COLD SPELL DUE FOR BREAK TODAY, SAYS WEATHERMAN

Rising Temperature Period to Be Short Lived, However,
Is Forecast

Warmer weather is the prediction given out last night by the United States Weather bureau of Chicago alleviating the present cold spell which claimed three lives in Wisconsin Sunday.

A warm wave is headed this way from Canada, forecasts show. A slowly rising temperature was registered in the vicinity of Winnipeg, Canada, on Monday, according to reports received here.

Today to be Warmer

Rising temperature, however, will be only short lived and will be followed shortly by further cold climate, the weather man here reports.

Forecasts of the prevailing cold wave in the Great Lakes region show that the temperature will rise considerably Tuesday with possible snow storms in the vicinity of Madison.

The lowest mercury recording, 19 degrees below zero, was reached at 7:30 o'clock Monday morning. For two days the temperature has not risen above the zero mark, the highest recording, seven degrees below zero, being registered at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, according to figures compiled by the weather bureau here.

Three Die of Cold

William Cordie, 54, a truck driver of Milwaukee, died as a result of the frigid climate Sunday. John Thompson, 63, was found frozen to death Sunday near Superior. Louis Bauman, 57, died from the severe cold Sunday afternoon on his farm near Sturgeon Bay.

Morning trains from the north were delayed more than 40 minutes yesterday as the result of the cold weather. Busses and cab companies were seriously hampered throughout Sunday and Monday in giving service.

HONOR SYSTEM IS DEFEATED IN VOTE

Psychology Class Lacks Four of Necessary 85 Percent
For Proposition

An attempt to install the honor system in the final examinations in Psychology 1, under Prof. F. C. Sharp, was unsuccessful yesterday. A vote taken in the morning and afternoon lecture sections failed to show the necessary 85 percentage in favor.

"I am sorry the vote did not carry," Professor Sharp said. A number of my classes have used this system in the past, and I would like to have the new classes use it."

University regulations require that the initiative in installing the honor system be taken by a committee of students. The committee desired that 85 per cent of the class vote in favor of the plan before it should be adopted. When taken, the vote, 597 for the honor system and 112 against, failed to carry by almost 4 percent.

Reasons for voting against the plan were the large size of the class, the certainty that some would fail to observe the regulations, and the desire not to be bound by honor regulations. Those voting in favor of the honor system did so hoping that the "Wisconsin spirit" might become a part of the examinations.

CARDINAL PICTURE

All Cardinal reporters, special writers, desk assistants, and workers on the business staff will have their picture taken for the 1925 Badger at 12:30 o'clock Thursday noon at the Thomas studio, 26 W. Mifflin street.

Lawyers, Plumbers to Renew Old Feud With Tug-of-War

An engineer versus lawyer tug-of-war will be given a place on the program of the Wisconsin International Livestock show, February 23, according to G. R. Sery '24, manager, if the lawyers succeed in phrasing a challenge strong enough to taunt the plumbers.

Arrangements are being made to accommodate about 2,500 students and townspeople who will witness the contest between the ancient campus rivals.

It is hoped that at last the dispute of superiority will be definitely settled.

ART AID ASKED BY ATHLETIC REVIEW

Student Artists Will Submit
Cover Design For Winter
Sports Number

Student artists will submit designs for the front cover of Winter Sports issue of the Athletic Review which will be out Saturday, February 16, the date of the ice carnival, according to plans being made by the editors.

The promotion of winter sports among the students has been made the main feature of the next issue and in order to have a suitable cover, artists are being asked to send in their designs. The cover design should depict some campus scene, such as the ski jump, toboggan slide, hockey rink, or a skating or ice boat race. It will be printed in two colors.

Students interested in drawing a cover design are asked to call Mike Stiver '25, art editor of the magazine, in order to obtain full particulars. The deadline has been set for Saturday, February 2.

$5.50 TO BE COST OF TICKETS FOR PROM OF HISTORY

Charge Lowest Since Event
Has Been Held at Capitol
—Franseen

Prom tickets will cost $5.50 including prom supper and $4.50 without, according to an announcement made yesterday by Clifford Franseen '25, chairman of the ways and means committee. After careful consideration of final budgets as turned in by prom committees, the committee reports the lowest price for prom since that event has taken place in the state capitol.

This is a reduction over prices of Junior prom tickets in previous years and shows a willingness on the part of prom officials to cooperate with the requests made by university and state officials to reduce the cost of prom for students as much as possible without detracting in any way from the university's greatest social event.

To Keep High Standard
Proms in previous years have been able to turn over a considerable amount to the Union Memorial fund, but this year it was decided to give the students the benefit of these profits by reducing the price of tickets.

"We feel that we have taken a step in the right direction keeping in mind, however, the necessity of safeguarding against losses and of

A prom Cardinal has been published only in the last few years. Copies of the special issue will be on sale in the Capitol on prom night, although most of them will be disposed of by orders previously placed with members of Sigma Delta Chi.

WOLF WILL QUIT AS Y. M. C. A. HEAD, IT IS REPORTED

Board Remains Silent As Action
Is Promised at Friday Meeting

Frederick E. Wolf, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. has tendered his resignation to the board of directors, according to an unconfirmed report prevalent in campus circles yesterday.

Members of the board stated that they had nothing to say for publication and refused to confirm or refute the report when interviewed last night.

Successor not Known

The difficulty of finding a man capable of filling Secretary Wolf's position, prolonged action by the board regarding his resignation, members of the board revealed. No available man has been found up to the present time who can take charge of the Y. M. C. A. here.

Whether or not Secretary Wolf will take up a position at another conference university could not be ascertained. Officials of the Y. M. C. A. in the student body point out that Secretary Wolf will probably take up lecture work or writing for the organization.

Here Seven Years

Definite action regarding the resignation will be taken at the next board meeting to be held Friday noon, it became known yesterday.

Secretary Wolf is now completing his seventh year with the university organization. He is a graduate of Denison college, Ohio, and completed his studies at Harvard where he received his master's degree.

Later he became assistant rector at an Episcopalian church in Boston. After serving there for a number of years he came to Beaver Dam, and later took up his duties here.

DEAN HITS WOMEN VAUDEVILLE PLAN

Nardin Says Scheme to Raise Scholarship Money Would Injure Studies

The suggestion to have the women present an annual vaudeville show for the purpose of raising money for scholarships does not meet with the approval of Dean F. Louise Nardin.

"The great expenditure of time involved in the planning and rehearsing of a vaudeville show by from 300 to 700 women would interfere with studies and other activities and result only in good to perhaps one or two girls," said Dean Nardin.

"There is no doubt but that Wisconsin has need of more scholarships. I believe that a girl's time should be free to study if she has a good mind," continued the dean.

"If both the men and women college students of a country could get together during the summer months and by means of a show raise money for scholarships, I believe this would work out splendidly," declared Dean Nardin.

"I believe in straight giving. I like to hear a girl say 'I am not going to the Chocolate shop this afternoon but I am going to give my money to a worthy cause.' Wisconsin women like to give, and especially when they are out of college."

The fact that Wisconsin women like to give is evidenced by the number of scholarships listed in the catalogue as given by individuals and by organizations of women, Miss Nardin pointed out. Mortar board has an annual scholarship of $100.

The Bok Plan Referendum and Why You Should Vote

Prof. Pitman B. Potter of the political science department discusses in the following article the referendum on the Bok peace plan, pointing out reasons for casting a ballot, whether it be favorable or unfavorable. A discussion of the merits of the plan itself will appear in The Cardinal tomorrow. A Bok referendum ballot is printed on the editorial page of The Cardinal for the convenience of voters. Clip the coupon and send it in.—The Editor.

By PROF. PITMAN B. POTTER

Before considering the merits of the Bok peace plan itself, one may reasonably ask whether the referendum upon that plan is fair and proper.

Certain newspapers, opposed to any organized American cooperation with the other nations of the world, and certain politicians, seeking to "work" an old formula to keep themselves in power, say no. Over one hundred national and local social organizations in the country say yes; these include such organizations as the American Federation of Labor, United States Chamber of Commerce, Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, American Jewish committee, American Society of International Law, American Political Science association, National Association of Exporters and Importers, and others, all of which are participating in the referendum.

These organizations feel that the questions of peace, of formal and official American cooperation for peace with other nations and the League of Nations are vital questions to America and all Americans, that those questions have never been clearly settled, in view of the confusion of issues in the election of 1920, and that circumstances concerning peace and the League have so altered since 1920 that a fresh consideration of those matters is desirable anyway.

The opposition of senators who resent any effort by their constituents to induce them to vote in any definite manner other than according to their own wisdom and discretion, and of those who oppose popular referenda on even such simple and fundamental questions of principle as that here presented, will count for little.

Abstention and boycotting the vote will count for little; to neglect to vote out of indifference is to surrender a right to influence the outcome, and to argue that non-voters are all voters against the plan is an undue exercise of the imagination. The eager friends of the plan will undoubtedly hasten to vote; so, it may be conjectured, will its bitter enemies. The indifferent enemies of the plan will hold sullenly aloof; its luke-warm friends will also neglect to express themselves. The result will be a fair sample of general opinion.

The outcome is bound to be of considerable influence. The interpretation of the vote of 1920 as a vote against American cooperation in world government is without secure foundation. All referenda taken by Chambers of Commerce, periodicals, and other organizations in recent years have gone overwhelmingly in favor of American participation in League and Court. The present referendum may show that the legend of 1920 is a myth. If so, we may expect to see—not a violent leap into the League, of course, and full American membership in the League is probably undesirable for several reasons,—but just what the Bok plan proposes: gradually increasing cooperation between the United States and the League.

GHANDI PACIFISM UP FOR 'Y' DEBATE

Discussion to Follow Talks By Bahadur on Indian Policy

Pacifism from the idealistic standpoint of the followers of Ghandi, who advocates resistance by "spirit and not by force" will be discussed pro and con at the fellowship meeting in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock this evening.

This program is a sequel to that of last Tuesday evening, when various other plans for doing away with war were presented. Mohindra Bahadur, a student from India who is spending his sixth year here and is working for his doctor's degree, will outline the Ghandi policy and the non-resistance movement in his native country.

Practical fallacies in the pacifist program will be pointed out in a talk by Carl Casper '26. Following these two talks, a free discussion will be opened by Arno Haack '25, who is to be chairman of the meeting.

S. G. A. Provides Tables For Study In Lathrop Cafeteria

"There will be room for about 75 girls in the study rooms provided by S. G. A. in the upstairs of Lathrop cafeteria," Lois Jacobs '24, president of S. G. A. said yesterday. Girls can come there the first five nights of the week from 7:30 to 10:00 o'clock. There are 13 large tables which will make room for 75.

"The girls are asked to sign their names to the cards that will be placed on the tables, and to drop the cards in a box which will be put at the door.

"We are doing this to see how well the plan is going to work out, and we hope the girls will take advantage of this opportunity," explained Lois Jacobs, "for if there are not enough coming to study there, it will be of no use to continue to pay for clearing the room after the study hours."

PALICA URGES JUNIORS TO CALL ON ADVISEES

All Junior advisers are asked to call on their advisees some time this week before examinations," said Jean Palica '24, chairman of the Junior advisory committee. "The advisers ought to be able to cheer and inspire their advisees or aid them to understand some particular problem which is confronting them at this particularly busy and bewildering time of semester examinations," added Miss Palica.

Passion Players Unable to Present Exhibition Here

The Oberammergau Passion players will not visit Madison, according to a letter received today by the Rev. E. J. Meyer of Holy Redeemer church. The closest they will come to Madison will be Chicago, where they will give an exhibition February 20 and March 2 in the Coliseum.

The letter to the Rev. Mr. Meyer, dated from Cincinnati, says: "We trust that many of your friends in Madison will find it convenient to visit Chicago to see the exhibition during our stay in that city."

The players have a definite itinerary which includes St. Louis, Detroit, Chicago, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Boston.

PROM COMFORTS READY FOR GIRLS

40 Maids, Powder, Pins and Perfumes Arranged For Party Boxes

The committee on women's arrangements for prom, under Jean Palica '25, chairman, has engaged 40 maids to attend the girls at the Junior promenade. Every effort is being made to provide every accommodation for the fair members of prom parties, and maids will be stationed in each box to assure possible conveniences and comforts for prom goers.

Accessories such as powder, perfume, pins and combs will be provided for every box under the direction of Katherine Parker '25 of the women's arrangements committee.

Working in conjunction with the women's arrangements and the coming arrangements committees is the alumni committee which has sent letters to all alumni who graduated within the last five years urging them to return for the social function. Letters have also been sent to fraternities asking them to urge their alumni to return according to Brunetta Kuehlthau '25, chairman.

The Alumni magazine for February which will come out the end of this month is running a prom story with an appeal to the alumni so that every subscriber will be reached.

During the holidays prom workers talked before the alumni associations in a number of towns telling them about prom and inviting them to return to their alma mater for the affair. As a result of these efforts it is expected that nearly 100 alumni will return to Madison the weekend of February 8 to renew their social experiences here, Miss Kuehlthau asserts.

"IT MAKES ME WANT TO GO TO PROM"

Blossom Seeley wants to go to the Junior Prom, and it's all on account of the Octopus.

An enamoured Octopus staff member thrust a copy of the magazine into her hands one day last week. She glanced at it casually, then eagerly. He was rewarded—she smiled.

"Your Prom Octopus makes me want to go to the Prom," she said. "It's one of the cleverest funny magazines I ever saw."

So the staff member rushed her to a studio, and Octy and Miss Seeley were photographed together. As for the students—they'll want to go to Prom, too, when they see the Prom Octopus Wednesday.

SHEN NAMED HEAD
OF CHINESE CLUBNew President Says He Likes
Wisconsin Better Than Eastern Schools

"I came back to Wisconsin because I like it much better than any of the eastern schools," declared Mathew H. C. Shen '24, president-elect of the Chinese Students' club in his inaugural address Saturday evening at the University Methodist church.

Other officers elected are H. L. Chang '24, vice president; J. C. Liu, grad, secretary; C. H. Tsai '25, treasurer. The retiring officers are Charles Shao, grad, president; Tso Y. Chu '24, vice president; C. C. Wang '24, secretary; H. L. Chang '24, treasurer.

"I went to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to do post graduate work in chemistry," said Shen in his talk, "but I found that the laboratory there is not as satisfactory as Wisconsin's. The students are too absorbed in their studies to engage in social or other extra-curricular activities and consequently life there is rather monotonous and uninteresting.

"Madison has become my home, or rather my second home. Like so many others who have spent some time in Madison, I found the city grew. I really felt homesick the few months I was in Cambridge. Outside of my home town in China I like Madison best."

Special Features
Are Planned For
Eighth Ice Fete

Many special features are being planned for the eighth annual ice carnival, which will be held February 16. Special fancy and speed skaters from Milwaukee and Chicago will come to Madison to take part in the special events.

"We are planning the best features of any carnival yet," said Arthur E. Timm '25, assistant general chairman of the carnival, in speaking of plans. "We hope to bring the best skaters in the surrounding country to Madison for exhibition. We will co-operate with the city carnival by using the same features at different times."

A meeting of all committee chairmen of the carnival will be held at the Union building, 7:30 o'clock, Thursday night. Final plans will be made at this meeting.

Returning Men
Raise Hopes of Cinder Squad

Among the students who will re-enter the University in February are three old track men who will strengthen the squad considerably. They are Gerald Wade '24, Norman Scott '24, and Harry Cohen '26.

Wade is a "W" man. He was a two miler on the track team, and was also a good man in the cross country. Scott is a pole vaulter who has done 11 feet six inches consistently in that event. Cohen won his numerals in the two mile run last year on the frosh track team.

BADGERS SET FOR
MINNESOTA TILTSHockey Team Loses and Ties
With Michigan, But Gains
Confidence

The Badger hockey squad, with about 100 per cent more confidence after the tilt with Michigan last weekend, is all set for a week's hard grind to prepare for the Minnesota pucksters, Big Ten champions for the last two years, next Friday and Saturday. The two games may be played at night if the rink lights are ready in time.

Wisconsin played the strong Michigan team off its feet last Saturday and the final game ended in a 2 to 2 tie after three overtime periods had been played. The first game was won by the Wolverines by a 3 to 0 score, and Coach Blodgett's men were helpless before the Michigan attack, but on Saturday they hit their stride, and the coach hopes that they will retain the form throughout the rest of the season.

The Gophers defeated Marquette last Saturday 1 to 0, and although the Hilltoppers have already registered a win over Wisconsin, Minnesota's victory doesn't mean so much after all. The Badgers have improved to a great extent in the last two weeks, and although the strong Minnesota squad may cop the game they will not have an easy time of it. Wisconsin is weak on right hand shots, but the coach is working to overcome this fault by next Friday.

George Fisk, a regular for two years will be eligible next semester and his presence will materially strengthen the team. His regular position is right wing and the squad needs just such a man.

The ticket sale was opened a short time ago under the direction of James Culbertson '25. Orders are being received by him at 225 Lake Lawn place. Requests for supper hours will be filled in the order in which application for tickets are received. Prom goers will pay for their tickets when they call for them.

Fell From Sky In Storm

JACKSON, Miss.—Dr. C. B. Stingley, superintendent of the state board of health laboratory, is making microscopic examination of samples of what appeared to be human tissues that fell from the skies during a rain storm at D'Lo, Simpson county, 30 miles southeast of here, several days ago. The substance was brought to Dr. Stingley here by Dr. M. L. Flint, of D'Lo, who said the "tissues" fell in great quantities on the farm of one of his neighbors.

INTER-COLLEGE
TRACK ATHLETES
MEET SATURDAYLetter Men May Compete; Last
Trials For Varsity Before
Conference Meets

By holding the annual inter-college track meet which is open to everybody, including all "W" men and freshmen, next Saturday afternoon, the final try-outs for the varsity cinder path squad will be given.

This is the first time that athletes who have won their letters in track have been allowed to compete in the inter-college meets, but Coaches Thomas E. Jones and Meade Burke realize that it will give them a larger field from which they can pick their candidates.

"The purpose of this meet is not only to have a final try-out for members of the squad and those interested in track activities, but also to ascertain which college furnishes the most men for the track teams," declared Coach Meade Burke, yesterday.

Because of the close competition in the varsity-freshman meet on Saturday, in which the first year athletes won five first places, it is expected that the races will be faster and better records will be established in the field events in the inter-college meet.

Among the men already entered in the inter-college competition are: Engineers—Captain Hammann, Donohue, Zillsch, Krieger, Schmidt, and Finkle; Commerce: Valley, Muzzy and Petaja. Letters and Science: Tuhtar, McAndrews, Bergstresser, and Limberg; Medics: Krone and Eagleburger; Agries: Piper, captain of the 1924 cross country team, Swingle, Read, Perry, and Schneider.

The freshmen will be represented in the meet, and several of them can be counted upon as sure point winners. Schwarze, Voigt, Meissner, and McGinnis will compete for the Letters and Science college, while Jirtle, Nast and O'Neil are commerce men, and Schilke, who defeated Valley and Hilberts in the half-mile event last Saturday, will run for the Engineering school.

Captains of the college teams will be selected Tuesday afternoon.

Herbert H. Schwarze '27 will compete in the Illinois Athletic club handicap track meet at Chicago on Friday night, in the weight events.

Schwarze, who was formerly affiliated with the I. A. C., is a member of the freshman track team, and won first place in the shot put event in the varsity-freshman meet last Saturday. Schwarze is also a member of the first year football squad.

DEANS WILL NOTIFY
STUDENTS OF FLUNKS

Students who fail in any course this semester will be notified from the dean's office, where all marks are sent immediately after they are made out. Instructors will send marks only to those students who leave addressed cards for that purpose in their blue books. There is no ruling requiring an instructor to send notice of failures to students.

PEACE OF EIGHT

For more than a week students of the university have been given an opportunity to cast their ballot in the nation wide referendum on the Bok peace plan, and up to date eight, maybe less, maybe more, have indicated their vote on this question.

What the reason for this insignificant interest is, is a matter of conjecture. Yet one of the most recurrent of the arguments on the referendum which seems to prevent votes, is that alternative plans should have been presented and that the plan and referendum requires too hard and fast a decision on a specified and peculiar set of principles. And yet, a certain amount of reading and study will show that the winning plan is not in any sense detailed and specific, but is one which allows a great deal of leeway and furthermore the ballot itself is worded so that the "yes" or "no" is to signify only a general recognition.

Of course, it is essentially the voting students who are appealed to and since the ballot has not circulated to every student, a tremendous avalanche of ballots could not be expected. And yet, it would seem that more students should be interested in national affairs. The ballot will be run for several more days, and every student should give it his consideration.

STANDARDIZATION IN EDUCATION

One of the greatest faults in the present day system of education with which educationalists must contend is the matter of standardization. Whether country school or graded, high school or college is referred to, the charge holds true. No matter what the institution may be, individuals of all degrees of intelligence are lumped together in the same classes. All receive the same degree of instruction; all are supposed to assimilate the same amount of education and the same kind; and absolutely no heed is taken of the individual abilities and aptitudes. The whole process is standardized and the product turned out more or less so.

As a result of the present system, scholastic standards are set, not by the better class of students as they should be, but by the poorer. At best, they are only an average between the excellent and the poor students within the same class. Hence, an ineffectual effort is made to elevate the poorer students and the more intelligent are retarded in their work. The fact that one poor student can hold back the whole class is a matter of common knowledge. Accordingly, the results obtained are far below the work assigned the class and then, having nothing to do, wastes his time, develops bad habits, and forms false conceptions of his abilities. The more mediocre student must spend all his time preparing his lesson and consequently acquires persistence and learn to work. This is the explanation of the greater success of the mediocre students over their more intelligent companions. It is not a question of potential possibilities in the former but merely a matter of better though unintentional training. Thus, in the poorer training of the more intelligent students a great loss is involved, and a great injustice done.

Much is being done to solve this problem, but all efforts are of a recent date. Classes are being divided into A and B sections in order to better accommodate the varying degrees of ability. Psychological tests are being instituted to determine individual capabilities and inclinations. Special forms of instruction are being used, all for the purpose of developing the student according to his own potentialities. But the problem is far from being solved. In fact, little more has been accomplished than to take the initial step which is the recognition of the individuality of the personalities of human beings which makes standardization impossible. And with this understanding comes the realization that standardization is more destructive to the individual than constructive.

WORTHLESS ALIBI

At this time of the year, students here and there are hard at work preparing alibis to explain their inability to pass this or that course. "Poor instructor," "impossible amount of work demanded," "simply can't get that course no matter how hard I work," and especially "standards are altogether too high" are some of the excuses offered. Such excuses constitute nothing more or less than the refusal of the student to face honestly and squarely the results of his own negligence and wilful shirking and thus to learn a lesson therefrom.

The student who fails to meet the scholastic requirement of one grade point for every credit is deserving of scant sympathy. An individual incapable of meeting it has not the slightest right to be in the college. There may be a grain of truth in "Poor instructors," but the record of the majority of a class flunking because of poor instruction is unknown. Individual inability to grasp a particular subject causing a lack of grade points is to be balanced by an individual aptitude for some other subject. As for the plea of "an impossible amount of work," the others in the class manage to perform it.

Any denunciation of the standard of this university or any other for that matter is utterly preposterous. At worst, the scholastic standards set by colleges are too low and too easily met for the good of the student populace. A bare few hours of work a day suffice to let the average student scrape past the requirements, and thus too much leeway is afforded for distracting pursuits. The individual who fails to give the few hours of work a day at least is wholly undesirable here or at any other college. Fortunately, however, there are only a few such, and it is for the good of all that they soon leave.

SAY, SHE'S SMILING

When Frances came to Madison last September, she immediately found a room on N. Mills near Dayton. That very night she wrote her father, a country doctor in southern Illinois telling him of her good fortune: "I have already secured a room in a quaint cottage only a block or so from the university . . . other college girls are here, too, and I'm so thrilled—and so very very happy!" That must have pleased Dad, for together they had planned and talked over this adventure for several years.

It was a curious, new world for Frances with perplexing talk of Gammas and Thetas and Alpha something and whether one should or should not pledge this, that or the other sorority; she got to wondering all day which would be the first to invite her to call, and what it would be like.

—Not a house on the campus asked her over. Nor in the long weeks that followed did many students seem eager to date her.

Later a fraternity man told her why: "You see, Frances, you don't loosen up enough. At least pretend you're a sport! Hell, you're only in college once. And with your looks you'd get by all right—but you're too er-r conservative, too shy, sensitive like. Besides, you should have gotten a room over on Langdon—in with the crowd."

The girl could understand only that last: the words gnawed at her heart whenever she became lonely—"over on Langdon—in with the crowd."

February now and with it a sudden change—a lively sparkle dances in her eye; there's color in her cheek; and upon occasions she joyously jumps about—like a child expecting a present.

You see, the semester being up, Frances has secured a new room on Langdon and, of course, from now on everything will be different.

KANSAS PRODIGY MAKES GOOD AT UNIVERSITY AS DIRECTOR OF PROM PLAY

MADISON, Wis.—The most popular man at the university is said to be Roy L. French, Emporia, Kansas, who recently was appointed director of the Torchbearers, a play forming the chief entertainment for the Junior prom.

Mr. French won his popularity last fall when he addressed several sororities while they were at luncheon. At that time he made the statement that he had not heard any teeth clash against knives while he was talking, whereupon the Kappas, Gamma Phis, Thetas, and Alpha Phis voted him the leading man in school. He is married.

Official records show that Mr. French joined the Wisconsin Players before there was such an organization in 1913. Although he has been placed on probation by the faculty at different times the Kansas boy has always been in good standing with the Players.

Mr. French is much in demand as an after dinner speaker. He has two sets of jokes and uses both sets whenever he talks. His favorite joke has to do with Dean Sellery whose name has much in common with one of the best known garden products.

Although it is not generally known, Mr. French has in many instances shown remarkable ability as a publicity director.

PROM NEWS TOLD U. S. BY BULLETIN

Press Sheet of Journalism Department Gives University Widespread Publicity

Across the continent to California the university press bulletin carries news of Wisconsin prom activity. Twelve hundred copies are sent out weekly to editors of country newspapers, to college editors of eastern and southern dailies, to trade journals, and to individuals who wish to keep up with activities at the university.

The bulletin is a single page made up of small news items on social activities, scientific notes, and any articles written by members of the faculty that may be reprinted because of special interest and value to the public.

Radio programs, football schedules, housekeeping suggestions from the home ec department, stock and poultry notes, changes in the faculty, plans for prom, all find their place in the press bulletin.

The sheet was started at the suggestion of Prof. W. G. Bleyer of the journalism department in connection with the jubilee in the spring of 1904. Professor Bleyer was the editor until 1913, when the bulletin was taken over by the extension division. In 1916, however, the paper again changed hands, and Prof. Grant M. Hyde, also of the journalism department, was made editor.

Ray Overholser, scout executive, left Monday morning for Aurora, Ill., where he will attend a meeting of scout executives. Mr. Overholser will return to Madison Thursday morning.

at Best in Glee Club Presentation

Little Boy Blue corners the sheep of Little Bo Peep in the garden of Mary Contrary, where they had been feeding on the little maids all in a row.

The complications that ensue involve all the familiar characters of Mother Goose rhymes and are adroitly woven together to form a cantata novelty number on the program of the Women's Glee club. Characteristic music accompanies the tale.

The Women's Glee club will present the cantata, "A Mother Goose Arabesque" by Jessie Merrill Tukey, in its concert at Music hall auditorium Wednesday night, January 23, under the direction of Dr. Charles H. Mills.

"The Sun Worshippers," an Indian melody, is another unusual number on the program. The ensemble is prepared to sing the song in the original Indian. The English version may also be given.

The two selections form part of a varied program of six groups of selections, including ensemble numbers, vocal solos, and a violin solo.

Tickets for the concert are on sale for 35 cents each at the school of music, at the University pharmacy, and at Hook's music store.

"WHERE THE NORTH BEGINS"
Presented at the Parkway.
Featuring Rin Tin Tin.

By TED

Rin Tin Tin as a dog actor does not, perhaps, surpass Strongheart, but he certainly gives him a tight squeeze, and Strongheart will have to guard his laurels carefully if he would hold them. Rin Tin Tin obeys his director intelligently and to the detail, and as a consequence as far as he is concerned, "Where the North Begins" is a success.

The dog is THE actor and THE center of interest. His supporting cast is good, but the story is about the same as any other dog story you have seen in movies. We wish that sometime, somehow, somebody would write a story in which a dog with the ability of Rin Tin Tin could act, without laying that story in the "great, silent, snow-filled and eternal vastnesses of the Canadian Northwest," without having the dog become a wolf, and then of his own accord come back to man and be again just a dog.

To be sure, we haven't the slightest idea of what such a story could be about. After seeing several dozen movies of the above type, we have begun to think that that is the only kind of dog story that exists; and by this time we have become pretty well acquainted with it. In fact we feel quite certain that, not having seen the picture before, we could have closed our eyes for any period of time, and on opening them be sure to see the dog either contemplating leaving his master for his mate in the wilderness, or (near the end of the picture) flying at the throat of the villain. But with all of that, we give "Where the North Begins" 85 per cent on Rin Tin Tin alone.

There is at the Parkway also a so-called comedy which in spite of Will Rogers is just plain dumb, and there is Corrine Arbuckle and her jazz band, on whom we decline to give an opinion, jazz bands not being in our line except to dance to. As to Miss Arbuckle's voice, well, there is doubt as to its carrying power, but beyond that—But she received much applause.

Milwaukee Normal Pupils
Practice In Schools

A plan of cooperation between Milwaukee normal school and Milwaukee city school officials which promises to revolutionize training of teachers at the normal school, was approved by the state normal board of regents in session here last week, it was learned Monday. The plan is similar to school programs in operation in Cleveland and Detroit, it is said. Two ward schools in Milwaukee will be designated for practice training for students at the Milwaukee normal. The students will be under supervision of expert teachers, selected through the cooperation of the city superintendent and President Baker of the normal college. It is estimated by normal school officials that between 300 and 400 students preparing for teaching will be given expert training through the new plan.

"TO THE LADIES"
Presented at the Madison.
Featuring Theodore Roberts, Edward Horton, Helen Jerome Eddy and Louise Dresser.

By E. M. S.

Don't miss going to the Madison this week. Thew hole bill is excellent. "To The Ladies" from the stage play by that name, is a delicious comedy satire about egotistical men who refuse to acknowledge the fact that their wives are the real cause of their success. Of course Helen Jerome Eddy cannot compare with Helen Hayes, in the stage play, either in appearance nor appeal. Otherwise the cast is as good the legitimate, and in some cases better. The plot is changed very little.

Well, everything in the town of Mercer centers around the Kincaid Piano Factory, and all the office force are rivals for the position of manager. Leonard Beebe, played by Edward Horton, (the inimitable hero of "Ruggles of Red Gap") puts out a fire in the factory, to win recognitions from his employer. The latter, John Kincaid (Theodore Roberts) calls upon the Beebes, with his wife (Louise Dresser) in the midst of a pleasant chat, enhanced by Ropo cigars and their only bottle of champagne, furniture movers come to take away the mortgaged Kincaid piano. Mr. Kincaid pays the interest, but is disgusted, notwithstanding.

At a hint from his wife, he invites the Beebes to the salesman's banquet. The other candidate for manager is called upon first and his speech is the same as Beebe's! Consequently, Mrs. Beebe has to make her husband's speech, pretending that he has laryngitis, and the sincerity of her impromptu appeal wins him the position. But—his rival tells Mr. Kincaid of the use, and complications arise. Mrs. Kincaid, like Mrs. Beebe, is the key-note to her husband's success, and, throughout the chain of amusing incidents, we are not permitted to forget that most men owe their success to the ladies.

Theodore Roberts plays his role with characteristic cleverness, both Helen Jerome Eddy and Louise Dresser are excellent, and Edward Horton as the tactless, banal, conceited husband is, well—you must see him!

There are also International News, an Aesop Fable, a Christie Comedy, and a parody on "No, No, Naná" about "Rondy" Coughlin of "The Capital Times." And it's all worth seeing!

Up Stage Bits

BY TORMENTOR

Tonight is the date set for "Fanny's First Play." The entire university will attend, as a sort of preliminary comedy refreshment to an examination period of work.

In fact, Zenobia is quite excited about this last opportunity to "see a show" before exams.

An old Haresfoot man and member of Curtain club, Johnny McPherson, has come to town and will assist Tormentor and Zenobia in reviewing the play for the Cardinal tonight.

And this is no small task. Pity poor Tormentor. Not only does he have to criticize the faculty and thereby jeopardize his good name in quite important (to him) circles, but also he has to criticize a play which the author himself has already completely and sarcastically criticized for him so that there is nothing left to say.

In fact, Shaw has quite some fun with the species called "Dramatic critic" in this play, and Tormentor may find himself tormented for a change.

Sir: Did you know that when Zenobia was in high school she spelled her name with an X instead of a Z for a short time so that she could legitimately claim Green inheritance?—G. K. S.

No, G. K. C., Zen never told us that, but she did intimate that the reason she became a Pi Phi was that she could consistently maintain her Greek connections.

It certainly is a cinch that Benny Fields never graduated from a school of English. His "honey" and "darling" are most delicious in public, however, and with those eyes it is no wonder that Blossom fell.

Bill Purnell made a mighty poor assistant for Sid Thorson as scene suffer at the Parkway Friday night. Sid was out front with a date and was decidedly put out when he heard Oscar's voice penetrate through the curtain in no pleasant manner. However, they did get the show ready by 9 o'clock.

Purnell had quite a hob nob with the cast and it is rumored that he and the leading man had some sandwiches together after the Saturday show.

The Gingham Girl, however, was put out at Tormentor because he favored the country

Faith is Theme of Pollyanna Picture

"A CHAPTER IN HER LIFE"
Presented at the Majestic.
Featuring Mary Curley.

By TOM

"A Chapter in Her Life" written by Clara Bruham, and adapted to the screen by Lois Weber, is very different from the usual run of pictures shown in Madison. The theme of the picture is built around the word "faith" and is cleverly exercised by a twelve year-old girl whose name should be "Personal-ity."

So many of these "faith-type" pictures tire their audiences before the climax that they are not worth while, but not so with this one. A carefully chosen cast "put it over" in such a manner that a person almost has to believe.

The comedy "Heavy Seas" resorts to "slap-stick" tactics and over-drawn situations, but it is funny and brings many well timed laughs in spite of its crude construction.

"Bernard and Betts", in their novelty xylophon act, present a very entertaining musical skit. What they lack in ability they make up in interpretation of the popular numbers of today.

The entire program is entertaining and varied to be called an evening of good amusement.

Katy Mac Acts Well
In Plotless Story

If you like to watch a pretty woman act like a real live person go to the Strand and see Katherine MacDonald in "Chastity." She is not given any complicated story to portray but she portrays well that which she is given.

There are only a few characters in the story and as there is only one good looking man it is rather simple deciding whom the star will fall in love with.

There is only one place in which you are in suspense; that is near the conclusion when you see the star plunge into the river. You don't know whether she survives or not and I won't disillusion you.

The leading man is handsome or is our lady friend expressed it "Just Darling." Also he acts well and convincingly.

Baby Peggy in "Hansel and Gretel" is her own sweet entertaining and inimitable self. Two reels of pleasure.

HOUDINI LEADS
ORPHEUM ACTS;
EXCESS MUSIC

By ONE ON THE AISLE

Houdini of course is the headline attraction at the Orpheum. Every other number on the bill, however, rates a close second. Perhaps a little less music would have made the bill more varied.

Assisted by Ethel Pick, Bennie gets by big with much nonsense. He sings, dances and acts foolish in general.

Calvin and O'Connor These two colored gentlemen tell some good jokes, dance better dances, and sing some clever songs. Their opening puts the act over in fine style.

Loudini He liberates himself from a water torture cell, swallows needles, and otherwise mystifies his audience. How he does it we can't fathom, but it gets across.

Harrison and Dakin They present "The Three of Us". Good in spots, in others terribly weak. Billy Hogue assists at the piano, and furnishes accompaniment for their songs, dances and nonsense.

Parker and Kenny The dancing was the best part of his act. Joe Mann at the piano was good, and the songs weren't bad.

Curtain Club Presents Bernard Shaw's Satirical Drama at Central High

The Curtain club will present "Fanny's First Play" at 8:15 o'clock tonight in the auditorium of Central high school. This is one of Bernard Shaw's funniest and cleverest satires, and is especially adapted to production in Madison, as it deals with the new freedom of the young. It is a play within a play as the name suggests, in which Shaw delights in taking several good digs at the critics.

Florence Macbeth at Parkway Soon in One Act Opera

Florence Macbeth, coloratura soprano, favorite of this season's Chicago civic opera will delight Madison music lovers with her presentation of Wolf Ferarri's one act opera "Secret of Suzanne" in the Parkway theater, Friday, February 1.

Proclaimed by music critics as the foremost coloratura soprano in this country, Miss Macbeth combines a voice of silvery sweetness with a joyousness and an air of happiness that wins every heart. Her tones are pure, clear, and delicately lovely, and her rippling trills and dainty staccatos reveal the great flexibility of her perfect voice. In addition to a piquant personality, she has histrionic ability to no small degree.

The story of the opera concerns Suzanne, the lovely daughter of a Piedmont nobleman, who marries Count Gil, an erstwhile woman-hater and a confirmed bachelor. After the happiness of the honeymoon comes the humdrum of marriage.

Count Gil again seeks his old haunts, and Suzanne in her loneliness, takes to smoking with their deaf and dumb servant. Enraged

TRIUMPHS IN OPERA

MACBETH AS LUCIA

Amid scenes of greatest enthusiasm, Florence Macbeth making her season's debut in "Lucia of Lammermoor" with the Chicago opera company, was acclaimed as the greatest singing actress of the present century. Although her line of ancestry goes back to Macbeth, once King of Scotland, Miss Macbeth is proud of her American birth and of the fact that all her musical education has been at the hands of an American teacher.

when he unexpectedly returns and smells cigarette smoke, and thinking of a possible lover, Count Gil swears vengeance. Many amusing complications arise, which are finally mutually explained, and contentment once more reigns. A concert will precede the opera in which the principals will sing some of the most famous operatic arias.
