P R E F A C E .

It is not our purpose to tire you with a long preface containing a puff of our publication, for we hope its merits are sufficient to secure for it the patronage of the public. We have endeavored to make a good, correct, reliable directory, and wherever changes have taken place, as far as we could ascertain, in business or location since the city was canvassed we have made corrections in our list.

Perfection in a city directory is not looked for by those who can appreciate the care, labor and expense, attending the compiling and publishing of such a work, but we think this is as near an approximation to it as can with reason be expected.

To the business men who have extended to us their patronage by advertising we are under many obligations, and hope they may reap a rich harvest by way of an increased trade. To the Pastors of the several churches and others, we are indebted for much valuable information found in the appendix; and for the history of Janesville to Alexander T. Gray, Esq. Our thanks are due to Messrs. Wright & Erving, of the Janesville Times for the neat and tasty manner in which the typography of the work is executed.

To all who have aided us and encouraged our enterprise, we tender our heartfelt thanks, hoping that our book may meet with a pleasing reception.

THE PUBLISHER.

A BRIEF SKETCH OF THE
HISTORY OF JANESVILLE,

AND SOME ACCOUNT OF ITS PRESENT CONDITION, ITS ADVANTAGES AND PROSPECTS.

The famous Black Hawk war, sometimes irreverently called the "Sauk fuss", beside its other happy consequences, contributed to hasten the settlement of the upper Valley of Rock River. The frontiersmen who chased that Chief and his braves across the Wisconsin, and finally routed them on the eastern bank of the Mississippi, on returning to their homes, in addition to their stories of the hardships and perils they had encountered, told of the loveliness of the region through which they had passed, of its beautiful streams, prairies, and openings, and but a year or two elapsed before immigration began to direct its course hither. The early settlers of Janesville could distinguish in the broad ravine, now familiarly known by his name, and which lies on the southeast of the present city, the vestiges of a camp which the Indian Chief had occupied in the course of that his last campaign. Brands that had been used in his camp fires were still to be seen, and poles that had formed the frame work of his lodges, were yet standing.

The pioneers of immigration, to this and similar portions of Wisconsin, had before them brighter prospects, and experienced far less of toil and privation, than those who led the way in the settlement of Western New York, Ohio and Indiana. Of personal peril from the savage, or from influences of climate promotive of disease, they had nothing to brave or to suffer. A fair and fertile land was spread before them, ready for the hand of the husbandman; seeming, indeed, to have, at some day not very remote, been the home of civilization, and to have been abandoned, after a long course of careful cultivation, to become the hunting ground of the red man. It could not well be called a wilderness. There were no dense forests to be hewn down to make way for the farm of the settler. The oak openings, while they added beauty to the landscape, were no hindrance to its rapid occupation for the uses and purposes of agriculture. The adventurers from the hills and villages of the East were delighted to find a climate free from every miasmatic taint, and singularly salubrious. There was in brief no obstacle to a speedy settlement of the country, and when once the tide of emigration westward, in quest of new homes and better fortunes, was turned this way, it soon rolled on with rapidly increasing volume. The spot upon which the city of Janesville now stands became the central point of the influx of population to the Southern portion of the valley of Rock River in Wisconsin.

In the month of October, 1835, John Inman, George Follmer, Joshua Holmes, William Holmes, Jr., and Milo Jones came here, and the four first-named set up a cabin on the south bank of the river, opposite the "Big Rock". This rock was an old land-mark of the Indians, crowned with a growth of beautiful cedars, and although since considerably cut down, is still a prominent object near the northern end of the bridge connecting the Monterey addition with the main body of the city. The river was readily crossed by fording at this point, and the place of passage was usually designated as the "Big Rock ford."

Milo Jones did not tarry with his companions, but continued his journey up the river to the spot on which is now built the thriving village of Fort Atkinson, where he is still residing, a much respected and influential citizen.

The first settler of the county of Rock, who brought with him his family and household gods, was Samuel St. John of Vermont, who, with his wife and three children arrived here in the month of November, 1835. Before the coming of the parties above mentioned and the St. Johns, Thomas A. Holmes and a comrade had been here on an exploring tour, in the month of June, 1835. His residence was then in Milwaukee, the trading post of Solomon Juneau. He is now living at Shakopee, in Minnesota.

Doctor James Heath and wife joined the little band of squatter sovereigns in January, 1836, and the cabin roughly put together in the autumn of '35, gave shelter to them all until the following spring. A log hut, sixteen by eighteen feet, formed somewhat close and narrow quarters for eleven people, with two married couples in their number; especially so, as it received an accession to its population, soon after New Year's day, by the birth of a son to the St. Johns—the first white child, it is believed, born in the upper valley of the Rock—certainly the first in the county of Rock. He was named Seth B. St. John, and is now a resident of Columbia county, Wis. Mrs. St. John, his mother, did not long survive his birth. The rude accommodations with which she had to pass through this severe trial, together with the total deprivation of medical attendance, and of the kind care of her own sex, induced a rapid decline of health, and she died in the month of June following. Her grave is marked by a monument upon a knoll in sight of the road to Beloit, near the southern line of the city.

In the month of August next following, George Holmes, one of the sons of Judge Holmes, also died.

The second child born within the lines of the city was Mary Catharine Holmes, daughter of John and Hannah Holmes, who are now living at Horicon. This was on the 31st of August, 1836.

The third was a son of Henry Janes, born in the fall of the same year.

Dr. Heath and his wife emigrated to California, leaving this place in October, 1848. They are no longer living.

Samuel St. John, who had left the country, returned some years afterwards to visit his brother, Levi St. John, and died while here. His grave is beside that of his wife.

On the 9th of March, 1836, Judge William Holmes removed to this place from Michigan City. He brought with him all of his family, except those of his sons who had gone before him to spy out the land. His family consisted of his wife, Mrs. Rachel Holmes, five sons, Thomas, George, John, William and Joshua, and two daughters, Catharine, (now Mrs. Volney Atwood), and Lucinda, (now Mrs. Wells, of Kalamazoo, Michigan). Of the sons, William, Joshua, and Thomas were already in Wisconsin, the two first named residing here. Mrs. Holmes, the two daughters, John and his family, and George accompanied the Judge; also, one Joshua Clark. Their journey at that inclement season of the year, by Chicago, Kishwaukee, and the mouth of the Turtle, where Beloit now stands, through a country with scarcely a settlement intervening between those points, must have been one of severe toil, hardship, and fatigue. When they reached their destination they found the snow two feet in depth.

Judge Holmes and his wife, now of venerable age, are at this time residing in Janesville, with their son-in-law, Volney Atwood. The Judge made his way gradually from the Western part of Pennsylvania, where he was born and grew up to manhood, towards this region which so recently was considered to form a portion of the Far West. First he removed to Newark in Ohio; thence to the neighborhood of Laporte in Indiana; thence to Michigan City, whence he came, as has been said, to the place of his present abode. He had the true spirit of a pioneer, and the intelligence, integrity, and good temper which rendered him a valuable co-operator with those who were to lay the foundations of a new community.

Soon after his arrival here the Judge prepared to build himself a home, selecting for its situation a pleasant spot near the edge of the bluff, between the bridge at Monterey and that which crosses the river from the foot of Jackson street, and on the north side of the river. The remains of this, which was a frame building something better than the ordinary houses of new settlers, were to be seen until a short time since. The lumber of which it was built was cut with a whip-saw, by Robert Stone and Daniel Stone, now residents of the town of Fulton, who came here in the spring of 1836, shortly after the arrival of Judge H. Before the completion of his new mansion, he lived about six months in a cabin situated a few rods south of the river, on the high ground in the rear of what is now Miltimore's quarry.

With the exception of the Holmes family there were no settlers within what are now the city limits, nor indeed in the county, on the west side of the river. The lands on that side, in Range 12, having been brought into market in the month of August, 1835, all the entries, which were in large bodies, were made by non-resident speculators. On the 3d day of June, 1836, however, Judge Holmes visited the land office at Green Bay, and entered five eighty acre tracts within, and one of the same amount without and adjoining the present boundaries of the city, on the west side. The village of Rockport, as it now appears incorporated in the city map, was laid out in the autumn of 1835, by Thomas Holmes, who, as we have seen, was here on a tour of exploration in the summer of that year.

In consequence of the entries made by speculators on the west side, the settlers here were obliged to make their claims on the east side of the river, upon the government land. Range 13 including the towns of Milton, Harmony, and the towns south, came into market in February, 1839. The fractional portion of Range 12, east of the river, in which was included the county seat, was not opened for entry until September of that year. Up to that time a considerable number of claims had been made, and the beginnings of the village of Janesville began to appear. For the space of nearly ten years after the first settlement improvement was confined to that side, and Main street of the old village still contends for pre-eminence in the business of the city. In addition to those of whom we have given some account as the earliest settlers here, a number of other emigrants arrived in the course of the year '36. Henry F. Janes, in honor of whom the city has its name, came with his family, and his brother Edward; our present member of the Assembly, John P. Dickson, with his wife; W. H. H. Bailey and wife, Levi St. John and family, and others, enough in all to make a pleasant society.

Henry Janes, who arrived in the month of June, selected for his claim half a section of government land, or thereabout, in which was included the tract upon which the county seat was subsequently located. He immediately prepared to establish himself as a permanent settler, and built a cabin upon the spot where Tom Lappin, a few years since reared the beautiful block which is one of the ornaments of our city. Janes' cabin became the tavern of the settlement, and with its subsequent additions of the same character with the main building, formed a welcome, if not very commodious resting place for travelers. With the aid of Judge Holmes' whip-saw he, also, in company with Aaron Walker, constructed a craft for ferryage, and Janes' Ferry became one of the institutions on the route westward to the mines and the Mississippi. Mr. Janes was succeeded as landlord and ferry-keeper by Cha's Stevens, and subsequently Mr. J. P. Dickson took his place, and remained in it until the erection of the Janesville Stage House, by Mr. Stevens, in the autumn of 1838. Before the establishment of Janes' Ferry, the passage for teams across the river here was at the ford by the "Big Rock." A ferry was soon established at the latter point, however, by Judge Holmes, and many travelers sought his place, in preference to the more crowded quarters they had to put up with at the upper or Janes's ferry.

In the neighborhood of the young settlement, now beginning to gather strength and numbers, the Popes, Anson W., and Virgil, Daniel Smiley, Marcus Fenton, Jason Walker, Aaron Walker, Alfred Walker, David Hume, Geo. W. Ogden, and S. D. Butz, located claims, and addressed themselves to the work of improving their new homes with befitting energy.

In the year 1837 came a considerable number of settlers, making their homes here and in the neighborhood, who afterwards had much to do with the town and its affairs. Among these were Hon. Edward V. Whiton, for several years the Chief Justice of our State, and in Territorial days, a leading lawyer and politician. Volney Atwood, Charles Stevens and family, Dr. Guy Stoughton and family, Seymour Stoughton, Theodore Kendall and wife, Harvey Story, Wm. and Joseph Spaulding, Geo. H. Williston, E. J. Hazard, Geo. R. Ramsey, and D. A. Richardson and family. Most of these settled in Janesville. Geo. R. Ramsey lives upon his farm bounded on the South by the line between Fulton and Town of Janesville, on the East side of the river. Mr. Whiton for a short time lived in a state of solitary independence upon a tract of land which he had entered in the northern part of the Town of Janesville, on the same side of the river.

The year of '36 is one to which reference is commonly made by all who then lived in the West, and by those in other quarters whose attention was called to this portion of the Union, when they wish to show what wild speculation in public lands, and village and city sites, can effect towards the bankruptcy of a new country. This spirit of speculation was then as reckless in this quarter as in any part of the Territories and new Western States. The records of counties in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa and Wisconsin, present the proofs of it in their display of city and village plats, many of them located at points where there was not a possible chance of building, within a hundred years, even a hamlet of the most modest pretensions. Maps were sent to the East neatly lithographed, exhibiting streets enough for a first-class city, with public parks and buildings marked upon them, evincing the most liberal and comprehensive views of what a city ought to be, and intended to deceive the eastern man of capital anxious to add by a short cut to his wealth, or the man of small means eager to take his place among the great capitalists of his vicinity. And these efforts to gather eastern capital for expenditure in the West, were rewarded with no small measure of success. Many a gentleman living towards the Atlantic, who was induced to invest his money in the purchase of corner lots and water lots, on looking for his real estate by the recorded description, found himself sold, and the vast advantages of the locality in which he had purchased a rank fable, without a shadow of fact for its foundation. To this day there are suspicious natures at the east who, remembering the stories of '36, look with distrust upon all invitations to aid with their money in building up Western improvements.

Rock county did not escape the mania then prevailing for the laying out of large towns on paper, and selling out shares in them to those anxious to become suddenly rich, or to grow rapidly more so. The village of Rockport, now included within the city of Janesville, was one of these early speculations. "Wisconsin city," however, was the most elaborate attempt of the kind, and to such an extent was speculation carried on in its blocks and lots, that at this day the titles to property within its boundaries are a source of no small perplexity and trouble, to those who have to investigate them.

To secure a point for a town which might obtain the advantage of being in time the seat of justice of a county, was then a great desideratum. Janesville had to contend for this object with "Wisconsin City," Rockport, Beloit, and other sites. When the boundaries of the county, however, came to be defined, this, it was evident, was the place best fitted to receive the honor and advantage of being the capital, and it had already, notwithstanding much opposition from those interested in other localities, been designated as such by the Territorial Legislature.

The Territorial Legislature of 1836-7 sat at Belmont, in the Southern part of what is now La Fayette county, about six miles Northeast of the present village of Platteville. At that session the county seat of Rock was established upon the fractional quarter section located by Mr. Janes upon the East side of the River. The county was set off from Milwaukee in 1836, but, with Walworth, was attached to Racine until the Spring of the year 1839, when its organization was perfected.

Mr. Janes, in the spring of 1837, platted the land in the neighborhood of his home on the east side of the river, for the village which was to perpetuate his name. 'The land, we have seen, was not brought into market by the United States until September, 1839, and in May, 1840, the county commissioners made a new plat of it. Under an act of Congress the county made a pre-emption upon the same land, the act providing this privilege as to land upon which a county seat should be located. The claims of Mr. Janes and the county were therefore in conflict, but the matter was adjusted between them, the county quit-claiming to claimants and settlers, for a nominal consideration, what had previously been conveyed to them by Janes.

In 1839 Judge Irving held the first session of the Rock County District Court. His Honor sat in a room in the Stage House, and there assembled the prominent lawyers of the Territory, to aid him in the administration of justice.

Lucius G. Fisher was elected Sheriff of the new county; Wm. H. H. Bailey, Register of Deeds, and Clerk of the County Commissioners; W. S. Murray, Wm. Spaulding, and E. J. Hazard, County Commissioners. Daniel Smiley and Hiram H. Brown were the first Justices of the Peace appointed to deal out law and equity in the new town. They were exercising their jurisdiction here very soon after the first settlements were made.

In 1841, in the early part of the year, the erection of a court house was commenced. D. A. Richardson was the contractor, and in the month of January, 1842, the frame was up and covered. In Deember of the same year it was nearly completed, and was ready for use. James Chamberlain completed the building. It was a plain wooden edifice, built upon a plan very generally adopted throughout the west, and served its purpose until the spring of the present year, when it was destroyed by fire. This occurred in the night, and there is no doubt was the work of maliciously disposed persons, although as yet no discovery has been made that would justify the arrest of any one suspected.

The old jail, which until within a few years past was used by the county, was situated south of the court house grounds, between Main and Bluff streets. It was a structure of very little strength, and in the summer of 1849, the prisoners confined in it, or supposed to be confined, sometimes went out under the cover of night, to bathe in the river, steal melons, and otherwise amuse themselves, returning quietly to their quarters, when they were through with their recreations.

In April, 1837, a post office was established here, Janesville having become, through the active agency of Gen. Wm. B. Sheldon, a centre for several post-routes. This gentleman was a member of the Territorial Legislature, and took a strong interest in the advancement of the new town, laboring zealously to procure for it every possible advantage in this, as in other matters likely to promote its welfare.

The first bridge erected here over Rock River was the work of three enterprising men, Charles Stevens, Thomas Lappin, and Wm. H. H. Bailey, in 1842. Its cost was two thousand dollars, and it was a glorious, at all events a very comfortable thing for travelers, when they could pass across by something else than a rough scow, and a line of wire. It was a toll bridge for several years, and notwithstanding the accommodation afforded by it, there were those who would grumble at the rates, and complain of monopoly and extortion. This construction answered its purpose for more than ten years, giving place at last to the more convenient and handsome one now in use. This, in its turn, is giving no small degree of trouble and annoyance to our City legislators, because of continual wear and tear, requiring frequent patching of its roadway, and occasionally furnishing a bill of damages to be paid for accidents.

Thus far we have some of the incidents, and the names of some of the most prominent of those who led the way in the foundation and organization of the little community expected and destined to grow to the proportions of a fair village or city, as good fortune, enterprise and industry might determine. The place upon which they settled with such expectations was well chosen, and time and the course of events have proved their good judgment and sagacity.

The settlement of new territories in those days, however, was not the easy task that it has since become, when railroads and steamboats furnish constant and rapid means for travel and the transportation of freight. Had the lines of railroad from the east to Lake Michigan been then completed, it would not have required six years time to gather here a population of three hundred and thirty-three in number, and that was all that Janesville could muster in 1843.—Minnesota, Kansas and Nebraska, by the aid of railroads and navigable rivers, have had comparatively a rapid progress in the accumulation of population and wealth.

In the year 1843 we may date the commencement of the substantial growth of our town. It was then that the first steps were taken for the improvement of the ample water power here afforded by the noble stream which adds so much beauty to the locality. Upon the complete improvement of this power, and its thorough appropriation to the uses of manufactures, depends the solution of the question whether or not Janesville is to maintain her rank, as the second city in point of population and business importance, in Wisconsin. The result is sure if her people will but lay hold of the means which are at their command, and work together with a will to make the most of them. The importance of the water power was well understood here by the early settlers, and at as early a day as circumstances would permit, steps were taken to put it to practical use.

At the session of the Territorial Legislature of 1843, A. Hyatt Smith, then but a short time in the county, procured the passage of an act authorizing the construction of a dam across Rock River at Janesville, there being considerable local opposition to the project from parties interested in powers on the river in this vicinity. In consequence of this opposition the act passed contained a condition that the head of water should not be raised above two and a half feet.

The parties named in the act, to be associated with Mr. Smith, were Charles Stevens, Wm. H. H. Bailey, and Lewis E. Stone.

In connection with the water power a purchase was made of fractional lots 1, 2, 3, and 4, extending along the west side of the river, from the residence of Ex-Gov. Barstow to where the river bends its course to the west. In this purchase Mr. Smith was joined by Messrs. Stone & Bailey, the understanding being that they should co-operate with him in building a dam and flouring mill.

In the spring of 1844, Smith, Bailey & Stone contracted with one Phelps to build a frame and plank dam at the bend of the river.—Phelps having been engaged, during most of the summer, in preparations for the performance of his contract, was suddenly taken sick, and died.

Smith, Stone & Bailey, soon afterwards made a division of their interest in the lands they had purchased together, Stone selling to the other two his interest in what is designated on the city map as "Smith & Bailey's Addition."

In the winter of 1844-'45, Messrs. Smith & Bailey entered into a contract with the Hanchetts, to deed them the land between River Street and the River, extending seventy rods northerly from Milwaukee Street, the condition being that the Messrs. H. should build a dam for a water power of four feet head, and erect a substantial flouring mill. One of the reasons inducing Messrs. S. & B. to make this contract, was that the Hanchetts had a similar contract for the water power at Pope's Rapids, about three miles above, which would be flowed out by a four feet head here, and the Hanchetts would, therefore, be interested in making the head at this point sufficiently high to be useful. The Messrs. H. soon erected a dam, which they claimed would furnish the desired head of water, but it was imperfect and unsatisfactory. Smith now determined to take the whole matter into his own hands, and to complete the dam in such a manner as to be of the greatest possible benefit to the town, and to establish, without delay, a first class mill for the manufacture of flour. He, therefore, purchased the interests of the Hanchetts in their contract, and proceeded immediately to perfect the dam, so as to furnish a power of the amount judged to be requisite. In buying their interest Mr. S. stipulated with them for the privilege of a four feet head, and afterwards with Hanchett & Dolsen to raise it to any hight he might choose.

In the autumn of 1845, James McClurg, of Maysville, Chataque county, New York, purchased one half of the interest of Mr. Smith in the power, and commenced energetic preparations for the building of a mill. While these were in progress, Martin O. Walker, of Chicago, purchased one-fourth of the whole interest, and W. H. H. Bailey another fourth. Bailey, afterwards, and before any large amount of work was done, gave up his interest. About the same time J. B. Doe purchased an eighth. The work was prosecuted until about the first of August, 1846, and the mill was very nearly ready for operation with three run of stones, when McClurg, who had become somewhat discouraged, was attacked with illness, brought on by over exertion, and exposure to cold from working in the river. Smith bought out his interest, and the property then stood in the names of Smith, Walker, and Doe; the first named owning five-eighths, the second, one-fourth, and Doe, one-eighth. These interests remained in this proportion until 1856, when Doe sold out to Smith, who now owns three-fourths of the property, the other fourth being still the property of Martin O. Walker.

The nature of the river bottom made it necessary to expend a large amount of money and labor, to secure a proper foundation for the mill. A coffer dam had to be constructed, and constant pumping, with a powerful apparatus, was required to keep down the water for the construction of the mason work. The erection of this mill was, for those days, an enterprise of great magnitude, and it was pushed forward with great energy through obstacles well fitted to discourage any but the sagacious and sanguine projector who had the chief charge of it. Ira Miltimore, still one of our active business men, was the architect who planned and superintended the details of the improvement.

The dam erected for this power is composed of heavy stone, rubble, timber and plank, with earth and gravel, and notwithstanding some accidents, has served its purpose well. It will, with occasional inconsiderable repairs, continue to do so, it is believed, for many years. In 1850 a break occurred in its eastern end, and in the year following, a bad break in the race bank just above the Excelsior mill. In repairing the damages in these instances, the whole work was greatly strengthened, and in the years '57 and '58, the river having risen rapidly to an unusual height, the strength of the dam and embankments was severely tested. No damage of any consequence resulted.

In 1844, Daniel A. Richardson erected the first substantial brick block for business purposes. It was until lately known as "Richardson's Commercial Block," is three stories high, and situated on Main street.

In the next year, Mr. D. F. Kimball, or to call him by the familiar name by which he is best known here, Frank Kimball, one of the earliest settlers of Janesville, built a small brick building on West Milwaukee street, in which the first goods were sold on the west side of the river.

Steps were taken this year for the construction of a "free bridge" from the foot of Court street to Pleasant street. The enterprise did not advance very rapidly, as it was not fully ready for use until the Spring of 1849.

The project of rendering Rock River navigable for steamboats was still entertained by a few gentlemen anxious to connect their names with the history of the internal improvements of the State.—Col. Collins, who lived in one of the mining counties, being a candidate to represent the territory, advocated this improvement, and apparently considered it important to show the people in this quarter that he was very much in earnest about the matter.

The year '45 is memorable for the establishment of the first newspaper published in the county. On the 14th of August of that year Levi Alden, of New Hampshire, with a partner, commenced the publication of the Janesville Gazette, which has continued here without interruption, and has grown to be regarded as one of the most important "institutions" of our place, having latterly, for several years, been a daily and weekly journal. It was Whig in its politics, when there was a party of that name, and is now one of the leading Republican organs of the State.

On the 6th of December, 1845, Mr. Stoddard sold his interest to Wm. F. Tompkins, when the paper was published by Alden & Tompkins till the 26th of September. Mr. T. then sold to Mr. Alden, and it was published by Alden and Grattan, (Mr. G. holding only a nominal interest) till September, 1848, when Mr. Grattan withdrew. In December, 1848, Chas. Holt purchased a half interest and became joint editor. Up to this period Mr. Alden was sole editor. Its publication was continued by Alden & Holt to March 1855, from which time Mr. Holt was sole publisher until August 1st, 1859, when Hiram Bowen and Daniel Wilcox purchased an interest in the establishment and the publication is now under the firm of Holt, Bowen and Wilcox.

In July, 1854, a six column daily was issued, but this issue continued only three months when it was abandoned for want of adequate support. In March, 1857, Mr. Holt purchased the Janesville Free Press, united it with the Gazette, and commenced the publication of the Daily Morning Gazette, (seven columns), adding name of "Free Press" to "Gazette" in its weekly issue.

The Gazette has been enlarged several different times, and on the first of September, 1857, was made nine columns to the page.

The Daily Gazette has now been published more than two and a half years. The Weekly commenced its fifteenth volume September, 1859.

In October, 1845, a census of the village was reported, as follows: Population, 855; number of brick houses, 26; of stone, 9; of frame, 115; of log houses, 7; in all 157.

About the first of January, 1846, the Janesville Academy was opened for the instruction of children and youths of both sexes.—The Rev. Thomas J. Ruger, an Episcopal clergyman, who still resides here, beloved and respected for his amiable disposition, his sound learning, and his exemplary piety, was at the head of the institution. A. Hyatt Smith was the president of its board of trustees. The building, situated on the block next west of the "Ford House," is of stone 35 by 55 feet, of two stories and a basement, and is now in use in connection with the free school system of the city. In addition to the Academy there were two common schools at this time in operation.

About the middle of March, 1846, Frink & Walker commenced running a tri-weekly line of stages between Janesville and Milwaukee, which was a matter of great rejoicing here.

In the month of August the Rock County Democrat was established by Geo. W. Crabb, of Carlisle, Pennsylvania.

The increase of immigration in the next year was large, and all were encouraged to expect the realization, and, in good time, of their most sanguine expectations as to the growth of the town.

On the 26th of June, 1847, the "Big Mill," the erection of which by A. Hyatt Smith has been noticed, was put into operation. This was an occurrence of great interest to the people of Janesville, and a large number of them assembled to witness the first working of the machinery. Every thing about the establishment was found to be in admirable order, and many were the congratulations exchanged upon the occasion. In anticipation of the event, grain had been brought from distant points in the state to be ground here, some of it coming from as far North as the Wisconsin River; and the new mill had more than an abundance of work on hand when its wheels began to move. Its dimensions are on a liberal scale, it being four stories with an attic, and eighty by fifty feet. It has six run of stones.

About the first of October, '47, the stone foundation of the "Farmers' Mills" was commenced by A. B. Jones. These mills were completed in 1849.

Railroad connection with the East began to be anxiously wished for, and occasionally meetings to discuss railroad projects began to be held. On the 6th of November, 1847, Edward V. Whiton presided over a meeting assembled at the old Stage House, to consider a project for a road to connect with the Chicago and Galena Road.—The meeting was addressed by Messrs. Walker and Arnold of Chicago.

In December another count of the population was reported, the whole number of inhabitants being 1458. The increase of population from this time forward has been steady and rapid.

In 1848 the construction of plank-roads became a subject of interest in the Southwestern portion of the state, and Janesville took part in two projects for such roads. One of these was for a road from Milwaukee to this place, and the other the Racine and Rock River plank-road, intended, also, to terminate here. Books of subscription for both were opened here, and the roads were laid for a few miles from the lake shore, but before they could be completed to Rock River, the railroad interest engrossed too much of the public attention to allow of any extended effort for the building of roadways of plank.

On the first of June the Gazette noticed the progress of the "Stevens House," then expected to be completed within a month. By way of giving an idea of the extent of the edifice, it said that "an acre of plastering" would be required, and altogether, it was to be a magnificent, first class hotel. Old residents here know that, whether it met this description or not, it was a large house, very convenient and comfortable, and that it added greatly to the attractions of the village. It was destroyed by fire on the first Tuesday of April, 1853—a day memorable for one of the most violent gales of wind ever experienced in this part of the country. At the time of its destruction, and for a year and a half previous, it was the property of A. Hyatt Smith. Charles Stevens has the credit of having added this improvement to the town, and the well and widely known reputation of the house under the administration of Messrs. Churchill and Sibley, next of himself, and lastly of Stover Rines, did much for the prosperity and advancement of the place. It was not ready for occupation so soon as anticipated, but was opened on the 12th day of October, by Messrs. Churchill & Sibley.

On the 7th of September, '48, the Milwaukee and Galena Telegraph Company was organized, A. Hyatt Smith, president; R. W. Wright, of Waukesha, vice president, and Wm. Duane Wilson, of Milwaukee, then one of the proprietors of the Milwaukee Sentinel, secretary. This line was soon in operation, and contributed towards attracting attention to this part of the valley of Rock River, and especially to Janesville. It was in working order, and messages were transmitted by it, on the 15th day of December of the same year.

In the autumn of this year the improvement of the water power in the southern portion of the town was commenced by Ira Miltimore, who purchased of A. Hyatt Smith an interest in what is called on the recorded plat "Miltimore's addition," but is commonly known as "Monterey." A wing dam was put in here, which was mostly swept away in 1852. Afterwards improvements on a more extended and permanent scale were projected at this point, which have been energetically prosecuted. A dam of cut stone is now nearly completed, two hundred feet in length, and of the height of five feet and a little over. The stone used above the foundation are of large size, from three to three and a half feet in width, and from six to ten feet in length, with a thickness of fourteen inches. They are so dressed as to secure a close joint, and are laid in hydraulic cement. The base of this structure is eighty feet in width and the upper course is twenty-eight feet wide. An apron will be extended thirty feet out, also of heavy stone, making a solid sloping pavement, while behind this mass of solid masonry there will be a lining of rubble and chip stone and clay well packed, so that it will be next to impossible that the water above can have any passage, except where it should, over and not through the work. The whole structure rests upon a wide foundation of heavy stone, reaching a depth of from ten to sixteen feet. The heavy stone piers of the bridge, erected the year before last, were so constructed as to fit and join into the masonry of the dam, forming a portion of it, and adding largely to its strength.—

This work belongs to Mr. Smith, who will complete it in the course of the coming year.

From the north end of the dam extends down the river, for half a mile, a heavy embankment, which is intended to be greatly enlarged and strengthened, and this encloses the head race for the supply of power. At its outlet the fall is ten feet. The power thus created is sufficient to drive over eighty run of stone, and the supply of water will be ample in every season. The low lands on the north side of that reach of the river above the dam will be flowed, and a lake be formed from one-third to a half a mile in width, and a mile in length. Leading to the bridge is Centre avenue, destined to be one of the most beautiful streets in the city, being eight rods wide, and extending north to Milwaukee street.

The anxiety for an eastern railroad connection continuing to increase, in January, 1849, a meeting was held to promote the project of a railroad to bring the valley of Rock River, throughout its length, into communication with the lines of railroad stretching towards Chicago from the East. The Madison and Beloit railroad company had been incorporated at the first session of the State Legislature, which was held in the Summer of 1848. This was always a favorite project with the people of this valley. The meeting referred to was addressed by Wm. B. Ogden, of Chicago, (now the President of the Chicago and Northwestern railway), A. Hyatt

Smith, and others. The gentleman last named was especially active in the forwarding of this enterprise, and for several years devoted his abilities and energy to its prosecution, rendering service to this part of the State, and particularly to the town of his residence, that attracted to him a large share of the public attention, and won for him the esteem of those most directly interested in the welfare and advancement of this portion of Wisconsin.

Janesville had now grown to the proportions of a respectable village. In the month of March, '49, her population numbered 1812. There were 318 families resident here, of which 113 lived on the East side, and 205 on the West side of the river. There were 218 dwelling houses—107 on the East side, and 171 on the West side.—One hundred and sixteen of these were erected within the eighteen months next preceding.

John A. Brown established here about the first of April the Rock County Badger, a democratic newspaper, to take the place of the Democrat, which had been discontinued soon after the Presidential election of '48, and associated with him A. T. Gray as co-editor. In the month of October, 1850, the latter retired from the establishment, and Geo. W. Crabb, formerly editor of the "Rock County Democrat" entered into a copartnership with Mr. Brown, when the name was changed to the "Badger State." In 1851 Mr. Crabb withdrew, and D. C. Brown, a brother of the first publisher, supplied the vacancy. In October of the same year a new paper was issued by Dr. John Mitchell, and soon after the two Democratic papers were consolidated and published under the name of the Democratic Standard; Dr. Mitchell, proprietor, and Geo. W. Crabb, editor.

In April 1852, Mr. Crabb again withdrew, and in the month of June, 1853, the paper was purchased by D. C. Brown, who associated A. T. Gray with him as editor. Upon the election of the latter gentleman to the office of Secretary of State, he was succeeded by J. C. Bunner, who acted in the capacity of editor until Feb. 1855, and in October following, James Armstrong became a partner, under the firm and name of Brown & Armstrong. Shortly after a daily paper was issued, which, together with the weekly journal was published by them until February, 1858, when the establishment passed into the hands of G. H. Bishop, as proprietor, and C. E. Wright, as editor, by whom it was continued until Oct. 18, 1858, when it gave way to the Janesville Daily and Weekly Times, which publication commenced Jan. 26, 1859, by G. H. Bishop and C. E. Wright, proprietors, C. E. Wright and C. H. Wright, editors. On the 1st of July of the same year, Mr. Bishop retired, and soon after, Mr. J. F. Erving purchased an interest in the office. The Times is now published weekly, by Messrs. C. E. Wright and J. F. Erving, Mr. C. E. Wright, editor.

On the 19th of April, '49, the Farmers' Mills commenced operations. These, soon after their erection passed into the possession of Messrs. Timothy Jackman and Shubal W. Smith, the present proprietors.

The project of "Union Schools" which has since been so well and thoroughly developed, and carried into operation, began now to be discussed. On the 12th of May, of this year, a large meeting of citizens was held, at which speeches were made by several prominent gentlemen, and it was resolved that the subject of education in the village should receive a greater share of attention and effort. It was well understood that a good system of schools, affording the facilities for a thorough practical education, would greatly aid the growth of the place, and that every dollar expended in that behalf would be repaid to tax-payers, with bountiful interest, in the promotion of new accessions to our population, and the enhanced value of property.

In the course of the Summer there was an effort made to obtain daily mail service from this place to Milwaukee, and in the month of October the P. O. Department established it. There were then nine mail routes crossing here, and the arrival and departure of the different lines of stage coaches contributed much to the appearance of business, and was a source of pleasurable excitement.

On the 30th of August a meeting was held at the Court House, to adopt measures for procuring the location here of the State Asylum for the Blind. This institution was not long afterwards established here, and the building which stands in an elevated situation in the southern part of the city, is now one of its principal ornaments.

The surveys for the Madison and Beloit Railroad, afterwards called the Rock River Valley Union Railroad, and now the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, were commenced on the 17th day of August, 1849, under the charge of Col. Hugh Lee, as chief, and A. T. Gray, as assistant engineer. These surveys, which occupied about six weeks in the field, embraced that part of the proposed road between this place and Beloit. Three lines were surveyed, in all forty-two miles and three-quarters, the expense estimated, and maps and profiles completed in the course of the succeeding autumn; of all which report was made by the chief engineer to the company. The first stake set in this survey was at a point in West Milwaukee street, very nearly where the railroad depots now stand.

The United States census of the next year 1850, showed a very rapid increase of population. The number of inhabitants was ascertained to be over 3100—an increase of 1300 in about fifteen months.

Milwaukee now began to move, with some show of zeal and determination, for the extension of her first great railway, to the Mississippi, and to manifest her appreciation of the importance of the route through Janesville. On the 17th of September, a numerous audience assembled in the Court House to listen to an address from Byron Kilbourn, then President and Chief Engineer of the Milwaukee and Mississippi Railroad Company, on the subject of internal improvements in Wisconsin, and, particularly, concerning the practicability and prospects of the enterprise with the chief management of which he was then charged. Mr. Kilbourn delivered a long address, in which, after setting forth the advantages of a road through Southern Wisconsin to the Mississippi, he proceeded to show in detail how the people along the line of the route could materially aid in the rapid construction of the work. The company he represented proposed to divide the line, from the Lake to the Mississippi, into five divisions—the first division to extend from Milwaukee to Waukesha—the second from Waukesha to Rock River—the third to Madison—the fourth to Mineral Point, and the fifth to the Mississippi. Five years were deemed a sufficient time in which to construct these several divisions.

A glance at the map of Wisconsin will show that the route thus proposed was long and indirect. The road should have been pushed to Rock River, at this point, by the most direct line, which in fact would have passed over ground where light grades and light work only would have been required. The length of the line would then have been about sixty-four miles from the Lake to this place. The Company did not receive the assistance in this quarter, to which they thought they were entitled, and which, indeed, should in some measure have been extended. They, therefore, prepared to construct the road as rapidly as possible to Madison, passing through Milton, and leaving Janesville to their left about eight miles. After advancing with the work as far as Milton, better counsels ruled, and a line was laid down from Milton here, which subsequently proved, as was confidently expected, a highly remunerative branch, and demonstrated the sagacity of those in the company who advocated its construction. It was opened, with appropriate ceremonies, on the 6th of January, 1853. A handsome dinner at the Stevens House, and a ball at "American Hall," with the general illumination of the town, were the conspicuous features of this celebration.

With the advent of the railroad came the first omnibus, purchased by Capt. Rines, for the use of the Stevens House, then under his popular management. Thenceforth the village began to put on city airs, and her progress in wealth and population has been rapid.

The Rock River Valley Road soon began to make progress.—On the 10th of July, 1851, ground was broken for its construction at Fond du Lac, in the presence of a large assemblage of citizens from the counties lying along the river; A. Hyatt Smith, then President of the company, performing the interesting ceremony.—Eighteen miles of the road, south from Fond du Lac, were constructed, and work was about the same time commenced on the line from Chicago, and pushed North with considerable vigor.

The first State Agricultural Fair of Wisconsin was held at Janesville, commencing Oct. 1, 1851. The ground occupied was the fine level, to the east of the Court House, where the elegant residence of Timothy Jackman now stands.

In the summer of 1852, the Southern Wisconsin Railroad Company, chartered for the construction of a road from Janesville to the Mississippi, was organized at the Stevens House. This line of road was afterwards taken by the Milwaukee & Mississippi Company, and under their auspices was completed, in 1858, to the village of Monroe, the county seat of Green county, a distance of thirty-six miles.

The railroad connections with the East, which had so long been anxiously hoped for, and so much discussed, seemed to be near at hand. The people of Janesville began to believe that the promise of growth and importance, as to which they had speculated, would at no distant day be realized, and that here might be built up a city to rival the most populous and prosperous of the inland cities of the East. Dr. John Mitchell, then the editor and proprietor of the Democratic Standard, advocated earnestly and ably the propriety of obtaining a city charter, and for a place numbering nearly five thousand inhabitants something else than a township government seemed, indeed, to be necessary. It was thought best by the people that we should have a municipal organization, separate from that of the town of Janesville. Accordingly the legislature of '53 incorporated the City of Janesville, with boundaries as delineated in the map which has since been published. Enough of space is included within its limits for a city of many thousand people, but, large as is the plat, it is even now well occupied, over a large proportion, with business buildings and residences, and year by year the vacant spaces are rapidly filling up.

On the first Tuesday in April, 1853, A. Hyatt Smith was elected Mayor of the new city.

This was the day on which occurred the burning of the Stevens House. The fire originated in the roof, from a defect in the chimney. In two hours' time the building was burned to the ground.—It was felt to be a severe calamity. As a hotel it had no superior in the State, and it had for nearly five years been the favorite resort of our citizens. A subscription was immediately circulated for rebuilding it, under the direction of a joint stock company. This project, however, was not carried into execution, but in the course of the ensuing summer the excavation for the foundation of a large building was completed, where subsequently the Hyatt House was erected.

In the course of the same summer John F. Rague, Orra R. Phelps, and Wm. Humes, contracted for the building of what is called the upper bridge. This was completed in 1854. It is a handsome structure, with three piers of dressed stone, strong abutments of heavy masonry, and timber arches. The roadway is thirty-four feet in width, with sidewalks, each eight feet wide, and the length of the whole structure is something over two hundred feet.

In the course of this year many substantial dwellings, and some mercantile blocks of brick were built, and altogether the young city gave evidence, in every quarter, of remarkable thrift and progress.

The year 1854 was marked by the same steady but rapid progress. Every principal branch of business was extending, and on all sides could be noted the signs of improvement, and the evidences of growing wealth and substantial prosperity.

The population of the city in 1855 was ascertained, by the census taken under State authority, to be over seven thousand, an increase of more than two thousand, since the early part of the year 1853.

In the month of July, 1855, a trial for murder occurred here, Judge Doolittle presiding, which excited intense interest throughout this and adjoining counties. A man named David F. Mayberry, who had been in the penitentiary of Illinois, for high crimes, met a citizen of Jefferson County in Beloit, and by leave of the latter, whose name was Andrew Alger, rode with him in a wagon to this place. Mr. Alger had been selling timber, and had received a considerable sum of money in payment. To obtain this was Mayberry's object. On arriving at Janesville they halted for a short time, and Mayberry purchased a hatchet. Proceeding on their way to Jefferson, they had reached a spot just inside the woods, about three miles from Milton, and not far from the residences of the brothers Spaulding, where Mayberry determined to execute the robbery and murder he had been planning, and here it was consummated, with circumstances of atrocity, and indications of cold-blooded and fiendish deliberation, marking it as one of the most horrible crimes ever committed. Alger was a man of about sixty years of age, and well beloved and highly respected by his neighbors in the county where he had long resided. Mayberry was soon arrested, near Rockford in Illinois, and brought to trial. He was convicted, and by this time the indignation of the people was greatly aroused against him. A large number of his neighbors came down from Jefferson county, many of them well armed. On the day of his conviction an attempt was made to take him from the hands of the authorities, but was not successful. The next day he was taken from the jail, and after a struggle between those who were determined to execute him, and those who were anxious to let the law have its course, he was executed by hanging him from a branch of a tree on the open space in front of the court house. The reason for this summary infliction of a merited punishment, given by those who were most actively engaged in it, was that the law of the state provided as the penalty for the crime of murder imprisonment for life, and they thought it too light for the terrible offence which the prisoner had committed. It was an exhibition of a spirit of vengeance very naturally aroused in the friends and acquaintances of the murdered man, and the result could only have been averted by the presence of a military force. Such a force might have been had from Milwaukee, had this sudden out-break been anticipated; but when it became evident that there was a determination, at all hazards, to lynch the wretched convict, it was too late to look for assistance elsewhere.—There was a strong feeling among the citizens of Janesville in favor of vindicating the authority of the law, but it was a time of intense excitement, unmitigated by any sympathy or pity whatever for the murderer, and however much it was regretted that the law was thus violated, by the substitution of mob violence instead of the due execution of the legal penalty, no one was found to express any other sentiment in relation to him than that he had deserved the ignominious death to which he was subjected.

In 1856, among the public improvements specially to be noted, was the construction of the bridge between Court and Pleasant Sts., under the superintendence of Wm. Macloon. Its plan is similar to the one connecting East and West Milwaukee streets, its roadway, however, having the advantage of a rise from either end to the centre, so that it sheds water, and is never incumbered with mud.

A third bridge was erected in 1857, crossing from the foot of Jackson street, on the north side of that reach of the river running westerly, to the road leading to the county fair grounds.

From the foot of Centre Avenue, to Miltimore's quarries, another most substantial and durable bridge, with cut stone piers, and strong wooden superstructure, was erected in the same year.

In the Spring of 1856 the erection of the large hotel known as the Hyatt House was commenced, and prosecuted with the energy characteristic of its proprietor. It occupies the ground marked out for it in 1853. It is five lofty stories in height above the basement, is built of brick in the most substantial manner, having cross walls through its several stories, and is likely to stand the wear and tear of use, and the lapse of time without any decay or damage of importance. It is liberally divided as to rooms, in all its departments.

Its lodging rooms are large, its suits of parlors and chambers conveniently arranged, its corridors wide, and the whole building is thoroughly fitted for ventilation. The dining hall is one of the finest rooms in the State, being very large, of excellent proportions, its walls neatly frescoed, and its whole appearance such as to satisfy the taste of the most fastidious traveler. From four to five hundred guests can be seated comfortably at its tables. The whole establishment is appropriately and handsomely furnished. Towards the erection of this building a number of the citizens subscribed a bonus, which, liberal as it was, formed but a small proportion of the expenditure required. The whole cost, exclusive of furniture, was about one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars. It was opened with appropriate ceremonies in September, 1857.

The Chicago, St. Paul and Fond du Lac Railroad was completed to Janesville, in November, 1857. This was formerly known as the Rock River Valley Union Railroad, and now is styled the Chicago & Northwestern Railway. About the first of October of the present year its track was laid to Oshkosh, and the whole line from Chicago to that place, a distance of about two hundred miles is in successful operation.

A branch of the Chicago & Galena Road was projected a few years ago to form a connection with the interior of Wisconsin by the construction of a line from Belvidere to Madison. Those engaged in it in the course of their operations, thought it expedient to leave out Janesville from the route. The track was laid as far as Footville, a village about nine miles west of this place, and then further work in the direction of Madison was abandoned. In the Spring of 1858 it was deemed advisable to connect this branch with Janesville, and an arrangement was effected with the Milwaukee and Mississippi Company, for the use of their track from Bass Creek, at a point six miles distant, to the depot here. The connection was soon made, and trains commenced running between this and Chicago, by the way of Belvidere.

Soon after the establishment of the city government steps were taken for the organization of a Fire Department, and great zeal was manifested in that behalf. Two companies, Rock River, No. 1, and Water Witch, No. 2, were organized in 1854, and in the early part of the summer of 1855, engines, with all necessary apparatus were furnished them by the city. Each company has now a convenient and substantial house, with parlors neatly furnished, for the meetings of the companies, and both companies are full and thoroughly disciplined. They are composed of young and middle-aged men, and present an array of strength, activity, intelligence and courage not surpassed by the companies of any other city. They have been called into action under circumstances such as to test their qualities as firemen, and have always behaved in a manner most creditable to themselves, and to the admiration of their fellow citizens.

The principal officers of the Fire Department, in 1855, were Gilbert Dolsen, Chief Engineer; Joseph H. Budd, First Assistant; Winfield S. Chase, Second Assistant. In 1856, Ira Justin, Jr., was elected Chief Engineer, W. B. Britton, First Assistant, and Winfield S. Chase, Second Assistant. In 1857, Ira Justin, Jr., was re-elected Chief Engineer, W. S. Chase, was elected First Assistant, and Hiram Jackman, Second Assistant. In 1858, Mr. Justin was again elected Chief, Charles S. Jordan was elected First assistant, and Wm. B. Hemming, Second Assistant. In the present year the honor of a fourth election to the Chief Engineership was accorded to Mr. Justin, a compliment well deserved by the zealous, honorable, and intelligent manner in which he has always discharged the duties of the position, and which has won for him the esteem and confidence of his brother firemen. Wm. B. Hemming is the present First Assistant, and Joseph James, Second Assistant Engineer.—The department has been fortunate, throughout its history, in the selection of its chief officers.

The importance of a well-ordered and efficient Fire Department should be appreciated by every city government, and no reasonable expense should be spared towards keeping it in operation upon a liberal basis.

In connection with the engine companies there is a Sack Company composed of substantial business men, always ready for the discharge of their appropriate duties. They are, also, a social club, having a parlor, in one of the blocks on Main street, handsomely furnished, where the members meet regularly for the laudable purpose of enjoying themselves to the best of their ability. The writer has been there once or twice, and seen them thus engaged.

A Hook and Ladder Company (Rescue, No. 1,) was organized in 1856, and received its apparatus in 1857. This is a fine company, and its hook and ladder truck the best in the State. The company has a building for its apparatus, and a room connected, for holding company meetings, on Franklin street, next north of the Hyatt House. The members have provided themselves with a library of good books, and many of them are reaping solid advantage from its use. Wm. B. Britton is now their Foreman.

A third journal, the Free Press, was added to the number of Janesville newspapers, on the 6th of January, 1853; its politics being the same as those of the present Republican party. Rev. Joseph Baker, a Universalist preacher, was its first editor, and the establishment was the property of an association of politicians. On the 10th of October, of the same year, Wm. M. Doty purchased one half of the property, and the paper was published by Baker and Doty until June 7, 1855, at which time Mr. Baker became sole proprietor. On the first of October, '55, G. B. Burnett and Andrew J. Hall purchased one half of it, and issued a daily and weekly paper. Baker sold out to them soon afterwards, and subsequently E. C. Sackett purchased the property, and became the publisher, employing T. F. Withrow as editor. Soon after the last Presidential election Charles Holt, of the Gazette, bought the concern, and now retains its name in his weekly issue.

The subject of Education, soon after Janesville was invested with the dignity of a city government, began to receive increased attention, and the zealous efforts of many of her most enlightened citizens were employed in placing her interests in this respect upon a well-ordered foundation, and establishing a school system which should best promote the education of all grades of scholars. In the early times we have seen that the village was supplied with two common or district schools, and that about the beginning of the year '46 an Academy was established, to supply a want, then and for some time previous experienced, the want of a school of a higher grade. Subsequently the village was divided into seven school districts. So rapid, however, was the increase of population, that all these, insufficiently organized, and with a very loose and inefficient management of the several schools, were not enough to accommodate properly the children of the village as to room, or afford them the amount and manner of instruction desirable. The organization of Union Schools was anxiously desired, but not until the year 1855, was anything of consequence effected, towards the reformation of our educational system.

The Legislature of that year amended the charter of the city, uniting and consolidating the public schools of the city, under the direction of a Board of School Commissioners, one for each ward, annually appointed by the Common Council, and subject to their supervision and authority. At the session of 1859 these Commissioners were made elective, one to be chosen, at the annual charter election, for each ward, by the voters thereof. They are empowered, with the consent of the Council, "to purchase grounds, to erect thereon school houses, to keep them in repair, to furnish schools with necessary fixtures, furniture and apparatus, to establish, support and maintain Public Schools in the city, of such grades as the wants of the pupils may demand, to fix the rates of compensation to be allowed to teachers, to prescribe the school books to be used and the studies to be taught in the different schools, to visit every public school in the city at least once in two months, and, generally, to have and possess all the rights, powers and authority necessary for the proper management of the schools in the city. A report is also required to be made to the Common Council, stating the condition of the several schools in the city, the average number of pupils in attendance, the name and rate of compensation of the several teachers, the cost of supporting said schools for the preceding six months, together with such other matter as the Common Council may require."

Proceeding under this authority, the Council and the Board of Commissioners, with commendable zeal and sagacity, soon commenced and carried out the needed reorganization and reform, and established a regular gradation of schools from the primary to the highest department of a central school or academy, so that now no city in the State can boast of better facilities for education by the medium of the free school system. Each ward is provided with a school building. Those in the second and fourth wards being neat and commodious edifices of brick, erected at a cost of about $13,500. Each of these is capable of accommodating, in the primary and intermediate departments, two hundred and eighty pupils,

A full corps of excellent teachers, of both sexes, is employed, and the Central or High School is under the care of Mr. Levi Cass, an able and experienced instructor. The most thorough discipline is maintained, without resort to severe or harsh measures, and the attendance on the several schools is remarkably regular. The number of scholars is also rapidly increasing from year to year, the average in attendance being now about one thousand.

The High School building, the erection of which was commenced in April, 1857, under the supervision of Mr. Warren Robinson, the architect who furnished the plans, Messrs. A. M. Pratt and Carlos Brown being the builders, is situated on the high table land east of the river, and near the site of the old court house. From its cupola there is a delightful view of the city, and of a large proportion of the lower half of the county.

This edifice which is so creditable to the enterprise and liberality of Janesville, was finished in the spring of the present year ('59), and its cost was not far below $40,000. It is 101 feet long by 66 feet wide, exclusive of areas, steps, &c., and constructed in the Italian style. It is three stories high, exclusive of the basement, in which is a chapel about 50 by 30 feet, and a gymnasium of the same size. In this story, which is ten feet in clear height, are also the furnaces and cellars for fuel.

The first story is occupied by one school room, about 30 by 50 feet, and two of 25 by 30 feet each. With each of these is connected one or more ample recitation rooms, also superior wardrobe accommodations for both sexes. There are also accommodations for washing on this floor, at each end of the building. This story is fourteen feet high.

The second story contains two school rooms, each about 30 by 50 feet, two recitation rooms; also rooms for a laboratory and a library, each about 13 by 17 feet. The remainder of this story which is also fourteen feet high, is appropriated to wardrobes, rooms for teachers, &c.

The third story contains one room about 50 by 63 feet, a music and drawing room, each about 20 by 25 feet, a large wardrobe for each sex, and two ample recitation rooms. This story is 16 feet high.

The building is warmed by means of hot air furnaces, and is thoroughly ventilated on scientific principles. Ingress and egress to and from every part of it is well provided for, so that accidents, such as have some time happened in a sudden panic in crowded public schools, are not likely ever to occur.

The material in the walls above the basement is straw or light colored brick, the basement being of cut stone. The window caps are of iron, the sills of stone. The floors are all prepared with a lining of mortar, so as effectually to prevent noise from foot steps.

There was some strife among the people of this city, upon the question of the location of this building, but all will agree that the place selected for it combines many advantages, and now that it is finished, and occupied, it is a source of just pride for all of us.

In the reorganization of our public schools, the experience and ability of Mr. H. W. Collins were of essential service. Messrs. James Sutherland, Andrew Palmer, Shubael W. Smith, Rev. G. W. Lawrence, and Rev. Hiram Foote, as Commissioners, devoted much time and diligent effort in the same good cause. The present Board, which consists of Messrs. B. B. Eldredge, James Armstrong, Alexander Graham and Hiram Bowen, are faithfully endeavoring to promote the efficiency of the system, now so well established.

The interests of religion, at an early period in the history of our town, commanded attention, and called forth the efforts of members of various denominations, settled here. An account of the organization and progress of the various churches, having been furnished by those best acquainted with their history, will be found in an appendix to this sketch.

Having thus briefly sketched the leading events in the history of our town, and the progress of improvement from the early days to the present time, it is appropriate to add some remarks relating to its present condition, its various advantages, and its probable future.

The facilities for manufacturing by water power, the improvement of which has been noted in some detail, are coming every year more into use, and from this time onward, it may safely be predicted, they will attract the attention of men of capital, and induce the investment of means in manufacturing establishments, until the full capacity of the power shall be exhausted in the propulsion of machinery. The situation of Janesville, also, peculiarly fits it to become a great manufacturing town. The county of Rock is one of the best agricultural districts in the West. Its soil is equal in fertility to that of the best lands in any of the Western States, and there is scarcely an acre within its limits, which cannot be profitably used for farming purposes. In addition to Rock, there are considerable portions of the adjoining counties, for which Janesville is a market. At the present time this is, it is believed, as a wheat and general produce market, next to Milwaukee, the most important in the State. The early establishment of flouring mills here is one of the causes which have brought this about.

Another principal cause is in the fact that the town stands at the intersection of three railways, two leading to Chicago, and the other to Milwaukee, and here the produce dealers of these cities compete for the trade of a large and rich surrounding territory. Our own produce dealers have, also, done their part, by a liberal course of business, to promote the interests of the city.

From an early day, down to the present time, a very large trade has been done here in general merchandize. Our merchants have kept up with the needs and demands of a widely extended circle of customers, and have enjoyed a reputation for liberal dealing. Dry goods, hardware, groceries, and other descriptions of goods have been sold at prices uniformly moderate, when compared with the trade of other inland towns, and this fact has always had an influence in the highest degree favorable to the interests of the place.—Our mercantile establishments are upon a scale as to extent, amount of stock, quality of goods, and the style in which they are fitted and furnished, that would be creditable to older and much larger towns.

A few particulars in relation to the improvements on the water powers will exhibit the present state of advancement of our manufacturing interests.

On the upper power the improvements are as follows:

Commencing at the West end of the dam, is the flouring mill of A. Hyatt Smith and O. B. Ford, now being finished, 30 by 40 feet, $4\frac{1}{2}$ stories high, 3 run of stones. The Excelsior Mill, built in 1850, by H. Richardson—45 by 52 feet, 3 stories, 2 run of stones. Allen & Coppinger's mill, now being finished, 2 run of stones. The Novelty Mill built by H. W. Spencer, in 1855—42 by 93 feet, 2 stories, 2 run of stones. The Bower City Mills, built this year by D. McChesney—30 by 50 feet, 2 stories, 2 run of stones. The mill built by A. Hyatt Smith, which has already been described—6 run of stones—operated by Joseph A. Wood. The Farmers' Mill, Jackman & Alden, 3 stories, 3 run of stones. On the East side, is Norris' saw-mill, which will cut 4,000,000 feet of lumber yearly. Here, also, is a plough factory and furnace, built in 1855-56, by A. W. Parker, operated by D. C. Ward & Co. In the same building is James Mills' manufactory of sash, doors, blinds, &c. Near this establishment, F. A. Wheeler will soon have completed a large woolen factory.

On the lower, or Monterey power, are the following improvements: Heller & Henderson's flouring mill, built by Edward Heller in '56, 2 run of stones—operated Hanchett & Sutherland. Andre & Crosby built in '52 for an oil mill, converted into a flouring mill this year 3 run of stones.

Ira Miltimore is now building a flouring mill, 45 by 60 feet, 3½ stories, to have 4 run of stones; also, a mill for sawing and polishing stone, in connection with his stone quarries, which are believed to be as valuable as any in the state. Whitaker's woolen mill, herein before noticed, is operated by this power.

The following mills on the two powers will manufacture nearly or quite 200,000 bbls per annum.

The Western Novelty Iron Works, built by Joseph H. Budd in 1849, are operated by steam, and are capable of throwing out a large amount of work. They are situated on Franklin street North of the Hyatt House.

On River street and Centre, in the 4th ward is a large manufacturing establishment, built by Wm. Hume in 1853, which, also, uses steam power. It is now occupied by R. Williams, who manufactures a large amount of sashes, doors and blinds; by Mansfield & Company, who are largely engaged in the manufacture of flour barrels, turning out 15,000 per week; and by Harris, Guild, Angell & Tyler, who operate a foundry and machine shop, and do an extensive business.

For the character of its business buildings and blocks, Janesville is greatly to be commended. A few of these it will not be superfluous to mention in detail.

To begin with those on Main street, next to the American Hotel is a brick store, of three stories, the lower one 120 feet deep, erected in 1847, by Morris C. Smith and partner, long known as the New York Store, and now occupied as a Wholesale and Retail Grocery by Charles H. Conrad. Near this is Crosby's store, of brick, as are all the buildings on the East side of Main street, in the same row.

Richardson's Commercial Block, which has been mentioned heretofore, is occupied principally by hardware dealers, R. J. Richardson & Co., C. W. Seaver and H. C. Smith. T. H. Buckingham's Boot and Shoe Store, and A. Thurston's Confectionary Store are also in this Block.

In 1851, Ensign H. Bennett, long one of our most prominent merchants, and J. F. Clapp, of the City of New York, erected a handsome block of three stories, 70 feet front, by 69 feet in depth, at a cost of $12,000. There are three stores in this block, handsomely fitted—one occupied by Bennett & Bostwick for the sale of dry goods, another by the drug establishment of Tallman & Collins and the third by John I. Spafford, dry goods dealer.

In 1849, Thomas Lappin completed a three story block, next North of the one last mentioned, front on Main street 42 feet, and 60 feet in depth, except the North store, which is 100 feet in depth.

This is occupied as a wholesale and retail liquor store, by W. G. Wheelock; the other store by the book establishment, late of James Sutherland, now of Noah Newell. This block cost a little over $8,000.

In 1855, the same enterprising gentleman, (Mr. Lappin), built the block, now known by his name, and which fronting on Milwaukee and Main streets, is noticed for its neat architecture by all visitors. It is four stories in height, fronting 70 feet on Main street, and 100 feet on Milwaukee street, and built of the best Milwaukee brick. Its window caps are of iron, and sills of cut stone. Its upper rooms are approached by stairways from each street, and in addition to a number of offices for professional men, large rooms for a photographic gallery, a masonic and Odd Fellows Hall, it has a very spacious and well arranged hall, with gallery and stage, for public meetings, concerts, &c. In the first story is the dry goods store of M. C. Smith & Co., and that of Chapman Bros & Choate, fronting on Main St., both extensive concerns; also, on the corner of Milwaukee and Main streets, the banking house of John P. Hoyt & Co., and fronting on Milwaukee street the large jewelry stores of Webb & Lee, and Stephen C. Spaulding. This block was erected at a cost of $36,000.

On the East side of Main street, in 1853, McKey & Brother built the four story building now occupied by them, for the sale of dry goods, clothing, millinery, &c., at a cost of about $6000. Its front is 22 feet and depth 100 feet.

Next North and adjoining McKey's building is one of the same height, width and depth, built in 1855, by Solomon Hutson, at a cost of about $6,000. In the first story is the grocery establishment of L. E. Stone.

Adjoining this is a block 90 feet front by 100 feet in depth, and four stories high. The South half of this block was built in 1855, at a cost of $15,000, and the north half in 1858, at a cost of $12,000, by Peter Myers. In this block is the large variety store of V. Jouanneault, Moses Harsh's extensive clothing store, the grocery, fruit and confectionery store of L. R. Carswell, and the store until lately occupied by A. Blade & Co., for the sale of dry goods.

Adjoining this block, and extending on Main street to Milwaukee street, 90 feet, with a depth of 137 feet, a block of four stories is now in progress of erection by Mr. Myers. Its first story will have four stores on Main street, and two on Milwaukee street. The remainder will be finished for occupation as a Hotel, which will front on both streets. The cost of this block, it is estimated, will be $30,000. When finished there will be a continuous front of four stories on Main street, beginning with the building of McKey & Brother, and extending to Milwaukee street, a distance of about 225 feet, the whole front being of Milwaukee brick. It will then be one of the finest rows of commercial buildings in the State.

North of Milwaukee street are several neat brick blocks of two and three stories, built by Allen C. Bates, in 1853, and others by Z. S. Doty, and Peter Myers. On Milwaukee street adjoining the Ogden House on the East, is a large brick block, five stories high, 60 feet front, and 66 feet deep. Two thirds of this block were built by Sanford Williams in 1855, and the two lower stories of the remainder by Nelson Hurlbut in 1849. The portion built by Hurlbut was raised three stories higher by J. M. Riker, in 1855. Riker's Harness and Saddle manufactory is in the first story; also Hogan's auction room. The remainder of the block, is used for lodging rooms for families. The whole block cost about $20,000.

The Ogden House, now the property of Ezra Miller, was completed by J. M. May in 1851. It is three stories high, of brick, and cost about $10,000. It was intended for commercial purposes, but in 1853, after the burning of the Stevens House, was converted into a Hotel. The Post Office of the city is now in this building. Adjoining it on the West, is a brick building, built in 1855 by D. J. Farwell, four stories high, and 20 feet front, by 60 feet in depth.

At the East end of Milwaukee Street Bridge, Thomas B. Woollicroft, in 1854, erected a handsome brick building, fronting North two stories high, of Milwaukee brick, 24 feet front by 84 feet in depth, with a neat verandah on the West side overhanging the river. This cost over $5000. In the lower story is a confectionery, and back of that a fine dining hall. In the basement is an extensive bakery.

At the West end of the bridge, and South side of Milwaukee St., is a handsome three story block of brick built in 1851, by S. D. Smith, I. M. Norton, and Wm. M. Tallman, having a front of about 65 feet, by the same depth. Here is situated Addy's Clothing Store, and the Dry Goods establishment of Morse Brothers.

At the corner of River and Milwaukee streets, and fronting South on Milwaukee street, is the building erected in 1858, by the Central Bank, built of Milwaukee brick, and in a very neat style of architecture. It is one of the ornaments of the City. The Central Bank occupies the first story. The building has two lofty stories and a basement, and cost about $8,000.

As yet nothing has been said of the merits of the site upon which our fair young city is built. On this subject, every citizen of Janesville, is apt, at times, to speak in such enthusiastic terms, that those who listen to the description of what they have not yet seen, are likely to take it with many grains of allowance. But all strangers who visit the place, and pass through its different wards, and wide extent of streets, are charmed with the beauty of the landscape, and its admirable adaptation to the purpose for which it was chosen and has been improved. There is here a pleasing variety of surface, all in harmony, in no part of it abrupt or rough; affording the choicest sites for residences, in profusion, and at the same time convenient and handsome streets for the uses of business. On the East side the ground rises rather rapidly, from the second street running parallel with the river, to the fine plateau of prairie which stretches away for miles beyond, and on the brow of this rise, which is diversified with grassy knolls, and here and there with beautiful groves, for a distance of two miles or more, are sites for villas and cottages, not to be surpassed in any town in the Union. The same may be said of the high land which rises from the river, on the south side of its westerly reach, on both sides of the State Asylum for the Blind. On the west side the ground rises from the river, with an easy grade towards the west and northwest, and just beyond the limits of the town, in the direction last named, commences the high rolling land forming a part of the famous Rock Prairie.

The population of the city in the autumn of 1857, was nearly 10,000; it is now estimated to be above 11,000.

The revulsion in financial affairs which commenced in 1857, and the effects of which are as yet felt throughout the Northwest, did not have an influence upon the business interests of Janesville so disastrous as upon those of many other towns in this quarter of the Union.

The year 1859 is now near its close. In its course the revival here of business of all descriptions, the spirit of enterprise on all hands exhibited, and the cheerful countenances of our prominent business men, give augury of a general prosperity at hand based upon strong foundations, and destined to grow, year by year, with a rapidity greatly augmented over that of any previous period in the history of Janesville. The few local causes that have at any time disturbed the harmony of our citizens, are disappearing, and ere long, it is not to be doubted, all of them will be found laboring with one accord, and with the energy and intelligence for which they are distinguished, to maintain her rank as the second city in business importance in the young, but powerful State of Wisconsin.

NOTE—For a number of facts relative to the early history of Janesville, the foregoing sketch is indebted to the valuable history of Rock County, published in 1856, by the "Rock County Agricultural Society and Mechanics' Institute."

JANESVILLE POST OFFICE.

Ogden House Block, East Milwaukee Street.

EZRA MILLER, P. M.

JEROME CROCKER, DEPUTY.

Office Hours from 7 1-2 A. M., to 8 P. M.

There are Ten Mail routes running in all directions from this office. Two mails daily from Chicago, two daily from Milwaukee, and two daily from Madison.

The citizens of Janesville can boast of having a very neatly and handsomely arranged Post Office.

Col. MILLER, the Post Master, has spared no pains or expense to fit up and conduct the office in the best manner possible.

The rooms for making up and distributing mails are entirely separated from the business office to which outsiders are admitted and every possible precaution is used for dispatch and safety in the handling of mail matter.

The office is provided with 1000 boxes and 150 drawers and closets and they are so arranged as to aid the clerks in distributing mail with the greatest rapidity possible.

Box rents amount to $800 per year.

There are 35,000 letters sent from the office per quarter and about the same number received.

Gross receipts $5,000 per year.

It is a salaried office and the profits to government above all expenses are $2,500 per annum.

JANESVILLE NEWSPAPERS.

Janesville Gazette, Daily, and Janesville Gazette and Free Press, Weekly. Holt, Bowen & Wilcox, Publishers. Cha's Holt and Hiram Bowen, Editors.

Janesville Times, Daily and Weekly. Wright & Erving, Publishers. C. E. Wright and C. H. Wright, Editors.

The following sketches of the Press of Janesville were kindly furnished by the respective Editors :

Janesville Gazette.—The first number was issued August 14, 1845, by Levi Alden and E. A. Stoddard, under the firm of Alden & Stoddard. The subscription list was about 300. December 6, 1845, Mr. Stoddard sold his interest to Wm. F. Tompkins, when the paper was published by Alden & Tompkins till the 26th of September. Mr. T. then sold to Mr. Alden, and it was published by Alden & Gratten, (Mr. G. holding only a nominal interest) till September, 1848, when Mr. Gratten withdrew. In December, 1848, Cha's Holt purchased a half interest and became joint editor. Up to this period Mr. Alden was sole editor. Its publication was continued by Alden and Holt to March 1855, from which time Mr. Holt was sole publisher till August 1st, 1859, when Hiram Bowen and Daniel Wilcox purchased an interest in the establishment and the publication is now under the firm of Holt, Bowen & Wilcox.

In July, 1854, a six column daily was issued, but this issue continued only three months when it was abandoned for want of adequate support. In march, 1857, Mr. Holt purchased the Janesville Free Press, united it with the Gazette, and commenced the publication of the Daily Morning Gazette, (seven columns), adding name of "Free Press" to "Gazette" in its weekly issue.

The Gazette has been enlarged several different times, and on the first of September, 1857, was made nine columns to the page.

The Daily Gazette has now been published more than two and a half years. The Weekly commenced its fifteenth volume September, 1859.

The Gazette was the first paper published in Janesville, and its publication has been continued without intermission.

Janesville Times.—The Rock County Democrat was established by Gen. G. W. Crabb, in 1846, and continued under his management until the fall of 1848, when the Gen. having changed his politics, or in other words, become infected with "Barnburner" notions, was nominated as the Freesoil candidate for member of Congress from his district. He changed the name of the paper to "Freesoil Democrat." After a few weeks it went into the hands of Charles S. Jordan, who issued two or three numbers, when it was suspended until March 1st, 1849, when its publication was resumed under the title of "Rock County Badger," by John A. Brown, with A. T. Gray associated with him as co-editor. Oct. 20th, 1850, Mr. Gray retired, and Gen. Crabb associated with Mr. Brown, as editor and publisher, under the firm of Crabb & Brown, and the name changed to "Badger State." This arrangement continued until May 17, 1851, when the Gen. retired and Mr. Brown associated his brother D. C. Brown, with him. In the following October, 1851, Dr. John Mitchell commenced a new paper called the "Democratic Standard," and soon after by a mutual arrangement the two papers were merged in one, published by Dr. Mitchell, under the name of the "Democratic Standard," Gen. Crabb, assuming the duties of editor.

April 1st, 1852, Crabb retired from the Editorship of the paper, and it was continued by Dr. Mitchell, until June 1st, 1853, when it was purchased by D. C. Brown, who associated A. T. Gray with him as editor. Mr. Gray having been elected Secretary of State, vacated the chair editorial, and was succeeded by J. C. Bunner, as co-editor, with Mr. Brown. Mr. Bunner left, Feb. 21st, 1855, and Mr. Brown continued the paper alone until Oct. 1st, 1855, when he associated Hon. James Armstrong with him, under the firm of Brown & Armstrong, by whom it was published up to February, 1858, and from April 22, 1856 to this time as a Daily and Weekly. The Standard then passed into the hands of G. H. Bishop, as proprietor, and

C. E. Wright, as Editor, by whom it was continued until Oct. 18, 1858, when it gave way to the Janesville Daily and Weekly Times, which publication commenced Jan. 26, 1859, by G. H. Bishop and C. E. Wright, Proprietors, C. E. Wright and C. H. Wright, Editors. On the 1st of July of the same year, Mr. Bishop retired, and soon after, Mr. J. F. Erving purchased an interest in the office. The Times is now published Daily & Weekly, by Messrs. C. E. Wright and J. F. Erving, the Messrs. Wright, Editors.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

Meets first Monday Evening of each month at Wright's Hall, opposite Hyatt House. Reading Room and Library open daily from 4 P. M. to 10 P. M. Organized May, 1858. Its object is set forth in the following preamble to their constitution :

Whereas, the young men of the city of Janesville are desirous of promoting our own welfare, spiritually and socially, and believe that end best attained by organizing ourselves into a religious body, having for its aim a free interchange of sentiment, the collection of religious and literary matter and to secure for the young men who come among us as strangers, such associations as shall be for their spiritual good. Therefore,

Resolved, That we will form ourselves into an organization to be called the "Young Men's Christian Association" of the City of Janesville.

During the winter lectures are sustained and the citizens are enabled, through the efforts of the association to listen to the best speakers in the Union. The Association now numbers about sixty members and is increasing rapidly. The present officers are

PHILOSOPHIAN SOCIETY.

In the spring of 1859, the Philosopher Society was organized by the members of Water Witch Engine Co. No. 2, and the following officers were chosen, who still retain their positions:

President.—Henry Hemming.

Vice President.—Cha's P. King.

Secretary.—John C. Spencer.

Treasurer.—A. R. Johnson.

Shortly after its organization, the Society was addressed by Geo. D. Prentice, of Louisville, Kentucky, who has been succeeded by other prominent lecturers.

The society has laid the foundation for a library, and the members are active and energetic in literary pursuits.

AMUSEMENTS.

JANESVILLE CHESS CLUB.

Rooms Young America Block, 3d floor. Business meeting every Monday evening. Rooms open day and evening.

The club was organized July 13, 1858, with about 20 members now numbers about 30, and is rapidly increasing, there being a great interest manifested on the part of the citizens.

H. R. CLUM, President.

R. J. RICHARDSON, Vice President.

F. BARRERE, Secretary and Treasurer.

The rooms are provided with one large center chess table with five boards, and four smaller tables.

Rooms are to be nicely furnished for the accommodation of ladies. It is, taken altogether, an agreeable place to spend an evening.

JANESVILLE GYMNASIUM.

Young America Block, 3d Floor. ALLEN & RICHARDSON, proprietors. Open day and evening.

The room is fitted up with all the implements necessary for gymnastic exercises, and the institution now has a list of over forty members which is being rapidly augmented. Experienced teachers are present to instruct pupils in the various exercises necessary to develop and strengthen the muscular system and promote the general health of the student.

The Janesville gymnasium is a permanent institution, and is, if we are correctly informed, the only association of like nature in the State. It embraces, among its members, men of all professions, who devote a short time daily to Calisthenic exercise.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

This Church and Society was organized May 5th 1855, with 12 members. It now numbers about 100 members. The Church edifice was erected in the summer of 1855, on Jackson street near Wall. The Church was organized through the labors of Rev. M. W. Staples, who was the Pastor, until May 1858, when Rev. Oliver Bronson, accepted a call from the Church, and commenced his labors as Pastor, which he yet continues.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH AND SOCIETY.

This Church was organized on the 11th of February 1845, and consisted of fifteen members. The sermon was preached by Rev. C. H. A. Bulkley, whose labors with the church closed in July, 1846. In October 1846, Rev. Hiram Foote, entered upon his labors as stated supply,—was installed Pastor on the 14th of November 1848, and was dismissed by mutual agreement, February 24th 1858, having been connected with the church as stated supply and Pastor, for a period of more than eleven years. On the first Sabbath of May 1858, Rev. Wm. C. Scofield, began his labors with the church which continued for one year. Rev. M. P. Kinney, the present Pastor, was installed October 1, 1859.

The present number of its members is 233.

The Society was organized on the 17th of June 1847. Their house of worship, located at the corner of Jackson and Dodge streets, was erected in 1848, and enlarged in 1850. Its dimensions are 40 by 75 feet, and will seat 600 persons or more.

The Polity of the church is Congregational. The Deacons and Standing Committee hold their offices for three years, one or more being elected each year.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

This church was organized October 13th 1844. The first Pastor was Rev. Jeremiah Murphy. Its foundations were laid by a small and feeble band, but by the blessing of God on the sacrifices of succeeding laborers, a commanding and influential structure has been reared. The house of worship is now commodious and pleasant, the congregations in regular attendance are large, and the prospects of usefulness and permanance are full of encouragement.

The whole number of communicants in the church is 212.

The present pastor is Rev. E. J. Goodspeed, who resides a few doors south of the church edifice, on the same street.

The officers of the church and society are,

Services on the Sabbath commence at 10½ A. M. and 7 P. M.; during the week on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, at 7. The Sabbath School is held, every Sunday, immediately after morning service.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

In 1841, the Rev. Mr. McKane organized a small society in Janesville, and appointed J. P. Wheeler, Esq., its Leader. The following winter all of its members moved from the place. The next minister upon the Circuit, was Rev. Alpha Warren, who was followed by Rev. Boyd Phelps. During the ministry of the latter, in the spring of 1843, another, and more permanent society was formed, consisting of nine or ten members, and Mr. John Winn was appointed Leader. In 1848 a small house of worship was erected under the labors of Rev. W. Lattin. A parsonage was built about the same time. These were subsequently disposed of, and the site of their present church purchased. In July 1853, the church having been completed, it was dedicated to the worship of Almighty God. It is a substantial brick edifice, 45 by 75 feet, and is situated at the corner of Jackson and Centre streets. The following named ministers have been its Pastors in the order in which they are given ;—Rev. Messrs. McKane, Warren, Phelps, Catlin, Adams, Lucock, Lattin, Snow, Comfort, Stansbury, Mason, Wood, Requa, Hamilton, Miller, and Tilton. The church now consists of about 250 communicants, has a flourishing Sabbath School, with a good library. It has also a Library Association, with a good circulating library for the benefit of the congregation.

Rev. H. C. Tilton is the present Pastor, and Mr. G. F. Lane, Superintendent of the Sabbath School.

PRIMITIVE METHODIST CHURCH.

The church building and parsonage is situated on Franklin street, near Galena. The church was dedicated in the fall of 1851.

Rev. John Sharpe, Pastor.

JANESVILLE UNIVERSALIST SOCIETY.

As the shortest and readiest method of stating the views of this society, we give the profession of belief, adopted by the General Convention of the order, in the year 1802, and which remains unaltered to this day.

ART. 1. We believe that the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments contain a revelation of the character of God, and of the duty, interest, and final destination of mankind.

ART. 2. We believe there is one God, whose nature is love ; revealed in one Lord, Jesus Christ, by one Holy Spirit of grace, who will finally restore the whole family of mankind to holiness and happiness.

ART. 3. We believe that holiness and true happiness are inseparably connected ; and that believers ought to maintain order and practice good works, for these things are good and profitable unto men."

We have no means at hand of ascertaining the exact number of those that subscribe to the above formula, residing in this city, but it is known that there was a respectable number among the first settlers, and that it has been considerably increased, by subsequent emigration. Many of our most respectable and influential citizens are numbered among its supporters at the present time. Several attempts have been made to establish a society and regular preaching, but from various causes, with indifferent success, until about one year since, the present Pastor, Rev. S. C. Bulkeley, a native of Connecticut, but more recently from the state of Illinois, removed hither and commenced his labors by regular ministrations on the Sabbath, and effecting an organization which gives assurance of permanency.

The society, having no building of its own, holds its meetings in the Court Room. It is understood however, to be the intention, as soon as the state of the times will warrant it, to erect a suitable church, which measure is regarded as indispensable to the permanent growth and prosperity of the society. From the character of those engaged in the undertaking, we see no reason to doubt that ere long, a building will be erected, that will be an additional ornament to the city and an honor to those engaged in the undertaking.

PRIVATE RESIDENCES.

The following paragraphs were crowded out of their proper place in the History of the City, at the beginning of this volume, for want of room.

Not a few of the men of means in Janesville, have availed themselves of the opportunities so abundant, for the erection of tasteful residences, and the cultivation of the grounds about them. Among these, in passing, may be appropriately mentioned, the fine mansion of Wm. M. Tallman, on the West side, also, the neat Gothic cottage of Stephen G. Williams, and the picturesque dwelling of Stephen C. Spaulding, with its high pitched roofs, and projecting gables. On the East side, Timothy Jackman has just completed a substantial, large and well finished residence. Dr. Bailey has another nearly ready for occupation. James Crosby, about two years ago, established himself in a beautiful home, in a charming situation, and near the Court house site is the neat and handsome residence of Morris C. Smith. Among the residences on this side, mention must not be omitted of that built by J. J. R. Pease, some years ago, which has in front a wooded knoll, sloping to Bluff street, and the grounds about which, though susceptible of improvement that would add vastly to their beauty, are in their natural state, a great ornament to that portion of the city. The residences of A. C. Bates and S. D. Smith, near the junction of Milton Avenue and Milwaukee street are large, neatly finished, and handsome structures. Near these is the neat cottage of Major Hiram Taylor, with its large vegetable, flower and fruit garden,—an evidence of the taste, the thrift, and energy of its proprietor. To the east of Major Taylor's, is the comfortable and commodious residence of Mrs. Whiton, the widow of the late lamented Chief Justice. Isaac Woodle has a pleasant look out over the city from the spot in what used to be Hickory Glen, where he has built for himself and his friends a convenient and snug looking home. Not far from Woodle's is the spacious cottage, for many years the residence of A. Hyatt Smith, wherein now dwells one of the early settlers of Janesville, James H. Knowlton. There are ample grounds around this, with abundance of shrubbery, wooded knolls, and ornamental trees. On Main street, not far below the American House, Mr. Charles H. Conrad is now finishing, for his residence, a very commodious and handsome mansion.

On the west side, Andrew Palmer has a place at the junction of Academy and Pleasant Streets, where he has long resided, which with its ample house, and its many conveniences, the beauty of the grounds, its fine forest trees, is as attractive as any in the city. It fronts on Academy street, running back sixteen rods to Locust street. On an eminence, commanding one of the finest views to be had in Janesville, and situated not far south of the Monterey Bridge, Ira Miltimore is building the foundation for a residence, worthy of the locality. When finished according to the plans, it will be excelled by no residence in the city. Besides, there are in every direction, and on almost every street, neat and tasteful residences, located upon ample lots, and altogether, showing a collection of comfortable homes, not excelled by those of any of our Western towns of like magnitude.
