C. DEVEREUX IS STAR IN FIRST PLAY BY SHAW

Leader of Devereux Play- ers Pleases Large Au- dience Thursday

Clifford Devereux as Captain Bluntschli was the outstanding star in the production of Shaw's "Arms and the Man" in the Open Air Theater Thursday evening. His interpretation of the Chocolate Cream Soldier was one of the most enjoyable bits of acting that has been presented at the University. Zinita Graf as the romancing Raina gave him admirable support.

The theater was filled to capacity and the audience responded to every situation with a keen appreciation of the work of the entire cast. Elizabeth Allen as Louka gave a remarkably sympathetic interpretation of a very difficult role. Edmund Forde, as Major Saranoff, the man who never retreated, or apologized ably portrayed the problem raising hero of the cavalry charge. The elder Petkoffs were capably presented by Agnes Elliott Scott and Gage Bennett.

A program of one-act plays by Lord Dunsany will be presented tonight. The plays are "A Night at the Inn," "Fame and the Poet," and "Tents of the Arabs."

The plays which will be played Saturday are Rostand's "Romancers" in the afternoon at 2:15 and Thomas' "Her Husband's Wife" in the evening at 8:15.

SPECIAL CARDINAL FOR NEW FRESHMEN

A special edition of The Cardinal is to be published Monday for mailing to the 3,000 freshmen who will enter here in the fall. The edition will be put out under the auspices of the Union Board, and its purpose is to acquaint the incoming new students with the conditions at Wisconsin, and to give them the information about traditions, practices and activities, that they will want to know when they enter. The special Cardinal will be sent to all freshmen whose credentials for entrance are here now or are received by September.

CHURCH ESTABLISHES WAR SCHOLARSHIPS

That the granting of war scholarships, ranging from $150 to $250 each, to assist ex-service men who are members of the church to return to college or preparatory school will be continued again during the year 1920-21, was recently announced by the Methodist Episcopal church. About $250,000 will be devoted to the purpose in the next five years. Service in any military or naval branch, the Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, as well as service under the allies, qualifies for the scholarship.

The first University Gymnasium was an old, red, wooden building behind Main Hall.

Wisconsin provided for the establishment of the University the year it was admitted as a state—1848.

President Briggs acted as President from 1900 to 1903 during the illness of President Adams.

The act establishing the University fixed its location at the "village of Madison."

The athletic field covers forty-two acres.

Twins Is Twins No Matter How Raised Says Guyer

A. D. Gannon

"Twins are a source of humor to the funny man, a problem to the parents in these days of the H. C. L. and a source of information to the scientist in tracing the effects of environment and heredity on the formation of character." These were the opening thoughts of Prof. M. F. Guyer's illustrated lecture at the Biology building, Wednesday afternoon.

"Heredity is ten times more important than environment," said Prof. Guyer. This has been proven by the study of identical twins. Ordinary twins are no more alike than sister is like sister, but identical twins have the same mannerisms, habits, temperaments, appetites, and tastes. They dream often of the same thing at the same time; react the same way to the same food; have the same physical defects; and are always fond of one another for the same reason that we are fond of ourselves—they are really one in two.

Experiments in raising identical twins in different environments show no great changes in characteristics, which nullifies to a great extent the theory that environment is of as great importance as heredity.

HOMER IN LAST INNING SCORES WIN FOR SOUTH

A home run by Stanbury in the last inning with two on bases, was responsible for the 4 to 3 victory of the All-Southern team in the All-Southern-Badger game on the lower campus yesterday.

Up to the last frame the Badgers had maintained a three run lead. The Southerners bunched five hits in the last inning and tallied four times, gaining a lead of one run that the Badgers were unable to overcome.

Grey's work on the mound and at bat was good. He allowed the Badgers only two scattered hits and bagged two semi-circuit swats.

The two teams will meet in a championship clash some time next week. This will probably take place on next Thursday.

Use of Automobiles Hits Supply of Old Togs

The wide use of automobiles combined with the high price of chauffeurs, has materially reduced the supply of men's second hand garments, according to Adjutant Percy Fynn of the Salvation Army store and Industrial home, 41 Juneau ave., Milwaukee. The wagons from the organization used to gather 18 or 20 suits each week in the days when cars still had dashboards and high wheels, but now it is with difficulty that three or four suits are obtained.

"Everybody has a car and wants to keep the old clothes for Saturday afternoon wear when they tinker with the engine," the Adjutant said recently. "The store could dispose of a hundred suits a week if they were available, but they are not forthcoming these days."

He said that the greatest need among the poor is for children's clothing and after this for men's wear. Men's trousers are the next most difficult garments to collect. Men's coats are less rare and vests can be harvested in abundance.

The store which is maintained by the Salvation Army sells commodities to the poor at very low prices. Things are not given, if the people can pay, in order that the purchaser may feel he is not a recipient of charity.

OPERATE FACTORIES TO EARN DEGREES

Twelve more graduates have just been awarded certificates by the Dairy School of the University of Wisconsin. This increases the total number of dairy school graduates to 863 in the 25 years since the school was founded.

"A student has to operate successfully some creamery, cheese factory, or city milk plant for one season after finishing the winter course at the dairy school before the certificates are awarded," says E. H. Farrington in charge of the dairy department of the College of Agriculture. "During the time the candidate is working for a certificate, he makes a written monthly report of the operations of his factory on blanks furnished by the school. At least seven of these reports must be sent in and the factory must pass inspection before the certificate is granted."

The creamery certificate was awarded to Walter August Neumann of Green Bay. The cheese factory certificate went to Curtis Reuben Barker, Emerald; Joseph Martin Dillinger, Merrill; Walter John Frank, Split Rock; Henry John Eickhoff, Madison; Hilda Margaret Kellner, East Lansing, Mich.; Walter Lewis, Scheller, Oshkosh; Frank Paul Swetz, Arpin; George Joseph Knier, Cuba City.

The city milk certificate was awarded to Martin Christian Tarnutzer, Manistique, Mich.; and Alonzo Debinan Fish, Seattle, Wash. An honorary certificate was granted to Fred Marty of Monroe.

ENROLLMENT NEXT YEAR OVER 8,000

An enrollment of 8,000 students at the University of Wisconsin this year!

This is the figure that has been set by university officials who have been busy getting material on which to base an estimate of the number of students who will come here.

This figure is given after a comprehensive analysis of the reports that have come from high schools visitors and from reports that have been received from throughout the state.

HOW THEY DO IT

A Tragedy in Many Spasms

The scene opens in the editorial rooms of The Daily Cardinal office, 1:30 p. m.

Enter I (always the first on the job).

I, to Office Boy: Well sonny, still sweeping cobwebs?

O. B.: Yes, mister; y'know all great actors started small.

Murphy (entering from up stage): Yes, they all began as babies.

O. B.: I mean they started from small beginnings. Look at Dave Warfield, for instance; he started as an usher. And where is he today? Hu?

Stenog awakened by the sound of manly voice: How should I know?

Enter Maier aghast: Who took my desk?

(Stenog starts to type as the unaware of his proximity.)

Maier: Say, heard a good one in class this morning, Listen,

Prof.: Mr. Moore, you can translate the first paragraph.

Moore: You compliment me.

I (registering disgust): Some people wouldn't even smile at that.

Perstein (looking at Gill): Most people would.

Enter Judith running: Gee I'm being followed

All: Was someone running with you?

Judith (running with perspiration): He accused me of stealing his watch.

Murph: Was he watching?

She: He searched me.

Whee: And did he find it?

Her: No, all he found was the ticket.

George (aside): I was too outspoken in my statement this afternoon.

Stenog: Impossible! Who outspoke you?

Orchestra: "Some likes Mary 'n some likes Theed,

Some likes Cary and some likes Ried,

Some likes Charlie, an' some likes Doug,

But me, I goes just to see 'em hug."

She (entering): Is the The Daily Cardinal?

All: It was. Where do you come from?

She: Michigan—wouldn't you?

J. D.: Do you know which one of these sufferagettes in this photo is your wife?

I: Say, if the moon had a child would the skyrocket?

All: The clean shaven one!

Corry: Gee, men, I gotta swell date with a peach tonite.

Murph: I bet she's a green one.

C: Your no judge.

M.: No, if I was, I'd give you life.

Ester: Mister Murphy wanted on the phone.

M.: Tell 'em I'm out.

Ester: He is studying hands.

No. Not a palm reader. He is playing poker. Yes. Oh, say the Show at the Open Air has changed his act.

Baily: I thot his neck looked cleaner.

Celeste: Oh, Don, is it a fact that Dean Goodnite talks to himself when he is alone?

Don: I don't know. I was never with him when he was alone.

—And so it goes. Do you wonder that we poor writers sometimes get cramps and other things from listening to this such?

SIDE-LIGHTS ON THE UNIVERSITY

VII. College of Agriculture

Famous School Enrolled 1500 Students During Past Year;
Ranks With Cornell

By J. G. CROWNHART, '21

The College of Agriculture at Wisconsin ranks with that at Cornell in the east as the first two leading colleges in the United States. After these two follow such colleges as Ames, Purdue, Missouri, Ohio, Minnesota, and Illinois. Wisconsin and Cornell have the distinction of occupying a distinct group at the head of all other similar colleges.

The College is one of the most important branches of the University of Wisconsin. It enrolled 942 regular four year students last year and in addition had 536 short course students and 75 Federal Aid students making a total of over 1500 during the year. Approximately 80 % of these are from Wisconsin.

The College of Agriculture was established in 1868 at the same time as the College of Engineering and was the first addition to the Literary Course which composed the University up to that time. The Short Course was established in 1885 and was probably the first such course organized in any college. The first Dairy School in America was held at Wisconsin in 1890 as an outgrowth of the Babcock Milk Tests. All this has combined to give Wisconsin a standing that is exceeded by no other school in the country.

Dean Harry L. Russell of the College says in the bulletin of the College, "Agriculture is the most important business in the world today. The future of a greater nation depends upon a progressive agriculture and the majority of the rural leaders of the future must be men and women with a scientific training in the problems of the farm and home. Such a training may be obtained at Wisconsin."

There are seventeen distinct departments in the college among the more prominent of which are the Course in Agricultural Journalism, the Dairy School, Agricultural Chemistry and Agricultural Education. There are three distinct divisions within the college which are the Course in Home Economics, The Long Course (three and four years) and the so-called Short Courses.

The main Short Course is held in the winter for fifteen weeks and is the means of over five thousand young men farmers obtaining the essential education which they would otherwise be unable to obtain.

Service may be said to be the watchword of the school and it is said that no other college at the University reaches such a large class of people who are desirous of obtaining this education for the immediate end of furthering their capacity to produce.

FACULTY MAN SHOWS VALUE OF FERTILIZER

"Potash and corn must go hand in hand on our marsh soils if we are to get profitable returns," says Griffith Richards of the soils department, University of Wisconsin.

"Last year trials with different fertilizers on the university marsh showed that the addition of potash alone more than doubled the yield of corn, and was nearly equal in value to heavy applications of manure. With no fertilizers, the yield of corn was 34.5 bushels an acre; with the addition of 200 pounds of muriate of potash, 78.6 bushels; and with the addition of 12 tons of manure, 83.5 bushels. Thus the experiment showed that the application of 200 pounds of potash at a cost of about $15 an acre gave an increased yield of 44 bushels. Valuing the corn at $1.80 a bushel the increased returns were $79.20, which means a net profit of $64.20 an acre from the use of potash alone.

"Manure was seen to give good yields, but where we have both marsh and upland soils on the same farm it will be more profitable for the farmer to use the manure on the uplands and get potash for the marsh. Manures contain much nitrogen that is not needed by peat soils, but which is usually very deficient in upland soils.

"Other trials on the marsh show that mixed fertilizers, containing one per cent nitrogen, 8 per cent phosphorus, and 2 per cent potash and applied at the rate of 125 pounds to the acre yielded only 41 bushels of corn an acre. Potash and phosphorus mixed and applied at rate of 200 pounds potash and 400 pounds phosphorous gave a yield of only 71 bushels an acre or less than was obtained by use of potash alone. Thus phosphorous is not needed on our marsh now.

New Reformatory Located Close to Historic Village

Industrial Home for Women to be Opened This Fall at Taycheedah; Was a Commercial Rival of Fond du Lac.

By FRED L. HOLMES

ON THE SITE of one of the most historic early settlements in the Fox river valley the state of Wisconsin is erecting a new state institution for the care of women. This reformatory is being erected to Taycheedah, Fond du Lac county, and will be opened late this fall. It is a little hamlet of about 150 people with a good public school and a weather beaten train shed where passenger trains stop on signal. The hamlet began to decline just before the opening of the Civil war, when many of the old families removed to Fond du Lac and elsewhere.

Among the early picturesque characters of the place was Col. S. W. Beall, whose talented wife Elizabeth Fenimore Cooper, a niece of James Fenimore Cooper and of Governor Morris of New York and a granddaughter of Lewis Morris, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. As a young lawyer, Col. Beall was appointed, through the influence of Chief Justice Roger Taney as the receiver of public lands for Wisconsin. In 1850 he was elected as lieutenant governor of the state. Later he removed to Montana, where he was killed in 1868 in a political altercation. Since that time Taycheedah has come to be a popular summer resort hamlet at the foot of Lake Winnebago. Its history has recently been written for the state historical society by W. A. Titus of Fond du Lac.

"Taycheedah is not commonplace; it has a history reaching as far back as the first settlement of the Lake Winnebago region and was once the social and cultural center of Fond du Lac county with a commercial importance that eclipsed the neighboring settlement of Fond du Lac," says W. A. Titus of Fond du Lac.

An Indian Village

"The first white explorers found an Indian village on the site of Taycheedah; in 1795 it is recorded that Sar-ro-chau was the chief of the Winnebago band at this point. Grignon speaks of Sar-ro-chau as 'one of the best Indians.' The old chief took part in the war of 1812 and died soon after the close of hostilities. His son, Charatchou, better known as The Smoker, aided the whites in the pursuit of Black Hawk's warriors in 1832. The Taycheedah Indians were long remembered by the early traders and settlers because of their friendly attitude and their willingness to assist the newcomers when other Indian bands became unruly.

"In the years of exploration and early settlement all travel routes from the Green Bay settlement to the Fond du Lac region followed the east shore of the extensive inland lake, and the travelers were sure to pass through Taycheedah as a gateway to the prairie region beyond. These pioneers were enthusiastic about the possibilities of this old Indian camping ground as an ideal location for a village or a city. A settlement was begun at Taycheedah in 1839, which soon outstripped the earlier and river settlement at Fond du Lac. There was little to commend the Fond du Lac location this early day. The land on which it was built was marshy and almost as low as the lake level; the drainage problem, if it occurred to the early settlers at all, must have seemed next to impossible. Inundations occurred every spring when the snow melted on the surrounding hills. From a geographical viewpoint, however, Fond du Lac was the logical place for a city. Situated at the upper point of the lake, future railroad lines from both sides would necessarily converge there, and this prospect must have gone far to overcome the effect of the depressed and cheerless terrain. The harbor facilities, also, were superior to those of Taycheedah.

View is Picturesque

"From the sandy shore line at Taycheedah the level land, covered by great groves of forest trees, stretched backward for a full mile, and then came the picturesque ledge two hundred feet high with another area of level wooded country above. From the higher levels the view across the lake was indescribably beautiful, and the entire topography seemed to lend itself to the building of an attractive urban center.

"These respective advantages and disadvantages caused the rival settlements to contend for the supremacy for a number of years, although in the early forties Taycheedah was by far the larger place. About 1848, however, Fond du Lac began to attract settlers in such numbers as to establish its supremacy for all time. The final result was largely due to the foresight of Dr. Mason C. Darling, who having acquired much real estate in Fond du Lac donated a site for the courthouse as well as for many of the new business ventures in the struggling community. It is said that real estate in Taycheedah was held at a high figure by speculators, but the outcome was exactly the reverse of what land-owners expected. Money was scarce in the new country, and business concerns located where lots could be secured free rather than where they were held for fancy prices.

"The first settler in Taycheedah was Francis D. McCarty, who built his home there in 1839. The beauty of the location attracted the better class of early settlers from the east, and it was said that in the decade between 1840 and 1850 more than half of the prominent men of Fond du Lac county, the local aristocracy so to speak, lived in Taycheedah, and many of these men were known throughout Wisconsin. The first public schoolhouse in the county was built in Taycheedah, in 1842. Governor James D. Doty assisted in the actual work of construction, and the school bell, the first ever heard in Fond du Lac county, was the gift of Col. Henry Conklin. This bell was brought by Colonel Conklin from the dismantled steamer 'Advocate' which was wrecked on the Hudson River; it is interesting to know that the old bell still call together the juvenile population of the vicinity. Edgar Conklin was the teacher of this pioneer public school, which served the people of both Taycheedah and Fond du Lac. On its records were inscribed the names of Darling, Conklin, Ruggles, Perry, Moore, Carlton, and Elliott—families that later became well known in Fond du Lac when the business interests of Taycheedah were transferred to the more promising village at the end of the lake. The first general store in Taycheedah, opened in 1841, was owned by B. F. Moore and J. T. Moore. This store served the entire region northward to Brothertown and did a thriving business, the daily cash receipts often running as high as several hundred dollars. B. F. Moore later became the owner of the La Belle Wagon Works, one of the leading manufacturing industries of Fond du Lac in the seventies and eighties.

The Old Hotel

"A hotel was built in Taycheedah village as early as 1840; F. D. McCarty, who was later elected county sheriff, was the first landlord. Later this hotel was owned by Nathaniel Perry until the old building became inadequate to accommodate the many travelers who came to or passed through the village. Mr. Perry then built a much larger hotel. This hostelry under the Perry management was known from Green Bay to Chicago for its genuine hospitality and the excellence of its meals. The Perry family later moved to Fond du Lac where one of the sons, J. B. Perry, was for more than fifty years connected with the oldest bank of the city as bookkeeper, cashier, president, and chairman of the board of directors. He still lives in retirement in Fond du Lac, beloved by the thousands of his fellow citizens whom he so courteously served and assisted during his long career as a banker.

"While the Taycheedah harbor was never a good landing place for any except the smallest craft, it is a fact that the first steamboat that ever floated on Lake Winnebago made its maiden trip from Taycheedah. This vessel was the 'Manchester,' Capt. Stephen Hoteling, master. In 1843 Captain Hoteling brought the boat from Buffalo, N. Y., to Taycheedah, where it was overhauled and repaired. For a number of years Taycheedah was the southern and Neenah the northern terminus of this steamboat line; Fond du Lac and Oshkosh were intermediate stopping places for the 'Manchester.'

"In 1850 there were in operation in Taycheedah a large flour mill and a sawmill. The foundation of the flour mill may still be seen near the lake shore. A tin shop, a dry goods store, and two blacksmith shops were additional industries of the thriving village during the period of its prosperity."

REV. J. W. IRISH COMING TO CITY

The Rev. J. W. Irish, for many years in charge of the Eau Claire district of the West Wisconsin Conference of the Methodist church, plans to come to Madison soon, where as executive secretary of the Wisconsin Methodist hospital association he will take up his duties in connection with the million dollar hospital to be erected by the Methodist and the Jackson clinic. Rev. Irish is very optimistic over the proposition, say reports from Eau Claire, and ambitiously predicts that in ten years Madison will rival Rochester, Minn.

SMITHBACK GETS 10 DAYS IN JAIL

Also Fined $10 and Costs for Assaulting Little Arthur Juve

"Ten dollars and costs and 10 days in the Dane county jail," so Judge Casson pronounced his sentence to Alfred Smithback, after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery.

Smithback's victim was little Arthur Juve, son of Mrs. Juve of this city. Arthur was working on his uncle's farm near Burke, when Smithback assaulted him. He lay three hours unconscious on the field. Arthur appeared in court this morning as did a number of his relatives.

OVERHOLSER ON TRIP TO DENVER

R. A. Overholser, scout executive, will leave Madison, Monday, accompanied by his wife and two small daughters, Averyl and Frances, and will motor to Denver, Col., his former home. From there they will take a trip, by train to Salt Lake City, Utah, where they will visit friends. They expect to be back in Madison by Sept. 1.

STANDARD SCORE CARDS PREPARED

Just as the county fair prompts farmers to strive for perfection in farm products, the cooking and sewing exhibit should be a place where women gather to display and inspect some of the most approved ideas in housekeeping. It will pay the housewife to know and understand score cards for the products she exhibits.

Because the housewife must know the standards upon which awards for household exhibits are awarded at the various fairs and shows, the home economics department of the University of Wisconsin has just prepared a leaflet entitled, "The Housewife Keeps Score." In it are standard score cards for many products.

It is not enough to know the standards for exhibits after the judges have done their work. An understanding of the various points of the score and their relative importance is almost necessary to the preparation of a good exhibit. Some women get this knowledge through experience in exhibiting, but it is easier to get it through a study of the score cards that the judges use in placing the exhibits.

The home-maker who has no intention of entering an outside contest likes to know, nevertheless, how her work measures up with the best work her neighbors are doing. The score card is more than a standard for competition in fairs and club work. In the hands of the housewife who wants to judge and improve her own housekeeping, it has advantages unrealized. The score card sets a definite high standard with which the work done in the house can be compared.

U. W. DAIRY SCHOOL MAKES FREE TESTS

Two hundred and thirty-eight samples of cheese have been tested for moisture and 22 samples for butter fat by J. L. Sammis of the Wisconsin Dairy school in the year just past. This service is rendered the dairy interests of the state free of charge.

Eighty-three cheese sent in by various makers have been judged and scored for the benefit of the makers. This service is especially valuable for cheesemakers who expect to compete at the various county and state fairs.

"We will be glad to receive cheese for scoring or judging at any time," says Mr. Sammis. "Samples sent in for moisture tests will receive prompt attention."

FINED $200 AND FOR BOOZE SALE

Frank Congelesi, who was charged in superior court last week with selling liquor, and who has steadily maintained his innocence, changed his plea to guilt this morning and was fined $200 and costs by Judge Casson.

BENTLEY AND STEVENS OUT

Papers Not Filed in Time, Rules State Attorney

Nomination papers received at the office of secretary of state after the time fixed for filing cannot be received, according to an opinion of deputy attorney general M. B. Olbrich to secretary of state Merlin Hull Thursday.

The law specifies that the papers must be "filed" and the attorney general's department has held that that means in the office of secretary of state and not at the post office. The papers of A. A. Bentley, La Crosse, and William Stevens, Rhinelander, were received too late for filing. Bentley was candidate on the democratic ticket and Stevens candidate for senator on the republican ticket.

Settlers who wish to enroll at the Holcombe land clearing school should make application to Mr. Swenhart at Bayfield, Wis., for an admission blank.

FINANCE WIZARD SATISFIES CLAIMS

BOSTON—Charles J. Ponzi, who claims to have amassed millions within a few months and who has paid to the public large profits on their investments in his deal in international exchange, appeared today almost to have satisfied question among his investors as to his solvency. COURSE IN METHODS OF VOTING DIRECTED BY U. W. EXTENSION

500 Wisconsin Women Prepare for First Presidential Ballot

Over 500 women in Wisconsin, preparing for their first presidential vote, as well as a number of men, are studying "Voting Methods and Elections," in cooperative correspondence study classes directed by the municipal information bureau of the Extension Division of the University of Wisconsin.

The group method of instruction is an innovation in correspondence study work. Besides their individual lectures and lessons, the students organize in study groups to discuss general problems and interpret basic principles in the terms of local needs.

The Extension division has prepared special material such as charts, diagrams and supplementary information which it sends out at the request of the members of the class. The discussion group serves as a clearing house where ideas are exchanged and where misconceptions are cleared away.

In simple language the course explains the things that the average voter should know about elections in order to vote intelligently. The needs of women are emphasized. It is especially adapted to the teacher of civics, woman's clubs, women interested in suffrage, chairman and member of the civic affairs committee, Y. W. C. A. girls, and social workers.

The topics treated in the course are: Qualifications of Electors and Classes of Elections; Methods of Nomination and Registration; Voting and the Conduct of Elections; Corrupt Practices and Penalties; Political Parties and Elections; and Election Expedients and Reforms.

WHERE DID YOU GET IT? JUDGE WANTS TO KNOW

As Three Admit Drunkenness;
Jamaica Ginger, Says
One in Plea

"Well, judge, I guess maybe I was drunk," Tom Wheeler of Lodi admitted to Judge Casson when arraigned in superior court this morning along with Albert Zigler and James Wiric, who also pleaded guilty to the same charge.

After finding them all guilty and fining Wheeler and Zigler $5 each, Judge Casson wanted to know how they "got that way" and where they got "it."

Wheeler claimed that his was Jamaica ginger and that it was given him by a friend. The other two said they bought theirs from a dark complexioned man in Brittingham park and that it was wine. Wiric's sentence was deferred and he was remanded to the custody of the sheriff.

Winter wheat, rye and barley were harvested under favorable conditions, while oats are ripening rapidly. Apples, sugar beets, tobacco, peas and cranberries are ripening well.

Tags Insufficient—Identification markings must be put on all auto tires, handbags, machinery and suit cases sent through the mails, according to a ruling by the post office. This is required because tags tear off easily, and hundreds of parcels go to the deadletter office. Names and addresses of both the consignee and the sender must be put onto the article itself, wherever most practicable.

COLOR APPEAL IN AUTOS IS STRONG

Edward S. Jordan Gives Views on the Present Trend in Buying

The appeal to the eye is one of the greatest factors in selling, claims Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Co., Cleveland.

For years Mr. Jordan has watched the trend of buying, particularly among cars of the better class. To a woman, nothing appeals so much as elegant lines, refinement of appointments, beauty of color and harmony of design.

To so combine these attributes that the whole is a thing of beauty and dependability is the fascinating part of automobile building.

Mr. Jordan's latest appeal to a woman's subtle appreciation of beauty, is the offering of seven special colors for the month of August only.

These colors—suggestive of things rare and beautiful, are interesting because of their individuality. Sarabend Green, for instance, Shasta Blue or Dawn Gray, Mayfield Blue, these are colors seldom seen in humdrum of everyday life.

Strange Legend Veils Mystery of Devil's Tower, Wyoming

Devil's Tower.

SUNDANCE, Wyo.—There are many legends regarding Devil's Tower, the mighty basalt monolith that rises almost sheer 1,300 feet from the top of a hill twenty-two miles northeast of Sundance, and which has been set aside by the federal government as a national monument. A legend new to the "rallies" of this section was told recently to Gen. Hugh L. Scott, U. S. A., by an aged Ogalalla Sioux. Here is the story:

Ages and ages ago seven Indian maidens were disporting themselves on the hill where Devil's Tower now stands, when they were attacked by bears. They took refuge on a rock and beseeched Manitou to preserve them. The ravenous bears rushed at the rock and began climbing its sides, but miraculously the rock began to grow higher. The higher the bears climbed the taller the rock became until finally it was the mighty eminence now called by white men Devil's Tower, but which, said the old Ogalalla furrier, the Sioux always identified as Bear Lodge because of its origin and its resemblance in form to a titanic Indian lodge. The bears, the old Indian continued, finally desisted in their efforts to reach the maidens, but not before their claws had scratched tremendous furrows in the sides of the growing rock and the rock had become so tall that the maid-ens, although safe from the bears, were unable to descend and perished miserably from thirst and starvation. Their spirits, the old Sioux related, ascended to the sky and became a seven-starred constellation which annually is directly above "Bear Lodge" on the anniversary of the miracle of the growing rock. In substantiation of his story the old Indian pointed to the fact that the bones of many bears have been found at the base of the rock (early white explorers found numerous bear skulls there), which, he stated, were those of bears that were shaken from the sides of the rock by its rapid up-rearing and perished from the fall. Also he called attention to the perpendicular serrations hundreds of feet in length on the sides of the rock, which, he averred, were the marks made by the claws of the climbing bears.

The sides of Devil's Tower are so precipitous that it has been scaled on only a few occasions.
