Thrift Clothing

A contribution can be made by every girl and woman who knows how to sew if they will make the effort to conserve the supply of textiles and other clothing materials by seeing the possibilities in the outgrown or partly worn garments now hanging in closets or stored away. The following suggestions about made-over garments are given with the idea of thrift and economy, whereby the supply of new clothing material may be released for the service of those who necessarily must have strong, warm and new material.

Sewing classes in schools now have the chance, while the enthusiasm for thrift is in the air, to learn to cut by pattern with the added interest of shaping the result into a new article from that which otherwise would be discarded. Cleansing, repairing, remodeling may have the interest of becoming almost a game, the goal of which is to attain new garments from old ones by plotting, planning, twisting and turning until the old yields the new in form and purpose. Hats, cloaks, dresses, men's coats, trousers, overcoats, knit underwear, with accessories such as tape, linings, buttons, hooks and eyes, ribbons, pieces of silk, velvet, cotton goods, buckles, may all contribute to new shapes and designs under the manipulation of fingers in training, directed by the ingenuity of teachers who are stimulated to their best efforts by the present emergency.

Clothing to be made over by school pupils should be sterilized, fumigated, or otherwise thoroughly cleansed before being handled. Health departments or dyeing establishments treat effectively large collections of clothing, and render them clean and safe for the hands of the pupils. The disposal of the remodelled garments, when the collection is made for war relief purposes, may best be decided by each school or locality.

Suggestions for the Conservation of Clothing

Partly worn clothing may be remodeled and made into practical, attractive garments for children. All material to be remodeled, should be carefully ripped, brushed, sponged and pressed, or washed and ironed.

NOTE:— Use white soap for flannels or flannelette, and soap bark for colored and wool materials. All suggestions are for partly worn clothing.

I. Skirts on Waist

Make loose waist with low neck and large armholes. Use drilling, sateen, flannelette or coarse cotton. Button down back. Finish neck and armholes with bias facings. Use one and one half widths of flannelette for small skirts, two widths for larger garments. Fell seams. Turn two inch hems.

2. Rompers

May be made of partly worn summer dresses of firm materials, mens' flannel shirts or pieces of flannellette. Use French seams.

3. One-piece Dress

Use any simple design. May be made of wool dresses, wool skirts or dark flannelette pieces.

4. Work Apron

May be made of wash dresses or mens' shirts. Use kimona pattern, slant shoulders to fit, cut neck low and armholes large.

Finish with finishing braid or bias bands of material.

5. Coats

Use a good pattern. Press material thoroughly. Tailors will make button holes for a small sum. Collars and muffs of same material or pieces of velvet.

6. Bonnets

Boys' caps, girls' hats, baby socks, bed shoes, invalid's slippers make over into baby bonnets.

7. Crib Quilts

The lower part of bathrobes may be cut 27" x 36" or larger and bound with bias strips of sateen, satin, old ribbon or farmers satin. Crepe cloth or other light weight bathrobes may be utilized for the same purpose by interlining with sheet wadding and tufting with odd bits of wool or baby ribbon.

8. Baby Gowns

May be cut from the lower part of bathrobes. Fell the seams of heavy material, use French seams on thin cloth. Use kimona or set in sleeve.

Miscellaneous Suggestions

A sleeveless jacket of any cotton material may be lined with kid gloves from which the fingers have been cut. These kid gloves should first have been cleaned, then cut so as to make a flat surface. Sew these pieces together on the machine in the form of the old-time crazy quilt. Press open the seams to make a flat surface of kid. Line the cotton sleeveless jacket with this kid cut to fit the outside covering. Bind the edges with tape or narrow ribbon and the result will be a warm vest for man, woman or child. A paper vest may be used as a pattern for making this kid-lined vest.

Re-making Stockings May Be Done In Several Ways

1. Cut off the stocking at the ankle and sew to the stocking leg the stocking foot purchased at the stores for that purpose.

2. The McCall Pattern Co. has made a conservation pattern "BB" in six sizes from child's stocking to women's stocking. This pattern arranges for the worn part of the stocking to be removed and an insert made to renew the stocking. The seams are so placed as not to interfere with the pressure of the foot against the shoe.

Woolen Yarn

The present scarcity of woolen yarn may be met in some measure by ravelling out the yarn in discarded knitted or crocheted garments, such as sweaters, socks mufflers, shawls, hoods, afghaus, couch covers, lap robes. These odd colors may be dyed to make a large amount of the same color. Washing, dyeing and winding will remove the wrinkle.

Patchwork Crib Quilt

Pieces of flannelette from the piece bag or remnants from the cutting of garments should be cut into squares or oblongs of uniform size. Join these with running stitches. Make the finished size 36 inches by 36 inches. A border of flannelette 2 inches wide adds strength and attractiveness to the quilt. Machine stitch the border to the patchwork center.

An interlining of sheet wadding, blanketing, quilt, or white spread is tacked to patchwork square. The layers are lined with flannelette and the thicknesses are tied together at four inch intervals.

Fifth grade pupils may do the hand sewing and tying; the machine work on the border is work for the upper grades.

Quilts for full sized beds may be made similarly of pieces of woollen suiting collected from tailors shops. These pieces of dark colors make durable and warm covers for couches and beds.
