ORATORS TONIGHT

SOMETHING ABOUT THE MEN WHO TAKE PART.

AND THE SUBJECTS OF THEIR ORATIONS.

Interesting Notes of the Orators in This Evening's Contest.

As the contest of the Northern Oratorical league occurs this evening the following will be of interest concerning the orators:

R. A. Elward, Wisconsin's representative, was born at St. Paul, Minn., in 1871. He took the course in the public schools of that city and then went to the Whitewater normal school, where he spent three years, winning the oratorical contest while there. He then attended Knox college but entered the sophomore class of Wisconsin university in the fall of 1892. He entered the law school the next fall and will graduate this spring. He won the Junior Ex for Athena in 1894 and in the final contest of this year took first place with his oration on the "Wandering Jew."

J. H. Mays, of the University of Michigan, was born June 29, 1868, in Tennessee. His family moved to Galena, Kan., where he spent his early life at work, getting what schooling he could. He entered the state normal school at Emporia, Kas., where he spent three years. In 1890 he entered the University of Michigan, with the class of '95. He secured a position with an insurance company, working during vacations. He represented his university in the 1894 debate with Northwestern, receiving highest marks on both argument and delivery. By winning his class and university contest this year he became the representative to Iowa City.

This will be the second time that C. R. Raymond has represented Oberlin in the Northern league contest. When he was a sophomore he received third place in the contest of the league. He was born Feb. 29, 1872, at Angola, N. Y. He graduated from the Angola academy in 1889. After working a year he entered the senior preparatory class at Oberlin. He was the editor-in-chief of the Hi—O—Hi, the junior annual and is at present editor-in-chief of the Oberlin Review. His oration is entitled "Regiment-Americanism."

The University of Chicago will be represented by H. F. Atwood. He was born near Blue Island, Cook county, Ill., in Jan. 1, 1870. He took a course at Bryant and Stratton's business college, and studied for a time in the high school of the town of Lake. He graduated from the Illinois military academy in 1891. After a year in business in New York he took the course at Morgan Park academy, and was one of the first to enter the new university of Chicago. His oration is entitled "Reasons for a New Political Party."

A sophomore will represent Iowa University. H. W. Hanson was born Sept. 1, 1872, in Chillicothe, Mo. He graduated from Howe's academy in 1892. After that he left school for a time. After entering Iowa University he was elected business manager of the S. U. I. Quill. He won the freshman contest as a representative of the Zetagathian society. He has been elected business manager of next year's junior annual.

E. P. Bennett is a junior at Northwestern. He was born at Pittsburg, Pa. He studied at the public schools in that city and also a mercantile college there. In 1887 he entered the ministry of the Methodist church. His present charge is at Lowell, Ind. He graduated from the preparatory department of Northwestern. During his freshman year he was elected "Trig orator." This year he represented Northwestern in the debate with Michigan. He was also a member of the '96 Syllabus board. He will speak on "Wendell Phillips, a Product of His Times."

TOMORROW'S GAME.

Everybody who has paid any attention at all for the last few weeks cannot help but see that tomorrow's ball game with Chicago is an important one and is bound to be both close and interesting. Chicago has earned the reputation of being composed of some heavy hitters. Added to this Stagg's men have the enviable record of not having lost a game so far this season. Students who have been waiting their chance for witnessing a close and exciting contest ought to turn out tomorrow and get acquainted with the good points of the team. The boys are in the best of condition and are as well equipped to meet their opponents as could be expected. Wisconsin has never been defeated by Chicago on the home grounds, but they have been twice beaten at Chicago. Everything shows that it will be a hard-fought battle and will go a long way toward telling us what we are in relation to the many college teams Chicago has defeated; among them Northwestern, Lake Forest and Rush Medical.

The following is the batting order of the teams.

Wisconsin.	Position.	Chicago.
Runkel	p	Nichols

FRESHMAN MEETING.

The class of '98 held one of their most exciting meetings this afternoon. It was rumored that a report in regard to the carrying of canes by the class would be considered. The sophomores succeeded in obtaining possession of the room intended for the meeting, but the freshmen took one of the rooms on the second floor. The only business which was transacted was the adoption of a report of some committee, which, it is understood, is favorable to the canes. The meeting then adjourned.

—Miss Winifred Harman, '96, returned from Oshkosh Thursday evening.

—M. J. Gillen, '96, left for his home this morning.

A NEW SECRETARY

ELECTED BY THE Y. M. C. A. AND Y. W. C. A. LAST EVENING.

GRANT SHOWERMAN WILL FILL THE PLACE.

Perhaps the Young Women Will Have a Secretary of Their Own.

The university Y. M. C. A. held a very important business meeting in the law building last evening. A very good audience was present and much interest was shown concerning the topic under discussion.

The occasion for this meeting was the election of a general secretary for the association for the next two years, so that it may be readily seen much importance was placed upon this meeting. After considerable discussion for and against having a university student in this office in place of some other person, it was finally decided to elect a person who has been a student here for some years and who, therefore, would have many qualifications which a stranger would not have at first.

Prof. Williams, secretary of the university Y. M. C. A. building fund, was present and gave some very valuable information and made many good suggestions from his experience as a member of the association of about twenty years. Mr. Grant Showerman was elected as general secretary upon the first ballot.

Mr. Showerman is a junior in the ancient classical course, and is a man well fitted for the new and responsible position to which he has just been elected. He is well known in the university, having been a member of the Glee club for several years and also a member of the '96 Badger Board, and has held several other important offices thus far in his course. He has had considerable experience in Y. M. C. A. work during the past three years and has always been a hard and conscientious worker wherever he has been placed. He brings with him in being a student in the university many qualifications which a stranger would not have.

Mr. J. M. Beffel, the retiring general secretary, has occupied this position for the past three years, and during this time the association has grown and is now in quite a flourishing condition. Mr. Beffel has done good work and will be greatly missed by the association at the end of this year.

The subject of having a secretary for the Y. W. C. A. was also discussed, and will be special order of business at the corporation meeting to be held next Thursday.

—F. E. Bump, law '96, was appointed by President Adams as the delegate from the university at the meeting to be held in Chicago today and tomorrow in the interest of civil service reform. He left for Chicago yesterday.

—On account of the rain yesterday there was no battalion drill.

AN AQUATIC FETE.

One Being Planned by the Naval Board for This Month.

One of the events of which the naval board will take charge this spring will be that of getting up an evening fete. The officers of the navy have been planning an entertainment of this character for some time past. The idea was suggested by a similar one which seems to have originated in some one of the ladies eastern colleges. The scheme carried out by the naval board will be substantially as follows: An evening in the latter part of May will be decided upon when the moon will be fairly on toward its first quarter. The university band will be at the boat house. Another will be placed at the city boat house. The musical clubs will be asked to contribute their talents and time. Some of them will probably be located on some of the broad verandas along the shore. Others will be put aboard steamers or floats on the water. Then all the property owners will be asked to illuminate and decorate with lanterns their homes and shores along the lake. Care will be taken to select a quiet evening so that the sail boats and other crafts on the lake may be decorated by strings of lanterns hanging from the mast heads to the stern bows of the boats. All the crafts the boat houses contain will of course be upon the water, which will of itself present a scene of liveliness and festivity. Not a small part of the motive of the naval authorities in planning this fete is the hope that it will be another means of bringing students and residents to a fuller appreciation of the manifold pleasures that may be derived from a proper use of the beautiful stretches of water so near at hand. The annual regatta is considered another means to this end. The regatta when properly enjoyed is not a pleasure merely in the excitement that may attend some of its contests. The enlivened scene presented by a large concourse of people gathered along the shores or darting back and forth in all manner of crafts over the even stretches of water is a large part of the pleasure to the "regatta cultivated" eye. The wide stretch over which the events of the regatta occur and the continuous beauty of it all is to be included in the enjoyment of such fetes upon the water.

A MILITARY BALL.

Another of the popular military balls will be given by the university battalion next Saturday evening. The event will take place at Library hall and the price of admission will remain twenty-five cents as heretofore. No person will be allowed on the floor unless wearing the official uniform of the battalion and the floor committee will see that this rule is strictly enforced. Excellent music has been secured and dancing may be indulged in between the hours of eight and eleven p. m. The affair promises to be even more successful than its predecessors.

RECEPTION.

President and Mrs. Adams will be at home to receive students of the university Saturday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock.

should be sent to the business manager.

The Daily Cardinal,
Madison, Wis.
Room 7, Democrat Building.

The students of the university are given a chance to hear a concert tonight that they should not miss. It is not often that the Thomas Orchestra can be heard at Madison and it is a rare treat for all when it does come.

The sophomores are foolish to try to stop freshman class meetings. If the freshmen decide to carry canes and then get them it will be time for the sophomores to act but until such action is taken the sophs have no right to interfere.

Tomorrow's ball game should be well attended. It will without doubt be one of the most interesting games this spring and will not lack in good plays. Chicago defeated us last year for that reason the game will have even more interest than usual.

Tonight the intercollegiate contest takes place by which the championship will be conferred for another year.
The outcome will be watched with interest and students desiring to secure copies of the winning orations can do so by procuring the number of the Aegis in which they will appear.

COMMUNICATION.

Editor Cardinal:—It appears from the last report of the secretary of the board of regents, that for the year 1893-'94 there was collected from students in the way of tuition and fees $36,093. For the same time the amount paid out for the items classified in the report as incidentals, laboratory supplies, fuel, light, janitor service, printing and advertising $38,300. It would seem as though these are all the items of expense for which students should be expected to pay incidental or laboratory fees. From a comparison of these amounts does it look as though the recent enormous increase in fees is necessary or justifiable? To be sure we now have an increased expense for the gymnasium but the fees from six or seven hundred users ought to cover that. It is evident from the above figures that an increase of two or three dollars per year in incidental fees would amply meet the deficiency. Assuming that the number of students next year will equal those of this year, one will find by making the calculation, that under the new scale of fees the students will next year pay as tuition and fees of various kinds, $60,000. Does this not look like tuition under another name? And since the law especially forbids the charging of tuition, excepting in the law school, is it not illegal? The supreme court has decided that the board of regents can only charge incidental fee to cover such items as fuel, light, and janitor service. How then can they legally charge engineering and pharmacy students twice as much as the others for incidental fees? Their laboratory and shop fees are high enough to abundantly cover all the material and power they use. In fact, is not the increase in fees too much all around? If this is a free state institution, why should it not be free?

ON GREEK LIFE.

Yesterday afternoon Prof. C. F.
Smith lectured on Greek Life, in the physics lecture room of science hall.
His address was more particularly upon the dress of the Greeks, and was illustrated by about thirty stereopticon views.

The costumes of the men and women differed but little. The principal garment for both was the himation, a rectangular piece of drapery corresponding to the toga of the Romans.
This was arranged in various ways; indeed Plato's test of a gentleman was the manner in which one wore the himation. Aeschines, on the contrary, depended more upon the voice and used but little gesticulation.
The latter wore his entirely over the right arm and shoulder. Beneath the himation was the chiton, or tunic, which was worn next the body. On men it reached to the knees, on women to the feet and in both cases was confined at the hips by a girdle. The chlamys was a cloak or mantle worn by travelers and soldiers. Sandals were of various shapes and kinds.
Some consisted of a single sole fastened to the foot by two or three thongs and others were variously complex and bewildering to the unpracticed modern eye. Cork soles were worn by the ladies of Athens, as are high heels in the present day, to add to the height. Sandals were never worn in the house, and by some, including Socrates, not worn on the street. Hats were worn, but only by travelers, as a protection from rain or sun. Ulysses is always represented in a close-fitting sailor cap. The Greeks always wore their hair long. In the time of Homer the Greeks sat at the table upon chairs, but from the orient they imported the custom of reclining during meals upon couches. This kline, or couch, as a seat of honor corresponded to the sofa of the Germans.
Upon this the Greeks ate, slept, and even laid out their dead. It had four legs, was long and narrow, and devoid of springs like an old-fashioned cord-bed.

MELVIN CLUB.

Next Wednesday evening the Melvin club will be entertained by Mrs.
Justice J. B. Winslow at her home on Langdon street. The affair will be a Cardinal Newman evening. Father Calmar, a Jesuit priest of Milwaukee, will deliver an address on Cardinal Newman and Mr. John F. Doherty will give a recitation. One of the musical numbers will be Cardinal Newman's famous hymn, Lead Kindly Light."

with '94, was also successful in passing the examination.

ORGANISM OF THE HOUSE.

Mrs. Cambell lectures on Household Economics.

Accustomed as we are to the interior of the house to use, and the outside to look at, we often forget what its true make-up should be. As an organism the house has no vital force to replace its own waste. Man is the agent here and must provide such artificial replacement as is necessary.
Ventilation of the house most required being, as it is, a place where we live all the time and not occasionally.
In this one respect we are still quite primitive; the woman of the house is still expected in some nationalities to stay at home with the cat and the chimney and to breathe the foul, stagnant air. To compel children to remain in the house as a means of punishment is a colossal wrong. In a New York court house five judges have died, their death caused by the bad ventilation of the court room.
All houses should be provided with ventilators, both at the base and ceiling of the rooms. The flue that conducts away the bad air should be provided with a gas burner to ensure a current upward. Some of our school buildings are as bad as the Calcutta Black Hole. In New York city hundreds and hundreds of work shops are veritable dens for stifling humanity.

As a rule houses are overheated to a frightful degree. Seventy degrees should be the maximum heat; 60 degrees would be still more healthy.
Wall-registers are less harmful than floor registers. Natural gas as heat has proven decidedly injurious, drying up furniture, the house itself and even the inmates. Light comes perhaps before heat. Sunshine is and always will be a tonic and a disinfectant in the house. Lamps are still most serviceable where continued reading is necessary.
The roar of the small boy when water is applied to his face only bespeaks the attitude of many people to proper sanitary conditions. On the farm where ignorance begets bad drainage, wells become veritable pools for the collection of the drainage of the barn yard and cess pool. Typhoid fever follows in the course of such sanitary conditions. It is an evil the remedy of which lies mainly with women. The cistern is as well an object of attack. These may be made less dangerous by filterers, a simple brick wall dividing into two portions a good-sized cistern: one to serve as a receptacle of the filtered water.

The evolution of the house may be traced through these tendencies toward better water, air and sunshine.
