GETTING READY FOR SATURDAY

LYMAN GIVES THE TEAM SEVERE PRACTICE.

A CLOSE AND EXCITING GAME EXPECTED.

Men Not Yet Selected—Kull Again in Training—The Candidates.

As the season advances and it approaches the time for the first scheduled game, the interest in foot-ball necessarily increases. Each afternoon sees every aspirant for grid-iron honors upon the lower campus and the real progress that has been accomplished during the past week by the efficient coaching of Lyman and Stickney is very noticeable, especially among the new men.

The practice this afternoon was much severer than usual, it being the object of Capt. Lyman to give the boys a thorough test before Saturday's game with the Chicago Athletic team. As to the result of the coming game it is of course impossible to say; the Chicago Athletics have some very strong men, and their team work has always been good, yet those who ought to know say that the chances are about equal, so that at least a close and exciting game can be looked for. The men who are to play on the University eleven Saturday have not as yet been selected and will probably not be until Friday evening.

Center-rush Kull has finally gone into training and will be in the line next Saturday. It was feared he would not play this season but now that he is out that fear is gone, and the line will undoubtedly be considerably strengthened thereby.

The number of men training for positions on the team has steadily increased from the first, and among the new men in particular, considerable good material has been found. The most promising of the several candidates and the positions for which they are in training is given below:

Centers—Comstock, Kull; guards—Bunge, Thomas, Jacobs, Silverwood; tackles—Bolzendahl, Alexander, Deutscher, Ohnstead, Dudgeon; ends—Voth, Pitmann, Johnson, Mayor, Sheldon; quarter-backs—Perkins, Trautman, Lyman, Montgomery; half-backs—Karel, Nelson, Kaiser; full-backs—Richards, Gregg.

These are not nearly all the men out, but only those whose chances for a position on the team are most promising.

CO-OP. MEETING.

The meeting of the University Co-operative Association, which was called for 5 o'clock at Library Hall yesterday afternoon, did not materialize. Pres. R. A. Elward evidently had more important matters on hand as he did not make his appearance. The members who were present did not think it worth while to remain and soon left the building. Another meeting will soon be announced and it is hoped that everyone interested in the welfare of the Association will be present and make it a success.

CATHOLIC SUMMER SCHOOL.

Committees Working to Have One Located in Madison.

A number of prominent Catholics gathered at St. Patrick's church Sunday evening to discuss the advisability of making an effort to secure a Catholic summer school for Madison. Ex-Assemblyman H. J. Desmond, of Milwaukee, and Mr. Onahan, of Chicago, are, as the Democrat has announced, members of a committee which meets in Chicago soon to select a location for a western summer school similar to the one now conducted at Plattsburg, on Lake Champlain. Mr. Desmond was in Madison last week to arouse local interest and aid local Catholics in making an organized effort to secure the school. As a result of Sunday's meeting two committees were appointed, one to secure additional information as to the nature and workings of such a school, and the other to draft a suitable paper setting forth the advantages of Madison as a location for such an institution. The members of the first committee are M. J. Cantwell, L. B. Murphy and James H. Feeney. The second committee includes M. J. Cantwell, M. K. Reilly and Capt. John Nader. A meeting will be held at St. Patrick's tomorrow evening to hear the report of these committees and to take more definite action in the matter. At Sunday evening's meeting it was the unanimous sense of those present that Madison should be an active and vigorous candidate for the school.

WASHBURN OBSERVATORY.

Washburn Observatory will be open to the public this evening from 7:30 to 9:30. Early in the evening the new moon will be viewed and during the time intervening before the appearance of Mars, the telescope will be turned upon some star selected by those present.

Prof. Comstock will be in charge, as usual, and will explain the many interesting questions which those bodies always bring out.

ON THE STUMP.

A Prohibition Nominee Is Out for Discussion.

The prohibition nominee for superintendent of schools of the eastern district of Dane county, Herbert S. Siggelko, has made appointments to speak at different points in this district.

Mr. Siggelko graduated from the university as a member of the ancient classical course in 1893, taking the degree A. B. He has been teaching at the Wisconsin academy for more than a year. It is his intention to take the degree A. M. next spring.

BALL GAME.

The ball game between the Sophomores and Junior Laws, which was scheduled for Sept. 28, takes place at Randall field this afternoon.

PREPARING FOR MCKINLEY

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF UNIVERSITY REPUBLICANS.

TAYLOR, HARPER AND MAHONEY SPEAK.

A Campaign Sheet Will Be Published—With Elward as Publisher.

Last night the Republican club met to arrange for the fall campaign. The principal business of the evening was to arrange for Gov. McKinley. Long before the meeting was called to order by President G. M. Sheldon the municipal court room was packed to overflowing with enthusiastic republican students. Such an enthusiastic gathering of students has not been seen at the university for a long time. President Sheldon briefly stated the purposes of the meeting. Hon. H. A. Taylor was called upon and aroused the students to the highest pitch of enthusiasm over the good results that will come from the McKinley meeting. S. H. Harper, ex-United States district attorney, and Assemblyman D. H. Mahoney followed Mr. Taylor in rousing addresses to the club. Every effort will be made to have as many people as possible hear the great republican. Reduced rates will be secured on all the railroads coming into Madison, posters will be sent out on all the incoming roads. Students will write to their friends all over the state and the greatest publicity possible will be given. It is expected that many of the clubs through the state will come in a body.

Arrangements will be made with the University Glee club to render several selections on the occasion. The members of the club will have red umbrellas.

Tomorrow the first issue of the "Republican State Ledger," published by the club and official organ of State Association of Republican club will appear. R. R. Elward, '95, is at the head of the paper. Many new men joined the organization. The club is in a thriving condition.

The club adjourned amid deafening cheers for Gov. McKinley.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

The democratic club meets tomorrow evening in the municipal court room. There will be speaking by F. M. Dyer, A. Lees, '95, Bert Coffman, '95, and C. B. Rogers, '95. A large attendance is desired. The meeting will begin at 7 sharp.

JUNIOR LAW MEETING.

The Junior Law Class held a very enthusiastic class meeting in the Law Building at 11 o'clock this morning. As a number of candidates were in the field for the various offices, the election was very exciting and Pat. had a rather anxious hour while it was in progress. Following is a list of those elected:

President, Arthur C. Wilkinson, Madison; vice-president, A. Horace Smith, Mauston; secretary, Franklin C. Bump, Wausau; censor, W. L. Woodward, Madison; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Wm. C. Leitsch, Columbus.

COLLEGE NEWS.

Over eighty candidates are now training for the Harvard crew.

John Clarkson will coach the Harvard base ball team this winter.

The Freshman class at Brown numbers one hundred and forty-six men.

Colby has the largest number of students now since the founding of the college.

Amherst and Smith have opened with the largest number of students in their history.

The faculty of Boston University has decided to allow work on the college paper to count for English in the regular course.

President Schurman recently stated his determination to abolish all hazing at Cornell, and added that, if necessary, he would expel a whole class to enforce this rule.

Princeton has arranged for an elaborate system of training for her football team during the coming fall. All graduates who intend coming there for the purpose of coaching are to be given schedule dates on which to render their services, thus rendering a sufficiency of coaches throughout the entire season.

—The University of Chicago is holding its fall convocation this week.

—A. K. Sedgwick, '95, has returned and will continue his work in the Law School.

—Everyone was pleased to see the familiar figure of "Duke" Campbell on the campus yesterday.

—Thomas Cochran, who speaks tomorrow night at Library hall coached the Minnesota team last week.

—A new monthly will be started at Michigan this year, devoted to the interests of the alumni.

—Lieut. Ed. Chynoweth and family will make their home in the Bowen residence on East Johnson St.

—Lieut. Edward Chynoweth and family will occupy the Bowen house on East Gorham street, near North Carroll.

—W. W. Young, '92, one of the founders of the Daily Cardinal and its first editor-in-chief and recently telegraph editor of the Democrat, is here from the south on his way to New York.

The lecture on football tomorrow evening will be particularly interesting from the popular side. The game will be explained in such a manner by the aid of the stereopticon views that it can be understood by everyone. The lecture should also be attended on account of the financial support which will be given the team.

Next Saturday our eleven will play its first game and then we can judge to a great degree what to expect of them for the later games. Of course in a way it is hard to judge because the Chicago Athletic eleven is an especially strong one and we can hardly expect to make much of a showing against them in our first game. By comparison with the score in last year's game however, we can make some estimate. We hope that the eleven will make a good showing against the veteran Chicago club and that next Saturday may be a first step in a successful season.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Military drill which today cuts such a prominent figure at the university has not always enjoyed the prosperous times with which it is now favored. The department is one of the many results of the Civil war; for the university, opening as it did in the fall of '61, was naturally affected by the general call to arms. A volunteer company of students was organized that very year, and such was the spirit of the times that their drill was well up to that of the regulars at Camp Randall. The act of '61, which reorganized the university, declared that "all able-bodied male students of the university shall receive instruction and discipline in military tactics." A four years' course of study with daily drill in each of the three military branches was prescribed, and provisions were made for the promotion of the best recruits into the regular army.

As no army officer could be found to take charge of the department at once, no regular drill occurred till '68. At that time Col. W. R. Pease, U. S. A., assumed command of the battalion. He had a hard task before him. The war was over and the military enthusiasm of a few years before was gone. No uniforms had as yet been prescribed and the students made it a point to appear at drill in the worst toggery they could resurrect. That one year was enough for Col. Pease and he resigned his position. Prof. D. B. Frankfurter, then an instructor at the university, undertook the pleasant duty of drilling the recruits.

In 1870 Col. W. S. Franklin accepted the appointment, and it was during his stay that the department was re-organized and put into its present condition. A uniform was prescribed and drill was made compulsory only during the first two college years, while tactics were only required of officers. After this all was smooth sailing and the department has had a flourishing existence. Since 1871, the following officers have successively been in charge of the battalion: Maj. Wm. Nicodemus, Prof. Allen D. Conger, Capt. Charles King, Lieut. Geo. N. Chase, Lieut. Lingi Lomia, Lieut. Jas. A. Cole, Lieut. H. J. McGrath and Lieut. Edward Chynoweth, who is now in command.

Up to the fall of '87 there were but two companies, at that time the number was increased to three and the next year, to four. At present there are still four companies, though it is probable that the number will be increased before the close of the year. The erection of the new armory and gymnasium with its ample means for carrying on satisfactory indoor drill, will materially effect the results which the department seeks to obtain, and the prospects are that the U. W. battalion will be in better condition at the close of this year than ever before. The state of Wisconsin may justly feel proud of her student soldiers and everyone should strive to keep up the spirit which inspired the military department at its birth.

MICHIGAN FOOT-BALL.

Michigan will play the following football games this fall:

Oct. 6, Michigan Military Academy, at Ann Arbor.
Oct. 13, Albion, at Ann Arbor.
Oct. 20, Detroit A. C., at Ann Arbor.
Oct. 27, Case Scientific School, at Cleveland.
Nov. 3, Cornell, at Ithaca.
Nov. 10, U. of Kansas, at Kansas City.

Nov. 17, Oberlin, at Ann Arbor.
Nov. 24, Cornell, at Detroit.
Nov. 29, Chicago U., at Chicago.

In addition it is probable that about November 1, there will be one or more home games in the middle of the week.

PERSONAL ALLUSIONS.

The late Sir John Cowell was such an old and tried personal friend of the queen of England that she was more than pleased when he familiarly called her "Vic."

Nashville, Tenn., proposes to erect a monument to General Nathan Bedford Forrest, the cavalry commander. Confederate veterans are raising the needed money.

Commander P. F. Harrington has been detached from special duty in the navy department and detailed as president of the steel inspection board, relieving Captain J. A. Howell.

Ex-Queen Isabella, of Spain, has now been retired, by public request, for twenty-four years. And the morals of her country do not seem to have deteriorated through her absence.

NORTHERN EXPERIENCES.

Ex-President Chamberlin Tells What He Saw and Endured.

From glacier-covered, Greenland Head Professor Thomas C. Chamberlin, of the University of Chicago, late president of the University of Wisconsin, and doubtless the foremost authority on glaciers in the world, returned to this city Monday, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. Of the expedition which he accompanied he gave the following sketch yesterday:
"Though commonly known as the Peary relief expedition its true name was the Peary auxiliary expedition, and that indicates its purpose. It was part of Lieutenant Peary's original plan and was provided for by him at the outset. Its object was to aid him and to bring back his party if their work was finished. Its secondary object was to do such independent scientific work in glacial, geographic and biological lines as was practicable under the circumstances.

"The party was limited to seven, selected from hundreds of applicants. They were: Henry G. Bryant, secretary of the Geographical club of Philadelphia, well known for his explorations in Labrador, who commanded the expedition; Professor William Libbey, Jr., Dr. Guyot's successor at Princeton College, geographer and photographer; Dr. Axel Ohlin, of Sweden (under the patronage of Baron Nordenskjöld), zoologist; H. L. Bridgman, of the Standard Union, Brooklyn, historian; Emil Diebitsch, of Port Royal, S. C. (Mrs. Peary's brother), civil engineer, and Dr. H. E. Wetherell, of Philadelphia, surgeon.

"The party left Brooklyn June 20 on the coasting steamer Portia. The real start was made from St. Johns, Newfoundland, July 7, on the Falcon, a staunch full-timbered sealing steamer, specially fitted for ice work, officered and manned by experienced arctic navigators. We had a quiet, uneventful trip on the North Atlantic, seeing very few icebergs and coming in sight of Greenland on the morning of July 12. We followed the coast northward for more than one thousand miles, stopping at Disco, Iceland, on the 16th, where I first had an opportunity of setting foot on a Greenland glacier. I visited the same glacier forty-eight days later, and this represents the extreme limits of my immediate study of the glaciers. We found much ice in Melville bay and were unable to make the middle passage, but succeeded without serious delay, reaching Cape York July 23, when a short stop was made. On the day following we landed on the Carey islands to look for further information regarding the lost Swedish naturalists, Björling and Kalstenius. We found numerous relics, but no further messages. The bones of one of the party, probably one of the sailors, that had been discovered by the burg master gulls were gathered and reinterred with the burial service.

"On the morning of July 25 the Falcon entered Whale sound, the mouth of Inglefield gulf, our destination, but found it covered with ice still too strong to permit the forcing of a passage. It was the day fixed for our arrival at the prospect of the expedition and had the gulf been open we would have reached Peary's headquarters on schedule time.

"The trip up to this point had been nearly ideal from the standpoint of one who wished to see the realities of the arctic region without suffering much from them. We had some sharp battling with the ice pack, and were beset and nipped by moving floes, but were not very seriously threatened nor long delayed. We saw just enough of the vicissitudes of the region to realize what they might become in their full force, and just enough of the dangers to acquire a wholesome respect for them.

"The vessel being unable to reach Peary's headquarters, work was begun upon the glaciers immediately at hand, and dredging was commenced with excellent results. Communication, however, was soon established over the gulf ice with headquarters, and Lieutenant Peary and several of his party visited the Falcon. August 5th I returned with Lieutenant Peary to his headquarters, by his invitation, and remained his guest until near the time for our return. Meanwhile the Falcon with the rest of the auxiliary party and some of Peary's party went to Ellesmere land and Jones sound for geographical study and for dredging. They found the ice unusually extensive and solid, and their results were necessarily limited. On returning from this trip the Falcon forced her way through the ice to Peary's headquarters, arriving Aug. 20. Aug. 26 the return was begun, a short call at Cape York and stoppages of two days each at Godhaven and Godhaab, the two capitals of Greenland, being made. St. Johns was reached without notable incident Sept. 15, and Philadelphia Sept. 25.

"Lieutenant Peary's headquarters are surrounded by glaciers, some of which are tongues of the great inland ice, while some come from local icecaps. Some reach the sea level and give birth to icebergs, while some terminate on land. Some have gentle slopes and deploy on open ground, while some have steep gradients and crowd through narrow valleys. The great inland icecap is less than three miles distant. The facilities for glacial study are therefore unsurpassed, and one would be indifferent indeed who did not press the work under these surroundings to the full limits of physical endurance.

"The untoward circumstances which turned Lieutenant Peary back from his trip, while so unfortunate for his great undertaking, were very helpful to my small one, for his personal guidance and his wide and intimate knowledge of the ice were of incalculable service to me, as was also the aid rendered by Mr. Baldwin, the meteorologist of his party, who was a nearly constant companion throughout the work."

NICE PLACE CHINA.

In China the parents-in-law bully a wife terribly, and many girls prefer to marriage the shelter of a Buddhist nunnery. Eight girls in 1873 drowned themselves rather than marry. Sometimes they, like the daughters of Danaus and the bride of Lammermoor, prefer to kill their young men. But, as a matter of fact, these cases seem to be the exception, and in novels married people live even rapturously together. This is the ideal. Fond wives slay themselves rather than survive their lords. In poor districts girls are drowned as "bouches inutiles." Just as we see that "No Advertisements" are to be stuck up on a given wall, so by a Chinese pond you may see a notice board: "Girls not to be drowned here." In Pekin there is practically no infanticide. On a rock in Hong Kong harbor a great many dead children and one poor dying infant were discovered two or three years ago. Poverty, of course, is the cause of these abominations.

Albert E. Festale, a guest at a Cincinnati hotel, was found dead in a chair in his room. By his side lay a revolver, telling the tale of suicide. In the right temple there was a wound where the ball had entered, passing out of the top of the head. Festale was ex-President Harrison's butler, and later was manager of a fashionable restaurant in Washington, owned by a widow, to whom he was engaged to be married.

THE AMERICAN UNIVERSITY.

Steady Increase in the Funds for the Project.

Washington, October 1.—Bishop John T. Hurst, chancellor of the projected American university, and Vice Chancellor Samuel L. Beller will return here shortly after extensive trips through the west in furtherance of the establishment of the university. The work of securing funds and preparing for building has progressed systematically at the headquarters here through the summer.

A steady increase in the fund has proceeded through the summer, although the larger subscriptions have been for establishing professorships, while the university officers are anxious to get the buildings before establishing professorships and scholarships. This desire has led to the offer by a wealthy gentleman who does not wish his name used at present, to build the first structure, to be used as an administration building. It is estimated that it will cost from $200,000 to $250,000.

Besides the offer to build the first building, there have been two donations of $100,000 each, one by an Ohio gentleman and the other by a New York lady whose names are withheld. Both of these are for professorships. Mrs. John A. Logan, one of the trustees, has also undertaken to raise a special fund and has set the figure at $1,000,000.
