that night. If the date were changed to Thursday night, for instance, I believe that the attendance would go up a hundred percent.

A member of one of the literary societies, I object to being charged with merely being a member in order that I may get my picture in the Badger, or that I may some time become an officer in the organization. The literary society has a distinct place at Wisconsin in giving members a chance to learn to talk on their feet, and to meet other men interested in debating work. There are many students in the University that would enjoy a chance to belong to one of these societies if they only knew that there were such things. I didn't even know that there were debating societies here till I was a sophomore. A little advertising on the part of the societies would increase their membership greatly, I am sure.

ROBERT J. SOUTHWICK '25.

ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER

Editor, The Cardinal:
So long as men differ in opinions, so long as policies of government and civil court cases are settled by argument, so long will the study of argumentation and the existence of forensic organizations be justified. So long too, will torrid eruptions, like that of "An Old Society Man" in The Cardinal of March 4th be unjustified.

Now Mr. "Old Society Man," I hesitate to call you ex-Athenaen, Hesperian or Philomathian, since I don't think they'd thank me for it, (perhaps you wouldn't either), you must admit that Sherwood Eddy is good competition for any literary society. Any wonder, then, that there was not a large crowd at the joint meeting of Feb. 29th?

You call us membership clubs of embryo politicians and office-seekers. If you don't like our methods why don't you come up and show us how to do things? It's every student's privilege. If you can't reach a bunch of grapes, don't scowl and say "sour,"—plant some of your own.

Wouldn't you rather see a youngster play marbles with the odds against him and win, than to see him drop his toys and say, "I won't play"? You can't lose. Your style is rather funeral. Come up some Friday night and get some enthusiasm. Get rid of your cerebral delusions. By the way, why not sign your articles with your name. Mine is

Law School's Valhalla Pictures Famous Public Men

It is said by Sir Walter Scott that "a lawyer without a history or literature is a mechanic." Whatever Sir Walter might have meant, a Law school without its traditions is a poor thing.

On the second floor of the Law building is an Alumni picture gallery. Among the forty-seven graduating classes hanging there, are men whose names have since made it a hall of fame. Here is the Valhalla of the Law school. The first class to be taken ensemble was the class of 1875. Barbarous mustaches, fierce, dignified, drooping, placid mustaches, winged collars, swallow-tailed coats, neckties of the drooping and chest protector variety evolved through the forty-seven classes to the young man of 1922.

Among these pictures are men who have had, and in many instances, still have commanding places at the bar and political rostrum, including innumerable congressmen, judges, aldermen, prominent politicians, corporation lawyers, authors and professors whose books on law are in general use. Mrs. Robert La Follette, then Bell Case, graduate of the class of 1875 was the first woman to graduate from the law school. Among the members of the forty-seven graduating classes fourteen were women.

Walls Are Crowded

Senator La Follette attended the law school but was admitted to the bar in 1879 before graduation. As time went, and each class, eager to do its part in establishing tradition, had a class picture taken, the walls became so crowded that recently all pictures were taken down and placed in a swinging file of framed glass.

Years ago when a lawyer and politician were coincident ideas, and the lore of legal knowledge was limited, the young man made his way with little difficulty from a law school of a sort to printer's ink or lamp oil. Then admission requirements were farcical, the courses short and the profession largely a matter of "taking the stump." Many famous legal precedents were yet to be established.

At that period, times were stormy for the University of Wisconsin; the Hill of Knowledge was but barely populated, and the struggling law school whose first graduating class numbered 12, convened at the Capitol, then a poor, squat, ill-proportioned building. In rooms with good carpets, nice desks, a sand box, and a clock whose pendulum must have swung back and forth through long afternoons of drowsy legal discussion, the future Grants and Lees of the law profession came.

Environment Changed

"If you wish to learn law," said an old jurist, "get in a legal atmosphere." The law student of today has a different environment than his brothers of 1875 whose pictures hang outside the library of the law building. In the spring of 1893 the present Law school was opened.

The elms standing in front have since grown to silent, dignified old sentinels whose black branches frame the pile of red stone standing as silent as the trees but mutely eloquent to those who have tramped its corridors in the past. From out of the window, the campus slopes upward, green and smooth, between the rows of guard-elm.

The young man is dull indeed who is not gaining knowledge from the books and men to which the law school gives access. The faculty is composed of men of varied experience in professional and judicial labors. There are more books of law statutes, and reports pertaining to Wisconsin alone than pertained to England in the days of Lord Bacon. The bar of Madison is regarded as one of the strongest in the Northwest.

Edna Ferber is now permanently at home in an apartment overlooking Central Park West where she came after completing her last novel, "So Big." "I never want to move again," she says. "They'll

Gallant Rogers Plunder and Rob In "Highwaymen"

Highwaymen: by Charles J. Finger. Robert M. McBride & Co. 1923, $1.50.

R. M.

If you cherish a secret liking for the tales of dashing highwaymen, and if this secret liking has never been wholly satisfied, you will relish this "book of gallant rogues", the "Highwaymen", by Charles J. Finger. These scoundrels, of whom Mr. Finger writes, lived in the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries; and about them are related tales of hold-ups on the king's highway, all with a certain dash and swagger, that we think must be missing from modern hold-ups. For these gentlemen robbed with a smile, and with an admirable magnificence of manner. They galloped through the night in lace trimmed clothes, in white satin waistcoats and coats of red cloth.

There is a feeling of romance about these tales; of Colonel Blood, who stole the crown jewels and then was granted a royal pension; of Jack Sheppard, famed for his escape from Newgate and later hung; of Dick Turpin and his ride in the night on Black Bess; of Claude Duval, who robbed and then gave, in the most delightful manner; and finally of Bill of Tierra del Fuego who, though he lived in the nineteenth century, robbed in true "early-eighteenth" style.

There is also an air of reality about them. We feel that they have some real basis, that the characters themselves once did exist. Actual dates are given, sometimes you get a feeling of actual chronicling, and we see contemporary figures of the time, such as Dryden, Defoe, Fielding, Steele and Hume, in these stories. Of most of these we get only the slightest glance, but we do see Pope scrambling about in a hedge for his "Essay on Man" which a highwayman had thrown disdainfully away.

What could be more romantic than this! "A plumed hat had he and horse trappings of red leather with silver bit and stirrups, and two diamonds shone like stars at his belt. At his side was a dagger with gilt-dressed leather case, his spurs were of gold and the scabbard of his sword showed neither speck nor stain. These were the things of the eye, but in his heart there were golden dreams of setting crooked things straight, of letting lowly folk go free and taking heavy toll of those whose worldly affairs were in happy state."

The book is illustrated with woodcuts by Paul Honore. And woodcuts seem especially in keeping with a book of this sort.

have to wheel old 'Gamma Ferve' out when they tear the building down."

That happy family duo of novelists, Kathleen and Charles G. Norris, returned to their native land after a winter spent in Sicily. Both have been hard at work writing novels and rMs. Norris says that although Palermo is a delightful place, she would willingly exchange the whole of Sicily for a hall bedroom in New York.

"Escapade" Tale of Defiance, Scorn of Conventions of Life

Escapade, by Evelyn Scott. By B. B.

Here is a tale of defiance, of a good and well-fought battle against the entire world. The story is that of a woman who went to South America with another woman's husband. The two lovers were plunged into that extra-social limbo which is more bitter than any purgatory, were stripped of friends, of position, of their own civilization, of their very names. All this was faced gallantly, with never a backward look at what was lost.

Evelyn Scott recounts the tale of their flight, of the birth of their child, and the constant illness which followed. She uses the cold and analytic methods of the medical journals in detailing these experiences. No detail is omitted, for her interest is in sickness rather than in health, whether of the body or the mind.

But only half of her book is devoted to the more objective incidents of her experience.

Interspersed are the most vivid pictures done in a style which can only be described as the work of an impressionistic painter in words. Evelyn Scott is acutely sensitive to color, and the mood of color. Her taste is for the intensely subjective.

The concluding fantasy, added to intensify the bitterness with which she sees the world, is by far the most definite expression she permits herself. In utter derision of the spirit that underlies the conventions and the institutions of our world, and not of the conventions and the institutions themselves, she drives home her mordant criticism of our self-satisfaction, our lack of understanding, our lack of even a desire to understand.

Walt Whitman's house on Mickle street, Camden, has been purchased by the City of Camden and converted into a Memorial Museum. The house has been restored as nearly as possible to its condition during the poet's lifetime. Some of the old furniture has been found and placed in it, together with other relics, such as Whitman's personal books and copies of various editions of his works.

club, believes that the group this year is singing better songs in a more nearly professional way, than any group of college singers he has ever worked with.

Atmosphere of Better Music is Order of Glee Club Concert

The highest type of music, lively, cheery and yet with a distinct "better music" atmosphere is the order of the program to be given by the Wisconsin glee club at their only home concert to be given Friday night in Music hall. The program consists of several ensemble numbers, interspersed with vocal, violin and piano solos.

Each ensemble group has been arranged to present as much variety as possible. The height of humor is reached in "Tobacco", a number proving the fallacy of calling tobacco a harmful weed. The "Morning Hymn" by Henschel, the "Beduin Love Song" by Foote, and "Hallelujah Amen" from "Judas Maccabaeus", a rollicking old English song, and "Care Flees from the Lad that is Merry" carry the audience away on a wave of cheery lightness.

As a special feature, the Varsity quartette, composed of Messrs. Hendra, Stearns, Otis and Huff, will sing a few numbers. The quartette is well known as a super singing organization both on the campus and throughout this and neighboring cities.

Although this is the only time that the club will appear in concert in Madison, several public appearances in other cities will be made before the end of the year. Dates to sing in Richland Center on April 24, and Columbus on April 25, have already been arranged, while an extensive spring trip including the cities of Janesville, Rockford, Davenport, Dubuque, Ia., La Crosse, Wisconsin Rapids, and others is being planned.

Prof. Swinney, director of the

The Freeman is Oasis in Desert of Buncombe

American journalism lies between two poles. On the one we place the Saturday evening Post and Police Gazette; on the other, along with one or two equally valuable magazines, the Freeman. As a nasty minded boy (if you were one) you were probably familiar with the Police Gazette; if you move in respectable circles, you are certainly familiar with the Post. But unless you are a filing clerk in a library or a socially dangerous radical, it's a ten to one bet that you have never seen a copy of the Freeman.

This magazine is still young, being now in its eighth volume, but in this short period it has developed to such a point of intellectual acuteness that each number is a distinctly valuable contribution to contemporary literature. No magazine, so far as we know, can compete with the Freeman on a basis of critical analysis.

Appeals to Minority

It is an avowedly 'radical journal' and treats literature and human relation with a searching method found only in publications which combine the intellectual and radical attitudes. The circulation of this magazine is, quite naturally, small. It appeals chiefly to a minority, a minority which cannot honestly accept hokums that for centuries have assisted in keeping the human mind in darkness; and which rejects the drivel and twaddle of the majority of current magazines.

"Our purpose," writes Mr. Albert Jay Nock, one of the editors of the Freeman, "may be most briefly stated as that of promoting civilization as much as possible. We have no special programme, and are not committed to the support of any party or creed except the very general one which follows from defining civilization as the progressive humanization of men in society."

Defends The Truth

Carrying out its purpose, the Freeman defends the truth as being the very foundation of true civilization. Liberty of the press and political and religious freedom are advocated in a way that however much it might please Washington and Jefferson is enormously shocking to our modern statesmen.

In this desert of buncombe, a good magazine is an oasis.

Wisconsin Chapter To Help Raise Phi Beta Building Fund

Prof. F. C. Sharp, president of the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, announced today that Alpha chapter will help in the raising of a fund to erect a memorial building at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va., but probably will arrange no local meeting when the society holds its 150th anniversary December 5, 1926.

That Something New

SARFS are a necessary accessory to the Spring costume. We see them as a smart touch to the tailleur, the afternoon dress, the sports costume, and even a flowing Spanish scarf for the evening dress. Here is what The Breath of the Avenue says about the scarf: "The bandana was never more in evidence than all kinds of scarfs are now. Scarfs that are oblong and sometimes square; large and sometimes small. As an accessory with the dress or the tailored suit or for a trimming note for the frock or coat. White scarfs for black or white and white satin frocks are decidedly smart. One of the most striking women seen recently at the Ritz at luncheon wears a slim satin dress with a separate scarf. And she wears it a new way—knotted close about the throat, with a very short end in front, and the long streamer floating over her left shoulder. An unusual way of giving distinction to the simplest black dress."

This week, I found a glorious profusion of new scarfs. There were the Spanish lace ones in such beautiful shades—Chinese red, canary, new rose, levein green, crabapple, orchid, poudre blue and others. You may have your choice of the long scarf or the square one. For evening, you'll love the very large Spanish shawls.

The fibre silk scarfs with Roman scarfs are very pretty too. They come in a blending of soft Spring colors. To lend a new note to your suit, you will want to wrap this scarf around the throat and fold it over in front.

The influence of the Chinese game, Mah Jong, which has become extremely popular in the United States, is seen in the very newest collar and cuff sets. They are called Mah Jong sets, too. They are made of imported cream colored organdy. Little Chinese letters are beautifully embroidered in colored silk thread. These would give a fresh and colorful touch to your Spring frock.

Speaking of collar and cuffs, I must not neglect to mention the ecru linen tailored vests with an attached collar. Narrow filet and pearl buttons are the only trimming. These are so smart for the tailored suit.

THE THROW SCARF

—a new spring effect

THE spring coat and spring suit is accepted as fashionable providing there is a throw-scarf accompanying it. The topcoats themselves are loose and graceful, free and comfortable. The suits, for the most part, follow the boyish tailleur. Some are strict and masculine. In a wide price range, up from $25.

The "Shagmoors"

Prominent in our displays are the famous "Shagmoors." Shagmoor" is the name of material, a soft, light in weight, 100% Virgin Wool, wonderfully and peculiarly constructed. It is an ideal fabric, for it sheds water, insulates the wearer from cold and heat, is non-crushable, and seems never to wear out. "Shagmoor" Suits and Coats, $30.50 to $59.50.

Philippine Underwear

All discerning college women appreciate the fine workmanship and the super quality of Philippine Underwear. They launder beautifully and always look fresh and pretty.

The exquisite tracery of the embroidery patterns is always a source of wonder and delight. Be sure and fill your lingerie needs with some of this underwear.

Lovely Philippine gowns and envelope chemise in dainty patterns, $2.50 and $2.75.

A fresh new shipment of cotton bloomers with satin stripes. Of good quality and very well made. $1.25.

Dainty Voile Blouses

To give a frivolous touch to your suit and as a pleasant change from the tailored overblouse, you will want to possess one of the new hand-made blouses of imported voile.

Hemstitching, a frill, and piping of white make these blouses very attractive. The colors are lovely—maize, bisque, lavender, powder blue.

$6.50 and $7.50

There are also white voile blouses with neat linen collar and cuffs and vestee—all embroidered in soft colors. The vestee boasts of the favored monogram.

COTTON UNDERTHINGS

WERE NEVER SO DAINTY

Crisp and fresh underthings give you a feeling of Spring. Ideal for Spring are the dainty new pajamas in bard batiste. They come in three colors—orchid, honeydew and flesh. Trimming of contrasting color and a pretty bow of silk add still more to their attractiveness. $3.50.

SAHARA LECTURE GIVEN IN BASCOM

Mrs. Rosita Forbes Relates Experiences in Desert Travels

A sunken valley enclosed by colorful hills and a holy village in which is concentrated the mysterious military power of the confraternity of the Senussi, is the secret of the Sahara as revealed Friday night by Rosita Forbes, traveler and writer in her illustrated lecture to an audience in Bascom hall.

Mrs. Forbes, who was introduced by President Birge, is the only Christian woman who has traveled the routes which she traced last night. Under the disguise of an Egyptian woman and posing as a Mohammedan she traveled for days across sheer desert wastes with only an Egyptian friend, some natives and some Bedouins to accompany her.

"When we burst the bubble of military power of the Senussi, who have blocked the entrance of the French, British and Italians to go farther inland, and when we established certain geographical routes of importance, we accomplished our purpose," said Mrs. Forbes.

SCRIBES TO EDIT COUNTRY PAPERS

Six Journalists Will Do Practical Work During Spring Recess

Plans for the annual trip of advanced students of journalism for practical experience are complete, according to Prof. E. M. Johnson, of the journalism department.

Each year during the spring vacation the students go to small towns nearby and manage newspapers. They do the editing, the reporting, the managing, and soliciting of advertising. Only the linotype operators and the makeup men belong to the regular staff.

"The editors are glad to have them come," said Professor Johnson. "It helps them by showing new methods and improvements."

"There are to be six groups. They will go to Richland Center, Shawano, Reedsburg, Prairie du Chien, Mineral Point and possibly Hartford."

Richard H. Crosse '24, Irene Davis '24, Edith Porter '24 and Mary E. Hussong '25, will have charge of the Richland Democrat.

Leon L. Pack '26, John E. Davis '25, J. Gordon Hecker '25, Elizabeth Milligan '25, are to take over the Shawano County Advocate.

Stuart B. McCoy '25, Dorothy Weisler '24, Dorothy Lawton '24, Donald Bell '25, will manage the Reedsburg Times.

Victor Zierke '25, Frances Warren '24, Margaret Callsen '24, and E. L. Peterson '24, will be in charge of the Prairie du Chien Courier.

Vernon Beardsley '24, Arlene McKellar '24, Doris Berning '24, and Edith Sinaiko '24, will run the Iowa County Democrat.

Donald Trayser '24, Harriet Jaeger '24, and Martha Dalrymple '25, form the last group. They have not been definitely assigned to a paper.

SPRING VACATION FOUR WEEKS OFF

No Cut Rule Will Be in Force, Says Dean Roe in Interview

Spring recess is scheduled for April 9 to 15 inclusive, only four weeks away. This means a vacation of one week. The no cut rule will be enforced both before and after the spring recess, Dean F. W. Roe said yesterday.

The midsemester examinations are but two weeks off according to Dean Roe. They will begin March 24. Grades are due in the dean's offices by April 8, the day before spring recess. During the vacation period it is the custom to sort the grades, and prepare for conferences with students when they return.

With 1,500 freshmen enrolled this semester, the deans and their assistants will be busy sorting grades while the students are resting after the examinations.

Few students are sent home in the middle of the second semester. Those who are doing exceptionally poor work, however, are requested to leave.

Crack Performers Give Snappy Bill at Orph This Week

The O'Brien Sextette, an organization of musical songsters, who have set out to prove to the world that a singer can be a musician and that instrument playing has nothing whatever to do with not being able to sing, feature the Orpheum bill this week.

For the other feature act Lew Cantor presents Carl Fletcher and a quintet of singers and dancers in a miniature song and dance revue called "Sweet Sixteen." Klein Brothers, otherwise known as Al and Harry offer their skit "Jest Moments."

Before the war Jack Joyce was one of the best known male dancers. During his service he lost a leg in the battle of the Mons. Since his return to the stage he has won several cups in open competition with two legged dancers and is a marvel on his one foot.

The Stuart girls present an act called, "Songs, Personality and Curly." Lieutenant Theitson is another world war veteran, who presents an act in which he uses his knowledge of sharpshooting.

Spirit of Black and White Revue Banishes Cares

By CHATTY

Well, here we are, let's go—The Black and White Revue is off with a bang, a regular circus parade of the actors, the sort of thing which ought to rid any one of his cares and turn him into the same jolly mood that the actors seem to be in.

The producer certainly succeeded in his aim to offer "something new and different in the way of amusement" at the Parkway yesterday. A regular melange of vaudeville stunts followed. A minstrel show with chorus girls fell rather flat after the opening bang.

The "Dancing Fiends" were certainly what they were cracked up to be, as good from an impersonal point of view as the "Feet Features" of Union Vodvil were from a personal one.

The second act starts out with the best part of the bill, the six Brown brothers. Would that they had not been so stingy with their encores. Clever horse play and hot music.

Just to prove that Mr. Eltinge does have a real part in the program he follows the Browns with a singing and dancing act, introducing for his first trial a comedy character. Although "queens grow old," he is still very much a queen, stunning, quite a singer and a fair dancer.

With the exception of a short period in the first act, the revue was as peppy as the weariest could ask for and as "new and different" as has been seen on the boards for many a moon.

Elysbeth Gilmore '27 won for herself the position of foremost Wisconsin horsewoman when she took first place in the sorority riding events at the Little International two weeks ago. She rode for Kappa Kappa Gamma.

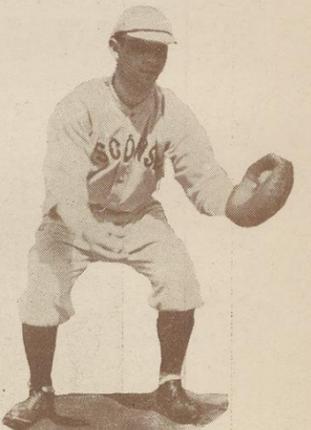

"YOU'VE written an unusually clever comedy, Mr. Hall," says Ed Wynn to the author of the Haresfoot play, "Twinkle Twinkle," as he and Porter Butts, president of the club, confer with the perfect fool to secure professional criticism of the manuscript.

SIDNEY Thorsen '24 is the designer of the Haresfoot stage sets. We show you the artist surveying his work, a typical "Twinkle Twinkle" scene, minus the cast.

Albert E. Deacon '26 of Fort Smith, Arkansas, has been appointed chairman of the annual R. O. T. C. horse show. The event will be held sometime in May.

Col. Howard Lyman

HOWARD Lyman '24, colonel of The University of Wisconsin Cadet Corps, and Louis B. Rutte '24, Lieutenant-colonel, are leading the 12th annual Military ball, which will be held in the Capitol on April fourth. Lyman, as general chairman, is supervising the work of the committees, and he will lead the grand march on the night of the ball. Rutte is acting in the capacity of advisory chairman.

These three men held up the record of Wisconsin in the dual track meet at Notre Dame yesterday, the last contest of the season. Leo Harmon '25 left, is about to put the shot a distance of 42 feet 3 inches. Captain Hammond center, placed second in the all-around events at the recent Illinois relays. Hammond is preparing to vault 12 feet 6 inches. Harry McAndrew, '25 right, is ready for the pistol in the 40 yard dash. He placed second in the 300 yard race at Illinois.

Dr. G. Sherwood Eddy, speaker of the religious conference last week, has aroused considerable student interest here on world social problems. He spoke on industrial, political, racial and religious subjects and, according to his statements, called forth more intelligent discussion from Wisconsin men and women in the open forum than he has ever before been able to stimulate in a university audience. Discussion groups have been formed in students churches, the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. and other organizations, and the ball that Dr. Eddy started has been kept rolling with a velocity that is expected will carry somewhere.

Former Prof. E. A. Gilmore of the Law school, and now Vice Governor General of the Philippines, arrived in San Francisco March 6, on his way to visit his daughter here. His purpose during the stay in this country is to find teachers for the islands.

Prof J. F. A. "Sunny" Pyre, at the head of the line, looked like this when he sang in the "Way Back When" quartet during his undergraduate days. He didn't know then that he would some day write the words to a new Wisconsin hymn and he little suspected that a sheriff was to serve him with a summons because of his interest in a worthy campus publication.

DO YOU KNOW THAT---

the combined efforts of 100 men and women constituting the editorial and business staffs of

make it possible for you to grab your copy of the student newspaper as you hurry to your eight o'clock tucking it in your notebook for future entertainment and diversion?

Do You Realize---

that you are entirely dependent upon the activities of the 35 Cardinal reporters and special writers for the news of your campus?

AND ALSO---

that Cardinal editorials and criticisms generally are expressions of the predominant student thought, and The Cardinal policy on campus questions is a pretty safe thing to bet on?

EDITORIAL OFFICE

THE EDITORIAL STAFF is responsible for every news item, every criticism, every expression of sentiment, every written word that is published in the columns of the paper.

REPORTERS turn in their stories every evening to the desk editor on duty, and

THE DESK EDITOR, whose work begins at three in the afternoon, edits all copy, writes all headlines, and begins a systematic evaluation of the news which ultimately gets to you in the form of an issue of The Cardinal. He has two or three DESK ASSISTANTS who help him edit copy, write heads, and read proof. The work of

THE NIGHT FORCE is generally completed at two o'clock in the morning, when the last forms are locked, stereotyped and sent to the press room. Papers are off the press and into the hands of

THE CARRIERS by five o'clock, and these 11 men are responsible for delivery to your door.

AT NOON, when new assignments are made for the next day, the same cycle begins and the program repeats itself. In this way the editorial staff serves you.

THE BUSINESS STAFF controls the business policies of the paper. A publication must make money, and it is up to the business office to do it.

THE BUSINESS OFFICE FORCE are the students whose work is felt, but never seen nor heard. Their efforts are as vital to the success of The Cardinal as the work of the columnist whose stories are read all over the campus every day.

ADEQUATE CIRCULATION of the paper after it is printed is necessary. This is the sole responsibility of the circulation manager.

ADVERTISING SALESMEN are always on the job to keep Cardinal Advertising up to a maximum. The service of this department is often tiresome, and the routine work sometimes grows monotonous, lacking the irregularities and unexpected events that often bring the excitement of a "scoop" to the editorial people. But the business staff continues to serve.
