Union Will Bar Board Members From Activities

Amendment to By-Laws Forbids Participation in Other Campus Work

Concentration of campus activities was the motivating factor of the amendment to section four of the by-laws of the Wisconsin Men's Union passed at Thursday's regular meeting which forbids Union board members from participating in other extra-curricular activities, including extra-mural athletics, without consent of members of the board.

Explanation of the elements motivating the acceptance of the amendment to the section which formerly read, "Each member of the board shall hold office until the annual meeting of his senior year," was given in a lengthy statement made by the board.

The statement follows:

"The amendment to section four of the by-laws of the Wisconsin Men's Union expresses the unanimous opinion of the board in favor of general limitation of extra-curricular activities of undergraduates. As life after graduation includes extra-business or professional activities and interests, the normal undergraduate program should also include interest in community service, personal athletics, and social life.

"The board feels, however, that various conditions of collegiate life as it is now organized make excessive participation in varied activities extremely easy for certain individuals. The resulting diversity of energies bring not only personal scholastic and physical unhealthiness, but also, while defeating any educational ideal, decreases the effectiveness of the extra-academic agencies for which the individual is working.

"To concentrate the efforts of its own members, therefore, and to enlarge its ability for the achievement of its purposes, the Men's Union board has adopted this measure. The amendment defines a policy in which the board has strongly believed. The board holds the opinion that any regulation or limitation of activities should come from the student organizations concerned, rather than from any external system of control.

"Many organizations on this campus and elsewhere have found that limitation of members' activities is of direct benefit to the organization as a whole and to its members individually. The Men's Union board believes that a general adoption of a policy of concentration of activities by individual students and student groups would result in a far healthier apportionment of student time and effort which would benefit the whole university community."

Exception of the officio members, from the scope of the new amendment was made to permit the president of the senior class to continue on Union

Short Course Students Dine

Celebrate Class Day Exercises; 53 to Receive Diplomas Today

The class day exercises and banquet of the graduating students of the short course in agriculture were held last night in the Old Madison room of the Memorial Union. The graduation exercises are to be conducted this morning at Agricultural hall.

Exactly 53 men will receive their diplomas at the exercises over which Pres. Glenn Frank will preside. Orin J. Anderson will deliver the class oration, Dean H. L. Russell will address the class, while Rev. George E. Hunt will bestow the benediction.

Moving pictures were shown at the exercises last night which represented members of the class as they were at the age of five, as they are today, and as they probably will be several years later. Jack T. Hooper presented the class memorial, and Dean J. A. James accepted it. Several other students also delivered addresses, and the short course Glee club sang a series of selected songs. Oliver W. Eno, president of the class, presided.

Prominence to Grace Matrix Table Tonight

The fourth annual Matrix table banquet sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, honorary fraternity for women journalists begins at 6 p. m. today in the Great hall of the Union. Prominent university women and women of Madison who have played a distinguished part in the social or civic affairs of their city, at that time will gather to break rolls with one another, and to listen to speakers of their respective groups.

Michael Strange, distinguished poet, playwright and actress, will be the outside speaker. She will address the banquet on "The Place of the Poet in the Rush of Everyday Life."

Mrs. M. S. Slaughter will be the toastmistress. Mrs. J. A. Aylward will respond to a toast on behalf of the Madison women, while Sallie Davis '29 will answer a toast as a representative of the university women.

It is estimated that approximately 400 women will attend this banquet, which is modeled after the press banquets of Washington and New York at which meet journalists and the prominent people who are a substantial source of the formers' news.

State Will Elect Rhodes Scholar Again Next Fall

The state of Wisconsin will elect a Rhodes scholar again next fall, and applications for nominations from the university should be filed as soon as possible with Dean S. H. Goodnight, secretary of the local nominating committee.

The university nominates five candidates who are included in the 15 or 16 men from whom the State Rhodes Scholarship committee, made up of former Rhodes scholars, elects the holder of the scholarship.

Each state elects one man two out of every three years. Wisconsin made no election this past fall. Clyde Kluckoln '28, who was elected in the fall of 1927, began his three-year term at Oxford university last fall. Jefferson Burrus '26 is now in the last year of his term at Oxford.

Clarence Darrow Talks on 'Voltaire' Tonight at 8 P. M.

Clarence Darrow will deliver a lecture on the subject of "Voltaire" at 8 p. m. tonight in the Women's building under the auspices of the Unity club.

Darrow won international fame through his connection with the Loeb-Leopold case, the Scopes trial, and his defense of the coal miners in their strike of 1902-03. He has chosen a fertile topic and one which is of interest to the general public as well as the intelligentsia.

The last time Darrow was in Madison he spoke at the Unitarian church and hundreds of people were turned away because of lack of space. A larger building is being used on this occasion and the admission will be 50 cents.

McConnell Talks Today in Finale of Convocations

Methodist Bishop Will Present Protestant Attitude Toward Religion

The Protestant attitude toward religion will be discussed by Bishop Francis J. McConnell of New York at 4:30 p. m. today in the men's gym. This is the last of the three major all-university religious convocations. Catholic and Jewish viewpoints have been previously offered by Father J. Elliot Ross and Rabbi Felix Levy.

Bishop McConnell, who is ordained in the Methodist Episcopal faith, is the president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Between the years of 1909-12 he was the president of DePauw university.

Frank to Give Introduction

Pres. Glenn Frank will introduce him to the convocation audience this afternoon as he has done at the other two meetings of the religious conference. Musical offerings will precede and follow the lecture.

At noon the Bishop will meet the members of the committee which is headed by Lorna Snyder '29 and Ed Fronk '30, and the student advisory group at a special luncheon at the University club. He will arrive in Madison at 7 a. m.

Musical Program Scheduled

The program for the convocation is as follows:

Bulgarian Anthem—Spas Ivanoff, grad, Theodore Racheff '32, Tudor Dobrovsky '29, and Ivan Dobrovsky '29.

Introduction—Pres. Glenn Frank. "Religion from a Protestant Viewpoint"—Bishop Francis J. McConnell. Hymn—Audience, led by Richard Graebel '31, accompanied by Katherine Rhodes '31.

Ludwigson Leads St. Pat Voting

Electricals' Candidate Polls 1,000 Votes in Day to Head Cullinane

At the end of the second day's voting, Lester Ludwigson '29, candidate of the electrical engineers, had garnered 11,610 votes to lead in the St. Patrick election by a margin of over 1,000 votes. John Cullinane '29, civil engineer, is in second place with 10,040 votes. Third place is held by Francis McCourty '29, a mechanical engineer, who has 3,640 votes.

Ludwigson was in third place Thursday and it was only by polling more than 10,000 votes in one day that he was able to take the lead. Cullinane added 6,250 votes to his total while McCourty gained only 1,610.

The voting ceases today at 5 p. m. Bulletins showing the progress of the election will be posted throughout the day.

In old England and in Shakespeare's day, female parts in plays presented on the stage were usually performed by boys.

Dire Predictions of Cold Dampen Hopes of Spring

Exactly six weeks ago today the groundhog came out of his hole and saw his shadow and chattering Madison saw six weeks more of snow. Thursday, with the thermometer doing a toe dance at 58 degrees Fahrenheit to the tune of victrola strains that floated out of open windows, Madison anticipated the imminent arrival of apple blossoms on the second campus and shipments of raccoon coats back to the old home town.

However, Eric Miller, weather prophet, crashes the pretty dream with the prediction of colder weather today and Saturday. He says more snow before the indolent time of the year really comes is a certainty, and professors

Faculty Terms Sigrid Onegin Vocal Genius

The art of Sigrid Onegin, world-famous contralto, who sings at the university Stock pavilion under the auspices of the Wisconsin Union, March 19, was highly praised in appreciations offered by faculty members and students to the Daily Cardinal Thursday.

Mme. Onegin was characterized as "one of the greatest of living singers" and an artist with "one of the most remarkable voices of all time."

Prof. Eugene H. Byrne of the history department, declared he would not forego Mme. Onegin's concert at any cost.

"I am looking forward to Mme. Onegin's concert with a great deal of pleasure," Dean F. Louise Nardin affirmed. "I am unable to recall a concert I have enjoyed in the past three seasons quite so well as Mme. Onegin's two years ago. She is truly an extraordinary artist."

Dr. Charles H. Mills, director of the school of music said that in his opinion Sigrid Onegin "is one of the greatest of living singers. I have heard her several times, and with each appearance she has impressed me more deeply."

Prof. Oscar Hagen, director of the art history department, characterized the artist as "a marvelous singer." "I last heard Mme. Onegin on my recent stay in Europe," he said, "and she has lost none of the genius and ability that have brought her to the pinnacle of fame on concert and operatic stage."

Lester Velie, music editor the Capital Times, in speaking of Mme. Onegin said, "Comment on Mme. Onegin is quite unnecessary. She is without the slightest doubt the greatest of contraltos. I believe I gave her the most favorable review of any artist that appeared in Madison two seasons ago."

board, Lauriston Sharp '29, president, explained. He also pointed out that the "discretion" phrase was based on article five of the articles of organization which in order to meet the requirements of the Wisconsin Union council says that 'eligibility to office and length of term shall be based upon rules prescribed by the board of directors.'

The text of the amendment follows:

Section four. Each member of the board shall hold office until the annual meeting of his senior year, providing that he shall comply with the following conditions; any ex-officio member of the board being excepted:

a. No member of the board shall stand for any office or position in any general campus election.

b. No member of the board shall continue in or be eligible for appointment to any extra-curricular campus activity or position, including extra-mural athletics, except at the discretion of the officers of the Wisconsin Men's Union, and except as may be provided in the constitution and by-laws of the Wisconsin Union.

Smoker "J" Awaiting Loved One

Jamesburg, N. J., December 2, 1927

Jest a-sittin', smokin' Edgeworth
An' a-thinkin', dear of you;
An' a candle's burnin' brightly,
An' it says your love is true.
For the days are long, of waitin',
An' the nights are longer still,
An' sometimes (always smokin')
I pick up this old quill—
An' try to write some poetry
To tell you of my love.
As poetry it ain't much good,
But—holy days above—
It's jest the best I can, an' so
You'll find me, when I'm through.
Jest a-sittin', smokin' Edgeworth,
An' a-thinkin', dear, of you.

Runners, Minus Coach, Head for Illinois Relays

Jones, Called to Bedside of Sick Father, May See
Meet Saturday

Trainer Bill Fallon will have charge of the Wisconsin track team when it leaves for the Illinois Relays at 1:30 p. m. today. Fifteen men will make the trip.

Mr. Jones has been called to Lime Springs, Ia., to the bedside of his father, who is seriously ill. He expects to be with the team at Champaign Saturday in time for the meet.

Two relay teams will run for Wisconsin in the meet. The four mile team consisting of Moe, Dilley, Cassidy, and Goldsworthy, will run against the best teams of the country, of which Illinois is expected to furnish the strongest competition.

Mile Relay Entered

The one mile relay team, defeated only once during the past season, will also attempt to take a title in the meet, although the strong Iowa is expected to enter their team, causing the third race between the two teams this season. Wisconsin won the first race and in the second Iowa nosed the Badgers out of a conference title by 2-10 seconds.

The five sophomores on the Wisconsin team who placed in the conference meet Saturday will all be entered, as will Moe, who won the consolation mile race. Captain Phil Larson, Davidson, Ramsey, Henke, Levy, Behr, Purtell, Kemp, Elsiele, Moe, Dilley, Cassidy, Goldsworthy, Brandt, and Callendar will make the trip.

Larson in Broad Jump

Larson will compete in the broad jump and 60-yard dash. Davidson and Henke will both run in the quarter-mile, and with Levy and Ramsey, will make up the mile relay. Elsiele and Brandt will enter in the low hurdles, with the latter teaming up with Callendar in the high sticks.

Noyes Defeated in Cage Upset

Vilas House Gains Unexpected
Victory in Dorms
Basket Race

The defeat of Noyes house, one of the leading teams in the Adams-Tripp basketball race, by Vilas house by the score 24-18, was a big upset in the series of four games played Wednesday night. This win, coupled with two other wins by Spooner and High houses, gave Tripp hall three games out of four played.

Vilas 24, Noyes 18

Fouling their opponents frequently in an attempt to stop them, Noyes house was unable to prevent Guenther and Sullivan, Vilas forwards, from getting 22 points and a victory for Vilas house.

Vilas: Guenther, Sullivan, Lawrence, Hornig, Burgess.
Noyes: Brown, Ley, Cohen, Ruel, Kiessling.

High 27, Van Hise 10

With Dahlgren, guard, scoring consistently, and Rhode, center, getting six baskets on followup shots, High house annexed its eighth consecutive victory.

High: Franseon, Steckler, Rhode, Dahlgren, Albrecht.

Van Hise: Gutheim, Powers, Newell, Vass, Bindley.

Spooner 20, Faville 6

Ending the first half with a 10-6 advantage, Spooner held Faville scoreless in the second half, to win easily by a 14 point margin.

Spooner: Williams, Buehl, Schowalter, Klann, Roberts.

Faville: Lerner, Dearholt, Finley, Capelett.

LaFollette 14, Bashford 5

Held to a 3-3 tie at the end of the first half, LaFollette house found the needed punch in Davies, who accounted for six points in the second half, while Bashford was held for a single basket.

LaFollette: Davies, Shaper, Butts, Boesel, Reeve.

Bashford: Lovejoy, Stolz, Liase, Meggett, Starritt.

HERE'S the DOPE

By HAROLD DUBINSKY

Spring is here . . . or maybe it was here . . . it might be cold by now . . . but it was pleasantly mild yesterday . . . in fact so mild that "Mike" Murphy the energetic crew coach took a last longing look at the ice covered lake and hastened into the gym to make his plans . . . Meanwhile Johnnie Farquhar, winter sports director got so disgusted he started to pack his stuff . . . "Back to Winnipeg for me," . . . "Just in time for the rest of the hockey season," added Johnnie as an afterthought.

Conference Meets

The wrestling and swimming squads will finish their seasons Saturday in conference meets at Purdue and Chicago respectively.

Swimming Dope

Arnie Meyer, sophomore swimmer is perhaps Joe Steinauer's best bet for a first place. Meyer has the best time record of the year in the breast stroke, and has only one man to fear. He is a certain Peterson of Northwestern. Meyer, if he wins this title will be following in the footsteps of "Hooks" Czerwonky 1923 champion, and Winston Kratz '27 champion. These breaststrokers were developed by Joe Steinhouer who seems to have a remarkable knack of developing champions in this event.

Also

The 300 yard medley relay team has an excellent chance of taking a second or third. Led by Art Thomsen, erstwhile hockey star, the medley team stands a good chance. Meyer and Capt. Ed Lange complete this team. Hatleberg and Cuisinier have an excellent chance of placing in the dives.

More Dope

The swimming team this year, like the hockey team, is composed of sophomores and juniors entirely. The Lange brothers Ed and Harold are captains of the swimming and water polo teams respectively. And predictions are that if the boys all stay eligible for next year Wisconsin will be right up in the front regardless of what kind of competition is offered.

Track

Coach T. E. Jones of the track squad was called to the home of his aged father who is very ill. But despite this the Badger track squad will be leaving for the Illinois relays at Champaign shortly. Only the leading members of the squad will be at these relays and consequently there is a strong possibility that the entire representation will earn places.

Crew

Inside information discloses the fact that Mike Murphy is working the crew candidates to a high degree of intensity. This new coach of ours means business and we wager that Wisconsin will have a real crew this year despite the apparent lack of veterans. Murphy is all ready for the opening of the lake. The new shell has arrived and is waiting in all its shining splendor for the coming season. But slow, tiresome work in the barges will be in order before the Badgers can even hope to step into a shell. And the way the weather looked yesterday, old Lake Mendota will be exposing its cold waters in a very short while.

Fraternity Basketball

After months of slow and painful progress the fraternity basketball race has narrowed down to the quarter finals. We can expect some exciting games from the remaining teams. They all want that coveted first place. S. A. E., last year's winners, are one of the teams in the quarter finals and advance dope has it that they will repeat this year and win the cup. One of the new features planned by the Intramural department is a series of games for the championship of the university between the church league, dormitory, and fraternity champions. A huge trophy, now on display in the trophy room of the gym, will be awarded to the victors.

Prep Academy Sports Tourney Delayed 1 Day

March 21 Set as New Inaugural Date; Consolation Games Eliminated

The National Academy championships, slated to begin on March 20, will open a day later, it was announced by Fred M. Evans, manager of the meet. Elimination of the consolation games, and the substitution of a straight elimination system instead makes possible the change in date. Little interest was shown in previous meets in the consolation games, and the change will also be more satisfactory to the academies entered.

Eastern Team Strong

Cook Academy, of Montour Falls, N. Y., is the latest entry in the tourney. They will come here with a basketball reputation already made this year, being champions of the Eastern prep school division, and are expected to make a strong bid in the coming tournament.

Most formidable of the cage meet entries are Lake Forest, last year's champs, Manlius School, of Manlius, N. Y., Terrill School of Dallas, Texas; Castle Heights, Illinois Military School; and Cook Academy.

In the swimming meet, West Philadelphia Catholic school, winners of the University of Pennsylvania and Rutgers swim meets this year, will be here to defend its national academy swimming title. Shattuck school, last year's title holders, and Culver Academy, are expected to give the national champs some stiff competition. The latter two schools will be represented in track and swimming, but are not sending basketball fives here.

State Track Events Scheduled

Two new events are planned for the track program to be held on Saturday, March 23, which should prove to be popular. There will be a medley race for state high schools, and the same event for state normal schools. These innovations are expected to draw many entries.

New entrants in the track meet are Manlius, Milwaukee University school, St. Johns, Central Y. M. C. A. of Chicago, Elgin, Mooseheart, North Shore Country Day, and Northwestern Military and Naval academy.

Chadbourne Wins First

Match in Bowling Contest

In the first match of the elimination bowling finals Wednesday night, Chadbourne defeated Beta Phi Alpha, 479-447 and 561-332. Saturday afternoon the other teams will see action. Theta Phi Alpha meeting Phi Omega Pi and Alpha Gamma Delta bowling against Chadbourne. The consolation finals begin Monday and the championship matches will be played next Wednesday.

Prof. E. B. Gordon Attends

Musical Session in Chicago

Prof. E. B. Gordon of the school of music has been in Chicago since Wednesday attending an educational meeting. He will return Sunday evening.

Crew Begins Stiff Training in Preparation for Lake's Opening

The Wisconsin varsity crew has started intensive training with the realization that Lake Mendota will be free of ice within a few days. The lagoon bordering on the drive at the southwestern margin of the lake is already open and the rest of the lake should be clear within 10 days.

For the last week the crew has been working its hardest—sticking to a training schedule that should put the men in top shape for the Hudson river classic at Poughkeepsie on June 24. The men are big enough to stand intensive work, and Coach Murphy has realized that the only chance that he has to win the regatta, or place well up, is to have his men in such condition that they can go the full four miles at top speed.

Oberdeck, of last year's freshmen, is still stroking the boat and is looking better every day. Three veterans, Horsfall, Goodman, and Drouet, are rounding into shape and should help

Three Delta Sigs on All-Fraternity Sex-tet

Three members of the champion Delta Sigma Chi hockey team have been selected for the all-fraternity team by John McCarter, referee during the meet. McCarter is a former stroke on the Wisconsin crew and was a defense man for three seasons on the Wisconsin hockey team.

The team was chosen with the aid of the Cardinal sports staff and the intramural office.

McCarter's selection follows:

Name	Pos.	Fraternity
Joe Boyer	G	Phi Kappa Psi
James Sheldon	D	Phi Delta Theta
William McCarter	D	Phi Kappa Psi
Robert Wangerin	C	Delta Sigma Pi
Charles Wright	W	Zeta Psi
William Arliskas	W	Delta Sigma Pi
Lloyd Giessel	SF	Delta Sigma Pi
Dick Seymour	SF	Beta Theta Pi
Charles Boesel	SD	Chi Phi

Boxing Semis Set for Mar. 26; Entries Will Close Friday

The semi-final matches of the interfraternity boxing meet will get under way on March 26 at the gym. The men surviving in the semi-finals will be matched in the finals on April 2. All entrants must be registered today at the Intramural office.

At the present time there are boxing classes conducted at Camp Randall under the tutelage of "Stub" Allison. The boxing room at Camp Randall is open on Monday, Wednesday and Friday's from 2:30 till 5:30 p. m., and any men interested in entering the meet, can work out with the assistance of the coaches there.

The winners in the different weights will receive a numeral sweater and the runner-up a medal. A large Spalding Trophy cup will be given to the "fightiest fighter," regardless if he wins or loses. There will be ten different weights ranging from 112 pounds to 177 or heavy-weight class.

Prof. Selig Perlman Will Speak to Liberal Club on March 20

Prof. Selig Perlman, of the economics department, will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Liberal club which is to be held in the Union at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, March 20. His subject has not yet been announced, but it probably will deal with trade unionism, according to Sidney Hertzberg '31, president of the club. The organization is attempting to secure W. E. B. Dubois, negro writer and philosopher, to lecture here in the near future.

Thelander, Farber, and Lusby Form Nucleus of Pitching Staff

Trouble beset the Wisconsin baseball squad in its indoor training this week when Coach Guy Lowman learned that Morris "Moe" Winer, veteran outfielder, will be ineligible for the whole season. Winer has a condition to work off, and even with the requirement fulfilled, he would not have the required number of grade points.

There is also some question as to whether or not Bill Lusby, the Badger backfield star, will be eligible for the pitching staff. With Lusby available for mound duty, Lowman feels that he would have three hurriers able to take a regular turn.

Thelander Eligible

Ted Thelander, the tall right hander, is getting into shape rapidly for his third season. The other pitcher who has shown conference class thus far is Maurice Farber, who was a freshman star last spring and also throws from the orthodox side.

The best candidates for the various positions are coming to the front day by day as the Badgers work out in the gym annex. Coach Lowman will have to make several close decisions, however, before selecting his squad of 16 men for the annual southern training trip which begins April 9.

Doyle, Evans Catching

Johnny Doyle, a vet of two years experience, and George Evans appear to be the best of the catchers to date. Capt Arthur "Dyrie" Mansfield looks like a fixture at first base, with Bob Sandke next in line. Harry Ellerman, a regular two years ago, and Werner, a sophomore, are the leading performers around second base.

Four men are waging a spirited battle for the shortstop job left vacant by the graduation of Johnny Decker. They are Tury Oman, Earl Vogel, Ed Schumacher, and Oswald Knechtges.

Matthusen Back

Carl Matthusen, of last season's squad, and Albert Streu, a Two Rivers, Wis., candidate, are making things lively around third base.

With Winer out of the picture, Bo Cuisinier is the only veteran in the outfield. Three likely looking recruits are Elgin Hall, Ed Mittermeyer, and Lawrence Forster. Mark Schorer, who played in several games last year, is also with the squad.

The spring training trip schedule follows:

Score Easy Victories in Women's Intramural Swimming Tourney

Chadbourne won from Sigma Kappa Monday night, 35-19, and lost to Phi Mu Wednesday evening, 34-25, and Sigma Kappa defeated Coronto, 35-22, in the second meet that evening of the women's intramural swimming tournament.

Monday night, Chadbourne was leading comfortably at the conclusion of the intermediate events. Sigma Kappa won the diving, but failed to place in the fetching race and took second in the free-style. Chadbourne clinched their victory by taking the relay.

Phi Mu looked very impressive in their first meet, when they administered a defeat to Chadbourne by a margin of 9 points. Phi Mu managed to get a three-point lead in the intermediate class. Their advanced swimmers then proceeded to take the first two places in diving, first in free-style and the relay to assure themselves a victory.

Sigma Kappa came back strong in the advanced events to overcome the two point lead gained by Coronto through the work of R. Wallslaeger in the first part of the meet. The only first in the advanced class came to Coronto when M. Alsop won the fetching. Forfeit of the relay to the

The Double Standard

How Shall Eligibility Be Determined for Athletes and Non-Athletes

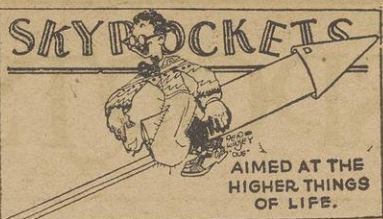

THE inference one draws from the arguments of the Wisconsin coaches on the matter of eligibility is that they would have the university maintain a double scholastic standard, one for athletes another for the general student body. On what do they base their request? What have the athletes done for Wisconsin that they should be allowed special privileges?

Sports writers maintain that the football team is invaluable to the university as an advertising agent, both from the standpoint of increasing the enrollment and as a means of establishing its prestige among other universities. Up to the present time, it seems, college officials accepted the sports writers' views as valid and laudable. Now, however, they are beginning to question the advisability of allowing the football team the free range it has enjoyed. They are beginning to wonder if it is quite right to allow the team to dominate all other interests in the college.

As a result of this questioning athletic coaches at Wisconsin now find it necessary to fight for the scholastic concessions they were granted some time ago—it being generally assumed that a good football player is per se an indifferent scholar. They argue, with no little validity, that it would be suicide and nothing less to attempt to face a Big Ten schedule if Wisconsin was obliged to maintain a higher scholastic average than that required by other universities. Does that mean that Wisconsin must maintain a band of gladiators, extraneous to itself, but, nevertheless, connected by name, for the purpose of advertising the university and boosting for its prestige? Isn't it time to inquire just what kind of a student it is who would be attracted by a winning football team. Why do we need to provide gladiatorial spectacles for the alumni reunions?

Sports have been the greatest single factor in casting a romantic glamor over college life that attracts thousands of students whom we might well question as to their reasons for coming. If these reasons prove to be valid, it is the university's duty to accept them as best it may, but not otherwise. Interest in sports ought not to usurp loyalty to high scholarship standards. In a college community their purpose, their reason for existence, should be to provide a means for recreation. That, and that alone, is sufficient.

Without freedom of the press a people soon becomes the pawn of those who entrench themselves in public office.

REVENGE

or the Vindication of Lydia Pinkham, by Nicholas Carter (as told to JACK ROE)

Just then the front door slammed. Nick Carter looked around in surprise. The corpse had disappeared. Running to the door, the detective saw a man drive off in a Buick. Nick prepared to follow in a hurry. Dashing to the curb, he hailed a cab with one hand and changed his disguise with the other. He now resembled a Russian noble.

"Follow that car!" he shouted to the driver. "Drive like hell! Don't let him suspect he is being followed and, above all, don't let him think you have a passenger."

The chauffeur took a big "Vacant" sign out of the tool box and pasted it on the windshield. He quickly turned the cab around and started off backward after the fleeing Buick.

"Clever fellow," thought Nick Carter. "They will never suspect that they are being followed."

It was a devastating, devious, dangerous, deadly chase. The two cars careened wildly as they rushed on at that mad pace, but Nick was serene. Above the roar of the motor he shouted to the driver, "Faster! Faster! Our very lives are at stake."

A spatter of bullets struck the pursuing car from time to time. Many of them fell to the floor of the cab, but the detective dodged too quickly for them and not a bullet struck him. Soon the atmosphere in the cab became poisonous, however. Nick Carter looked down at his feet and saw a vast quantity of toadstools sprouting up in the dirt that covered the cab floor.

"The devils!" he screamed. "They're using mushroom bullets in spite of the Peace Conference."

In a moment the chase was over at last, finally. Nick Carter's quarry stopped in front of a Chinese laundry. The man got out of the Buick and entered the building, locking the door after him. Nick Carter stealthily smashed in a side window with a brick and went in also. The first thing he saw upon entering the laundry was a large sign, which had been painted in a hurry and capital letters. It read, "ALL WORK IN THIS LAUNDRY PAID FOR BY THE POUND."

"Englishmen, thought Nick to himself. He quickly pulled a pair of spats from his pocket, but, before he could put them on, the floor gave way beneath him and he found himself being hurtled through space. He landed on a heap of cobblestones at the bottom of a 70-foot shaft. Brushing the dust from his clothes, he looked about the room in which he had landed. Seated on a throne at one corner of the room in which he had landed was the most beautiful woman Nick Carter had ever seen. She had a supine, sensuous, exotic look that had an effect upon the detective, who had been through a hundred affairs in which the foibles of femininity had been mixed up with the detection of crime. In her hand she held a gun.

"At last I have you," she exclaimed feverishly. "No longer will you prevent us from making this country safe for Democrats!"

"Don't be too sure," said the detective, unruffled by the turn affairs had taken. "Look over there in the corner!"

Farewell for now you'll miss me much but don't give up there are none such who write so long without a laugh but me.

How Darrow Once Supported Bryan

Madisonians Laughed and Jeered 32 Years Ago as Great Lawyer Expounded Merits of Free Silver in Public Debate Here

CLARENCE Seward Darrow comes to Madison today. He is no stranger here. Old-timers will no doubt recall that some 32 years ago he was hissed and jeered on a Madison platform. It was not, perhaps, his first hissing experience. Nor was it to be his last.

Clarence Darrow was 39 years old on that sultry July day in 1896. Since then he has traveled far; has grown and progressed. Indeed, it is a far cry from Madison in the summer of '96 to Dayton, Tenn. in the summer of '25. Because in the summer of '96 Darrow was campaigning for William Jennings Bryan and free silver.

Free silver was no academic pastime in those days. Bryan had just fired a nation with his ringing challenge, "You shall not press upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns. You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold." And Darrow was fired. And Darrow went a-stumping.

It was a political day on the green wooded shores of Lake Monona. A threat in the sky and an uneasiness in the air did not prevent some 10 or 12 thousand persons from gathering there to hear a debate on the money issue. Clarence S. Darrow, promising young Chicago attorney, championed silver and Bryan. Orating for gold, McKinley and protection was Senator John M. Thurston of Nebraska. Hundreds of Republicans, the papers said, were assembled at the capitol, "each wearing a spray of goldenrod."

Mr. Darrow Overreached

The Chicago Daily Tribune, staunch McKinley sheet, in its issue of Aug. 1, 1896, described the occasion in this fashion:

"Both speakers were applauded from time to time as they scored telling points. Mr. Darrow overreached himself in stating that a continuation of a gold standard would place the United States completely in the power of England, and that the people of that country would come over here and collect interest at the mouth of the cannon as they now do in Egypt. The audience did not take kindly to the sentiment and hissed and jeered."

The Milwaukee Sentinel (another arch-enemy of Bryan and silver) of the same date noted that although Darrow was twice hissed, "he seemed to have the faculty of turning off the displeasure of his auditors in quick time and again winning himself into favor. He grew excited and shook his clenched fist under the very nose of the Nebraskan."

And our own Wisconsin State Journal was even in that day righteous and Republican. The "great audience," it declared, "rose and yelled itself hoarse" for Senator Thurston. But "there were times when Mr. Darrow's remarks did not strike the keynote of his hearers' enthusiasm, and on two occasions he was loudly hissed."

His Facility Flashed

From the distorted accounts of these three McKinley papers one must conclude that Darrow spoke in the face of unsympathetic sentiment. Nevertheless he displayed flashes of that facility for speaking which in later days was to be known the country over.

"I, like the eminent senator, have no interest excepting the truth," he said, after Thurston had harangued the throng for more than an hour. "No public speaker ever had any other interest than that, you know." (Laughter and applause.)

Now, when the silver issue has faded into the mists of yesterday and Bryan has gone to join the ghosts of his fathers, Darrow's economics seem slightly unsound. No doubt Darrow himself would chuckle, reading them again.

"Gold and silver, as I have said, have been the money of the world. The value of everything depends largely upon the amount of money there is in the world. The more money there is in the world the cheaper that money is, which is very evident. (Applause.) The more wheat there is in the world, the cheaper it is."

Under Labor's Banner

WITH the defeat of Bryan and the free silver movement Darrow devoted his talents to other matters. The years immediately following the turn of the century saw him championing the cause of labor in a large number of injunction suits. During the years 1902-03 he acted as chief counsel for the anthracite coal miners at Scranton, Pa. He stood out as one of the leaders in the fight against the Chicago gas trust. He was chief counsel for the defense in the Debs strike case. He defended Moyer, Haywood, and Pettibone when they were tried for the murder of Governor Steunenburg of Idaho. He was a foe of combination, wealth, and power.

It was early in this period of activity that Darrow published his first book—which was published again a few years later, and once more in 1925. "Farmington," he called it, the story of a Pennsylvania boyhood. Although told in the name of "John Smith," Darrow in his note for the second edition confesses that the work is largely autobiographical. He had always wanted to write a book, he said. "I hardly think I am writing this for fame. If that were the case I should tell the things I leave out, for I know that they would be more talked about than the commonplace things that I set down."

Heaven Coming

Long conferences between the men gathered from the earth's corners beneath his father's roof always held him enthralled.

"I listened so rapturously and believed so strongly, and knew so well that the kingdom of heaven would surely come in a little while. And through all these long and weary years I have looked with the same unflagging hope for the promised star that should be rising in the east, still it has not come."

"As I grew older, I came to have a stricter feeling of right and wrong—to see clearly the sharp lines that separate the good and the bad, to grow hard and forgiving and more intolerant of sin. But this, like the measles, whooping cough, and other childish complaints, I luckily lived through. * * * It is only life that makes us know that pity and charity and love are the chief virtues, and cruelty and hardness and selfishness the greatest sins."

He closed his book with an expression of dissatisfaction with what he had accomplished with his years. "All my life I have been planning and thinking and dreaming . . . waiting and dawdling until the day is almost spent and the twilight close at hand."

Fame Leaps Up

STILL, the twilight was not too close at hand. Clarence Darrow's international fame was yet to leap up. He was yet to be an outstanding figure in three trials which commanded attention of half the world.

On an October day in the year 1910 an explosion occurred in Los Angeles. The Times building was in the heart of it. In the end John J. McNamara was kidnapped in his Indiana home and lodged in the Los Angeles jail house to keep his brother, James B., company. They with six others were charged with bombing the Times building. The dragging trial came to a dramatic close when the McNamaras confessed. Darrow, their counsel, advised it.

Out of this spectacular litigation came two indictments against Darrow, alleging that he had attempted to bribe prospective jurors in the McNamara trial. Darrow spoke in his own self defense. Three months and two days of hearings cleared him of all charges and the jury crowded about him with congratulations.

"I shall spend the rest of my life as I have that which is past," he said, "in doing the best I can to serve the cause of the poor."

Stays Hangman's Hand

STRANGELY enough his next appearance in the full blaze of the nation's spotlight was not in the cause of the poor. As a matter of fact, an hysterical press screamed that gold (represented by Darrow) was staying the hangman's hand. Yet the philosophy behind Darrow's pleadings in the Franks murder trial at Chicago in 1924 was not inconsistent with all that he had advocated before.

In his book "Crime: Its Cause and Treatment," published two years before the Loeb-Leopold case, Darrow emphasized 1) that the criminal must be recognized as a victim of circumstance beyond his own control; and 2) that there cannot be any considerable decrease in crime until our entire economic system is improved. The culprit who is never arrested, he declared, is society itself.

Thus Darrow in his defense of Loeb and Leopold did not assume the attitude customarily taken by defense attorneys—"My client may have committed the crime—but let's see you prove it." Rather he declared, in effect, "My clients did the deed, and we are going to find out the reason—not the reason they think they did it, but the causes in their training and character of which they themselves are not aware."

Bigots Lighted Faggots

Called back to the judicial forum from his retirement Darrow made his last stand for better human understanding at the Scopes tragedy at Dayton, Tenn. Silent and grim, wincing in the hot courtroom and fanning himself with increased fury as Darrow made dramatic and eloquent plea, sat William Jennings Bryan, rector extraordinary, fire-eating defender of the Bible and fundamentalism—he whom Darrow championed on that day in Madison 32 years ago.

"With flying banners and beating drums we are marching backward to the glorious age of the sixteenth century when bigots lighted faggots to burn men who dared to bring any intelligence and enlightenment and culture to the human blood."

So the circuit is closed—from Madison, free silver, and Bryan to Dayton, Bryan, and evolution. Bryan, as the saying runs, has passed to his reward. Clarence Darrow returns to Madison today.

Bound Hand and Foot

THIS, then, is something of the life of Clarence Seward Darrow, Eschewing faith in grand, benevolent enthusiasms and social or moral cure-alls, he has given generously of his genius to the poor and unpopular. His fight has been for kindness and understanding. His enemies have been the cruelty and blind passions of the unthinking herd. He has been called a born rebel.

Pile of Boxes Will Be Removed From Lake Front

A 10-foot pile of boxes, crates, barrels, and baskets behind the Union on the lake front will be removed sometime during the next week, according to D. L. Halverson, superintendent.

The boxes, of which Mr. Halverson said, "I certainly don't consider them an ornament," have been accumulating at the rate of approximately 100 a week since the heavy snows made it impossible to haul them away. All winter work on the grounds has been much hampered by the impassible conditions of the roads. The university trucks have been idle.

Under ordinary conditions the boxes are disposed of by people from the outside who call in, asking for them as firewood. Such people may have all they want but must pay delivery charges to have the wood hauled to their houses.

Vesper services, which are being held each Sunday until Easter, will begin at 5:30 p. m. at the headquarters. Light refreshments may be bought for 15 cents before the Sunday Evening club meeting.

Jensen Reports on Activity of Senior Class Committees

A report on the work of some of the senior class committees was made Thursday by Wallace Jensen, senior president. The committees reported on included the memorial committee, the program committee, and the stag banquet committee.

The memorial committee is investigating the probable receipts of the senior class memorial, expected to be about $1,000. It is also determining whether these receipts should be given to the Union or added to the Chinese fund.

The program committee has already chosen the cover and the engravings to be used in the commencement invitations. At present it is engaged in gathering the names and degrees of the prospective graduates.

Plans have been begun by the senior stag committee for the banquet to be held in the latter part of April. Definite announcements in regard to this will be made later.

Major Fox to Go to Fort Sheridan for Treatments

Major Tom Fox, after having been confined in the Madison General hospital since Feb. 28, returned home Tuesday and expects to go soon to the military hospital in Fort Sheridan, Ill., for observation and treatment.

Major Fox was stricken with hemorrhages of the stomach on Feb. 28 last. Since he has been in the hospital he has had six blood transfusions and has had several X-rays taken. The physicians had expected that the trouble was caused by ulcers of the stomach, but the X-rays failed to show any.

If Major Fox improves at Fort Sheridan, he will return here in about two weeks, according to Captain G. A. Miller. However, if the Fort Sheridan physicians find further trouble, he will be sent to Walter Reed hospital in Washington, D. C.

Captain Miller, the next senior officer in line, has been acting commandant of the R. O. T. C. here during the absence of Major Fox.

'Peeping Tom' of Langdon Street Is Fined $10

The first conviction made as a result of numerous reports of peepers at sorority houses in the Langdon street district was made Wednesday morning in police court, when Jerry Bartz, not a university student, was fined $10 on the charge of disorderly conduct.

Bartz had been picked up by police in the rear of the Delta Zeta house, 142 Langdon street, Tuesday night.

Police were again called by occupants of the house Wednesday night, but no suspects were found. At least five visits have been made by police to the Langdon street district during the past few days, but Bartz's conviction came as a result of the only arrest made.

Numerous sororities have reported prowlers around their houses recently. Police believe the epidemic of "peeping" is not serious, and are making any special protection measures.

Claims Interest in Italian Art Reviving Today

"Our interest in art, especially in Italian Renaissance art, is reviving today," according to Clarence Kennedy, associate professor of art at Smith college. An illustrated talk on "The Influence of Italian Art on American Culture" was given by him in 165 Bascom at 4:30 p. m. Thursday.

Mr. Kennedy has spent a good deal of his time in Italy studying the Italian masters; he has thrown a great deal of light on the works and lives of obscure artists. The last four years he has spent studying about Desiderio da Settignano and our knowledge about this artist has been enriched by this study.

Along with his research work Prof. Kennedy has taken some very excellent photographs of Italian art; they are said to portray the very spirit of the works they depict. Some of these pictures are doubly valuable because they are of statues in inaccessible and poorly lighted places.

One of the difficulties encountered by students of Italian art is the fact that not only do different works attributed to the same person vary in style and execution, but differences can be noted on the same piece of sculpturing. These observations led to the discovery of artists whose names were unknown; one such person has built up quite a reputation.

In recent times, art critics have been studying the periods before and after the Renaissance and in the last few years a few, "like myself" as Prof. Kennedy explained, have returned to the study of artists of the Renaissance. This research has brought to light many new works and some of the old pieces are being attributed to different people.

Because of these discoveries there have been many ticklish situations in museums, some of them actually refusing to give the credit to the proper artist even though he has been conclusively proved the author of the piece.

There are 1536 churches in New York.

Prof. Aurner's Economics Classes Will Investigate Sales Problems

Investigation in the merchandising of honey, the use of trade journals, the standard rate and data service, and the analysis of the selling problems of certain business concerns are some of the chief projects of Prof. R. Aurner's course in economics.

Students of the course in Economics 16, will soon investigate the methods of selling honey in order to discover the most efficient methods of merchandising the product. At present they are investigating the use of the standard rate and data service, and the use of trade papers.

Prof. Aurner plans to have the students of the course in Economics 6 work out an analysis of the selling problems for one business firm in their home towns. This project is being carried out in preparation for the construction of a series of follow-up letters which will be based upon sales analysis in these towns.

Atlantic Monthly Publishes Article by Late Graduate

"Sitting on Gun-Powder," an article written by Russell Bookhout '29, has been bought for publication by the Atlantic Monthly. This article, which is an account of his experiences while he was making dynamite at Dupont, Wash., is the first of a series Bookhout has been asked to write for the Atlantic, and it will be published in three or four months.

The series of articles, 12 or more, will then be published in book form by the Atlantic Monthly Publishing company. The articles all deal with Bookhout's life and experience while he was a hobo and a sailor.

Russell Bookhout received his Ph.B. from the University of Wisconsin this February. He is a resident of Madison and graduated from Verona High school in 1915.

He is free lancing at present, and expects to be busy with his articles for the Atlantic until fall. Bookhout is preparing for publication an article of research in economics concerning the bankruptcy act.

Bookhout's first article printed was published in Plain Talk for February, 1929. It was entitled "Adventures of a Strike Breaker."

In the winter of 1859-60 Professor Butterfield maintained a private school in the old University of Minnesota building.

BRAIN power, not horsepower, is the chief operating requirement of the electrical industry.

This requirement must be continuously anticipated to provide leaders for the future. Accordingly, each year, more than 400 picked college graduates come to the General Electric Company for a post-graduate course in electrical science.

With a faculty including inventors and engineers of international distinction, something more than electrical knowledge is imparted to these young men. Here they also find inspiration which prepares them for leadership in this electrical age.

Cash Prize Open to Senior Men

Nominations for $100 Efficiency Award Must Be Given to Goodnight

Nominations for the Theodore Herfurth efficiency prize, awarded annually to the senior man who is judged outstanding in efficiency, initiative, effectiveness, integrity, and industry during his course, are now being turned in to the office of Dean S. H. Goodnight, secretary of the committee making the selection.

Nominations are being submitted by senior advisers, deans, junior deans, dormitory fellows, the Union, Cardinal, Forensic, Athletic, and Badger boards. The winner of the honor will be announced late in April, and the prize of $100 awarded at commencement.

The prize, donated by Theodore Herfurth, Madison business man, was first established last year, and was won by Tarold Konnak. Honorable mention was given to Arthur C. Anderson and Perry Wilson.

In addition to Dean Goodnight, on the judging committee are Prof. Otto Kowalke, Dean J. A. James of the college of agriculture; Dean A. W. Millar of the college of engineering; Dean H. Glicksman of the college of letters and science; Chief Justice Marvin B. Rosenberry of the State Supreme court; Registrar F. O. Holt, and Marshall Hanks, Madison business man.

COMPLETE CAMPUS COVERAGE

By The Rambler

The boys of LaFollette house over at Adams hall have been wracking their heads over a problem suggested by Dr. A. C. Bradley which requires unusual mathematical skill. Here goes: Four tramps and a monkey were passing a light in a barn with only one bag of peanuts for food left between them. In the middle of the night one tramp awoke and decided to get his share then and there. He divided the peanuts into four equal portions and finding one left over gave it to the monkey. He then ate his share, and put the rest back. The second tramp awoke a little later with the same idea and proceeded to divide what he found into four equal parts, giving the remainder of one to the monkey. The third tramp awoke and divided the remainder into four equal shares and finding one left over gave it to the monkey. To cap the climax the fourth man awoke and proceeded to divide the left-over peanuts into four equal shares. He, too, found one left over and gave it to the monkey. How many peanuts were there in the first place? There's no catch in the wording. (Answer tomorrow).

When Rabbi Levy spoke here Wednesday at the Religious Convocation, there were green decorations on the platform in the gym and on the side was a large harp. Faugh a ballaugh.

Excuse number 309 was made possible Wednesday morning when a student who was late to class might have offered the following alibi: "I lost my way on the hill in the fog."

Spring came yesterday and a sure sign of it was apparent when the water bubbler on the third floor of the Memorial Union began to work again.

The whole Chi Phi chapter has been reading the "Bishop Murder Case" with Bob Godley '30 playing Philo Vance. Their newly-gained gum-shoe knowledge aided them considerably the other night when one of the brethren discovered a note making some insidious charges on the bulletin. After a search through the house, in which the entire chapter joined, the message was traced to a second floor room, the door of which was locked. Using the simplest method entrance was gained by breaking down the door. But once inside they found that the bird had flown the cage, leaving only an open window as a clue. Frustrated the group retraced their steps and there on the bulletin were some new i. c. At this point frater-in-chief Eugene Duffield '29, executive editor of the Daily Cardinal, took charge of the offensive. He stood guard at the front door with a baseball bat while the grounds were thoroughly inspected and all footsteps in the snow remarked. They finally located the culprit in a third floor room. Then came the showers. Meanwhile the fraternity's "Philo" satisfied his claim to the cognomen by obtaining a full confession the following week.

The first baccalaureate address at the University of Minnesota was given by former President Folwell in 1882.

Make Union Inquiries

Inquiries about the Memorial Union have been received by Porter Butts '24, house director, from Ohio State, Grinnell, and Syracuse universities asking for information as to administration and organization.

Both Syracuse and Grinnell, which have no Unions at present but are contemplating the construction of such projects have manifested a tendency to model their plan of operation largely after the Wisconsin Union.

From Ohio State, where there has been a union for several years, the letter asks for details as to the methods used by the local house, which has gained repute for its system during the past semester.

THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

D. L. Halverson, Director
Department of Dormitories and Commons

Dear Mr. Halverson:

I want you to know how much I appreciate the work your department is doing. Most of us do not realize the size and complexity of the organization that feeds and houses so many of our students and teachers. Here, behind the scenes, you are doing a fine piece of work, bringing to the members of our academic community a service of great importance.

We are all indebted to you for the great pains you take in buying quality food and preparing it by tested and approved methods. Especially interesting is the almost surgical cleanliness of your plant and your processes.

I am particularly interested in your complete cost accounting system and in your statement that all prices are fixed by a percentage basis and that food is sold at a close margin, thus insuring our students correct prices.

Yours very truly,
