Thirty-five Men Leave Sunday on Glee Club Tour

Milwaukee Concert Will Be Broadcast Over Station
WTMJ at Night

Thirty-five members of the Men's Glee club, including E. Earle Swinney, director, will leave Madison at 7:35 a. m. Sunday morning, April, for Milwaukee, where the organization will open its concert tour.

The club will sing in Milwaukee on Sunday afternoon and broadcast over radio station WTMJ in the evening.

Give Return Engagement

Following the tour of ten days, the Glee club will arrange for a return concert before students and townspeople in Music hall. Because of the numerous requests of persons who were unable to hear the first concert series of March 9 and 10, the Glee club corporation has decided to offer a return engagement.

No definite date has been set for the April concert, but it is probable that it will be held on one of the first Saturdays following the spring vacation.

Well Filled Itinerary

After the concert in Milwaukee, the club will entrain for Green Bay, where it will sing on Monday evening. Concerts will be given thereafter, on successive days, in Waupaca, Marshfield, Ashland, Superior, Minneapolis, Menomonie, and Chippewa Falls. The group will return in time for classes on April 11, after the close of the spring vacation.

As usual, the club is making its trip in a chartered Pullman car of the Milwaukee road. The members sleep regularly in this car, which is furnished with all necessary equipment for the tour.

The purpose of the annual spring trip of the Men's club is to arouse interest in the merits of the University of Wisconsin in the minds of the people of the state. It is trying to bring to Wisconsin citizens a feeling different from that commonly associated with the state university, in that it is

Low Rate Milwaukee Fare Ruled Out by State Commission

The $4 round trip rate between Madison and Milwaukee which was announced yesterday morning by the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company and the Wisconsin motor bus lines was ruled out by the state railroad commission at its meeting yesterday morning, according to Mr. Deeney of the commission.

The rate was announced by the bus companies without sanction as a special attraction to students going home for the spring recess.

The regular rate of $4.50 for a round trip between Madison and Milwaukee, which is the standard railroad and bus rate, was reinstated by the commission's decision.

Tickets already sold by the bus companies for $4 must be recalled, the commission ruled.

Busses, however, will be allowed to leave directly from the Co-op, and from Adams, Tripp, Chadbourne, and Barnard halls, according to Mr. Deeney.

Officials of the bus company said yesterday afternoon that they had not been officially informed of the rejection of the rate.

Rites for Thelma Blue Held Wednesday Night

Funeral services for Thelma Blue, 22 years old, student in the nursing course at the University of Wisconsin, who died at a Madison hospital Monday afternoon after having been in a coma for 12 days following an operation, were held Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock from the Frautschi funeral parlor. The Rev. A. T. Wallace, pastor of the First Baptist church officiated. The body will be sent to Mentone, Indiana for burial.

WANT A JOB?

There is splendid opportunity for advancement on the Daily Cardinal for freshmen and sophomores who begin working as proof readers and reporters now. No previous experience is necessary. Inquire at the editorial office.

Three Octopus Artists Given High Honors

Three Octopus staff artists were selected as winners in the nation-wide College Humor art contest for the best drawings submitted in black and white by undergraduates, it was learned yesterday. The Badger winners are Reid Winsey, Fred Kopp, and John Allcott. This selection rates these men among the eighty best artists of collegiate humor magazines throughout the country.

"The University of Wisconsin furnished more meritorious drawings than any other school in the contest," the judges said in a letter to John Ash, Octy editor.

Will Receive Prizes

Winsey as art editor of the Octopus this year supervises all the art work as well as doing many drawings himself. Kopp at present is not a staff member, but his small sketches of "collitch boys" are familiar to Octy readers. Allcott was co-editor of the magazine in 1927 and executed many cover pictures and full pages during that time. They will receive prizes of drawing equipment.

More than 10,050 drawings were submitted by 1600 artists in the nation wide contest. Maurice Lichtenstein

Tonight's 'Faust' Seats Sold Out

Third Performance Arranged Monday to Accommodate Demand

A third performance of "Faust," Goethe's great drama, which will be given at 7:45 o'clock tonight by the departments of German and Art history in Bascom theater, has been arranged for Monday night it was announced yesterday by the producers. The special performance has been arranged because of an almost complete sell-out of seats for tonight and Saturday.

At the box office it was yesterday reported that the last ticket for Saturday night's performance was sold Tuesday afternoon. A few tickets for tonight are still available, and tickets for Monday night will be put on sale today.

Long in Rehearsal

Rehearsals for "Faust" have been going on regularly since the first part of January, when the German and

Hold Watch Services Today in Lathrop Hall

Early morning Lenten watch services, as a Y. W. C. A. tradition, will be held in Lathrop parlors this morning and Friday morning from 7:30 until 7:50 o'clock. The services will be comprised of short talks and music. Laura Barrett '28 will be in charge this morning.

Scissors Are Not at Fault If You Can't Trim Right Hand

Editor's Note: This is not a feature article, the sole object of which is the clotting up of front page space. It is a startling revelation which came to the author after 20 years of concentrated thought. At last! The question that has bothered our race for centuries has been answered. The question: "How many can cut the finger nails of the right hand without splitting them?"

By GEN FLOREZ

This discovery is dedicated to the untold number of unsung heroes who have lucklessly tried to cut their right hand finger nails, and have cursed the instrument they employed, little knowing that the fault lay in their own unambidexterity.

Last night, after calling in conference well known authorities on sociology, abnormal physiology, and contemporaneous engineering, I had the pleasure of ascertaining the answer to the troublesome query.

No Left-Handed Scissors

Running counter to the prevalent erroneous notion that there exist both left and right-handed scissors, I began the experiment by cutting a piece of thin paper with a loose pair of scissors held in alternate hands. Thus, it was found that the instrument

Cadet Chairman Completes Plans for Military Ball

Actual Work on R. O. T. C. Dance Decorations to Start Today

With the Sixteenth Annual Military ball but one day away, final work on decorations, lighting, boxes, and other special arrangements is being carried out today under the direction of Robert P. Pike '28, general chairman of the dance.

As in the past, a military atmosphere will be lent to the dance by having two squads of picked cadets from the local corps form an arch with drawn sabres under which the grand march will pass. Other cadets, also with drawn sabres, will direct the line of march for the dancers.

Cadets to Assist Guards

The use of cadets as military guards to assist the regular capitol police will be a feature of the ball. The cadet guard will be posted in a military manner as well as the customary inner one. The cadet guards are not enlisted for the purpose of restricting the guests, but rather are intended to perform the duties of guides and ushers. They will be under the command of Norman Baker '28, provost marshal.

For the purpose of conducting the ball in the most orderly manner, the customary policy of prohibiting spectators will be strictly enforced. "We are not doing this," Pike stated, "merely because we do not want the public to see the dance, but because in the past it has been found much easier to maintain order if there are no spectators."

Dinner Dance at Hotel

Although there is no official officers' dinner dance sponsored by the committee as in the past, there will be a dinner dance for those wishing to attend.

Special Meet of Engineers Called

Whether new plots are afoot for the impending St. Pat's parade, or Badger engineers are merely intent on starting a revolution will be ascertained this morning when engineers gather in the engineering auditorium at 10:40 o'clock. The Daily Cardinal, learning of the meeting as it went to press last night was unable to arouse a single engineer from rest between the sheets to ascertain the cause of the meeting. The cold dope is that the mass-meeting has been called by Polygon and Wisconsin engineering societies. All sophomore, junior, and senior engineers will attend. Ten o'clock engineering classes will be dismissed at 10:40 o'clock by permission of Dean F. E. Turneaure. Harland Rex '29, president of Polygon, will preside.

Enjoyed Own Favorites

It was evident that Mme. Schumann-Heink was enjoying her favorites fully as much as anyone in the audience. Her infectious geniality fairly bubbled over into the audience. She beamed at any sign of appreciation, she acknowledged applause with a whole-hearted delight. And at times, as in the Kerry Dance, she could scarcely restrain herself from prancing about in sheer joy.

Mme. Schumann-Heink's program was divided into three sections. Her first group consisted of "My Heart Ever Faithful," by Bach, "Before the Crucifix," by Frank La Forge, and the "Spring Aria" from Saint-Saen's "Samson and Delilah."

The second section was varied in character, including the moving "Oh, Rest in the Lord," by Mendelssohn and Bartholdy, Schubert's "Erlkonig," which gave the singer an opportunity to display her dramatic powers, Schumann's the right but not so when held in the left. The trouble, therefore, was not in the scissors. Where then?

That, gentle reader, is the discovery.

It depends totally on the pressure exerted on the blades of the instrument.

When cutting with the right, the unconscious tendency is to force the two blades together in an overlapping fashion. A clean stroke is then made.

The contrary is true for left-handed operation. Agreed; but how to remedy the acknowledged evil?

The answer might well be "additional concentration on the process of cutting, making the left hand undergo the identical pressures of the right."

But, is that not too strenuous a mental task?

Right Hand Will Cut

Calculations were made as to the positions in which the left hand, through cramping, would cut correctly.

It was found that by starting at the little finger of the right hand, the wrist became cramped, and the process would then prove satisfactory.

But that again was inconvenient.

After further experiment it was found that by turning the scissors upside-down from normal position, cutting the nail by starting at the opposite

Knickers Hailed as Correct Male Dress at Skyrockets Prom

Knickers are to be the proper dress du getilhomme or whatever the phrase is, for the Skyrockets Prom. This was the word sent out yesterday by co-chairmen, Don Trenary and Ted Holstein.

"The esthetic value of knickers," they said, "we fear has been greatly overlooked by the university as a whole. There were not a single pair to be seen at the event commonly called the junior prom. Still the knicker is, considered by itself, a very beautiful bit of goods, and we think it only just that we recognize the fact by demanding that all males attending the Rockets Prom year them."

The dress for the partners of the men invited will be informal. Application for invitations may be made by stating the qualifications for admittance in a brief note to either Holstein at the Cardinal office, or to Trenary at 144 Langdon street.

Schumann-Heink Closes Active Career in Good Form

BY D. C.

The indomitable Mme. Schumann-Heink, undaunted by her record of fifty years of musical performances, is closing her concert career with a flourish, if one may judge by her last night's appearance in the Stock pavilion.

Fifty strenuous years have dealt kindly with Mme. Schumann-Heink's golden voice. In a program of old favorites, she gave a performance that taken in consideration with her age was a musical marvel. Though obviously not singing with the ease of an artist at her prime, her more lively selections were given with force and vigor. Time has added to her rich contralto a depth of expression that transforms each song into a genuine emotional experience.

Articles by Coaches Feature April Issue of Athletic Review

Articles by Guy S. Lowman, Tom E. Jones, and special features by student sport writers will appear in the April issue of the Wisconsin Athletic Review which will be on sale Monday, April 2.

Lowman has written a story for the Review on "Pitching," the first of a series of articles to be run by the Badger baseball coach. Jones' feature deals with a discussion of "Professionalism vs. Amateurism," in which he presents arguments on both sides of the question.

Student sport writers will give their views on Wisconsin's hopes in track and baseball. Another article deals with the basketball prospects for next year, while still another gives Coach Thistlethwaite's plans for spring football practice.

Twenty-two Students Out for Seven Union Board Vacancies

Voters' guides for tomorrow's annual spring elections, including the names of all candidates, qualifications for voters, and the names of the buildings in which polls will be located will be issued on the hill today. Frederick Jandrey '29, chairman of the student elections committee, announced yesterday.

According to the guide agricultural and home economics students will vote in Agricultural hall, engineers in the Engineering building, chemistry and chemistry commerce students in Sterling hall, and medical students in the biology building. Med 1 students vote as juniors and Med 2 and 3 as seniors.

Those students in the Letters and Science school whose names begin with letters from A to L will vote in the Biology building, and those from M to Z in the information office of Bascom hall. Law students will vote as Letters and Science students, L1 voting as juniors and L2 and L3 as seniors.

Vote on Nineteen Vacancies

In tomorrow's election 19 vacancies on four different student boards are to be filled, including positions on the Cardinal Board of Control, Forensic board, Athletic board, and Union board. Twenty-two students have filed for election to the seven Union board vacancies.

All men students, including graduates, will vote for candidates to the Union board office of junior member-at-large, one of whom is to be elected. One junior member will also be elected, all junior men voting, and five sophomore members, all sophomore men voting.

Two sophomore candidates and one junior candidate will be elected to the Forensic board, all sophomores, including both men and women, voting for sophomore candidates, and all juniors voting for junior candidates. All students, including both men and women and graduate students, are eligible to vote for candidates for vacancies on the Cardinal Board of Control. One junior member and two sophomore members are to be elected.

Name Tellers Tomorrow

A president and two non-W sophomore representatives are to be elected to the Athletic board. All men students except freshmen will be allowed to vote for these candidates.

Names of the women students who will have charge of the voting at the polls tomorrow will be published in tomorrow morning's Cardinal. The polls will be open Friday morning from 9 until 12 o'clock, and in the afternoon from 1 until 4:30 o'clock.

Morphy Plans Varied

Program for Spring Band Concert Sunday

A program of musical contrasts and unusual features is in store for next Sunday afternoon, April 1, when the University Concert band, under the direction of Prof. E. W. Morphy, presents its annual spring concert in the army.

Several lighter and gayer compositions are included as suitable for the opening of spring, while in direct contrast to these are intense dramatic pieces, a death march, and a clamorous depiction of the feast of the Wine God.

Hrdlicka Points to Lack of Race Quality in U. S.

Smithsonian Curator Conducts Interesting Investigation of Americans

"There is no fear that a fine, excellent hopeful type of American will not evolve in the next six or seven generations, and this will not be retarded by the incoming of European migrants so far as we keep out undesirables and abnormals." This was Dr. Alex Hrdlicka's closing sentence in the third and last of the series of lectures given by him on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons in the Biology building auditorium.

Dr. Hrdlicka who has conducted an interesting investigation on the "American type" for the Smithsonian institute of which he is a curator, was brought here by the department of geology and geography.

An American Type?

"We hear of the American girl, the American type, the American this and that. The question is: is there an American type?" Dr. Hrdlicka found in his experiment that the "old American population has decidedly advanced towards a type of its own, at least half way towards it." He found that the American is the tallest of all peoples and that at least 50 per cent of them are intermediate in pigment, have mixed eyes and brown hair.

"Today, none of us deserve the term 'race,' for each 'race' is a mixture of the tribes who wandered over Europe as far back as 1000 B. C. and who mixed with the natives of that portion of the country and disappeared. The Englishman of almost prehistoric times was of a large homogenous population. Into this came the Venetians, for trading purposes, then Caesar, and with Caesar came not only Italians but all those who had already been mixed in Italy. Then came the Germanic tribes, the Huguenots from France, the Normans, and with William the Conqueror, the exiles from all over the world. See how wrong it would be to regard any race as pure?"

No Superior Race

"There is not the slightest scientific foundation that one race is better than another. This is true among the white, but this is only because of the lack of education. The mountaineer of the United States is as ignorant as the uneducated peasant of Europe."

Dr. Hrdlicka covered these natural processes of man in his series of three lectures: evolution of man, the spread of humanity on earth, the differentiation of mankind into races, and the processes of the mixture of the peoples.

Present "Faust" in Bascom Tonight

Art History departments decided to stage their own performance rather than import a company from Milwaukee. "Faust" was decided upon as the most interesting and at the same time the most important play in German literature.

Prof. and Mrs. O. F. L. Hagen play the leading roles, Faust and Marguerite, and the other members of the are all experienced in dramatics. Prof. Hagen, who is head of the Art History department, is directing the play and supervising the designing of costumes, settings, and lighting effects.

Able Production Staff

Assisting Prof. Hagen, and in charge of the manufacture of settings and costumes is Jim Chichester, who has had much previous experience in dramatic production. Tonight, Saturday, and Monday, Prof. B. Q. Morgan will take charge of the coordination of all stage work while Prof. Hagen is on the stage.

The stage settings are designed in accordance with the most modern developments of leading producers both here and in Europe. Indirect and partial stage-lighting will produce an effect impressionistic rather than a realistic. In several short and difficult scenes slides will be used to produce effects otherwise impossible.

Promise No Delay
In spite of the complicated stage devices, Prof. Hagen has announced that due to efficient handling only a few minutes will elapse between scenes. One entire rehearsal will be gone through by all stage hands and property men before the first performance.

Incidental music has been introduced at numerous points, Prof. Hagen having found several medieval chorales and masses, as well as an old vocal chorus will be used.

a string trio, a harmonium, and several French chanson and several German folk songs and dances. A brass choir,

Costumes Distinctive

Costumes have been designed by Jim Chichester and executed by the Home Economics department. They are distinctive and thoroughly original, and while modernistic in treatment they definitely suggest the late Middle Ages, where the story is laid.

Tickets are on sale at Brown's, Gatewood's, the Co-Op and the Bascom box office. All seats may be reserved at $1.00.

of the Michigan Gargoyle was awarded first prize, and will receive an Essex speedster in any paint job that he specifies. Each drawing was criticized by the internationally famous illustrators, James Montgomery Flagg, Arthur William Brown, Gaar Williams and by H. N. Swanson, editor, and Tom Burroughs, art director, of College Humor magazine. The judges spoke very highly of the quality of the work that was submitted.

Flagg, speaking for the judges, said that as a whole, the cartoons were far superior to the illustrations and decorative art work, which was expected. In the case of the first fifteen winners, the judges agreed unanimously. He deplored the widespread evidences of imitative effort. "The prize winners have a style of their own, no matter how strongly they may sympathize with older artists. They know what they want to say in line, and they say it."

Ann Arbor Votes New College System Down

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Rejecting the proposed University college plan by a decisive majority the faculty of the Colleges of Engineering and Architecture at the University of Michigan gave a distinct setback to the plan which would have revolutionized the first two years of college instruction at the university.

Under the proposed plan all students entering one of the colleges of the University would first have had to go through two years of a junior college to be established on the campus. The faculty of the dissenting colleges declared that they believed the disadvantages of such a plan would offset the advantages.

Students' Strike at Queen's College Ended

KINGSTON—"Queen's students returned to classes this afternoon," according to a special message received recently. It goes on: "The strike, temporarily, at least, is over. At a mass meeting of the entire student body held recently, Mr. Sweeney, president of the general Alumni association of Queen's assured the strikers that attendance at lectures for classes missed during the strike would be given to all students. He also assured the meeting that a thorough investigation would be made. The suspended students will be reinstated immediately. Principal Taylor refused to issue any statements for publication. The strikers feel that all objectives have been gained."

Close Games Feature State High School Tourney

Sixteen Teams Play in First Round Yesterday

Madison Central, La Crosse, Waukesha, Watertown, Wausau, Neenah, Stevens Point and Marshfield Win; Second Round Today

The aristocrats of high school basketball teams in Wisconsin staged eight fiery battles yesterday to ascertain just who would sit at the head of the table in their next social gathering, and when the first group of lower nobility had been safely put in their place, it was found that Madison Central, La Crosse, Waukesha, Watertown, Wausau, Neenah, Stevens Point, and Marshfield were still among the contenders.

The above eight teams, having won their first games will go into the second round of the state tournament today. These high school men from all parts of the state put forth their best efforts yesterday before a crowd of spectators. Generally speaking the favorites survived the first tussle. First appearances would seem that Madison Central, Watertown, and La Crosse are the strongest teams entered.

CENTRAL 20; ASHLAND 9

Playing a slow, steady game, Madison Central had little trouble in defeating Ashland in the initial game of the state high school basketball tourney, 20 to 9. The victors displayed but little of the drive they are famous for, being a bit slow on their feet and missing many easy run-in shots.

Ashland put up a stiff fight against their taller opponents, but in spite of their speed were unable to sink enough of their shots to keep the score close, and resorted to long shots before the first quarter was over. Pero, speedy little guard, played a bang-up game and stopped many of Central's rushes.

WATERTOWN 13; WISCONSIN HIGH 12

Billy Briggs, the lion-hearted player of the Wisconsin High school came from his sick bed last night to enter play in the last two minutes of the game with Watertown and with three free throws made, tied the score twice—only to have one of his shots ruled out because he stepped over the foul line, and Watertown won 13 to 12.

It was a tearful game all the way—with the Wisconsin high, led by Doug Nelson, pitting their fight against the size and weight of a much bigger Watertown team. It must be said for the victors, that they had extremely bad luck on their short shots, or the score would have been one-sided.

At the half, Watertown led 6-4, and a fast third quarter netted the victors three points and Wisconsin high nothing. The losers couldn't make their free throws, and this eventually cost them the game.

With a five point lead to overcome, Wisconsin high staged a great comeback to tie the score. After much milling around the losers' basket, a Watertown man sent in a goal to make the score 11-10 for his team.

It was at this time, with but two minutes to go that Briggs was sent into the game and shortly after received a free throw. With the game at stake, Briggs made a perfect shot to tie the score at 11-all.

Again a Watertown man broke loose around the basket to put his team into a two point lead, and again Briggs was fouled as he attempted to shoot with but 30 seconds left to play. Stepping to the foul line, Briggs steadily made both of his shots good, only to have the referee declare his first throw void because he had stepped over the foul line. Shortly after the whistle blew and ended the game.

WAUSAU 31; SPOONER 15

A bigger and faster Wausau team had little difficulty in downing Spooner, and while doing so ran up the biggest score of the day, 31-15. With fast floor work and a long pass system that was used to advantage, the Wausau men ran riot in the first half to pile up a 17 to 4 lead.

The second half saw the winning team suffer a reversal of form, and display some poor play. However, Spooner with no defense of her own, found herself unable to penetrate her opponent's defense, and the majority of long shots went astray.

LA CROSSE 25; OCONTO 24

La Crosse crashed through the last three minutes of play to defeat Oconto 25 to 24 and survive the first round of the state high school basketball tournament yesterday. The La Crosse-Oconto game was the fastest and most thrilling game in the first round of play.

La Crosse took an early lead and held a 10 to 1 advantage at the end of the first quarter. Oconto then started finding the hoop and gradually cut down the lead and tied up the score in the final period at 18-all. Oconto here slipped behind the La Crosse defense for two field goals, giving it a four-point advantage.

Capt. Paul Host saved the game for his team with two pretty field goals.

Whittworth sneaked under the basket for a short shot and followed it up with a free throw. With a three-point lead La Crosse stalled, but O'Connor broke through and brought Oconto within a point of the Red and Black.

The gun cracked as an Oconto forward broke loose under the basket too late.

STEVENS 30;
WHITEHALL 26

An upset almost occurred last night when the highly rated Stevens Point team forgot to play basketball in its game against the small Whitehall team, until the third quarter, and then had to extend itself to keep its lead, finally winning, 30-26.

Stevens Point with a fast breaking offense and a rangy team, completely over-shadowed their opponents in size, but they forgot to keep their eyes upon Erickson, Whitehall center, who scored 13 points and was a constant threat all the way.

In the third quarter, after their opponents had increased their lead slightly, Stevens Point opened up, and working the ball cleverly under the basket, tied the score at 22-all as the quarter ended.

With the Whitehall men tiring fast, Stevens Point slipped in three baskets in the closing minutes of the game

Council Votes Athletic Awards to 37 Students

Basketball, Hockey, Gym- nasts, Get Letters and Numerals

Ten members of Wisconsin's basketball squad, ten hockey players and four gymnasts were voted varsity monograms by the Badger Athletic council last night. Managers appointments and other minor awards were also approved.

Coach "Doc" Meanwell's cagers to receive the "W" sweater are: Capt. Louis Behr '28, Rockford, Ill.; George Hotchkiss, '28 Oshkosh; Charles Andrews '28, Rockford, Ill.; Ray Ellerman '29, Chicago; Elmer Tenhopen '29, Cleveland, Ohio; Harold Foster '30, Chicago; Lycan Miller '29, La Crosse; John Doyle '29, Waukegan, Ill.; George Nelson '28, Madison; Manager Lee Larson '28, Waukesha.

Carl Matthiesen, Chicago, and William Thiele and Milton Diehl of Fort Wayne, Ind., were voted the "aWa" for playing in conference games, although not fulfilling time requirements for the "W." John Hume, Milwaukee, was designated as assistant manager of the 1928-29 basketball team with duties of acting manager.

The following hockey men were granted their letters: Capt. Don Mitchell, Duluth, Minn.; James Mason, Winnipeg, Ont.; John McCarter, Madison; Don Meiklejohn, Madison; Earl Carrier, Essex Falls, N. J.; Max Murphy, Green Bay; Gilbert Krueger, Neenah; Ed Swiderski, Duluth, Minn.; James Drummond, Cleveland, Ohio; Manager Edward Konkol, Ashland.

The council also voted "W" sweaters for the following members of the Badger gymnastics team: Capt. Don Hinterliter, Tulsa, Ok.; Richard Neller, Appleton; Martin Brill, Milwaukee; August Bartelt, Campbellsport.

Ten freshmen hockey players were given numerals for service on Coach Johnny Farquhar's yearling puck squad, namely: Capt. Art Thomsen, Milwaukee; Gordon Meiklejohn, Madison; Roland Jacobson, Rochester, Minn.; Arthur Frisch, Portage; Albert Barde, Flushing, N. Y.; Howard Siegel, Eveleth, Minn.; Edward Rose, St. Paul, Minn.; George Lubudde, Milwaukee; Francis Brennan, Chicago; Manager Hugh Bloodgood, Milwaukee.

Lloyd Taylor, commodore of the Wisconsin crew in 1927, was awarded the varsity manager's monogram sweater.

Wisconsin Frosh Win Over Illinois in Final Telegraphic Match

Final results in the last freshmen telegraphic track meet with Illinois was received by the Daily Cardinal last night, showing Wisconsin with another victory, the score being 58-1-5 to 50-4-5.

This Illinois victory practically gives Wisconsin a claim to a mythical freshmen Big Ten title, as the Badgers have whipped the Notre Dame, Iowa, Minnesota yearlings besides, and all this despite the extremely small track the Badgers are forced to use in contrast with the much larger ones being used by the other schools.

Badgers Get Five Firsts

The Badger frosh took five first places, and tied with Illinois for four first places, while Illinois was taking two clear first places. It was only the number of clear first places that gave Wisconsin its victory.

Wixom, Badger distance star was high point man of the meet, winning two first places in the mile and another in the half mile. Johnny Bell, star frosh half miler was out with a sprained ankle.

Wisconsin took first in the pole vault, mile run, half mile, shot put, and two mile run. Illinois tied with the Badgers in the low hurdles, high jump, 40-yard dash, and 40-yard high hurdles. Illinois won in the broad jump and in the 440-yard dash.

Wisconsin won all three places in the half mile run, but Illinois retaliated with all three places in the 440-yard dash. In the 40-yard high hurdles three Illinois men and one Badger frosh tied for first place in 5.7 seconds.

Summary

Broad jump: Won by Miles (I); Bertelsman (L), second; Lunde (W), third. Distance, 21 feet 6 1/2 inches.

Pole vault: Won by Lunde (W); Nichols (W), second; Cass (I), third. Height, 11 feet 10 inches.

Abolish Fraternities?

The Writer Paints a Picture Showing How Editors Become Hypocrites

AN interesting reader's letter published yesterday levels several charges at fraternities, stating that the Greek organizations have anything but a desirable effect on their members. It has long been our opinion that fraternities have by no means justified their existence on this campus. Far be it from us, however, to come right out and say they ought to be abolished. If we did, countless reactionaries would shout, "The Cardinal wants to do away with fraternities!" Thereupon the fraternity boys would start writing letters telling us just exactly how crazy we are. We should acquire a collection of epithets rivaling those hurled at us by the most ardent sponsors of the R. O. T. C. during some sort of discussion we seem to remember from last semester.

These letters from the fraternity boys would no doubt be filled with blather about brotherhood, social contacts, desirable living conditions, the molding of character, etc. Probably most of the talk would be mere rationalization of the fact that the boys are members of the secret societies purporting to spread benefits under the good old banner of Mu Mu Mu or Phi Phi Phi. The non-fraternity men (and non-sorority women) would probably not be interested in the discussion. It is doubtful if they would formulate any intelligent opinions on the matter. But the readers' letters from fraternity men would cause excitement—among the fraternities. Then some champion of the down-trodden Greeks would come before the board of control with a beautiful piece of logic showing that The Cardinal was not painting student opinion and charging the editor with prostituting the sacred campus press in order to spread personal ideas.

The board of control would open one eye and cast a shocked glance in the direction of the editor. The editor, duly chagrined, would confess all. Then, seeking to save the dignity of The Cardinal, he would institute a referendum on the question: "Should fraternities be abolished at Wisconsin?" The fraternity boys would vote en masse, just as blindly gullible as the rear rank R. O. T. C. recruits. A few other students would cast ballots, but the majority would ignore the issue—and we don't blame them. The result of the vote would be an overwhelming triumph, perhaps by a 10 to 1 count, in favor of the fraternities.

Following the outcome of the referendum, the editor would write an editorial something like this:

With this issue we bow to student opinion as expressed in the recent referendum on fraternities. We shall no longer advocate the abolition of the Greek letter organizations. But if we have succeeded in arousing the interest of the campus in this vital problem, if we have awakened the fraternities themselves to fuller realization of their potentialities, our opposition has served a purpose.

And that would end editorial discussion of the worth of fraternities. The force of campus opinion would have smothered the personal ideas of the insane editor, and it would again be safe to send The Cardinal home to mother and father.

With this picture before us, we rigidly refrain from announcing that we believe fraternities are a waste of time, money, and ability, that they serve no end comparable with the evil they achieve, that we agree with the writer of yesterday's letter. It is impossible to announce such things in these sacred columns. Why, they contradict everything that innocent pledges and orthodox actives take for granted about their beloved brotherhoods. Therefore, we frankly state that if anything in this editorial sounds as though it might be criticising fraternities, it should be remembered that The Daily Cardinal is doing no such thing; it is merely the whim of an editor who must fill a certain amount of space.

Bearing this in mind, we do say that fraternities have much to do to justify their existence. They have to prove that they are of any value to either campus or individual; they have to prove that all the charges about poor scholarship, drinking, wild oats, and what not are grossly exaggerated. They have to explain just why the wearing of the precious badge of Mu Mu Mu is a privilege which opens to the door to justifiable snobbery, at the same time leading the wearer so far away from the quest for education that it isn't even funny. Although there are indications of an awakening at present, fraternities have yet to prove that they are able to regulate their intergroup relations. Yet, there is much to do in order to satisfy the insane editor that the Greek letter organizations should not be abolished. But who cares about that?

And what is this editorial all about? That is another matter. We should like to take the time and space to explain it more fully. It might develop into a sort of "Confessions of an Editor." But enough has already been said to prove illuminating to some and meaningless to many. We'll let it go at that.

Require Psychology

Only a Hermit Needs No Knowledge of Human Behavior

FRESHMAN English has been criticised; the value of romance languages has been questioned; the board of visitors has suggested changes in the curriculum; various writers have recommended that requirements be altered. We hereby join the critics. (Such action, by the way, will evoke no surprise; for has it not been the rigid policy of this year's editors to keep up a steady anvil chorus? We didn't know it, but that's what we hear. Well, cheer up, campus, it won't be long now and new editors will attempt to interpret and direct your opinion.)

Anyway, we join the critics with the recommendation that a sound course in psychology be required of every undergraduate. We need not suggest any particular requirement which could be dropped; the choice is wide. And we need not go into a detailed argument to show that psychology belongs in the compulsory curriculum.

Some of us come to college to get culture; others come to get practical knowledge which will bring in the dollars later on; too many come for no good reason at all. But every single individual on this campus is going to have to live in a world populated by other individuals. Only by becoming hermits can we avoid contacts with other people. Many of us will some day try to raise children, God (if there is a God) bless 'em. Yet we get no sound, scientific information regarding human behavior.

Chemistry, physics, biology, geology, sociology, and other subjects are studied, but how many students get as good an understanding of human reaction as they do of chemical phenomena? Relatively few. Doesn't that seem a bit foolish to someone?

Think of the value of even an elementary knowledge of human behavior to lawyers, business men, parents, deans, anyone. It is true that conflict still rages in the field of psychology. The younger behaviorists are trying hard to convert the older dualists to a scientific attitude. The preachers and the armchair philosophers still insist on delving into their soul for their "knowledge." But more and more men are rolling up their sleeves and going into the laboratory and into life to watch and work and learn. And already enough experimental data has been gathered to provide a thoroughly scientific basis for the study of human behavior. It would be worth while indeed to require every undergraduate to be exposed to this experimental data. Then why not a required course in the objective study of human behavior?

'ARK AT ME

We have a large yen for sympathizing with poor belabored instructors who are frequently trapped in embarrassing situations by their more astute students.

One of the best occurred yesterday. It seems that one of the worthy members of the English department had the urge to instill in each of his classes the spirit of correct use of the mother tongue. Split infinitives and final prepositions were the bane of his meager existence and he flayed them with a worthy and admirable zeal.

Now it came to pass that there was one lad in his class who could not remember that "a preposition is a bad thing to end a sentence with" and was eternally making this error. Consequently he was the butt of many a sly retort from the instructor.

Now it was also true that this same lad was addicted to the pastime of garnering the shackles by putting in a part of each day working in one of the hamburger palaces that adorn our white way. Working, as was his custom, into the far hours of the night, he was exceedingly surprised to find that his solitary customer was none other than the same English instructor that had so beleaguered him in class. Breathlessly he awaited . . .

"Good evening," murmured the victim, "Two hamburgers with."

"Professor," cried the startled youth, "Never end a sentence with a preposition!"

"You write with ease to show your breeding, But easy writing's curs't hard reading."

—R. B. Sheridan.

I had just come out of Bascom to snatch a few drags before my next class when I became aware of a couple standing directly before me, and conversing in a rather large tone. Hopefully I approached, thinking that some disputed point raised in the classroom was the topic. Chagrined, I turned away. This was the conversation:

"Yeah," said the first, twitching his tie and yawning his neck out of his collar. "These here ginny pigs ought to learn how to dress. Gosh! That's one of the biggest things that college does for a man—teach him how to dress. Gee! And they call that cumber!"

"You're Okay there buddie," replied his companion, one of the newly initiated, (I presume) carelessly pulling back his coat and letting the rays of the sun gleam on the vested jewelry. "And those fifteen guys that broke their frat pledges; they'll be sorry. Yuh can't get anything out of college life unless yuh join a club. Why they're missing one of the best things in college. I can't see why they come to college if they're not going to take advantage of it."

Just then six bareheaded youngsters came along the walk.

"LOOK," he cried, "There goes six of them little ginny pigs. And will yuh look at the blazers? And no ties either . . . Migosh, I'll swear that guy has on GARTERS!"

"Gosh," replied the initiate, "I don't see why they allow them on the campus. There's one auditing my class in art history and all he does is bootlick the instructor by staying behind and asking questions. He must have a horrible drag by this time and the funny part of it all is that he's getting any credit out of the course. Haha, the poor idiot."

"You said it," was the warn response.

I, Prospero, see all this with a sad heart and sink down the drive like a whipped cur. This, then is the culmination of a year's work . . . failure. Obviously, if these things be true, the Experimental college must be a failure.

Rome Plans New Sports Stadium

Amphitheater Will Be Done in Roman Style to Seat 100,000

ROME—Premier Mussolini has approved the new scheme for improving and extending Rome, which includes what is to be the biggest stadium in Europe, capable of holding 100,000 spectators, a motor-road from the capital to the near-by towns of Frascati and Albano, and a garden suburb near Lake Albano.

The site chosen for the new stadium which will be used for football, cycling, motor-cycling, running, tennis, and other sports is between the race-track of Capannelle and the dirigible hangars of Ciampino, from which the "Norge" started on its trip to the Pole, located six miles from Rome.

The immense amphitheater, which is to be modeled on classic Roman architecture, will have two principal entrances, both of which will be adorned with statuary and decorated columns. The height of the outer walls will be more than 40 feet.

The form of the new stadium which is being built to symbolize the entrance of Fascist Italian youth into the world's sporting lists is elliptical, and will cover some 60,000 square meters of ground. There will be dressing-rooms for the athletes, massage parlors, baths of various kinds, medical and surgical departments, restaurant, cafes and reading rooms.

Girls Will Pay Bills at South Dakota Leap Year Dance Given Men

VERMILION, S. D.—Men were seen and not heard at the University of South Dakota March 20 when the women students on the campus held a leap year dance under the auspices of the Theta Delta Pi, local professional journalism sorority.

The girls boast that for once in their lives the men students were put and kept in the background. The girls made the date for the evening's entertainment, traded all dances, and went after their dates and took them home. The rules strictly stated that no man would be admitted without proper escort.

Although similar dances have been held in other schools the university girls insist that the men had a special opportunity to find out what it is to see and not heard.

Thoughtfulness Rates Higher Than Sex Appeal, Co-Eds Aver

RICHESTER, N. Y.—"A little genuine consideration and thoughtfulness goes further than all sex appeal." This is the advice given by University of Rochester women. Taking too much for granted is man's worst fault, they aver.

"Helpful hints" for college men appeared in current issue of the Cloister Window, a student publication of the Women's College of the University of Rochester, in answer to a list of "don'ts" for college women, printed recently in the Campus, the Men's college weekly.

"Don't think that because a girl looks at you or speaks to you she is in love with you—in 99 cases out of a given 98 she is not," they advise.

Mustache

"Don't try to become popular by growing a mustache on the front of a babyish face. Your youth is even more noticeable, and you look so funny."

"Don't intimate that you have lived a pretty fast life; we don't believe it, and it would not add to your manly attractions if we did."

"Don't consider a girl empty-headed because she never says a serious word to you. She is trying to meet you on your own level."

"Don't expect to gain popularity by establishing a reputation for taking a girl out only once. We can't get excited over a date with a man we never expect to see again."

Dance

"Don't think that an invitation to a sorority dance is a result of your overwhelming charm. It probably means that she considers you harmless."

"Don't be afraid that every girl you favor with a "hello" is trying to kidnap you. You may be disappointed."

Necking

"Don't consider a girl dumb because she is not eager to neck with you she first time you go out together. She may not have had time to realize your singular charm."

"Don't hold it against a girl if she treats you like a high-grade moron. It is just possible that she has reason to believe that you are one."

And a final piece of advice:

"Don't think that even if you mind all these rules you'll come up to our specifications. We have our own private lists of what men should do."

Princeton Seniors Are Enjoying Privilege of Unlimited Cuts Now

The Daily Princetonian hails the action of the Dean of granting unlimited cuts to the seniors. Says the paper, "It is a progressive step and one which recognizes the ability of undergraduates properly to apportion their time to their own best interests. It admits that many men have duties to perform in which their time will be more valuably spent than in attending certain lectures. And this is particularly true of seniors, who at the present time are submerged in the business of theses and will soon have to prepare for their final examinations."

The Princetonian points out that a large number of the cuts will probably be taken over the week-end, however, but thinks that this is only natural and should not be regarded seriously.

"Before deciding whether the experiment has succeeded or failed, however, we do feel that due account should be taken of the fact that under ordinary circumstances a very large number of absences are incurred over week-ends. That men should continue to do so is not necessarily in itself sufficient reason to withdraw the privilege. The week-end has come into undergraduate life to stay, but over and above week-ends the undergraduate body may be in a position to profit by unlimited cuts."

Scientist Makes Plans to Preserve Language

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Rescuing a dying language is a task to which Dr. F. G. Speck, anthropologist of the University of Pennsylvania, has set himself. Dr. Speck recently returned from a hurried expedition to the Catawba Indian reservation in South Carolina, where he collected legends, medicine practices, and formulas, many of which were in the Catawba tongue.

Language of some Indian tribes are spoken by thousands of living Indians, but the remarkable Catawba language has faded from use until it is now spoken by only two Indian women,

Mrs. Samson Owl and Sally Brown. Dr. Speck was appointed by the committee of research in American Indian Languages to make records of what these old people remember of their language and their unique customs.

Y. W. to Conduct Lenten Services

The second of the early morning Lenten watch services being sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. will be held tomorrow morning at 7:30 o'clock in Lathrop parlors. Because of the fact that Easter occurs during spring vacation the watches are taking place earlier than usual.

One of the members of the Cabinet board will lead the services tomorrow morning. The services this morning were conducted by Laura Barrett '28, retiring president of Y. W. C. A. The services and vespers this year are managed by Constance Connor '30, secretary of Y. W. C. A.

New York U. Queen, 18 Years Old, Favors Co-Education, Smoking

"I strongly favor co-education," said the recently elected queen of New York University, 18 year old Frances Weinberg, when the question was presented, "and would strongly advise all girls to attend such institutions. It enables a girl, who is usually shy and flustered in meeting a young man, to acquire a certain poise and bearing that she would not be able to obtain otherwise. She has an opportunity to meet young men without looking for them and by continual association in the classroom and at social functions learns how to conduct herself."

Other words of wisdom that this 18 year old sage utters are, "Petting is unbefitting conduct, but there is no reason why a girl is not at liberty to smoke when and where she pleases if she enjoys doing it. I am in so many activities that I have no definite time for studying, but do it whenever I get the opportunity."

This enlightening interview appeared in the New York University Daily News.

Average Ohio Freshman Weighs Only 140 Pounds

COLUMBUS, Ohio—The average Ohio State freshman is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 140 pounds, and is three months past 18 years of age.

This synthetic freshman was found by Dr. J. H. Nichols, head of the men's division of the physical education, from an examination of more men's division of the physical examinations of more than two thousand new students.

Eight out of every 10 freshmen, Dr. Nichols says, can swim when they come to the university, but only one in three uses tobacco.

"BLUE HEAVEN"?

It seems that some colleges are adopting blue laws. Women students at the University of Texas are forbidden to have more than three dates a week, and the University of Kansas has put a ban on all dancing at the university.

Sidelight Given on John Erskine

Studied "Helen" Five Years; Wrote Book in Six Months

John Erskine, who is to speak in Music hall on Friday, April 13, under the auspices of Theta Sigma Phi, was lured away from a scholarly work on Milton by Helen of Troy. He studied her for five years, then wrote about her in six months.

From 11 till 1 o'clock each night from January until July, 1925, Erskine worked on Helen of Troy. Yet the book did not take long to write. It was the polishing and revision that took time. He never criticizes anything he writes until he has dashed it off on paper. Creative work and critical work do not mix well, he finds.

Since "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" appeared, he has written "Galathad" and "Adam and Eve," and one short story, "Nausica Receives." Colliers rumors that he is soon to publish a fourth book.

Erskine chose to teach English, he says, because "it is very easy to talk about something you like to people who like it." One of the largest lecture halls in Columbia university is crowded to hear him lecture, and has been for years, for he is well known in the college for his interesting lectures. His descriptions of the Canterbury Tales are as lively as they are true to Chaucer and to life.

In all his writings, Erskine admires the beauty, almost worships it. In "Adam and Eve," Lilith is perfect and Eve is beautiful. The beauty of Helen of Troy is more than human—almost more than divine. He suggests in his essay on happiness that perhaps God is an artist, after all.

Hamline College Offers New Plan

More Freedom in Choice of Study Aim of System at St. Paul School

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Revision of the curriculum to permit more freedom of study has been announced at Hamline college by President Alfred F. Hughes.

Majors and minors have been abolished, the first and last two years of work separated, and requirements reduced in number. "Gateway" courses in the freshman and sophomore years will introduce the student to college, and thereafter he will be free to select his own subjects. The only demand is for 36 hours of concentrated study.

Particular emphasis is being placed on the junior and senior years. After caring for the demanded 36 hours, the student may browse as he pleases, or he may limit his work to one field. Provisions will be made for granting the exceptional student research facilities if he is able to carry his work beyond the limits of courses offered. Similarly, by arrangement with department heads, study may be done outside of class rooms and with no direct reference to courses.

Approximately five hundred students at the University of Oklahoma have registered to vote in favor of the Sunday picture shows in Norman.

Eat Beef to Discover Best Length of Time for Feeding Cattle

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—An innovation in cattle testing where the test is carried not only through the feeding but to the kitchen and the ultimate consumption of the beef is to start today under the direction of the departments of animal husbandry and home economics, according to Prof. Sleeter Bull of the department of animal husbandry.

The College of Agriculture is the first body to carry such a test to the final use of the beef to determine the effect of the length of the feeding period on the quality of meat produced.

November 15 a herd of calves were all put on the same fattening feed to prepare them for marketing. Having been fed for 112 days, a part of this herd has been slaughtered and the ribs of the animals are to be roasted by members of the department of home economics and served to a committee that is to pass on the palatability and tenderness of the meat. The committee is to be made up of members of the department of animal husbandry and home economics.

A month from now another group of calves from the same herd is to be slaughtered and tested in the same way and this is to continue till the feeding time for the beef meat has been determined.

Behaviorism Is Social Problem

Making People Over Is Task of the Modern Sociologist

Learning how to get rid of a personal dislike for cheese or spinach is the first step towards knowing how to solve the social problem of the universe. This is the theory of sociology advanced by Robert R. Kern, professor of sociology of George Washington University.

"Sociologists who moralize on poverty, bad housing, and delinquency are not dealing with reality at all," Prof. Kern declared.

Making people over so that they get rid of foolish fears and other inefficient behavior is a real task for sociologists. How a human being will behave can be predicted and his behavior can be altered by understanding and applying principles of physiology."

Prof. Kern, in cooperation with his students, has conducted more than one thousand experiments in predicting and reorganizing behavior. The students use themselves as subjects of the experiments, and by understanding their own bodily mechanisms they are better equipped to understand why other people and large groups of people act as they do.

"A man may have developed a dislike of milk because of some highly emotional and disagreeable experience with it," the sociologist explained. "Now, milk is wholesome, and if he were to get sick he might be seriously handicapped by his unreasonable aversion for it. Yet the very sight of it produces a physical disgust that is so real that it must be taken seriously."

"The first problem is to help him trace the mechanism of the neural hook-up that has been established in his body. He sees how the sight of a bottle of milk sets up the same old nervous mechanism, carrying a current over the same nerve route, affecting the same visceral muscles, and producing the sensation of nausea. Then, he tries to direct and re-route the nerve current by substituting for the old emotion an unemotional attitude of thinking how the milk will be good for him."

Emotions are inefficient as guides in the opinion of this sociologist, who believes that social problems should be attacked from a realistic physiological point of view.

U. of Michigan Places Observatory in Africa

Michigan's observatory located on Naval Hill, Bloemfontein, Orange Free State, South Africa, began making observations last Sunday night, according to Prof. R. C. Curtiss, director of the observatory here, who talked to the southern station over the R. O. T. C. station radio unit at that time.

The building which houses the Lamont astronomical expedition was completed more than a week ago, and during the last few days the staff of the southern observatory has been busy installing the electrical wiring in the giant 27½-inch refracting telescope.

According to Prof. Curtiss, all the observing time of the first three or four days will be spent in getting the new telescope into proper adjustment. This will be necessary before the new station can begin its work of locating double stars in the southern skies, which was the real purpose of the expedition, as started by the late Prof. William Hussey.

The work of this observatory, which is financed by Robert Lamont '91E, will continue for at least eight years. During all this period practically all the observing time of the station will be devoted to the discovery of double stars, which, according to Prof. Curtiss, constitutes one of the most fascinating branches of astronomical research.

No Forum Defense of Denver Honor System

No one rose to the defense of the honor system in a recent open forum held at the University of Denver, according to an item in the Denver Clarion. In the minds of those who called the meeting there was no prejudice for such a system.

The paper continues, "Again we repeat the sentiment expressed at the Denver open forum. For the University of Denver especially the solution for cribbing is certain; it rests upon the development of a moral sense of responsibility. Perfection will only come when every member of the student body is sold one hundred per cent on the idea of fair play for all universities are training fields for practical life. Is not a sense of moral responsibility within the scope of collegiate training?"

Wichita Team Flies 200 Miles to Game

"When the basketball team of the University of Wichita went to play Hays State Teachers college, the team was transported by air. This is the first time a basketball team has used this method of transportation as far as is known. Although Hays is less than two hundred miles away, the train connections are so bad that it is a two-day trip to go there from Wichita. Consequently a squadron of five airplanes was assembled to transport the cagers. They made the trip by air in about four hours.

Appoint Everett to Greek School

Brown Philosophy Professor Added to Experimental College Staff

Prof. Walter Goodnow Everett, of the philosophy department of Brown University, will be attached to the faculty of the Experimental college for a period of two months beginning after April 1.

Prof. Everett will take the place of Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn, chairman of the college, who is working at present on plans for the work of the college during the next year.

While no definite plans have been announced, it is presumed that the study for the sophomores will be of the American civilization from before the Civil war to the present time. The incoming freshmen will study the Athenian civilization in much the same manner as was done this year. Minor changes will be made.

During the time that Dr. Meiklejohn is working on new plans, his present advisory group will be taken over by Prof. Everett.

Prof. Everett is especially suited to this work as he has long been recognized as an authority on Grecian philosophy and is one of the foremost logicians in this country.

Miss Helen Everett, daughter of Prof. Everett, is attached to the university as a member of the women's scholarship committee.

Immediately following the vacation there will be a six weeks' period, which will be devoted to the writing of a thesis on some phase of the Athenian civilization of particular interest. This will be followed by a final examination on the work of the entire year.

Spring With Sunshine and Soft Breezes Decamps Before Winter

After giving us a taste last week of what a Madison spring can be like, the gay deceiver, cloaked in sunshine and soft breezes, silently gathered his wraps and decamped Sunday night.

Even Erio R. Miller, state meteorologist, is surprised.

And a blight fell upon the city. Thunder crashed and lightning flashed and the little co-ed, drawing the covers over her head, prayed fearfully, if somewhat incoherently (she was out of practice, you see), "Now I lay me down to sleep; I'm sorry I cribbed that mid-semester, dear God; I didn't mean to fib to my prof about why I couldn't take the exam; I'll never send another SOS for books when it's for a new dress, etc."

But the next morning she awoke to find a layer of white icing on the

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised if we had another snowfall before the spring vacation."

Quick, Watson! The needle.

Prof. Hohlfeld Speaks on Faust

Calls the Tragedy of Marguerite a Drama in Itself

In view of the presentation of Goethe's Faust by the art history and German departments, March 29 and 31, Prof. A. R. Hohlfeld spoke on "Faust" yesterday afternoon in 165 Bascom hall under the auspices of the German department.

The so-called first part of Faust beginning with the solemn Prologue of Heaven was traced by Professor Hohlfeld, who is an authority on this classic drama. He emphasized especially Goethe's conception of magic, the nature of the pact or wager between Faust and the devil, Mephistopheles, and the love drama of Faust and Marguerite.

"The attempt of Mephistopheles to interest Faust in wine and song was a complete failure," Professor Hohlfeld said. "The devil is at times stupid, but after all many great men have been snared by wine. Mephistopheles then turns to the world of women. But the devil only thinks of women as an element of seduction. Instead of degrading Faust, Marguerite leads him upward."

Professor Hohlfeld pointed out that the tragedy of Marguerite is a drama in itself, and is to many the chief interest in the play. The story of Marguerite from her early happiness through the descending action in which she poisons her mother and kills her child would move anyone of normal emotions, according to Prof. Hohlfeld.

Because there is no adequate English translation, the presentation in Bascom theater will be in German. Professor Hohlfeld said that the drama has such clearness of action and is so full of graphic scenes that there will be no difficulty in following the plot for one who does not understand the language.

Complete synopsis will be printed on the program.

Ohio Fraternity Issues Verdict on Home Ecs' Balanced Diet Plan

What are balanced rations? Carrots and spinach, with an occasional side dish for variety's sake.

Thus runs the verdict of an Ohio State fraternity, according to The Lantern. The verdict was arrived at after a three months' trial of systematized menus prepared by senior women in the department of home economics.

"Scientifically prepared meals also mean a scarcity of fancy salads," say the fraternity brothers, whose hunger for relishes has been somewhat appeased by the inclusion of plenty of desserts, pie, cake, and ice cream, in the daily menus planned by the home ecs."

Immorality Follows Petting, Say Kansans

Immorality was the resulting conviction of 430 students of Kansas Teachers' college picked at random. An overwhelming vote in a "student opinion test" established that belief. Modesty is still the cardinal virtue of mankind, the test revealed. A huge majority of the selected students voted "false" to the statement that "Military preparedness is necessary for world peace."

Christ's teachings were termed "practical" by 331 of the students. Opinion was evenly divided on the question, "Are honor students the thinking students of the campus?"

Cadets Practice With Battle Fleet

University of California to Study Battle Maneuvers on Warships

Over 130 cadets of the advanced course in Military Science at the University of California will join the Pacific battle fleet at San Pedro this week and will sail on a two and a half day educational trip.

The fleet will sail for San Diego, anchoring forty-five miles off Coronado for the night, going into action the following day. Preceded by a squadron of mine sweepers, the ships will then be subjected to an aeroplane strafing attack followed by an attack by submarine torpedoes.

Students taking the trip have been assigned to six battleships, eighteen to a ship, with an officer assigned to each group to explain all of the maneuvers. The ships to be used are U.S.S. Pennsylvania, Arizona, New York, West Virginia, Maryland, and Tennessee.

Women at Ohio State university gave a water pageant in which the participants were attired as fish, and frogs.

Athletic Board Powers Explained

Crofoot Declares Only Necessary Qualification Is Interest

A whole-hearted interest in the athletic situation of the school is the only necessary qualification for membership on the Athletic board, according to Edwin J. Crofoot, present head of the board.

Thirteen men compose the Athletic board, all elected by the male students of the university. Eleven are to be elected Friday, as two are hold-overs from their junior year.

Two sophomore non-W men are elected every year for two-year terms. The remainder of the board is made up of W men.

Each major sport, football, basketball, track, cross country, baseball, and crew—is represented by one man, elected by the students as a while. A minor sports representative is elected in the same manner.

The president and vice-president must be W men, and are usually seniors, although this is not necessarily true. The board recommends no one for the offices, and all nominations are gained by petition.

The Athletic board is the advisory board to the Athletic council. It makes the recommendations to the council for the awarding of letters to athletes and sport managers. It controls the qualifications for winning the varsity letter, and may change the system of awards, or change the status of a sport.

The board has charge of the bag rush and cap night, and appoints the Homecoming chairmen. Long a constant source of dissatisfaction, subject to frequent changes, it is necessary that the rush be handled satisfactorily if it is to continue. The rush last fall was a drab affair with about as much life as an Egyptian mummy. The new members of the board have it in their power to establish a system for determining class supremacy which will be interesting for the spectators and as thrilling to the contestants as the old-time rushes.

These advertisers listed above, and the many others for which we haven't space in this page, are known the world over as buyers of space in a big way. But they are careful buyers of space. They spend hundreds and thousands in studies of the market for their various products. They employ agencies whose business it is to place their advertising where it is most useful and where the space gives them the most dollars returned for the dollars it costs.

They know their market and they know The Cardinal. The men who place their space know mighty well that The Cardinal gives them complete coverage in the rich, buying university area of Madison. They know that no similar paper competes to divide the field. They know that The Cardinal is alone in its field with complete coverage.

And you, Mr. Madison Advertiser, have things that you want to sell to students. You can't hire big agencies to do this work of market analysis and space-placing. But you can profit from the experience of these big firms who have studied the question. The Cardinal is the one big medium that has no duplication, complete average. MARSHFIELD 36; CUBA CITY 19

Opening up an unstoppable offense in the second half, Marshfield ran away from Cuba City, 36 to 19. Working a smooth, fast offense, Marshfield, through the aid of Schnell and Helion, showed good form, particularly in the second half. The guarding of Schlecht and Seide was also noteworthy. For Cuba City C. Percock showed up well.

NEENAH 12; EAST DE PERE 11

Neenah downed East De Pere in the final minute of play to win by the score of 12 to 11 in a game that took the prize when it comes to shooting baskets.

Not a single point was made by either side in the first quarter, both teams missing numerous short shots. The half ended 4 to 3 in favor of Neenah.

At the start of the second half, Neenah started out strong by scoring two baskets. De Pere retaliated with a couple of free throws and the lead stayed this way until the closing minutes when De Pere tied the score. With about a minute left to play, a foul was called on De Pere and Neenah made it good and thereby won the game.

WAUKESHA 20; RIVER FALLS 9

Waukesha definitely proved that it was not merely a "dark horse" but a real quintet yesterday when it administered a 20-9 defeat to the nimble River Falls team. River Falls was outweighed, and playing with small men, was unable to find the basket while Kamp and Bucci of Waukesha were flinging in baskets and free throws.

The little River Falls players seemed to constantly get in the way of Waukesha, and the result was many free throws for Waukesha.

Political Party Class

Holds Mock Convention; Norris Wins, Dawes Next

"Vote for Norris!" "Mr. Chairman, I, the delegate from Kansas—" "—hereby place the vote of the great state of California for—" "Will the meeting come to order?"

These were some of the cries that rang through 401 Sterling hall Wednesday morning when the class in Political Parties and Party Problems, under Prof J. P. Harris, held a mock Republican national convention.

The progressive element of the party dominated the convention and, after the third ballot, succeeded in nominating Senator Norris of Nebraska. Vice-president Dawes was second favorite and came within four votes of the required majority in the second balloting.

An elaborate opening speech in which the virtues of the "grand old party" were extolled at great length was given by E. P. Kelley, chairman of the convention. William T. Gill, '28, chairman of the Resolutions committee, read the provisions of the party platform. Other members of the committee were Gerda Trumpp '29,

Robert Pease '29, and Herbert Kuck '28. Burton W. Depue '28, acted as secretary of the convention.

Much of the discussion hinged on the question of whether or not a "dry" plank should be incorporated in the platform. Francis C. Wollard '29, representing the state of Kansas, proposed an amendment declaring the party in favor of supporting the Volstead act, but the opinion of the majority seemed to be that the Republican party would do well not to mention the question.

Cardboard placards bearing the name of each state represented were carried by the delegates. The states included California, Idaho, Nebraska, New York, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Indiana, South Dakota, Massachusetts, Illinois, Tennessee, Missouri, Texas, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

Michigan Prexy Favors Hoover

President Little Speaks of Commerce Secretary as 'Best Available'

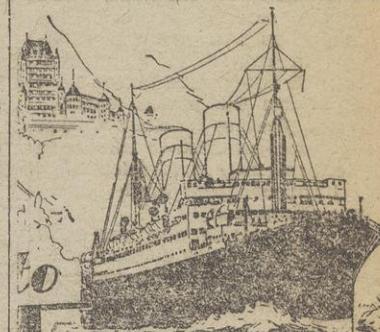

President Clarence Cook Little of the University of Michigan, in a statement issued yesterday, came out flatly in support of the candidacy of Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, for president of the United States. The President stated that of all the candidates Hoover stands out as "an independent, clear thinking, broadly trained public servant," and particularly lauded his connections abroad which would aid him to reach an understanding with European governments.

The complete statement of the President follows: "I have been asked to make a statement as to whom I favor as a candidate for the presidency. In my opinion there is one outstanding and obvious choice, Herbert Hoover. Through a maze of favorite local sons and provincial administrators of states or dyed in the wool products of big city environments, Mr. Hoover stands out as an independent, clear thinking, broadly trained public servant. He is the most cosmopolitan and broadly trained American available. He knows more about Europe and they know more about him. He has been tested as a representative of the American people as a whole, under conditions of both war and peace, and has never been found wanting. With so much of our fortunes, both material and spiritual, dependent upon other peoples as well as our own, it seems to be a wonderful opportunity to nominate and elect an American of whom it may fairly be said—the world as a whole is his city."

this offer, he said, was to give the scholars something to work for. He pointed out that the athletes get prominence and rewards, and the social leaders are recognized, but that the scholar is rarely noticed or mentioned.

The movies are true to life now, except that the innocent little thing never gets a wrong number when she phones for help.

Torn Finger-Nails Not Scissors Fault

end, and working toward the body, the same satisfactory result could be accomplished, with less effort. Carelessness will prove that the scissor will then not cut only the nail, but the flesh as well.

Further Developments

An ambidexterous person, can therefore, according to this experiment cut either or with either hand with perfect ease, thus conclusively proving that such a person is ambidexterous in respect to finger nail trimming. A left-handed person need only to reverse the process outlined and obtain pleasing results. Women will, of course, continue to trim nails by the tedious method of filing them to a convenient acute angle ending in a scratching apex.

Numerous admirers who may wish to congratulate me may do so by calling F. 2041, Wisconsin Memorial hospital, better known as the Mendota Sanitarium.

Clamor for Encores

The final group was composed of the "Cry of Rachel," by Salter, Joyce Kilmer's popular "Trees" set to music by Rasbach, which was encored, Malloy's lilting "Kerry Dance," and the powerful "Agnus Dei" of Bizet, given with a violin obligato.

Perhaps the most popular selections of the whole program were the final requested encores, "The Waters of Minnetonka," "Stille Nacht," and "The Rosary," the announcement of which was greeted with an outburst of applause.

Florence Hardeman, violinist, was the assisting artist, and played two creditable groups of selections. The accompanist was Katherine Hoffmann.

Darwin Suggests Bunk in 'Stereotype' Tests

Volstead reminds some people of a religious type of temperance," Harvard calls up pictures of snobbishness and fur coats, and Darwin suggests "bunk," according to the results of a "stereotype test" given recently to a history class of Prof. Roy E. Cochran, of the University of Nebraska.

The "stereotype test" is supposed to bring out the mental associations different individuals have for the same word or idea. So a list of words was given to the students and their answers tabulated.

One student thought of his grandfather when the word Republican was given; another set down "the more honorable party." The latter student wrote beside the word Democrat "the more secretive party."

Volstead reminded students of bootleggers, beer bottles, criminals, and Zion City. Other associations as set down in Prof. Cochran's test, are:

Taxes—Yellow cabs, a burden, money; Mexico—a boiling pot, war; Smith—beer, cough drops; Bolshevism—red whiskers and bombs, long-haired men; Uncle Sam—protector of the world, mail boxes; race—horses, Negro, Roland Locke; Borah—bushy hair; opera—high hats.

'Gripe,' Collegiate Term, Has Many and Divers Definitions

According to the dictionary the "gripe" means "to lay hold on; to seize; to grasp" but according to the college vocabulary it means something entirely different.

Its collegiate meaning is hard to define. You hear one say I'm just gripped to death," meaning bored or peevish. You hear the expression, "She's always griping around," meaning complaining and finding fault. And then someone comes along and says, "He sure gripes me," meaning disgusts and annoys.

Assisting Committee Chairmen Announced for Mothers' Reception

Chairmen of assisting committees to aid in preparation for the annual All-University Mothers' Reception to be held May 18, 19, and 20, were announced yesterday by Helen Keeler '29, general chairman. The committees follow:

Kenneth Marsden '29, finance; John Husting '30 and Betty Collier '30, reception; Allen Tenny '30, publicity; Charline Zinn '30, invitations; and Allan Edgerton '30, special features.

Mothers' week-end this year will include the same events that have been observed traditionally in the past. Senior swing-out, presentation of the freshman scholarship cup, Mortar board announcements, and the dance drama head the program for Friday, May 18. Women's field day and the mothers' banquet will be the most important events for Saturday, May 19.

Buttercup Listed as Poisonous Flower

LONDON—The buttercup, "sweet little buttercup," acclaimed in song and story, has been branded as a common poisoner. Other field flowers are also unmasked by a report of the minister of agriculture, issued for the benefit of farmers.

The buttercup was never used for coloring butter, it is explained, as the flower is tinged with unsuspected villainy in some form or other, despite the tender lines of Robert Browning about the "little children's dower."
