Your money will be invested in the safest security—namely, conservative mortgages on real estate.

You own these mortgages

No loan is made by us until the application has been considered from every point of view.

1. The security must be at least double the amount of the loan.
2. The character and ability of the borrower must be good.
3. The title must be found perfect by a competent attorney.

The matter of security is not left to the judgment of any one man. Every application for a loan is presented every Friday to our Executive Committee and must have the unanimous approval of these men, all of whom have been loaning their own money on real estate for many years.

In only such carefully considered mortgages are your funds invested.

When a man is thirty and married

This, in brief, is the business history of a good many thousand college men:

THEY make rather successful starts in business; for the first few years their progress seems entirely satisfactory to them. They are unmarried, independent, and their incomes are ample for their individual needs.

Then they marry, and in their early thirties the conviction comes to them that they are not making as rapid progress as they ought.

The expenditure crowds ever closer to the income; they see men passing them, sometimes unaccountably; the job that had seemed hardly more than a game before, becomes suddenly a serious problem—often never fully solved.

The solution of 75,000 successful men

It is at that period, and at that age, that college men turn in large numbers to the Alexander Hamilton Institute.

The average age of the 75,000 men enrolled in the Institute's Modern Business Course and Service in the past ten years is over thirty; eighty-five per cent of them are married.

In other words they are no longer boys, but men, realizing keenly that the highest positions in business are open only to men who have an all-round knowledge of the fundamentals that underly all business; and that such knowledge is gained only by training.

That the Alexander Hamilton Institute can and does give this training is proved by the record of the 75,000 successful men who have enrolled themselves in it.

Advisory Council

Read over these names of the men who make up the Advisory Council of the Institute:

Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank of New York; John Hays Hammond, the eminent engineer; Jeremiah W. Jenks, the statistician and economist, General Coleman duPont, the well-known business executive and Joseph French Johnson, Dean of the New York University School of Commerce.

13,000 of the 75,000 men who have enrolled with the Institute are corporation presidents—a testimony to the scope and authority of the Institute's Course and Service.

Investigation is easy

This advertisement is addressed to two classes of men. To young men first—in their twenties and thirties and early forties—who are asking themselves "Where am I going to be in business ten years from now?"

There is an answer to that question in "Forging Ahead in Business" the Institute's 112-page book. It is free; entirely without obligation; and well worth an evening of any man's time. Send for it.

The second man to whom this is addressed is the older alumnus to whom young men are constantly coming for advice about their future. If you are such a man, you should know enough about the Institute to be able to speak helpfully concerning it; you should know what it has done for 75,000 other men.

Your name on the coupon will bring you "Forging Ahead in Business." Let us send you your copy now.

Plan to visit your Alma Mater, June 22-25, 1919. While the classes of the "fours" and the "nines" hold their regular reunions this year, graduates and former students of every class will be especially welcome at Wisconsin this first Commencement season after the war. Though a complete program is not yet Return June 22-25 ready, you may feel assured that a particularly fitting and well-worth-while program is in the making. Some class committees too, have been unavoidably delayed in formulating reunion plans quite as early this year as has been possible during some previous years. Many committees are, however, already actively at work. Indications are that there will be a record-breaking attendance of returning graduates and former students at Madison this year.

During Commencement we shall have our first opportunity to unite in rendering public honor to the courageous sons of Wisconsin who have so recently died in the service of our Country. This time too, will offer to most of us the first privilege to meet and greet a large number of Wisconsin's sons, who, having recently served their Country, have now returned to us again. Peace times, with all their joys, their privileges and responsibilities, place upon you the pleasant responsibility of returning to your Alma Mater during the Commencement season. Come home in June! Don't wait for a special invitation. Be assured that classmates and friends will be here in large numbers this June, 1919. Come home this year! Return this Commencement season if you never returned before. Let's have a record-breaking Commencement gathering. You know how pleasant it will be to revive your University ideals, renew your University friendships, extend your University acquaintances. A journey to Madison will be a pleasure, which will enable you the better to understand the great University and therefore, the better to serve in helping solve her new and ever increasing problems.

To a very large extent, the successful future of every university rests in the intelligent public interest of its own graduates and former students. You already know much of the real needs, the real purposes and the real responsibilities of your University. Come home in June and extend this knowledge. Bring back to the University the benefits of your individual experience. Observe for yourself. Discuss with others. Come that you may find how to do your part in supporting the enlarged ideals and increasing responsibilities of the University of Wisconsin.

It is unnecessary to urge you to come to have a good time. Every effort will be made to provide a good time for you, and you, of course, will bring a good time and a welcome with you. Make your plans now to return to Madison, June 22-25, 1919.

One of the easiest ways of maintaining a spirit of intelligent, enthusiastic interest in the affairs of your Alma Mater is to return during the Commencement seasons as frequently as your time and purse permit. Come June 22-25, 1919! It will be worth while.

More than 8,000 names are already included on the student-faculty war record of the University. The figures are as follows:

War Record "The S. A. T. C. enrolled 2,250 men in Section A and trained four detachments of Section B men, numbering respectively 401, 510, 550 and 700. The University sent approximately 520 men into the navy, 2,800 into the army, 140 in unclassified government service. Of the faculty, 180 left the institution for war work, of whom 100 engaged in unclassified government service and 80 were commissioned. Of the students, approximately 1,200 received commissions in army and navy. Including both sections of the S. A. T. C., about 7,800 men entered from or through the University into the military or naval service. In addition, 100 faculty members and 140 students were in government employ in non-combatant service. The total is over 8,000."

The Army and Navy recruited 152 officers and men from the instructional staff of the University of Wisconsin. Of these, 55 were sent overseas. Of the 152 men who left their teaching to enter military service, nine were majors, 29 were captains, 58 lieutenants, 10 sergeants, two corporals, two ensigns, and 42 privates or of unknown rank. One enlisted in the Canadian army and another in the French army. Four Red Cross nurses, 10 other Red Cross workers, six Y. M. C. A. workers, and two Y. W. C. A. workers were also recruited from the University staff. A total of about 455 men and women on the staff engaged in at least one definite piece of war work. Of these a large number resigned or secured leave of absence to devote their entire time to war work, in civilian or military capacity. Some 57 worked for the food administration, 75 gave patriotic lectures, 22 wrote war pamphlets, 23 were instructors in army camps or schools, 14 engaged in industrial war work, 7 in government medical work and 41 in other government work of various kinds.

These figures, which are confined to students and faculty, make no attempt to include graduates.

THE FUTURE OF THE AMERICAN UNIVERSITY UNION

By FIRST LT. HARRY A. BULLIS, '17

Is the American University Union in Europe of the future to be merely a simple and comfortable club for American college men in several of the great educational centers, simply reproducing some of the features of American college life, or is it to become a real university union, which will bind together all the universities of the world, and bring about an interchange of intellectual ideas and a better understanding of one country with another?

The present constitution of the American University Union in Europe says: "The general object of the Union shall be to meet the needs of American university and college men and their friends who are in Europe for military or other service in the cause of the Allies, and to serve as a bond between the universities of America and those of European nations, especially by encouraging and advancing the welfare of American students at the representative universities of France, Great Britain and Italy, in such ways as the trustees may see fit."

The first half of this clause deals with the Union as a war measure, and expresses its main original object. In the earlier constitution, this clause comprised all of that part treating of the objects of the Institution and was stated in the first printed catalogue as follows:

1. To provide at moderate cost a home with the privileges of a simple club for American college men and their friends passing through Paris or on furlough; the privileges to include information bureau, writing and newspaper room, library, dining room, bed rooms, baths, social features, opportunities for physical recreation, entertainments, medical advice, etc.

2. To provide a headquarters for the various bureaus already established or to be established in France by representative American universities, colleges, and technical schools.

3. To cooperate with these bureaus when established, and in their absence to aid institutions, parents, or friends, in securing information about college men in all forms of war service, reporting upon casualties, visiting the sick and wounded, giving advice, serving as a means of communication with them, etc.

All of these objects the Union has fulfilled very excellently, except that the Army has provided the medical service, and the Red Cross has furnished information regarding casualties; but, with the removal of the American Army from foreign soil, these immediate war purposes will cease to exist.

What then does its supplementary object, which has been incorporated in the Constitution sometime between the printing of the first catalogue in 1917, and the printing of the second catalogue in October, 1918, mean? Does the phrase "to serve as a bond between the universities of America and those of European nations, especially by encouraging the attendance and advancing the welfare of American students at the representative universities of France, Great Britain and Italy, in such ways as the trustees may see fit" signify that the Union is to be chiefly a club, a temporary lodging-house, and a bureau of information for the use of students? The practical application of this interpretation would prove disastrous. Such an institution would attract only the least enterprising of American students in foreign countries, because the most enterprising of them would wish to live and mingle almost constantly with the foreigners in order to acquire and experience the real atmosphere of the country. An American student in the University of Paris would not go to the University Union to learn the French language and the French customs; he would rent a room in a French home and spend the greater portion of his time among Frenchmen. American college men touring foreign countries would not care to spend any large amount of their leisure hours in American club-houses abroad. Again, the main activity of a Union conceived almost wholly on the club-plan would center only in several of the large cities of Europe, and American students or college men in other foreign cities would receive no benefits from such an organization. As a bureau of information, the work of the Union would not be particularly valuable to a college man, because all leading foreign governments maintain excellent bureaus of information of their own. The French and British governments, especially, publish comprehensive catalogues dealing with the higher educational institutions of their countries, and these are easily available to any student. Information concerning educational institutions in foreign lands should be supplied to the student in America by qualified professors who have visited and studied in these countries, and the student should not be

Since the interpretation of the phrase stating the object of the University Union is placed in the hands of the Board of Trustees, the question naturally arises "Is the Board of Trustees a representative body of the American institutions of learning?" Apparently, Anson Phelps Stokes, chairman of the Board of Trustees, and secretary of Yale University, believes that it is. He says, in his report to the Board of Trustees of October 7, 1918, "The Constitution has been amended during the year so as to make the number of trustees 'not to exceed fifteen.' It is believed to be representative of American universities of learning, and now that the success of its undertaking has been assured, it is hoped that friends may be forthcoming who will provide the Board with sufficient gifts of endowment to insure the permanency of its work."

Article VI of the Constitution provides:

The final responsibility and authority for the affairs of the Union shall be vested in a Board of Trustees of fifteen members, each of whom shall be a graduate of one of the institutions cooperating in supporting this Union, and not over two of whom shall have received their first degree from the same institution. Of these trustees, three shall be elected at the organization meeting. These shall have power to add three others to their number. Three members of the Board of Trustees shall be appointed, one each by the president of the University Club of New York City, the chairman of the Red Cross War Council, and the chairman of the Army and Navy Committee of the International Y. M. C. A., respectively. The remaining members of the Board shall be elected by the Board of Trustees. Each elected trustee shall be subject to the approval of the president of the university with which he is affiliated. Should any of those asked to name a trustee fail to act within a month of the time when invitations are extended, the trustees who have qualified may, at any duly called meeting, fill the vacancies. Vacancies among the elected trustees shall also be filled by election of the Board; other vacancies by appointment as indicated. Six members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

The foregoing article of the Constitution points out that three members of the Board of Trustees shall be elected at the organization meeting. These three appoint three others, making a total of six. The six members, in company with three members appointed, one each by the president of the University Club of New York City, the chairman of the Red Cross War Council, and the chairman of the Army and Navy Committee of the International Y. M. C. A., respectively, elect the remaining six members of the Board of Trustees. Since the Board of Trustees appoint and control the seven members of the Executive Committee, the Constitution clearly shows that the three members appointed at the organization meeting of the Union may control the Board of Trustees and the Executive Committee, thereby making it possible for one institution, or small group of institutions, to administer the affairs and shape the policy of the University Union, and to use it for a fifth wagon wheel in Europe. At the present time, the chairman of the Board of Trustees and the director of the University Union, who is also the chairman of the Executive Committee, are from the same institution.

The American University Union in Europe was started as a war measure in the summer of 1917. Two movements apparently led to its establishment in Europe: (1) The organization of the American University Alumni Association in France at Paris, June 17, 1917, by representatives of Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Williams, and (2) the establishment of the Yale Bureau in Paris, which was formally authorized in May, 1917.

As an American university social center, club and war organization, the Union has carried on an excellent work through its Paris headquarters and branches in London and Rome. At the present time, our own Prof. Carl Russell Fish is director of the London branch. Over fourteen universities and colleges have subscribed an annual membership fee of $500, twenty-six colleges an annual membership fee of $250, and ninety-two colleges a fee of $100. The University of Wisconsin is included in the first class.

In January of this year, the interests of the Maison des Etudiants were merged with those of the American University Union in Europe, by a vote of the executive committees of both organizations. The original committee of the Maison des Etudiants was composed of a small group of American university men in Paris. The Municipal Council of Paris presented to this original committee, before the entry of the United States into the war, a small piece of ground between the University of Paris and the Ecole des Beaux-Arts as a site for a building to serve as a centre for American students in Paris, and American educational interests in general in France. In the merger, a holding company to hold the land was formed of individuals belonging to either of the two associations and living in France, in accordance with French law. This explains the newspaper reports circulated in America that the American University Union in Europe has a permanent home in Paris.

There is nothing exciting in the fact that the French have given a small piece of land in Paris for the erection of an American club-house. Financial reasons alone would justify such an act. It is fortunate that no hasty action can be taken in erecting a club building. The price of material and labor is now so high in France that no construction could be undertaken for three or four years.

In the meantime, what should be the plans and objects of the American University Union in Europe of the future? The most reasonable and logical solution for settling the whole matter appears to be that advanced by Prof. William T. Brewster of Columbia University, associate director of the American University Union in Europe. Professor Brewster says: "The future of the American University Union in Europe is something for the American universities to decide, and until they have decided, there should be no definite steps taken to commit the universities to any policy. The universities should look at the thing in a broad way; they should look at it from the top. The wisest heads of America should consider the matter; they should confer with the university authorities of England, France and Italy, and the scheme evolved should result in a real University Union among the civilized countries of the world which would develop a better understanding of mutual interests. Instead of 'The American University Union in Europe,' the title should be 'The University Union,' and the organization should have centres in Paris, London, Rome, New York and other cities. When this is done, then the club, bureau, and exchange features will take care of themselves. This, of course, is merely my personal opinion, but I very much hope that the trustees and the American Association will look at the matter in this way."

The writer agrees with Professor Brewster that the future of The American University Union in Europe should be considered by a congress of representatives of each large university and college in America, and in this congress the University of Wisconsin, as representing one of the largest and sanest universities in the country, should certainly have a part in saying what should be done. If a representative of the University of Wisconsin is not asked to attend such a congress, then the Alumni Association and the University authorities should find out the reason for not being invited and should request representation. A committee of this American Congress should meet with the committees of similar congresses held in each of the leading civilized nations, and an international congress of the most representative university intellectuals in the world should evolve a real university union idea, based upon the interests of living scholarship, which would join the universities of America with the universities of every civilized country in the world.

The purpose of the League of Nations is to bind all nations together for the avoidance of war, but that purpose will fail unless the peoples of every nation have a greater understanding of their mutual interests and obligations with the peoples of every other nation, and such an understanding can be brought about only by a scheme of international education. A union of the universities of the world, maintaining active branches in every civilized nation for the purpose of doing everything possible to stimulate international education, would throw the light of the torch of learning to the peoples of every country, and would awaken them to a sense of their mutual obligations and interests.

The little career, excellent as it is, which the American University Union in Europe has already achieved, is not important compared with the larger, grander, possible career that a university union is capable of realizing. The University of Wisconsin should take the lead in bringing about this larger possible Union. Why stop at an American University Union in Europe which will be merely a club, an information bureau, and a temporary lodging house for American college students? Why not fulfill all of the possibilities, and put into practical operation a real university union which will bind together all the universities of the world, and bring about an interchange of intellectual ideas and a better understanding of one country with another?

Note.—Lieutenant Bullis, who is in Paris, San. Corps, U. S. A., Bureau of Accounts, O. F. O., A. P. O. 702. Amer. E. F., kindly wrote this article at the request of the Alumni Headquarters.

AMERICANIZATION IN INDUSTRY

By A. A. NIGOSIAN, '13

I read the recommendation of the Board of Visitors in the November issue of the ALUMNI MAGAZINE with greatest interest and satisfaction. Article four, urging the University to develop a course which will train workers in Americanization, and extend the work of Americanizing our fortion. Moreover, not only our foreign-born friends, but our American friends as well, need a clearer concept of the term Americanism.

Americanism is a new philosophy of life; a life of utilitarian idealism, if you please. Americanization, therefore, is conversion of both American and foreign born into this new life. But as the ultimate value of any philosophy of life is judged through its application, so our philosophy of Americanism and Americanization will be judged by its results. Therefore, we will be a pragmatist in defining and estimating the value of Americanism, and follow the standard of the greatest of all pragmatists who, two thousand years ago, said, "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Teaching English to foreigners is only a primary step in the process of Americanization; but it is so vital in its consequences that we have to face it as a special educational problem. Dispensing general education is the function solely of the public school; but a special education, as Americanization, concerns the industries as well as every organized institution in the community. Much misunderstanding, economic, and social discontent will be avoided if employers and employees can be brought nearer to each other; and the most effective channel to serve this purpose will be the establishment of a bureau of education in each industry employing, say, over five hundred men.

"The future of American democracy is the future of the American wage earner," says John R. Commons. Charles Schwab says: "We are facing another social situation which we should be keenly alive to; a situation which is going to come at the close of the war; social renaissance of the whole world. Class it socialism, ign-born friends, is in perfect harmony with the Wisconsin spirit, which was always interpreted to be identical with the spirit of democracy and progressiveness.

Americanization received a new meaning and intensity, as a result of present-day world conditions, and if we aim to meet the present-day problems as they are, it requires a practical application of our American ideals. However, any thinking American—as a matter of fact, any thinking foreigner, will ask you to define your terms when you approach him on the subject of Americanism and Americaniza-social revolution, or, what we will, it is a leveling process, and means that the workman is going to be the man who will dominate the world. It is going to be a great hardship to the owners of property, but, like all revolutionary movements, it will probably work good. The sooner we realize it, the better it will be for America. We must not fight this movement, but we must educate it."

Here, in brief contrast, is a picture of our new American democracy as it is seen by a great educator and a friend of the workingman, and one of the captains of American industry. It is just as real a picture as can be seen by any one who observes our social, economic and political forces at work. The question of the hour, therefore, is more than "Why to Ameri-canize"—it is "How to Americanize." However, limitation of space forbids me to touch any phase of this second question. Two years of arduous labor, in the way of Americanizing thirty-five different nationalities, employed in one of the largest American industries, strengthened my belief that this work is worth doing, and can be done. If you have any doubts about it, come and see. The need of the hour, however, is to multiply, indefinitely, the number of industries and communities devoting their unceasing effort to this greatest of all causes. It should not be confined within the boundary lines of a state nor of a nation; neither should it consider any physical limit or boundary. Our task is greater than Americanizing America—it is to Americanize the world.

COMMENCEMENT

On account of the expense and labor required at this time in reaching the Alumni in the interest of a new Alumni Directory, it has not been thought advisable or necessary to send to the Alumni, in June, the booklet giving the details of the exercises of Commencement Week. The following preliminary announcement is deemed sufficient:

COMMENCEMENT WEEK

- June 22, Sunday, Baccalaureate Address
- June 23, Monday, Class Day Exercises
- June 24, Tuesday, Alumni Day
- June 25, Wednesday, Commencement Day

The Baccalaureate Address will be given by a distinguished and brilliant Canadian jurist and scholar, Justice William Renwick Riddell, of Toronto.

The Alumni Dinner and other Alumni functions will be made as attractive as possible. President Birge will be at the Alumni Dinner to tell of the unusual experiences of the year, and doubtless many of our boys will be back from the battlefields of Europe, and will have something to say.

The Alumni may feel assured that unusual efforts will be put forth this year to make the Commencement home-coming pleasant, profitable, and inspiring.

THE COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC FUNCTIONS.

WISCONSIN ALUMNI CLUBS

"Sit together, listen together, sing together, eat together, and talk together, and you'll work together"

LOS ANGELES

By W. F. ADAMS, '00

A banquet of the alumni and alumnae associations was held at the University Club in Los Angeles, Feb. 27. The banquet was arranged in honor of Regent Theodore Hammond. About seventy graduates and former students attended, including Theodore Kanouse, '58, and William Powers of the class of '60.

Mr. Hammond spoke to us concerning the work of the University and some of its future plans. We who are at such a great distance from Madison appreciate, in a high degree, news from the University, and the message from it as conveyed by Mr. Hammond. We hope that the practice will be established of sending an official University representative to the cities of the Pacific Coast at least once a year.

Others appearing on the program were: Lloy Galpin, '99; Ethel Shatto, '10; Paul Watrous, ex '06, and Theodore Kanouse. Louis Meyers, '93, Presiding Judge of the Los Angeles Superior Court, acted as toastmaster.

MINNEAPOLIS

By E. J. FESSLER, '06

The Minneapolis U. W. Club held its third monthly meeting of the year, Thursday, March 6, at Dayton's Tea Room, 12:15 P. M.

Prof. G. S. Ford, '95, Dean of the Graduate School of the U. of Minnesota, gave a splendid talk on "The Fight for Public Opinion." Professor Ford has just returned from Washington, D. C., where he was chairman of the educational division of the Committee on Public Information. Twenty-five alumni were present.

NEW YORK

By O. V. THIELE, '08

The U. W. Club held a luncheon on Thursday, Feb. 11, at which a campaign was started to arouse more interest, and a more regular attendance on the part of the Wisconsin men in New York. Thirteen Wisconsin grads were present.

The Club held a special luncheon at Stewart's Restaurant, 30 Park Place, Wednesday noon, March 20. Corydon Purdy, '85, prominent engineer, addressed us.

PHILADELPHIA

By ERNEST F. RICE, '08

Wisconsin alumni residing in Philadelphia and vicinity celebrated Foundation Day with a banquet at Kugler's Restaurant on Saturday evening, Feb. 15. Of course, we sang all the good, old songs and listened to the wild doings of undergraduate days from freshman rushes to senior commencements.

We were very fortunate in having with us Florence Bascom, '82, now of the faculty of Bryn Mawr College, who gave us an intimate picture of the University during the days when her illustrious father was President.

Then came Charles Parlin, '93, of the Curtis Publishing Company, who showed us that class politics in his day were no different from ours. Other interesting facts that he brought out were that football was then in its infancy, and that debating was the chief sport on which the rival factions bet their last shirt and other valuable things.

The Reverend Dr. Macartney, '01, spoke on that portion of the history of the University covered by his undergraduate days, and Mrs. Frederick Corbus (Florence Ketchum, '01) told us about her wide acquaintance in Madison, which was her home until she married.

Taken all together, we had a wonderful time, and decided to devote Foundation Day every year to a recital of the history of our beloved Alma Mater.

SALT LAKE CITY

By LILLIAN WALL, '17

Monday, Feb. 24, was a "red letter day" for the pioneer Badgers of Utah, when they gathered for a banquet at the University Club in Salt Lake City, to hear Regent Hammond tell of the glorious part old Wisconsin has played in the war.

It has been many a long day since we have had any direct word from the University, and we certainly enjoyed and appreciated the inspiring speech of Mr. Hammond. Every one agreed enthusiastically with Mr. Short, ex '00, when he said, "I wish the University would send us a missionary often."

Judge Armstrong, '91, showed real Wisconsin pep as toastmaster, and was cheered again and again when he told interesting tales of the good old days when Dean Birge, '15, held sway in South Hall, and dismissed his classes when baseball rumblings floated up from the lower campus; but he received his greatest applause when he expressed the wish that Dean Birge might be persuaded to accept permanently the office of President of the University. Alumni who attended the meeting were: Judge Armstrong, '91; A. R. Anderson, '00;

G. H. Short, ex '00; Dr. D. L. Barnard, '03; G. W. Crane, '13; R. D. Harriman, '14; R. A. Pallansch, '15; Capt. E. M. Price, ex '13; A. E. Christensen, '13; W. T. Runzler, '03; Marion Marshall, '16; and Lillian Wall, '17. Some of our most prominent alumni were unable to attend the party; but we hope to have another soon at which W. W. Armstrong, '87, Food Administrator of Utah, Judge William Bradley, '83, and Judge Armstrong will tell us about the early history of the University. We are few in numbers out here in the West, and we love the University with the "old love;" but feel our spirit for the West in the poem:

"Men look to the East for the dawning things,
For the light of the rising sun;
But they look to the West, the crimson West,
For the things that are done, are done.

* * *
There in the East, we dreamed the dreams,
Of the things we hoped to do;
But here in the West, the crimson West,
The dreams of the East come true."

WASHINGTON

By FRED ESCH, '07

On Feb. 11, we, in Washington, celebrated Foundation Day with a dinner attended by over ninety alumni. Immediately after we were seated, Prof. P. W. Dykema led off with, "If you want to be a Badger," followed by numerous other Wisconsin songs. The enthusiasm with which everyone joined in the singing was such as only true Badgers can display. The singing, however, was only one expression of the true Wisconsin spirit which prevailed the entire gathering.

The chairman of the evening was Maj. Walter Alexander, '97, whose presence in Washington these past months we have greatly enjoyed. He is always ready to help in Wisconsin activities.

Mr. Alexander introduced as speaker, Interstate Commerce Commissioner Balthasar Meyer, '94, who reviewed the historical development of the University, pointing out that its roots extend as far back as the charter of 1787, establishing the Northwest Territory. He expressed the wish, in which we all join, that someone will before long write a history of the University.* The enthusiasm which he expressed for Wisconsin, the purpose and work of the University, and something more than enthusiasm, which perhaps cannot be described in words, and is expressed only by personal contact, made us feel very close to our Alma Mater. In fact it seemed as though, through him, the University was reaching out to us with sympathetic interest and encouragement. One may say that Mr. Meyer typifies the spirit of the University, and it was, therefore, natural that we should, upon this occasion, have asked him to speak. It is needless to add that we had a delightful evening. Each of us felt how good it is to be a Badger.

*J. F. A. Pyre, '94, is at work on such a history.

ATHLETICS

By T. E. JONES

The Wisconsin Basketball season of 1918-19 closed on Saturday, March 15. The Cardinals have done much to retrieve their early record, by brilliant playing in their last two games, winning at Chicago on March 8, by a score of 25 to 15, and losing by two points to Iowa on the following Monday evening. The Iowa-Wisconsin game was one of the fastest played this season, the score being tied until within a few seconds of the finish, when Nicalous of Iowa, by a lucky shot from the middle of the floor, gave the victory to Iowa. The work of "Red" Weston was one of the features of this game, and in making his selection of an All-conference team, Coach Lowman gave him the R. G. position, as the most aggressive fighter on offense and defense in the "Big Ten." This fighting spirit has made Weston a factor in the team since his first appearance at Minneapolis on January 18. It is "Red's" first season in Varsity basketball, though he won his "W" in football as end on the 1916 eleven.

The Track team lost the first indoor meet to Notre Dame by a three-point score on March 8. The meet proved to be closer than the most optimistic supporter had hoped, since the "flu" and scholastic difficulties did their best, in the way of a handicap, by keeping six of the veterans out of the competition. Wisconsin led up to the final event—the mile relay—when one of the runners slipped and fell in the first lap of the race, thereby losing more than his team mates could make up, though they cut down the distance considerably. Among the surprises of the meet was the victory of Reed over Gilfillan in the 40-yard hurdles and one of the features of the afternoon was the work of Kayser in the 440-yard dash. Though this is his first Varsity competition, Kayser ran a beautiful race, making the best time of the day.

It must have been something of a jolt to the old Annex to see the first place in the shot won by a put of 37½ ft., and a sigh went up from the bleachers for the days of Arlie Mucks. It is certain that the entire standard of athletics will be considerably higher another year. Many of our old track men, who are now in the Service, have signified their intention of returning to school; and these men, with the strong freshman team of this year, ought to make up a team that would measure up to the old Wisconsin standards.

Elaborate plans had been made for the annual "W" Dance and Relay Carnival, and prospects were bright for a record attendance, when the "flu" ban settled down darkly over all activities of this nature. The committee in charge of this event have worked hard to make it a success, but must content themselves now by telling of the glories that might have been. However, the powers that be, permit the Relay Races to be run. Among the special features of the Relay Carnival this year are the Inter-high School Relay Race, and the contest for the Arlie Mucks Trophy, a perpetual trophy for the winner of the shot put. (See Classes 1917.)

leading. The Medic fraternity has a strong team, and popular opinion seems to give them advantage—still, there have been larger dope buckets than those of a frat league upset.

Wisconsin will wind up her season of indoor sport with the Western Inter-state High School Basketball Tournament, which is to be held on Friday and Saturday, March 21 and 22. The members of the Athletic Department have been bending every effort to make this first meet—which they hope to make an annual affair—a success, and they have been ably assisted by student committees. The tournament is to decide the championship in High School basketball of the Central West, and the champions of Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin have been invited.

The track and swimming teams will be represented at the Indoor Conference at Evanston, March 21 and 22.

BOOK NOTES

Brief reviews of writings by Wisconsin students, alumni, and faculty.

The College: Yesterday and Tomorrow, by F. W. Roe, professor of English, is the title of an interesting article appearing in the February issue of Scribner's. Dean Roe discusses the changes in American undergraduate institutions during the past 20 years, and the effects which war and reconstruction will have on the college of the future.

Whimsy, a poem by Lt. T. E. M. Hefferan, ex '18, who died in service at Chateau-Thierry, is featured in the Wisconsin Literary Magazine for February. The same issue carries a reprint of an article on William Ellery Leonard from a recent Bookman, which should be of interest to those of us who are watching the greater poets of America today.

Property and Society, by Andrew A. Bruce, '90, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Dakota, is an interesting discussion concerning legal and social concepts of property. (A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago, 1916, price 60c.) "The ideal underlying the book is the expression of legal concepts and economic dicta in terms of human life. The author shows clearly that there is no liberty except under the law and that the real foundation for the right of private property is that, on the whole, it has made for progress as evidenced by the widespread belief in the social efficacy of personal ownership. Private rights are, however, subsidiary to public welfare or public necessity. Over against individualism the author emphasizes the necessity of collectivism, and thus recognizes the truth of the maxims that 'the public welfare is the highest law' and that 'one must so use his own as not to injure that of another.' The book emphasizes a healthy balance which preserves the advantages of private initiative and individual reward on the one hand and social action for the general good on the other. An interesting conclusion is that better customs and enlightened public opinion are more valuable than formulated law. This book is provocative of thought, and shows that the social implications of the science of economics are being recognized and that one lawyer, at least, believes that property was made for man and not man for property."—G. M. J.

The Reeducation of the Blinded Soldier, by Mrs. Emma Kasparek England, '18, is the title of a very interesting and helpful pamphlet reprinted from the American Journal of Clinical Medicine, Chicago. Mrs. England says in part: "Everything that mind can conceive is being done to bring together the blinded soldiers, in order to care for them and teach them to overcome their handicap, so that they may be happy and useful members of society. The problem is new, and a new science of dealing with it is being brought into service."

DEATHS

T. S. MORRIS, '00, president of the T. S. Morris Paper Co., president of the Madison General Hospital Association, president of the John Muir Walking Club, and otherwise prominently identified with Madison activities, died at his home, March 4, of double pneumonia. It was through Mr. Morris that the boulder, marking Muir Knoll on the upper campus, was placed last year at Commencement, when he made the presentation address.

Mrs. J. SHAFF (Gladys Melick, ex '09), died recently of pneumonia, following influenza, at her home in Clinton, Ia.

MANVILLE HENDRICKSON, '13, died recently in Seattle, Wash.

JOHN H. SAVAGE, Jr., '13, vice-president and treasurer of the Cleveland Electro-Metals Company, Cleveland, Ohio, died Jan. 16, of influenza after a six-days' illness. He was widely known in his particular branch of the industry, and a remarkable future was promised for him.

MRS. C. W. STUART (Esther Jensen, '17), died of influenza, Dec. 29, at her home in Detroit.

LT. EDWARD GARNSEY, ex '18, football "W" man on the 1916 eleven, was killed in an air fight with several boche machines a few days before the signing of the armistice, according to news received by Coach Jones.

KENNETH EARLE, ex '21, died of influenza, in February, at the University, where he was an instructor in the Naval Student Army Corps.

FACULTY

PROF. WILLIAM BLACK, formerly of the University, who for the last two years was connected with the Steam and Gas Engineering Department at the U. of Colorado, Boulder, died recently from the effects of an operation.

PROF. P. C. BING, '17, of the U. of Minnesota, and formerly professor of journalism at Wisconsin, died of influenza at Minneapolis, Feb. 24. While at Wisconsin, Professor Bing wrote a textbook on the country newspaper and its problems, entitled The Country Weekly, the first extensive treatment of the subject.

Dean F. R. Graves, of the School of Education, U. of Penn., gave two illustrated lectures, "The Evolution of Our Universities," and "Great English Public Schools," March 5 and 6, in University Hall. Dean Graves is the author of a number of valuable books on the history of education and on classical subjects.

The semester plan will be followed by over 60 per cent of the colleges and universities of the country next year. Many objections have been made to the quarter plan tried at Wisconsin last year.

Hon. A. P. Nelson, regent of the University, now represents the 11th district of Wisconsin in the House of Representatives.

Courses in English Language and Literature is the title of a helpful bulletin for correspondence study just issued by the Extension Department.

A vivid reminder of the remarkable winter of '81, in the Northwest, has been given to the Historical Library by E. A. Kimberly of Janesville, in the form of a collection of Dakota newspapers issued during the storm blockade. Dakota editors, improving upon the example of the Vicksburg editor of the Citizen, who used wall paper during the siege of '63, used both blank and flowered sides of the paper, and even resorted to grocers' wrapping paper to get out their publications.

A gift of $1,000 from the Newport Chemical Works, Milwaukee, has been accepted, on recommendation of President Birge, to be used in furthering research along the lines of synthesis of new remedies.

The Junior Victory Prom has been postponed until April 25.

Capt. John McNeil, of the first Canadian army, talked on his front-line experiences at an all-University convocation held the last week in February. Captain McNeil, who is at present pastor of one of the largest churches in Canada, was in action at the battles of Vimy Ridge, Hill No. 70, and Paschendale Ridge.

A pamphlet, which discusses the practicability of a League of Nations, has been issued by the Extension Division. Both sides of the question are thoroughly presented.

Two students, M. Bahadan and B. H. Khoorshid, whose home is in Hyderabad, Deccan, India, have recently entered the University on the recommendation of other Indian students and by English professors in their own colleges, they state. They will specialize in agriculture.

Forty alumni, fighting with the American forces in Russia, recently cabled the Liberty Badger to hold space for material. They are the same men who, in November, assembled for a Wisconsin homecoming in the Arctic and who put out a special homecoming edition of the Cardinal.

Cadets, enrolling for the proposed R. O. T. C., will receive 40 cents a day, according to Maj. J. S. Woods, who is organizing the unit. Officers may expect to receive more than that.
