WATERTOWN STREET DIRECTORY.

There are two ways of numbering the houses in a street. Either you begin with 1 and number the houses consecutively, or you begin with a base number and allow consecutive 100s for every block. This latter way is called the Philadelphia system, and Watertown is supposed to have this system, but our system is certainly faulty. All the houses south of a given street, for instance, ought to commence with the same number. Thus the corner houses south of Western avenue and on the west side of the streets ought all to be 800. That is correct for Fifth, Seventh, etc., but in Twelfth street the numbers south of Western avenue curiously begin with 600. Then, secondly, distances ought readily to be estimated by this system. Thus 720 Third street would be about six or seven blocks from the base, and really is in Watertown. But 720 Milford street is three or four times as far away from the base. Thirdly, the base number ought to be uniform—either 1 or 100. Our system has both base numbers. For streets running north and south Main and West Main are the dividing streets, and the base number is 100. For streets running east and west the river and the boundary line between the Fifth and Sixth wards form the base; but east of the river the base number is 1 and west of it 100. Without knowing this fact, one can not tell if a house bearing the number 700 is six or seven blocks from the base.
