Five Men Suspended
From University After
Nocturnal AdventuresNight Raid of Seven Depletes
Furnishings of College
Women's Club

By a recommendation made to Pres. Glenn Frank by Dean Scott H. Goodnight yesterday afternoon, five summer students were suspended for an indefinite period from the university and one graduate was deprived of the privilege of returning as a graduate student.

The six men are all resident in the same fraternity house. Two attended the university during the past semester, while the others are reported as being from Yale and are said to be members of the Cloister club there. Two were not enrolled as students in the university Summer Session.

Suspension Follows Charges

Suspension followed charges of grand larceny brought against the men in police court yesterday morning, resulting from the purloining of furnishings from the Alpha Xi Delta sorority house and College Women's Club house last Thursday night.

All the furniture was later discovered in the residence of the men. Among articles taken were settees, chairs, and other hickory porch furniture from the College Women's club, and three oriental rugs, a floor lamp, ferns, and other property from the Alpha Xi Delta domicile.

Furniture Returned

The identity of the parties was discovered by a resident of the latter place, who saw them leaving the house and was able to recognize one of the nocturnal furniture movers by his hair. The furniture taken from the houses was returned Thursday afternoon.

Dean Goodnight's official statement follows:

President Glenn Frank,
University of Wisconsin.

Dear Sir,

Permit me to recommend suspension from the Summer Session of 1927 in the cases of Walter J. Muller, Gen. C. 4, Fred A. Nash of Omaha, Neb., Henry Malcolm Gilchrist of Cleveland, Ohio, William Calloway Shepp of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Charles H. De Saulles, Jr., of New York City. Also that on the record of John Mackenzie Ward, who graduated from the University of Wisconsin in June, an entry be made which will prevent his return as a graduate student.

Very respectfully yours,
SCOTT H. GOODNIGHT,
Dean of Men.

SCHOOL PROGRAM
INCLUDES HEALTH
—STOOPS

Lecturer Expounds Physical Education Methods Practiced in High Schools

Prof. R. O. Stoop's lecture, "A Same Problem of Physical and Health Education," was given yesterday afternoon in the Biology Auditorium at 3:30. "Health education has a regular place in the regular school program," said Prof. Stoops, "and the teacher should endeavor to make his health program well-rounded rather than complex."

The speaker continued by indicating three main types of health work in schools. The teacher can help directly about four per cent of the pupils through (1) inspection; in (2) remedial health work he is of real assistance to about fifty per cent of his pupils; and in (3) preventative measures he can be of practical service to one hundred per cent of his pupils—the total enrollment.

A thorough health program with doctors, nurses, dentists, and physical education teachers upon the school staff, often serving on a part time bases, is not an expensive one and is ideally adaptable to almost any size school from the large city system to the district country school.

Prof. Harris Explains
Rhythms of French
Music in Lecture

French piano music is marked by brilliant rhythms rather than pure emotions, and pictures things rather than feelings, declared Professor Julian Harris, of the French department, in a well-attended lecture on French piano music in Iathrop parlors on Thursday afternoon. Professor Harris, who is a pianist of reputation, illustrated his discussion on the piano.

"In the music of the Clavecinists of the 18th century are qualities of charm, delicacy, and wit which evoke the spirit of the court life of the Louis and a definite tendency to call forth images by sounds," he continued. Compositions of Couperin, Daquin, and Rameau which are full of trills, runs and flourishes, were played to illustrate this period.

"Debussy, the founder of the modern impressionistic school is music, is unique for his disturbing absence of rhythms and his unusual harmonic progressions," Mr. Harris stated. Four characteristic compositions of Debussy were played: "Voiles," which luminously pictures the sails of a ship; "Danseuses de Delphé," which is marked by a strong sense of rhythm; "La Cathédrale Engloutie," based on a Briton legend of a cathedral which twice rose out of the sea; and "Clair de Lune," (Moonlight).

Ravel, a disciple of Debussy, who reverts more to classic forms than his master, was represented by "Sonatine," and "Pavane pour une enfant défunte."

Perhaps the most thoroughly appreciated composition on the program were the Cesar Franck selections, which Mr. Harris interpreted in a brilliant manner. "Cesar Franck is more solid than most French composers," Mr. Harris explained, "and expresses sincere and profound emotions."

Journalists Will Open University's Series of Wisconsin Resources Meetings

The launching of the preliminary Wisconsin Resources conference at the university will take place next Monday, when the auto caravan of the Wisconsin Press association winds up in Madison its four-day "Know Wisconsin Better" trip through the southwest corner of the state.

The conference grew out of the invitation extended to state editor's by Pres. Glenn Frank at the February convention of the W. P. A. The joint committee has arranged the following program.

Have Extensive Program

Meeting in Bascom theatre at 10:30 a. m., July 18; address by President Glenn Frank, "A Wisconsin Institute on the Future of the Commonwealth."

Luncheon at refectory of men's dormitories.

Afternoon conference, either in the dormitories or in Bascom theatre:

"When the Chemist Puts Factories on the Farm," by Prof. Louis Kahleberg, of the chemistry department:

Discussion by John A. Kuypers, president of the Wisconsin Press association Democrat, and by Frank Starbuck, and editor of the De Pere Journal—president of the Wisconsin Daily League and editor of the Racine Journal News.

For State Editors

The institute is planned for all editors of the state, including editors of dailies, as well as weekly editors who do or do not belong to the W. P. A. The object is to take an inventory of the resources of the state, and to arrive at the relation and position of the press as a factor in the development of these resources.

The meeting will terminate the annual "gypsy tour" of the weekly editors in the W. P. A. They will assemble in Black River Falls on Thursday afternoon, July 14, to begin the automobile trip through the southwest region. On July 15, the caravan will go to Winona, Minn., and after a noon stop there will proceed to La Crosse for the night.

C. A. Building; Appearance of Paper Altered

Final plans for the Daily Cardinal's own publishing plant to be put into operation next fall, were drawn up by the directors of the Cardinal Publishing company at their meeting yesterday.

Wisconsin women with the party are Frances M. Corbin, Helen Iglaed, Virginia Bump, Ruth M. Buhlig, Blanche L. Buhlig, Dorothy R. Bucklin, and Alice Fox. Other members of the party are Ella Kuehltham, Minnie Westheimer, Edna F. Shelt, Rachael McCrae, and Florence M. Züber.

The tour is one under the auspices of the Open Road, cooperating with the International Student Federation.

In addition to visiting places of special interest because of their association with English men of letters, the International Federation arranges meetings between students of the country visited and members of the American tour. Miss White, who is leading the party this summer, conducted a similar expedition last year.

560 Students Are Working Their Way
in Summer School

Of the 5,200 students enrolled in the Summer Session about 560 of these are working their way through school. Of the number 280 are women.

The positions filled are varied and show the versatility of the wage earners. Waiting on table, in return for which the student gets his meals, seems to lead all of the others. Typists, tailors, stenographers, housemaids, salesmen, barber, tutors, dishwashers, watchmen, garage mechanics, and children's maids are some of the most common types of employment.

Those athletically inclined are working as laborers and lifeguards, as it not only helps to pay their tuition but helps to keep them in trim for fall sports.

Many of the men and women employed are taking two credits of work and are employed the rest of the day, while the major are carrying the regular six credits.

S. S. DIRECTORIES WILL BE OUT NEXT WEEK

According to an announcement made by Dean Goodnight's office, the directory of summer session students, published by the university will be ready for distribution next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Clifford Devereaux, Zinta
Graf Please in Spanish Play

BY M. A. L.

Although flaws showed up in spots, Clifford Devereaux and Zinta Graf of the Clifford Devereux Company, New York, succeeded in pleasing the audiences which filled the new Bascom theatre Thursday and last night to see "The Romance of Youth," a poetic drama by Serafin and Joaquin Alvarz-Quintero.

As its name implies, the piece is a fanciful thing, and the action is laid in Spain during the period 1805 to 1850. Love is its theme, and to be fully appreciated, it must be seen by an audience in an imaginative mood. Those who enjoy old time romance, it is indeed a welcome change from the snappy stuff of today, and Mr. Devereux and his leading lady, Miss Graf, provided pleasant dreams for those who cared to seek the poetry of life.

So much for the play as a whole. As for the acting, it may be said that it was good, but not quite uniformly so. There were times when Mr. Devereux's work lacked conviction. There was a slight tendency to feel that he was merely reading poetic lines. He seemed altogether too matter-of-fact when he was describing his love in the first act. But there were other times when Mr. Devereux, as Berto Cellini, the madcap son of an innkeeper, quite charmed his audience with his interpretation of what really was three roles instead of one.

Miss Graf, playing the part of Duke Fontana's daughter, handled her emotions quite well. She, too, was faced with a difficult task—that of portraying a girl in 1805 and a grandmother in 1850. It was only when she tried to fit about as a sweet young thing that sincerity was lacking in her acting.

It would have been better to have a word for he who set the stage—watered the first act shrubbery. The wilted bushes did not harmonize with the atmosphere of youthful romance in a garden of old Spain.

"The Romance of Youth" was a pleasing bit of variety, but we cannot help but look forward to the next efforts of our own campus talent under the direction of "Bill" Troutman.

NEARLY A SCORE OF NEW COURSES

Special Department of Comparative Literature is One Summer Innovation

The creation of a special department of comparative literature is only one of nearly a score innovations added to the curriculum of the 29th summer session of the university. Five courses are offered in the department.

Junior and senior high school methods of teaching music, and a new appreciation course for teachers have been introduced by the School of Music. A new course in instrumental class instruction will offer the Wisconsin High school and groups of pupils as a laboratory.

The completion of the new Bascom theatre in the addition to Bascom hall enables the speech department to offer a new course in stage lighting and scene design.

Camp leadership for women, a novel course on the regular university curriculum, is being given during the summer this year, too.

Prof. Margaret N. H'Doubler is giving a new summer school course in the philosophy of the dance.

COURTS MAY GET VILLAGE FIGHT

Plan Action to Stop Repeated Waunakee Elections; Claim Irregular Voting

WAUNAKEE, Wis.—Residents of this village, opposed to the building of a waterworks and sewage disposal plant, will take active steps to see that the village board authorizes no more elections to create a $40,000 bond issue for the purpose.

Following the election Wednesday, at which proposals for both waterworks and sewage bond issue was defeated by a few votes, members of the board expressed opinions that another election would be held in the near future. Wednesday's referendum was the second at which the village voters have defeated the bond issue.

Charles E. McWatty, one of the group which is opposed to the bond issue, said today that the matter would be carried into the courts.

Cities Expenses

"We are going to have the courts determine whether the village of Waunakee can be put to the expense of a number of elections," he explained, "and whether a minority can hold an election whenever they feel like it. We also wish to test the legality of some of the challenges of votes made at the Wednesday election."

Mr. McWatty told how old people, whose citizenship had been established years ago, had their votes challenged by the election officials, who made no attempt to stop certain people known to be non-residents from voting.

The opponents of the improvements feel that the village is unable to withstand the costs the waterworks and sewage disposal plant will bring. In a circular broadcast the night preceding the election they claimed that no village of the size of Waunakee ever went into debt for the sum of $100,000, which they claimed would be the least cost of the improvements as estimated.

"Waunakee is not ready for any such expensive project as this," the circular reads. "Do not vote for a measure that is going to put the taxpayers in debt and mean a mortgage for years to come. Vote 'NO' on all issues and keep your home free from debt."

In answer to the circular, the proponents of the improvements called a public meeting at the village hall on Tuesday night. Among the speakers were C. M. Baker, state sanitary engineer; William Ryan, village attorney and Madison lawyer; Mr. Parsons, village engineer; O. H. Burmeister, Middleton; Mr. Luenberger, De Forest and Bert Richmond, Lodi.

Calls Protest "Bluff"

At the meeting, Mr. Ryan told the assemblage that the threats made by those opposed to the referendum were only "bluffs" and that if this referendum failed another could be held, without any violation of the state statutes. This was in answer to a protest against the election filed by Bagley, Spohn and Ross, Madison attorneys.

Mr. McWatty and his adherents feel that many people are being allowed to cast votes in the referendum who are not really residents of the village.

"Waunakee has a population of 598, according to the latest census," he explained. "At this latest election, 376 votes were cast, which is almost 65 per cent of the population. There has never been a town where 65 per cent of the population has been on the voting list. There is no question but what there have been some violations of the law."

Assembly Recalls Bank Tax Bill to Add Amendments

Assemblyman Frank Lawson's bill providing for taxation of banks on their incomes, which has passed both houses of the legislature, has been recalled from the governor for amendment. A resolution asking for return of the bill was introduced last week by Assemblyman A. E. Smith, and adopted by the house. It is likely now that the governor will not have the bill before him again for a week or ten days.

It is not known what amendments Assemblyman Smith is going to suggest, but they evidently will not be objectionable as proponents of the bill did not object to recall of the bill.

The proposed new plan will increase the cost of the improvement to about $200,000, it is claimed. The change will require the construction of a new concrete pavement running parallel with the present extension of the avenue formerly known as Van Dusen st.

WASHINGTON ASKS RECONSIDERATION OF COACH CALLOW

U. of Penn. Offers Alluring
Salary; Callow to Decide
Later

The University of Washington is biding every effort to retain the services of Russell Callow, crew coach of that university for the past five seasons. The university has gotten in touch with Callow by cable and has asked him to reconsider his resignation tendered at the close of the regatta at Poughkeepsie.

Reports are that Callow will consider the matter later and would take no definite action at the present. Callow has still two years to complete of a contract made at the close of the season last year when it was reported that he would resign.

Ask Release

Callow has asked that the board of control of the university to release him Sept. 1, 1927. It was thought that the board would agree and their decision not to do so came as a surprise to the sporting world.

The University of Pennsylvania is particularly desirous of obtaining the coach who has made a success of his work at the western school. Pennsylvania offers between four and five thousand dollars increase in salary to that he is now receiving at Washington.

This salary will be one of the biggest that has ever been offered any coach of crew. Sport followers see little hope of his reconsidering his resignation believing him to have made up his mind fully at the time of submitting the withdrawal.

Callow Now Coaching

Callow is at the present time in Cuba where he is coaching the Havana Boat Club. He left for Cuba following the disbandment of the crews at 'Keepie' after the regatta.

It was on Callow's suggestion that the Washington crew stopped off at Madison this spring on their way to the Hudson, Madison crew fans had the only opportunity at that time to see the Badger varsity in action against university caliber.

Crews All Successes

The Washington crews for the past five seasons have all had good fortune to be among the leaders. The Junior varsity taking first this year while the varsity was second in its race.

Callow's varsity crews were first in 1923, 1924, and 1926, and were second in 1925 and 1927.

Sign Papers to Make Maitland Colonel
in National Guard

Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman and Adj't. Gen. Ralph Immell today signed the commission of the Wisconsin National Guard making Lieut. Lester J. Maitland a colonel in that organization.

In recognition of Maitland's flight from the west coast to Hawaii, the governor had advised the flyer that he would appoint him colonel in the National Guard if army regulations permitted. He was to become a member of the governor's staff, with such appointment.

The commission of colonel in the Wisconsin National Guard, granted by Gov. Zimmerman, to Lieut. Maitland, has been executed, but notice has not been received from the war department as yet whether the commission will be allowed. There is some question in the minds of local army officers as to whether the war department will allow Lieut. Maitland to accept such a commission.

Finance Committee Fails to Show Up

The joint finance committee of the legislature, expected to return to work previous to the convening of the legislature Monday evening, July 1, has not yet held any meetings this week, but the reference library is doing some work on drafting of appropriation bills.

The appropriation bills are being drafted by the reference library include the University of Wisconsin and normal school budget request measures. It is expected that these bills will probably be "reported out" either on Monday night or Tuesday morning. The appropriation bills will probably grant an increase to the university of about $900,000 for the biennium, and more than a million and a half dollars to the normal schools. This program.

Three U. W. Coaches on Summer Staff of La Crosse Normal

LA CROSSE—The La Crosse State Teacher's college, devoted primarily to the development of physical education coaches is entertaining its third Big 10 athletic coach this week.

George Little, athletic director at the University of Wisconsin, is the latest addition to the Maroon and Gray summer school coaching staff.

Starts Work

Director Little has already started actual demonstrations of blocking and tackling and has two complete elevens to work with during the next two weeks during which he will have full charge of football training.

This marks the second year that Little has been instructor in the summer school football course at La Crosse. Coaches Tom Jones and Tom Lieb of the University of Wisconsin yesterday closed a two weeks course of instruction in track and field work. Jones head coach at Wisconsin, was assisted by Lieb, former Notre Dame and Olympic star, in the weight events.

Superior Has School

The Kiwanis club at Superior is sponsoring the annual coaches' summer school at Superior Normal school. This school will open July 18 and continue through July 30.

The school will be under the direction of Coach Glenn S. (Pop) Warner of Leland Stanford university, and Dr. Forrest C. Allen, University of Kansas, both nationally known in sporting circles. Warner will take over the football coaching and Allen the basketball.

Ira Tubbs, coach at Superior Normal school, who claims the idea of summer coaching schools in the United States as his own, is assisting in the promotion work of the school.

LOGAN, Utah—Knut Rockne, famous Notre Dame football mentor, opened a two weeks' football coaching school here Thursday. Nearly 100 coaches were in attendance. The school consists of a two-hour daily lecture and the same period each day on the field in practical demonstration.

Doug Fairbanks at Madison in "The Thief of Bagdad"

BY AL

If you haven't seen "The Thief of Bagdad" as yet and if you enjoy a show full of adventure, by all means see it at the Madison this week in its return engagement here. Douglas Fairbanks as star never did any better, even in his "Black Pirate," a more recent picture.

The plot, taken from the Arabian Nights type of story, deals throughout with the fantastic and the supernatural. Fairbanks as a clever thief finds his life of crime interesting until he meets the caliph's daughter, and then it's a case of killing the dragon to win the princess. It's all there—the fiery monster, the flying carpet, the magic chest; in a background of scenery which carries you into another world.

And Doug is in his element as never before, doing rope climbing and hurdling besides a bit of real acting. He has a companion who will make you laugh and a leading lady who will thrill you.

Although the rest of the show is summed up in a short reel in Dempsey in training, you'll be grateful for a picture like the "Thief of Bagdad."

$1 Fines Jog Memory

Towns in A. C. Contest Rushing Work on Roads

The seven towns entered in the town roads contest being sponsored by the Madison Association of Commerce are busily engaged this summer in improving their roads. Since July 4 road construction has been brisk. Road contractors have been aided by good weather in pushing their work.

Cash prizes will be given at the end of the 1927 season to the town having made the greatest improvement. Blooming Grove, Burke, Dunn, Madison, Verona, Westport, and York are entered.

It is predicted that by the end of the summer every farmer in the town of Burke will have a gravel road outlet from his farm.

Blooming Grove is spending about $12,000 of town and county funds grading and graveling 3 1/2 miles of highway on the Madison-Seminary Springs road and on county trunk highway T. Burke is spending $5,500 of town and county funds on the road east of Burke station. All of Sherman ave. including a 404-foot strip in front of Lakewood school, will be paved.

County collects $147,394 State Inheritance Tax

County Treasurer H. G. Rinder today sent to the state treasurer a check for $147,394.4, representing inheritance tax collections for the quarter ending June 30. The county retained $1,985 as its share.

Sport Notes

It's really too nice these days to spend sitting indoors pounding a typewriter. There are a lot of better things a fellow could think of than cracking the books and trying to write stuff that no one reads. For instance at this writing I think that a swim would feel fine or I'd just as soon sail a bit.

Talking about a swim have you seen these two good-looking fellows Wheatley and Simpson disporting themselves before the fair admirers on the piers on the lower end of Langdon street. The sweet young things just flock to the pier that these two strut their stuff on. One of that kind said, "Oh, I'd just like to know when that Stan comes down! I want to be around when he dives, he is so graceful." So there all the rest of you swimmers.

Any visitor around the gym these days doesn't have to be told there is a coaching school going on. Stopped in there yesterday and found a big class in basketball shooting the ball around and getting some of the finer points from Geo. Lewis. Over in the corner Guy Lowman was swinging a bat in front of a group of interested coaches.

He was explaining the stance and looking like he could hit the old pill a mile.

With the start on the tennis tournament we will have something to write about. That heading at the top about reports on all Badger teams is sort of a joke for surely as one prof. said this morning, "These are the dog days." Guess he's right.

As someone just mentioned it might be a good idea to knock off and ramble out to Breese Stevens field and see Larson and Barnum in action. It will be Larson's first game with the Blues and it would be well worth going to see from that standpoint alone. Here's hoping he gets the chance to get a fair taste of the old cover.

"Bunny" Lyons' Band
Embarks Soon From New York on Tour

A student orchestra of seven pieces, headed by Owen E. "Bunny" Lyons, the members of which are all Wisconsin students or graduates, will sail for Europe July 20, on the S. S. Berengaria from New York. The orchestra has been selected by the Cunard lines as one of the best student bands, and will play aboard the Berengaria on the trip over.

No definite plans have been made for the time after their arrival in Europe, but they expect to play in an American cabaret in Paris. Later on they will meet the University Glee club in Berlin and may tour with them for a while. The orchestra will sail for home late in August on the S. S. Cameronia, and will play for a dance in New York city, arranged by Wisconsin alumni. They will return to Madison in time for the opening of school.

The personnel of the orchestra includes Owen E. Lyons '26; Dave Barney '27; Fred Stenn '27; Don West '27; Arthur Kreutz '28; Jack Larabee '26; and Frank Hickok '26.

Change Camp Douglas' Name to Williams Soon

Commemorating "the most valuable officer the Wisconsin Guard ever had" the state's military reservation near Sparta will soon be called Camp Williams.

Both houses of the legislature have passed a bill providing for the change and the governor's signature alone is lacking. The executive, however, has indicated he would sign the bill.

Lt. Col. Charles R. Williams, in whose honor the camp is to be renamed, died last year after nearly 40 years service principally at the reservation. Col. Williams served in three wars, including the World War, where he was quartermaster in the 32nd division.

The camp is already a busy place as a result of the influx of guard troops from all parts of the state. More will arrive over the weekend and at various times during the summer for two week periods of training.

ANNOUNCE CHANGE IN DISTRIBUTING FOOTBALL DUCATS

Season Tickets to Alumni and Public to be Offered
Next Fall

Season tickets to football games will be offered for sale next fall to alumni and the public at large, it was announced this week by George W. Lewis director of Ticket Sales, University of Wisconsin.

The coupon books, totaling approximately 3,000 will cost $12.00 each, and will give the purchased admission to all five home games. One thousand books will be placed at the disposal of alumni, according to Mr. Lewis. The remainder will be distributed to the public.

Contain Chi Coupon

Besides the tickets for the home games, the books to be sold to alumni each will contain a coupon which may be exchanged for a ticket to the Chicago game. The coupons must be exchanged before Oct. 15, and must be accompanied by $3.00.

Alumni this year will be entitled to only two instead of four tickets in the alumni section, it was pointed out by Mr. Lewis. Should more than this number be desired, they must be secured in the public section. Each alumnus will be restricted to two season books. Alumni will be seated in section A, B, C, D, and E. The public section will be located in the East stands of the Stadium.

Admission Increase

An increase of 50 cents in the admission price for each home game will go into effect this year. Single tickets will cost $3.00 instead of $2.50 for alumni and public. Students are still charged the usual price of 50 cents.

Application blanks will be mailed out of the office of the director of ticket sales early in August. The returned applications will not be opened until Sept. 1. They will be received before that time, however, and no penalty will be imposed for early mailing. All orders received before Sept. 1 will be filed as of September first and shuffled and drawn by lot and filled in the order in which they are drawn.

Mail Orders

A certified check, draft or money order including 20 cents for return postage must accompany every application, according to Mr. Lewis. Tickets will be mailed to applicants ten days prior to each game. Should alumni wish more than two tickets allotted them in the alumni section, they should make separate application for seats in the public section. If applications for more than two tickets are received in the same envelope from an alumnus, he will be given seats in the public section.

The students' coupon books sold only to students also will contain coupons which may be exchanged for tickets to the Chicago game.

Will Introduce Fireworks Bill

Resuming work after a little more than a week's vacation, the assembly has two more of the long calendars that have been popular during the near-closing weeks.

Assemblyman Barney Spott, Milwaukee, has promised the legislators one more bill to add to the last that must be considered before adjournment. It relates to the use of fireworks on the 4th of July celebration. The bill provides for the use of fireworks, will be somewhat similar to one introduced last year. It provides for the use of fireworks on the 4th of July, as far as provisions regarding the explosives content of fireworks and the use of fireworks, but will have an added provision that no one shall sell fireworks, at a dollar per ounce.

Rehashing Christianity

This is a day of "Down with dogma." This is a day of new religions, religions based not upon inspired writings, but upon philosophical judgments and psychological reactions.

And now another modern prophet is crying in the wilderness. Once more churches are packed to hear a man preach a new religion. The man is the Rev. H. R. L. Sheppard, a London person. His health prevents him from taking the pulpit regularly, but when he does, he speaks to crowded pews. And what does he propose? He suggests that the Church of England give up its endowments, its prestige, and its worldly honors if necessary for "the rebirth of the new religion, born of the old faith, which the age needed." Figure that out for yourself.

He wants to make Christ real to the people. He wants to eliminate tests of belief of the type that involve giving credence to the Virgin Birth. He says that idea is just as though Christ would say, "Before you serve me, tell me what you think of my Mother." Evidently, Mr. Sheppard is one of the host who glory in throwing a wonderful old tale into a light—one could almost say a rather dirty light—for which it was never intended. It would be just as profitable for him to dig up a juicy scandal about Santa Claus.

But Mr. Sheppard wants to make Christ real to the people. Evidently he wants to edit Christian history in the light of modern facts. Then he wants to keep the believeable, that is the readily believeable, and set up a new and glorious religion. Somewhat like trying to remove a man's internal organs, keep the shell, and expect him to live. The whole fabric of the Christian religion is intricately interwoven. It is a complex mixture of benevolent philosophy and marvelous tradition. It has done worlds of good when literally believed. It will do worlds of good when interpreted as a particular view of life based upon a beautiful piece of literature.

But it seems eminently ridiculous to analyze it to death, to apply intelligence tests to its tales, to try to segregate it into the probable and improbable, the believeable and unbelieveable, in order to "make Christ real to the people," to set up a "new religion, born of the old faith, which the age needed."

Another age needed the old faith. Perhaps this age needs a new one. But is it to be one based upon re-editing Christianity? Is it to be a makeshift resulting from foolish attempts to reconcile the entire body of "inspired" writings with the findings of modern science? Is it to be a glorified cynicism resulting from sophisticated sneers at the tale of the Virgin Birth?

Let those who would rehash Christianity consider these questions. It is our opinion that it must stand or fall as a whole; or we must change our concept of religion.

Inspirational Pedagogy

Choosing courses regardless of content in order to take work under a certain well known professor may seem a foolish procedure to many people, especially the ardent advocates of a strictly material, practical education; but to one who has had experience, one who has made mistakes and profited by them, it is a very worth while practice, assuming, of course, that the professor is well known because of his inspirational methods. Simply to be well known is not enough to make a man a valuable teacher.

Many regard mathematics a waste of time for the general student, but the study of mathematics under a man who can instill the spirit of learning and the desire to learn to think is much more valuable than the study of a dozen other subjects which may be more readily applicable to everyday life. Mind training is, after all, the essential object of education.

Again, it may seem rather ridiculous to attempt to grow excited about economics or business management. It may seem foolish and out of place to burst into oratory on such subjects. It may appear idiotic to explain the law of supply and demand in polished rhetorical fashion, or to wax manifestly enthusiastic over the possibilities of scientific plant layout. Such demonstrations provide wonderful material for burlesques, parodies, take-offs.

But there is nothing more wholesome than a man vitally absorbed in his chosen work. Nothing secures interest better than interest. To sell an article successfully, one must believe in it. To impart spirit, one must have it. So it is with the successful personality on the teaching platform.

He who has the enthusiasm in the subject can impart it to his students. It then matters not if they forget every single technical fact they ever learned. They will catch some spark of the teacher's fervor. It will inspire them, urge them on to apply it to other things, instill them with a will to learn and a will to do.

That is one of the ways in which contact with powerful personalities on the platform will benefit the student. That is one of the reasons why it may often pay to select a course which in itself may not be of extreme interest but which will enable constant contact and acquaintance with a man spirit, an inspired teacher.

Is Expulsion the Only Way?

A group of students have again been dismissed from the university upon charges of disorderly and improper conduct. During the final examination period, eight men were expelled upon the statement of a sophomore woman, charging them with illicit relations. Yesterday, by recommendation of Dean Goodnight, five male students were suspended from summer school because they borrowed some furnishings from two women's rooming houses while (it is alleged) under the influence of liquor.

The reputation of a university must, of course, be safeguarded in order that it might not give the impression of being a community in which none but the most strong-minded of youthful individuals are able to keep to the "straight and narrow." And, as in any other community, punitive action against offenders seems to be the only weapon to minimize wrong-doing. In the outside world we have imprisonment; on the campus we have expulsion. And in both, the powers that be must hold up certain cases as examples in order that potential rule-breakers will receive warning and that those who are never caught will be more cautious.

In the incident which occurred late last spring, when eight men were expelled after a statement made by a sophomore woman, the justice of their dismissal was a debatable subject. What a furor would be raised if every case of prostitution occurring during the period of a year on any large-sized campus in the country were made public and the participants given their due punishment! But these eight men were caught—and they became "examples."

What happened to cause the suspension of the five students yesterday afternoon? Evidently, a bunch of the boys were "whooping it up"—very likely with the inspiration of certain forbidden beverages—decided, in their unknowing moments, to collect second-hand furniture and carried off some porch chairs from one residence and three oriental rugs, a few potted ferns, and sundry other articles from a sorority house. Haven't similar cases arisen before? But these nocturnal prowlers were detected—and they became "examples."

We can easily see a justification for the Dean's action last spring, but we are wondering if his verdict passed upon the night prowlers of last Thursday evening isn't a bit severe. They deserve some punishment, it is true, but dismissal, especially in the case of one of the offenders who will be deprived of his degree because of the action, seems a rather strong move. We are offering no substitute plans, —nothing but destructive criticism. We are not accusing any of the university officials of being unfair, for it is their business to see that Wisconsin's fair name remains unsullied. But we are wondering if there is no other club than expulsion to force those who are never caught to be more cautious and to discourage potential wrong-doers from tasting the forbidden fruit.

Across the Bay

Finger-like, Picnic Point stretches its idle length out into the sun-glazed waters of Mendota, waters unruffled by the faintest breeze, glaring, shimmering in the heat. From its broad base beyond the narrow neck to the reaching tip, the Point is crested with a line of trees, trees which form a scrubby mane on its long, rolling back. The idler on the shore across the bay finds restful relief when he surveys the soft green slopes which form a welcome contrast to the glare of the calm water. The green of the grass and leaves is the only color which shines out in the beating sun, save for the several splashes of red where canoes drift sleepily, silently, on Mendota's surface.

Tickets, Please!

Reading of late in the annals of university deans and chaperones, we have been astounded at the monastic severity of measures taken to "improve the social activities."

Five thousand summer students, many of whom are school and college instructors, are deemed too plebian to govern themselves as ladies and gentlemen. Forebodings on the part of the Mid-Victorians have prompted stringent regulations. Tickets must be presented at each "reception" or seekers of companionship in this muddled scheme of things must seek elsewhere. All that is needed to complete the picture is a street car conductor to collect the tickets and three policemen equipped with gatling guns and riot clubs.

Young ladies have been informed that it is decidedly unladylike to indulge in the mysteries of "blind dates." Most of the poor young things in question know very few in the summer session. If they want to meet men at the "receptions" they must send them invitations. If they are properly Emily Post despite these restrictions, then they may actually talk with the Galahads without fear of censorship from the powers that be.

All of which, from our humble viewpoint, points to a sad state of retrogression. Young ladies and gentlemen of 1927 may be more daring, more frank, and, to allow a point, more unconventional than those of the 19th century; but blue laws will not change them. And, as far as we can figure it out, selective "receptions" will only heighten the need for "blind dates."

When we're young, we look forward to age. When we grow old, we look back upon our past. During the semester, we look forward to vacation. During vacation, we look forward to the next session. When it's cold, we want warmth. When it gets warm, we curse the heat. What's it all about? What kind of management is this, anyway?

It has come to our ears that many of our summer Wisconsinites object strenuously to having to climb hills and get up at ungodly hours to miles to classes. But do they recognize the many benefits of working for an education. How much more will they appreciate their little store of learning having gleaned it by the sweat of their brow. Here's to bigger and better hills!

WHO LIVES WHERE AND HOW

For long hours into the night we've listened to conversations under latticed windows; we've used a fine-toothed comb to rake Langdon street for dirt; and . . . yes, we hate to admit it, but we've even dated Summer Session co-eds to get the low-down for this column. Here it is, folks—

5. DELTA TAU DELTA

The Deltas are so persnickety about their reputation that they accepted girls with only the best of references for the summer, and detailed Johnny Stedman to lock the doors every night promptly at 10:30. In spite of these regulations, the girls seem to be having a pretty fair time, and especially the one with the boyish bob who is said to smoke no less than one whole carton of cigarettes a day. If the facts haven't been misrepresented, conditions were slightly different last summer—but everybody knows about that, so why tell it? Perhaps the nicest girls in the house are the ones from Texas, they even think so themselves. One of the best costumers ever at the Delt house this summer is the tall, blonde Swede who works at the Capitol during his spare time—quite a capitol fellow, as it were. The girls are being helped out considerably this season by their live-wire dating agency, located in the Annex just across the street.

6. THETA CHI

When the Theta Chi's decided to rent out their house to girls again this year, they got out some nifty placards which, among other things, advised lake privileges—but they forgot to mention that the view over Mendota would be slightly obstructed by the construction of the Sig Ep house. There is sort of a Duke's mixture in the house this summer which eludes classification, but it may be sufficient to say that all the girls are placed in the background by the raddish-blondes from Noo Orleans—who is, perhaps, one of the most sporty girls in Madison at the present time. However, she can't quite eclipse the two girls who were leaning out of one of the back windows, talking to their young Latharios, last Wednesday night. Judging from the late arrivals, the Theta Chi girls had 12:30 permission on the night of the Fourth.

7. PHI SIGMA KAPPA

Every time you go past the Phi Sigma house, you'll see three or four girls out on the porch, playing bridge and other card games, or merely whiling away their time in idle conversation—that veranda makes an excellent show window, doesn't it? According to one of the waiters, the New York girl staying in the house is one of the best co-eds that has struck this campus for a long time. There are 16 girls in the house from Pittsburgh who came down on a special train—they don't seem to be able to keep their necks any cleaner here than they could back home. Their house-mother, who also manages the Beta house, is reputed to be making money again this summer to take another trip abroad. Car sleuths haven't been able to find out much about the girls themselves, so we'll have to pass on to—

8. ALPHA XI DELTA

The girls living in this house, situated far from the madding crowd, became famous last semester by first having their social privileges taken away and later by throwing a party in the Theta Delt lawdge—or so the story runs. They further displayed their originality by giving a formal after exams. Although we went to the open house this summer, we don't remember much about the girls—they simply are the kind men forget. Last year, they approved Summer Session applicants before giving them a room in the house, but this practice has evidently been abandoned. We understand that one girl down there has returned for the purpose of picking off a man—better watch your step, fellers.

The third installment of WHO LIVES WHERE—AND HOW will appear in an early issue of the Cardinal. Next on the list are Beta, Tri-Delt, Pi Phi, Chi Omega, and Alpha Tau . . . oh, pardon us all to heck! We were going to say Alpha Tau Omega, but I guess that's a fraternity.

Tickets were taken at the door of the Beta and other open houses last week end. We understand that reservations were made through George Lewis, Hank Kowalczyk, and I. Amundsen at the University Tickets Sales office.

Minister of Today
Must be Jack-of-
All Trades—Frank

"If Theodore Roosevelt had lived in Cotton Mather's time, his theory of the square deal would undoubtedly have been hurled from the pulpit," said President Glenn Frank to 90 clergymen at the rural clergy school Wednesday noon.

Dr. Frank, taking as his text Ephesians 11:4—"And He gave some apostles; and some, prophets; and some evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers,"—explained how religion has been delegated to others than preachers during the past decade.

"Charles Evans Hughes, speaking from the shabby rostrums of country fairs and political mass meetings, would have spoken from the pulpit," contended Dr. Frank.

"Woodrow Wilson, when he stepped into the presidency of Princeton university, sent out appeals which would have been ringing with the best of his predecessors who were in the ministry, had he lived in another day."

"If our own Edward A. Ross had lived in another day, 'Sins of Society' would have been a sermon instead of a sociological tract."

Dr. Frank indicated his fellow laymen of today as "wanting their preacher to be Jack of all trades, and then damning him for being master of none."

"We need a spiritual leader to emancipate us from our slavery to things," he continued. "We could be far more intelligent with far less books, far less magazines, far less newspapers. We could get along with less to eat."

"We are lost in our baggage, and we're too busy in our life this year of 1927. All modern life is a conspiracy against our privacy."

"The modern church is demanding more from its preachers as an institution than any other institution in America in the opinion of Dr. Frank."

"They ask him to be a priest, but the duties of the priesthood cannot be accomplished in committee rooms with filled calling days."

"They ask him to be a prophet, expect him to denounce their new ways of committing old sins, and to discover new virtues."

"They ask him to be a pastor, and then they ask him to be a president—an efficient executive; at once shepherd of souls and a superintendent of a plant."

The ministry, thinks President Frank, is "a profession calling for a synthetic man—a combination of saint, courageous agitator, and business personality."

"Les Klicks" Act at
New Orpheum Gets
Praise of Reviewer

BY HAM

The bill that is now playing at the New Orpheum is lifted out of the common run by an exceedingly unique act known as "Les Klicks." As far as we were able to determine, Les Klicks are a curious species of illuminated marionettes, marvellously and fearfully formed, which gambol about on a black stage in a clever and polished manner. To have two Angora cats suddenly turn red and proceed with the strangest antics imaginable, then miraculously become azure in hue, and finally return to a more normal and less startling color is disconcerting to say the least. In short, "Les Klicks" is a unique, clever act, put on with sureness and snap. Let's have more of such nonsensical productions.

The rest of the bill follows:

Norwood and Hall

A good average act.

Gifford and Holmes

Another of those "Chawlie" acts rather well done.

Bobby Jackson Review

Clog dancing and zylophone playing which got a big hand.

Barlow and Durre

Two accordian girls play some modern pieces before a beautiful curtain.

Vanity

The feature photoplay is "Vanity." Leatrice Joy and Charles Ray play the leads in a picture of the upper crust, (as Hollywood imagines it) which got broken through in spots. The photoplay is excellent and the entire production is handled in an artistic manner. Leatrice shows some real strength in the finish. It's a picture which has many salient features worth seeing.

U. W. Summer Students Must Eat Apple a Day

That the general health of students attending the summer session of the University of Wisconsin is relatively better than that of students attending the regular term was learned today from members of the student health staff at the university clinic.

"It must be taken into consideration, however, that summer is ordinarily the most healthful time of the year," the chief physician said. "We find a great decrease during the summer in cases of acute illness such as severe colds, pneumonia, and other inflammatory diseases, and find that the majority of summer complaints are of a chronic nature."

Pockets, collars and yoke effects on fall coats, both fur and worsted, show that summer sports extend their influence to fall clothes.

Revelations in the Art of Sandwich Making

There are sandwiches . . . and then three are sandwiches.

Hot dogs, for instance might conceivably come under the sandwich heading. And so might those concoctions which consist of two thick slices of bread and a thicker chunk of something or other else.

But when we talk sandwiches, we mean those thin yet substantial ones which only the Chocolate Shop can produce. They're filled with the most delightful things—especially fine for luncheon on these very warm days.

Come in today and let us acquaint you with the art of sandwich making.

Anthony Canepa, of Brittingham park, doubled the score of his nearest competitor in the city marble tourna-

Herman Mentz of Vilas park with 7 points, took second place.

Three elimination games were played with the 12 playground champions taking part. They were George Anderson, Leo Fiscus, Sol Cohen, K. Stormer, R. Crabb, V. Kopang, Jerome Schwoegler, Lawrence McCormick and Kenneth Corcoran.

ITALIAN IMMIGRANT SOLDIER WINNER IN NEW KIND OF WAR

JOSEPH PALMERI learned what fighting was during his four years of service in the Italian army during the World war.

He fought and won an entirely new kind of war since his arrival in Madison six years ago with poverty, and entirely strange language, and illness as his opponents.

During those six years, two of which he spent as an invalid, he took work preparing him for high school at the Vocational school, completed the four year course of the Central high school, and now is ranked as a sophomore at the University of Wisconsin.

Incidentally, he has managed to crowd a courtship and marriage into the busy years during which he was acquiring his education. He has taught Americanization classes for the past three years, and he, himself became a naturalized American citizen February of this year.

Opens Cabinet Shop

Today he is opening a cabinet shop at 933 Regent st. to practice the trade he had followed from boyhood in Italy to support his wife and himself, and to furnish means with which he can finish his education and receive his degree from the university.

He was born at Paceco, Italy, just 28 years ago, and was brought up to follow his trade of cabinet maker. War took him from his trade when he was only 15 years old, and his later experience during the four years on the Austro-Italian battle line in his profession was confined to making the occasional necessary furniture for the officers.

In 1921 he came to Madison, with his way to make in a strange country. His first attempt at work in Stoughton left him with an injured foot which kept him an invalid for two years.

Female of Species Tougher Than Male, Claims Dr. Leake

THE female of the human species is tougher than the male, at least as far as red blood cells are concerned.

Experiments reported by Dr. Chauncey Leake of the University of Wisconsin shows the red blood corpuscles of the average woman to be about 10 per cent more resistant to certain destructive agencies than those of the average man. Men have the advantage in numbers, however, Dr. Leake pointed out, since there are about 5,200,000 red cells in a cubic millimeter (a very small drop of men's blood, but only about 4,700,000 in an equal quantity of women's blood).

Men's blood also is heavier than women's. By measuring how fast blood falls through an oily mixture, Dr. Leake has found the average specific gravity of men's blood to be 1.0565 and women's 1.0555.

La. East Side
Men on Holiday Project
The Madison Federation of Labor will work in conjunction with the East Side Business Men's association in its attempt to close all the stores on the East Side on Thursday afternoons during the summer months. This was decided at a meeting of the federation Wednesday night.

Arthur Marsch, Leo Straus and Eugene Strenger were named on a committee to work with the East Side organization. They are to name the other members of the federation who reside on the East Side to aid them.

Gen. Pangalos was sent to the island of Crete soon after he was overthrown as dictator by Gen. Kondylis last August.

Joseph Palmeri

Early in 1924 he took three months of work at the Vocational school which enabled him to pass the entrance examinations of the Central high school, and in 1926 he graduated there and entered the university.

Weds Madison Girl

During his last year in high school, Sept. 18, 1925, he was married to Miss Lily Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Johnson of this city.

He taught evening classes in Americanization of foreigners during the past three years, the first year at the Y. M. C. A., and for the past two years at the Vocational school.

With the opening of his shop, he intends to go back to his boyhood calling, and his work will be upholstering and refinishing furniture and making cabinets—a peaceful interlude in his hurried life of the past few years.

But he's going back to school as soon as the business gets a real start.

PAIR TAKEN INTO COURT ON CHARGE

Deny Attacking Couple; No Arrests Made in Pine Bluff Mystery Case

Francis Gannon and Judson Holcombe, Madison young men, pleaded not guilty in superior court today to a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm to Chester Gardo and a girl companion. Gannon and Holcombe are charged with having attacked Gardo and the girl while they were seated in a car on University drive, near Picnic Point, Wednesday night.

Bond of $1,000 was demanded of the arrested men. They will be given a preliminary hearing Wednesday. They have retained L. W. Hall as counsel.

A third man for whom police are searching in connection with the attack is believed to have fled from the city Thursday afternoon after learning the officers were looking for him.

No arrests have yet been made by Sheriff Fred T. Finn in connection with the attack Wednesday night upon Mr. and Mrs. Al Grunwald, Mt. Horeb, while they were riding near Pine Bluff. Mr. Grunwald told Sheri Finn that a bottle was hurled through an open window of the car he was driving at a point near Pine Bluff, but that the missile did not injure either himself nor his wife and that he could not see anyone who might have thrown it. A second bottle was thrown into the car a few miles farther down the road, Grunwald told officers, and this one struck Mrs. Grunwald on the head, inflicting a severe wound.

Prelims Monday in 'Miss Madison' Beauty Contest

On Monday night, the first group of girls entered in the "Miss Madison" contest, competing for the right to represent this city in the Atlantic City pageant in September, will appear on the stage at the Parkway theater. Len Brown, manager of the theater, announced today that a very attractive group of girls will be selected from the group Monday night to take part in the finals.

Entries for the contest are still being received and girls who desire to enter may fill out the accompanying coupon or leave their name and address at the Parkway box office.

Several girls who competed in the contest last year will enter again this year.

Several stores in the city may enter candidates in the contest this week, and efforts are being made to induce a girl from the state capitol to compete.

Beginning today this paper will publish an official entry blank for

"Miss Madison" candidates to fill out. These blanks should be sent to the Parkway and the girls will be called in for interviews.
