GING TOURNEY PENS AT GYM THIS AFTERNOON

Wisconsin High Meets Appleton

Wisconsin's biggest prep school basketball tournament opens at 3 o'clock this afternoon when the Wisconsin high school squad will take on the Appleton team at the gymnasium.

The opening game should furnish one of the most interesting clashes of the entire tournament. Appleton has a team of widely known ability and Wisconsin high has had a most successful season despite the fact that it has gone down in defeat on three different occasions.

The Badger prep outfit has three veterans in the lineup who were big factors in the team's successes last year when they took first place in the Whitewater tournament and came back to Madison to take fourth place in the state meet. The men are Stehr, forward; Holzworth, center; and Otis, guard. Nelson, forward and Dopp, guard, are playing their first year as regulars in the first squad. They were both substitutes last year.

Young to Officiate

The squad is in fine shape with the exception of Captain Stehr who has been on the sick list ever since the Brodhead tournament where he received some painful injuries. Without Stehr the followers of the squad will depend upon the smooth floor work of the prep aggregation.

Fred Young, Big Ten Conference official with George Levis, former Wisconsin star and until recently coach of the Indiana basketball squad, have been selected to officiate at the 22 games which will be played.

Cups will be awarded to the winner and the runner-up by the Athletic department according to Edward J. Frawley, general chairman of the tournament. The winner of the consolation series will also be given a cup. All members of the winning team will receive individual gold basketball fobs, and the players on the team placing second will receive silver basketball fobs.

Offer Traveling Cup

Medals will be awarded to the best forward, guard and center of the tournament. The committee which will pick the winners of these medals is made up of Rollie Williams '23, Gustav K. Tebell '23, Coach Guy S. Lowman, Leslie R. Gage '23, Dr. Walter E. Meanwell and Coach Thomas E. Jones.

This committee will also decide the winner of the new traveling cup to be awarded for sportsmanship. The team which shows the best sportsmanship during the tournament will be awarded this cup to keep for one year. It was donated recently by the Athletic Review.

A luncheon for coaches will be given this noon at the University club for coaches and officials. At this meeting the officials of the meet will discuss the rules which will be in effect during the tournament. Coaches Jones and Meanwell also will speak.

Hard Games Scheduled

Eau Claire and Superior also highly rated teams meet at 5 o'clock. These teams have both withstood the strain of hard schedules and there seems to be no choice between them.

Janesville is expected to take Stevens Point into camp and La Crosse high, should have little trouble disposing of Rio. The New London Oshkosh game should be a fierce battle. New Richmond was runner-up last year and appears to have a formidable aggregation again this year.

"FASHION"

(Composed by Jess Cohen; written by Jack Cornelius.)

I've had success in nearly every game,
But I'll confess I'm beaten just the same.
For when you're single,
Your pockets jingle,
But when you change her name
Oh!

CHORUS

Fashions, fashions,
Always something new,
New stuff in dress and shoe.
Short skirts, long skirts,
Bobbed hair won't do.
It sure costs money
To keep from looking funny,
Adam, Adam, you surely had no care.
Eve wore summer styles for winter wear.
Now fur coats when weather's hot,
Bare knees when it is not,
We bow to fashion's decree.

INSTALLS S. G. A. HEADS TONIGHT

Dean Nardin Will Address Meeting to Be Held in Lathrop

The new S. G. A. officers will be installed tonight in the special ceremonies which will directly precede the regular S. G. A. board meeting at 7 o'clock in Lathrop parlors.

Dean F. Louis Nardin will talk on the privileges of being an officer of the women's self-government association and of the inherent responsibilities.

Lois Jacobs '24, new president of S. G. A., will be given the symbol of office by Cleo Parsley '23, retiring head of the organization. The other retiring officers will present their successors with the symbols of office in the following order: Mary Baldwin '23, vice president to Helen Kingsford '24; Ellen Harris '24, secretary to Mary Burchard '24; Eleanor Head '23, treasurer to Mary Devine '25; and Pauline Dickinson '24, census chairman to Hazel Weingandt '25.

The board meeting afterwards is compulsory for all of the members. An explanation of the method of presenting the proposed changes in the S. G. A. constitution, which have been discussed at the meetings of Keystone during the past week, to the women of the university, will be given.

SPRING BOWS AS STORMS BREW IN OMINOUS ROCKIES

Although spring greets us this morning, storms are brewing in the Rockies and a depression area is now threatening, according to Eric Miller, weather forecaster.

With a generous blanket of snow and ominous predictions of rain or snow, little hope is held out for signs of spring and the proverbial balmy breezes. Although the sun is very warm and the snow is thawing rapidly it will be some days, provided no more storms overtake us, before Madison landscapes acquire the appearance of spring.

Fashion edicts and the weather man forecasts coincide about as logically as ever—the shops say "on with the show"—while the practical pedestrian says to himself, not without some anathemas at the fates, "on with the coal."

WEATHER: RAIN.

Rain or snow is predicted for today, with a drop in temperature tonight. Predictions for tomorrow are for snow flurries, followed by fair but cold weather. The maximum temperature at 4 p. m. was 38.8 degrees, with a minimum temperature of 21 degrees at 7 a. m.

FASHION BOWS TO SPRING'S ENTRY

RALPH DENNIS, NOTED WRITER, TO SPEAK HERE

Prof. Ralph Dennis, under the auspices of the Forensic board, will speak in 165 Bascom hall at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. His subject is "The Heroic in Common Lives," and is taken from the well known novel, "If Winter Comes."

Professor Dennis is well known to Madison and University audiences, being a yearly visitor here. He is generally credited with having given the best and most popular lecture of the war during the period of conflict. He is the acting director of the School of Oratory at Northwestern university.

Critics are united in praising Professor Dennis' ability as a speaker. Isabel G. Beecher says "A portrayal of the heroic in common lives seems to be the best title for this keen, kindly interpreter of the nobility that resides within shabby coats and the grandeur that is not a stranger to homely countenances."

King of England and Prince to See Football Tie Played

The King of England and the Prince of Wales will be present at the opening of the Wembley stadium at London, the largest in the world, when the annual football cup tie final is played sometime this month. The stadium, started soon after the armistice, will seat 126,000 people and is four times the size of the Coliseum at Rome. Its surrounding wall is half a mile in length. The structure will be used in connection with the empire exhibition in 1924.

Presbyterian Student House Gets New Chaperone Soon

Mrs. W. D. Taylor, Madison, will soon take the place of Miss Myrtle Jobse, Milwaukee, as chaperone for the group of Presbyterian girls who live at the Presbyterian headquarters, 731 State street. Miss Jobse, who in addition to her duties as chaperone is secretary for Presbyterian students, will resume her position as secretary after her marriage on April 5 to Norman D. Scott, grad. of Des Moines, Iowa.

Plumbers and Lawyers Battle in Snow Today

Make straight the path of St. Pat's engineers, for today at 9:50 o'clock they meet the lawyers in a snow ball fight in the center of the upper campus. Patrick Clerkin will lead the engineers, and Daniel C. O'Neil will direct the activities of the lawyers.

New conditions have been injected into the challenge. If the engineers win, they shall be allowed to carry canes, and upon being met by a lawyer, the lawyer must scratch the back of his head.

If the lawyers win, they shall be allowed without interference to yell at the engineers at any time from the steps of the law building.

It is said that the lawyers are out to wipe out all past defeats, and that they plan to make the victory so decisive that the engineers will not be in shape to put on their parade Saturday afternoon.

Second Regimental Band Gives Concert Saturday

"A real achievement" is what Maj. E. W. Morphy says of the first indoor concert of the Second Regimental band to be given at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

"The members of the band are enthusiastic over this concert, which is the first indoor concert ever given by the Second band," continued Major Morphy, "and the men have developed surprising skill in working out a program which is an entirely new thing to them."

The program, which will be announced in detail later, will include operatic selections and several marches. Miss Erma Dunnean of the Music school, vocal soloist, will appear with the band and will be accompanied by Robert Nethercut '24.

BUSINESS STAFF

There are positions open on the Business Staff of the Daily Cardinal for men or women. Freshmen or Sophomores desired. Apply to Hawley Porter, Business office of Cardinal, Wednesday, 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock.

SUCCESS IN LIFE AIDED BY GOOD CLOTHES: DEANS

Slipshod Dresser is Scored Here

By their clothes ye shall know them.

This in substance is the opinion of Dean F. Louise Nardin and Dean Scott H. Goodnight in a discussion of the effect of good clothes and a neat appearance on one's personal success.

That clothes should indicate care, self-respect and personality necessary in order to achieve success in life, is Miss Nardin's assertion.

Slipshod Dress And Work

"If I see a young man or young woman carelessly or slovenly dressed, apparently unobservant of the rules of good taste, I would expect their work to be slipshod. They probably are not quick to notice short cuts or time-saving devices.

"But, of course, there is the person who becomes so engrossed in work that personal appearance suffers in consequence. In that case, one must judge ability from the standpoint of the sincerity and alertness of actions," Miss Nardin concluded.

"Overdisplay in dress is like putting a $50 saddle on a $20 horse. It just isn't done by the person who has a sense of proportion," Dean Goodnight declared.

Income and Style

The important thing to remember in purchasing articles to wear is that conservative style and colors last longer and harmonize better, Miss Nardin suggests.

Each person knows best what proportion of the income may be spent for clothes. If the individual is prosperous, it is not unusual that he has a desire to show it in the matter of dress.

"In general appearance, however, there must be a certain air of refinement and grooming which is so characteristic of good taste," Miss Nardin emphasizes.

"When a stranger is observing you in an impartial, but critical way, the price, style, and fineness of your clothes will not count nearly so much as the immaculate condition of your nails, the becoming arrangement of the hair, or the condition of the shoes in his opinion of your character."

Two Types of People

Two types, noted by Miss Nardin as extremes, are persons who wears jewelry and finery at the wrong time or in such a way that others are always conscious of it, and the unobtrusive person who is seldom noticed because of simple dress.

The observing person who realizes the significance of good appearance will endeavor to combine the two extremes, the dean of women believes.

"There is always an extreme to everything worthy of attention," commented Dean Goodnight. "For that reason there will always be people who will overdo the latest fads and fashions. I much prefer to see people dress in a conservative manner, for it is always in good taste and more practical."

Good Taste Essential

The importance of neatness, cleanliness and a certain regard for what is considered good taste cannot be overemphasized, according to the two university deans. Such things have influence in the estimate which people form.

Becoming but serviceable apparel is something each student should possess in order to develop and to express personality, the deans conclude.

King Tut Influences Spring Styles For Campus Wear

Egyptian Trend Noticeable Although Designers Offer Varied Fashion for Co-ed

Tall Stately Students Find Long Draperies of Nile Period Quite in Vogue—Skirts Are Higher, Too, for the Spring Season

By MARION SECHEVERELL

THE heralding of "What's What" for spring shows influence of King Tut on styles and colors.

Let not this dismay, however, the co-ed whose tastes tend to other styles than the Egyptian, for never were designers so accommodating as at present.

We are to be allowed, it seems, to choose our own styles from so many models and designs that it will be our fault if we should fail to find the proper and most becoming thing.

In the Madison shops, one finds scarabs, reptiles and wiggling things crawling over lotus blossoms and even pharaohs—on cloths.

Designs From The Nile

Fabrics of sheer silk and even muslin are often printed in designs which find their source along the banks of the Nile.

New York designers, however, predict that this oriental trend is to have a short life.

That the co-ed must adopt the Egyptian mode, however, is not necessary, for it is her own personality which is to be expressed in her wardrobe and not the character of Cleopatra's sisters.

Style for the Girls

Are you inclined to avoid dupes? There is a particular style for you which probably will not be found in the figured material, showing the influence of the Nile or in the bouffant frock.

Perhaps it will be the chemise gown which has become so popular and held its own for the past several seasons.

The tall stately co-ed, who only yesterday was displaying several inches of silk stockings, enters a new role in the spring dresses.

Long Supple Draperies

Can't you picture her in a frock of long supple draperies which may or may not be heavily ornamented to resemble the garments worn by dark-hued maidens during the reign of Tut-Ankh-Amen?

Such attire gives her an undeniable charm and a new-found personality. You must surely agree that clothes make the person to a considerable degree.

For the short waisted person there are the waistlines which begin at the hips and below. The long waisted co-ed, on the other hand, will delight probably in the basque dresses with lines above the normal waist.

Skirts Are Going Up

Sashes no longer serve to cut the person in two. Instead, they have their start and finish at the side, thus giving the effect of draperies without the offending slashing off which is particularly unbecoming to the short jeune fille.

This time last year skirts were going down to the consternation of the co-ed who favors freedom of the pedal extremities as well as of speech. Now they are creeping upward, not with any great speed, to a length which gives both conservatism and ease.

From the array of differing styles it is possible for the co-ed to choose the one which best suits her and to select the lines and designs that will make her personality stand out to the best advantage.

Dame Fashion Announces For Spring of 1923

The ever-popular chemise frock again.

Basques, slightly fuller than last season.

Bouffant skirts, straight, clinging skirts, draped and uneven skirts, long skirts, short skirts.

Daring little organdy and taffeta frocks with apron fronts and bustle drape backs.

Dignified, long line frocks, with sinuous lines showing the Egyptian influence.

Sleeves which are growing less and less spectacular and even disappearing as Skirts advance in ornamentation and precede to the center of the stage of dress design.

Form-molded tailleurs, perky abbreviated box jackets, youthful boleros and mannish top-coats in three-quarter lengths and longer.

Colors in every tint and tone of the spectrum.

Hats that are small are the rule in America, but there is always the exception of the rule which is found in the large drooping hat.

Feathers, flowers, ribbons and fruit as trimming for the bonnets.

Tweed Suit Yet Favorite

For Wear This Springtime

The tweed suit will be as popular as ever this spring. Knicker suits are being made in tweed, with a wrap skirt to cover the knickers in order that they can be worn in train travel as well as on he golf links. Even Paris, the home of the ultra feminine exotic women has put her stamp of approval on the three-piece sport outfit.

Variety is Evident For

Selection of Sport Suits

There seems to be quite a variety of sport suits to choose from this season, for New York houses are showing three-piece suits which are a compromise between a sport costume and a tailleur. They are being made of pongee silk and poret twill, with bright colored blouses embroidered in wool.

Hats Match or Contrast the Sport Suit of Today

Hats will be worn to match or contrast with the sport suit. Paisley scarfs are being used to trim the hats, and little handkerchiefs to match the scarfs are being worn on the wrist. The new crocodile leather shoes blend right in with the sports costume.

White Flannel Skirts and Red Borders Are Popular

White flannel skirts trimmed with red borders and having coats to match make quite an effective costume for the dark-haired girl. Flannel skirts and coats trimmed in black perforated leather also make a chic combination especially suited to the fashionable college woman.

Knitted Sweater, Skirt

Make Striking Sport Suit

Knitting needles are busy once again, and a knitted sweater and skirt forms a very pretty sports suit for the coming season. Four piece costumes are also shown, a one-piece frock, coat, scarf and hat all matching.

STRIKING SUITS FOR SPRINGTIME

Ear Rings, And What A Variety

"Everybody's wearing 'em, from the flippiest flapper to the staidest matron," declared the jewelry clerk as she drew out tray after tray of ear rings in a bewildering assortment of colors, shapes and designs.

The selection included modest studs of pearl, jet, jade and colored stones; hoops of bright enamel and glass ranging in size from a dime to barbarous-looking one the size of a half-dollar; drops of all descriptions, the favorite being an ear stone with a long chain of filigreed metal and colored stones; and the shower ear ring, some with tassels and pendants, 5 inches long, that nearly brush the shoulder.

"King Tut" Ear Rings

"The shower is by far the most popular type," the saleswoman added. "The swaying chains attract the women, and they in turn wear them to attract the attention of the men."

Jade, which has had a long run, is declining in favor and giving way to jet-and-pearl combinations, jet-and-ivory, or just carved ivory alone. Lapis lazuli, amber, and turquoise are in demand.

"King Tut" ear rings, in scarab and sphinx designs, are being purchased by many women to complete the Egyptian costumes now in vogue.

Set Jewelry Popular

Sets of ear rings, bracelet, and beads or pendant are quite a fad. The latest comes in the "polychrome" design, the pendant being elaborate and heavy, strung on leather and heavy cord or ribbon. These will be worn extensively with spring suits and unbuttoned coats and wraps.

Since the return of the bertha collar, the brooch has usurped the place so long occupied by the barpin. Brooches come in antique designs, old-fashioned cameos, mosaics and single gems in old-fashioned mountings.

Long Novel Necklaces

Long novel necklaces of turquoise, Bohemian garnet, or jade set in green gold, are very smart, as well as 90-inch chains of Chinese amber or Siamese rubies. Short strings of genuine stones are being worn with round-necked frocks.

Suits To Be More Popular This Season

Spring Fashion Reflects the Oriental Costume, Experts Say

After several seasons of apparent disrepute, the suit is back in full swing. Sport suits, three-piece suits and the suit which consists of a dress with a matching jacket are to be had in a variety of delightful colors, styles and combinations.

Putty, sand, cocoa, cork, tan and all the ranges of browns are in favor. Many of the lighter shades are combined with delft blue, soft colored batiks, metal embroidery, and the galaxy of vivid and luminous silks inspired by old King Tut's unexpected influence in the world of fashions.

Navy Blue Color Smart

The conventional navy blue in Poret twill is smart and in vogue among the more conservative models.

They are fashioned in Balkan blouse effects, box coats, boleros and the irreplaceable three-piece creations.

The majority of spring suits are in reality three-piece costumes, the skirt being attached to a sham which slips over the head in order that if one tires of the blouse a fresher one may be substituted.

With the navy suit, red is a popular color. One particularly jaunty little model has a cherry red blouse, flowing sleeves faced with the red and a perky stand-up collar with a hint of red in the elaborate embroidery on the short box jacket.

Light Colors For Suits

For the country club, motoring and street wear, the soft wooly textures, light in color as well as in weight plaided with crossbars of navy, green, or black, make the smartest of suits.

They are bound with dark braid and fasten either with a single harmonizing button, tie low at one side with wide satin ribbon of self-color, or nestle close to the throat where a double buttonhole laced ribbon or a loop of the material itself, gives the seductive charm of youth.

Beads, bead tassels, metal embroidery, oriental buckles, and braid are fascinating details of the street dress as well as of suits and of youth.

Nothing has ever quite taken the place of the cut away coat for semi-formal afternoon wear. But so long has its existence been hidden that many of the present generation have only seen this species of coat at fashionable churches, where elderly ushers who go in for that sort of thing, have always worn cutaways.

Budget Plan At $107.50 Is Favored Here

Low Estimate of $60
Month is Made By Girl

Do you adhere to a budget?

We don't, but would like to stick to some of our university co-eds do budget their allowances and save a considerable amount of money by their plan. The ways in which the efficient and economical women apportion their money among their different needs is rather interesting.

The lowest amount on which a co-ed can live for a month is $66.22, according to one girl who has done it. This of course is extremely low, and this girl, who is working her way through college, thinks that $125 or $150 is more the average amount that co-eds spend a month.

Home Ec Budgets

This same girl budgets her expenses in the following percentage: Board and room, 50 per cent; clothes, 30 per cent; amusements, 5 per cent, and books and incidentals, 15 per cent.

Girls in the home economics department prepared budgets for the month of November of last year.

Among these budgets, probably the most average one allowed the girl $107.50 for the month. This was apportioned in the following way: Board, $30; rent, $27; clothing, $35; higher life, $15; and operating expenses, $2.50.

This included street car fare and railroad fare in the rent, a coat, dress, suit, two hats, two pairs shoes, and underclothing necessary in the clothing—figuring the amount for the year and then apportioning it per month—books, magazine, movies, fees and recreation, in the higher life, and laundry and dry cleaning in the operating expenses.

Difference in Budgets

Another girl allowed $81.77 in her budget with 25.84 per cent for food, 10.72 per cent for shelter, 27.24 per cent for clothing, and 36.29 per cent for higher life which included stamps, stationery, dues, church contributions and so on.

For the girl who allowed herself $125 in her budget, a great variety of clothing was given. Her wardrobe included a great number of underclothes, and a goodly number of dresses, hats, shoes, and coats. Her budget also allowed for hairnets, gloves, handkerchiefs and sundry articles.

A budget is possible, of course, but not at all probable. According to one woman student, the co-eds will use as much money as they can get by borrowing, working or getting it from home—and even then they will stretch the budget and even overrun it.

Men's Sport Coats Reveal

Novel Things in Mixtures

There are some really new things in men's wear this spring. One of the smartest of these is the new knitted sports coat. It is made of handsome mixtures, in greens, blues, and is shaped like a regulation coat. It has a one-button front and belted Norfolk back. It is designed for informal daytime wear with white flannel trousers or with knickers. For the less daring dresser there is a coat of navy cloth cut on the same lines.

Sport Clothes Reflects Pyramid Hue, Paris Decrees

Knit Cloth Is Now In Vogue For The Year

Three-button Fitted Coat is Most Popular on Campus

By GERTRUDE ADELTE

One must look sportsmanlike to be in style, comes the decree from Paris.

And, contrary to the generally accepted rule that that sports clothes always come in brilliant hues, many of the neutral tones, in countless shades of gray and tan. Pyramid gray and sphinx are favorites. Dashing color effects are secured in plaids, stripes and checks.

Mistily Blended Colors

Short separate coats are greatly in demand. Blue, green orange and tan, all mistily blended together, form the color scheme of one sport coat of radio cloth. Cushia plaid is a new material being used for such coats.

Knitted clothes for sport wear will be quite the thing, including the separate coat, three-piece suits, sweaters, dresses and caps. Four-piece costumes are shown, consisting of a one-piece frock, coat, and hat or cap—all matching.

One effective costume is of knitted white worsted, trimmed in heavy white crocheted wood lace, laid over black taffeta, with hat to match.

Tweeds and Homespuns

Tweeds and homespuns in manish cuts will be the prevailing mode in sport suits and capes. Tailored suits with capes to match will also be worn. White tailored silk blouses with high collars complete these outfits.

The sleeveless coat and skirt to match are a happy combination. Many are English in cut as well as material. Plaided skirts will be worn a great deal.

The materials are plain effects and two-toned plaids, some in a camel's hair weave. The new blouse will not "tuck in" but fits snugly around the hips. For the most part they come in printed Egyptian and paisley designs. Heavy brilliant and figured crepes, the new knit silks, batiks and crepe de chens are the most extensively used materials for the bolero or Balkan coat blouse.

The New "Golf" Coat

A new wrinkle in sweaters is what is called the "golf" coat. It looks much like a sweater, except that the sleeves and backs are hose will harmonize with the new light suits. Heels will continue to be low, plain. The fronts are in checks, plaids or lozenges of contrasting colors. Shoes and the two-toned combinations of gray and green, white and green, red and an and black and white of last year, will be worn again this year.

And with the deluge of new and gorgeous materials and the growing demand for exclusive designs, prices of women's clothes will steadily advance, local merchants declare.

Sport Suit Necessary For Girl's Wardrobe, Paris Says

Paris says that if one is to be very smart this season, a sport suit, fashioned like a sweater-coat, with a two-piece skirt, which may be made of knitted fabric, is very necessary. New York houses have taken up the idea, and all the finest model houses are showing these suits, a local dealer declared this week.

Easter Parade of Spring Suits Promises Novelties

The designers this year seem to have been more successful than ever in bringing out novel spring and summer sports suits, so that we have quite a range to choose from; and it looks as if the Easter parade of spring suits will be more attractive than ever.

Knickers Win Favor Among Badger Co-eds

College Wardrobe Demands Sport Costume, Fashion Says

"Just crazy about 'em," is the general verdict of the co-eds on the new spring knickers.

Since they have been almost universally adopted for hiking, golf, horseback riding, skating, skiing, coasting and other kindred sports, knickers are coming to be as essential a part of the college woman's wardrobe as her school togs and dancing frock.

Like Army Breeches

Four years ago, when they made their first general appearance for sport wear, the first species were a bashful compromise designed with a skirt effect which might be removed as fitted the fancy. These quickly disappeared, giving way to the regulation form, practically the same as the men's army breeches.

Last year their popularity was so widespread that they were worn practically everywhere except church.

An attempt was even started to make knickers the conventional street costume for women. This was just a fad and will be continued, according to the opinion of women's outfitters, but for sport wear they are now an established institution.

Brown Corduroy In Use

Knickers range in price from about $3 for khaki ones of the army grade, up to $12 for the best made of tweeds. Brown corduroy is a popular material, being both inexpensive and serviceable.

The newest cut is modeled after the Vassar style, quite like the men's except that it is made fuller. They're smart and comfortable—two good reasons for their prevalence.

Short Coats Are Popular; Leather Jackets in Vogue

Short coats, which were all the rage last summer at Deauville, Europe's most fashionable sea shore resort, are back again this spring. These coats are being made of paisley, ratine, and serge. Very jaunty little jackets are being shown in leather. The leather jackets are being made with a suede finish and are being embroidered or embossed. Leather is also being used as trimming for coats, capes, and skirts.

Full Dress Suit Coming Back Again, Experts Say

It's coming back—the full dress suit. The semiformal "tux" which ever since the World War has edged its way more and more into society, will not be put on the wardrobe shelf because of the return of the tail coat, but just the same the full dress coat will be seen more this coming fall and winter than for many years.

Model houses as Paul Poiret, Madeline and Madeline, and Jeanne Halle are showing three-piece tweed suits made very effective by having the blouses of the dresses initialled and by having short capes, which are lined with silks to match the dresses. Homespuns and Scotch plaids are being shown hand in hand with the tweeds, in fact anything manish is the prevailing mode for the coming season.

THE SPORTS GIRL IS HERE AGAIN

Hats Reign Supreme As Springtime Nears

Where do you come from, Nifty chapeaux? I wish you'd tell me. No one else knows."

That's the point. Where do I come from? I don't really come! I descend upon the unsuspecting co-ed when she least expects it, and in a new form each time.

Long had my soft, slinky, velvety self, with its drooping feathers been relegated to the closet shelf because my owner tired of me and decided to war her "crowning glory," uncovered, for the snowflakes to play in.

Just a Poke Bonnet.

But once again am I reigning supreme and I probably will until Easter.

This time I take my daily outing in the form of a poke bonnet. Sometimes I am of light straw; most of the time I am felt; but always I am shaped the same—poke. Nothing else goes.

And I am gay in my popularity. Nothing is too bright or happy looking for me. Blue, pink, red, gray, green, lavender, orange—every color goes, and often they all go together.

Trimmings? Price?

My trimmings are exquisite and variable. Paisley seems to become me most, but I also look well in plain or striped bands. Occasionally I am adorned in flowers, but not often.

Everyone can own me, for my exchange value is anywhere from $2.50 to as much as $20, only generally I am worth around $2.50 and $5.

I dread to think of the later spring days when I will be back on the closet shelf of my fickle owner, but at present I am supreme.

Another stranger in men's fashions is also booked for the fall season. That is the cutaway coat, which fact strengthens the assertion that dress for both men and women is assuming a more formal trend.

This cross-barred sweater of silk serves also as a blouse.

Sweaters for Golfing Says Dame Fashion

A sweater, preferably in brush wool, an accordion-pleated skirt or knickers, wool-and-silk sport hose to match the prevailing color in the sweater, and low-heeled oxfords—with these in Milday's wardrobe she is ready to start for the links as soon as the weather will permit.

No longer does the male hold sway over this Scotch sport which has found such favor in recent years all over America.

Each year finds more clubs organized and more women out on the greens.

Why Play Golf?

That a large number of co-eds have gone in for golf is true, but the motives for taking up the game are varied.

The majority of them, we find, have affected the sport in order to be in the swim, as it were, while a few are keenly and seriously interested in it.

"I can't see anything in pushing a ball around on the grass," said one co-ed, who makes regular visits to the professional teacher at the Maple Bluff Golf club during the summer months. "But there must be something in it, else why would our fond fathers spend so many hours every afternoon in the hot sun?" she finished.

Gold Suit For Tennis

"Oh, everybody does it at home during the summer," said another, "but I don't like it. Too much work trotting around for nothing; I'd rather play tennis."

What one wears on the golf links is equally as appropriate on the tennis court so the co-ed who has the golf wardrobe, but dislikes that particular sport can be a second Lenglen as far as the outfit goes.

Two co-eds who summer at popular resorts in the East spoke with great favor of golfing.

Matter of Instructor

"It's all in learning how," they said. "If you get a poor instructor who knows a good deal of golf, but does not understand teaching it, you cannot be expected to like it."

"The professional who teaches his pupil by merely doing the acts himself never gets by."

Dame Fashion dictates the loose fitting styles in women's coats this spring.

The appealing styles have the flare of freedom; the swinging unbelted plaids, soft full draped capes, smart steamer coats, and big, full motor coats are particularly noteworthy.

Fabrics are not confined to domestic weaves this spring. The Scotch and English materials, in fact, predominate in the showings. Camels' hair, especially, is to be very popular because of its softness and smartness. Plaids are also emphasized.

Riding Togues Brings Severe Habit Style

Tweeds and Homespuns in Manish Cuts Are Favored For Suits

Horseback riding.

Riding habits.

And so the lately popular sport for horseback riding requires riding habits for both the co-ed and the men. Varied models are designed to suit the feminine tastes, while fewer and more customary designs are produced for the men.

Riding habits for women are cut along severe lines, according to one local dealer. The most popular style is with a three-button fitted coat. This is worn with a collar set, and the familiar but ever stylish stock.

Breeches Form Fitting

The entire habit is generally of black or of some other sombre color, while often the coat may be of some brighter color with checked breeches. The breeches are form fitting, for these prove to be most comfortable as well as appearing neater and less bulky.

The breeches are generally reinforced on the inside with natural color chamois and on the outside with suede or some other leather in order to insure greater wear. A riding hat and riding boots complete the habit.

Riding costumes are of course made of seasonal materials. The most popular type of material for winter, although rather expensive, is English whipcord.

Wool Materials Popular

English wool gabardine, in plain or herringbone effect, is also popular in winter. In fact, all wool materials are. Corduroys are sometimes used also, but these do not prove extremely practical.

For summer wear, Irish Linen Twill—a new material similar in weave to wool twill—linen, and crash in various colors are also used. Prices for women's riding habits run from $35 up, and single breeches can be bought for $10 up.

Most of the habits for men are made of English whipcord and come at somewhat higher prices than the women's. The coat is a three-button coat, and the breeches are full at the hips and thighs, close fitting below the knees, with corner tops pockets. The men, however, prefer to a great extent the cheaper corduroy or khaki breeches, says the same dealer.

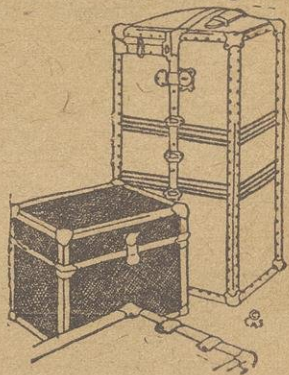

Sport Is Popular

Equitation, so horseback riding is called in the women's gym department, is an extremely popular sport. It now takes its place with other such usual sports as baseball and swimming, and gymnasium credit is given the girls who enroll in the course.

The Blackhawk Riding academy gives instructions to the women in the course, which is given in fall, winter, and spring sessions. Twenty lessons are given for the price of $30, with 16 lessons required for gymnasium credit.

The course was instituted last spring, and 38 girls enrolled. The increased popularity of the course was shown by the fact that this fall 53 girls signed up for the course. Few have ridden this winter, but with the coming of spring an even greater number will doubtless enroll, the physical education department predicts.

Co-Ed's Carry-All

Steamer or wardrobe trunk, it will come back April 10 filled with the co-eds' new spring apparel.

Radical Changes In Men's Suits Are Now Proclaimed

Form Fitting Style Gives Way To Ultra Box Coat In Latest Fashion Of Season

Long Low-folded Lapels Displace the "Choker" Short Lapel, While Some of Radical Models Have Only One Button

Men's suits have undergone a radical change this spring, especially the waistline of the coat.

Instead of the form-fitting coat that hugged the waist of Beau Brummel in former years, the liberally cut ultra-box coat will be "quite the thing" for all business and informal wear.

Never before have men worn such skirt-line affairs.

Long low-folded lapels with three buttons have displaced the "choker" short lapel with four buttons.

Some of the more radical models will have only one button, while those who wish to buy a combination type will find plenty of weaves that have three buttons and whose lapels may be rolled down to give the effect of the one button coat.

Patch Pockets

Plaited, low patch pockets with one button at the top will be seen more than ever. In order to give an added boxed effect, vents in the coats are rapidly disappearing.

Vests also have undergone the most extreme change of all the last eight years, probably due to the extreme and few "bell-hop" effects of the past winter's vests. The six buttons have been lessened to five.

The points are shorter with no tip which gives the effect of the single-breasted coat.

Wide Trouser Legs.

This long-sought change will be glad news to almost every man who ever wore a vest when he finds that the vest and trousers have become better friends, and at last try to keep in speaking distance of one another.

In keeping with the general loose effect of the entire coat and vest, the trousers will have much wider legs with two plaits at the waist line on each side. Some 16-inch cuffs will be worn, while most of the trousers will have plain bottoms.

Gray And Sand Colors.

Gray and sand with their various hues are the pre-dominating colors. Blue and dark gray will be used for the more conservative business wear.

Diagonal, diamond and feather weaves in unfinished soft worsteds, and chevrons will be the choice materials.

Prices range from $30 to $65. On account of the more work and material entailed on sport suits, their prices will range slightly higher, $38 to $50.

Castalia to Hold Alumnae Banquet Saturday Evening

Castalia will hold an Alumnae banquet Saturday, March 24. All old members living in Madison will be invited and some of them will speak.

Those who successfully tried out last week will be initiated before the banquet. This will be followed by a reception for the old members. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

The speakers at the banquet will be Mrs. L. A. Kahlenberg, Mrs. Burr Jones, Dr. Maybelle Parks, Fannie Gallas '24, Miss Lillian Pyler will give the address of welcome and Catherine Boyd '24 will be toastmistress.

Coach Lowman will meet the representatives from the fraternities interested in inter-fraternity baseball next Tuesday evening, March 27, at 7:30 o'clock at the gym to arrange the schedule. All organizations interested in forming an independent league should also have a representative at the meeting.

Golf Toggery Shows London Fashion Trend

Belted Norfolk is Also Popular This Season For Men's Golf Wear

Golf suits and golf toggery, now so popular, are as old as the game itself. Golf knickers are an evolution of the kilts of the old Scotchmen who first developed the modern game.

Each season introduces something new in golfers' clothes, quite the same as with the business suit.

The two popular present styles are the belted norfolk and the one-button, short-coated English suits. The low belted norfolk effect has been worn at Princeton for years and is known as the Princeton uniform.

In the spring of 1921 other eastern colleges took to the norfolk, and ever since it has enjoyed its great popularity.

This season in addition to the norfolk model, the leading eastern clothing houses have attempted to popularize the one-button, short coated English suit, recently introduced by the Prince of Wales and quickly adopted by the English golfer.

The two buttoned straight sack coat, having plaited shoulders to allow freedom of movement, is a third design creeping into the market. Golf knickers this season are a very full English style, with greater length than those of 1922. They are high waisted.

College men have seized upon golf toggery as much for classes as for the links.

The regular golf suit is the prized sport apparel of many a man who never even indulges in the game proper. It has come to be the convenient and comfortable suit of the better dressed college man.

The new knitted sport coat will be observed worn with knickers. It is made of handsome mixtures in greens, tans and blues, and is shaped like a regular coat. It has a one-button front and a belted norfolk back. The coat may also be worn for informal day-time wear with white flannel trousers. For the less daring dresser there is a coat of navy cloth cut on the same lines.

Among the newest golf hose are some of pure white wool, ribbed with yellow diamonds and cuffs of mixed black and green.

The sports belt is the last syllable in smartness.

As a matter of fact, the collegian will break out as soon as the weather permits, in some sort of light knickers of Irish linen, white flannel, or heavy white silk. He will wear a bright colored imported golf jacket, with some colorful golf hose. A bright English foulard tie and a bright Paisley silk handkerchief about the neck will be quite the last word.

Nominations Made For Next Year's Y. M. C. A. Heads

Nominations for the Y. M. C. A. officers for the ensuing year are as follows: Gamber Tegtmeyer '24, president; Al Finnel '24 and Ellsworth Bunce '24, vice president; Paul Robertson '25 and Bert Hopkins '24, secretary; William J. Fronk '24, treasurer.

Princeton Model Is Men's Favorite

One of the styles now finding favor among university men is the Princeton. Three buttons, full cut body lines, and short high lapels make the coat. The trousers, are cut very full and straight.

This is one of the many models used by an exclusive eastern tailor o clothes for college men.

Girl's Gym Meet Scheduled to Decide Class Contest

Sophomore and freshman girls' squads are hard at work in preparation for the annual gym meet to be held March 29 at 4:30 o'clock. The averages of the two squads are close, the sophomores having 26.6 and the freshmen 26.1. Thursday will end the contest between the two classes.

Of all the squads, Gertrude Adelt's has the highest average, which is 39.7. The highest individual averages are: Grace Sherman '26, 67; Grace Baird '25, 60; Mary Devine '25, 60; Esther Horswell '26, 60; Mildred Goodrich '26, 59; Margaret Wegener '26, 58.

All regular gym and folk dancing are to be present at the meet. The regular hygiene lecture which was scheduled for 4:30 o'clock will be held at 3:30 o'clock.

Keystone will hold meetings at 5:30 o'clock in the S. G. A. room Wednesday and Thursday.

Tuxedo Style Gives Okey on White Vests

From the flat, notched lapel the style of the tuxedos will change this spring to a rolling shawl collar. In the East this fashion is already popular and is moving steadily westward.

The material, which until a few years ago was broadcloth in all dress clothes, is now a rich, black dress worsted, unfinished and soft, that lends itself to draping.

The coat must not be tight-fitting, nor may it be a sack model—even that is not formal enough; it must be a semi-form fit.

White Vest Is Okey—

Among the rather extreme in dress there are some interesting developments in tuxedo colors. Some are wearing a mid-night blue, which is blacker than black; some wear an Oxford gray.

These, while popular in some cities of the East, are not expected to be universally adopted.

There is a feeling now that since the "tux" has supplanted almost completely the full dress suit, some difference in the attire should be made when ladies are present. For this reason now it is proper to wear a black vest only when no ladies are in the company, but when they are present, a white one.

Formal Attire Disfavored

The popularity of the tuxedo is due to the comfort that they afford for the men and the fact that to the women they are entirely satisfactory.

Before they came into prominence men so disliked to don the formal, stiff full dress suit that they either did not enjoy the party or did not attend, and so the semi-formal parties were given.

The tuxedo came as a happy compromise—satisfactory to all.

NEWS OF CONFERENCE SPORTS

BADGER TEAM PLACES FIRST IN GYM MEET

Lead Conference With Seven Titles

By placing first in the conference gym meet held by the Western Intercollegiate Fencing, Gymnastic, and Wrestling association at Columbus, O., last Saturday, Wisconsin added one more Big Ten conference championship to her string of six won in other years. The Badgers now lead the conference with seven championships; Chicago has six, and Minnesota three.

The dual meet between Chicago and Wisconsin was one of the closest known in the history of conference meets which began in 1902. Wisconsin chalked up 1,114 points against 1,113 gained by Chicago. Minnesota placed third with 1,096 5-10 points. The close score means little considering the number of entrants and the number of points counting in each event.

Team All Vets

The Badger team was composed of veteran gym men who had made names for themselves in conference circles before. The team was well balanced and scored its greatest number of points through consistent teamwork rather than by individual starrng.

Graduation will claim the best men on the squad and will leave material with which to develop a championship team in 1924. Porth and Hansen, the two best point getters, together with Captain Kitchen, Kubosch and Bumer also very valuable men, will be lost to the team.

Frosh Promising

The regular men that will be left are Stevens, and Koch, juniors, and Schmidt, a sophomore. Schmidt did some work this season, winning two third places and one second, in the conference meet.

The most promising men in this year's freshman squad are Bramer, horizontal bars, side horse, parallel bars; and Wingender, rings, horizontal and parallel bars. Baker is also a candidate who will develop into a valuable man.

Although material will not be as good as it has been in the past two years, and chances for another 1,000 per cent season will not be very bright, Coach Leitz feels that a good team can be developed from the present material.

THREE MAT MEN WILL GRADUATE

Capt. Templin, Heuer, and Suzuki Will Be Lost to Varsity

Prospects for next year's wrestling team appear quite bright, although the graduation of three men on the team will leave vacancies which will be hard to fill.

The men who will be lost to the team next year are Captain Templin; Heuer, and Suzuki. The vacancy caused by Templin's graduation will be keenly felt, as he is one of the best wrestlers Wisconsin has turned out in some time.

Heuer also made himself known this year, and his continued victories gave him an excellent chance to win the title in the 158 pound division until he was badly hurt at the Chicago meet.

Several men on the freshman varsity caliber, and it is these men that Coach Hitchcock depends to round out next year's team. The men have been showing up well in practice, but of course their lack of actual experience in conference meets will prove to be a handicap during the early part of next season.

The success of the team this year was considerably hampered by the sickness of several men on the team, and as a result they were never really able to get into good condition. Better luck in evading sickness and injuries next year should see Coach Hitchcock developing another good team.

BOXERS TRAINING DAILY FOR BIG OPEN TOURNEY

Although the all-University boxing tournament has been postponed one week, from March 24 to March 31, embryonic Jack Dempseys and Luis Firpos are working out daily at Coach Eddi Borgelt's gym in preparation for the championship encounters.

Harold Holmes, football halfback, donned the trunks yesterday afternoon and through his paces in a short bout. Holmes is rounding into condition and if he enters the tourney, may regain the university light heavyweight championship.

Freddie Johns, middleweight champion of Wisconsin, has withdrawn from the tourney and a new title-holder will be crowned in his division.

Men who desire to enter the tournament can sign the list in the boxing room or communicate with Coach Borgelt.

FROSH NINE IS LOSER IN GAME

Junior Women Show Great Superiority in Hand Contest

The Frosh-Junior women's basketball game held yesterday afternoon in Lathrop gym ended with the decided victory of 30 to 15 in favor of the Juniors.

The game was speedy and well played, Gretchen Kronicke '24 starring for the Juniors in the only home run of the game. Fry Brader '26, third baseman on the Frosh team also played well. The Junior's victory was somewhat unexpected, the score at the end of the second inning being 4 to 2 in favor of the Frosh.

The schedule for the remaining baseball games of the season is as follows:

Sophomores-Seniors, Thursday, March 22, 4:40 o'clock.
Juniors-Seniors, Friday, March 23, 3:40 o'clock.
Freshmen-Sophomores, Friday, March 23, 4:40 o'clock.
Freshmen-Seniors, Tuesday, March 27, 4:40 o'clock.
Sophomores-Juniors, Friday, March 30, 4:40 o'clock.

Alpha Gamma Rho Beats

Theta Xi in Water Contest

Alpha Gamma Rho found little difficulty in detailing the Theta Xi squad by an 8 to 2 score in their scheduled water basketball game yesterday in the university tank. The Theta Xi's succeeded in getting their lone point on a long throw from the center of the tank.

Coach Ryan Delayed; First Practice This Afternoon

Because Jack Ryan was delayed in getting here from Milwaukee, the first meeting of the football squad for spring practice, which was to have been held yesterday, was postponed. Capt. Marly Below announced that the coach would be here today for sure and that the squad will meet in the gym annex this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Prep School Coaches Will Be Entertained at Luncheon

Sixteen coaches of the high school basketball teams competing in the annual State Interscholastic Basketball tournament to be held at the University of Wisconsin gymnasium for four days beginning Wednesday, March 21, will be the guests at a luncheon given by the board of control and tournament officials. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the improvement in high school basketball and to talk over the rules and regulations of the meet. Several prominent coaches of the university will address the high school mentors.

VARSITY JAMBOREE

Tryouts for the Varsity Jamboree stunts will not be held this afternoon as planned.

Legislature To Vote Today on Bill Limiting Stadium Seats

"The Minier bill would permanently limit the capacity of the university stadium to 35,000 persons," Coach T. E. Jones said yesterday in referring to the bill now before the legislature to limit the height of any addition of the stadium to 25 feet.

"Of course it will be opposed by the university and all citizens of the state of Wisconsin who have the progress of the university at heart."

"The entire state is interested in the stadium, and it would be unreasonable to allow a few private individuals who think that their property values are endangered to limit its construction," Coach Jones said. "Besides, the improvements which the university has made at Camp Randall at an approximate cost of $500,000, have changed it from a frog pond to a first-class athletic park, and has in no way endangered the value of property."

"To have a capacity of 63,000 persons it will be necessary to have the stadium 40 or 50 feet high," the coach said.

The Minier bill which was recommended for passage by the committee on state affairs on March 17 will be voted on by the assembly, where it originated, today.

Men at U. of Carolina Start Agitation Against Co-eds

The men at the University of Carolina have started agitation against co-education because of the introduction of a proposal to appropriate building fund for a new dormitory for women.

Ballots have been posted on all of the university buildings asking the men students to vote on the subject of the proposed appropriation. These ballots state that it is the belief of the voter that ample provisions have been made for women at the North Carolina college and other State institutions for women.

The results of the voting will be presented to the appropriation committee which will decide the question in the session this week.

Sig Chi Basketball Squad

Wins Over Phi Sigs 10 to 8

The Sig Chi basketball squad eased out a victory over the Phi Sigs by a 10 to 8 score in their game yesterday. The game was the first of a series between these two squads and the Theta Xi squad to determine the order in their division enter the semi-final.

TRACK CLASSES WILL HOLD BIG MEET TOMORROW

Burke and Berg Turn Factions Loose

The rival factions of Burke and Berg will clash for the fourth time in two years when track class men under these two leaders meet in the second semester contest tomorrow afternoon.

Excitement has steadily grown during the two years until men under each of the instructors are on edge to show their metal.

A team from Mead Burkes section has won the meet for three consecutive times and they will work hard to uphold the pace they have set.

George Berg's morning class has been showing real merit, however, and his men are primed to upset the record.

George Berg's relay team won the inter-track class race two weeks ago and found no difficult competition. With a few good men in other events he should have an excellent chance for a win tomorrow.

CLOTHES—SALESMEN ABILITY

On every page but this are cuts or descriptions of the fashions of the day.

Not content with recording what are the present fashions the staff of The Cardinal has called in expert advice so that the fashions of the future may be predicted. Fashions foolish and fanciful, frivolous or fantastic, sensible and sedate—whatever one may think of them they are becoming to be recognized as one of the ways of "keeping up appearances."

The "well-dressed man" is not only of importance to the clothier and haberdasher. The well-dressed woman pleases other eyes than her milliner's and her dressmaker's.

It is recognized almost universally today that, in many professions and vocations, the man or woman who is well-dressed has a distinct advantage over the carelessly dressed or dowdy person. The United States government in its regulations for some of its civil service employees requires that they be neatly dressed.

It may be a wrong psychology but somehow one feels that a well-dressed doctor is a better doctor than his poorly-dressed competitor. One feels that a doctor who keeps reasonably up-to-date in the fashions will also keep up-to-date on the study and practices of medicine and surgery. At least no one can accuse him of being behind the times.

Likewise one feels that the well-dressed commercial man is more successful than is his partner across the hall who wears the same style suit this year that he wore fifteen years ago.

Other things being equal, the college graduate who is neatly and well-dressed (but not foppishly so) will stand the better chance of getting a good position.

Being awake to the fashions does not mean that more money need be spent that one be adorned like unto the proverbial lilies of the field. But it does mean that a man or woman who watches the fashion pages wear what is the mode of the times without spending more than he or she would spend in buying the styles of last year.

Clothes wear out and when new ones are purchased they may as well be bought with a view to moderate style.

HIGH SCHOOL CHAMPS VISIT US

Tonight sixteen high school teams of the state will be guests of the university.

Each of these high school teams comes here a winner of the basketball tournament in their district. They come to Madison as champions of their districts and with hopes of being champions of the state.

Only one team can win that honor but every team that plays this week on the gymnasium floor will have emerged a better team in spirit, morale, and fighting force through having met in honest and friendly competition worthy rivals for coveted honors.

Who of the members of those sixteen teams will fail to remember that he is playing on a floor that has been made famous by scintillating stars of past and present Badger teams?

Who of those players can forget that Wisconsin teams have been noted for fair play and gameness whether in defeat or victory? Many of these high school basketballers will in a few years be again playing upon the same floor. But then they will be wearing the Cardinal colors and playing for their university.

And what will they learn now of Wisconsin's tradition, Wisconsin's hospitality, Wisconsin's ideals for fair sport and an honest victory later? The players on the high school teams come here already imbued with high ideals of true sportsmanship and it is gratifying to believe that they will leave here with their true enthusiasm unchecked and their spirit undaunted whether they depart as victors or vanquished.

Octy Hits Stride In Caricatured Haresfoot Lure

By P. F. B.

The Octopus has scored its second coup d'etat of the year. It stands laughing at us, with us, and for us as did the Prom number.

Someone did a lot of stage-door-Johnnying before today's issue went to press with the net result that our Haresfoot decorum has been infringed upon and our cherished back stake secrets purged with picture, poem, and patter. Were the name "Octopus" not blazoned across each page, we would suspect that we were looking into the illustrated confessions of a he-chorus girl,—or Hub Townsend.

The pages are packed with lore and gore of the theatrical irregularities embodied in Haresfoot,—all reproduced with a surprising and disconcerting honesty. The only alien thing is the Arrow collar man (with due apologies to Haresfoot's leading men) on the back page. All else is an excruciating humor hybrid of comic opera and comic magazine.

With Haresfoot eccentricities its main roadway, this month's Octopus runs swiftly the gamut of printed fun, from the wistful subtlety of "The Easterner's Prayer" on page 8 to the uninterestingly obvious "Well I'll be hanged, said the convict" on the page opposite. We more than prefer the former. The latter could be hidden and the Hobb and Slobb three-liner and Silkhair's editorial brought out from among the ads with advantage to both.

As it skips along the Haresfoot path, Octy (oh, if an octopus only skipped) gathers new tenacles unto itself and gives us some fresh tickles.

The cover, appropriately Easter-eggy with its royal purple and orange, has a striking appeal to our color senses, but most of all it allows milady a little color in her cheeks, which, even though it be achieved with orange rouge, is an immense relief from her former white blankness.

"A Spring Fantasy," the Vanity Fair woodcut idea on a reasonable basis, hits new flights for the Octopus. Experiments like it are intriguing and refreshing. We would like to see more. "Not In The Script," only too accurately a rehearsal of a rehearsal both in lines and figures, brings the fetching jingle of the W. G. N.'s famous Potters close home and merits duplication next month.

Cuts, cuts, cuts. Plentifully are they arrayed through this month's book. Somebody is paying a pretty big engraving bill. But the cuts are worth it. Townsend and Mueller are hard to equal in the world of college humor. Osborne gives a fresh turn to the art lineup and, with a little smoothing of his pen strokes, his coming three years ought continuously to produce laughs for Octopus readers.

No excuses need be made for the Haresfoot Octopus. It ranks along with the Prom number as the best work of the staff this year. Which goes to prove that a small group, though they lack the extensive contributions which their editorial be-wails, can produce excellent humor when they have something definite to write about and know what the ins and outs of that definite something are.

Several times during the game, according to no less authority than Phil himself, he swam the "tank" length under water, coming up only to shoot the basket. In a crucial moment, however, he came up at Bordeaux and throwing the ball on French soil lost the game for his team. It was one of the few mistakes Phil's uncle ever made.

Books and things—cabbages—
Kings—as penciled by Ever Sharp

Good morning! Sh-h-h. That's just to keep up with competition offered by Mae Tinee and our own Chatty.

Did you try to find your way out to Ag hall yesterday by chance? We did. And after losing ourselves in several drifts we finally succeeded in getting there—with most of the drifts in our shoes.

We suppose that Mr. MacMillan finds our weather balmy—almost like Palm Beach. But—

Well, what about books this morning? We've been finding a good deal of delight and some amusement in these sensational short stories by Thyra Samter Winslow that everybody is talking about. (PICTURE FRAMES, by Thyra Samter Winslow; Alfred A. Knopf; $2.50 at the Book Corner.)

Critics have been praising them unqualifiedly, have even gone so far as to call them Russian. Most of the things that have been said about these stories are true, but we think that to call them Russian is a little too much of a good thing,—too high flattery.

They are Russian to the extent that the writer regards her characters dispassionately. They are simply people about whom she is not particularly concerned save for the sake of their stories.

But they are something that this country has long needed. They fill a decided gap in the reading matter of our age, and fill it well. For they are free from the wishy-washy sentimentality that characterizes so much that is being written. They are grim, as grim as severe old life really is, without coloring, overwhelmingly crude simply because they deal with crude subjects.

and possibly tomorrow's Cardinal must appear in a condensed four-page style. The regular eight-page paper will be resumed as soon as possible.

They are straightforward.

If we had not known that some of them had been published in Smart Set we wonder whether or not we should have had, now and then, a feeling that they sometimes smacked of what we suppose Smart Set stories to be. Knowing that some of these tales were originally written for that magazine, we had this feeling, that one or two passages here and there were inserted to satisfy the Smart Set standard.

Truthful. That is the epithet which most nearly fits these picture frames. "A Love Affair" is such a typical story of a poor young miss who had to sit by and watch the lad she cared a great deal for marry another snip of a girl. "Little Emma" amused us hugely. It is a delicious tale of a "girl from the country" who comes to the city with the idea of sympathizing with her millionaire employer who is misunderstood by his wife and finally winning him with her simple little country manners. It is worked out beautifully.

The largest frame in the volume incloses a Jewish family and shows its advent in New York, its life in the East Side and later on the society street of the city. It is called "A Cycle of Manhattan" and is a study of the Jew such as has not been made before by anyone in any walk of life.

Probably "Amy's Story" is the finest sketch in the book. Amy had learned somewhere that "each person's life is an interesting plot and that, if written out, it would make a fascinating story." And Amy starts her life fully convinced. Poor Amy!

Mrs. Winslow (for she is married and to a Madison man, Seymour Winslow, son of the late chief justice of the supreme court of the state) Mrs. Winslow has done something here that is worthy of high praise. We look to see her stride on to even greater heights.

Speaking of the Winslows of Madison, Horatio, who graduated here in 1904, has had a number of stories accepted by the Saturday Evening Post. It will be remembered that he wrote a play which was used by Haresfoot in 1907 and the first opera that the dramatic club produced.

CUPID BOOSTS SALE OF CANDY

"Heavenly Hash" is Latest
Confection in Sweet Kingdom

"Sweets to the sweet," so the old saying goes.

Therefore, most of the students in the university must be very sweet indeed, judging from the amount of candy sold in the city.

A great majority of the students are staunch supporters of these toothsome bits of candied sugar. "Heavenly Hash" is one of the latest confections to hold sway in the candy kingdom.

Chocolates, caramels, and fudge still retain their popular position. The feminine taste seems to run to chocolates while the masculine tooth craves candies with hard centers.

Boxes by the Hundreds

Fortunate, indeed, are the mothers and sweethearts of the men students.

Evidence only goes to prove that they lavish sweets upon their loved ones in a commendable manner. They are especially generous on holidays. Valentine's day brought about a rush that is comparable to Christmas.

According to the candy dealers, boxes were sent out by the hundreds for a period of several days.

Shamrock Pipes, Harps

A holiday also brings about a touch of originality. The individual with a sweet tooth finds many novel confections to suit the spirit of the day. On Valentine's day there were big hearts and small hearts. Saint Patrick's day brought with it candies in all shapes and forms—shamrocks, pipes, potatoes and harps.

Such is the role that candy plays in the life of the student.

SEVERSON PLAN FOR GUARD PAY

Introduces Bill To Repeal Continuing Act Appropriating $600,000

Repeal of the $600,000 continuing appropriation to the Wisconsin national guard is called for in a bill for introduction into the legislature yesterday by Senator H. J. Severson, Iola. This measure opens the fight for a severe reduction in the legislature's grant of funds to the state military establishment.

Senator Severson explained in connection with his bill that by repealing the continuing appropriation the Progressive republican leaders in the legislature would be in a position to carry out their agreement to allow the guard a $200,000 annual appropriation instead of the $600,000 now granted.

"This allowance would equal that given the guard in Iowa, Minnesota and Indiana," Senator Severson said. "There is no reason why Wisconsin should spend more than these states, particularly when claiming to be a state opposed to militarism. My bill repeals the present appropriation of $600,000 which could continue indefinitely, otherwise, and paves the way for a reduced grant."

By repealing the national guard continuing appropriation the legislature would make it necessary for each succeeding session to allow separate grants of funds to the adjutant-general's department. Should the present session become deadlocked over an appropriation bill to the guard at this session the $600,000 appropriation of two years ago, would continue.

BOBBED HAIR IN FASHION AGAIN

Sharp Edge of Madame Guillotine is Favored For the Season

The co-ed is once again—and more wrecklessly than before—yielding her crowning glory to the sharp edge of Madame Guillotine. She has found that it is easier to yield now, after having once enjoyed the advantages that bobbed hair brings.

Paris commanded the feminine world to adopt the sleek, marcelled hairdress to conform with the mode of the long slinky garb this last season.

Woman listened and obeyed.

Even the flapper, whose chief claim to that title lay in her loose ringlets, labored to achieve the desired effect. With the aid of a few rats, side pieces, switches, hairnets and countless hairpins, she subdued her crowning glory and baffled the world.

But with the coming of spring the co-ed's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of—love?—well, perhaps—but more specifically to thoughts of hiking, swimming, canoeing and other outdoor sports.

And then she thinks of her hair. The smooth coiffure may have been well enough for the ballroom, but who cares to be bothered with stray hairpins and side pieces that won't stay put in an exciting game of tennis or on a five-mile hike. According to Mrs. Kinney of the Madison Beauty Shop, bobbed hair is as popular this spring as it was last.

Favorite Hairdress Modes

"Those who tried putting their hair up this last season are having it bobbed again because of the comfort and ease of taking care of it," Mrs. Kinney said.

"Many of the girls are having their hair shingled rather close. As for long hair, the plain hairdresses are considered best.

"A favorite mode is that of parting the hair in the middle and catching it up in the back in a simple roll or rolling it over the ears. The tendency is away from puffs, stuffings and rats."

Coming—Coming—Back

"Bobbed hair is bound to come in again this spring," say the employees of Huffaker's Beauty parlors.

"This style of hairdress is sensible and very becoming to the majority of women. It subtracts years from the appearance of most people.

"We are of the opinion that it will be a long time before hair loses its popularity and favor."

Hootstown Fair Will Be Feature at Student Party

It's going to be a real country fair too. Fortune telling, stock judging, clowns, baseball game—everything that ever was seen at a country fair will be shown at the first annual Hootstown Fair. It is to be given from 4:30 to 9 o'clock at the First Congregational church on Saturday, March 24. The Christian Endeavor societies are in charge.

Melita Jenkins, the general chairman of the fair, says that it is going to be the best show in town that evening. Other people in charge are Fay Aheron, program; Ina Stevenson, refreshments; and S. CAPE POPULAR FOR SPRING USE

Local Style Experts Say Cape-Coat is Yet Favored

And the cape is still with us! In spite of the fact that it was predicted that the popularity of the cape would be on the wane this season, it has grown stronger.

"All the wraps must have a cape effect," according to Madame Angele Haberere, local style shop expert. "Some of them have large sleeves, some are coats with short capes, but the cape is everything." "Everything we are showing is either a cape or wrappy coat," declared Mrs. Colin of Manchester's, while Mrs. E. B. Stebbins of Burdick and Murray said "Capes will, indeed be very good this season."

Wraps are of almost every kind, color and material, according to the buyers.

Fur collars are very smart. One exceptionally lovely model was black velveteen, long waisted with a close fitting belt, and wide, graceful sleeves. The collar which fit close around the throat was of white fur striped with monkey fur.

Two-tones Are Popular

Platinum fox collars will also be good, although chinchilla and caracul, as usual, come in for their share of the popularity. Black and white fur combinations for collars are found on some of the smartest garments.

The collars may be of self material, however, and made with stole effect or the more popular "stand up" collars.

Two tones in capes are considered very good. Black Gerona combined with a lovely shade of gray matlesae, caught tightly with a belt at the hips, giving a Balkan blouse effect and with a smart collar trimmed with monkey fur, the whole lined with grey canton crepe, made a charming wrap.

Embroidery is used extensively. A less elaborate, but very attractive cape was of sand colored twill. It was an Irene Castle model, full, with a large stole collar and many scollops around the bottom.

ASSEMBLY HITS STATE GUARD

House Aims Second Blow At Military Department By 44 to 21

The Wisconsin National Guard received a second blow from the legislature yesterday when the assembly voted 44 to 21 to terminate state aid for maintenance of armories and to turn over the eight state-owned armories to the cities in which they are located for school and other purposes. This stand was taken by engrossment of a bill introduced by Assemblyman John Polawski, Milwaukee, socialist, author of the proposed bill to abolish the national guard, which passed the assembly.

Eight armories in the state would be turned over to the cities in which they are located should the assembly action be concurred in by the senate. The property affected is located in Oconomowoc, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Marinette, Hudson, Clintonville, Abbottsford and Tomah.

The value of real estate held by the state in these places is set at $350,000 by the adjutant general's office. In addition state aid amounting to thousands of dollars annually for rent and upkeep of armories in practically all cities maintaining national guard companies, would be stopped, providing the bill becomes a law.

In defense of the bill, Frank Weber, Milwaukee, socialist, declared that unless the state put an end to its aid for military purposes, the armories of the state would soon outnumber schools.

Assemblyman A. E. Matheson, Janesville, opposed the bill and moved its indefinite postponement, but this was voted down.

Historians And Scientists To Hold Joint Meet

The Wisconsin Archeological society and the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences, Arts and Letters will hold a joint meeting April 6 and 7 at Beloit college, Beloit.

House Passes Cashman Bill On History Texts

HISTORY text-books containing statements derogatory of the aims and accomplishments of Revolutionary war leaders, and of leaders in the war of 1812, generally used in schools throughout the state, will be barred from Wisconsin, the assembly indicated today when it engrossed the Cashman bill, already passed by the senate. The vote was 68 to 1.

All that remains before this measure becomes law is for final passage in the lower house and the signature of Governor Blaine, both of which are certain.

The proposal concurred in by the assembly provides that "no history or other text book shall be adopted for use or used in any school, which falsifies the facts regarding the War of Independence or the War of 1812, or which defames the nation's founders or misrepresents the ideals and causes for which they struggled and sacrificed, or which contains propaganda favorable to any foreign government."

Upon complaint of five citizens against any text book, the state superintendent of public instruction must hold a public hearing, and make findings within 10 days. If adverse to the book, the school district must remove the text from the schools or face loss of state aid.

Land Taxation Is Discussed By Dane

Prof. Jens Warming, of the University of Copenhagen, completed his series of lectures Friday by discussing the problem of "Taxation on Real Property" as applied to Denmark.

He explained the theories of the single taxers in Denmark, saying that although he did not agree with them in many respects, they are doing much to point the way for taxation reform. Among some of the points he made are, first, that land taxes are decreasing in Denmark and all Europe; second, land should be taxed from a standpoint of value in the country and from a standpoint of location in the class; third, increment duty should go to the community responsible for the increase in value of the property; fourth, large landowners should be forced to use their land to full value, rather than allow it to remain idle, as in garden; fifth, if these large landowners are unable to put the land to this full-use value, they must throw the land onto the market. This will force the price of small farms down, which are at present very high because the demand is so much greater than the supply; sixth, speculation in land is useful in Denmark because it holds land vacant until the kind of a building which will be needed there permanently can be decided upon; seventh, cities and villages should become more active in this speculation and private enterprise should be curbed.

Teaching Engineering—a Real Man's Work

"Why are you satisfied to spend your days here when you might be doing bigger and more remunerative work with us?" The speaker was the Vice President of a big corporation, and he was addressing a great chemist.

The man to whom he spoke looked from his study window out over a well-loved campus for several moments before he replied. Finally his answer came, "I guess it's because I am more interested in helping to make men than I would be in just making things."

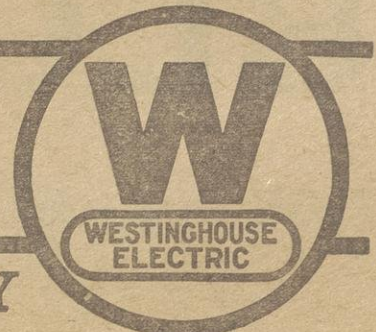

This thing of building men is one of the most fascinating vocations known. The pleasure that grows out of watching men develop, out of seeing them make effective use of the fundamentals that have been so carefully given them to use—it is doubtful if there can be any pleasure much deeper or more satisfying.

The teacher honors himself in the usefulness of his students. And the teacher of engineering, especially. His laboratory and his materials are in the minds of men. He shows them the right and constructive use of the senses and the memory in securing and storing information. He trains the judgment and the will to analyze and to decide. Little by little he develops the will to do, the ability to turn decision into accomplishment, the quality that always marks the successful engineer, who is a man who gets things done.

Westinghouse, and every engineering business, must acknowledge a deep obligation to those teachers whose training and interest have been an inspiration and a sure foundation for the individual successes that are constantly being recorded. And nothing that men or events may do can deprive the teacher of his rightful share of such triumphs!

IS SIMPLIFIED SPELLING EASY?

New Advertising Trick With Words Will Be Tried Out

oes simplified spelling in advertisements increase their appeal? John Ward Mens's shoes, incorporated, uses simplified spelling in all advertisements and letters.

"No, in my opinion, simplified spelling is a freakish method of getting attention and one which is unlikely to inspire the good will of prospective buyers," said E. A. Culler, instructor in psychology of advertising, yesterday.

"Simplified spelling has not come into general favor although it has been advocated for a considerable time. Words in the simplified form, so that they are spelled just as they sound, are more difficult and take a longer time for the average reader to comprehend than they do in standardized spelling."

"Spelling common words by the simplified method makes them 'advertising policy,' 'colleges,' 'announces,' 'representativ,' etc. Little special appeal is made to the reader except that it is unusual. Whether their needs are best filled by their present policy, as they say, the success of the John Ward company in selling their goods through their written advertising would have to determine," Mr. Culler declared.

When asked what the students were buying with their rebate money, Mr. Grady said that the book and clothing store departments were running about even.

"Don't be impatient if you have to wait in line a few minutes for your rebate," Mr. Grady warned.

ASSEMBLY IN UNEASY STATE

Legislators Are Showing Irritation Over Lack of Policy of Governor

Insurgency is breaking out into the open among the La Follette Progressive forces of the assembly and Gov. Blaine, over the taxation problem. There is evidence of a between the executive and the leaders in the lower house.

This insurgency is gradually creeping into the senate. An unwillingness to hedge on the tax issue, is given by these legislators as their reason for taking a different path from Gov. Blaine.

The division broke out in the assembly yesterday when the lower house voted without opposition to recall the Hanson bill, providing for repeal of the personal property tax offset from the income tax, from the taxation committee and place it on the calendar as a special order of business for Thursday. The governor had personally requested in two letters to the finance committee that consideration of this question be withheld until he could draft his tax bill.

By its action the lower house took a direct slap at the executive. This may be tempered by a move today to reconsider this vote and again send the bill back to the committee, but there seems to be little likelihood that the assembly will change its mind.

The personal property offset repeal is becoming an outstanding issue. Speaker John L. Dahl, together with other leaders in the lower house, and members of the senate, are strongly in favor of repealing the offset, as recommended by the state tax commission for eight years and by Gov. Blaine in his message of two years ago. They take the position that the governor could obtain removal of this section of the statutes if he would again take the stand that he did in 1921.

Instead, he is reported to be making the contention that the proposed repeal of the personal property offset could not be passed through the senate. To determine this question the assembly has called the Hanson bill to the floor. It intends to pass the measure Thursday night and immediately send it to the senate, where it will be referred to the corporations committee.

Senator Severson, chairman of this committee, will bulletin the proposal for an early hearing, and then have it sent to the floor recommended for passage. The result will be a definite line-up of the upper house on the question.

It is the contention of Progressives that the offset can be removed providing Gov. Blaine does not exert his influence against repeal in the senate. At any rate, they say that they can get a roll call on the issue which they can carry urged for years.

to the people in the next election to show them the line-up on proposals that the Progressives have. The wish expressed by Gov.

Blaine that he be given time to draw up a tax bill of his own is not meeting with favor among certain of the leaders who want to get the present session over with. They take the position that the governor has had ample time to shape his views and to express them to the legislature, without having the session extended.

Gov. Blaine, on the other hand, feels that the two general tax bills now introduced, are not satisfactory. He wishes to shape up something of his own for presentation. As yet, his ideas have not taken concrete form, according to assemblymen who have been called into conference with him on the question.

The governor also wants to go before the people with his tax views. Such a move will take time, and he feels that the legislature has plenty to do until he can go thoroughly into the revenue problem with the people. This plan of education is to include a series of informational statements issued to the press, according to the governor.

This elaborate program, coming at a time when legislators are beginning to feel their first longings for home, has caused many to feel that it may result in a lengthening of the session. They want to take up the problems and dispose of them without too much waiting, and are willing to put in a position of opposition to the governor to accomplish that object.

Gov. Blaine is calling groups of legislators to his office daily for conferences on taxation in an effort to learn their views and to explain something of his proposed plans for a general tax bill. He is devoting his attention to the assembly at present, but is expected within the next week to call in senators.

Those who have been in the conference with the governor say that he has only tentative suggestions for change in the present tax laws. While emphasizing certain of his ideas, he explains the general revenue situation and discussed means of raising additional funds.

Gov. Blaine is said now to be stressing the original plan of his message for the establishment of a ratio between general property taxes and income taxes in the state. According to legislators who have attended meetings with him, he believes that a definite ratio should be set and adhered to. He has suggested, these men say, that when a ratio is established the state should retain a certain definite proportion of the total, with the remainder being distributed back to the localities.

Another suggestion reported to have been made by the governor, is that the personal property tax offset be removed from the proportion of the income tax for state purposes and left in effect for the proportion of the tax for municipal purposes. This would in effect be a compromise between the Dahl general income tax bill which removes the entire offset, and the Severson surtax proposal which removes it on incomes paying the surtax.

HIGH BOOTS ARE YET FORBIDDEN

Low Heels Are Approved By Style Dictators For Women

One would sooner be caught in curl papers than in high shoes this spring.

That is the latest broadcast that has come out of the East, and though this is not an innovation, still it sets at rest any fears that have been entertained concerning the return of high boots into polite society.

Notwithstanding the prophecies of the venerable older generation that the present coming generations would have ankles like piano legs, low shoes hold absolute sway.

"Le Dernier Cri"

The college girl, who has enjoyed the comfort of low heels for the past year, can continue to revel in its joys for sport and street wear without being passe.

"Le dernier cri," it seems, is reptile skins for sport shoes. Alligator skin comes in a gray and a mahogany brown that is very good-looking while snake skins are used for trimming plain leather brogues or golf shoes, cobra skin leading in popularity.

Another new sport shoe has, what is called, the crepe sole, a gummy looking affair that is warranted to wear like iron.

Oxford-Pump Shoe

Elk, calf and buck are popular too, and, no doubt, will be seen hiking around the country or walking over the links during the summer months.

Proceeding to a shoe that is less sporty and equally proper for dress and street wear let us look at the "Dixie Tie," a shoe that is extremely popular here in Madison.

The tie is a cross, as it were, between an oxford and a pump. Its attractiveness lies in its good lines, for it has a medium length vamp cut by a toe line which makes its a possible vehicle for the long as well as the short foot.

Bronze For Formal Use

And speaking of colors, they are positively the thing. Beige, desert sand, fawn, Mandalay and briar brown, fog and mist grey; all are used widely this spring.

For afternoon and formal wear, bronze has come to the fore with suede and satin, the inevitable, very conspicuous.

Women's Lit Societies To Debate On Labor

The subject for the annual Pythia-Castalia public debate which will take place March 30 has been announced as "Resolved, that the constitution of the United States should be amended as to permit Federal child labor legislation."

The teams of both organizations have already been chosen, and work has been carried on for over a month preparatory to this debate, which is the annual clash between Castalia and Pythia, the two women's literary societies on the campus.

Pythia will be represented by Blanche Jandell '25, Martha Dalrymple '25, and Kathryn Bigham '25 captain of the team and closer. Castalia's team is composed of Fannie Gallas '24, Eleanor Hansen '25, and Frieda Auchter '25.

The contest is scheduled for 8 o'clock Friday evening, March 30, in Music hall. The judges and chairmen have not been officially announced as yet but will be named very soon.

Government Officials Issue Injunction To Restrain Manufacture

The first step taken by the government to close up breweries who have been found guilty of violating the national prohibition laws was taken Tuesday when temporary injunctions were placed on the Jacob L. Erickson Brewing Co., La Crosse, the Wausau Produce and Storage Co., Wausau, and the Marathon City Brewing company, Marathon City, through the United States district attorney's office by order of Judge Claude Z. Luse. The restraining order prohibits the companies from manufacturing any beer whether near or real.

IN MADISON SHOPS

One's gracefulness with a cigarette is further open to compliment if the holder is a thing of beauty—say, ivory, enamel or amber.

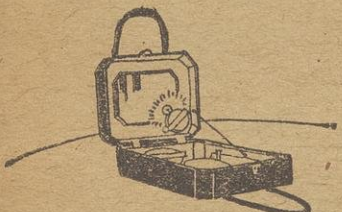

One buckles right down to the mode, if one's footwear boasts an ornament of glittering steel, bronze or jet.

A wealth of loveliness on the outside is sufficient reason for the existence of these hand bags. The contents won't matter so much.

When one's earrings and necklace decide to agree on the same motif, they will never have cause to disagree.

"Vanity—all is vanity" is one's reflection upon the interior of this beauty box—equipped to provide immediate loveliness.

Alligator Is Style Victim For New Shoe

Broad Oxfords in Black and Browns Are in Vogue This Spring

Even reptiles are being used this spring for college shoes.

When all the grim winter has left the campus and the first signs of spring appear, the question of what to wear in the shoe line will be soon a popular one.

Browns of all shades from the very dark to the lightest tans, cry out for a popular place in the spring fashions for men's oxfords, for as during the past seasons nothing will be worn but oxfords. The new light tans are very dashing and go very well with the light spring suits.

The prevalent black oxford of the past season will still be shown, but whether or not it will hold its own against the lighter colors remains to be seen.

Calfskin remains the popular leather.

It is lighter than last season. One Madison firm is offering a novel leather for its university trade. It is alligator skin in brown or grey. This leather was in fashion many years ago and now it has again come into the mode.

Oxfords, worn in the university district, are getting broader, even broader than hitherto. Toes are medium round, while many shoes are being shown with gable soles tapering from the side of the shoe to the edge of the sole.

A novelty is offered this year in black oxfords with colored stitching. The stitching may be had in green, blue, red and orange. For those desiring a different shoe, a shoe "elite," this pattern should meet with their approval.

Have you seen the sharkskin trimming on oxfords?

It is new this season and is used for the most part to trim sport shoes. Tan oxfords with brown sharkskin toe cap and apron are very smart.

Sport footwear will appear in both the plain and the two tone combinations.

London, the country of the sportsman, decrees that the separate skirts are to be worn a great deal this summer. The materials include plain effects, and two toned plaids that show up especially well in a camel-hair weave.

Junior and Soph Bowling Teams Win First Games

The Juniors and Sophomores came out at the head of the first round of the women's inter-class bowling tournament which was held Monday night in the Lathrop alleys.

In the Junior-Frosh match the Freshmen came out ahead in the first set 525 to 501, but were defeated 593 to 585 and 547 to 536 in the second and third sets. In the Senior-Sophomore contest the Sophomores won the last two set 554 to 493 and 597 to 461, after being defeated in the first set 498 to 473.

The next games are tonight when the Seniors come up against the Freshmen and the Juniors meet the Sophomores. The first games will start at 7 o'clock in the Lathrop alleys.

NEWSO'Brien, Able
Cast Succeed
In Weak Play

By H. H. P.

In "Steve", a play as slushy as the streets of Madison and refreshingly ludicrous in its alleged representation of the movies, Eugene O'Brien, aided by Helen Weir, armful of warm loveliness, and several able character actors, managed to entertain a good house at the Parkway last night.

Though we prefer O'Brien in pantomime, his elocution last night was quite creditable, considering the pitiable weakness of the vehicle. Occasion for dramatic action was rare; long talky scenes of threadbare sentiment between the star and "Granny", Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, made us want to call for a steam-shovel. But when Eugene got within reach—well, there was a gasp from the gallery. Any then, he posed....

Miss Vivian Ogden and Miss Isabel Winlocke, with a series of marvelous halapropisms, did some of the best small town stuff we have ever seen on the road. And then there was Homer Barton.

Barton brings back memories of the days when, as the idolized leading man of the home town stock company, he introduced us to the "most recent Broadway successes."

Badger Crops
Are Aided By Recent Snows

The recent snows have had a highly beneficial effect on fall sown grains, according to the semi-monthly report on the crop conditions issued by George C. Bryant, crop statistician for Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

The soil is now in good condition for spring plowing, and seeding and preparation for beginning this week are being pushed, the report said.

Marketing of grain has been delayed somewhat by the slow conditions of the roads. The report continues:

"A definite report on winter wheat and rye cannot be made at this time. A week or ten days of good growing weather will be required to determine the extent of

Hall Caine's
Novel Shown in Film Here

"THE CHRISTIAN."

Featuring an all-star cast.
Presented at the Madison.
Directed by Maurice Tourneur.

BY CHATTY.

The blizzard kept us away from church Sunday but we got the atmosphere last night when we went to see The Christian which is playing at the Madison theatre.

This is a elaborate photo production of Hall Caine's novel in which the hero, John Storm, puts his religious beliefs above parental concern, is disowned by his father in the usual manner, enters a monastery and soon leaves that institution to return to his Irish love, who in the mean time has become a well-known opera star.

The play has emphatically exaggerated some of Mr. Hall's scenes. Perhaps this is to be expected in a picture which portrays such mob scenes as does the Christian.

Mae Bush and Richard Dix, who share leading honors, fit their parts very well and are better than the majority of actors one finds on the cinematic stage.

The Parkway will open tomorrow afternoon, after two days of stage features, with a movie which is being run by the sophomore class as a benefit production. According to all press reports, it's a winner. Burns Mantle listed the play from which the story is taken among the 10 best stage productions of 1921-22. It's called "The Hero" and Barbara La Marr is being starred in the main feminine role.

Denver Railway Case
Calls Wong From Duties

Francis P. Woy, lecturer in the Department of Commercial Engineering, has been called to Denver, Colo., to act as an expert witness in a suit brought against the Denver Street railways. Woy was connected with the Denver railway several years ago as consulting engineer.

As the length of his stay in Denver was not known at the time of his departure, Woy arranged to have several professors and members of the Industrial Commission lecture to his classes during his absence.

SPRING STYLE EXPOSITION

March 21, 22 and 23

SELECT your new things for Spring this week.. You'll find the season's greatest variety to choose from, and thus will be assured of getting "just what you want". From leading couturiers and designers of Paris and New York we have just received models showing the newest and most authentic styles for Spring.

Informal showing of Frocks, Coats, Wraps, Millinery, Blouses, Accessories, Lingerie

HATS are setting the color note for the most colorful of seasons! And the most picturesque of hats! Cloches and pokes—youthful, smart, becoming. Type hats you'll find here. Particular person hats. Pattern hats. One of a kind hats.

THE blouse for Spring would never be thought a blouse a season or so ago! Indeed, the present blouse appears as an integral part of a costume, rather than an individual element. And such winsome blouses! Colorful, of course, but who can blame them, when the land of the sunny Nile is their inspiration?

ACCESSORIES—who called them trifles? The very new, very slender silk gloves boast fluted side frills, or smart insets, embroidery, or tuckings. Ribbons express themselves colorfully in terms of iridescent, ombre, and subtly blended tints. Time-ly hose appear with hand drawn clocks.

'TIS certain, every well thought out wardrobe must include a trig sport, traveling, and what not suit of tweed in a mixture or smart block plaid. So many colorful accessories, too, you'll find at Manchester's with which to build a distinctive outdoor appearance.
