STATE URGES COUNTIES TO HIRE MORE MEN

Rural School Teachers To Tour Europe

County Superintendent A. G. Meating
Has Completed Arrangements

County school teachers, particularly those from Outagamie county, will be given an opportunity to tour Europe for $249 next summer. The trip was arranged by A. G. Meating, superintendent of Outagamie county schools, and has aroused interest all over the country. Letters of inquiry and requests for reservations have come to him from teachers all over the states, but first consideration in reservation will be given to Outagamie county tutors. The Ste. St. Marie and Canadian Pacific Railroad company will handle the trip in the United States and Canada, and the Canadian Pacific Steamship lines will handle the ocean voyage. The Travel Guild, Inc., will conduct the tour of Europe. The price of $249 includes all expenses from the time the voyagers leave Appleton until they return. The trip includes visits in Canada, England, France, and Belgium. Those desiring side trips will have the privilege of taking them and still be able to return with the party. The teachers will leave Appleton July 8 and return August 9.

Mr. Meating has worked on the trip for four months and written hundreds of letters. Eight steamship lines and 23 railroads bid for the business. When the race was eliminated to four concerns, representatives visited Appleton for a joint conference with Mr. Meating. An itinerary was prepared and bids asked for. The company chosen will have complete charge of the group from the time it leaves Appleton.

Employment Bureaus Are Established Here

Poor Commissioner and Woman's Club
Undertake Task

Because of the many calls for help coming to his office recently W. L. Lyons, city poor commissioner, has made arrangements whereby his office will function as an employment bureau during the present period of unemployment. Everybody having a small job to be done is requested to call Mr. Lyons at his office in the city hall, phone 3721, and somebody will be sent out very promptly.

The Appleton Woman's club has maintained a similar bureau for some time, but has specialized in serving women. The work will be continued and phone calls for female help will be filled promptly. The phone number is 2764.

H. K. Babcock Dies At Neenah Home

Well Known Sportsman and Financier
Succumbs to Heart Attack

Henry (Harry) Kimberly Babcock, 53, well known Neenah financier and sportsman, passed away Monday night at his home following a heart attack. Born in Neenah in 1877, Mr. Babcock was a son of the late Havilah K. Babcock, one of the founders of the Kimberly-Clark corporation. He received his education in the public schools of Neenah, at Phillips academy at Andover, Mass., at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston and at Yale university. He was a director of the First National bank at Neenah and vice president of the Fox River Paper company of Appleton. An ardent sportsman, he was one of the organizers of the Poygan Hunting club and of the Evergreen club on the Wolf river, was always foremost in sponsoring movements for the public welfare. His passing will be mourned by many friends.

Appleton Youth, Trying for Record,
Drifts Miles from His Course and Come to Grief on House Close to Shore Line

Roland Ziegler, youthful Appleton parachute jumper, had a narrow escape from death when he leaped from the Whiting airport plane Pride of Appleton at a height of 14,000 feet.

Ziegler miscalculated his drift and landed on the top of a house twenty feet from the western shore of Lake Butte des Morts, several miles from where he had intended to touch the ground.

He sustained face bruises, but otherwise was uninjured. Ziegler has been making parachute jumps for several months, but usually from a height of about 1,200 feet. This time he established a record for himself by casting off 14,000 feet above the earth.

Three miles of highway are being constructed by the state to reach the park at the top of Rig hill near Wausau. Several years ago this area was given to the state by the Kiwanis club for park purposes. The legislature has set aside $150,000 a year for building park roads and out of this the sum of $20,000 is being used for the three miles to reach the summit of Rib hill, the highest point in the state, and nearly a thousand feet above the Wisconsin and Rib rivers at its base.

Committee Appointed By Gov. Kohler Recommends County Building Jobs Be Started Immediately

Survey Shows that Improvement in Unemployment
Situation Is Coming

A state-wide program of activities to relieve the unemployment situation was adopted Tuesday by the Wisconsin citizens' committee on unemployment appointed by Governor Kohler some weeks ago, meeting at the Athletic Club in Milwaukee.

Committee representatives are to attend budget meetings between Nov. 1 and 15 of thirty-two county boards and urge the adoption of larger budgets for unemployment relief. They also will urge boards of supervisors to speed up construction work and start as much as possible of the 1931 work this fall.

Private employers throughout the state are asked to increase the number of shifts in their plants and thus employ more men. Discontinuance of overtime is advocated as another means of giving work to a greater number of men. Plant managers are also asked to co-operate by taking on a full force of laborers for shorter hours rather than a reduced force for more hours.

Asserting that the worst of the slump is over, Prof. D. D. Lescoghier, secretary of the Kohler committee and professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin, declared "price levels are about as low as they will go."

"Anticipations that conditions will become worse are based on improper application of economic principles. The situation is about as bad as it can be in a country as financially sound as the United States and the only problem worthy of consideration is how to bring conditions back up to normal."

Although Prof. Lescoghier feels it may be a slow process, he believes, if properly handled, complete recuperation can be effected within two years.

"Employers must be brought to the realization that they have a responsibility to their employees. They should make a sacrifice in the interests of their employers and be satisfied for a year or so with lower incomes from their plants and whatever stock they may own."

"Likewise consumers who were frightened by the stock market crash and have been holding back should relax and buy."

Besides county boards of supervisors being urged to start their 1931 highway construction at once, it is asked that during the winter they hire two shifts instead of one to remove the snow from the roads—a morning and an evening shift—on the ground that it is better to give two groups employment of four hours each than to give one group a day's work of eight hours.

It is also urged that cleaning and repair work on public property should be done during the winter.

Field representatives of the committee will help county boards carry out their unemployment relief programs.

"Private employers will be asked to do everything possible to equalize employment in families. Where families have several members working, the committee recommends that extra workers in each family be laid off.

"The committee is opposed to seven days a week employment. All workers should be given at least one day of rest. Overtime should be abolished for a while."

Private employers will be urged to maintain present wage scales wherever possible, since lowering wages would merely accentuate the unemployment situation.

Men employed on the new Irving Zuelke building here are being worked in shifts so as to give employment to as many as possible. Each shift works a couple of weeks and then gives way to another, so that the number of men working on the building is greatly increased over what would be normal in ordinary times.

WATER STORED TO HEAT CITY

A tank full of heat, collected when convenient during the night or when there is no great demand for steam boiler capacity for other purposes and then doled out to customers during the day as heat is called for, is the latest device of the electricity works at Hamburg, Germany, to increase the efficiency and cheapen the cost of their service.

This company not only supplies electric current to much of the city but also furnishes heat to nearby buildings in the form of hot water. Demand for electric power is greatest during the day and in the evening, when motors must be operated and when electric lamps are most used. The same hours also bring the greatest demands for heat, since offices and dwellings then must be kept warmer than during the night.

Engineers have built a great tank, holding nearly 3,000 tons of water and insulated on the outside so that hot water stored in this tank cannot cool off.

During the night boiler power will be used to heat water for storage in this tank. During the day the boilers will be used to run steam turbines, producing the electric power then in demand, while the heat which customers also demand at those hours will be drawn from the storage tank.

Theatre News

The phenomenal reception accorded the sheet music, phonograph record and radio presentations of the song, "Love, Thy Magic Spell Is Everywhere," introduced by Gloria Swanson in her last picture, "The Trespasser," would seem to clearly indicate that fans might do well to jot down the titles of the three songs she offers in her new United Artists talking and singing comedy, "What a Widow!" which comes to the Appleton theatre tomorrow, Sunday and Monday.

They are: "Love Is Like a Song," "Say Oui, Cherie" and "You're the One."

The three numbers were written by Vincent Youmans, the highly successful Broadway librettist who has been responsible for such melody successes as "Hallelujah," "Tea for Two," "Sometimes I'm Happy," "More Than You Know," "The One Girl," and countless others heard in such shows as "No, No, Nanette," "Hit the Deck," "Great Day," "Wildflower" and "Rainbow."

Admiral Byrd To Speak At Lawrence Chapel

Will Tell Story of His South Polar Expedition, November 19

Comes Under the Auspices of the Appleton Woman's Club

Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who will tell his own story of his magnificent South Polar Expedition here on the evening of November 19, at Lawrence Memorial chapel, not only added a glorious chapter to American history when he sent the Stars and Stripes fluttering down to rest in triumph on the site of the South Pole, but he has made invaluable scientific contributions as well.

Of that vast area explored and observed by the Byrd Expedition it is conservatively estimated that 150,000 square miles were surveyed by aerial camera; the total distance flown was 7,100 miles; 2,100 miles were covered that the picturesque dogs and sledges will be relegated to history and mushing will become a lost art to explorers.

It is probable that the Gould geological party which made the tremendous trek from Little America to the Mountains of the Plateau Rim made one of the last long dog-team journeys for scientific research.

Admiral Byrd could relate many interesting and heroic stories of the huskies, whose courage and loyalty endear them to the men who fight with them the sometimes heartbreaking battle against blizzard and piercing Polar blasts, treacherous crevasses and shifting zastrugi.

The great aviator and explorer is being brought to Appleton under the auspices of the Woman's club. His lecture will be illustrated by remarkable motion pictures of the expedition. These pictures were selected and assembled under the personal direction of Admiral Byrd. The motion pictures which are shown in connection with the by sledge; and oceanographic observations were made on the 2300-mile stretch between the Ross Shelf Ice and New Zealand.

One of the interesting features of Byrd's lecture is the description of life in Little America, the precarious little stronghold perched on the rim of the Antarctic ice—the world's last great frontier.

Here during the long Antarctic night Admiral Byrd and his crew worked and planned and dreamed toward the culminating triumph of the expedition, the magnificent flight to the South Pole. This outmost post of civilization offers no friendliness to man, except perhaps the gracious bow of a hospitable penguin, or the cheery salute of a playful whale who has been bobbing about beneath the ice in one's front yard and whose sudden desire to pay a social call changes the landscape with disconcerting suddenness.

In the Admiral's opinion the exploring plane of the immediate future will be able to land far away from its base and to be anchored to the snow with six months' supply aboard. This means lecture have never been shown publicly.

Seat sale for the lecture opens at Belling's drug store on November 5.

Eight checks representing about $132 and a bank book stolen from the Fashion Shop Saturday night were found in a dead-end canal at the Kimberly Clark mill in Neenah. The burglars probably escaped through Neenah and tossed the checks and bank book into the canal as they passed through the city. About $700 in cash was taken from the safe, which they broke open and rifled before they left the city, and $1000 worth of wearing apparel was taken. The checks were discovered by Lester Page, a workman, who was raking the flumes. Appleton police were notified and assisted in further search for other checks still missing, but were not successful.

The TRAIL of '98

A Northland Romance by Robert W. Service

INSTALLMENT XX

But what was this? They had come on a wooden box that streaked down the slope as straight as an arrow from the bow. It was some other scheme of the tyrant Man. Nevertheless, they jostled and jammed to get into it.

The man stood by his water-gun and from its nozzle the gleaming terror leapt. It flew like an arrow from the bow, and wherever he aimed it the hillside seemed to reel and shudder at the shock. Great cataracts of gravel shot out, avalanches of clay toppled over; vast boulders were hurled into the air like heaps of fleecy wool.

The roar deafened the man. He heard the crash of falling rock but he was so intent on his work he did not hear another man approach. Suddenly he looked up and saw.

He gave a mighty start, then at once he was calm again. This was the meeting he had dreaded, longed for, fought against, desired. Almost savagely, and with a curious blaze in his eyes he redirected the little giant.

He waved his hand to the other man. "Go away!" he shouted.

Mosher refused to budge. His pig eyes glittered, and he took off his hat to wipe some beads of sweat from the monumental baldness of his forehead. His rich, penetrating voice pierced through the roar of the "giant."

"Here, turn off your water. I want to speak to you. Got a business proposition to make."

Jim was dumb. "Say, your wife's in town. Been there for the last year. Didn't you know it?"

Jim shook his head. He was particularly interested in his work just then.

"Yes, she's in town—living respectable."

Jim redirected his giant with a savage swish.

"Say, I'm a sort of philanthropic guy," went on Mosher, "and there's nothing I like better than doing the erring wife restitution act. I think I could induce that little woman of yours to come back to you."

He was sneering now, frankly villainous. Jim gave no sign.

"What d'ye say? This is a likely bit of ground—give me a half share in this ground, and I'll guarantee to deliver that little piece of goods to you. There's an offer."

Again that smug look of generosity beamed on the man's face. Once more Jim motioned him to go, but Mosher did not heed. He thought the gesture was a refusal. His face grew threatening. "All right, if you won't," he snarled, "look out! I know you love her still. Let me tell you, I own that woman, body and soul, and I'll make life hell for her. I'll torture you through her. Yes, I've got a cinch. You'd better change your mind."

He had stepped back as if to go. Then, whether it was an accident or not no one will ever know—but the little giant swung round till it bore on him.

It lifted him up in the air. It shot him forward like a stone from a catapult. It landed him on the bank fifty feet away with a sickening crash. Then, as he lay, it pounded and battered him out of all semblance of a man.

The waters were having their revenge.

* * * * *

"Berna, we must get married."

"Yes, dearest, whenever you wish."

"Well, tomorrow."

She smiled radiantly; then her face grew very serious.

"What will I wear?" she asked plaintively.

"Wear? Oh, anything. That white dress you've got on—I never saw you looking so sweet. You remind me of a picture I know of Saint Cecilia, the same delicacy of feature, the same pure coloring, the same grace of expression."

"Foolish one" she chided; but her voice was deliciously tender, and her eyes were love-lit.

She came over to me, and knelt by my chair, putting her arms around me prettily. The pure, sweet face looked up into mine.

"We have been happy here, haven't we, boy?" she asked.

"Exquisitely happy. Yet I have always been afraid."

"Of what, dearest?"

"I don't know. Somehow it seems too good to last."

"Well, tomorrow we'll be married."

"Yes, we should have done that a year ago. It's all been a mistake. It didn't matter at first; nobody noticed, nobody cared. But now it's different. I can see it by the way the wives of the men look at us. Well, we don't care anyway. We'll marry and live our lives. But there are other reasons?"

"Yes?"

"Yes. Garry talks of coming out. You wouldn't like him to find us living like this—without benefit of clergy?"

"Not for the world," she cried, in alarm. "What will he think of me, I wonder, poor, ignorant me? I believe I'm afraid of him. I wish he'd stay away and leave us alone. Yet for your sake, dear, I do wish him to think well of me."

"Don't fear, Berna. He'll be proud of you. But there's a second reason."

"What?"

"Oh, my beloved! perhaps we'll not always be alone as we are now. Perhaps, perhaps some day there will be others—little ones—for their sakes."

She did not speak. I could feel her nestle closer to me. So we sat there in the big, deep chair, in the glow of the open fire, silent, dreaming, and I saw on her lashes the glimmer of a glorious tear.

I kissed away her tears. Foolish tears! I blessed her for them. I held her closer to me. I was wondrously happy. No longer did the shadow of the past hang over us. Even as children forget were we forgetting.

"Husband, I'm so happy," she sighed.

"Wife, dear, dear wife, I too."

There was no need for words. Our lips met in passionate kisses, but the next moment we started apart. Some one was coming up the garden path—a tall figure of a man. I started as if I had seen a ghost. Could it be?—then I rushed to the door.

There on the porch stood Garry.

* * * * *

As he stood before me once again it seemed as if the years had rolled away, and we were boys together. It all came back to me, that sunny snore, the white-washed cottages, the old gray house among the birches, the lift of sheep-starred pasture, and above it the glooming dark of the heather hills.

And it was but three years ago. How life had changed! Fortune had come to me, love had come to me. I was no longer a callow, uncouth lad. Yet, alas! I no longer looked futureward with joy; the savor of life was no more sweet. It was another "me" I saw in my mirror that day, a "me" with a face sorely lined, with hair gray-flecked; with eyes sad and bitter. Little wonder Garry, as he stood there, stared at me so sorrowfully.

"How you've changed, lad!" said he at last.

"Have I, Garry? You're just about the same. But by all that's wonderful, what brought you here?"

His teeth flashed in that clever, confident smile.

"The stage. I just arrived a few minutes ago, and hurried here at once. Aren't you glad to see me?"

"Glad? Yes, indeed! I can't tell you how glad. But it's a shock to me your coming so suddenly."

"It was a sudden resolve; I should have wired you. However, I thought I would give you a surprise. How are you, old man?"

"Me—oh, I'm all right, thanks."

"Why, what's the matter with you, lad? You look ten years older. You look older than your big brother now."

"Yes, I daresay. It's the life, it's the land. A hard life and a hard land."

"Why don't you go Out?"

"I don't know, I don't know. I keep on planning to go and then something turns up, and I put it off a little longer. I suppose I ought to go, but I'm tied up with mining interests. I'm making money, you see."

"Not sacrificing your youth and health for that, are you?"

"I don't know, I don't know."

There was a puzzled look in his frank face, and for my part I was strangely ill at ease. With all my joy at his coming, there was a sense of anxiety, even of fear, I had not wanted him to come just then, to see me there. I was not ready for him. I had planned otherwise.

His gaze roved round the room. Suddenly it fell on a piece of embroidery. He started slightly and I saw his eyes narrow, his mouth set. He looked at me again, in an odd, bewildered way. He went on speaking, but there was a queer constraint in his manner.

"I'm going to stay here for a month, and then I want you to come back with me. Come back home and get some of the old color into your cheeks. The country doesn't agree with you, but we'll have you all right pretty soon. Oh, we'll have the good old times over again! You'll see, we'll soon put you right."

"It's good of you, Garry, to think so much of me; but I'm afraid, I'm afraid I can't come just yet. I've got so much to do. I've got thirty men working for me. I've just got to stay."

He sighed.

"Well, if you stay I'll stay, too. I don't like the way you're looking."

You're working too hard. Perhaps I can help you."

"All right; I'm afraid you'll find it rather awful, though. But for a time it will interest you."

"I think it will." And again his eyes stared fixedly at that piece of embroidery on its little hoop.

Discuss Water Level In Lake Winnebago

Hope to Prevent Recurrence of Conditions Existing Along Lower River Last Summer

Mayor John Goodland attended a meeting of mayors and village presidents of the Fox river valley at Hotel Kaukauna Thursday evening. Mayor B. W. Fargo of Kaukauna called the meeting to discuss the opening of the gates of the dam too early in the spring. He alleges that opening the gates early in the season so reduces the water level of the lake that there is not sufficient water available to flush the river later in the summer when sanitary conditions demand such action. Residents of cities along the river were annoyed the past season by a stench arising from the stagnant water. Large numbers of fish died.

The Association for Relief of High Water at Oshkosh protests against raising the level of the lake 15 inches above the crest of the Menasha dam. President Allan H. Tripp of the Oshkosh organization asserts that body is ready to "fight to the last ditch" to retain the agreement with the government that when the water reaches a point 15 inches above the crest of the dam, the gates will be opened to maintain the level. Mr. Tripp claims the proposal by Mayor Fargo is only a ruse to raise the level of the water in the lake, and would result in damages to riparian land owners in Oshkosh and Fond du Lac.

Navigation, asserts Mr. Tripp, continues on the lake when the water level is 6 inches below the crest of the dam, and opening sluice gates to clear out the lower river only takes a few hours and can be used to prevent unhealthy and insanitary conditions, even if it does hinder navigation for a short period. He declares the Association for Relief of High Water has had the gates open on previous occasions to clean the river below Appleton and that it will be glad to co-operate with any mayor desiring such a flushing, but that it positively will not tolerate a level higher than 15 inches above the dam.

Campus Comment

By Russell Davis

Homecoming is now a thing of the past but it has left its memories for all concerned. The reunion this year was one of the best in Lawrence history because of the fact that there were so many of the alums on the premises and because of the fine spirit that prevailed. Everyone on the campus seemed to be mixing with his neighbor and an attitude of good will prevailed. The Greek rivalry was forgotten even though the fraternities were engaged in competition for first place in decorations. Alums shook hands until they were blue in the face but they didn't seem to mind in the least. Homecoming for this year is history but it will be relived over and over on cold winter nights when the lads get together for their Bull sessions.

The football game of course was a disappointment to many if not all of the students and alums but the team has more games left on its schedule and hopes are bright for victories before the season ends. The Carroll team showed a fine organization with plenty of pep and it is no disgrace to lose to a team of their calibre even though it would have pleased the locals more if they had been on the heavy end of the tally. Smith, Bruinooge, Ottery, and others played fine games for the invaders while the running of Co-Captain Fischl and the line play of Bill Bickel stood out for the Blue and White.

And now the element of sadness. The six week grades did come out last Saturday as they had been threatening to do for so long. The campus presented an array of dour and bright faces. The nature of the countenance depending on the marks obtained. So far none of the football team have been definitely declared ineligible.

The college office was broken into either Saturday night or Sunday morning but a checkup revealed that the lost sheep had strayed but not stolen. It is presumed that the football receipts were the object of the visit.

By defeating the D. I. tennis team Sigma Phi Epsilon won first place in inter-fraternity tennis. The win gives them first position in the race for the supremacy cup with D. I. four points behind the Theta Phi but a short distance back in third place.

Drop in again next Friday.

ROOSEVELT NOTES

By Jean C Owen

The ninth grade science classes are studying the telephone, so a trip to the telephone office was made possible through the courtesy of Mr. Fellows, manager. Mr. Gust was the pupils' guide through the plant. Some of the important factors learned were: the operating of the batteries, generators, visit to the terminal room, repair service department, operating where the operators are, learning all about the long distance calls, information bureau, etc. Each pupil is required to write a theme on the trip. Notes were taken as Mr. Gust explained each operation. The trip was very enjoyable as well as beneficial. A trip to the Western Union was also taken where the students learned how a telegraph set is operated, how telegrams are sent and received, how time is sent by the stars from Washington, D. C., and how the new automatic telegraphic set is operated. This also was an interesting trip.

The eighth grade science classes took a trip to Fox theatre Friday to study indoor circulation of air, heat and cooling conditions. The students learned how the theatre is cooled in the summer and heated in the winter, how the vitaphone is operated, how to better appreciate the operator when a film breaks and not to become impatient. This trip was made possible through the courtesy of Mr. Eaton Sizer, manager. They also visited the fire department. Mr. McGillan explained how the Water department co-operates with the fire department when a fire occurs, as when the fire alarm is sent in more pressure is turned on. He also explained how alarms are received through a ticker and a gong. They were taken upstairs and shown where the firemen prepare their meals, how they sleep and a demonstration of how they slide down the poles was given. Themes are to be written on these trips also.

Club work has been started at Roosevelt. A selection of 17 clubs is offered this year: Aero club, Chef club, dancing club, Debate and Parliamentary Drill, Dramatics, Experiment club, Fine Arts, Gift club, Handicraft, Latin, Nature Study, School Paper, Stamp club, Story Hour, Travel club, Tumbling club and Study Period. These clubs are open to all the students and will be held on Tuesdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Meyer, Sr., who recently sold their residence at Potato Point, have decided not to purchase the home on Meade street which they had at first considered and instead have bought a residence on S. State street where they hope to be settled in the near future.

McKINLEY NOTES

By Genevieve Paeth

The McKinley Junior high school has banked 100 per cent in every grade for the past six weeks period. They plan to keep this up if possible, all through the year.

The first issue of the "McKinley School Life" was distributed on Tuesday, October 28.

The members of the staff are: Editor-in-chief, Verna Pfund; news editor, Genevieve Paeth; reporters, John Casper, Ruth Barnes, Alice Weber, Kenneth MacGregor, Joseph Diermeier, Leona Grassl, Donald Burhans, Verna Leisering, Bernard Overesch; girls' sport editor, Marjory Steiner; boys' sport editor, Harold Hutchison; wit and humor, Marie Stark; personals, Dorothy Bartz; business manager, Jack Sheehy; art editor, Theresa Roller; faculty adviser, Miss Parkinson.

The first number is filled with interesting news for the pupils of the school as well as their parents. Especially interesting is the clever cover design, drawn by Theresa Roller, art editor.

Town, city, and village clerks held their annual meeting at the court house Thursday. Fred V. Heinemann, county judge, discussed changes in the election laws and errors made by clerks in reporting election returns at the primaries; Carl Becker, city clerk of Appleton, discussed the clerks' annual reports; and Frank Appleton, highway commissioner, talked on town and county aid road projects. An open discussion followed these talks. At noon the clerks were entertained at a banquet at Hotel Northern. John A. Lonsdorf, Appleton attorney, talked on the American constitution and duties of clerks, after the dinner.

ARE YOU WEATHERWISE?

The first frost comes six weeks after the first cricket. Some one reported hearing the first cricket on the 17th of July. Watch out for early frost according to Mr. Cricket.

Mackerel clouds in sky,
Expect more wet than dry.

A mackerel sky,
Not 24 hours dry.

Mackerel scales and mares' tails
Make lofty ships carry low sails.

HOW TO PLAY THE NEW BACKGAMMON

By Lelia Hattersley

AN AUTHORITY ON THE GAME

The editor of Vanity Fair says of Backgammon and of Lelia Hattersley lessons: "The rage for backgammon has become a social menace. The plague is everywhere . . . Mrs. Hattersley is readable, authoritative, and easy to understand. She admirably clarifies the mystery of the New game—the automatic doubles, the back game, doubling in play, three-fold chouette, and the forward attack."

These lessons, which are the same as those published by the New York World, will begin in an early issue. EVERYBODY Is Playing It.
