NEW MOVIE SCHEDULE

The new changes in our movie schedule still are not known by the majority of patients. Even with signs posted most people are not aware when the movies are or where they are being shown.

The main change is the movies have moved from the gymnasium to each separate ward. Also the size of the film has changed. It was 35 millimeter; now it is 16 millimeter. It was hoped that these changes would make for better clarity of the sound, which has been quite a problem.

I went to the movie last night and it has improved greatly. I was able to hear the words much better and found it quite enjoyable.

It is unfortunate that the movie was shown on my ward the same night as the dance was held. It's too bad that on so many nights there is nothing to do and then on one night two things happen at the same time.

SOCIAL SERVICES DEPARTMENT

What You Should Know

What is available for the average person after his release from Winnebago State Hospital? This is a question that can haunt you, if you are not familiar with the Staff and Department of Social Services. Headed by Jerry Stein, this group of dedicated people are looking to help you in every way possible--from Goodwill to Fox Valley and Job Placement. The main idea here is of helping the person as much as possible in his release from the hospital. This means making it easier to get released and into a line of work, vocation, or continued education. Here it helps then, since the paper is our main mode of communication to attach ourselves to this department, and describe the possibilities and probabilities of future life and work after release. Let's find out about this Department of Social Services as described by Mr. Stein.

Question: What should the average patient look forward to after his, or her release from the hospital?

Answer: Most often patients return to the situation from which they came. This means that the average go back to the family or their old job, and pick up where they left off. We attempt to help them here with resource people, aid, and referral service, in the area in which they will find themselves. Not many are just "let go". The concern is strong here, which generally reflects greater acceptance of the fact of mental illness.

Question: What is the average length of stay? Do many return?

Answer: The length of stay varies with the individual, of course, but the average comes out to 52 days, or about two months. The length can be up to the court, if the patient is on a court committed stay. This would mean the hospital cares for you under the careful eye of the court. Within one year, a release may be arranged. They still keep track of you, which makes it easier for you to return, if need be. The rate of return depends on the unit. However, the return rate runs around 20 to 30%, which compares with the national average.

If you are a voluntary patient, after a period of observation and detention, you have the option to change to an outright discharge.

Question: Is financial assistance available? If so, what?

Answer: Yes, here is where Vocational Rehabilitation Services come in to help. The direction here is referral by the social worker, who 1) tries to get you to a vocational rehabilitation center, of which there are three now. 2) Send you through job training. 3) Send you to Goodwill or a sheltered industry.

An example would be a leave to return to, say, Milwaukee. The money is provided to return and see about a job.

Another example would be the children, who need money but have none. This is provided through a link with the County Department of Financial Dispensation.

Q Question: What about follow-up.

Answer: There is a resource follow-up. That means, we are in a sense the outpatient department. We try to make it easier to return to the locale. Most people do not know that these resource places exist. We go through staging, meaning--

- 1) Release
- 2) Meeting the individual, and explaining the resources
- 3) Counseling

Sometimes it is possible for group discharges. This helps to overcome public pressure.

WEATHER REPORT

"SNOW TIME"

Weather.

Whether we like it or not it affects us. It gives us pleasure and can give us pain.

Temperature, wind, moisture, and air pressure make up our weather. These elements vary from season to season and give us something to talk about.

Speaking of weather, fact and superstition abound. A chirping cricket can act as a living thermometer. They can chirp faster as the temperature rises. On warm days adding 37 to the number of chirps in 15 seconds will about equal the temperature.

Birds do not roost before a storm as many people believe.

Winter weather is upon us now. Although we in Wisconsin might doubt it, snow falls on only one-third of the earth's surface. Tiny six-sided crystals of which no two are alike have fallen in huge amounts in the United States.

A tremendous 76 inches fell in a 24 hour period at Silver Lake, Colorado in 1921. Oh, my aching back! The Rainier Paradise Ranger Station in Washington recorded 1000.3 inches during the 1955-56 winter. I wonder if anybody had the nerve to tell the rangers there is less water in snow than in rain. I wonder if all of it ever melted!

Snow means fun for snowmobilers and skiers. They like it. So let's enjoy it.

"Snow time" like the present.

T.V. WEATHER

Thursday 10:00 P.M.

Well, folks, this is Walt, your weatherman. After all the up and down weather we've been having, I've got some good news for you. It looks like summer is finally on the way. A pronounced warm front along this line he-e-e-ere -- it was ninety-eight at Laredo today -- is beginning a rapid northeasterly movement, right behind this high pressure located he-e-e-ere.

Friday 10:00 P.M.

Good evening again, folks, from Walt, your weatherman. Well, that warm front we spoke of last night is still moving northeastward. Wichita had eighty-four today and although its movement has slowed a little, it should be arriving here on balmy southerly winds by tomorrow afternoon at the latest. Incidentally, it's what we call a dry warm front, so it looks like a wonderful weekend for golf or driving or whatever it is you plan outdoors. This little line wa-a-a-ay up here near the Canadian border is a minor cold front that is more or less stationary and that should cause us absolutely no difficulty at all. In other words, we may expect steadily rising temperatures and clear skies over most of the area this weekend. So, happy driving folks! And now.....

Saturday, 10:00 P.M.

Well, here I am again, folks, and it's going to be very difficult and rather "ha-ha" embarrassing to try to explain what's been going on for the past twelve hours. What actually happened was that the minor cold front we mentioned last night was backed up by a secondary cold front of considerable intensity that suddenly began a very rapid southerly movement from he-e-e-ere down to he-e-e-ere colliding just south of Prairie City with the advancing warm front, which somewhere along the way picked up moist Gulf air. The result has been what you see falling outside the window. Incidentally, drivers have been advised to keep their cars at home unless absolutely necessary to drive, as the mixture of rain, sleet and snow has made the streets treacherous. And now back to..

Issues an' Answers

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF GROUP THERAPY?

I like it because we talk things over in depth, feelings included. It does me good because there's real communication and rapport. Because of the communication it penetrates the shell of withdrawing. A person is completely free to say whatever he pleases in a completely relaxed atmosphere of understanding.

I think it helps if supervisors would help. They force issues though. They make people go that don't like to talk.

I think it's good in that it's kept as informal as possible. It's not a classroom situation of questions and answers.

I personally think group therapy is a waste of time.

I think it's O.K. if you need it.

It stinks.

Ya, it's a lot of fun.

All they do is bat the breeze failing to get to the core of the patients problems which of course is each individuals prerogative.

Group therapy would be better if the patients would let it be better. Those who don't want to cooperate should automatically be excused from the group -----without retaliation.

A good way to get rid of frustrations but some people make it all funny.

We have group therapy meetings with our doctor on Tuesday and Friday which is very beneficial as we can discuss what is bothering us and we can make requests.

Want for good purpose, but they don't seem to accomplish anything.

I don't know if it is going to do any good or not. I don't know how to look at it. I was only there once for about 20 minutes.

I think it's an intimidating situation whereby the staff personnel try to intimidate the patients.

GROUP THERAPY - AN ONGOING EXPERIENCE

by Michael Sack, M.S.
Staff Psychologist

Your doctor has just assigned you to group therapy and the nurse is asking you to go to your first meeting. As one of the fellow patients shows you the way, you become a little anxious. What is this group therapy? Why do I have to go? What is it all about?

If that is the way you felt when you first went into group therapy it is not abnormal. Most people are a little anxious when they try something new that they know little about. Remember the first time you went into a new classroom, with a new teacher, or remember when you started a new job. The way you handled those experiences are probably the same way you are handling this new experience and vice-versa--the way you feel as you enter the group therapy room is probably the way you handle all experiences.

Group therapy is a microcosm--an artificial--small world. The style in which you interact with people in the group therapy room is probably the way you interact with people on the ward, in the work area, in the community, and in your home. The way you react to stress in group therapy is probably the way you react to stress elsewhere. If you are guarded for a long time in the group there is a strong possibility that you are guarded with others. If you block out what people tell you in these sessions, you have probably shut out other communications outside the group and if you enter the group with the feeling that no one can help, you have, in all likelihood, avoided other kinds of help. So how you interact, behave, feel and communicate in the group sessions is probably how you interact, behave, feel and communicate elsewhere.

I usually try to help the participant in my group therapy sessions to first become aware of how they interact and communicate with others. As a therapist and as a person I try to let the individual know how he is interacting with me and others, and how he

The teacher said, "Thanks, I appreciate the help."

When they got to the next town they found out there was only one hotel. In the hotel there was only one room. Standing at the desk, they decided finally to share the twin-bed room.

They bedded down for the night and then a half-hour later the young teacher said, "I'm cold." The old man, still awake, got up and took a blanket out of the closet, and laid it over the young lady. In another half-hour the pretty thing said again, "I'm still cold." And the old man got another blanket and laid it over the sweet young lady. Then five minutes later she said, "Gee, I'm still cold."

The old man looked the pretty young lass straight in the eye this time and said, "How'd you like to be my wife for tonight." "Well O.K.," she said after some thought.

To which the old man replied, "Then get up and get that damn blanket yourself."

MARILYN CLAGGETT

Marilyn Claggett was born Oct. 5, 1946 in Waupun Wis. She graduated from Wisconsin State University - Oshkosh in 1969. She was married in Hawaii 3 yrs. ago while her husband was on R & R from Viet Nam. They were high school sweethearts from Waupun. Mr. Claggett is a machinist in the research division of Kimberly*Clark. They are living in Neenah and as yet have no children.

Always interested in helping people, Mrs. Claggett has done volunteer work in a nursing home and has planned on being a social worker since high school. Presently, she is thinking about getting involved in FISH which provides emergency transportation for people who have no way to get around.

Mrs. Claggett's summertime activities include boating, fishing and water skiing, as soon as she learns how. Baking, a year around pastime, is something she wishes she had more time for.

Future plans encompass getting a Master's Degree and being a housewife and mother. Her main ambition is to have more time at home in order to become a domesticated woman.

Mrs. Claggett's present case load consists of approximately 40 women from Sherman Hall. She works with both Dr. Kuhs' and Dr. Bachhuber's patients.

This is her first job as a social worker, which she has been at for about a year and a half. Most people agree that she is very capable for being so young.

Everyone she knows gives thanks to her for her kindly help and sincere compassion. We will surely miss her when she leaves.

MARLYN BRAUN

Just to hear the man with the craggy voice is a pleasure, unless you're on work detail, then it can be a headache. For workmen do work, and that's what they are called to do by this man Brownie. His real name is Marlyn Braun, but not many know him by that name. So here's Brownie, the first of the great fishermen. He's always lookin' for good men to do the job. He can nickname you right away, and put you in the place of a worker with a job to do. Once you're caught you are hooked into appreciating this man of grace and goodwill. Goodwill and fellowship are the key terms, because they so well describe what work and Brownie are all about. Good-natured about the whole philosophy of work and life is true Browni'ism. You get caught up in this feeling of friendship. This is a true adage. For men, and now women too can participate in the great task of making the world safe and sound for others. The task may be simple, or sorely complex and still there can be a feeling of friendship. This is the most important lesson then - it's not only doing work, but doing it well, that benefits ones' self, as well as others.

The task is made easier with this in mind - that work should be done well, and that others will be proud of your work. There's lots of it to be done, and Brownie and Company are there to make sure you do. You begin to appreciate his mastery when you look back on what's been accomplished. The opportunity to do this isn't always available. However, when it's done, it's good.

How can you help but not like the fellow whose favorite program is Let's Make a Deal? You'd think the way he watches it so avidly that the whole world was at stake. Sure he's serious but he doesn't let it get out of hand. His pseudonyms spark up the atmosphere and make it warmer than you think. His temperament is tremendous. He's always on top of the situation -- whatever may be on hand, from picking ripe apples to shovelling fresh snow, the seasons must vary, but Brownie remains the same. With his company, everything is all right.

MEN'S PAGE

For Men Only

Men, let's be honest with ourselves. There's nothing we rather look at than women. I know that Raquel Welsh (I wuv you) is pretty and well-built.

But there is a revolution brewing called Women's Liberation. It is upon us and like any problem the best thing to do is to tackle it (I mean solve it).

I can't understand what more they can ask for. Wow, they have the right to vote and they can drive. They can be doctors, lawyers, and politicians. You name it, they think they should be able to do it.

Women's Liberation will be our downfall if we don't unite efforts to fight it. Women's Liberation is one step too far.

But let's not feel like the Lone Ranger. Our problem began with Helen of Troy and Cleopatra. Their influence was greater than that of men of their time. And there's Queen Isabella who had more influence on Columbus than did King Ferdinand of Spain.

Scientists have found little difference in the size of their brain or in their ability to think (they've got to be kidding).

Are they indecisive? The World Book Encyclopedia (1968) says, "In the United States the period after World War II was marked by indecision on the part of women." Gee, it had to have began before then.

Women's Suffrage. The 19th Amendment gave them the right to vote.

They banded against us through the Women's Christian Temperance Union, which ended up in the 18 Amendment or Prohibition lasting 13 years.

I say it's time to fight back. To regain our place in the world. We've lost our identity.

Stand up men! Be counted! It is man's duty to hold out for what he knows is his right, and it is women's duty to listen to us.

Amen!

Time Out For Sports

Welcome, Dan Devine!

And now, the bumper stickers will be saying, "The Packers Are Devine."

Mr. Bengston tried and failed to bring the Packers back. Now it's your job. You're expected to win in Green Bay since Lombardi did and Bengston didn't.

Dan, you've got a nice fat five year contract, reportedly a $625,000 package, with $250,000 of it salary. You'll be coach and general manager like Vince and Phil. Dan, you came here with a good record. You've been in the top 20, ten times in the last 16 years. You've proved yourself a successful college coach.

Starr is aging; Horn is inconsistent and Frank Patrick filled in when there was no quarterback on the squad in early drills. So good luck on your quarterback!

The "Pack" finished third this year in the Central Division of the NFL, with a 6-8 record. They didn't "Win With Bengston." The Packers Are Devine" stickers maybe should read, "Will Dan Be the Man?" or "The Pack-Will Be Devine."

But let's give him a chance sport fans, yes, you Packer Backers! Devine said in a Jan 19 Green Bay press conference he didn't have all the answers but "I propose to get as many of those answers as soon as possible." Sound a bit like Mr. Lombardi? Sure it does!

Lombardi said, "I saw no real reason why we should lose." He said it and his record showed it. So let's welcome Mr. Devine and give him two years to produce a Central Division Champion. Good luck Dan Devine!

FOR WHAT SEEK YE?

I looked for things to give me pleasure,
I searched in books for richer treasure,

I've traveled over land and sea
And thought in friendships I'd found the key.

The charms of nature I couldn't ignore
But my heart kept crying for more and more;
The love of man seemed to be the answer
But my restless was like a spreading cancer.

Fame and fortune seemed vain to me;
Then I prayed to God, "Please let me see
The meaning and purpose of this life,"
As my heart grew barren in the bitter strife.

Then God showed me a road that led
To others for whom His heart had bled.
He had said, "Forgive them for they know not what they do,"

And I realized I was one of them, too!

For life is only a proving ground
For only in Heaven will true joy be found,
And only then will I understand
When He and I talk it over strolling hand in hand.

TRIP OF THE VERNAL AND HIBERNAL

The way out to the far out:
Beyond man's comprehension.
No answer lies in its purlieu;
The answer - is ascension.

When man begins his life sojourn
(At seven, twelve or automobile),
His heart and mind must be as one,
The two be constant to the total.

The universe about us --
Gases, vapors, moving air --
Contains, controls, and censures,
Man, ubiquitous and nair.

Man himself tries to maintain all,
To a less or greater degree.
In His own order, moving and losing,
Adding to all but the free.

The good man finds by giving,
His only way to ascend;
That live and let live and help others
to give,
Is the road the soul travels to mend.

GROUP THERAPY

makes me feel. This is one thing that everyone can do in the group--give feedback as to how you see the other person behaving and interacting. But, this is a very difficult thing to do; "He might think I am too pushy"; "He might get mad and I will lose a friend and never become one"; "I might be wrong and people will think I am foolish"; "I might be right and really hurt him"; "I am really not qualified to do it, I am no therapist"; "If I open my mouth I might be put on the hotspot".

Not only is giving feedback hard to do, it is even more difficult to tell the group your own feelings. In general just opening up to others is not easy. But group therapy tries to be a safe place. A place where confidentiality is held. A place where a group of people can accept other's feelings. Hopefully as members of the group begin to talk to one another and get to know one another they develop a feeling of trust--knowing that these people will be honest. This is a type of atmosphere which is conducive to "opening up and expressing your feelings".

Group therapy is safe in another sense; it is a place and a time to change long standing maladaptive habits of interacting with others. The fellow participants are there to remind you when you slip back into your old ways. For example, if you are an individual who usually keeps your hostilities within yourself and very rarely let your hostile, aggressive feelings be known, the group may encourage you to express anger, and if you fall back into keeping your angry feelings penned up the group might remind you of this and point it out to you. The other members of the group might also be used as "reality testers". For example, if you feel that the other members of the group think you are foolish you might want to ask them if your feeling is a realistic one. The group therapy session might also be a testing ground for you. If you want to try out new ways of handling people you might begin with the group therapy session where you will get honest feedback. In many sessions role playing is a helpful way of trying out a new way to relate. For example, a person who is having difficulty in relating to his spouse might try acting out some situations with another member of the group who would play his spouse. The group could then provide you with feedback, how you were doing, and might provide you with some helpful hints of how to handle the situation. Quite often the members of your group are also patients on the same ward. This can be very advantageous, if you want to generalize changes you want to make in the group therapy session to the ward. The other group members are there--trust them. Not independence nor dependence is helpful when handling stressful situations, but interdependence is. Group therapy provides a setting where you may become interdependent on others.

Group therapy is an active, ongoing experience, and like most ongoing experiences in your life, you get out of it what you put into it. It is a hard thing to break old ways of living, but you are fortunate in this hospital setting--if you want to change there are people here to help, and group therapy is one structured way to interact with people to help you to change.

TO THE CUE:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you and the editorial staff for the opportunity to work on the "CUE" and all the "Nice People Who Pass Through This CUE Door."

Gaining much more than I could give, I would like you to know I treasured this experience as I believe I have not only learned much about the paper business; but, very much about the people, the most important thing on earth. My thanks also goes out to all the patients who so generously cooperated with me and provided their poems, recipes and suggestions to make the CUE the fine paper it is!

Thanks to Vivian for all her work to which was mostly writing good articles and excellent poems for the CUE. I sure appreciated it as it took a load of work - and I mean work - off my shoulders! Believe me to put out a good paper is work! So thanks again and good luck to everyone at Winnebago State Hospital!

Anne

Three demerits for the Kempster Ice Fishing Planning Committee, presently batting .250; 4 trips scheduled, 3 cancellations. Possibly a little more cooperation and coordination could be engineered within all departments to provide an emergency type back-up system of available personnel to carry things through when unforeseen events occur. It becomes somewhat frustrating to the patient population to be contemplating and looking forward to future activities, only to find themselves confronted with last minute cancellations. This problem is not new or unique, but it certainly is not insurmountable either for that matter.

WHAT A WONDERFUL PARTY!

On January 23, 2 East and 2 West excitedly walked to the Rumpus Room not exactly sure of what they would be met by upon their arrival. They surprisingly, were met by updated music and were given numbered tickets for the door prize drawings.

The party and dance was arranged though Sue, Don and Vill from the Activity Therapy Department, Mrs. Suzanne and Ann from 2 West, and Tom, Jerome, David from 2 East. Patients on both wards helped wrap the gifts for door prizes. The patients on both wards that were on the planning committee went to the Rumpus Room early to put some decorations up and to arrange the tables.

There were several activities available. One could dance, play pool, volley ball or bowl. They had 2 teams of six each bowling. Team 1 had 439 as a final score, while Team 2 beat them with 462 as their final score. Tom had the highest score, with Rosemary and Judy close behind.

Don did a good job as the emcee. He periodically interrupted the music to call out numbers for the door prizes. One time he did a little trick to get more people out on the floor dancing. There were a few couples at the beginning and at intervals he would have them break up and find a new partner.

They had hot chocolate and cookies for a refreshment. Around 8:30 the bowling came to an end and quite a few patients went up to the gym for a game of volley ball and shortly later the party came to an end. Everyone had a wonderful time and hated to leave.

A LOVELY GIFT FOR KEMPSTER, 2 WEST

Art, Music and Literature are all fascinating subjects, and there is much interest and excitement in the subject of art. Kempster, 2 West recently received seven reproductions framed in fish-gold tones and antique whites. These fine, old-world masters certainly enhance the beauty of our two day-rooms and long corridors.

The donor wishes to remain unannounced but his selection includes:

1. On the terrace. By Renoir
2. Mischievous kittens. By Reichert.
3. Wistful and soulful. By Kopland
4. November, By Clymes.
5. Sunflower. By Van Gogh.
6. A young girl reading. By Fragonard
7. Master Simpsons. By Devism

Our thanks to the donor for his delightful contributions.

SURPRISE, SURPRISE!

What a surprise it was for the patients when they arrived at the Rumpus Room for another dance. As no band was booked for the dance Mr. Weber had drummed up a few volunteers, so he and his friends played the music which supplied the dancers with a variety of songs to dance to.

There were 155 patients at the dance which was below the usual turnout. Most of the dancers came from Kempster Hall with Sherman Hall close behind. Their music was highlighted with the Bunny Hop. Slowly but surely couples came out upon the dance floor.

Here are some comments Cue members were able to obtain. Many of them felt it was nice of those men to volunteer to play for us, as the money had run out. Some felt that the intervals between arrangements could have been filled with more popular music for the younger set. Some others expressed a desire for more polkas and rock arrangements. But all together, everyone had a wonderful time whether dancing or listening to the music. Thank you, Mr. Weber and your friends.
