The libraries provide public access to a wide range of material, including online exhibits, digitized collections, archival finding aids, our catalog, online articles, and a growing range of materials in many media.

When possible, we provide rights information in catalog records, finding aids, and other metadata that accompanies collections or items. However, it is always the user's obligation to evaluate copyright and rights issues in light of their own use.

I Believe One can Talk with the Dead

I am blind and I have been blind for a long time now, for twenty four years, and I have been alone that long. I was living in the woods up north for several years. I did not believe in your kind of religion.

Then one time two white women arrived and they preached to me. They said, "It is possible for you to talk with the dead."

So when they had gone home, I wanted to talk with my parents, both of whom were dead. So I considered it as I was thinking about them. When we talked, you use everything in the mind. So now I do believe it is possible to talk with someone who has died. Since we have been talking, I am not alone and I also talk with God even. He has forgiven me of the things I have done and now I am prepared to die. Whenever I will pass on I am ready any day that he would call me back.
