Glenbeulah

The history of Glenbeulah can be said to date back to 1850 when Hazel Peckham Clark came to this county from Rhode Island and settled on a piece of land a part of which is the site of the village. There was no village there for several years after Mr. Clark came, still he saw the possibilities in the fine timber growing in that region, and erected a mill which until very recently was operated. Mrs. R. A. Vanalstyne is a daughter of Mr. Clark. At about the same time that Mr. Clark settled at what is now Glenbeulah William Poole also settled there.

It was not, however, until 1857 that a village was thought of. It was that year that J. L. Dillingham, Edwin Slade, Capt. Joseph Swift, Edward Appleton and Harrison Barrett arrived in the town. As was said before there was a lot of fine timber in that region and a stream which might afford water-power, and Messrs. Dillingham, Swift and Slade at once conceived the idea of utilizing the power and making use of the wood. They opened a store, and established both a saw mill and flouring mill. After several years they expanded their business by beginning to manufacture wooden ware. It was in 1866 that the firm Swift, Dillingham & Co. dissolved, Mr. Dillingham taking the mills and factory and Mr. Slade the store. Mr. Dillingham continued to operate his factory at Glenbeulah until 1884 when he removed it to Sheboygan where it is one of the best enterprises of that city. The factory was of much importance to Glenbeulah, because it employed a number of men. During the period the factory was in the village, the place flourished. It existed long enough, however, to arouse a feeling of pride and to encourage public spirit, and to this day the people of the village hold to certain high standards. If it had not been for the factory a high school would probably never have been established in the village, but it is there and the people take a pride in maintaining it, and it was never more intelligently conducted than just now.

Among the early comers was Edward Appleton, and he and Harrison Barrett shared the honor of naming the place, and they certainly showed that they had poetry in their souls. It is a name which would attract attention anywhere for its beauty and euphony. It is explained that their invention was assisted by the beauty of the location in a glen and that the given name of Mr. Appleton's mother was Beulah.

While Mr. Clark and Mrs. Poole were the original private owners of the land of Glenbeulah, a house was built there as early as 1848, by Donden Ferguson. In 1850 it was purchased of C. Conger by Mr. Clark, who transformed it into a saw mill. In 1857 Mr. Clark disposed of the mill to Mr. Dillingham in whose possession it remained for about twenty-seven years, when it became the property of R. A. Vanalstyne, who owned it until recently when he sold it to Gust Baumann. It was only a few years ago that the old landmark was torn down.

Dillingham, Slade and others had scarcely come into possession of the land and water-powers when the erection of a flouring mill, now owned by George Metzger, was begun. A store was built on the site of that now belonging to Goelzer Bros. At about the same time the Glen House was erected, and this hotel is now being conducted by James Mooney. The village was thus started in 1857.

The mill was the property of Swift, Dillingham, Slade & Co., as was also the store. Herman Schnebly was the first to run the mill, the greater part of the product of which found its way to Boston and other eastern points. The partnership lasted until 1866, when Mr. Dillingham took the mills and the woodenware factory which was established a few years before. The flouring mill was bought by J. Bauernfeind and a man by the name of Meyers, in 1873. For sixteen years it remained in their possession, when they sold it to Mr. Metzger, who subsequently disposed of it to his son George Metzger, in whose possession it still remains.

The Glen House built by Mr. Dillingham in 1857 was at first merely a boarding house for the men employed in the construction of the dam for the flouring mill and in building the mill. Two years later it was made a hotel and thrown open to the public. It was then that G. Stannard took charge of it. The hotel and livery stable have been successively owned or leased as follows: Mr. Scott, Mr. Hadley, Mr.

Root, Mr. Miller, Mrs. Troop, Mr. Boggs, Mrs. Troop, Mr. Huntley, Mr. Imig, Mr. Maurer, Mr. Hitzler and Mr. Mooney. Not until Mr. Hadley came into possession of the hotel and livery was there any connection by rail between Glenbeulah and Fond du Lac. In the earlier days there was a stage coach running between the two places and it cost two dollars to ride from one place to the other, while at present it costs forty-eight cents by rail. Mr. Kerdall was the important personage who drove the stage coach.

The hotel has been enlarged and improved from time to time. When Mr. Root owned it an addition was built, which has since been remodeled into a saloon. The upper floor of the original hotel was a dance hall, while on the lower floor were offices occupied by a physician and a dentist, and sleeping and living rooms. It was not until Mrs. Troop became the proprietor that the hall was changed into five bedrooms and a corridor. Mr. Imig had the livery stable improved and enlarged. He had what was known as the Badger store removed and joined to the livery barn. Mr. Mooney has also had substantial improvements made to the hotel.

The store erected in 1857 stood until 1892 when it was destroyed by fire. The store was owned jointly by Messrs. Dillingham and Slade until 1866, when Mr. Slade became sole owner. He conducted it until 1891 when he sold it to E. Weaver, who had been in possession of it scarcely a year when it burned down. The site remained vacant until 1902, when Goelzer Bros., had erected thereon their present store.

One of the earliest comers to this part of the town was Joseph Syron still living among us. He came in 1848. He was a carpenter by trade and his work took him away from home much of the time. This his family dreaded greatly as they were living in the midst of almost unbroken forest inhabited by wild men whom they feared. Glenbeulah like most of the remainder of the county was affected by the "Indian scare."

A place must have its first of everything it possesses. It must have its first meat market if it can afford that sort of a luxury. This was supplied for Glenbeulah by John Rossmann. The late Fred Beck Sr., was the first to open a shoemaker shop in the village. And how would a place get along without a smithy, and where could any one have gone and come nearer finding Longfellow's ideal blacksmith than F. D. Ladenberger was.

"The smith a mighty man is he,
With large and sinewy hands;
And the muscles of his brawny arms
Are strong as iron bands."

Mr. Ladenberger was the first to swing the heavy sledge in the village. He opened a blacksmith shop in 1857 about the time the village was started. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ladenberger, settled there in 1855, but the son spent two years, until 1857, in a machine shop in Fond du Lac. In 1875 he also began to deal in machinery and farm implements, and in 1884 he gave up blacksmithing and devoted his attention exclusively to his implement and machine business.

Three years after Mr. Ladenberger established his blacksmith shop in the village, John Dennis opened a wagon shop. The two trades are closely associated and one is quite essential to the other and one can easily imagine that Mr. Ladenberger gladly welcomed the coming of Mr. Dennis, who was an experienced workman. The wagon shop stood on the site of the present residence of H. E. Garling. He continued to work at that trade until 1865, after which he devoted most of his time to farming, although he did occasionally turn his attention to his trade for brief intervals.

Among the early acquisitions to the business interests of the state was a hardware store owned by a Mr. Badger. It was located on the lot now occupied by the residence of Mrs. Clark.

Glenbeulah was exceedingly fortunate in the character of most of its early residents. They were men and women of intelligence and enterprise, and sought to establish a community in which it would be an advantage and an honor to reside. The names Dillingham, Slade, Swift, Clark, Syron, Ladenberger, Dennis, Barrett, Vanalstyne, Beck and scores of others stand for the things which make for better conditions, and no one can doubt that had Glenbeulah been more favorably located for trade, it would rank only second to Sheboygan in size and importance among the places of the county. The village had been scarcely more than established when a physician opened an office there. It was no less a personage than Dr. Emerson, who had come from the state of Maine. He was not a recent graduate, but he had practiced for some time, and among his patients in the "Pine Tree State" were the members of the family of Hannibal Hamlin, who was elected vice-president with Lincoln in 1860.

The enterprise which for a time seemed destined to give prominence to the village was the wooden ware factory mentioned in the early part of this article. It gave employment to sixty persons and made Glenbeulah a live village for a number of years. When, however, the timber in that region began to give out, the proprietor saw that he could operate his factory to a far greater advantage by changing its location and decided on removing to Sheboygan, which he did in 1884. This was a serious blow to the village and shattered the hopes of those who had seen in a vision the creation of a fond desire, a thriving and prosperous village, ever expanding and growing in prominence and importance. The factory produced many useful articles, such as cheese and butter boxes, measures, barrel covers, broom racks, cheese cases, hubs and others. Its yearly output was valued at about $75,000, and its product was widely distributed.

When the factory was removed it seemed almost like an exodus. To have fourteen families leave all at once a place the size of Glenbeulah was decidedly not an encouraging outlook. However, the results were not as disastrous as had been anticipated. Those who remained felt that it was for them to keep things moving, and they went about the task bravely and stemmed the downward tide with an energy and enterprise wholly to their credit. The result was that Glenbeulah is still on the map, exhibiting not a little life and public spirit.

There is nothing which better indicates the character of people than the things they emphasize. Simultaneously with the settlement of Glenbeulah provision was made for education. While the settlers could afford nothing which in any way approaches the handsome and commodious structures which are scattered over the county today, they erected the best they could afford at that time, a small log building, which stood at the foot of what is known as the Beck hill in the eastern part of the village. The wages of teachers as compared with those of the present day were by no means high. Eight dollars a month was considered fair pay for a teacher in those days. Board was furnished teachers however, but they were obliged to "board around," that is, like "Ichabod Crane"; they were boarded and lodged at the houses of the residents of the community.

It was not long before the little log schoolhouse gave way to a frame building which has since been remodeled into a store but now occupied by the post-office. Early the citizens of the place began to agitate the subject of establishing a graded school and in 1861 it was decided to erect a building with several departments and in 1862 it was completed. The structure still stands and is now the largest and most attractive building in the village.

It may not be inappropriate to mention here that Miss Isabel T. Clark, now Mrs. R. A. Vanalstyne, was one of the first teachers in the village and taught for several years. It should be said in relation to her that she acquired considerable prominence as a teacher. The schools of Glenbeulah have always ranked well with the better schools of Sheboygan county.

It was in 1877 that the free high school was established, Mr. J. F. Moran being principal. In 1882 the first class was graduated and consisted of the following: Fred Barrett, Maud Carroll, Anna Dennis, Sarah Devoy and Minnie Shufflebotham. Mr. Burton was the principal when the class finished the course. It was made a four-year high school in 1904, while Mr. R. M. Radsch was principal. The school has been in charge of very strong men and women, and it is conceded that it is being very ably conducted at the present time.

Glenbeulah was one of the few places of the county favored with a railway in its early days. It was only three years after the village was started that the Sheboygan and Western railroad was completed as far as the village. On March 20, 1860, the first train entered Glenbeulah. A locomotive and three box cars on that date drew up to the depot, which had recently been built. The cars were loaded with wheat and soon the first train pulled out for Sheboygan. Until 1867 Glenbeulah continued to be the western terminus of the railroad. In that year the extension of the road westward was begun, and the work in charge of S. M. Barrett was prosecuted until the road was completed to Fond du Lac. A fact which illustrates certain conditions regarding railroading in the county during those times is that wood was used for fuel in locomotives, and it is said of Jerry Donahue that he sawed with a hand-saw all the wood required to run the engine between Sheboygan and Glenbeulah.

The later enterprises established in the village had much to do with keeping the place alive.

In 1859 J. Rossmann erected a hotel, which is now owned and conducted by R. G. Arnold, who purchased it from A. Heyn, also for a number of years proprietor of the hotel. A hotel was built by Wm. Sinz in 1869. It is now conducted by M. Kirst, but was at various times in charge of Fred Titel, John Rauls and M. Feldmann.

The hardware store now owned by Fred Winn was built by Mr. Slade, but the exact date of its erection is not remembered by any one living. It was conducted by the following: Bowman & Son, Philip Miller, J. Hochrein, C. Resimus, James Kenna and Mr. Winn.

As the farms in the vicinity of Glenbeulah became more developed the services of blacksmiths came more into demand and one shop could not do all the work, so in 1873 M. Tupper opened another shop. For two years he conducted the shop and then for a year it was vacant. In 1876 L. Diehl reopened the shop and two years afterwards, in 1878, purchased and has owned and operated it ever since. The shop which is now the property of Mr. Brieske was built by him in 1894.

Another meat market was opened in the village in 1869 by Mr. Gutschultz. It is in possession of Fred Bauman, whose father Ernst Bauman bought it in 1871 and owned it until 1895 when he disposed of it to his son, the present owner.

One of the later enterprises started in the village was a furniture store begun by J. Ballhorn. He had it only a few years when he sold out to H. Sultze, who after conducting it for four years, 1892, disposed of it to M. M. Mann, the present owner.

A lumber yard was begun by Dillingham & Co. That firm sold it to Mr. Hochrein, who for several years conducted it in connection with his hardware store. In 1901 he sold it to W. D. Scott, who is still in charge of it.

A creamery was built in the village in 1896 by H. E. Garling and was operated by the firm of Garling & Son. They did not long continue to make butter, but soon began to make cheese, which they have continued to do since.

The building in which the post-office is kept was originally a schoolhouse, and was the first frame building used in the village for educational purposes. It was early discarded for the present structure. It has since been successively a shoe shop, by Mr. Beck; a candy store, first by Mrs. Metzger and second by Mrs. Walters; a meat market, by Melvin Collins; a harness shop, by Mr. Rhines, and now a post-office.

Glenbeulah has three churches established as follows: The Roman Catholic in 1860, the Methodist in 1883, the Lutheran in 1892.

The Odd Fellows have a lodge in the village and it was organized on January 17, 1867, with the following as charter members: W. M. Clark, C. D. Gordon, I. B. Clark, W. M. Scott, J. A. Smith, Hiram Schnebly and R. A. Vanalstyne. The name of the Lodge is Swift No 78. It is in a flourishing condition with a membership of about thirty.

Lyceum hall was built in the year 1872, being completed on July 4 that year, and a dance was held in the hall on that day, the first event in the new hall.

The first janitor was Mr. Sabin. In 1884 the library was put into the hall. The hall has been the scene of many a very pleasant event.

The establishment of the library and the organization of the literary society were steps which have resulted in much benefit to the village. They have had an excellent influence both morally and intellectually upon the community.

Better lighting has recently been introduced in the village, in business places and the library, in the way of gas light; and in 1908 the Glenbeulah Telephone company was organized. Cement sidewalks are taking the place of wooden walks.

The Biographical Record is indebted for the material of this sketch to Miss Anna Titel's "History of Glenbeulah" and to other sources.

In the next number of the Biographical Review will appear an account of the village of Greenbush, which came into existence before Glenbeulah.

Among those who came to the county in the early days was Mr. Asa Carpenter of Plymouth. He immigrated to the county from New York state in 1851 and settled at Plymouth which then gave but slight promise of becoming the thriving city it now is. John Taylor's Cold Spring House stood near the site of the cheese factory now owned by John Brost. It was a log building. The Quit Qui Oc House was built afterwards. It has been remodeled into the present Commercial House. There were two stores then, one of which was owned by Messrs. H. N. and P. H. Smith and the other by Sidney Smith. Tobias Wigget bought ashes and Wm. Root made them up into potash. Only a few people were then living in the burg.

Mr. Carpenter says that the town of Rhine had just been cut off the town of Plymouth.

It was in 1854 that Mr. Carpenter settled with his wife on the farm a mile south of Plymouth. He built a frame house at once, and in 1862 erected an upright. The house then completed still stands with a few additions and is far from unsightly. His farm was all woodland and he cleared almost all of it himself. There was no highway along his farm, only a logging road. He is amused still when he thinks that he was obliged to work out his road tax with an ax.

That Mr. Carpenter was a man of some nerve was evidenced by his experience with a wolf. He met one on a certain occasion and frightened the animal away by looking it squarely in the eye. Of courses Mr. Carpenter was carrying an ax which he was prepared to use on lupus if he failed to conquer him with the eye. One evening while after his cows, he shook a lynx out of a tree, and with the aid of his ax dispatched the animal.

Mr. Carpenter cleared up his farm almost unaided, at the rate of ten acres a year. He cut the trees down in winter, hauled the logs into piles and burned them and the brush in summer and sowed the new land to winter wheat in the fall. This he continued to do until sixty acres had been cleared. The first piece of winter wheat he raised in the summer of 1855. Mr. Carpenter recalls that the spring of that year was very dry, and there was no precipitation until May 29, when there was a rain storm followed by snow. A severe frost killed corn. Mr. Carpenter had hoed four rows, and these froze with the rest, but the corn in them started up again, while the rest of it never revived. The winter wheat that year yielded thirty-three bushels to the acre. After that year he never again worried about the weather.

In 1857 Mr. Carpenter raised a piece of winter wheat on the highest part of his farm, and it went twenty-seven bushels to the acre. He drew it to the Joerns mill at Winooski and received $1.25 per bushel.

On April 6, 1854, his union with Miss Harriet Wilson took place, in the state of New York. Mrs. Carpenter was a sister of the late Ara Wilson, and her home was in Jefferson county, New York, while that of Mr. Carpenter was in Oswego county, the same state.

When Mr. Carpenter first came to Wisconsin in 1851 he was employed with his brother-in-law, the late Hon. Enos Eastman. Three years after his marriage in 1857 Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter visited their native state.

One of the early events of Plymouth, and one that stirred up a great deal of bad blood was the one between the eastern and western parts of the place as to what name should be given to the village. Those in the eastern part insisted on Quit Qui Oc, while those of the western part preferred the name of Plymouth, although other names were proposed. A few liked Springfield and others thought Springvale appropriate. The late John Taylor was the leader of those who wanted the place named Plymouth. He was supported by Mr. Carpenter and the late Mr. L. F. Eastman. The chief objection raised to Plymouth was the fact that there was a post-office by the name of Plymouth in Rock county, but as is apparent to all now the name Plymouth was adopted. Mr. Barrows, father of the well-known manufacturer of Sheboygan, A. D. Barrows, was the postmaster. He kept the post-office at his house, which is the identical one occupied by Justice Mahlsted at the corner of Mill and Smith streets in the city of Plymouth. Mr. Barrows was rather partial to the name Plymouth, and when mail came to his office addressed to Quit Qui Oc, he simply would not deliver it, and thus forced those who were inclined to cling to the name Quit Qui Oc, to adopt the name Plymouth and have their mail addressed to the latter place. He made them realize that they could not foist the grotesque Indian name upon the community, and it put a very effectual quietus to the controversy.

Mr. Carpenter has always taken an interest in politics. The year he came to the state, 1851, J. L. Farwell was chosen by the Whigs as governor of Wisconsin, and Mr. Carpenter cast his first ballot for him. The state at that time was hopelessly Democratic, but Mr. Farwell was overwhelmingly elected, because of his popularity and well-known public spirit. The legislature was Democratic, but it carried out all the important recommendations made by the Whig governor. He was tendered a renomination but he positively declined and the next governor was William A. Barstow, a Democrat.

In 1854 the Republican party was organized, and Messrs. Asa Carpenter, L. F. Eastman, Mr. Dockstaeder and others joined it. In the fall of 1855 the Republicans were victorious in this state and elected Coles Bashford of Oshkosh.

Alexander W. Randall, who was known as the "war governor," was also a Republican, and was a man whom Mr. Carpenter admired.

Mr. Carpenter says that Carl Schurz had great influence and it was exerted for good.

Until 1877 the city of Plymouth was a part of the town of Plymouth, and before the two were separated and the city was incorporated, Mr. Carpenter was assessor of the town then including what is now the city. As assessor he got after some of the better-to-do people of the city and they were compelled to pay somewhere near their just share of taxes. That was probably one of the most commendable of his acts only it was not appreciated by those who had their property assessed nearer its true value.

Citizens' State Bank

On March 7, 1910, the Citizens' State Bank of Sheboygan took possession of its fine new home on North Eighth street. It was on that day that it began to do business in its new quarters. Several days before the institution was established in the new building, representatives of the press were invited to inspect the bank, and all the papers in the city contained articles descriptive of the elegant new structure and its very attractive equipment.

The bank is ample in size, its main part being thirty-eight feet wide, fifty feet deep and twenty-six feet high. The windows admit sufficient light; the walls are most attractively decorated; the furniture and fixtures, purchased from the M. Winter Lumber Co., are simply elegant; the floor is so-called Napoleon marble, while the ceiling is artistically made. On each side of the entrance is a room for customers. Both of these are neatly furnished in mission style. Along the sides of the main room are offices for the officers and directors and ladies' room.

The vaults are at the east end of the building. The walls are solid brick two feet thick, while that part used for depositing cash is covered with steel so hard as to offer decided resistance to any attempt to pierce it. The door of the cash vault alone weighs nine tons. The outer doors are made of six-inch armor plate burglar proof steel. The inside doors are two inches thick. The vault is divided off by grill partitions. The front part of the vault is for safety deposit boxes, while the back part is for cash and securities. It is declared that the door to the vault was the heaviest in the state when it was put in place.

While it was necessary to contract for furnishing the front and parts of the vault to outside firms, most of the work was done by local contractors and the material furnished by local firms. The mason work was done by Trimberger and Rath; the wiring for electric lights was done by the Acker Electrical company; Geele Hardware company had the contract for putting in a heating plant; J. and W. Jung company did the decorating; the plumbing was done by A. Vowinkel & Sons; the roof was put on by Henry Bosshardt, and the H. C. Prange Co. furnished some things for the interior. The site, building and furniture and fixtures represent an outlay of approximately $50,000.

The Citizens' State Bank was established in 1896, and had its home in the Groh building at the corner of Eighth street and Pennsylvania avenue. On the 1st day of July, 1907, there was a change made in the management of the institution and from that time it began to grow rapidly. Twice since then its capital stock was doubled. It was increased from $25,000 to $50,000 and then $100,000. The annual profits increased from $5,000 to $25,000; its deposits increased from $200,000 to $500,000, while its total resources from $250,000 to $600,000.

It outgrew its quarters in the Groh building and found itself under the necessity of providing more commodious ones.

These are the officers of the bank: President, Henry Jung; vice-president, A. J. Whiffen; cashier, J. W. Hansen; assistant cashiers, D. W. Huenink and P. L. Meyer.

Birthday Anniversary of the Hon. Peter Daane

A birthday and at seventy-five may readily call up a train of thought and scenes representing the experiences of other years. With a mind unclouded, with love of his fellowmen as the mainspring of his action, with a desire to see others happy and with a constant wish to be of service to others, it is but natural that the Hon. Peter Daane at the age of seventy-five should see in memory a long procession passing to and fro. His sympathetic nature no doubt causes his vision to rest upon the care-encumbered ones bearing their burden of sorrow. He can recall how much of time has been lavished unwisely and carelessly. He has seen how "talents, made haply for high and pure designs, have too often been laid upon unholy, earthly shrines." As a young man his liberty-loving, patriotic and justice-loving spirit led him to volunteer his services to uphold the institutions of his country and to strike the shackles from millions of slaves.

Having never shrunk from duty however unpleasant and having had the courage to press into the goblet of life "the leaves that give it bitterness" nor having "prized the colored waters less for in his darkness and distress new light and strength they gave; and having learned how false the goblet's sparkling bubbles show, how bitter are the drops of woe with which its brim may overflow"—he has learned to live.

But it would not be true to the life of Mr. Daane if we were not said in this connection that he usually saw the sunshine beyond the clouds. Life is full of meaning to him now, and while the past has had enough clouds to make the sunshine the brighter by contrast, existence to him has been real and serious. It can be said of him with all the meaning the lines contain:

"No dreamer thou, but real all,—

Strong manhood crowning vigorous youth;

Life made by duty epical

And rhythmic with the truth."

Home and family have ever been dear to him. In them, to a very large extent, centers his being. It is in the home of Mr. Daane that joy with duty is joined and happiness united with love. The angel of death darkened his pleasant home when it took the loving helpmate of many years through the valley of mystery.

He has had a family tree made. It is a painting by A. W. TeRonde of Oostburg, and it is quite a work of art. It was completed about the time of the celebration of Mr. Daane's seventy-fifth birthday anniversary, on March 26, 1910, and was the very center of attraction on that occasion. The celebration was a delightfully pleasant event, at which all the relatives residing in or near Oostburg, to the number of fifty, were present. Many living at a distance were unable to attend. The guests were regaled not only by an abundance of delicious refreshments, but by reminiscences of the early days, of which Mr. Daane has many interesting ones to relate.

He was born in Westkapel, Zeeland, Holland, on March 26, 1835. When about seven years of age he came with his parents to America. They resided at Pultneyville, New York, for five years, and in 1847 came west, settling in the town of Holland. The father of Mr. Daane purchased from the government eighty acres of land which was covered with virgin forest. He paid $1.25 per acre. They built a log cabin and began at once to clear the land of trees. They bore all the hardships of pioneer life. The father passed away in 1880 and the mother in 1869.

Mr. Peter Daane was educated in the schools of Pultneyville and a rural school in the town of Holland. He was nineteen years of age when he began life on his own account. On September 28, 1854, his marriage with Miss Susanna Eernisse, was solemnized. He has been respected and trusted to the extent of having been a leader in his community. He has been honored with offices of trust and at one time was a member of the state legislature. He served his country in the Rebellion. His first wife departed this life a number of years ago, but his second wife and nine children survive. The family tree shows the following: Peter Daane, and Susana Daane deceased, nine children, all living; thirty eight grand children living; three grand children dead; thirteen great grand children, all living.

It will suffice to add that Mr. Daane ever did his duty as he saw it. He believes that duty is true, and as some one has truthfully said, "there is no true action but in its accomplishment." He no doubt sees now as never before in his life that "duty is the end and aim of the highest life; the truest pleasure of all is that derived from the consciousness of its fulfillment." His life gives meaning to these words.

Golden Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Knowles.

On Tuesday June 21, was the fiftieth, or golden, wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Van Buren Knowles of Greenbush. They were united in marriage on June 21, 1860, on the old homestead in West Greenbush, the Rev. Mr. Randall, performing the ceremony. They have usually thought of that town as home, although they have not always resided there since their marriage. For some time Mr. Knowles was deputy warden at the state prison at Waupun, where he proved his theory that kindness is a potent factor in getting along with any class of men. He had the reputation of being able to handle hardened criminals without resorting to harsh means. For several years Mr. and Mrs. Knowles were residents of Fond-du Lac, where Mr. Knowles engaged at the carpenter trade. Chiefly, however, they spent their wedded life on their farm, in Greenbush. About a year ago they moved to the village.

Here they celebrated an event which comparatively few are privileged to observe. Golden weddings are sufficiently rare to attach importance to them. They are replete with meaning. A half a century of unselfish devotion, of mutual admiration and esteem, of comforting and charming companionship, of kindness, of forbearance, of patience, is an experience which alone can bring two souls near perfection. When Mr. and Mrs. Knowles, their children and friends met at the hall in Greenbush and feasted and made merry, they no doubt realized that the event was made possible by the sympathy and affection made possible by the union of two loving hearts and two souls who love justice.

Mr. Knowles was born in Chittenango, New York in 1836. When but six years old he came with his parents to Wisconsin in 1842, and was for a long time a resident of Greenbush.

Mrs. Knowles was also a native of the state of New York, having been born at Batavia, that state, in 1835, their lives have been most unselfish. Her parents did not come directly to Wisconsin from New York, but resided for a few years in Ohio, but arrived in Wisconsin in the same year that the parents of Mr. Knowles came. Mrs. Knowles taught school and is kindly remembered by some residing in the county now as Miss Adelia A. Bartholf, their teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. Knowles have the following children to comfort them as they approach the sunset of life: James H. Knowles, Rockford, Illinois; George E. Knowles, Chicago; Miss Jeanette Knowles, Greenbush; Mrs. O. B. Freyberg, Sheldon, Iowa; Albert I. Knowles, Sibley, Iowa; Edward Knowles, Greenbush; Harold Knowles, Chicago. Mrs. Freyberg and Mr. Albert Knowles were the only ones who were unable to be present at the celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Knowles have not lived for themselves alone. They studied the larger and deeper problems of life to find meaning in what was transpiring about them. They constantly looked to find good in mankind, and they found so much that their faith in humanity is sincere and abiding. Mr. Knowles believes more firmly than ever that there is not one kind of morality in business and politics and another in religion. He has told the writer that he would like to see the principles of Christ applied to business. Life has not been a time of sensual pleasures for Mr. and Mrs. Knowles, but a season of spiritual growth and preparation for a higher kind of existence. They are building on the beautiful belief that the years they are spending on earth are making them more worthy of the purer and loftier existence when their souls shall leave their outgrown shells by life's un-resting sea. It is a pleasure to think of lives with such a faith and such a purpose.

Golden Anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. A. T. Miller

The Rev. and Mrs. A. T. Miller, a venerable couple of Sheboygan Falls, celebrated the fiftieth, or golden wedding anniversary on Monday, June 13, by entertaining a number of relatives at dinner and meeting their friends who called to congratulate them during the afternoon and evening. All who went to the home of Rev. and Mrs. Miller were served with ice cream and cake. It was an enjoyable event.

Mr. Miller came to the county a few years before the outbreak of the Civil war. His marriage with Miss Mary B. Abbott took place on June 13, 1860, in Milwaukee where he was attending a conference. She was a resident of Barton, Washington county, at the time of her union with the Rev. Mr. Miller. He had cleared up a piece of land in the town of Scott and on that they settled. In 1864 he enlisted in Co. B, Fifty-seventh Wis. infantry and served the last year of the war. In 1868 the Rev. and Mrs. Miller sold their place in Scott and moved onto a farm in Lima where they resided for many years. Mr. Miller never gave up the ministry and he preached the gospel regularly while conducting his farms. While living near Batavia he served two congregations one at Barton and the other in Lyndon to which he went on alternate Sundays. He lived from each a distance of eleven or twelve miles, and he walked to them. From Lima Mr. Miller went to Ahnapee, now Algoma, for three years; Campbellsport, five years; Rio, three years; and Waukon, four years. He went to Sheboygan Falls about a year ago. He retired from the ministry four years ago, and has preached only occasionally since to supply vacant pulpits.

The Rev. and Mrs. Miller have four children as follows: Mrs. Henry Goodwin of the town of Sheboygan Falls; Erwin Miller of Greenwood, Clark County;

Mrs. Alfred Goodwin of El Monte, Calif.; and Mrs. N. R. Lincoln, Grand Forks, North Dakota; and nineteen grandchildren.

Mr. Miller was born in the town of Cobleskill, Schoharie county, New York, on January 4, 1831, and came with his parents to Milwaukee in 1846. The first year was spent on a farm in the town of Mequon, Ozaukee county. From there they went to the town of Fredonia in the same county and cleared up a farm. Somewhat later the son, the Rev. Mr. Miller, went to Scott this county and cut the trees on a tract of land. In 1860 he was ordained a minister.

Mrs. Miller was born in Corfe Castle, Dorset Shire England, seventy-four years ago. The village derived its name from an ancient castle which stands on a hill near by, and it is said was founded in the Tenth century. Mrs. Miller came with her parents to America in 1846, and they settled in Barton, Washington county, where they resided when her union with Mr. Miller took place in 1860.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller are still in the enjoyment of health and strength, and seem likely to see many more of their wedding anniversaries.

Items of Interest

The Business Men's association of Sheboygan at its meeting on April 14, at the Hotel Foeste, decided to encourage the holding of conventions in the city. The sum of $150 was appropriated for prizes at the Eagle's convention which was held in the city in June.

On April 5th, 1910, C. W. Starrett was re-elected mayor of the city of Plymouth.

An interscholastic track and field meet was held at the fair grounds in the city of Plymouth on May 28th. The following high schools were represented: Chilton, Kiel, New Holstein, Port Washington and Plymouth. The standings of the several teams by points were as follows; Plymouth, 69; Kiel 18½; Port Washington, 17½; New Holstein, 14; Chilton, 7.

Diamond Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kroos

On Saturday, April 9, was the sixtieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. William Kroos of this city. They certainly have been wonderfully favored. They were permitted the rare privilege of celebrating their Diamond wedding while still blessed with fair health and a vigor of body and mind unusual in people a decade or two younger. Congratulations on such circumstances are exceedingly appropriate, and many were the pleasant reminders of the event by friends during the day.

The celebration was at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Kroos on Erie Avenue, and only relatives and a few intimate friends participated.

Mr. and Mrs. Kroos belong to the pioneers of the city, and have always been held in high esteem. Mr. Kroos was born near Bielefeldt, Westphalia, Germany, on August 11, 1818. When twenty-four years of age he came to America, landing at New Orleans in 1842. From there he went by boat to St. Louis, where he remained until 1845, when he came to Sheboygan. This city was at that time not even an incorporated village and gave few signs that it would in 1910 be one of the important cities of the state. Mr. Kroos had the opportunity to see the place develop and at the age of ninety-three is mentally and physically in a condition to contemplate with satisfaction the changes he witnessed. Mr. Kroos remained only a short time in Sheboygan when he went to Chicago, but he returned to this city in 1849 and has resided here ever since. Soon after coming here he formed the acquaintance of Miss Anna Theresa Winkelmeyer and they were married the following year in 1850, the ceremony having been performed by the Rev. Mr. Blesz. Mr. Kroos purchased a farm containing eighty acres so near what was then only a village that the land was subsequently platted and is now within the city limits. The addition was known as the "Kroos Park." For a number of years Mr. Kroos engaged in the grain and commission business. In 1884 he retired from active labors.

Mrs. Kroos was born in Saxony, Germany, on September 22, 1833, and came to Sheboygan in 1849, the year in which Mr. Kroos made his permanent residence here.

Twelve children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Kroos and seven survive as follows; William, Max, Julius, Mrs. J. Steimle and Mrs. Martin Koehn, all of Sheboygan; Mrs. H.C. Bade of Plymouth; and Henry of Peoria, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Kroos were among those who established the Trinity Lutheran church in this city, and they are still members of the congregation. They had a large share in creating better social conditions in the city, and their lives were extended over many years as if Providence intended to increase their usefulness.

Memorial Day

Memorial Day was celebrated at several places in the county. Everywhere the graves of the departed soldiers were strewn with flowers. At Sheboygan the principal speaker was M. K. Reilly of Fond du Lac. At Plymouth Senator W. C. Jones of Illinois delivered a very eloquent address. The speakers at Cascade were local ministers. In all these places and others in the county the attendance was very large.

Evangelical Conference

On June 1st the annual state conference of the Wisconsin District of the German Evangelical Synod of North America was opened in Sheboygan. It was well attended. It was shown by report that the Wisconsin district comprises 106 congregations in charge of seventy-one pastors. The general synod is composed of nineteen districts. It has a mission in India.

Golden Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. Eifler.

On Friday, May 13, 1910, it was fifty years that Miss Louise Schwatze was married to Mr. Jacob Eifler. The ceremony was performed at Franklin in the town of Herman by the Rev. R. Erbe. During all the years since their union they have resided at Franklin, where they still reside and where they are esteemed and respected. Mr. Eifler is a blacksmith by trade and until he retired from active labors a number of years ago plied that trade.

Mr. Eifler was born in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, and Mrs. Eifler in Lippe-Detmold, Germany.

They have nine children, twenty-one grandchildren and two great grandchildren. These are the children; Adam Eifler, Plymouth; Miss C. Eifler, Franklin; Mrs. Minnie Hitt, Algoma; Mrs. W. B. Lutzenberger Milwaukee; Mrs. C. Hanson, Chicago; Mrs. Rev. G. Vornholdt, Waukon, Iowa; Mrs. O. Denker, Milwaukee; Mrs. Rev. C. Knatz, Buffalo; Mrs. Rev. E. Schultz, Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Eifler have lived honest and virtuous lives and are among the most highly respected citizens of their community.

On the 27th of May their golden anniversary was celebrated. The celebration had been postponed to enable all the children to be present.

Twenty-Fifth Annual Meeting

On May 10, 1910, the Sheboygan Mutual Savings and Loan association held its twenty-fifth annual meeting at the High School assembly room. The board of directors is composed of Messrs. M. L. Brinkmann, Henry Fessler, Henry Scheele, Jr., Henry Boyle, Otto Alöag, John Balzer, C. H. Roenitz, C. Ackermann, T. Wilke, T. M. Blackstock, W. H. Guenther and H. Trester.

These are the officers:

President—T. M. Blackstock
Vice-President—W. H. Guenther
Secretary—W. C. Roenitz
Treasurer—H. W. Trester
Attorney—Francis Williams

President T. M. Blackstock read an interesting paper, giving the salient facts in the history of the association. He said that it was organized with fifteen members, three or four of whom withdrew early being dissatisfied with the plan adopted. He spoke of the few changes made in the conduct of the association's affairs. It has had but one treasurer in twenty-five years and two different persons have held the office of secretary, Adolph Kuener during the first thirteen years and W. C. Roenitz, the present incumbent for the past twelve years. Mr. Blackstock says the management of the affairs of the organization has always been conservative.

Ten years ago the association had assets amounting to $150,000; now it has over a half a million. Within the last twelve years the secretary has loaned more than a million dollars without the loss of a cent during the first half of the quarter of a century of its existence the losses aggregated $800.

Mr. Blackstock declared that it is a thoroughly democratic organization; that it has not in the least interfered with the banks, and that it possesses several very important advantages.

Michigan Avenue Celebrates

On June 25 the people of Michigan avenue and vicinity celebrated the completion of the pavement of that thoroughfare. Owing to the united action of the business men along that street and especially of the interest taken by Messrs. Rudolph C. Abers, Robert Kroos and O. R. Schultz, a celebration was arranged for.

A parade, in which all the business men and others on Michigan avenue participated, started at two o'clock at the post-office, headed by Schmidt's band. It moved along Eighth street to Michigan and along that street. An open air concert was given by the band from seven o'clock in the evening to ten o'clock. Besides the music there were other signs that the people of Michigan avenue were celebrating. It was evident that they were having a real lively, happy time.

Soldiers' Reunion

The soldiers' reunion held at Waldo, Wednesday, June 22, was a notable event. There were many in attendance, and the visitors were all most generously treated by the people of the village. Refreshments were served free to all. An address of welcome was delivered by the Rev. W. J. Perry, a relative of the commodore whose laconic dispatch after the battle on Lake Erie has become memorable. Every school boy and school girl has been stirred by the words: "We have met the enemy and they are ours." Several speeches were made, notably those of Col. J. A. Watrous of Milwaukee and Department Commander John R. Walsh.

The following officers were chosen:

President—George W. Spratt, Sheboygan Falls.
Secretary—C. A. Corbett, Plymouth.
Historian—J. Schlarich.

Plymouth was designated as the next place for holding the reunion.

Sheboygan, Wis. VOL. 2 NO. 2 July 1910

A few rather important cases were decided at the April term of the circuit court, 1910.

The people of Glenbeulah will admit that the Mullet river is rather a small stream on which to base much hope for sufficient power to run large industrial enterprises, but it had its attraction for persons seeking opportunity to locate mills and factories in the early days.

Mr. F.D. Ladenberger could no doubt give many interesting reminiscences of the years he lived in Glenbeulah. He has been an observing man and he has spent the greater part of his life in that village. The Biographical Record will be pleased to hear from him before long.

Glenbeulah at one time was the terminus of a railroad. While it may have taken pride in the distinction, the people of that village were willing no doubt to have the road extended to the westward and felt it a convenience to be connected by rail with Fond du Lac.

The first house was built on the present site of Glenbeulah the year Wisconsin was admitted to the Union, 1848. The village was founded in the year Kansas decided to be a free state, in the year of a great panic—1857. The first train of cars reached Glenbeulah in the year that Lincoln was elected to the presidency the first time—1860.

The Wisconsin Rate commission has made for itself an excellent reputation for fair play, and the board of directors of the Sheboygan Light, Power and Railway company showed the confidence they have in its fairness when it was decided to surrender the franchise of the company and to operate under the supervision of the commission.

As Mr. Asa Carpenter looks back to the days when he burned huge piles of fine timber merely to get rid of it, he can not help but contrast the times then with those of the present day. He burned up what would now be worth thousands of dollars. He no doubt burned up some of the finest of bird's-eye maple, some oak that would make handsome furniture; some ash, elm and butternut for which there would be a strong demand today.

The Sheboygan Mutual Savings and Loan association had considerable opportunity to be of service to the city during its twenty-five years of existence, and its report shows that it has made the best of its opportunities. It is an organization which is not only advancing the material interests of the city and many of its inhabitants but encourages thrift and industry. Every city should have such an association, and fortunate is the place which has such an organization an officered as this city's Savings and Loan association is.

The Wisconsin Pharmaceutical association evidently has a very decided liking for Elkhart Lake as a place for holding its annual gatherings. They have been held on the shores of that beautiful lake for several years and it will be held there again another year. The traveling drug salesmen also meet with the druggists and in the two are some mighty good fellows who know how to have a good time. Some of them possess a keen sense of humor. A daily is published at the annual meeting and it is called "The Pill". It sparkles with wit.

Wis. Pharmaceutical Association

The annual meeting of the Wisconsin Pharmaceutical association was held at Elkhart Lake on June 28, 29 and 30 and July 1. The meeting was held at the Pine Point resort. A daily was issued during the meeting and it was gotten out in the office of the Plymouth Review. Games and contests of various kinds made the stay of the druggists and traveling men at the lake a very pleasant one.

Surrenders Franchise

The Sheboygan Light, Power and Railway company in April, 1910, surrendered its franchise, choosing to operate under an indeterminate permit and under the supervision of the State Railway commission. It felt that it would be harassed less by common councils and would not be subjected to unreasonable competition.

Silver Jubilee of C. Knights

On May 8, 1910, Sheboygan, branch No. 13, of the Catholic Knights of Wisconsin celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the order. The event took place at the Holy Name Assembly hall and proved a great success. The hall, which was decorated with flags, streamers and potted plants, was filled to its utmost capacity. A large delegation of Plymouth Knights was in attendance. It is believed that there were fully sixty-five of the Plymouth branch present and the greater number of them were accompanied by their ladies. There were a number of priests at the celebration and it was particularly gratifying to have his highness, Archbishop Messmer among the visitors.

Musical part of the program was under the direction of Director John Schmidt and his excellent orchestra aroused much enthusiasm. The singing by Prof. Theo. Winkler accompanied by Miss Bertha Fricke, was much enjoyed.

Mr. M. L. Snyder of Waukesha, president of the Catholic Knights of Wisconsin, told of the growth and progress of the order. He said that since the founding of the order more than three millions of dollars had been paid to the widows and orphans of departed brethren. He added that the reserve fund was then $550,000.

John M. Callahan of Milwaukee, a member of the order, delivered a humorous address which was interspersed with numerous well-chosen anecdotes.

A German address was delivered by Gustav Keller of Appleton, who made a profound impression. He addressed himself directly to the younger members among the Knights, making much of the Fourth commandment.

Circuit Court

The spring term of the circuit court opened on Monday, April 11, with Judge Michael Kirwan on the bench. Thirteen applied for citizenship.

The case of the state against Wadhams Oil company on the charge that the defendant sold uninspected oil proved an interesting legal contest. The state won its case, the defendant being found guilty on twenty-six counts.

The Ackerman-Uttecht suit over a strip of land terminated with somewhat indefinite results. The jury concluded that neither litigant owned the land, but as Mr. Uttecht was in possession at the time Mr. Ackerman could not obtain possession.

The Garton Toy company won its suit against the Buswell Lumber company of Buswell, Vilas county. The Garton company had contracted with the Buswell company for 100,000 feet of four by four maple, to be delivered in Sheboygan at twenty-three dollars per thousand feet. A part of the shipment was made but Lumber Company failed to fulfill its part of the contract. The Garton company claimed damages in the sum of $1700, and was awarded $1536.

Adamage suit for slander was brought by John Van Degeocht against N. J. Balkins. It was charged that Mr. Balkins had called Mr. Van Degeocht dishonest. The judge held that to call another names is not actionable.

Adrian Tolleman, who brought an action against the Sheboygan Light, Power and Railway company, for injuries sustained while riding on the defendant company's car, was awarded $1500 damages. He had sued for $5000.

Nominal damages were allowed Thomas Kulbock in his suit against Sheriff Hoehne, Deputy Sheriff Walter Hoehne and Attorney Charles Voigt. Judge Kirwan instructed the jury to that effect, and the plaintiff was awarded twenty-five dollars. The case had grown out of a mistake made by Deputy Sheriff Hoehne and Attorney Voigt, who had authority to attach property of another saloonkeeper, Jacob Freidel. By mistake they got into Kulbock's saloon and attached the money in the till.

Schumann-Heink Concert

An event which will remain memorable in that part of the annals of Sheboygan pertaining to music was the Schumann-Heink concert, which took place at the opera house on the evening of April 8, 1910. Mrs. Ernestine Schumann-Heink is a singer of world wide renown, and it was the first time that Sheboygan had been favored with the presence of a celebrity of that character. Her singing is simply exquisite, and in beauty, power and ready execution is hardly approachable. The large audience experienced unbounded delight.

Halley's Comet

Late in the afternoon of May 18th the earth was scheduled to enter the tail of Halley's comet. If the wanderer came in contact with the earth or its atmosphere there was nothing unusual to indicate it. That they passed about that time was evident as a few days afterward the comet was distinctly seen in the northwest in the evening, whereas before that day it was seen early in the morning in the southeast. The following morning the tail of the comet was seen stretching from the horizon in the east two-thirds of the distance across the sky to the southwest.

Police and Fire Commission

On or about May 2, Mayor C. W. Starrett of Plymouth, in compliance with law, appointed a police and fire commission composed of the following: C. C. Corbett, one year; P. K. Wheeler, two years; Wm. Thurmann, three years; H. J. Goelzer, four years; M. H. Hand, five years. On May 21, the board met and organized by electing Mr. Hand president and Mr. Corbett secretary. A set of rules was adopted, and applications for positions on the police force were asked for.

On June 28th the commission informed the common council that it had made the following appointments: Chief of Police, E. M. O'Connell; night police, L. A. Helmer; first lieutenant, Jacob Gessert; second lieutenant, G. W. Chaplin. The commission recommended that the chief be paid sixty dollars a month and be furnished two uniforms annually, the night police sixty dollars and two uniforms, and each lieutenant forty dollars a year. The council after some discussion adopted the recommendation as to the pecuniary compensation but refused to furnish the uniforms recommended.

Items of Interest

On May 19 and 20 a Sheboygan County Sunday School rally was held at Hingham. The officers of the county organization at the time were the following:

President—J. H. Huyck, Hingham

1st Vice-Pres.—N. Saemann, Adell

2nd Vice-Pres.—Rev. J. Klerk, Cedar Grove

Secretary and Treasurer—Miss Clara Wonser Sheboygan.

Supt. of Primary Work, Miss Mae Gardner, Hingham.

Executive Committee—W. F. Liebenstein, Cascade J. O. Parrish, Lima; Mrs. C. F. Bacon, Sheboygan, Rev. E. E. Dresser, Sheboygan; Hon. Peter Daane, Oostburg; Hugh Martin, Sheboygan.

At a meeting the latter part of June the school board of Plymouth decided to add a course in agriculture to its high school courses. Mr. A. J. Gafke was chosen to take charge of the course.

The very dry weather during the spring and first half of the summer nearly caused a water famine in Plymouth.

Felix Sonnemann of Herman was severely injured in a runaway on May 4th, near the Sheboygan city limits. His horses became frightened at a traction engine and he sprang from his vehicle to hold them by the bridle and was run over. His leg was so badly fractured that pieces of bone protruded through the flesh and he was otherwise injured.

It was sixty-five years on May 8th that the first tree was cut down by white men in the town of Plymouth. It was cut by Rensellaer Thorpe.

In April, the Wensink-Stolper company of Plymouth filed articles of incorporation, the incorporators being I. B. Wensink, O. W. Stolper, E. A. Stolper and H. A. Stolper. The company was incorporated for $50,000.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Fox of Plymouth celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary on Thursday, April 7th.

Mrs. H. Harling of Waldo was very seriously injured on Friday, April 8th, by falling down stairs. She was unconscious for some time, and it was feared at first that she had sustained fatal injuries.

John Kloff was struck by a scraper he was holding on Friday, April 15, and rendered unconscious for nearly twenty-four hours. One of his ears was nearly severed from his head.

A fire in the millinery store of Miss S. M. Ullrich on Tuesday, April 19th, damaged the stock to the extent of upwards of $1,000.

On Sunday, April 17, Father J. P. Van Treeck of Sheboygan captured a thief who was trying to rob the parsonage and held him until the police arrived with the patrol.

The name of the Elkhart Lake post-office was changed from Elkhart. The change was authorized in April, to go into effect on July 1st.

A blizzard raged on April 22 and 23, and the thermometer fell to twelve degrees above freezing. Much damage was done to fruit and other trees as the warm weather which preceded the storm had brought out the leaves and blossoms. It practically ruined the fruit crop. The snow fell to such a depth as to render the roads impassable.

On May 11, Mr. and Mrs. August Schmidt of Plymouth celebrated the thirty-eighth anniversary of their marriage.

After a residence of sixty-two years in Sheboygan County, most of the time being spent in the town of Scott, Mr. William Row removed to West Bend in the early part of May.

On May 14, the brick building known as the Wolf block on Mill street in the city of Plymouth became the property of the Plymouth Telephone Exchange, it having been purchased of Dr. Neuman for $5000.

Record of Deaths of well known Sheboygan County Citizens

The news that Dr. W. C. Neuman had suddenly died in Milwaukee Sunday morning, June 5, came as a shock to people of Plymouth and vicinity.

Only a few of the doctor's friends were aware that he was not in the enjoyment of the best of health. He and Mrs. Neuman left for a somewhat extended trip on Saturday, May 28. From here they went to Fredonia, to visit with the doctor's mother. The following Monday afternoon they departed for Milwaukee where the next night they took a boat to Grand Haven, Michigan. Last winter the doctor had ordered an automobile manufactured at Lansing, and it was the intention of himself and wife to tour southern Michigan, and northern Indiana, in their new automobile and return home by the way of Chicago and Milwaukee. For some reason they changed their plans and on Friday went by boat from Grand Haven to Milwaukee. That evening they attended a theatre. They were stopping at the Aberdeen, and during the night the doctor was attacked by a sick spell attended by vomiting. In the morning, Mrs. Neuman called in Dr. Thomas Fitzgibbons. There seemed to be no change for the better and other medical aid was called in. At a little after eleven o'clock in the forenoon he was attacked by convulsions and became unconscious, having suffered a stroke of apoplexy. Mrs. Neuman telephoned to her brother, A. J. Wolf and Dr. E. Felter, asking them to go to Milwaukee on the next day, which they did. They were present when an operation was performed to relieve the pressure of blood on the brain. The doctor did not regain consciousness after the stroke on Saturday forenoon and passed away at half past seven on Sunday morning.

Dr. Neuman was born in the town of Fredonia, Ozaukee county, on May 30, 1878. He attended the district school until he entered the Port Washington high school. He next attended the Oshkosh normal school, after which he taught school near his home in the town of Fredonia. He next took a course in dentistry at a medical college in Milwaukee, from which institution he was graduated in 1902. He immediately, upon graduation, opened a dental office in this city, and almost from the first enjoyed a lucrative practice. His union with Miss Lillie Wolf took place six years ago last October. He is survived by his wife, his mother, and brother and a sister.

Dr. Neuman was highly esteemed by a large circle of acquaintances. He was of a kind and genial nature, and had many loyal friends. He was very successful in the practice of his profession.

The funeral was held June 8, from his late home, the Rev. Father Upjohn officiating. The remains were laid at rest in the Plymouth Union cemetery. The doctor was a member of both the Royal Arcanum and the E. F. U., the members of both which attended the obsequies in a body.

Mrs. John Cannon

The remains of Mrs. John Cannon of Oshkosh were buried in St. Michael's church cemetery, Mitchell, May 23.

Mrs. Cannon lived for many years north of Parnell. Her husband was a soldier of the Rebellion. She was an admirer of Grover Cleveland and when he was president she sent him a tidy that she had knit. Cleveland presented her with ten dollars.

Anton Toebak

Anton Toebak died June 11, at Sheboygan of paralysis. He was born in Germany, January 1, 1841, and for the past twenty-five years had lived in Sheboygan. He leaves a wife and six children as follows: John, William, Martin and Mesdames Mary Buettner, Anna Folz and Nellie Krummenauer, all of Sheboygan.

Interment was in the South Side Catholic cemetery the 14th.

Mrs. Amos Tibbitts

Mrs. Amos Tibbitts of Hingham died April 28, at Sheboygan where she had gone for a visit.

Her maiden name was Anna Simpson. She was born at Brechen, Scotland, September 14, 1843, coming to America when ten years of age. Her parents settled in what was known as the Maine settlement in the town of Lima. Four years later they moved to Missouri. In 1860, her marriage to Mr. Tibbitts took place in Missouri.

They began housekeeping on the old Tibbitts homestead, just southwest of Hingham where they lived until they moved into Hingham three years ago. Her husband and two daughters, Mrs. M. Walsh and Miss Gertrude Tibbitts, survive.

The funeral was held May 1, from her home, Rev. J. Hicks of Walworth conducting the services, interment in the Hingham cemetery.

Mrs. Friederike Otilie Elizabeth Kappelmann died April 21, at the home of her youngest daughter in Sheboygan. She was ninety-two years old and left two sons, three daughters, eleven grandchildren and eighteen great grand children. She was born in Bangstede, Amt. Aurich Ostfriesland and was married to Wilke Ted Kappelmann at Easens, March 14, 1839. They came to the town of Sheboygan in 1853. Deaths Due to Unnatural Causes

Takes Her Own Life

Life had lost its charms for Miss Ida Gessner, whose home was one mile west of Silver Creek, and on April 27 she took a dose of carbolic acid to end the heartache and the shocks to which flesh is heir. After suffering excruciating pain she passed away on the following day. A physician could not be gotten until hours afterwards. When a doctor did finally arrive it was found that she was beyond medical aid and all that could be done was to alleviate the pain.

The cause assigned for the rash act was disappointment in love.

Miss Gessner was born at Wilson Lake, Minn., on July 14, 1888. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gessner, who survive her as do also two brothers and one sister.

The interment was in the cemetery near Silver Creek, and the Rev. Mr. Goldstern officiated.

Killed by Interurban Car

Shortly before seven o'clock, the evening of June 9, Henry Schmidt was struck by a Plymouth car on the McDougall hill, west of Sheboygan Falls and died about fifteen minutes afterwards.

Schmidt was thirty-three years of age and had been employed with the Falls Machine company for about four months. He had a motor cycle and it was while riding this that the accident happened. From the evidence given, it appears that the young man did not notice the car, although the motorman saw him and gave the warning signal several times. As Mr. Schmidt paid no attention to the signals, the motorman stopped the car as soon as possible, but not before the motor cycle and rider were struck, just as Mr. Schmidt was about to cross the track at stop 26. The machine and man were thrown into the fender, which was tipped by the weight and both were thrown under the car. The car was stopped before the wheels struck the body, but the skull was fractured.

The injured man was taken aboard the car which returned to Sheboygan Falls where Dr. Pfeifer, who had been summoned, was waiting, but Schmidt expired about five minutes after being taken into the street car station.

The deceased had lived most of his life in the town of Wilson. His three brothers, Frank, George and William live near Six Corners.

No blame was placed upon any one for his death, by the coroner's jury.

Burned to Death in Car

On April 8, 1910, as a train pulled into the freight yards on the south side it was observed that smoke was issuing from one of the box cars. The car was loaded with coal dust which had caught fire. This accounted for the smoke. On further investigation the trainmen made a gruesome find. Lying on the burning coal was a man who had been burned to a crisp. Appearances indicated that he was a tramp.

The coroner was notified, and the remains were taken to the S. D. Hanchett Co undertaking rooms and prepared for burial.

There was nothing by which the identity of the person could be established, and it is very doubtful whether it will ever be known who he was. He had evidently boarded the car at some station south of Sheboygan and lain down on the coal dust, which by some means caught fire. He fell asleep and the gas from the burning coal suffocated him so that he never knew how he had come to his end.

Mrs. Marie Goldbeck

On May 9, Mrs. Marie Goldbeck, wife of Herman Goldbeck of Mitchell, died from the effects of drinking carbolic acid. As to whether the poison was taken with suicidal intent could not be determined as there seemed to be no motive for self-destruction. She had gone to her room to lie down some time before noon, and when she did not answer when called at the noon hour, some one went to her bedside and found that she was unconscious. A physician was called but she never again recovered consciousness.

Mrs. Goldbeck, whose maiden name was Marie Woerner, was born in the town of Plymouth. She is survived by her husband but no children.

Found Dead on Road

Edward Maas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Maas of the town of Holland, was found dead on the highway near the home of Daniel O'Neill of Lima, on the evening of June 17. As to the exact cause of death people can only surmise. The theory which seems to be accepted by those most familiar with the facts is that Mr. Maas was thrown from the carriage with immediately fatal results. Coroner Feagan, Dr. Kingsley of Sheboygan and Dr. Rae of Waldo were summoned, and they found that the unfortunate young man's skull had been fractured.

He was employed with the Lavey Bros. and was returning home from his work when he met with the accident.

The young man was nearly twenty years old. He leaves his parents, one sister and two brothers.

The funeral was held June 21, and the interment was in St. Paul's cemetery, Holland, the Rev. Mr. Huebner officiating.

Fatal Accident in Herman

On May 11, 1910, Mr. Henry Nordholtz of the town of Herman met with an accident which resulted in his death. He was at work in his barn and was in the act of taking a board from a scaffold above the barn floor when he fell to the floor. Whether he fell from the scaffold or a ladder is not known. Shortly thereafter one of Mr. Nordholtz's sons went to the barn and found his father lying unconscious on the floor and bleeding profusely. A physician was called and it was found that Mr. Nordholtz had sustained a fracture of the skull and a collar-bone, besides internal injuries. The following morning at a quarter of three he died.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon from the family home near Howards Grove, and the interment was in the Siemers cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Martin of Franklin officiated.

Mr. Nordholtz, who was esteemed and respected by a large circle of acquaintances, was born in Wisconsin on June 16, 1857. His union with Mrs. Lena Toepel took place in 1892. He is survived by his wife and three children as follows: Walter, Norbert and Lena.
