KIEKHOFER TO INSTITUTE NEW EXAMINATIONS

System Has Been Used Successfully at Columbia University

PLUS AND MINUS TYPE

A new departure in examinations will be given a tryout in the Elements of Economics class this week, according to Prof. W. H. Kiekhofer, in charge of the course.

A "plus and minus" quiz will be substituted for the customary essay type of examination at the regular hour exam Thursday. A series of propositions numbering fifty or more will be submitted to each student. All that he will be required to do is mark a plus or minus sign after each proposition. If the statement is correct the student will mark it plus. If it is incorrect he will mark it minus. Prof. Kiekhofer said Monday. "The propositions will be so worded that they will call for a large amount of thinking in regard to the subject to which they pertain. While the propositions will involve a mastery of facts, students in order to score a high mark will have to possess the ability to think concerning these facts."

Novel Grading System

In grading the papers, more will be deducted from the students' average for an incorrect answer to a question than would have been credited to it had the proposition been answered correctly. The student has the alternative of passing the question up, and not marking it at all if he thinks that his answer is incorrect. This feature of the system will tend to discourage gambling on a question rather than answering it for fear of giving an incorrect answer, for of course no credit will be given in such a case.

The system has many advantages over that in use at present, chief of which is that a much greater range of the subject can be covered in an hour examination on work in which the student is thoroughly prepared. Under the present system the examination gives students training in organizing and presenting material, but on the other hand, much time is spent in writing and in framing answers that might be put to better advantage in giving definite, concrete information on the subject. More time can be devoted to thinking about the actual proposition at hand and less will be needed for presenting the answer in such form as to make it clear that the student understands it. Undoubtedly the system will be an aid to instructors in grading, for they will be able to tell what a student knows about the subject without

Club to Illustrate Poultry Industry

The Badger Poultry club of the university is inviting the students and the public to attend the Poultry Movie Show given at Agricultural hall auditorium Tuesday evening at 7:30.

Six reels of films taken at the large government poultry farm, at Beltsville, Maryland, will be the chief feature of the evening. These pictures have been highly recommended and will furnish some valuable information and picture some of the work which the U. S. Department of Agriculture is doing.

The subjects covered are incubation, rearing of chicks, housing of poultry, feeding, handling of eggs, marketing and others, in fact, the whole industry will be illustrated. Explanation of the pictures, by Mr. Albert Angell will aid in the interpretation, to those who are not so familiar with the industry. Mr. Angell has had much experience with poultry and is also well acquainted with the films. At present he is with the Quaker Oats Co. of Chicago, Ill.

U. W. Profs Feed Cows on Sawdust

Dairy cows may be fed sawdust now without ill effects as the result of experiments conducted by Prof. F. B. Morrison, Prof. G. C. Humphrey of the College of Agriculture faculty, and R. S. Hulce of the Wisconsin experimental station. The two trials completed last spring show that there is no difficulty in getting the animals to eat the mixture of hydrolized sawdust, and that there are no harmful effects.

"These experiments were conducted to give the farmers an efficient and low priced substitute for grain when the price of grain rises to exorbitant rates," said Prof. Morrison in speaking of the experiment. "This substitute will not be utilized in the corn belt now as the grain prices are low. It may, however, be used in the northwest and on the Pacific coast."

PLATS OF CITY ARE ON DISPLAY

Exhibit of Old Tools Dates Back to Year 1836

The plat of Madison, the "paper city of the four lakes," dating from 1836; old surveyors' instruments, and unusual markers showing state boundary lines are special parts of the civil engineers' annual exhibit which is being held this week in the State Historical Museum.

Compasses, surveying instruments, drafting tools and plats used by pioneers in civil engineering are displayed in connection with early Wisconsin methods of surveying.

The original plat of the territory of Wisconsin is shown among plats of Milwaukee, Madison and the plat of the Milwaukee and Rock River project of 1837.

PLAN EUROPEAN COLLEGE TOUR THIS SUMMER

75 Students to Visit Mediaeval Schools of Far North

An excursion to Denmark, Norway, and Sweden by 75 American college students will be made this summer during the months of July and August under the auspices of the Institute of International Education.

Before posters relative to this expedition were put up on the campus a month ago, Prof. C. S. Leonard, of the department of pharmacology, who is in charge of the undertaking at Wisconsin, had received a dozen requests for information concerning the trip. Two of these requests were turned in by Chinese students. Prof. W. J. Chase, of the history department, had expected to join the expedition, taking with him his wife, but he has given up this plan.

The trip will include visits to the medieval universities of the far north, the fjords of Norway, the forests of Sweden, and the agricultural districts of Denmark.

Applications for admittance to party and requests for information regarding the expedition may be addressed to the American Scandinavian Foundation, 25 West 45th street, New York City.

Ross Says Answer To Unrest in Bible

"The answer to the present-day problems of unrest is to be found in the social religion as taught by Christ and recorded in the four gospels," said Prof. E. A. Ross of the department of sociology in his speech the "Outlook for Religion," at the regular Sunday evening meeting of St. Francis society.

Prof. Ross said that another war such as the last would result in the extermination of the human race, and that the combative instinct in men will naturally be diverted into other channels such as sports and international games.

Religious Meet is Declared a Success

"The best response I have met with in addressing university audiences," was the comment of Dr. Charles W. Gilkey at the close of the three day Religious conference Sunday. Lathrop gym was taxed to its capacity Sunday night when Dr. Gilkey delivered the last address of the conference.

Robert Gerholz '23, general chairman of the conference, issued a statement last night expressing his thanks to the scores of committee workers whom he declared were responsible for the success of the conference. He pointed out that the attendance increased at every meeting of the series, attesting the fact that the conference was unsurpassed by any held in previous years.

Madam Standish to Read Wednesday

The open ticket sale for the reading of Madam Marie Lydia Standish, interpreter of French and Irish folk tales, to be held in Lathrop hall Wednesday, was begun Monday, when a large portion of the tickets was disposed of. Mme. Standish will be brought to Madison by Red Domino dramatic society. She will read in costumes adapted to the periods of her various interpretations, and will be accompanied by the piano.

HOLD FRESHMAN GIRLS' GLEE CLUB TRYOUT SOON

Freshman girls tryouts for the Girls' glee club will be held Wednesday and Thursday March 15 and 16, at 4:30, Music hall. The Glee club sang at the Woman's building Friday, and at the Religious conference Sunday.

GERMAN MIND NOT CHANGED BY LATE WAR

—CESTRE

Moral Unanimity of World Is Needed For Coercion

MIGHT STILL PREVAILS

The German government is still motivated by the "Gott mit uns" theory of empire. Might, domineering pressure, and self-sufficiency are still the governing principles of the German mind. Nothing but moral unanimity on the part of England, France, and the United States has the power to bring enough pressure upon Germany to make her realize the conditions upon which she can resume her place in the world.

These opinions were advanced by Prof. Charles Cestre of the University of Paris, formerly exchange professor at Harvard and now lecturing at Wisconsin. Professor Cestre is giving courses in French poetry and on French influence upon the English language since mediaeval times. He spoke at the Harvard club dinner at the University club last night on "French relations with the United States."

Government is Improving

The old Von Simmons government which sent its envoys to the London conference with an offer of a few millions of dollars reparations when billions were expected was bound to continue the old militaristic German government, in the opinion of Professor Cestre. "The new government has a clearer view of things as they are and is at least willing, when able, to adopt reasonable measures. France was disappointed when Germany couldn't pay its first installment of the debt, but France extended the time, since the new government seems to be acting in good faith.

"England has entirely forgotten the lesson of the war. She will not abide by France in forcing Germany to pay because England is rapidly resuming business with Germany. As a result, the German people are becoming rich, but the government is poor, in proportion. While the government cannot pay its installments on the war debt, it is making big subsidies to shipping companies, doing a great deal of improvements of the public works, and paying big salaries to officials. We must make Germany realize that she has lost the war, that she must assume the responsibility for it, that she is guilty of the great crimes of the conflict. She refuses to. She goes on preparing her 60 millions of people for the "War of Revenge." It is openly avowed in

Students Invent Wireless Driven Electric Motor

Experiments Are Based on Tests of Army Officers

A motor which can be driven by wireless has been constructed by Hallett H. Germond '23, and William P. Flynn '23.

The idea was conceived from the experiments with armed tanks made by army officers. It is the opinion of Germond that wireless-driven motors will be developed and used extensively in warfare, but that vehicles so controlled will not be of any particular practical value in the commercial world.

"The tests in wireless control which the navy has made conclusively proves that, from the standpoint of the engineer, wireless driven motors are a success," said Germond. "It is hard to say to what efficiency this motor-control will be developed. Under the right guidance the possibility for development is unlimited."

WE have heard of many, many systems of wireless communication, but the one used by Hans Gude beats even our own radio station in the Physics building. Persons interested are invited to the corner of Lake and State at nine-thirty any night to hear him broadcast music to the world and the ladies across the street.

WOULD somebody please give the Kappas another pair of roller skates. Two of their sisters are seen on the streets gamboling around, each on her particular skate.

IN other words: each had a skate on, but only in the spirit of spring, as it were.

FROM the Engineering school comes the suggestion that Professors Meade, Kowalke, Rood, and Woy be elected honorary members to Bull and Shovel. A special meeting will be called to consider their names.

having to wade through a mass of irrelevant facts.

Used at Columbia

"The system has been used very successfully in Columbia university. As used there, each statement marked correctly gives credit, each marked incorrectly counts as a penalty, the penalty being greater than the credit for correctly marked statement. In this way the student is discouraged from guessing. Statements which the students omit are counted neither for nor against them, the final grade in the examination being determined by the number of correctly answered statements."

This will be the first trial of such a system at Wisconsin, and the result will be watched with interest not only by the department of economics, but by the entire university.

the universities. France has but 30 millions, and the American press is wrong in blaming us for our militaristic program. France must protect herself."

France and the Arms Parley
France made some mistakes at the Washington conference, according to Professor Cestre. She could have showed that she was in accord with the spirit of the conference better by agreeing to cut her army slightly and omitting the reservations on submarine manufacture, since there will be no danger of sea warfare, at least during the ten years in which the treaty was to have been in force. France has not enough money to build submarines anyway, according to Professor Cestre.

"By showing her willingness to cut her armaments a little France could have united the allies in her struggle to make Germany come to time."

Professor Cestre said that education had been greatly hampered in France by the war, since the university men had all been called and succeeding classes had been rushed through in half time. Special examinations are now being given to the men to qualify them for re-enrollment in the schools. Prices three times the normal state are also hampering students.

Wireless amateurs all over the country listened last Friday to a "laboratory concert" by Waldemar Galtch, violinist, and formerly professor of music at the university, which was broadcasted by the powerful radio station in the University of Wisconsin department of physics, according to an announcement today by Malcolm P. Hanson, chief operator.

Prof. E. B. Gordon, chief of the bureau of community development, University Extension division, has been asked by Prof. E. H. Terry, director of the university radio station, to take charge of the weekly radiophone concerts which are broadcasted every Friday night and which have usually consisted of special phonograph selections. Professor Gordon aims to have a special musical feature at the laboratory every Friday night, and Mr. Galtch, who is now on a concert tour of the United States, will open the new series with a special violin concert.

Mr. Hanson will also broadcast the Russian famine relief message of Governor John J. Blaine tonight at 9:15.

On Sunday night, March 12, at 7:30 p. m. the address of Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, who was the chief speaker of the annual all-university religious conference, was broadcasted by the university radio station.

THE SECOND HALF

THE Religious conference is over, and already people are beginning to pass judgment upon it. Some say it was a big success, others, that it was mediocre, and still others criticize it as being a waste of time and energy. All of this judgment and opinion is foolish and immature. The success of a religious conference is not to be seen at first glance, nor while it is in progress; nor is it to be measured by the number of students who attend the convocations and take part in the general program. Numbers and enthusiasm are signs, to be sure, but not final criterions by any means. The only criterion of anything like the Religious conference is its results. The enthusiasm and interest of the student body contributes to that result, but the moment that that enthusiasm is taken as the end, instead of as the means to an end, the Conference is a failure.

The enthusiasm this year was splendid; it made for an excellent start, but only a start, only half the battle. In a sense, the Conference itself was the easier half of the battle because it had the advantage of group psychology. The bigger, greater, more important half is ahead, and it is the more difficult half, for its success, and hence the success of the whole conference depends upon the individual, influenced not by what his friends are doing, not by what the crowd is doing, but influenced by his own sincere beliefs.

What is this result, this final measure of success? It is the exemplification of the ideals expressed in the conference, it is the turning of abstract ideas into concrete acts; in a word, the success is to be measured by the emphatic living of spiritual ideals from now on. Consistent attendance of the conference program does not in itself make a better man or woman. The most it can do is to give the inspiration and point out the means. Spiritual growth is always an upstream pull, and the man who rests on his oars will drift, and he will drift downstream, not up, no matter how furiously he rows at the start. To get anywhere he must keep on rowing.

The real success of the conference rests with the students themselves, and depends upon their sincere purpose to become better men and women. The enthusiasm while the conference was actually in progress showed that the desire was there.

A CAMPUS PROBLEM

A COMMUNICATION which seems to contain a considerable amount of good thought on what is one of the vital campus problems of today has been submitted to the Daily Cardinal. Believing that this question should receive careful consideration and debate, the communication has been printed in this column. The letter follows:

In Sunday's issue of The Daily Cardinal we were again presented with a meaningless list of "Students Disciplined by Faculty Body."

It ought to be evident by this time that this method of advertising transgressions is provocative of nothing but indifference. Such milk-tempered warnings have never served their purpose, and there is no reason to suppose that they ever will. "These pathetic casualty lists of "un-identified" do not, and cannot, mean anything to anyone. They are mere announcements of penalties in the abstract; penalties which mean, at most, a welcome addition to a period of social and academic pleasure, so far as the guilty ones are concerned. The real burden of the penalty falls elsewhere; first, upon the innocent parents who have to pay the students' bills, and, secondly, upon the state, which is required to provide the means of the additional education to which the guilty are so benevolently condemned.

Does anyone suppose that these few additional months of study, or the mere fact that they must be enjoyed, will produce in the minds of the offenders a state of penitence sufficient to induce them to mend their characters? To produce such a state of mind ought to be the aim of all just penalties; for authority to do otherwise is but to demand revenge.

Now I propose that the full name of every student found guilty of dishonesty in any form of academic work be published in The Daily Cardinal, together with an accurate statement of the offense. The present system recognizes that the guilty should be punished. Why, then, should they be protected at the same time by the very authority which condemns them? This is a subtle form of strained justice. It may be said that under the system which I propose a guilty student should be so disgraced that he could find no course open to him but withdrawal from the university. His career should then be ruined, it is said. What a convenient disarming generality we have in this word "ruined!" It has proved in the past to be sufficiently comprehensive and bewildering to arrest a legitimate current of thought, and to discourage further consideration of a serious matter.

Under the present system a guilty student is given the privilege of acquiring an education based upon dishonesty and protected by a false conception of social justice. Under the system which is here proposed a guilty student would not necessarily have to withdraw from the university; but the punishment would prove to be so disagreeable that few students in the future would be likely to risk their reputations for so small a compensation. Should the guilty student be unable to bear the ignominy, and think it best to withdraw, neither the student nor the university (nor, indeed, the state) would be the loser. The student would then leave us to begin again elsewhere with a dearly-bought freedom. He will then have had a lesson which will help him to build character. It is only under the present system that the offenders are "ruined"; for they continue with us, ever conscious of their protected guilt. Such a man is indeed a victim of the warped judgment which produces sentimentality.

WALTER COUTU.

Yankee Film Good For Many Laughs; Sub-titles Riotous

By P. H. J.

"Photoplays de luxe" and "stupendous productions" quite frequently prove too heavy and indigestible to be entertaining, but no such indictment can be made of Mark Twain's "Connecticut Yankee," which is showing at the Parkway this week.

Directed by Emmett J. Flynn, who works for William Fox, the Connecticut Yankee is one of the most satisfying "big pictures" that has appeared in a long time. Whether or not you have read the book this photodramatization of Mark Twain's work will interest and amuse you. If you have followed the adventures of Sir Boss in the original book form, you will doubly enjoy recognizing his fantastic experiences in the more modern screen version.

Film Follows Book

This does not mean, however, that the producers have created a new Yankee, for they have not. Neglecting the few changes that were necessary to screen it, the Fox version is fundamentally and chronologically the same as the book. The introduction of Fords and motorcycles and the use of ultra-modern phraseology in the subtitles obtains a striking combination to which Mark Twain would probably subscribe; and what modernizing has been done only adds charm and force to the incongruous situation as conceived by the creator of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn.

The sub-titles have the same extraordinary seat-breaking qualities that characterized Will Rogers' "Doubling for Romeo." Well drawn and timely they occur at unexpected intervals and furnish refreshing relief from certain scenes which might have been too heavy without them.

Stars Are Unnecessary

Although no high-salaried stars are used to get the pictures across, it does not follow that the acting is faulty or careless. Harry Myers as the Yankee might have been more laughable and preposterous had he assumed more of the Harold Lloyd swagger and savoir faire. Pauline Starke as Sandy, the princess in captivity, is convincing without being too sixth century. Merlin, the magician, is well portrayed by William Mong, who happily refrains from overdoing the part.

As all photoplays must have a vamp, Rosemary Theby is given the role of Queen Morgan le Fay, a medieval heart-breaker. Her characterization is well done even if they didn't have lip-sticks in such early times.

Settings Are Expensive

Although the settings are expensive, the producers do not impress you with the fact. The castles, which look like real stone and mortar, are not suggestive of papier mache plastered on lathing in some Hollywood back lot. Interior details are accurate and convincing, and the workshop of Sir Boss is a scream besides.

The excellent photography and directing is best brought out in what would be called "mob scenes" in an inferior production. Director Flynn's handling of the "extras" makes such scenes as the storming of the castle appear natural and regular, and in many layouts it is hard to believe that the participants are not real knights or medieval bums.

The Connecticut Yankee as a picture is well worth while and highly entertaining. The producers are to be congratulated for not impaling the story with a cheap moral and for subordinating the "love theme" as much as they did.

Communications

Concerning the Cardinal Board

The report in The Cardinal of March 5 in reference to the Cardinal rumpus is, in my opinion, so incorrect and biased that it has created impressions which the facts in the case in no way justify.

The joint S. G. A. and Senate investigating committee which heard all charges found that Adrian Scolten's activities as president of the Board of Control were justifiable, for the best interests of the paper, and within the scope of his authority as general supervisor of the Daily Cardinal corporation.

After hearing and discussing the committee's report, the Student Senate passed a resolution commending Scolten for the work he did in beginning a cleanup campaign, and carrying it on even when he seemed to be working single handed.

During the meeting the senate clearly indicated that they saw no reason why Scolten should step down from the presidency of the Board of Control to that of an ordinary member, but Scolten assured the senate that he would do this and that under the new president, the board would consider its efforts to control the paper as provided for by the constitution.

I wish to call attention to the fact that the Board of Control has made no agreement not to oust members of the staff, and that it is at perfect liberty to do this if it believes this action will establish better harmony, increased efficiency and a better student owned and controlled paper. I wish also to make clear that the Board of Control gets no financial remuneration whatever, and that it wishes none, but that students holding responsible positions on the staff have in the past received considerable sums for their work.

JAMES W. POWELL '24.

NEWS OF CONFERENCE SPORTS

GRAPPLERS TO MEET HERE IN CHAMPIONSHIPS

Ames Squad Has Entries in 5 Classes; Templin Entered

Twenty-eight of the best wrestlers in the west will meet in the university gymnasium this week-end to decide the conference championship in the seven weight divisions. Templin, in the 158 pound class, is the only Wisconsin man to survive for the finals, the Badger grappler having won three of his bouts and lost one on decision.

In accordance with the new conference ruling instituted this year the championship has become an individual rather than a school affair, and the four men with the highest percentage in each division will contend for final places in the tournament here this week.

Ames Has Strong Team
The undefeated Ames squad has more stars entered than any other school with men in each but the 175 pound weight. This squad which has been champion of the west for four years looks well for a wearer of this year's crown. Captain Cy Peterman, who was one of Coach Hitchcock's main hopes at the beginning of the year, lost out on the finals by one bout, the disastrous Ames trip proving fatal to his championship aspirations.

The first round of 14 bouts in the championship tournament will be held in the gym Friday night at 7:30, with two winners and two losers in each of the divisions to be picked. Saturday afternoon at 8:00 o'clock the two losers in each class will meet for third and fourth places, and at the same annual university boxing tournament will be held in which medals will be awarded to the winners in seven weights from heavy to bantam. The first preliminaries for this event will be held this afternoon at 4:00 in the boxing room of the gym. Saturday evening the finals of the wrestling tournament will be held in conjunction with a championship meet of conference gymnasium and fencing teams. Eight conference teams will take part in the gym exhibition.

The high point men who will wrestle in the coming tournament are:

115 pound class—Segard of Ames, Turner of Purdue, Jenness of Northwestern.

125 pound class—Oucks of Ames, Bana of Iowa, Meyer of Northwestern, and Slostrom of Illinois.

135 pound class—Bowen of Ames, Sweney of Iowa, Christopher of Ohio State, Hatowski of Chicago.

145 pound class—Shipart of Ames, Trenkle of Illinois, Dye of Purdue, Thomas of Nebraska.

Heavy weight class—Zink of Ames, Mundy of Indiana, Spencer of Purdue, Held of Iowa.

Tennis Tournament To Be Resumed Soon

The all-university tennis tournament which was begun last fall will be resumed as soon as the courts are in good condition.

In the singles, Tredwell was the only man who reached the semi-finals last fall. Bennett has to play the winner of a match to be played between Barwig and Fanning. The winner of this match will then meet Tredwell for the championship.

In the doubles, all teams are ready for the semi-finals. Gottfredson and Tredwell will meet Erdman and Evans. Moulding and Wright will play Hentzen and Bennett. The winners of these two matches will play for the championship. Of the four teams, Gottfredson and Tredwell stand the best chance of getting first place, as they are both on the Varsity team, and are the only two men who are left from last year's team.

District Contests Determine Schools For State Tourney

Wisconsin High Has Good Chance For Win; State Meet to Be Close

Sectional tournaments being held in the eight Normal school districts this week will determine the high schools which will send teams to compete in the Seventh Annual State Basketball championship tourney to be held in Madison on March 23, 24, and 25.

Wisconsin high and Oregon are likely-looking contenders for the title in the Whitewater Normal district. The Badger preps have gone through a successful season, and if they keep up their playing of previous games, they will have their long-sought chance to defeat Madison high. In the 1921 tourney, Madison defeated the preps for the title.

Antigo Undefeated
Antigo is an undefeated basketball team in the northern section of the state. The Antigo quintet has won most of its games in easy fashion, and it is expected to cop high honors at the elimination tournament. Rhinelander is another city represented by a strong high school team this year. Last year the Rhinelander team entered in the state tournament, but its lack of weight prevented it from finishing among the leaders.

Waukesha, Schlesingerville, and Racine are three outfits which bid fair to win in the Milwaukee Normal school meet. Racine has consistently put out a strong team and this year is no exception. The players from the factory town have weight and experience which has been developed into finished material by good coaching.

If pre-tourney indications are not upset, the State tourney will this year be one of the closest and hardest fought of any held in Madison.

BIG TEN TRACK TEAMS CLASH

Cinder Squad Should Show Up Well; Illinois is Likely Winner

With two victories chalked up at the end of the dual meet indoor season, the Wisconsin track team is this week rounding into condition for the annual Conference indoor track meet which will be held at Patten gym, Evanston, on Friday and Saturday.

Preliminary runs will be held in some events at Northwestern on Friday night and survivors will compete in the finals on Saturday.

Wisconsin chances to cop the meet, which appeared bright at the beginning of the season, have dimmed after the loss of George Finkle and Mark Woll, distance runners. Finkle broke his right leg in the Notre Dame meet on Feb. 18, and Woll's recent illness has weakened him so that it is improbable that he will enter.

Badgers Are in Shape
Other Badger athletes are nearing tip-top form. Platten's record-breaking performance in the high jump against Iowa indicates that he will be up among the leaders in the Big Ten competition. Other "dark horses" came through with enough points to enable Coach "Tom" Jones' outfit to best the Hawkeyes. Newell, who was a questionable starter in the 40-yard hurdles, won the event after Stolley had been disqualified. Capt. "Al" Knollin failed to place when he lost his stride after upsetting the first hurdle.

Rossmessel won the two-mile run from the veteran Peterman, and Ramsay came from behind on the final stretch to take the mile event.

Illinois May Cop
Showings in the dual meets indicate that Illinois will probably win the Big Ten contest. The Illini defeated Notre Dame in a dual meet by a larger score than that by which Wisconsin walloped the Hoosiers. The two Wallace brothers, S. H. and H. S., in the hurdles have developed into stars at leap-

TANKMEN FACE TEST IN BIG TEN MEET SATURDAY

Squad in Good Condition After Stiff Training; Bennett Is Favorite

After winning the conference dual meet title, Coach Joe Steinauer's swimming squad will meet its big test on Saturday when the Conference swimming meet comes off at Chicago. So far this season the Badger squad has traveled at a fast clip and has annexed six victories and has gone through the season victories were against the fast Milwaukee club and the other four were without a defeat. Two of these against conference teams, Minnesota, Illinois, Chicago and Northwestern.

With the Conference title in view, the Badger mentor is putting his charges through a stiff course of training this week, and he will take them to Chicago on Friday in the pink of condition, ready to put up the stiffest opposition that any Badger swim squad has ever offered. Many predict that the Wisconsin team will turn in a clean victory in the title meet, but before this happens the Badger splashers will have to extend themselves more than they have ever done before. It will be their supreme test.

Bennett Is Favorite
"Johnny" Bennett '24, Wisconsin's ace, will be sent into the meet, a strong favorite.

FROSH DEFEAT SOPHS IN SHORT HORN MEET

The first year short course students defeated the second year short course students 45 to 41 in an indoor track meet last evening. The relay race was the deciding factor of the meet wherein some exceptionally fast time was made.

GIRL'S BASEBALL TEAMS START WORK THIS WEEK

Girls' baseball teams have been chosen, and inter-class games will start next week to decide the championship. The teams follow:

Senior—Hazel Fish, Ruth Hoffman, Doris Rall, Irene Spiker, Ellen Swetil, Margaret A. Thomas, Alice Tucker, Mildred Warsinski, Victoria Werner, Ramona Hayes, manager. Substitutes, Alice Oakes, Helen Keeley.

Freshmen—Doris Burdick, Margaret Coon, Anna Fox, D. Gibbs, Emilie Hunt, Dorothy John, C. Sanders, K. Shattuck, V. Shepard, J. Truesdall, Hazel Weingandt, E. Thompkins, manager.

ing the barriers. Osborn's high-jumping record can hardly be bested, and his condition is shown by the fact that he won the all-around championship at the Illinois relays held at Urbana 10 days ago.

Fessenden, quarter miler, is an Illinois "find" who is expected to count points, and Wharton will be a likely contender in the distances.

Michigan and Iowa also possess strong teams which will be in the running at all times. The Wolverines, under the tutelage of Coach "Steve" Farrell, always manage to finish in first division. Coach George Bresnahan has developed a successful track squad at Iowa.

In Brookins and Wilson, sprinters, he has two of the speediest men in the Conference. Brookins took first place in the 40-yard dash and the quarter mile run against Wisconsin last Saturday. Wilson has placed consistently in previous meets.

Furnas, Purdue, is a distance runner who may count points for the Boilermakers, but the recent performances of the Hoosier indicate that he has lost much of his ability.

BADGER COACH FACES BIG JOB IN NEXT YEAR

Caeser and Taylor Lost By Graduation; Frosh Good

Although the basketball season is closed and little will be heard of the sport around the Badger campus, Coach Meanwell is just entering upon one of the hardest tasks of the school year.

The men who have played upon the freshman squad for the last few months, and the other material that Coach Meanwell has recruited must be trained by June 1 to a point where they can start out on a par with the veterans next fall.

There is certain to be strenuous competition for the two vacancies that will occur with the graduation of Caeser and Taylor. Rollie Williams and Gus Tebell each have one more year of conference competition ahead of them, while Gibson will be eligible for two more seasons.

Gage at Forward
Leslie Gage appears to be the safest bet for one of the forward positions on the 1923 team. He has taken part in almost every game this season and has established a firm reputation as a fighter. His eye has improved rapidly, and he has rarely failed to score when sent into the game. Gage played his best game of this season against Illinois, his great work both on offensive and on defense being instrumental in the Badger victory.

Russel Irish played in all three positions during the past season in a manner that bespeaks well for his success in the next few seasons. He starred in the Illinois game, when his close guarding confined the mighty Carney to a single basket. He is the ideal type of back guard, and with another year of experience, should be one of the best players in the conference.

Jack Williams, who has been a utility man for the past two seasons, will likewise be lost by graduation this spring. He played a good share of the time after Mike Knapp became ineligible, and returned to school in February, or just in time to bolster Coach Meanwell's list of reserve players when the hardest games of the schedule were still to be played. Had Williams been in school the first semester, he would have played in a large portion of the games, since his improvement in the past few weeks has been remarkable.

Utility Men Are Good
Coach Meanwell has several other likely looking candidates who should make a strong run for the team next fall. Barwig, Elsom, Ruediger, and Lynde have been on the Varsity squad and now have the complicated Meanwell system well in hand. The frosh candidates, under the coaching of Clarence McIntosh, a member of last year's championship tie team, include several men of shooting ability who are of real Varsity calibre.

The Badger mentor had a freshman team a year ago that was almost as good as the Varsity, but not a one of them was eligible to play this year. Johnson and McCartney were members of that team, and there is a strong possibility that they will be out for berths next fall.

Rifle Team Defeats New Hampshire Men

The R. O. T. C. rifle team defeated New Hampshire college in a target match by telegraph completed yesterday. The score was 3153 to 2917.

Phil G. Deicher '23 made the highest score for Wisconsin with a total of 386. He made two 99 scores in two successive rounds. Second on the list was Rolfe B. Sawtelle '25 with a total of 376.

Announcement

ON ACCOUNT of the many details that had to be straightened out after the fire we were unable to continue our business of selling merchandise. We are now pleased to announce that through the courtesy of the First National Bank we have secured a very large space, nearly the entire sixth floor, in the First Central Bank Building, which is being put in shape for our use.

Because of the many departments carried by us it would not be practical to attempt to continue all, therefore for the time being we will show the following lines only: Women's and Misses' Suits, Coats, Wraps, Costumes, Dresses for all occasions, Waists, Sweaters, Skirts, Petticoats, etc., Millinery, Corsets, Knit, Silk and Muslin Underwear, Hosiery, Umbrellas, Gloves, etc. We are pleased to state that all these departments will be under the former managements and the same careful and thorough service is offered to our customers that has made so many friends to the store.

Hundreds of letters and telegrams came to us from our sources of supplies during the past three weeks, offering every possible help and encouragement. Merchandise is now in transit that we are sure will make a wonderful showing and in every way advantageous to our trade. Everything will be fresh and new and of course the latest in style. Our merchandising policy will be small profits and quick turnovers.
